Wrecks Kill Seven Persons

THREE TRAINS IN BAD ACCIDENTS TAKE LIFE TOLL

Approximately 90 Injured and in Hospitals as Result of Derailments

FIVE MEN KILLED AS TRAIN JUMPS TRACKS

Volunteers and Wrecking Crews Working Over Cars at Base of Bank

By UNITED PRESS.

At least seven persons were killed and perhaps 90 injured in three train accidents today.

Five dead were accounted for and more than 70 injured in derailment of a workers' train near Peoria, Ill.

In addition, hundreds of New York subwaylites were affected by smoke fumes and about 200 taken to hospitals after a fire in the Hudson tube connecting Manhattan and New Jersey, last night.

Seventeen Injured.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Feb. 20 (UP)—Seventeen persons, mostly women school teachers, were taken to a hospital today after a locomotive split a switch in the Erie railroad yards here and crashed head-on into a crowded electric train.

More than 100 passengers on the electric, some of them standing in the aisles, were knocked down by the impact and suffered minor bruises. None was believed mortally injured.

Train Derailed.

BARRIE, Ont., Feb. 20 (UP)—Charles Hill, fireman and Herbert Harrell, service fireman, were killed and W. C. McInnis, engineer, was injured seriously in the derailment of a Canadian National freight train at Falcon Bridge, Ont., today.

The derailment presumably was caused by the severe weather. It was 25 degrees below during the night.

Five Killed.

PEORIA, Ill., Feb. 20 (UP)—Five men were killed and upwards of 70 injured today when five passenger coaches of the Peoria Railway Terminal company's "miners' special" jumped the track and plunged over an embankment here.

Physicians, volunteers and wrecking crews working over the cars at the base of the 25-foot embankment, said they believed additional bodies might be found in the wreckage. Three of the wooden coaches caught fire as they rolled down the embankment but the flames were quickly extinguished.

Hospitals Crowded.

Peoria hospitals were crowded with the injured brought here in ambulances and automobiles. Because of the congestion and excitement the extent of their injuries could not be determined. By noon the number had been reduced to 30.

Eight hundred workers in coal mines south of here had left Peoria on the train at 6:22 a. m.

IMPEACHMENT OF HARDY IS LIKELY

SACRAMENTO, Cal., Feb. 20 (UP)— The state assembly today was to hear the report of a special investigating committee on charges that immediate action be taken for impeachment of Judge Carlos S. Hardy of Los Angeles.

The committee decided late last night to recommend impeachment proceedings on the ground that Judge Hardy allegedly violated the constitution by practicing law while a judge and obstructed justice in the case of the People vs. McPherson.

Far more than two months the committee had been investigating the acceptance by Judge Hardy of a $2500 "love gift" from Aimee Semple McPherson shortly after she returned from her mysterious kidnaping.

THREE ESCAPED CONVICTS FOUND

Intense Cold Drives Men to Submission; Expect Capture of Other Two in Short Time

COLUMBUS, O., Feb. 20 (UP)—Whipped into submission by the intense cold three of the five convicts who broke out of the state penitentiary late dawn yesterday were captured last night and early today.

Among them was the notorious Pat McDermott, the red headed trigger man, who ambushed and killed Don Mellett, crusading editor of the Canton Daily News, two and a half years ago.

The others were Mike Jacko, Cleveland lifer, who was trapped with McDermott, and John Russo, sent up from Cleveland for robbery.

Russo was captured at Shadesville, near here, after attempting to raid the commissary of the Hartman dairy farm.

Meantime, the capture of the other two, James A. Walton, Cuyahoga Falls, and William Young, Mariotta River, was believed imminent.

Tracks in the snow led authorities to where the captured men were hidden out.

McDermott and Jacko were taken by Deputy Sheriffs Charles Williams and John Crumley shortly before midnight. Russo was apprehended three hours later by Constable John "Guy of Shadesville.

The three were placed in dungeons this morning.

Two Men Killed In Crash With Train

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 20 (UP)—Two men were killed in a crossing accident last night when the truck they were driving was struck by an O. S. L. train at Cudahy crossing north of Salt Lake.

The dead:

Claude Robinson, 39, and Clinton Carey, 55, both of Salt Lake City.

The truck they were driving was loaded with cattle and hogs being taken to the Cudahy plant. The bodies of the men were dragged 500 feet by the speeding train. All the stock was killed.

NAVAL CRUISER BUILDING HELD UP BY BLAINE

FEARS HOOVER MIGHT BE HEAVILY LOADED

Point Brought Out Is One of an Entirely New Nature in Controversy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UP) — Warning that the naval cruiser building program may yet be blocked was given in the senate today when Senator John J. Blaine, of Wisconsin, thwarted consideration of the naval appropriations bill containing funds for beginning construction.

Blaine contended the appropriation bill violated provisions of the cruiser bill passed several weeks ago by congress and served notice he, as well as other midwesterners, would fight the measure.

"The appropriation bill is no wonder that ten cruisers should be started this year instead of five as contemplated by the cruiser bill," Blaine told the United Press.

Might Wreck System

I do not believe President Elect Hoover should be saddled with such a heavy program which might wreck the whole financial system of the government and which congress itself did not contemplate when it passed the cruiser bill."

Blaine's point was entirely new. The cruiser bill authorized construction of 15 cruisers at the rate of five a year for each fiscal year, starting with the fiscal year which ends July 1. President Coolidge and his budget bureau sent recommendations for appropriations to begin work after July 1.

Change Recommendation

Senate naval leaders thought the president was trying to die for action because of his objection previously to the time limit contained in the cruiser bill. They thought the recommendation so $700,000,000 would be appropriated to begin work on five cruisers before July 1.

Thus Blaine contention that with five started before July 1 and five to be started immediately afterward, the government will in reality build 10 cruisers during this calendar year.

His objection would not be seriously regarded, had not the independent midwestern group long ago threatened to filibuster against the appropriation bill as a following up of their strong fight against the cruiser bill. Without appropriations none of the work contemplated in the cruiser bill can be undertaken.

AGREE TO DEFINITION

COOLIDGE TRUCK IS HIT BY AUTO

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 20 (UP)—An automobile driver was injured seriously here today when his car skidded and crashed into a heavy, army truck containing furniture and other personal belongings of President Coolidge.

The truck, which was one of four used to convey Mr. Coolidge's personal effects to the Coolidge home in Northampton, Mass., was parked in front of a diner at the West Springfield end of Memorial bridge.

The truck was overturned, and considerable damage was done to the contents, including furniture, curios and gifts.

The driver who was eating breakfast at the time of the crash had been instructed by Mr. Coolidge to be particularly careful of the effects.

VOLCANO STARTS BELCHING FIRE

At Dawn Lava Flow Was Steadily on Increase, Filling Pit of About 35 Acres

HILO, T. H., Feb. 20 (UP)—Halemaumau pit on Kilauea volcano began belching fire early today.

