MORGAN IS FOUND GUILTY BY JURY

Sentence To Be Imposed By Judge Babcock next Tuesday Morning; Polygamy is Crime

Orval H. Morgan, alias Robert R. Stone, was found guilty of polygamy as charged by a jury in district court this afternoon. The verdict was returned at 2.10 p. m. after a brief deliberation. Judge Babcock set Tuesday morning at 9:30 as the time for the passing of sentence. The penalty is up to five years in the state penitentiary.

The case drew to a close this morning with testimony by Dr. D. L. Alexander and in his judgment the defendant was sane. Witnesses by both sides claim that Morgan was without question insane. Attorneys of the defense, attorney F. C. Shoenberger, for an advisory verdict after both sides rested this morning was denied by Judge Babcock. After arguments and instructions from the court the jury retired shortly before noon.

Morgan was alleged to have had three wives, one in Indianapolis, one in Wyoming and one in Twin Falls. He claimed on the stand yesterday afternoon that he had not seen the wife in Indianapolis since 1923, and had thought her dead or divorced when he married his second wife in Wyoming. He claimed that during the three years following 1923 he had lost his memory, and knew nothing of his actions. His defense presented documents from an Eastern insane asylum to show that Robert B. Stone had been in that place for a time.

OFFICERS PROBE WOMAN'S DEATH AT IDAHO FALLS

Mrs. Roy O. Sheffield Found Dead in Bed; Husband Held Pending an Investigation

IDAHO FALLS, Idaho, June 1 (UP)—Roy O. Sheffield, alias Roy O. Haley, was held in the county jail today while officers were attempting to clear up the mysterious circumstances surrounding the death of his wife who was found dead in bed at their home yesterday.

Sheffield told investigating officers that his wife had declined his invitation to breakfast with him downtown yesterday morning, claiming she did not feel well. He said when he returned home at noon he found her dead and immediately notified the sheriff's office. He claimed his wife had previously attempted to kill herself in Lander, Wyo.

Letters in Sheffield's possession revealed that he was married under the name of Haley, and that the couple had experienced considerable marital difficulties.

Mrs. Sheffield is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. L. MacDonald of Deer, Montana.

Intense Cold Wave Adds to Misery of Earthquake Victims in Stricken District

BUENOS AIRES, June 1 (UP)—New tremors have shaken the stricken Mendoza province area, where the most severe earthquake in years already had taken a toll of 47 dead and hundreds injured, it was stated today in advices from the city of Mendoza, Argentina, near the scene of the disaster.

One town lies dead in the vicinity of Villa Atuel has not yet been determined. Searching parties still were seeking bodies in the ruins of the towns and villages.

Business in the stricken district has been suspended, completely and all the relief expeditions concentrated their efforts on attending to the injured.

Reports from various districts said that an intense cold wave added to the misery of the victims.

CAUSE OF DISARMAMENT MOVES FORWARD TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 1 (UP)—The cause of naval reduction surged forward today upon the impetus of events in London and Washington.

Overshadowing all else was the rout of Premier Baldwin's British conservatives by Ramsay MacDonald's laborites in the British general elections. While Great Britain was voting Baldwin out and apparently voting MacDonald in, President Hoover delivered the most far reaching of the administration's plans for naval reduction. Secretary of State Stimson made the next move with a statement supplemental to Mr. Hoover's Memorial day speech.

WISCONSIN CITY SWEPT BY FIRE; LOSS IS HEAVY

Workmen Battle for 3 Hours Before Blaze at Sheboygan is Brought Under Control

SHEBOYGAN, Wis., June 1 (UP)—One small warehouse stood today in a smoking, blackened waste, three blocks square which yesterday morning represented an investment of more than $1,000,000 in the Sheboygan business district. A devastating fire swept through the area yesterday.

The fire started in a warehouse from unknown cause, spread to a toy factory and leaped to other buildings. Firemen battled for three hours before they got the blaze under control.

It was the most disastrous and the most spectacular fire in the history of this part of Wisconsin. The area is along the river front where millions of dollars are invested in a number of manufacturing and warehouse businesses.

Fire departments were rushed from Milwaukee, Manitowoc, Kohler, Sheboygan Falls and other nearby towns, to aid fire fighting units here. Thirteen hose and hose cart brigades were called in to help check the flames.

Carried by a stiff breeze, burning embers were swept from roof to roof in building and it appeared at first that dynamite would have to be used to prevent the entire town from being wiped out.

FARM CONFEREES TRY TO WORK OUT A SUITABLE BILL

President Hoover Will Agree to Adjournment If Measure is Completed

BORAH WANTS CONGRESS TO WIND UP THE TARIFF

Understanding Is Reached Regarding Debenture Clause in Relief Measure

WASHINGTON, June 1 (UP)—With both houses recessed for the week end, farm bill conferees went to work today to compile a satisfactory compromise, clearing the way for early adoption of the legislation so congress may adjourn until fall.

Outlook Clears

The dark legislative outlook cleared perceptibly when President Hoover announced at 2 p. m. that House late yesterday he would agree to adjournment if the farm bill completed and a date set for a senate vote on the tariff bill. The leaders plan to fix Nov. 9 as the date for the tariff vote. They spurred the farm conferees to stay away from the sanctum this warm Saturday so a farm bill agreement may be made ready for senate action early next week.

The White House statement did not dissuade the small republican group in the Senate which started a fight several days ago to make congress stay till finish the tariff bill. Senators Borah, Idaho, and Senator Jones, Washington, a certain republican leader, still favor this course. They are backed by perhaps ten others democrats and they may yet cause considerable embarrassment to the plan.

The farm conferees may complete their agreement late today. An understanding has been reached that the debenture provision is to be eliminated. Meanwhile the committees representing the House and Senate are perfecting the rest of the bill. Such an agreement is certain to be rejected by the House and it will be brought to the Senate with the warning: "take this or get nothing." Although not a single vote is reported to have been changed, sponsors the senate adopted the debenture feature three weeks ago 17 to 11, the leaders believe the warning may have its desired effect.

Invites Hoover to Golden Gate

Elaine Volman of Sacramento, Calif., known as the golden-haired girl from the Golden Gate, was chosen by her home city to go to Washington and personally invite President Hoover to attend the Diamond Jubilee State Fair to be held in Sacramento in August. It's hard to see how President Hoover could resist a smile like that.

