INLAND EMPIRE ATTRACTS EAST

Twin Falls to Receive Visit from Capitalsts.

Three Special Cars to Leave Chicago May 19, and Remain Here a Short Time

Forty-bankers and head officers of big bonding companies in some of the largest cities in the east, middle west and the south are coming to southern Idaho this month to look over the country, and it is expected the result of the visit will be that more capital will come into Idaho's great irrigated empire for further development.

The party will leave Chicago in three private cars on the evening of May 19 and will remain in southern Idaho one week.

The visitors will not be persons holding minor offices in banking and bonding companies but will be the very heads of these companies and their visit, it is considered, will be by far the most important to southern Idaho of any visit of any party in the past.

The visitors will first look over the great Twin Falls tract and the new Salmon River project and their investigations on these tracts, it is firmly believed, and may be almost positively stated, will result in the party becoming interested financially in southern Idaho and with their money starting more irrigation and other enterprises. The party, it is known, having become interested in one large irrigation enterprise and it is expected will take it over, although nothing definite along this line is available for publication at this time.

The visitors will come from the following cities: New York, Chicago, St. Paul, Pittsburg, Cleveland, Louisville, Des Moines, and Davenport, Ia., St. Joseph, Mo., Kansas City, St. Louis and other cities.

Among the party will be J. G. White of New York, a member of the largest contracting firm in the world, which now has contract work amounting to $50,000,000. This company is doing considerable work in Idaho at the present time.—Statesman.

SUDDEN DEATH OF PIONEER

J. N. McMaster of This City Called Away.

One of the First Settlers on Tract Dies After Short Illness of Typhoid-Pneumonia.

The community was shocked and saddened on Tuesday by the death of Mr. John N. McMaster from typhoid-pneumonia after a very brief sickness. The news was a surprise to many because of the fact that few knew of his sickness. Mr. McMaster was not an old man, and was apparently in robust health up to the time of his last illness. The funeral will be held Sunday afternoon from the residence on Sixth avenue at two o'clock.

The deceased came to this section from Bradford, Iowa about three years ago and located near Kimberly where he had one of the best farms on the tract made so by his great energy and thrift. About a year ago Mr. McMaster rented his farm and moved to this city were the family has since resided. Mr. McMaster's demise is doubly sad because he leaves a large family of young children alone, the wife and mother having died about a year ago. The deceased leaves a brother, C. A. McMaster in this city, besides his children, to whom the sympathy of the whole city goes out in their sadness.

BIG GRAIN ELEVATOR.

Mullin Bros., of Denver, Have Agreed to Erect One.

Last week H. H. Voegler of Salt Lake spent several days in this city in company with Mullin brothers of Denver, owners of one of the biggest flour mills in that city. The gentlemen were looking up a site for a flour mill, having become interested in this section through the efforts of Mr. Voegler, and have decided to erect a large elevator here for the present and later will put in the flour mill. From the townsite company three lots in block 151 were purchased for the site of the proposed elevator. On Monday evening the matter was brought before the council in order that a right of way be granted to the Short Line to put in a spur to the elevator.

The elevator will buy wheat for milling purposes and should for this season prove a boon to the farmers in as much as they can give higher prices for mill ing grain.

MAMMOTH ORDER FOR THE SALMON

Cement for Dam Purchased in Utah.

Will Bring 16 Trains of 20 Cars Each to Twin Falls. Will be used for Salmon River Dam.

A contract for 65,000 barrels of cement, which will cost approximately $260,000 and which will be used in the construction of the big dam to be built in the Salmon river about 30 miles south of Twin Falls, was let today by C. R. Shaw by D. C. MacWatters of Milner the general manager of Twin Falls Salmon River Land & Water company which has charge of the Salmon river project.