At dawn the lava flow was steadily increasing and had covered an area in the pit of approximately 35 acres.

T. A. Jaggar, government observer, was among the first at the edge of the crater and took pictures of the disturbance.

Lee Sun, a night watchman stationed along the crater rim, sent the first manifestation of the disturbance was a great burst of blank smoke followed by fire and a tremendous roaring sound.

Hilo residents, hearing the roar and seeing the illumination, were attracted to the crater and at 4 a. m. more than 300 had gathered.

One hundred and ninety visitors were at the volcano house when the phenomenon began.

The last major outbreak of an Hawaiian volcano was in 1927, when Mauna Loa, which towers above Halemaumau pit, erupted above the 12,000 foot line and sent rivers of lava to the sea.

SENATE PASSES JONES BILL ON LIQUOR PENALTY

Vote of 65 to 5 Is Taken by Legislators After Four Days of Debate

BOOTLEGGERS TO GET HEAVIER PUNISHMENT

Measure Leaves in Its Wake a Tight Legislative Jam and Mixup

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UP)—Emerging safely from four continuous days of super prohibition debate the Jones bill to increase the penalties of liquor law violators was on its way to the house today. It left in its wake a tight legislative jam which is jeopardizing all pending legislation.

With only slight modification, the Jones bill was passed 65 to 5 yesterday by the senate.

Warning Unheeded

The warnings of wets that the measure might fall of its purpose to provide 5 year sentences and $10,000 fines for wealthy bootleggers went unheeded by the overwhelming dry majority of the senate. Up to the last minute before the senate vote, the wets assailed the measure, predicting judges would refuse to convict in the face of such a heavy penalty and pointing to the possibility that high school boys who take a drink might be submitted to the same punishment as "hardened liquor purveyors."

The only change made by the drys to meet these challenges was the insertion of an amendment authorizing courts in passing sentences to discriminate between habitual violators of liquor and "casual or slight" offenders.

There is little opposition to the bill in the house. Unless the leaders change their mind and refuse to force the bill through quickly, there is every reason to believe it will become law before congress adjourns March 4.

Doesn't Clear Calendar

Passage of the bill failed however, to clear the senate's calendar dilemma. At a night session last night Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, started a one man filibuster against the house bill extending the life of the federal radio commission for another year. Copeland served notice at 8 p. m. when the senate met that

COMPANY PLANS IMPROVEMENTS

Approximately $175,000 Is Included in Budget for the South Side Division in Year

Approximately $175,000 is included in the 1929 budget of the Idaho Power company for the south side division for improvements and betterments, according to J. D. Orr, division manager.

A new store room, warehouse and garage at the corner of Third avenue east and Third street east to cost $20,000 is one of the items of new work that the company will complete during the year.

New lines on extension of its rural service, launched last year, will require an investment of about $35,000. Reconstruction work on lines will be done in Twin Falls, Kimberly and Murtaugh to the extent of $50,000, and miscellaneous work in other localities will require an expenditure of $10,000.

"It is always difficult to know definitely just what expenditures may be necessary during the course of a year," Mr. Orr stated, "but these have all been authorized. We expect to spend approximately $250,000 in this division during the course of the year."

Pocatello Child Disappears From Home of Mother

Degenerate Believed to Have Taken Doris Virginia Smith; Missing from Home Since Last Friday; Get Notes from Her Captor

POCATELLO, Idaho, Feb. 20 (UP)—Ulysses E. Smith, father of Doris Virginia Murphy, 4, who disappeared in San Francisco Friday, is not connected with the girl's mysterious disappearance, is the belief expressed by Mrs. Naomi Withers, his sister.

"I am sure he knows nothing of the affair," Mrs. Withers said today, "and I know that the news will be a complete surprise to him."

Mr. and Mrs. U. G. Smith, the girl's grandparents, who reside here, were notified of her disappearance yesterday.

Jolted Mother

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20 (UP)—Federal officials today joined in the search for four year old Doris Virginia Murphy and her kidnaper—now definitely believed to be a degenerate.

Postal inspectors examined the three mysterious "K. K." notes received by Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Murphy, parents of the child who disappeared at a public playground Friday.

They announced they would seek to trace the sender of the notes and that every effort would be made to apprehend him should he attempt to mail new warnings.

Two late developments were being checked by police while San Francisco's greatest man hunt continued.

Automobile Found.

An abandoned automobile was found after a man and woman with a child answering the description of Doris, were seen to leave the machine and board a street car. The automobile in question was being checked as a possible clue.

MOSCOW, IDAHO, YOUTH IS LOST

SEATTLE, Wn., Feb. 20 (UP)—An all night search on the waters of Puget Sound failed to reveal trace of two youths who sailed in a small rowboat from the Moran School on Bainbridge Island Tuesday.

Two coast guard cutters, a harbor patrol boat, and an airplane with the assistance of three other small boats from the school searched throughout the night.

The missing boys are Jerome Day Jr., 18, Moscow, Idaho, and Ray Richards, 20, whose home is in Wisconsin.

Lawrence Hodgin Wins Battle For Taxes In House

BOISE, Feb. 20 (UP) — Lawrence Hodgin of Twin Falls county, saw House Bill 90 succeed this morning in the house. Soldiers memorials will be tax free if the senate concurs and the governor does not veto the bill. Opposition was heated, however. For a time it was doubtful if the measure would pass. Overamitis of Lemhi was the principal opponent, saying it was case of "sentiment against economics" but that he would be satisfied with the action of the house. The vote was 44 to 17.

The old age pension measure brought forth intensive debate and caused the house to hold over throughout the afternoon as no vote was taken before noon.

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (UP)—Find the policeman with the County parlor sweetheart," was the word which went out today from police headquarters as the formula that would solve the machine gun massacre of seven members of the "Bugs" Moran gang here last week.

New Eastern Trunk Line Railroad Is Proposed In Petition To Commission

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UP)—Formation of a new eastern trunk line railroad system more than 12,000 miles long and having a total capitalization of $2,500,000, was proposed to the interstate commerce commission today in a petition filed by O. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen.

The petition, the first move in a new effort to settle the nine year dispute over railroad consolidation in eastern territory sought authority to combine with the Van Sweringen lines seven important intermediate roads.

In addition the Van Sweringens asked authority to acquire a fourth interest in nine terminal lines, a third interest in the Pittsburgh & West Virginia west of the Ohio river and a half interest in the Detroit & Toledo Short Line.

Departing from their previous merger applications, the Van Sweringens, Cleveland railroad owners, did not present terms and conditions for the consolidations involved, but requested the commission merely to find grouping of these roads would be in the public interest.