GERMANY AGREES TO PAY HER DEBT IN INSTALLMENTS

Nation Will Turn Over About $188,000,000 Annually for 59 Years

BELGIAN CLAIM ONLY FLY IN THE OINTMENT

Experts Hope to Sign Agreement Next Week; Work of Commission Ends

PARIS, June 1 (UP)—The reparations problem has been settled.

Thomas W. Lamont, American banker, announced today that the experts of seven nations, after committee for almost four months with the complicated problem of how much Germany shall pay for the World war had at last reached a final agreement.

Hope to Sign Soon

The experts hope to sign the agreement early next week. The only obstacle is Belgium's refusal to sign until she has obtained satisfaction on her claim against Germany for the delliction of her currency during the war. Berlin and the Allies were making very effort to appease the Belgians on the question, which has been left outside the reparations agreement itself for settlement between the two nations.

Germany has settled, in effect, for $5,800,000,000 cash. That is, if she paid the entire sum today she would turn over that amount in gold.

On Installment Plan

The money will be paid on the installment plan, however, and within the next 59 years Germany will pay an average of about $188,000,000 annually. That is, the Allies will actually get about $22,000,000,000 interest, being figured at 5 per cent.

The knotty problems with which the experts struggled for so long were finally settled by concessions on all sides. The only problem not settled by the agreement was Belgium's claim for compensation on account of the deflation of the

Suicide Ends Drunken Rampage of War Vet

CHICAGO, June 1 (UP)—A dramatic suicide before a speeding Northwestern passenger train today ended the drink-inspired rampage of Ferdinand Pronko who killed two policemen and a merchant and severely wounded three persons late yesterday while defending himself against capture in his west side tenement.

After climbing one of the most intensive manhunts ever organized in the Metropolitan area—50 squads of detectives and policemen and the incessant hoop-hooting of the alarm system—the 38 year old war veteran today hurled himself before a westbound Freeport train which cut off his head and both arms.

Where Pronko spent the night after his marksmanship had prevailed against the combined efforts of eight detective squads which attempted to capture him in his home yesterday probably never will be known.

While the law reenforced its numbers before his home, Pronko emptied rifle-fire through the front and side windows with a pump shotgun until he had wiped out one entire squad. Then he fled down an alley and was swallowed up by the teeming tenement district which had been the scene of his drunken rampage.

ENGLISH HEADS IN CONFERENCE OVER ELECTION

Labor Fails to Get Working Majority in next Parliament; McDonald Has Little Power

LONDON, June 1 (UP)—The leaders of the three principal British political parties began conferences with their advisers today to determine their next moves in the stalemate situation that resulted from labor's failure to gain a working majority in the next parliament.

With the laborites holding more seats than any other single party, Ramsay MacDonald, their leader, was waiting at his Hampstead home, apparently ready to form the second labor government if he should be summoned.

MacDonald realized, however, that labor's lack of a majority meant that he was virtually powerless in the face of a possible combination of conservatives and liberals.

Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin was receiving important conservatives today. He will continue the conferences until Monday, discussing with them the various possibilities before him as leader of the second strongest party, which now forms the government.

David Lloyd George, the liberal leader who found himself holding the balance of power in the house of commons as a result of the election, went to court where he will deliberate on what use he will make of his strength.

UTAH TAXPAYERS SUGGEST CHANGE IN METHOD USED

By United Press

SALT LAKE, June 1 (Creations)—If some state body whose rights, powers and authority shall extend over assessment of all taxable property of all classes throughout the state is recommended by H. P. Riddell, chairman of the Utah Taxpayers association, in a report reviewing the findings of the association.

The report set forth that creation of such a body or the vesting of such authority with the existing commission is necessary because a five year study of the methods of administration employed in the Utah taxing system brought the conclusion that the existing laws have no teeth; that there is nothing to compel obedience to the law and custom has almost supplanted law.

Other recommendations were: That the local assessor shall be required to accept, maintain and follow the stands prescribed by such a commission. That the commission shall at all times be sufficiently financed so as to enable it to engage technical men such as engineers, accountants and appraisers and attorneys for the efficient and complete performance of duties.

TRACK ATHLETES SHOW ABILITY IN MEET AT CHICAGO

Fort Collins, Colo., and Gary, Ind., are Favorites to Win High School Championship

CHICAGO, June 7—(UP)—Those high school track and field men who are accustomed to laboring without much recognition outside their immediate neighborhoods, had their fining nationally today as the University of Chicago's 25th American prep meet reached the finals.

Approximately 300 athletes have come from 30 states in an attempt to win national honors. In the preliminary heats yesterday, they displayed enough ability to warrant the belief that some records will be broken today.

Three dash men turned the hundred yards in 9.9 seconds in qualifying heats, and W. Houlle, Muncie, Ind., star, did it despite a more too good start. Then he ran the 220 yard dash in 22.4 seconds, near record time. The other 9.9 men were P. Swift, Spokane, Wash., and R. Metcalfe, Tilden High, Chicago.

Fort Collins, Colorado, and Lincoln high of Gary, Indiana were favored to win team honors. The Colorado school won last year and has three victories in the past five years.

LELAND STANFORD FAVORED TO WIN

PHILADELPHIA, June 7—(UP)—Stanford University received a bid for the third straight championship as the final events in the thirty-third annual meeting of the Intercollegiate A. A. A. A. began at Franklin field today.

Eighty athletes, representing 22 colleges, survived yesterday's preliminary trials in 11 events, and nearly that many more were competing today in four other events in which trials were not held.

Stanford, defending the title it won in 1923 and 1923, led the list of men qualified for today's semi-finals and final events with a total of 11 places.

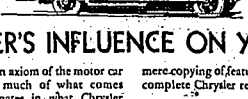
A FIVE-YEAR-OLD FORECAST MORE THAN REALIZED

JUNE 7, 1924

"* * * the Chrysler is, in reality, the first step in the general revision of motor car design which is bound to follow its advent. * * * For it is an entirely new type of car, built on a new kind of engineering, which produces results radically different from any heretofore registered in the industry."

—Advertisement Saturday Evening Post June 7, 1924



CHRYSLER'S INFLUENCE ON YOUR CAR

It has become an axiom of the motor car industry that much of what comes tomorrow originates in what Chrysler engineering does today.

For five years, Chrysler has been the acknowledged leader in thrilling performance. For five years, Chrysler has led the way in individuality and modern smartness of design.

Those in possession of the facts know that there is scarcely a motor car today that does not owe some improvement in its make-up to Chrysler—and has not become a better car by reason of Chrysler engineering achievement.

Emulation is a nice compliment to Chrysler leadership, of course. But the mere copying of features cannot equal the complete Chrysler results.