The contract, which is the largest cement contract ever let in connection with irrigation enterprises, is also the largest ever closed between a wholesale dealer and a company within the history and growth of irrigation. To fill the contract will require 16 trains of 20 cars each, the total was aggregating 2,700,000 pounds. Shipments of cement according to the contract will commence in a short time from Devils Slide, Utah to Twin Falls, from which place the barrels of cement will be freighted across the 30 miles intervening between that place and the site of the dam on Salmon river.

With the closing of this big contract assurance beyond a doubt is given that the electric line now building from Milner to Gooding will be extended through the Salmon river country to connect with the Southern Pacific at Wells Nevada.

The cement called for by the contract will be a small part of the cost of the dam, but the cement alone will cost about $260,000. The dam which will be 210 feet high and will form a reservoir for waters of the Salmon river of about 600,000 acre feet it is estimated will cost $1,000,000, and will be constructed of solid masonry, with the concrete contracted for by the company. In addition to the masonary work on the dam there will be about a quarter of a million spent in the construction of tunnels leading from the dam to the canal from which the water will be obtained to irrigate the lands under the project.

The contract closed this morning gives assurance that the dam will be built as rapidly as possible and that the project will be consumated. Mr. Shaw, who was successful in landing the big contract, stated that he has been over the land under the project and that it is about the finest land in the state, being much the same as that in the Twin Falls tract and on about the same elevation. He said that on the tract in which there are about 160,000 acres of this land, ought to make homes for at least 25,000 people within five years, in the towns that will be started by the company. He stated that there is only a small body of land intervening between the tract and the Southern Pacific railroad in Nevada and there assurance is giving with the closing of the contract that the electric road will be extended from Gooding through the Salmon river tract to the Nevada line and from there on through to Wells where it will connect with the railroad.

"What Boise now wants to do," said Mr. Shaw, is to make a vigorous effort to have this line extended to Boise, which will thus be given another transcontinental railroad into the city and thus provide us with competition, would mean greatly reduced freight rates and better service."

With the first shipments of Union Portland cement from Devils Slide to Twin Falls great activity will be commenced and will be in progress all summer in the Salmon river country. The hauling of the cement from Twin Falls to the site of the dam bids fair to be one of the important items in connection with the contract for supplying the company with this amount of building material. The cement to haul, which will require about 325 cars, will when it arrives at Twin Falls, require four times as many wagon loads before it will be deposited at its destination, the sight of the big dam. Labor will be in demand, teams will be in demand and wagons in which to haul the cement will be necessitated. The company will have about 2,000 men at work during the coming summer, some being employed in the construction of the rail road, others employed on the dam and still others employed platting new towns for the Salmon river tract and preparing to take care of the settlers who will make their advent into the country on June 1, when the first big opening of 80,000 acres in this tract will be held by the company at Twin Falls. The state land department has notified officers of the company that the big segregation has been approved by the land department, word being received to that effect by the state department yesterday—Capital News.

Notice to Contractors.

*Sealed proposals for bids for the con*struction of an eight room brick school building at Kimberly Idaho will be received by the clerk of Kimberly school district No. 8 any time previous to one o'clock p. m. Saturday, May, 23 1908 at the office of said clerk at Kimberly Idaho. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids. A certified check for one hundred dollars payable to Martin Sullivan, clerk must accompany each and every bid. Plans and specifications for said building may be seen at the office of J. E. Tourtelotte, Boise or at my office.

MARTIN SULLIVAN, Clerk.

CONCESSIONS FOR AN ELEVATOR

City Council Give Additional Right of Way.

Regular Session Held Monday Night---Sprinkling Contract Let---The Water Question Solved.

Upon application of Mullen brothers of Denver, Colorado, the city council granted a right of way to the O. S. L. to put in a spur through ninth, tenth and eleventh avenues in blocks 147, 155 and 151 for the purpose of getting trackage for a twenty thousand dollars elevator which the above men have contracted to put in Twin Falls. The town site company having sold them sites for the mill.

The council discussed the sewer problem and on Wednesday night met met again to pass an ordinance creating the new district.