Filed in the name of the Chesapeake & Ohio, one of the six Van Sweringen roads, the petition asked authority to combine with the existing Van Sweringen roads the following seven railways in their entirety:

One-fourth interest was asked in the following roads:

Delaware & Hudson, Lehigh & New England, Monongahela railway, Pittsburgh, Charleroi & Youghiogheny, Charleroi Southern, Monongahela railway, Pittsburgh & West Virginia, Jersey City, Hoboken & Pavonia, Belt railway of Chicago.

The Van Sweringens also asked authority to acquire a third interest in the following terminals: Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburgh, Youngstown & Ashtabula, Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago & St. Louis, Pittsburgh, Fort Wayne & Chicago, Pittsburgh, Youngstown & Ashtabula, Pittsburgh, and the Ann Arbor.

Hundreds Of Persons Injured When New York Subway Train Catches Fire

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UP) — Hundreds of persons who were aboard the subway train that caught fire yesterday evening just as it was ready to dive under the Hudson river were recovering today from shock, burns, and gas, or the terror of being trampled upon in the darkness of the glider tube that links New Jersey and New York.

It was the second major subway accident here within a year.

No lives were reported lost, although 50 persons remained in hospitals and it was feared that one or more might die. Approximately 1,000 persons were in the train at the time of the accident.

The train, crammed with workers on their way home, had just gathered speed out of the Christopher street station when a fire, apparently fed by oil and greasy waste in the track-bed was seen ahead by passengers in the first two cars. Either Harry Van Sandt, the motorman, did not see the flames or thought he could take his train across them safely.

The first two cars crossed the fire without a mishap, but the wiring in the third car short-circuited, every light in the train went out and flames began to eat along the bottom of the third car.

Terrified, the passengers in the third car began pushing their way into the second and fourth cars with the hot floor scorching shoe soles. Smoke rolled into the train.

Air became stifling and passengers smashed at windows, seeking to let oxygen into the train. But the fire on the track, fed by the grease cups of the third car, was spreading. Meanwhile the smoke was thicker and gas sifted into the cars.

The milling in the darkness continued. No one could move any distance, for no matter how hard they pushed they found themselves against a wall of struggling humans. Someone got the doors open. Passengers staggered out into the narrow concrete footpath on the side of the tube.

MATCHMAKER WAS GUIDED BY FANS FIGURES REVEAL

Duncan Johnston Tells Why He Did Not List Rocky Moore on Card Here Feb. 27

By matching Del Allen of La Grande and Buddy Washington of Pocatello in the next fight card instead of re-matching Rocky Moore and Bud Travis, Duncan Johnson was guided by public opinion and not by any poll as it was revealed here today with a checkup on reports received by request following the last card.

After Travis and Moore had fought to a draw, Mr. Johnson had the Idaho Evening Times print a request that all fight fans either phone or write to him their opinion as to whether the two should be rematched for the coming card or at some future date. Mr. Johnson received 373 replies by telephone and personal contact following the publication of the notice. Of the 373 replies there were 209 fans who stated that they didn't think Rocky was entitled to fight on the next card; 57 who said they thought Travis should have had the decision; four who said that if Moore and Travis were put in the ring sooner than three or four matches it would kill the fight game here; 88 who said that it was the best fight ever staged in Twin Falls; 17 who thought that Moore and Travis should fight on the next card and were sure Rocky would show the fans a better fight.

Majority Object

Since 209 of the 373 answers objected to Moore on the next card Matchmaker Johnson pitched to the decision of the fans and matched Buddy Washington and Travis, switching to Del Allen when Travis was declared unable to fight. Del Allen has handled with men in Madison Square Gardens, New York, has been a stable mate of Leo Lomski, the Aberdeen Assassin, and has an impressive record that means he is one of the best fighters ever to be scheduled for a fight in this city.

In speaking of his final decision, Mr. Johnson stated today that he was appointed matchmaker by the American Legion and that he now serves without pay and with no desire for pay as the work is intended to bolster the Memorial fund of the Legion. "I don't care who wins the fights but in my judgment the man who makes the best showing in one bout should be the favored man of the next card," he stated.

Changes Mind

"In the dressing rooms after the last main fight I asked Rocky Moore if he would consider a rematch with Travis," continued Mr. Johnson. "Rocky told me 'No, I don't want to fight Travis again. He's too tough.' Then the next day Rocky came to me and said he would fight again. This was after he had had time to think it over."

"While in the dressing room I asked Bud Travis if he would care for a rematch with Rocky Moore and he promptly stated: 'Any time in the ring, any place in the ring,' said Mr. Johnson.

Mr. Johnson, who desires to be impartial and match the best available men for the fight fans of Twin Falls county, believes he has been unjustly treated in insinuations that he has not treated Rocky Moore fairly and above board. He has made these statements to clarify his position and place the matter before the fight fans themselves.

"I had no desire of rematching the boys but public opinion forced it for a couple of matches at least," Mr. Johnson concluded.

GIRLS AND BOYS PLAY TONIGHT AT DIFFERENT TOWNS

Bruins Quintet Goes to Jerome While Maidens Play Filer on Buhl Floor for Runner-up

The Twin Falls Bruins, both boys and girls, are to play ball games away from home this evening, the girls' team to play for the right to enter the girls' tournament at Buhl.

The Bruins have play at Jerome in a game that has been postponed several times because of road difficulties and other games. When the two quintets met here early in the season the Jerome boys put up the hardest fight any team has made against the local boys. The Tigers led the game from the start and were in the lead by the end of the third quarter. The Bruins then broke into the play to take the lead and win by a safe margin of 21 to 15, the closest score the Bruins have had this year.

Playing on their own floor, the Tigers are expected to put up a still better battle and test the power of the Bruins to the limit this evening. The Jerome floor is larger than that of the Twin Falls and the Bruins will find themselves further handicapped because of this. They learned the difference in floor sizes when they played the Buhl Indians there last Friday.

Girls at Buhl

The Twin Falls girls are to play the Filer girls on the Buhl floor this evening for the right to play the tournament. The Twin Falls girls won the first game from Filer, tied and then lost the second and now must play on a neutral floor for the right of further competition.

Filer Bruins maidens will play against the Filer team as they did against the Buhl sextet last week there is sure to be a good battle as the Filer maidens have as much fight as any team in the district. The Twin Falls guards are among the best in the section and the middle court is well handled. The weakest place on the team is in the forward court, the girls there being doubtful in their ability to evade guards and sink shots consistently.

Though Mrs. Alma Spreckels Rosekrans, popular California society girl and horsewoman, was injured in a fall while showing her horses recently, she planned to take part in both the riding and driving events of the Los Angeles horse show, including the hurdles in the hunting classes. CATALINA ISLAND, Calif.—Joe McCarthy, Chicago Cubs, manager, seems to think the Cubs' chance of winning the national league pennant this year hinges on good pitching. DIRECTORS PLAN BASEBALL YEAR

Meeting Called for March 1 to Elect Officers and Make Any Arrangements Possible

The Twin Falls baseball club directors, meeting last night, called a meeting of all stockholders and interested people for March 1 to elect officers and make plans for perpetuating the organization. No definite plans as to the possibility of baseball in the Utah-Idaho league this year was made at the meeting last night.