To you who are about to choose a new car, a natural question arises: Why not enjoy a Chrysler itself, so long as Chrysler smartness, comfort, performance and quality are the goals to which other cars are striving? Let us show you in a test of your own choosing the superiority of Chrysler to anything aspiring to compete with Chrysler.

CHRYSLER "75"—$1555 to $1795—Eight Body Styles. * CHRYSLER "65"—$1040 to $1145—Six Body Styles. All prices f. o. b. factory. Chrysler dealers extend convenient time payments.

time occupation. The question was left for the two governments to settle between themselves.

Thus the work of the conference, under the chairmanship of Owen D. Young, American financial genius, will have been 100 per cent successful if Emile Francqui, the Belgian delegate to the conference, permits the question of currency during the German war to be negotiated between Brussels and Berlin.

D. A. R. PLANS

beauty, Mr. Lambing states, but it adequately fulfilled its purpose of providing a living place for the employes of the stage company and their horses, and was in a measure a "filling station" where water could be obtained, not without difficulty, but with infinitely less inconvenience than at other places along the route. It was not intended as a hotel for passengers and freighters, though emergencies and occasional storms did make it a retreat, particularly in the winter. When Mrs. Mary V. Norton, pioneer of Rock Creek fame, stopped at the station in the early '90's it had already commenced to crumble.

The station, constructed of lava rock, stood the long way east and west, and the roof was made of rafters covered with dirt. The east end of the building opened with native wood doors, and small windows were on either side of the building. A small corral on the north side and west end housed the horses. The desert stretched in three directions, and the Rock Creek canyon formed a border on the fourth side. In reconstructing the premises the iron water bucket will not be forgotten. Half a kerosene box converted into an iron bucket, was run down on a heavy cable anchored to rock on the opposite side of the creek. The cable was so arranged that in dropping, the bucket filled itself, and was then drawn back up the steep incline by horse or mule power. The ground served as a floor, lumber flooring being nearly impossible and most costly. The nearest lumber mill was owned by I. P. Lambing, uncle of W. M. Lambing, one of the founders of Idaho City, which was operated on Binsfer creek. Lumber would have to be taken 25 miles by team to Boise, and then hauled overland.

Reclamation Remarkable.

Lured by the descriptions of the west, W. M. Lambing and his father returned in 1873 to Idaho with I. P. Lambing, after one of his visits to Ohio. Young W. M. Lambing, then a mere lad, became engaged in a conversation of mines in southern Idaho. Early in the fall he was interested in the fact that Mr. A. E. Thompson of Oregon City, Oregon, had the government contract with A. L. Rymerson, now of Lamoille, Nevada, Mr. Lambing and others to carry mail through Salt River canyon, Idaho section. That the last 50 years have seen amazing changes in the west they by no means doubt, and the area of country which is not fast Mr. Lambing recalls is only a statement made in 1875 by A. L. Rymerson, following various trips to the Salt River country. He said he was pleased that in some way the American Fall would be dammed up, irrigation would come, and the south side would become a second Willamette Valley, fertile, productive, a region of beauty. But Mr. Rymerson made one mistake, he predicted that he would probably not see it, nor should it take place within his children's time, but that it would be eventual. It has been his satisfaction to see his prophecy come true, and about twenty-five thousand of an eye. Appropriations from the government ceased and there being no more survey work, Mr. Lambing returned to the middle west. His father preceded him to Ohio some time before.

In 1875 there were no residents except squatters between Kelton, Utah, and Boise. The stage and freight road ran along where Oakley and Albion are now located. Goose Creek stage station was three miles from the present site of Oakley. The next station was at Mrs. Stricker's, about four miles from the present Rock Creek post office. From there the stage route crossed Rock Creek and went on the southside to the Desert stage station, which was an oasis in a desert. The next place where water could be obtained was from a spring fifteen miles on down the Snake. At each station the horses were exchanged for rested ones, and the Concord stages on the freight wagon were on their way again, in winter the stages ran from Utah to Boise on runners. Mr. Lambing recalls that in the winter of 1872-73, the Snake River through this region was entirely frozen over, and it was intensely cold. Many cattle, going to the river banks for water, crashed through the ice and drowned.

Molested by Indians.

It was not until after Mr. Lambing's return east that the Indian uprisings broke out again and had to be quelled by the government, so in a measure, for all the thrills that made up a surveyor's life in those days, he was a bit cheated. The most serious annoyance he had his companions experienced came from the Indians, Nez Perce, Blackfoot and Shoshones who roamed the country, was the loss of horses. The Indians had a supiness for donning buffalo and bear skins, slipping up and nearing the horses off, then, having hidden them in the hills coming back and consenting to find the "strayed" animals for gold. And gold they got. But in 1877 and 1878, when the bad raids took place, stealing horses was a time honored pastime. This region depended entirely on Boise fort in charge of Captain Munson, for protection.

Mr. Lambing, after two years of sentinel experience went to Iowa, then to Nebraska where he married Miss Irene Adelaide Smith. After several years of farming, with failures and successes pointing, Mr. Lambing became advertising solicitor for the Iowa Homestead and the Breeders' Gazette in Chicago and traveled over a transcontinent territory. His business

Daily Poem

THE LARK

From the Welsh of Ddyfid Ab Gwilym.
Translated by A. J. Johnes

Oh, will thou climb you heavens for me,
You skurry turrets, behold,
Thou interlude of melody,
—Twixt darkness and the light,
And find—heav'n's blessings on thy plaints rest!
Tho lovely maid—the moonlight of the west?
No woodland caroller art thou!
Far from the archer's eye.
Thy course is o'er the mountain's brow,
Thy music in the sky!
Then fearless be thy flight, and strong,
Thou earthly messenger of angel song.

A JOB FOR VACATIONISTS

VACATION time has come again for those who follow their work in town, and Idaho residents in great numbers are already planning trips that will take them away from home and into other communities some time during the summer months.

We usually think of vacation time as a time of rest, but under modern conditions it seldom ever proves to be a rest. The vacation provides change and an opportunity for mental relaxation, a chance to see new country, new people and to get new ideas. We take a vacation to rest and then usually work harder physically than we do at home. Since it is true that vacations are quite a lot of work, we have a suggestion to offer as to one bit of work that should be done during vacation time by every Idahoan.

Our suggestion is this: On that trip you take this summer, do all you can to spread the fame of our big Idaho irrigated country to as many people as possible. The record of its achievements should be told to the whole world, and one of the most effective ways of having the record related is by the men and women who are themselves aiding in the development.