A license was granted to L. S. Pratt to put in a saloon within the corporate limits.

The question of the water pressure for the city was finally solved by the plan to put in a check in the low line canal so as to keep a steady flow from that source which, with the heavy gravity fall should insure plenty of water for fire pressure.

The sprinkling contract for the year was let to S. M. Peterson who agreed to furnish man and team for four dollars per day.

The street commissioner was given permission to purchase a horse and light wagon for his use in superintending the streets.

An additional arc light was ordered put in at the corner of Ninth avenue and Twelth street.

In order to abate the dog nuisance the council created an office of dog-catcher and elected W. M. Olk to fill the position.

Attention! Civil War Veterans.

You are requested to meet A. M. Rowe, Department Commander, Grand Army of the Republic, Department of Idaho, at Twin Falls, Idaho on the 11th of May at 2 p. m. at the office of Comrade James W. Shields, in the First National Bank building. The meeting is called for the purpose of organizing a G. A. R. Post in Twin Falls. It is greatly desired to complete the organization before Decoration Day. Ten comrades are required to organize and there are twenty odd on the tract. Let all come.

The resolutions of a republican convention cover a multitude of sins—in the eyes of the convention. Wait and see what the voter thinks on election day.

Robert LaFollett of the Badger state has been gaining in his following in this county, and is the only candidate of the republican party that seems to have made a hit with the working men.

During the past week Judge Smith had the pleasure of fining a couple of parties for reckless driving upon the crowded main streets and with it gave some good advice to the reckless teamsters. In one instance a man was struck by the team and thrown into the gutter, in the second case the teamster continued his fierce pace despite the fact that a number of little children were directly in his path and had to hustle to reach a safe place. The action of the court is to be commended and it is to be hoped that the lesson will have its effect on all drivers. The habit of rapid driving around corners and over crossings is getting too common and should be treated as any other offense against public safty.

District Attorney Jerome of New York city recently criticised the press because of its subservience to commercial interests and made the claim that four large department stores of that city controled the utterance of the dailies entirely. Mr. Jerome is often radical in his assertions, but he certainly hit the nail on the head for once. But his assertion is not only true of the city papers but of a large number of country publications which during the political campaigns seem to look for the fattest pocketbook before making their choice of candidates and party. It is becoming so true every year that a man who would hesitate to attempt to bribe the average citizen, will openly offer a newspaper money for his editorial support. Such offers make the editor with a conscience feel like committing murder, but he is only reaping the harvest which the general subserviency of the press has sown in past campaigns.

With the opening of spring increased progress has been been made on the Government's vast Reclamation Service plans in the West. Few realize how extensive are these undertakings or how important they are to the home seeker. The work as a whole rivals the Panama Canal in the labor and expense involved. The employment of 16,000 men and the expenditure of $1,250,000 every month are but incidents in the service. Already the canals completed reach a total of 1,815 miles—as far as from New York to Denver. Homes have been made for ten thousand families where before was desert. In the past five years $33,000,000 has been spent, and the enterprises already planned will add more than a hundred millions to this sum. Nor is this money spent in one locality. In New Mexico one of the largest dams in the world is being constructed. In California and Nevada great reservoirs and irrigation plants are being built. In western Kansas the beet sugar raisers are to have a $250,000 plant for pumping the "underflow," or the sheet water found a few feet beneath the top soil, of the Arkansas River Valley to the surface, that ditches may be filled and crops made certain. On seven great projects, involving the expenditure of $51,000,000 and the reclamation of over a million acres, the benefit is directly to the Northwest. These projects lie in North and South Dakota, Montana and Washington. In these states lands that have been considered as worthless except for the coarsest kind of grazing are being transformed into productive farms. In South Dakota the largest earth dam in the world is being constructed, that ninety thousand acres of land may be made fertile, while just east of the Yellowstone Park is being built a solid wall of masonry 310 feet high to hold back the waters of the Shoshone river until a reservoir ten square miles, capable of irrigating a hundred thousand acres, is formed. The production of these irrigated lands is marvelous. In the Grand River Valley of Colorado a tract of 160 acres supports fifteen families, with a total of 80 persons. In a single season this land produced $48,000 worth of peaches from trees three to seven years old. Another quarter-section, half of which is in grain and the remainder in fruit, has for several years produced $30,000 a year. This dense population brings with it definite social advantages. In this valley, of the fourteen school districts all but one have two or more teachers each; a perfect telephone system, rural mail service and good roads make it more like surburban territory than a country section. Nor is the service of reclamation confined to putting water on the land; it is also devoted to taking surplus water off the soil. Recent surveys have shown that in a northern Minnesota district 400,000 acres of swamp-land can be reclaimed through drainage at a cost of less than $5 an acre. When this is done, it will be worth $50 to $100 an acre. This is a part of the work to be done during the coming season.—Outlook.