The Bruins suffered financially last year and are working on a plan to have this team backed by a coast or major league team this year. Such plans are still tentative, however, as the men are not certain how the franchise stands. Ogden, Boise, Salt Lake and Pocatello have definitely decided to have ball this year and there are other towns mentioned to complete the six team league, among them Nampa, Twin Falls, Rupin and Great Falls.

In a letter to the other league presidents at their meeting in Ogden recently, Dr. D. E. Alexander of Twin Falls stated:

"If any definite action is taken regarding the continuance of the league he, as head of the league, we may consider application for a franchise."

That the league proved good paying ground for other leagues last year is shown by two stories in the "Sport Shorts" in this paper telling of the ability of Mike Maloney, formerly of the Twin Falls team, and Leo Burns, formerly of Pocatello.

LOS ANGELES—Leo Burns, rookie outfielder from the Pocatello club of the Utah-Idaho league, had the attention of Manager Marty Krug of the Los Angeles club today. Burns has been hitting the fences in spring workouts at Wrigley field.

They are Ted Kent, Earl Kimball, Sotty Allen, Fay Dalzatte, and Fred Prinitz. A total of 23 entries have been made.

With 23 teams on the 25 mile course this year's derby, officials say, will be more interesting and entertaining than ever before. The last team will have scarcely left the starting post when the first team will cross the finish line.

Ten thousand spectators are expected to witness the spectacle. Hotels and cafes are already crowded. The streets of this little village are filled with bunkers, betting, brawling, expectant fights.

Mickey Walker To Battle Loughran

CHICAGO, Feb. 20 (UP)—Serious Jack Kearns, has driven another shrewd bargain. Which will bring his man Mickey Walker the light heavyweight championship of the world or will net him and Walker $50,000.

The latest Kearns manipulation calls for Walker to meet Tommy Loughran for the light heavyweight championship here March 13. Tommy will be risking his title for a purse of $150,000. If the champion loses he will get the entire purse and Walker and Kearns must be content with a $10,000 training expense guarantee.

But if Walker loses he will get $50,000 and Tommy will take the remainder, so Kearns is assured of either the championship or one third of the purse, and that, much money probably is more than Walker could get for defending the middleweight championship, which he now holds.

TITLE HOLDER IS TO BATTLE HERE

Eight fans of this section of the state will have an opportunity to view the featherweight title holder of Colorado in action here February 27, according to Duncan Johnston, matchmaker for the American Legion. Mr. Johnston states that Young McCarthy is that boy.

McCarty, who weighs 126 pounds told Matchmaker Johnston that he fought and won the featherweight title of Colorado. McCarty has a record as a preliminary fighter in the boxing circles of Kansas City. In due bout there he won by a knockout in the fourth round over Battling Nicholas. It was a four round bout and McCarty got his man.

The boy isn't very old, but he has been training well for his bout here. In the first card of the season he went four rounds to a draw with Kid Zack. The judges called it a draw but the newspapers gave McCarty the edge.

He is a well built youth and will tangle here next with "Battling" Beckstead of Downey. The boys are expected to put on a certain raber that will force the other fighters to go the limit for scrap and enthusiasm.

The ability of Beckstead—Matchmaker Johnston promised to tell of that boy's ability at a later date.

Sport Cracks

Wiley Moore of the Yankees had his tonsils removed and expects to win a lot more ball games.

Herb Pennock had a couple of teeth pulled and says he'll win 20 or more ball games this season.

There's a hint to Burt Shotten—he ought to take his Phils over to the hospital and have their tonsils cut off.

Grover Alexander hasn't had any operations this winter. Grover says the trouble with most of those guys who have to have operations is not tonsils or teeth but cold feet.

Billy Evans of the Indians, with two high priced holdouts on his hands, wishes he knew of some operation he could have performed on the boys that would diminish their gall.

And many a rookie pitcher who faces the Babe this summer will have tonsils removed if he feels sure that before another season rolls around something will have to be done about his knees.

Great Britain Not To Demand Moet On Naval Matters

LONDON, Feb. 20 (UP)—Great Britain has no intention of sending invitations for a new naval limitations conference, Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign minister, told a questioner in the house of commons today.

Sir Austen told the questioner that the recent foreign office communique regarding Britain's attitude on a new naval conference was not a correction "of what Sir Esme Howard said, but a correction of the inference that might be drawn from his statements."

The British foreign minister referred to the recent statement made in Washington by Sir Esme, British ambassador, which was interpreted by many to indicate that Great Britain planned to ask for a new naval limitations conference before long.

Daily Poem

THE FEBRUARY THRUSH

—From "Poems," by George Meredith.

I know him, February's thrush,
And loud at eve he valentines
On sprays that paw the naked bush
Where soon will sprout the thorns and vines.

Now are the foreign singer thrills
Our vale his plain-song pipe he pours,
A herald of the million bills,
And heed him not, the loss is yours.

My study, flanked with lofed fir
And budded beech with dry leaves curled,
Perched over yew and juniper,
He heightens, piping to his world.—

The wooded pathways dank on brown,
The branches on grey cloud a web,
The long green roller of the down,
An image of the deluge—ob;—

And farther, they may hear along
The stream beneath the poplar row,
By fits, like welling rocks, the song
Spouts of a blushful Spring in flow.

SCIENCE LENDS A HAND

PERSONS in all walks of life in Twin Falls, Jerome, Cassia and Minidoka counties welcomed the burden of Dr. Walter Carter's report on the studies that have been continued during the winter on leafhopper prevalence which sets forth that 1929 may be relied on to be a good year for the culture of sugar beets within the four counties as far as activities of the white fly are concerned.

The fact that the present winter has brought us much more than what we are likely to consider our usual share of sustained cold weather prepared the public to expect that the entomologist's report would be a favorable one. The list of casualties among some 10,000 leafhoppers that were imprisoned last fall in 22 outdoor hibernation cages substantiated the popular belief. Cold weather has been much harder on these lively hoppers than it was even to the feelings of mankind, and as a result, the disease of which he is the carrier can reasonably be expected to do only a minimum amount of damage this year.

The news is encouraging, because the economic value of the sugar beet industry to this big irrigated country can hardly be estimated. We are able to appreciate its value right at present in even greater measure than usual, due to the fact that our farmers produced no sugar beets last year, and the community lost the volume of retail business that is a big benefit when the factory conducts its fall campaign and distributes a large sum of money in payrolls for labor.