Th dissemination of such information can be done effectively in several ways. One of the best is by word of mouth, directly to friends and acquaintances. Such a method is open to all who travel and visit. Quite a number of our people will also come in contact with newspaper men and can avail themselves of the opportunity of putting in some mighty telling words in behalf of Idaho for the public to read. Some few of those who spend vacations will speak before organizations or groups of one sort or another. What better theme could be chosen on which to speak than the record of Idaho.

The efforts of the people of a district or a state, or of a group of states are always outstanding in one or more respects. During the past quarter of a century the state of Idaho has demonstrated a genius for reclaiming and developing raw land through irrigation. We may not be conscious of the extent and degree of leadership that is really ours in this respect but other states in the Northwest look to Idaho as the one outstanding state in putting over and maintaining successful irrigation projects.

Let's tell the world about our country and our successes. The accumulated benefits that will accrue to us by a united, enthusiastic campaign on the part of our vacationists can not be estimated or computed, but such work will yield big returns; and, incidentally, the consciousness of being a member of an army of boosters for Idaho should add to the pleasure of the vacation.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES

ANOTHER sign of the times in regard to the future of aviation is found in General Motors' purchase of 40 per cent of the stock of the Fokker airplane concern.

Ford was the first of the big automobile manufacturers to enter the aviation field, and the Stout monoplanes he builds are giving service all over the country.

Then Packard followed suit by experimenting with a Diesel engine for airplanes. This engine, it is said, is now about ready for the market.

Now General Motors steps in. Obviously, these automobile manufacturers see a tremendous future in that field. They are providing for their participation in it by getting in now, while the growth is only beginning.

THOSE MESS SUPPLIES

WE OBSERVED Decoration day and paid homage to the memory of our departed soldier dead.

We decorated their graves and in the act of remembrance renewed our own vision of patriotic service.

One of the ways we can perform a small act of patriotism now is to help provide a little extra for the mess fund of our own national guard unit which will be leaving within a few days for the annual encampment at Boise.

The ration fund allowance is 50 cents per man per day; sufficient to feed the guardsmen if the menus are restricted to old army grub staples, such as potatoes, beans, meat etc. Green vegetables can't be purchased and added to the menus of the peace time soldiers on the allowance. But if Twin Falls will provide some of the staples—beans, spuds or canned goods—the mess fund will be relieved of enough pressure so the vegetables can be purchased out of ration allowance. There will be room in the cars allotted to the local unit on the special train that takes the guard outfits to Boise for them to haul any supplies we may get for our company.

The company has reflected credit on Twin Falls before, and as an organization it represents us now in the peace time plan of defense. Most of us know how to provide quite handsomely for an outing of our own in the hills, and it is nothing more than a sporting proposition that we fatten the mess fund of our national guard unit when it goes to state encampment to train its members in defense of us and our state.

BARGAINS

THE tourist third cabin scheme installed on Atlantic liners, which offers comfortable accommodations to travelers at a very low rate, has proven so popular that the Canadian Pacific steamships have been forced to cut the price of their first class tickets to compete with it.

William Baird, passenger traffic manager of the line, reports that too many well-to-do people are patronizing the tourist third cabin accommodations. Thus people who cannot afford to pay for better quarters are often crowded out, while those who could easily afford the best on the ship are taking inferior accommodations just for the thrill of it.

Consequently, the Canadian Pacific has slashed ten per cent off the price of its first class tickets. If wealthy travelers are looking for bargains, they will be accommodated.

KEEPING FAITH

Rogerson, Idaho,
May 30, 1929

TO THE EDITOR:

Today is a day set apart in memory of those loved ones who have gone on before in into the next world, but especially of those who died upon the field of battle that this great nation might live. Many of us will, today, decorate the graves that we may do honor to those heroes of our country. And it is fitting that we should do so.

Comes down out of the pages of history I seem to see them. There are those who perished on Bunker Hill, that this nation might be conceived in liberty and dedicated to the proposition that all men are created equal. Next in line there are those who died in repulsing Pickett's charge at Gettysburg and the men who fell as Roosevelt led that charge at San Juan Hill. And finally I seem to hear again the words of Lieut. Colonel John McCrae in which he said in part:

"Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from failing hands we throw
The torch; be yours to lift it high!
If ye break faith with us who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies blow
In Flanders Fields."

But following hard after them I see another group. They are the bootleggers and the law violators. They are the traitors in men's souls. They are the men who are stabbing the Foe which is yours and mine, the flag for which our fathers and brothers and husbands fought and bled and died with the rotten corruption which oozes forth from their booze soaked brains—the foul pus which they trample our flag to the ground. And when I see this group I can not help but ask, after all have we caught the torch? Have we kept faith with those who died on Flanders Fields? How long are we, the decent, red blooded, law-abiding citizens of this country going to tolerate the activities of such individuals?

President Hoover is right in appointing his law enforcement commission for investigating crime and its causes. But, after all, does not the solution lie in the attitude of the public? When the public starts out in earnest to eradicate crime, crime will be eradicated and not before. And let us include the bootleggers along with these other criminals for there is where he belongs. Are "all men created equal" when the violators of our law are given a severe sentence while those who break another are given punishment so light that they laugh at it? Let us send these fellows up to the penitentiary for a long term of years to meditate upon the advisability of continuing their activities. And then let us deprive them of their citizenship and send them forth with the stigma which attaches to others of their kind who have "done time." When the public is willing to co-operate it will be done.

If this land is worth dying for it is worth living for and having its laws enforced. What better memorial could we set up for our loved ones than such a monument as this? In the words of Abraham Lincoln let us: "Here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain." We have caught the torch of liberty. Now let us keep the faith in time of peace with those who died that this nation of ours might live.

Yours truly,
JOHN K. WALPOLE

Deportation May Split Family

E. G. Olsen is to be deported to his native Norway and separated from his wife—a Savannah Ga., woman—and their 16-month-old baby because he has been in this country five years without obtaining citizenship papers. The Olsens are shown above. Mrs. Olsen has appealed to Senators George of Georgia and Heflin of Alabama and other high government officials to intercede with immigration authorities who have ordered her husband's deportation. Olsen formerly was a Norwegian seaman.

RENEWING OLD TIRES

Vulcanizing worn spots, punctures and tears in tires simply means making the damaged sections as good as any other part of the tires. The process is simple, it is quickly done and is inexpensive. It gives you practically a new tire at a very small outlay. We are doing a big volume of vulcanizing now. Tires, you know, cost money.