STREETS RENUMBERED.

Council Makes Radical Change in Present Inadequate Plan.

At the meeting of the council last night it was voted to name the streets and avenues in such a manner as to make possible ease in distinguishing the various sections of the city. The present way of naming the streets has always proved a puzzle to anyone but a real estate man, and has resulted in many ridiculous mistakes due to the avenues and streets running opposite to the two main thoroughfares Main street and Shoshone avenue. After considerable discussion, in which several business men participated it was decided to make Shoshone avenue the starting point of the avenues and Main street for the avenues.

Shoshone avenue will be changed to Shoshone street and will conform to the rest of the streets running parallel to it, and the street west of it will be known and named as second street west, the streets beyond that as third street west and so on to the last street lying in the west end of the city, all of which streets will be distinguished by the description west after their number.

The streets running east will be called second street east, third street east and so on to the end of the city limit.

Main street will be re named Main avenue and will thus parallel the avenues numbered consecutively each direction from Main avenue distinguished only by its direction north or south of the initial avenue.

A. D. Johnson appeared before the council with a propodition to sink a well down to attempt to get artesian water, without expense to the city only with the agreement that in case such flow was sufficient the city should take it over for use. The matter was left for the consideration of the commercial club.

The sewer district was ordered by ordinance, also a plumbing ordinance whereby the grade of plumbing is specified. Fred Ramsey was appointed inspector of plumbing.

A great many people imagine they have heart trouble when the fact is that the whole trouble lies in the stomach. The pains in the side around the region of the heart are not necessarily heart trouble. We suggest that you start with the stomach and whenever you feel a depression after eating or whenever your food seems to nauseate take Kodol. It will not be very long until all these "heart pains" will disappear. Take Kodol now and until you know you are right again. There isn't any doubt about what it will do and you will find the truth of this statement verified after you have used Kodol for a few weeks. It is sold here by Sprague's Pharmacy.

A LESSON IN GERMAN.

Follow It Closely and You Will See How Really Simple It Is.

Among the Hottentots (Hottentotten in German the kangaroo (Beutelratte) is found in great numbers. Many of them wander away into the country free and unmolested; others, less fortunate, are taken by hunters and put into cages (Kotten) provided with covers (Kattendecken) to keep out the rain. These cages are called in German Lattenkittenwetterkotten, and the kangaroo after his hopelessness takes the name of Lattenkittenwetterkottenbeutelratte. One day an assassin (Attentäter) was arrested who had killed a Hottentot Woman. Hottentotmutter, the mother of two stupid and stuttering children in Strauchtentotel, Flöhnemann in the German language is called Hottentotenstrauchtentottel, and her assassin takes the name Hottentotenstrauchtentottelattentäter. The murderer was confined in a kangaroo cage = Beutelrattenlattenkittenwetterkotten—when a few days later he escaped, but fortunately he was recaptured by a Hottentot, who presented himself in the mayor's office with beaming face.

"I have captured the Attentäter," said he.

"Which one?" replied the mayor. "We have captured two."