Any consideration of the significance of the report, even one so brief as this one, would overlook a vital feature of the situation if it made no mention of the part science has come to play in the complex business of agriculture. Science and the part it has taken in various phases of agriculture has not always had the confidence of "dirt," or practical farmers, but that day is passing. In the present case we have had the spectacle of a big manufacturing business on the one hand and of many beets growers on the other hand shipping oars and marking time until they could secure a laboratory report. Now that the report has been made waiting may be expected to give way to action.

Only a few years ago such action would have been revolutionary. Today it is accepted as a matter of course. Not only does farming make use of natural science in shaping its course, but economics figure much more in such plans than would have been dreamed of just a few years ago. Big businesses of every kind have their laboratory and research departments in greater or less measure, and the big and vastly complex lines of various kinds of endeavor that go to make up agriculture are merely evincing their progressiveness as they, too, harness the work of science to aid them in their labors.

WHERE COLLEGE STUDENTS COME FROM

Statistics recently gathered at the University of Illinois provide a partial answer to this question. Of the 11,000-odd students there, 5180 are sons and daughters of business men. Oddly enough, the next largest division of parents is that classified as skilled and unskilled laborers; 2061 students come from such parents. Farmers rank third, with 1766, and the professions, with 1719, are fourth.

Incidentally, half of the students come from cities of 25,000 or over. Chicago alone contributes more than 3000.

These figures are extremely interesting. They give a valuable light on the backgrounds of the young men and women who are being trained for leadership.

"Aimee Semple McPherson Is Tired," the headline has it. That's fair enough. She has made many of the rest of us very tired.

Now it would seem that Chicago is determined to get rid of its criminal element. One thing is certain, no one can accuse the Windy City of having arrived at the decision hastily.

JARDINE AND WHEAT

(Lewiston Tribune)

Secretary of Agriculture Jardine took a risk last fall when he advised growers to hold their wheat for better prices, but it turns out that his counsel was good. On the Chicago market wheat for the March delivery is quoted around $1.27, which is 20 cents a bushel above the low price for last September. Financial authorities say this is better than seemed possible last fall when the big world crop first came into view, and since then the now crops of Argentina and Australia are found larger than were then counted on.

The February review of the National City bank of New York gives two explanations for this surprise:

1. Supplies have been disappearing rapidly, indicating a good rate of consumption abroad.

2. Some apprehension exists as to the conditions of the winter wheat crop of this country, owing to freezing weather in the middle west with little or no snow covering.

But there are other reasons that Secretary Jardine pointed out in his forecast. A large part of the Canadian crop this year was good only for seed, and the world trend is again toward increasing per capita consumption of wheat.

Now that Secretary Jardine's prediction has been verified, it will be said that he is a keen student of world conditions and a good sport as well. But if the turn had been the other way, the secretary of agriculture would now be getting a grilling over the coals. That is what made his prediction so hazardous—the credit you get if your prophecy is verified is not proportionate to the censure you suffer if you are a bad prophet.

CALL YOUR SHOTS

When you advertise you want to know WHERE your message is going and WHAT TIME it will arrive.

If your selling talk goes far afield to people outside of the natural trading territory, your investment will not be productive.

If your advertisement is distributed at the wrong time people will not see it or read it.

Call your shots. Reach your audience of prospective customers in the EVENING when there is ample leisure for reading—when the whole family is congregated—when family purchases may conveniently be discussed.

Evening newspapers are everywhere preferred as advertising mediums by wise merchants because the evening advertisement is timely and most profitable.

Through the evening paper you reach the husband, the wife, the mother, the older children—four or five possible purchasers per paper and ALL have plenty of leisure in the evening to READ and TALK ABOUT your advertising.

Are You an Alert Driver?

To drive a motor car with safety to yourself and to others, good vision is absolutely necessary.

The margin between safety and danger is sometimes but the flicker of an eye-lash. One's nervous system must respond instantly to the stimulus, for there are emergencies in the traffic which must be handled instinctively, instantly, without study or reflection.

Without good eye-sight you are handicapped as a motorist and the lives of others are endangered.

Have your eyes examined regularly. Glasses will not be recommended unless they are necessary.

CHURCH SOCIETY OBJECTS TO LAW

Statement Issued Condemning Prohibition Law and Asking for Modification at Once

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UP)—The Church Temperance Society, which asserts it expresses the views of the majority of members of the Episcopalian church—including 1,500 clergymen—has demanded modification of the prohibition laws.

The demand will be published this week in "The Churchman," an independent religious publication.

The statement said, in part:

"While there are different points of view on certain theoretical aspects of the problem, on the following practical questions the majority are agreed:

"1. That the Volstead Act is not an honest or a scientific attempt to define an intoxicant.

"2. That the prohibition laws cannot be enforced in the states where a majority or even a large influential minority of public opinion appears to Authorize resorting to methods of the most extreme oppression and cruelty.

"3. That whether or not it may be justifiable to disabey a law believed to be unjust, while doing everything possible to have the unjust law repealed, there can be no excuse for the complacent violation of the law by millions of people who are too indifferent to make any attempt to change it.

"We especially condemn the selfishness of wealthy violators who give neither time nor money to change the law they spend fantastic sums to break.

"4. There are only 2 honorable courses open to us: sturdy healthy The law or squarely face the sacrifice of its enforcement. The third course is to keep the policy we, as a nation, are pursuing, to keep the law regardless of whether it is enforced or not."

"Hurray!" cried Clowny. "I just knew what classy fishing I could do. I merely dropped my line, and then a fish grabbed hold real quick. Just keep your eyes on me and then I'll toss my line back in again. Good fishing, after all, is really quite a clever trick."

Then Scouty said, "You boast a lot, but I'll just bet that fish you got was just a streak of real good luck. Let's see you catch one more." "Ha, ha," laughed Clowny. "Sure I will. Now, all of you must sit real still. I'll pull in lots and lots 'cause that is what I came for to do."

They watched him, but he'd lost his luck. Then Clowny said, "I guess I'm stuck. I'm going to take a little nap. The rest of you can fish. Please catch enough for one good meal, 'cause very hungry I feel like eating nice tried fish. They always make a tasty meal."

The others sat and fished a while. Then Copy broke into a quite. "Aw, gee," said he. "There are no more. We've caught the only one. Let's make a fire and cook it right. At least we'll all get one good bite. Just sitting here like this, to me, is far from any fun."

They pulled all of their fish lines in. My what a bad day it had been. Then Clowny woke up from his nap, and nearly had a fit. "What! Are you stopping now?" asked he. "You think you'll share my fish with me? Well, I am going to cook it, but you will not get one bite."

Just then they heard a hollow, nasty, and quietly Carry, shouted, "Ho! A man's out in that water!" and he came from "neath the sea." The man walked, with a splashing noise, and then he shouted, "Greetings, boys! I am the ruler of the deep. I hope you'll all like me."