Mackey Tire and Vulcanizing Shop
NEW BRICK BUILDING
Rear of New Texaco Station, Main Avenue and Third Street East

The Most Important Part of a Tire is—the part you can't see!

The new improved Fabrikoid Goodyear, crowning achievement of 50 years of gain, gives top-notch quality at the price of mail order "grey" and second-rate tires!

IT IS HARD to understand why one tire is better than another, judging by looks or the first thousands of miles of service.

But after you've thumped and hammered your tires for months, the hidden part of a tire—the most important factor in determining life and mileage—then reveals its worth. It is the body, concealed under the tread, and composed of plies of cord fabric. This body absorbs the blows a tire gets. It bends millions of times, under the car's weight, to cushion your riding.

The cords, to do this, must be elastic. How many times they will flex and recover, or how far they will stretch without breaking, determines their usefulness.

In repairing all makes of tires we find that the patented cords, used only in Goodyear casings outlast any other kind. By a patented process these cords—called SUPERTWIST—are twisted so that they will stretch up to 60 per cent farther before breaking. They also stretch and recover repeatedly, after the best competitive cords are lifeless.

This greater elasticity of SUPERTWIST explains (1) the longer life of Goodyear tires—their greater resistance to injury, and (2) the fact that the average well-worn Goodyear is worth retreading when another tire similarly used is broken down in the body.

See This Test—it Proves The Case for Goodyear Tires!

Clean Skin Evidence of Healthy Body, Says Dr. Copeland

ACNE FIRST SIGN OF DISORDERED SYSTEM

Blotches and Blackheads Nature's Signal That Something Is Wrong, So Root Out the Cause and Correct It, Your Skin Will Quickly Clear.

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

"CLEANLINESS is next to Godliness"—I am not sure that Godliness is quite so easy to acquire as all that.

Few people realize that a clean skin is the finest evidence of a clean body. If your stomach is disordered in its functions, if your teeth need attention, if you are nervous, in fact if your system does not function properly in every way, your skin signals the warning.

There may be a roughness of the skin, pimples, red spots, blotches or even blackheads. These may appear without other warning. They show that something is wrong.

Young people particularly are subject to skin eruptions.

Many a young person has a face peppered with blackheads. Indeed, the face looks exactly as if particles of black pepper had been sprinkled over an inflamed and pimply surface.

When pressed between the thumb nails, a mass like a blackheaded worm can be squeezed out of the skin. When left in place these blackheads produce results not unlike the effects of foreign bodies in the tissues. Pretty soon the skin festers, forming a red pimple. When the pimple breaks and the pus discharges the blackhead may escape. If it does not, the same process may be repeated and, each time, the skin is involved more deeply.

The deeper into the tissues the pus burrows the larger the scar. Sometimes the swelling is great, perhaps the size of a pea. When it finally breaks, and discharges, there is sure to be considerable scar when it heals. Even after the acute condition has disappeared entirely, permanent marks will be left.

In what I have said about the causes, there have been plenty of hints as to the cure. Some of these suggestions I will emphasize.

Make sure that your teeth are sound. This is important advice for two reasons: In the first place, you need to have good teeth in order to chew your food properly. In the next place the pus from decayed or abscessed teeth may be a factor in causing acne.

You will eat green vegetables, cooked or in salad, more than you have been your custom. Fruit should be taken regularly.

The blackheads must be removed. To do this, wash your face and hands thoroughly with an abundance of soap and water. Boil a watch key or hairpin to make it sterile. Then press out the blackheads, being very careful in the process. Don't remove too many at each sitting; but persist in the matter till they have been taken out to the very last one.

Plenty of soap and water used freely is the first essential to cleanliness. Do not overlook its value. Try keeping the skin clean and will help to escape having blackheads.

Selecting Useful Gifts for the June Bride

Home-Making Helps

By ELEANOR ROSS.

WHEN the young bride showed her wedding gifts, lovely silverware and dishes she had just received from a friend living abroad, and said in awe-struck tones, "think of it, Dick—all this is handmade!" he was quite indifferent. "What of it? These stitches look too good to be done by hand, anyway. And what's the use of all that work when it really could have been done just as well by machines, I don't see, trouble, too."

Typical male attitude, hand-embroidery or hand-made clothes make no impression. But any woman can tell a difference, the very feel of a bit of lingerie or table linen; whether it's hand-made or not. And there is to her a real difference. Therefore Mrs. Dick took a more generous attitude when, a few days later, hung up over the house in any excitement.

"Look at this, young lady." He tore open a clumsy package that stuck out in all directions. "Jack turned up at lunch today and sent this out as a wedding present. Isn't it a fine place? And hand-made."

The hand-made place seemed out to be a small, wrought metal lantern, suitable for a doorway or foyer. It was a simple, sturdy-looking object, one of those things that are sure to last a lifetime.

"This is really beautiful," exclaimed Mrs. Dick in genuine enthusiasm. She saw at once the crafts-manlike lantern, hung outside the door, shedding a cheery light on the narrow path and spelling welcome.

It's true enough that machines today turn out vast quantities of perfectly made furniture and metalware and textiles, good to look at, with excellent wearing qualities. And if it weren't for this machine perfection in the cut-down cost-of-living in cost, most of us couldn't afford to buy the things which are quite common now.

Still, the hand-made articles, even if they are less perfect than the machine product, do possess a definite, homey air, and so, if you're contemplating a present for the June bride, and wish to avoid duplication, give her some hand-made piece. You can choose from a variety of materials.

If she's to live in a country or suburban house, some hand-wrought metal fittings might be most welcome. Fireplace fixtures, holders for candles or electric fixtures, wrought iron floor candelabra suitable for hall or foyer, or wrought iron pieces for the garden.

To the city apartment dweller, lighter fare would probably be more appropriate. The wood-carvers are now busy again, and fine hand-carved small furnishings—coffee-tables, foot rests, book-ends, as well as wooden sculptures are now being shown. Since no two are ever alike, there is no danger that she'll want to return it, or hurry it in an attic because she has another just like it. And these pieces are simple in their unobtrusive beauty that they do not stick out conspicuously in a room, but blend harmoniously with almost any good furnishings.

Then there are the hand-wrought metals—silver, copper, brass—and one is always perfectly safe in choosing an individual piece in any of these materials. Nobody has too many silver bowls or candlesticks or flower-holders, or trays, or any of the thousand and one items that are now being offered. It's quite like the case of linens—there's no such thing as too much.