"The Hottentotenstrauchtentottelattenkittenwetterkotten."

"Which Attentäter are you talking about?"

"About the Hottentotenstrauchtentottelmutterattentäter."

"Then why don't you say at once the Hottentotenstrauchtentottelmutterattentäterattentäterwetterkottenkittenlattenbeutelratte?"

The Hottentot fled in dismay.

THE AWKWARD "MRS."

Single as Well as Married Women Once Carried This Title.

A curiously awkward word, if it be a word, is "Mrs." It is not spelled as it is pronounced; no one but a Welshman or a Pole would be equal to pronouncing it as it is spelled, and its pronunciation is a clumsy contraction of the good old English designation "mistress."

In the days of old, when language had not become, as it is now, almost a forgotten thing, and people were less anxious to clip their speech, the full pronunciation was often used, and "mistress" was not altogether elbowed out of existence by the vulgar "missis." But nowadays "mistress" has dropped out, and consequently the contracted pronunciation of "Mrs." has prevailed and holds the field.

Another point worth noting in the history of the designation is that about 150 years ago and earlier, "Mrs." was applied quite impartially to unmarried as well as married ladies. Even children were sometimes styled "Mrs."

The burial of an infant daughter of John Milton, who died at the age of five months, is recorded in the parish register of St. Margaret, Westminster, and her name is entered as "Mrs. Katherine Milton," followed by a small "e," to indicate that a child is meant. But this may be regarded as an exceptional use of the title.—St. James' Gazette.

A Sabbatarian Dog.

"Tip was an Irish setter—his name was really Tipperary and Tip for short," said a New York clergyman. "He knew when it was Sunday, and he kept the day. He was the only Sabbatarian dog I ever knew. He used to sleep on a rug in my room. I had to keep early hours in those days, and every morning at 7 o'clock Tip would put his cold nose against my face and remind me that it was time to go to work. Then while I was dressing he would go to the village postoffice and bring home the mail. On Sunday morning he never stirred off his rug until I was good and ready to get up, which was usually quite late, and nothing could induce him to go to the postoffice on that day. And the best part of the story is it is absolutely true."—New York Tribune.

No Plot.

The actor, rounded up in Russia with a bunch of others, retained his composure while his companions in misfortune were giving way to despair.

"I can prove my innocence of complicity in any conspiracy to the complete satisfaction of the authorities," he said.

"How can you do that?" one of his companions asked. "You will always be suspected of being connected with a plot."

He smiled confidently.

"Not when I tell them that for years I have been playing in musical comedies."—Baltimore American.

Golfing Sarcasm.

"Caddy, how many strokes is that for this hole?" asked the golfer with the plaid cap.

"I can't say, sir."

"Can't say?"

"No, sir; I can only count up to twelve, sir."—Pick-Me-Up.

Self Reliance.

It is easy in this world to live after the world's opinion. It is easy in solitude to live after our own, but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowds keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Ready For Business.

A tragedian playing Richard III. in a small town was waited on after the show by an honest farmer, who said that "if the gen'l'm who wanted a horse was still of the same mind he would like to do business with him."

No better masters than poverty and want.—Dutch Proverb.

HIBERNATION.

How and Why Some Animals Exist All Winter Without Food.

The philosophy or nature of hibernation and why and how it is that the hibernating creatures can go so long without food are interesting studies.

In the first place, the creature in order to enable it to sustain life through out the long winter during which it hibernates is endowed with the capacity of accumulating within its body a large quantity of fat. This fat is in the animal what a well stocked coal cellar is to a fire, and until the whole of it has been consumed the tissue of the body proper remains untouched. It has been ascertained that animals can endure the waste of tissue until it amounts to 40 per cent of their normal weight. Should the weight be reduced beyond that point the result is death. But nature comes to the rescue of the hibernating creatures in another way. When the hibernation begins, respiration and digestion almost cease (in some cases they cease absolutely), and the circulation is only just active enough to sustain life. As a consequence of this the wear and tear is reduced to the minimum, and the creature is enabled to pull through.—New York American.