(The Sea Man does a queer trick in the next story.)

WYOMING LEASES ARE HELD VALID

Former Senator Sterling Is in Favor of Not Bringing Charges of Fraud in Case

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UP)—Leases in the Salt Creek, Wyo., field appear to be valid, Former Senator Thomas Sterling, Republican, chairman of the senate public lands committee told the committee in a report made public Tuesday.

While there may be some liberal or fraudulent practices forming a foundation for present claims on the Bradley, Dain and Hart indications in the field, there is insufficient evidence to base charges, Sterling stated. The question of whether a monopoly exists is not decided, he said.

Sterling failed to show any knowledge of illegal or fraudulent practices in connection with the leases. "The claims mentioned were made in party by "dummies," he said. The Merritt locations were made party by dummies.

"The position of the department in granting these leases was that the applicants were without knowledge of fraud in the location," Sterling concluded. "No evidence to the contrary has been found in this investigation."

Some members of the committee indicated privately they were dissatisfied with the report and indicated they would move later to have Sterling dropped as committee counsel.

PIGS GROW LEAN

KANSAS CITY—Even pigs are being forced into the "leaner column." No jobs an authority than E. Z. Russell, swine inspector for the Department of Agriculture, says that pigs are being forced to reduce. The reason, is "this prosperous country demands high priced pork and since hog fat put most serious competition in vegetable fats," it remains for the pig to produce more meat and less grease.

Hansen Students Score in Comedy

HANSEN, Feb. 20 (Special)—"The Suicide Specialist," the junior class play, met with a warm reception Saturday evening, the proceeds amounting to well over $80.

Judging from their choice of a play and the manner in which they controlled their features while enacting it, the junior class must be a serious set of young folks. Leonard Ball, who carried the part of an impecunious young doctor who hits upon the scheme of advertising for suicides—and then curing them of their desire to "shuffle off the mortal coil," had a long and difficult role to sustain. His office girl, played by Janet McFarland, and a police inspector (Victor Mall), who assist him in the scheme, were the only other characters in the drama, aside from a very short part, taken by Viola Mal, except the would-be suicides, whose parts were enacted in various telling manners by Dorothy Marlow, Lorrayne Smalley, Maude Laycock, Bernice Hill, Sam Gibon, Lester Naylor and Charles Mulder. Needless to say, they all changed their minds, and mechanical difficulties with the curtain during the last act helped to give a humorous ending to a scene all littered up with (supposed) corpses. The school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Rachel Singer, rendered several selections. Miss Sadie Neagle directed the play.

The next dramatic event of the school season scheduled is the faculty play, "Her Step Husband," to be given March 15. Other attractions to be looked forward to are the grade school operetta, "Spring Glow," March 29, "Sallor Maids," a musical comedy, April 12, and the senior class play, "The Arrival of Kitty," May 3. Commencement this year will occur May 17.

The GREATER HUDSON

the outstanding value above $1,000

The secret ballot that forecast what all motordom is now saying . . .

The Greater Hudson was first shown to groups of motor dealers who were asked to examine it from the standpoint of general attractiveness in lines, appearance, comfort, fittings, performance and value, and then to cast a secret ballot on which they checked their individual appraisement of every detail.

The vote by these many dealers gave a true indication of public acceptance with the result that twice as many dealers have contracted for Hudson this year as had signed at this time one year ago.

Now by tens and tens of thousands automobile buyers are likewise casting their secret and unanimous vote for the Greater Hudson. You will see the score in 5,000 salesrooms. It is conclusive proof that the Greater Hudson is the public favorite of all cars selling above $1,000.

Won't you, too, go to the nearest Hudson dealer and make your appraisement as so many thousands have already done.

South (Declarer)—
♠ A 9 2

♣ K 9 6

The Bidding: South bids one tramp and all pass.

Deciding the Play: West leads 2 of hearts which East covers with 10 of hearts. Declarer must take this trick with King of hearts immediately or he may lose it. How should the diamond suit be played?

The Error: Declarer leads Ace of diamonds. He then plays 5 of diamonds which is covered by West with 10 of diamonds, won by Dummy's Queen and won by East with King of diamonds. As a result of this play Declarer does not trump.

The Correct Method: To frame declarer must make four tricks in diamonds. Opponents hold five hearts in diamonds that are probably distributed West: Ace, and two minor cards; East: King and one other, or vice versa. Declarer after playing Ace of diamonds should duck the next trick no matter what card West may play and in all probability King of diamonds will fall, the remaining diamonds being established and game made.

The Principle: When holding Queen and four minor cards in dummy and Ace and two others in closed hand or vice versa, at no-trump duck the second time played and the probability is that four tricks may be made thereby.

White and Black Punctuated with Red Sweepingly Endorsed

By FRANCES PAGET

Copyright, 1929, Style Sources.

PALM BEACH—Chiffons and lace were the favored fabrics at fashionable dinner-dance functions. White and black were decidedly upon top, especially in chiffon, while an occasional red frock emphasized their importance. Even the wraps carried out this theme, red or black with ermine or white fox being highlighted.

The deep circular decolletage in back was an important style phase, variations to this being found in the V-cut back and front.

The majority of the gowns were simple, the only trimming which was approved being crystal embroidery. The few satins worn subscribed to the classic type.

The shoulder corsage of gardenias was repeatedly seen.

The drama appeared in black chiffon, fashioned with a long skirt and flowing panels. The bodice was completed by brass shoulder straps. Her sister selected white chiffon, cut long in back and very short in front with a draped girdle. A smart guest wore Chanel's popular white lace frock, with two circular tiers entirely embroidered with crystal. A voluminous skirt cut very long was the distinguished feature of another gown, which was of white chiffon with a bolero bodice. A young matron sponsored a combination of cream lace and tulle, with a circular graduated flounce on the skirt, and another a black lace and chiffon frock with two long panels at back just escaping the floor.

Another of the younger matrons wore white chiffon. The skirt fashioned with two long slits and one back panel just off the floor. The underskirt was short.

YOUR CHILDREN

Y. W. C. A., Southern Idaho district, Miss Suit will explain the Girl Reserve movement and will answer any questions concerning this organization that the assembly may be interested in. It is the hope of those who are interested in this splendid movement that Kimberly may soon perfect a local organization. Mrs. Emerson will be assisted by Messrs. Theme, Greaves, Graham, Taylor and Krelbel.

One of the most demoralizing things to children is the parents who changes his mind. Not the parent who acknowledges that he is wrong doing life to him—but the one who says one thing one day and another thing the next.

Often the parent with this peculiar trait is quite unaware of the confusion he has caused. Individual one might think. He gives orders in a firm tone that brooks no delay.

Did you ever know anyone like that? The last generation was pretty good at it.