One of the most prized wedding gifts of a young bride was a set of mugs to order, hand-wrought metal fixtures for her living room—everything complete, from the wrought metal basins on the floor, to the fireplace fittings and the lighting fixtures. Each slightly different, as hand-made things always are, but all blending together.

If I Were A Man—

By JILL.

I WOULDN'T be all the time grousing about my luck.

I wouldn't go around acting about the fact that other fellows were always winning at poker or the races, but I never came out anywhere but at the short end of the deal. If I heard of a man who made a killing in the market on the stock market, I wouldn't remark in an injured tone, "that was just my luck. I wish to heaven I had a break once in a while."

When I sat down to a game of bridge I would sit down cheerfully to my partner. "Well, are you prepared to lose?" I never have any luck, you know. If I come other man cut me out with my best girl, I would announce dismally: "Luck! I never have any luck."

No girl and miss a man who doesn't be honest with them from the start. Luck is what you make it, and the man who refuses to be licked is the one who falls for every time.

I'd like to say a thing often enough, you're bound to be believed eventually. And nobody loves a jinx!

The Stars Say—

For Tuesday, May 28.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

THE astral operations for this day make for propitious circumstances, with the prospect of progress and expansion in business, money, with the recognition of well-directed labor and industry. The financial outlook is fortified, but there is a tendency to squandering, self-indulgence, extravagance and personal prodigality. The tendency may be toward social pleasures and undue popularity. Much may work against success, but substantial benefits of an unexpected nature may accrue through writings, publishing, or original inventions.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of prosperity, with opportunity, with substantial rewards for industry and fidelity, and growth in funds, but these are beset by a danger of extravagance, generosity or self-indulgence, in social activities or undue popularity, to the detriment of more solid ambitions. Benefits from writings, research or the occult may materialize.

A child born on this day may be talented, ambitious, popular, and well liked, rising to high station in life. It may require some restraint against prodigality and personal indulgence.

LOVELY EYEBROWS, LASHES CAN BE YOURS

A Little Time and Care Will Give You These Beauty Assets, Says Miss Huddleston, Suggesting Colors and Formations for Different Types.

By JOSEPHINE HUDDLESTON

EYEBROWS and eyelashes—how important they are to beauty! And how complicated their grooming can become unless one knows just how to go about slanting them down or curving them up; how to tinge the ends of the lashes so that they appear more luxurious. How deftly those entrancing shadows must be blended on the lower half of the upper lid if the eyes are to be enchanting!

It takes no little time to make the eyes a real beauty asset—that every woman should master the few details that are required.

Regardless of the color of the iris, the eyebrows and lashes must be dark, not black necessarily, for if you are of light or medium complexion black lashes and brows will make too marked a contrast, thus making these features too prominent and perhaps making the face appear too heavy.

Brown mascara or eyelash dye is best for those of light or medium coloring, black being used only by those who have very dark hair and skin. Even then, black may not be required for the darker do hair and skin, the less make-up one need use for the eyes, with the possible exception of shadows over the upper lids. But we'll take that up later.

The shape of the eyebrows is vastly important to the balance of the face and this branch of beauty and eye culture should be given a great deal of thought.

For example, it is possible to soften a prominent jawline by shaping the eyebrows into a more arched curve in the center. With this same jawline the hairline eyebrow or one of medium heaviness will soften the upper part of the face and throw the jawline into an even more prominence.

A large face that is inclined to heaviness, either because of large bone structure or an undue round-ness, will take on a more cultivated appearance if the eyebrows are thin and carefully arched and so trained that nary a straggly hair disturbs their smooth curves.

To the other extreme we have the girl who is small and dainty, commonly known as the petite type. This girl will find that a short delicate eyebrow balance with the rest of her features which of necessity are small and more delicately carved. Frequently some charming results are gained when this type of girl shortens her eyebrows until they end on an even line with the end of the eyes instead of letting it taper out gracefully to beyond the actual corner end of the sockets.

Only the baby faced miss should attempt the very thin, long eyebrow lines and even then it should not be too thin since too scant eyebrows on this type is more than apt to change an innocent expression into one of vapidness.

For the average woman, two delicately arched brows that are not too thin nor too heavy, too long or too short, are ideal.

Now for a word about these elusive, haunting and desirable shadows that are becoming so much more popular with the dawn of each new day. Those of you who read this column regularly will remember that I've been talking about them for the past year and I think that most of the manufacturers, on a big scale, have made it possible for this charming make-up to reach every woman.

Most of these cosmetics come either in paste or powder form. If a paste is used, a very light application is smoothed over the lower part of the upper lid and blended out to the ends of the eyes. If the powder form is used, one smoothes a bit of the powder on the upper lid and then lightly puts a bit of the shadow powder on.

Whether you use the paste or powder form, the following colors are best. For brown-eyed girls, green eyes and blue eyes, the light blue eyes are a blue and for dark blue eyes has a violet. A greenish brown tint is best for hazel and gray eyes.

Advice to Girls

By ANNIE LAURIE

DEAR ANNIE LAURIE:

I am a girl in my teens, considered good-looking and dressed very neatly.

When you have been keeping company with a young fellow some time and his breaks a date and goes with another girl, what should you do? I think a good bit of the boy but could forget if best.

Thanking you for your advice,
SMILES.

SMILES: My dear, you are not engaged to the young man and he therefore at liberty to have as many "dates" as he desires. Of course, it was not very gentlemanly to break an engagement with you, but since this had been broken up it would be best to simply ignore the whole thing. Be friendly, but don't get too serious.

Love's Awakening

The Heart Story of a Steadfast Woman.

By Adele Garrison

Phil Veritsen's Insistence on Joining the "Royal Romancers" in the City Threatens to Complicate Matters.

I CAUGHT my breath in dismay at Philip Veritsen's statement that it was for me to decide how he was to get to the city if he gave up the use of his limousine and chauffeur. I had been given no such thing as too much.

One of the most prized wedding gifts of a young bride was a set of mugs to order, hand-wrought metal fixtures for her living room—everything complete, from the wrought metal basins on the floor, to the fireplace fittings and the lighting fixtures. Each slightly different, as hand-made things always are, but all blending together.

If I Were A Girl—

By JACK.

I WOULDN'T make myself conspicuous.

I wouldn't dress too loudly, talk too loudly or do anything in public to call attention to myself. If I had an irresistible urge to adorn myself in "high colors." I'd express it in the privacy of my room and confine linsen to white, pastel shades or crimson or violet purple.