Horses and Music.

Regimental horses have been the subjects of musical tests, and nearly all enjoyed the experience, only a very small percentage of the animals remaining indifferent to sweet harmonies, while equally few showed active dislike. The great majority were soothed, inspirited or excited by music. Most of the horses, like the war chargers one may suppose them to be, enjoyed the bugle above any other instrument and neighed gallantly when it was sounded, but thoroughbreds and colts generally were found to prefer the shrill treble of the fife, which roused them to great and sometimes unmanageable enthusiasm. This was the more significant because the fife was an unfamiliar instrument to them, not being generally used, as is the case in the French army.—Paris Cor. London Telegraph.

Model of Economy.

A certain farmer who lives out in the county and who is noted for his closeness in money matters has a twelve-year-old son, who is as industrious as his father is penurious.

Recently the father and son made a compact whereby the latter would receive 10 cents for every cord of wood he sawed and piled in the wood shed. Impatiently the boy became very busy at the wood pile, and his earnings have been piling up at a rapid rate, his mother keeping her son's hard earned savings for him.

"What are you going to do with all your money?" the thrifty youth was recently asked.

"Goin' to buy a new saw with it," was the reply.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Benjamin Constant.

Benjamin Constant, having sided with Napoleon during the hundred days, felt the need of justifying himself when Louis XVIII. returned to power. He wrote the king a letter with that end in view and called upon Mme. Recamier to discuss the subject. She asked him quietly:

"Have you finished your letter?"

"Yes."

"Are you satisfied with it?"

"Entirely satisfied. I have almost persuaded myself."

Marrying.

Everybody is expected to marry once, and there is not much talk when you marry the first time, but people look wise when you marry the second time and roar when you marry the third time.—Atchison Globe.

Very Interesting.

"What do you find so very interesting about society?" asked the ordinary person.

"Watching people trying to get in," answered Miss Cayenne.—Washington Star.

Time is the great comforter of grief, but the agency by which it works is exhaustion.—Landon.

Mr. Barnickel's Portrait

(Original.)

When Mr. Barnickel got rich the first thing he wanted was a crest, which he found, though his title to it was rather thin, and the next was his portrait to hang in his drawing room and to hand down to his descendants as the lineaments of the reinstitutor of the family. Arnold Elliott was at that time the principal portrait painter in the city where Mr. Barnickel lived, and to him Mr. Barnickel gave the order, agreeing to pay for the portrait $500.

Now, although Mr. Barnickel had dealt in hides, an article not calculated to stimulate the imaginative faculty, his imagination was strong. The moment he set himself up as a reinstitutor of his family he saw himself a fine looking, dignified gentleman of aristocratic mien and benevolent countenance. In truth, he was a crafty looking man with a money making nose. He saw the picture of himself growing up in the hands of the artist as he was and not as he thought himself. He made several protests, but when he attempted to point out the errors he signally failed. He could not give the artist his conception of himself, and the artist had no choice but to paint him as Mr. Barnickel. When the portrait was finished, there sat the merchant looking for all the world as if he were buying a cargo of hides.

When Mr. Barnickel saw the portrait he refused to accept it on the ground that his best friend wouldn't take it for him.

As soon as Mr. Elliott got a little spare time he hooked Mr. Barnickel's portrait up against the wall of his studio, covered it with a sheet of drawing paper and on the paper sketched prison bars. This done, he cut out the paper between the bars, leaving Mr. Barnickel in limbo. Underneath he placed the title of the picture, "A Prisoner For Debt."

It was not long before one who knew Mr. Barnickel well saw him behind bars. Had he loved Mr. Barnickel he would have gone to him at once with the information. But he didn't love Mr. Barnickel—few people did—so he went about telling those who knew the hide dealer of the rare sight to be seen, and Mr. Elliott's studio at once became very popular. Indeed, from among those who visited it to see "A Prisoner For Debt" he secured a number of orders.