This type of mind-changing parent is disappearing very fast. New ideas in child training have resulted in parent training, and the parent today who changes his mind is usually one who has thought things over and found a better way.

But the millennium has not come. There are still with us a number of parents who have the unfortunate habit of back-firing commands.

When a parent is inconsistent the children will be inconsistent; they lose respect for authority to begin with and not knowing what is expected of them they are likely to take the law into their own hands and do as they please.

Children of changeable parents are almost invariably insubordinate. Observe the family where you suspect this sort of condition exists. Watch the children risk in and ask permission to do something they were allowed to do the day before. For no good reason on earth they meet with a prompt refusal.

If it is the habit of the house to give out his indulgences temperamentally, I think you will see those children rabidly doing the thing they were forbidden to do, on their own responsibility, that is, if they haven't long ago abandoned the habit of asking.

Daily Lenten Thought

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D. Editor of The Congregationalist.

The forty days of Lent commemorate the forty days of Jesus in the wilderness (Matthew 4:1, 2), with their emphasis upon prayer and fasting preparation for his ministry. But with their culmination in Good Friday and Easter the Lenten days have come to have a deeper significance in relation to the whole life of Jesus and his mission as the world's dreamer.

The wilderness experiences would have meant nothing but gloom and loss had they not led to Christ's conquest over temptation and to his acceptance of that sacrificial way that ended in Calvary and the Resurrection. But, through Christ's unfaltering fidelity to the Father's will, what began in the wilderness ended in glory.

The prophet predicted a day when "the wilderness would rejoice and blossom as the rose." It was this prediction that Jesus made literally true in human life. But it is those who share Christ's wilderness experiences of sacrifice and self-surrender who find the fruitfulness and flowering of life—in peace, in beauty, and in power.

Jesus never leaves us in the wilderness. He leads us out when we are prepared for it into the active world of work and service. But he leads us into life with a new sense of its value, even in its sorrows and trials, as well as in its joys and triumphs.

Opposition Made To Building Road

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 20 (UP)—Official opposition to the proposed construction of a new trunk railway line into California from the north was a matter of record here today.

In a written statement, Paul Shoup, president of the Southern Pacific, expressed the belief that the political field—in northern California and southern Oregon is fully occupied at the present time.

Shoup's statement commented on the application of the Western Pacific and Great Northern to the interstate commerce commission to build a connecting line from Klamath Falls to the Western Pacific line at Keddie, California.

FANNIE BRICE MYMAN

By Arline de Haas

Copyright, 1928 Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

"MY MAN," starring Fannie Brice, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Fanny Grice, a scrub girl in a theatrical costumer's shop, is raising her brother, Phil, and her selfish, pretty sister, Audrey, making every sacrifice for the girl. But Audrey leaves home to "live her own life." Lazarus, art director for Waldo, theatrical producer, hears Fanny sing and induces Waldo to hear her. The audition is interrupted and Fanny discovers Audrey's interest in Waldo—Heartbroken by this realization, Fanny falls in the street audition. On her way to work Fanny has seen a man demonstrating muscle builders. Months later she finds this man, Tom, now jobless, refilling her ice box. She feeds him.

CHAPTER VII—Continued

"Oh," I don't know," Fanny laughed. "Look what I got for being careless." She gesticulated toward the man, and then blushed at what she considered her own boldness. But she was supremely happy—happy to see that Tom took enough interest in her to think of her safety. Her heart went out to him, and she would have done anything in the world for him at that moment. It was a new sensation to her to have some one thinking about her that way. And she liked it, even more than she would admit to herself.

"Breakfast-at-seven."

"Nevertheless, you better lock it," Tom insisted. "That fire escape there's just an invitation, that's all."

"I suppose so—" Fanny agreed, very docile. "Anyhow, I'll lock it after this. But, seriously, would you—like to stay here?"

"Listen, Miss Grice—that's right, isn't it?"

Fanny nodded.

"Listen, Miss Grice, I ain't in no position to pick and choose. Not by a long shot. Yesterday I ask nothin' more than just to park right here. You're pretty tootsin' to take me in after what I done, but, believe me, I'll square it with ya."

"Have you got any idea about a job? Oh, I don't mean on—on account of the—the money." Fanny explained hurriedly, afraid of hurting Tom's feelings. "I mean, you—you and you were looking for something, and—maybe I could, maybe—I—you—something where I am. I don't know—"

"Say, do ya think ya could?" Tom brightened up incredibly. "I'm go sick of tramp'in' the streets."

"Well, I could speak to someone at the shop about it, and find out for you," Fanny promised.

"Say, would ya? Where d'ya work—I mean, what d'ya do?"

"I work at Thorne, Incorporated. They're theatrical costumers."

"Listen, I ain't no male model. Tom chortled.

"No—oh, no, I didn't mean that," Fanny giggled. "I meant maybe I could get you a job on the delivery trucks, or something like that—if you'd like it."

"Like it! Say, I'd like anything that was brinkly in th' shekels. I never was cut out to be a bum, I don't like it. And, besides, I gotta pay you something. If I'm gonna live here. You know, you're doin' me a big favor, lisp' me in, an' I ain't gonna forget it in a hurry."

"Oh, forget it," Fanny counseled. "I'll ask someone about it first thing in the morning. And that reminds me, I got to get some beauty sleep. Do you know it's midnight—or nearly?"

"No foolin'!" Tom looked at the clock. "Say, it is. Ya know, I been forgettin' all about time—I mean, I ain't been lookin' at it. All I been doin' is gettin' up an' movin' along when it got daylight."

"Well, look, you can have this room out here." Fanny motioned for the man to follow her, leading him out into the hallway and then to Audrey's empty bedroom.

After her sister had gone Fanny had cleaned the room and arranged the few things Audrey had left. At that time, the girl came back, the place would be much as she had left it. She had hated to leave her dear curtains and things Audrey had left—they made her too unhappy. But now she flung open the door joyously.

"This is my sister's room—the one that's away," she explained. "But it's a nice, light room.

"Sister, it looks like Heaven to me," Tom nodded appreciatively. "But don't your sister ever wanna use it?"

"Oh, no," Fanny answered quickly. "You see, she don't come home to stay ever night—just—just sometimes for Sunday, or something, and if she does want to stay she can sleep with me."

"Well, this's pretty swell," Tom looked about approvingly. "I ain't got my clothes with me, but I guess I ch'ge'n' 'em back from my landlady if I get some money an' pay her what I owe her."

"All right. Well, I'll say good night, Mr. Dalney. The—the bathroom's just down the hall where the light is, and breakfast is at seven. Do you want me to wake you?"

"Wake me for breakfast? Say, I'll be up ev'ry morn'n' at sun-up, six, willin' for you."

"Good night, Miss Grice, an' an' thanks for everything."

And Fanny went to bed, and dreamed and dreamed—all sorts of plans, happier than she had been for months.