I'd be sure that life was a sorry thing unless I could wear the latest thing in the form-fitting dress, and shoes pointed horses. I'd be sure to be the first out to be admired, and I'd be flattered to have passersby look at me twice and say, "Isn't she a dreamy dresser? But there's a big difference between a girl being looked at admiringly and being looked at disapprovingly because she is conspicuous as a circus parade.

If there's one thing that strikes terror into a man's soul and makes him look hopefully around for a manhole to slide into it's to go out with a girl who has everybody staring at her because of her conspicuous dress, her loud voice or her deafening laughter.

I could not answer him for an instant, for the possible consequences of his announced action appalled me. I could think of nothing so calculated to "throw a monkey wrench into the machinery" as Lillian's being so good, then Philip Veritsen's presence—and watchfulness—in the hotel which was to be the residence of our international "royal guests." Lillian's husband—meant to be with Prince George.

"I trust you agree with me," my employer went on tolly, when I did not answer him, "that I have the right to go to the hotel if I wish, and, of course, of only I'm said hastily. "And I'll have Mr. Underwood get in touch with you as soon as possible."

Plans for the Journey.

"Thank you so much," he said politely, and then I had turned away from the telephone wondering whether Dicky was still within hearing. Yes, he was, I discovered, and I went in search of Lillian, with the lively fear that this intrusion of Philip Veritsen into our problems would complicate matters sorely.

But to my surprise and relief Lillian was not at all disturbed when I found her and told her my news. Instead she laughed delightedly.

"The darling old billy goat," she said. "Harry'll give him a vote of thanks when he gets back. He's been worrying over having a third can-you never know that it may not break down. I'll call Mr. Underwood in in wonderful condition and he has had "it" gone over with a fine tooth comb ever since the invitation for this journey. And, 'it' means, Otto keeps the car, of course, and the official inauguration ride at any instant. I think Harry will get Philip Veritsen into our party—they will that work out in passengers."

He considered for a long minute, elbows on knees, chin cupped in palms, in the attitude so familiar to his intimates, she thought, and shocked mischievously.

"Above all things, our Philip takes to heart the fact that I'm not at all anxious to meddle in his affairs, but I'll have to bear his share of discomfort. Now, this arrangement of Harry's car—which the will drive, there will be Prince George, Otto and me, Phil Veritsen will house himself, you, Nell, and Princess Olina."

GOOD-NIGHT STORIES

By Max Trell

The China Plate People in a Sad Predicament.

MIL, Flor, Hanid, Tam and Knarf—the five little shadow-children with the turned-about names—finding themselves free to go wherever they pleased one cloudy day, went into the Chinese plate. Being shadows, it was very easy for them to go into it. If you want to know how to do likewise just ask your shadow. But you must be careful to ask in exactly the right way. You must talk without opening your mouth or making the slightest sound. The best time to do it is when all the lights are out and you are tucked snugly under your blankets.

On this particular day, as it happened, the shadow-children had hardly crossed the little bridge that laid over the brook in the centre of the Chinese plate when Ting-a-Ling, from they had met before, came running up to them greatly out of breath.

"What's the matter?" cried Hanid in alarm, for the poor Chinaman looked singularly ruffled.

"They're all—all—mixed up!" he gasped.

"Who are?" demanded Knarf.

"My friends," replied Ting-a-Ling, gradually catching his breath. "Please come with me at once. Perhaps you can help them out of their predicament. It's the most perplexing thing that ever happened. I don't know how they'll ever get themselves straightened out again."

"Please Come With Me At Once!"

"What happened" the shadow-children wanted to know.

"Come with me," pleaded Ting-a-Ling, "and I'll tell you as we go."

So they all hurried along with him down the path that led around the back of the cabinet.

"This is what happened," said Ting-a-Ling. "My friends, who are very careful, have spent the entire morning hunting for the end of a rainbow, which they had blended out in the middle of the woods.

"The rainbow somehow escaped them, but their legs became quite tired. On passing the pond they decided to remove their shoes and stockings and go wading. No sooner decided than done. In a few moments they were all standing knee-deep in the pond, when Knarf said Ting-a-Ling, "But see what happened. At length it drew near to the end of the rainbow, I decided to leave the pond. At this moment a most amazing difficulty presented itself. Can you imagine what this was?"

The shadow-children shook their heads.

"It was this," said Ting-a-Ling. "The water of the pond turned to ice and I found myself unable to move their feet. Now, how could they be in the pond, if I was into the pond, they would take their own feet with them?"

Ting-a-Ling and the shadow-children suddenly paused.

"How could they?" asked Tam. "Yes, how could they, if Ting-a-Ling walking on again. "How could they? That's what I'd like to know. You see, the child said would all over the pond. Hey, were they to know? but what happened? Why, they stayed with their neighbors!"

At this moment they reached the place where there they saw, astonished Ting-a-Ling.

There they were, indeed! There were about a dozen of them, all clustered in the centre of the pond.

"We're late, for dinner," they cried.

"They're very late, for dinner," said Ting-a-Ling to the shadow-children. As a result they are getting a cold. Can't you think of some way of making sure that they get their feet out of the pond?"

As the shadow-children tried to be helpful, especially the little Knarf, they sat down on a pebble at the edge of the pond and thought and thought and thought.

(Tomorrow: How the shadow-children helped the Chinese.)

A Fashion Model's Diary

By GRACE THORNCLIFFE

She Raves About a Sports Costume.

WELL, the boy friend is getting athletic and insisting that I join him. He's taking up tennis in a big way and that's all he thinks about. I guess I'll have to follow suit to remind him that I'm still on earth. He's been playing at tennis every afternoon and Saturday afternoons. And if the weather's inclement he plays indoors at the Armory. Well, I certainly never expected to be second fiddle to a tennis racquet and I don't expect to now.

And I'm not losing much time about it either. I've already registered for indoor lessons at the "Y," and I'm going for my first one tomorrow. The boy friend doesn't know it, but I'm not exactly a novice at this game. When I was a small miss of 14 and a lady of leisure—Gosh, the good old days!—I used to be a hot-shot tennis player myself. I haven't told the boy friend that I know anything at all about the game and I'm not going to. I guess I'll just volunteer to let him teach me some day, and then till show him what a mean racquet I can swing.

The way to keep your boy friends these days is to keep up with them and I refuse to be a tennis widow. Of course, I'll have to find out how well he plays before I let him think I'm in his class, but I'm better at the game than he is. That would be almost as bad as not being at all.