The episode at last reached a member of the Barnickel family, and the family head was informed. The same morning he drove up to Mr. Elliott's studio, alighted in a hurry, climbed the stairs in anger and burst into the studio in a passion. There hung the picture, and there sat the artist quiescent at his easel.

"What do you mean by perpetrating that outrage?" shouted Mr. Barnickel, pointing to the picture.

"What outrage?" asked the artist without discontinuing his work.

"Putting my portrait behind bars."

"Your portrait? That isn't your portrait. You said yourself that no one would recognize it."

The merchant saw that he could not demand the removal of the objectionable features without eating his words. He went out, slamming the door behind him. He had been triumphant in too many deals to be beaten by a picture maker; he would find a way to get round the "imposition."

But before he found this way he heard that a new feature had been attached to the portrait. The artist had removed the bars and the title, replacing the latter with the words "You Want Too Much."

The title fitted the expression on the face so well and Mr. Barnickel's idiosyncrasies were so keenly appreciated that a new lot of people came pouring into the studio to see Old Scrouge, as they called him, buying hides, though some declared that he was disputing the price of his portrait. Mr. Barnickel was made aware of the change by receiving an anonymous letter inquiring which of these two interpretations of the title was correct.

By this time the merchant had consulted his lawyer, who advised him that the most satisfactory way out of the difficulty was to pay for the picture and take it away. Therefore on receipt of the anonymous note he drew his check for $500, jumped into his carriage and drove to Mr. Elliott's studio. On entering his eyes naturally sought the picture. The expression had been changed. Instead of Mr. Barnickel bending down a seller, it was Mr. Barnickel just having bought at his own price. There was no title attached to the picture. Instead a bit of cardboard rested upon it on which in big letters was inscribed "Sold."

Mr. Barnickel saw the word and was seized with a new anxiety. He, and only he, could not see its double meaning.

"There's your check. Send that home," he said.

"I'm sorry, Mr. Barnickel. Don't you see the card on the picture?"

"That's bosh. No one would want my—" He stopped. He was about to yield to his beating down propensities and add "ugly mug," but remembered himself.

"I don't think the purchaser cares much for it," said Mr. Elliott coolly. "You might get it at an advance on the original price."

"How much is the?— Mr. Barnickel was about to say swindle, but feared to make matters worse.

Mr. Elliott arose, went to the picture and cut it in ribbons.

"The episode is ended, Mr. Barnickel. I have to thank you for many orders secured through your portrait."

Obituary of C. M. Price.

Many friends will be pained to learn of the death of Celous Mathews Price who passed away in Fallon, Nevada April 11th, 1908. He was born in Fairfax, Michigan, March 18th, 1882. After completing his course in the Colon and Sturgis High Schools, he entered the entered the University of Michigan in the fall of 1899. He was graduated with honors from the Department of Law with the class of 1905. In the fall of the same year, he left for the West, temporarily locating in Twin Falls Idaho, where he enjoyed a lucrative practice for two years.

Becoming interested in the mines of Nevada, he left Idaho and permanently located in Fallon. About three weeks ago he took a severe cold, terminating in pleuro pneumonia, which, despite the best medical aid and nursing, proved fatal.

Mr. Price was a young man of great ability, personality and sterling integrity of character and amid a constantly enlarging acquintance his outlook for a brilliant and useful career was most encouraging. Why God in His infinite wisdom saw fit to close a career which promised to be so bright we do not know.

The funeral service were held at his home in Fairfax, Thursday, under the auspices of the Masonic Fraternity. Rev. C. L. Hoche of the M. E. church of Colon, officiating. He leaves a father, mother, sister and two brothers to mourn his loss.