CHAPTER VIII

Now for Fanny the days slipped by so quickly she scarcely realized the passage of time. Bleak, cold days that were prismatically colored by her own overflowing happiness; bright, warm days that set her heart to singing and her head to throbbing in an excess of joy. Once more she had someone to plan for; someone other than herself and Phil to think about; somebody who cared for. And before she knew it, it was spring and the little whipped buds on the maple trees were softly red, blurred against the hazy lavender of early evening skies.

True to her promise, Fanny had inquired about a job for Tom, and after a week's waiting he finally went to work on a delivery truck, and had been working ever since.

Tom didn't come back to the apartment that his bed learned to call home, tired, hungry and contented. Sometimes he took Fanny to the movies, and afterwards they would go to a little restaurant for a sandwich, and talk and laugh and discuss their days work. Other times he would play ball with Phil out on the street until it was too dark to see, and then Phil would come upstairs, and Phil would start his lessons, and Tom would read the papers until he yawned himself to bed.

And everything was just as Fanny had hoped it would be. It seemed as though her dreams had come true. Life couldn't look nothin' more than just to park right here. You're pretty tootsin' to take me in after what I done, but, believe me, I'll square it with ya."

"Have you got any idea about a job? Oh, I don't mean on—on account of the—the money." Fanny explained hurriedly, afraid of hurting Tom's feelings. "I mean, you—you and you were looking for something, and—maybe I could, maybe—you—something where I am. I don't know—"

Rockefeller Holds Majority Proxies

NEW YORK, Feb. 20 (UP) — A claim that the Rockefeller interests control the votes of more than 55 per cent of Standard Oil of Indiana stock in their fight to unseat Chairman Robert W. Stewart as director was made today by Winthrop W. Aldrich, chairman of the Rockefeller proxy committee.

Aldrich recently claimed that the proxy committee headed by John D. Rockefeller Jr., controlled 51 per cent of voting stock. This claim was branded as ridiculous by associates of Stewart, who predicted Stewart would retain his post at the stockholders meeting March 7.

Woman Took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Denver, Colo.—"I have taken six bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and will take more. I am taking it as a tonic—it helps me through the Change of Life. I recommend it to many of my friends to take it. I feel much better since I started to take it. I have no more hot flashes, no more feelings at night that I could not sleep, and for two years I could go down town because I was afraid of falling. My mother took Vegetable Compound years ago with good results, and I am taking it for the Change of Life and recommend it." Mrs. T. Anderson, 1446 Grant Street.

ARE YOU A TREE?

"Have you ever thought of the difference between a tree and a post?" it is only a matter of life. Plant a tree and it begins to grow. Set a post in the ground and it begins to decay. The tree lives, while the post dies. "Be a tree."

Diagnosis is easy. If the patient is perpendicular, his tonic is teph; if he's horizontal, he's drunk.

A Twin Falls girl who had been out riding with her sweetie said he was a very timid driver. All he did was just hug the curves in the road.

The chemist was becoming wearied. He had been explaining and pricing dozens of articles to the shopper, who didn't really want to buy anything at all. Finally she picked up a bottle.

"Is this Post Excoriantor reliable?" she asked. "How is it applied?"

"You take a tablespoon every half-hour, ma'am," the chemist replied with Hebrew emphasis.

No more questions were asked.

You may think you are firm but your wife knows you are only stubborn.

It's always darkest before the yawn.

Apparently the talking movies are to meet all the requirements of the legitimate stage except possibly the stage door possibilities after the show.

No man really enjoys work. When he gets up in the world, he gets up two hours later.

Little beams of moonshine,
Little hugs and kisses,
Make life pretty maiden
Change her name to Mrs.

"Well, dearie, have it sent on approval and wear it tonight, and be careful. You can send it back tomorrow. Don't go back with it, but in a cab." In one of those tiny, tight-tighty voices, and as long as you have a charge account they can't do anything about it."

"Isn't it the limit the way these cheap clerks look at you just because you bring back something they think you've worn?"

A popular but secluded rendezvous was invaded by a man who seemed unusually excited. "Speed up friend," he told the bartender, trouble starts."

The bartender set out a class of whiskey which was tossed off pronto. A second shot was demanded in the same excited manner and a third, and a fourth. As the fifth shot went down, the bartender inquired, "What is the trouble that's going to start?"

"Oh, there it is plenty," replied the customer. "I haven't any money to pay for these drinks!"

There wouldn't be much need of farm relief if somebody would invent an automobile able to run on fodder.

Sentimental writers tell us that the three most beautiful words in the world are, "I love you." However, to the growing boy of 10, "Dinner is ready" cannot be improved upon.

It's true that man is more courageous than woman, but he doesn't have half as much chance to show his backbone.

Americanism: Frantically yelling for the outlawry of war, fervidly recruiting cannon fodder for another one.

Coolidge Repeats: He Has No Plans

WASHINGTON, Feb. 20 (UP) — President Coolidge reiterated today he had made no decision concerning his occupation after March 4.

The president was represented as feeling that many offers from newspapers and syndicates for signed articles offer an excellent field, but he is hesitant about binding himself to produce any given amount of copy within a specified time.

Mr. Coolidge was said to be disposed favorably toward an occasional article dealing with phases of his experiences in public life, but does not feel kindly towards undertaking a series of articles.

No fewer than a half dozen offers have been made to the president for newspaper aerial projects of various types, the white house announced. All have been taken under consideration.

SEEKS ISLAND HE SAW IN DREAM

M. F. Bramley already has found the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow, so now he's off to look for his "island of dreams," a place that may not even exist but which he firmly believes he somewhere off the west coast of Mexico. Bramley, wealthy paving block contractor of Cleveland, O., bought the famed arctic exploration ship Peary from Commander Donald McMillan, refitted it in Boston and is sailing for Pacific waters. Here you see the millionaire and his wife and, above, the Peary as it left Boston. Bramley said that, following the revelation of the island in a dream, he flew along the coast and actually sighted such a place.

Doctor Called To Minister To Child And Then Robbed

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 20 (UP)—Answering a call, to administer to a sick child, Dr. A. Lee Brown was robbed of his valuables, bound and gagged and left in a vacant house last night. He managed to free himself later and notified police.

The doctor told police a man called him on the telephone about 8:30 p. m. and asked him to rush to an address which proved to be the vacant house, to attend his child who was seriously ill. When he stepped out of his automobile a man called from the sidewalk and asked him to follow him to the house. Just as he stepped on the threshold, he said, another man grabbed him, jabbed a gun into his side and ordered him to put up his hands. He was then led into another room of the house, relieved of his valuables, bound and gagged.

"They tried to get a ring off my finger," the doctor said, "but it resisted their efforts and when they noticed it was a signet ring, one of them said, 'Let the damned thing go.' They then departed."