Of course, the reason why little Gracie is so enthusiastic about the game is that never before have there been displayed so many good looking sports costumes as there are this year. And I've got one all picked out for the shop. Just as soon as I feel that I'm good enough I'm going to get the B. F. to take me out some Sunday, and I'm going to be all dressed up for the occasion.

The dress I want is sleeveless, of course, and of yellow flat crepe. The skirt is sectional, with adorable inset-ted pleats. There's a darling belt of orange suede and a jacket that goes with the ensemble which is just a little longer than the usual half-jacket. I know I'll feel confident on any tennis court in this costume.

Words of The Wise

The sign of criticism is not distinguish what is essential in the work of a writer. It is not that light is needed, but that light is needed to illuminate a worthy object or purpose. Without aim, without duty, without end, what is the use of light? Light is shed on what we have to do, and on what we are. We are not conscious of our selves.

At The Theaters

DIX A "SUPER" IN SMALL PRODUCTION AS A YOUTH

When Richard Dix was playing football on a high school team in St. Paul, Minn., he got his first taste of the stage, the taste which ultimately brought him to success in celluloid dramatics.

The manager of a stock company in St. Paul was staging "Classmates" and he used several members of the school football team in the cast. Dix became a great actor, and subsequently left the University of Minnesota, where he had begun a course in medicine to take a job with a St. Paul stock company at $20 a week. His life was one of map hard ships in the theatrical world until he became a matinee idol with the Morosco Stock company in Los Angeles.

Shortly after that he was signed by Paramount and has since made 30 films for that organization. His latest picture, "Nothing But the Truth," which is his first all-talking film, comes to the Idaho theatre tomorrow for a run of 3 days run.

HEAVY STORMS IN SOUTHWEST CAUSE FLOODS

By United Press

Torrential rains continued throughout the southwest today, swelling the flood-waters which have caused hundreds of thousands dollars damage during the past five days. There has been no loss of life in the floods, residents of the affected districts receiving warning of the advancing waters in time to evacuate their homes.

The monotonous downpour of rain continued for five days, swelling creeks throughout Texas, Oklahoma and Kansas into roaring rivers. Buffalo Bayou, ordinarily a sluggish little stream at Houston, Texas, has become a threshing torrent, rising to a height of 43 feet above normal stage.

TIMBER SAVING ASKED IN MOVIE

State Film Shown Here With Movie of Livestock Team in Action at Show in Kansas

Reforestation and protection of timber was called was advocated last evening by Senator John Nolan, of Boise, in a short talk given after the showing of the Idaho state film at the high school.

"Let's plant all of Idaho land at present idle and let our children have a forest to cut over or burned, said the speaker. This forest can then be fixed on reforestation. Let the coming generations pay for it with their labor. At present the timber resources are being consumed faster than a hell-for-leather Indian can ride a pony and with about 20 years at the present rate the forests would be gone, and with them the watersheds that conserve Idaho's water for irrigation purposes.

The plan of reforestation calls for selective cutting of the trees, to the benefit of the mature trees and the leaving of the younger trees for future times.

"I have lived in Idaho 15 years," said Mr. Robertson. "When I came here the Snake river valley was called the Great American Desert. It was a desert without water and will again become a desert if the watersheds are not protected. The water sheds prevent erosion and thus keep the water from being heeded silt silt, which would soon fill up the huge irrigation dams. The forestry service is also making every effort to conserve the range and prevent overgrazing. Fire was shown by the film to be the most destructive force in the many dangers to the forests. Vivid pictures of past forest fires in Idaho were shown.

The film showed many of Idaho's virgin forests and beautiful scenic streams. The work of the forestry department in protecting the resources of fire was illustrated and some of Idaho's larger sawmills in operation were pictured.

Before the showing of the state film, there were shown motion pictures of the American Royal Livestock show at Kansas City, and pictures of the Twin Falls Rotary club judging team which took first place there. This team was comprised of John Freis, Carrol Baker and George Evans.

GLAD SHE DID

MISS FORTY YEARS: did you remember when I was 21 and you wanted to marry me and I refused?

FORMER ADMIRER: Yes, that was the happiest moment of my life.—Ole Luftige Kinke.

Mrs. Smoak: My dear, you've forgotten again that today is my birthday.

Will: Oh, listen, love, I know that I forget it, but that isn't a thing about you to remind me that you are a day older than you were a year ago.

Proves It Does.

Referring to that which is of great importance to every business man, Printer's Ink says:

Isn't it funny
That so many
Business men
Will get up in the morning
Clean their teeth with an advertised brush and advertised tooth paste,
Shave with an advertised razor,
Wash and shave with advertised soaps
Put on advertised underwear,
Advertised hose, garters, shirt, collar and shoes,
Sent themselves at the table
And eat advertised breakfast food and bread,
Put on an advertised hat and gloves,
Go to the station in an advertised motor car,
Give down tipters to employes who types on an advertised machine
Using advertised carbons,
Sign their letters with an advertised pen
Containing advertised ink,
And
Turn down a proposal to advertise on the ground
That
Advertising doesn't pay?

A merchant or salesman who thinks he can't learn anything new is standing in the way of his own success.

"I have observed," said Bill the other day, "that a good many of the people who boast of being 'air minded' still insist on keeping one foot on the ground."

Blessed are the good and ignorant. They don't feel under obligation to raise a bedroom window.

Another thing in favor of the prevailing styles, says Chain, is that it is absolutely impossible for any little girl to outgrow her shirts.

The man who lives the golden rule is every inch a king.

Oh, Mr. Hoover!

News item: The Hoover, chief usher at the White House, has been considerably embarrassed when persons phoning the executive mansion think he is the president.

The telephone rings.

Herbert Hoover: Go see who it is, Ike. If they want me tell 'em I'm in conference.

The Hoover, at the phone—Hello.

Feminine Voice: Hello, who is this?

He: This is Hoover, the Hoover.

Feminine Voice: Oh, Mr. Hoover! How fortunate that I should get you right on the phone, and so beautifully informal.

He—But this Hoover, the chief usher.

Voice—Don't apologize. Mr. Hoover I think it's just too perfectly quaint for you to come to the phone and call yourself chief usher. Do the cutest thing I ever heard of, too you are the chief usher of this country, aren't you?

He—But—but—I am trying to tell you—

Voice—Now, Mr. Hoover, don't be so modest. I know that you don't like to be praised.

He—But lady, this isn't Herbert Hoover, it's the Hoover talking to you.

Voice, indignantly—Well, why didn't you say so? It seems to me that our taxpayers should get some sort of service for what we pay for government, and not have to explain everything to a lot of ignoramuses, etc.