Those from a distance who were in attendance at the funeral were: L. H. Price, Ramos, Iaa, Chas. Price and Miss Frances Price of Kalamazoo, Mrs. T. C. Hammill, Detroit; Julian, Lawrence and Miss Vera Todd, Ann Arbor; Mrs. Ned K. Farrand of Lansing, Mrs. W. J. Moore, Hillsdale, Mrs. John Weltsorner, Sturgis, Miss Frost, Bay City, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Noland, Fallon, Nevada.—Colon, (Mich.) Express.

CONFERENCE OF EXECUTIVES.

Gov. Gooding and Advisers Will Attend Session Called By President.

Governor F. R. Gooding will leave for Washington, D. C., on Friday to attend the conference, when the governors of every state in the Union will confer with President Roosevelt upon "The Conservation of the Natural Resources of the Country." Each governor attending the conference will be accompanied by three representatives for his state, to be known as "advisers." F. F. Johnson of Wallace, E. E. Hoover of Boise and Fentress Hill of Milner will in this capacity represent the Gem state.

The conference will be held in the East room of the White House, May 13, when President Roosevelt will call the opening session to order. The governors of all the states have signified their intention of being present.

Besides the governors and their advisers, representatives of all the important national organizations, the welfare of which depends in greater or less degree upon our natural resources, will be in attendance, and, further, the president has invited five special guests to act as "advisers at large" to the conference.

Grover Cleveland, the only living ex-president of the United States, will, health permitting, be one of these advisers. The others will be William J. Bryan, Andrew Carnegie, James J. Hill and John Mitchell.

Never before in the country's history have the governors of all the states assembled in convention for any purpose whatsoever. Considered simply as an epoch marking event, the conference will easily take rank with any assemblyage of public men ever held in the civilized world, for at this meeting the entire government of the United States in the persons of that government's heads will be assembled together at one time. If for no other reason the public will be interested in the conference because of this fact.

The range of subjects will cover the entire program of national conservation—preservation of existing forests and reforestration of lands at present producing nothing; storage of surplus waters; inland waterways, irrigation, conservation of minerals—coal, iron, etc—and the prevention of waste in mining; relations of waterways to transportation, and the relation of railways to water lines of carriage; prevention of floods and their consequent destruction of life and property; care of the range lands of the west—their re-grassing and proper utilization. These are a few of the grand divisions of the questions to be threshed out at the conference.—Statesman.

See the Idaho Department store for all sizes tents and ducking.

FOR FOREST PROTECTION.

Idaho, Oregon and Washington Have Organizations.

One of the most important economic movements of the day about which the general public has yet learned little is the concerted action of owners of timber in different parts of the country in organizing associations to protect their holdings from fire. In the Pacific Northwest, the Washington Forest Fire Association has just elected officers at Seattle and began work for the year with 3,000,000 acres under its care. The plans include a system of patrol by rangers resembling the work done by the United States Forest Service in guarding against and extinguishing fires.

Organizations of similar kind and for a like purpose are at work in Oregon and Idaho. In the latter State, a portion of the expense is borne by taxation and paid from the State treasury. A western railroad company which holds large tracts of timber has taken steps to guard its property from fire, and during the short time that its plans have been in operation, it has met with most encouraging success.

Similar work is being done on the other side of the continent. Forest owners in Maine have gone to work in the same systematic way to control the forest's great enemy, fire. Like organizations are found in other parts of the country, showing how fully it is now realized that protection against fire is of the greatest importance.

It is safe to say that fires in this country have destroyed more timber than lumbermen have cut. When timber was abundant, the waste passed almost unnoticed, but now that a scarcity is at hand and an actual wood famine threatens in the near future, the owners of forest lands are waking up and taking action to save what is left.

MONISM.

Monism is the doctrine of the oneness of mind and matter, God and the universe. It ignores all that is supernatural. Monism teaches that "all are but parts of one stupendous whole, whose body nature is and God the soul;" hence whatever is only conforms to the cosmic laws of the universal all. Mind can never exist without matter, nor matter without mind. They are but the two sides of the same thing.—New York American.
