DEBENTURE PLAN IS INCLUDED IN RELIEF MEASURE

Farm Bill Introduced in Senate Today; Herbert Hoover Silent on Plan

McNARY SAYS PLAN WILL BE PART OF MARKET BILL

Would Give Farmer Bounty of Half the Tariff Duty on Exported Products

WASHINGTON, April 18 (UP)—The export debenture plan which would give the farmer a bounty of half the tariff duty on his exported products was included in the farm relief bill introduced in the senate agriculture committee.

While President Hoover has been silent on the plan and the house has ignored it, McNary has revealed that his committee has prepared to adopt it in the administration's general cooperative marketing bill.

The remainder of the bill as introduced varies but little from the bill brought up for consideration in the house today. Its chief difference is that it would authorize a federal farm board of 12 members while the house would provide a board of six members.

It follows the recommendations of the presidents message in authorizing the board to appoint a revolving fund of $500,00,000. The board would lend necessary sums to cooperative marketing organizations and a stabilization corporation, $325,000,000 for the capital stock of the stabilization corporation, $375,000,000 if necessary for buying and storing surpluses, $50,000,000 to cooperatives for acquiring storage and other facilities, $25,000,000 to enable cooperatives to advance its members up to 85 per cent of the market value of commodities when sold and $25,000,000 for insurance. These loans would bear four per cent interest.

The debenture amendment authorizes the board to instruct the secretary of the treasury to issue export debentures whenever it sees fit. The debenture would be a certificate, the value of which would amount to one-half the rate of duty in effect upon any given commodity except cotton, upon which the debenture rate is set by the bill at 2 cents a pound.

It would be issued to any farmer, cooperative or exporter, and its validity would be conditioned upon the amount of the product being exported for instance, a farmer exporting a bushel of wheat would receive a debenture certificate for 21 cents which is half of the present duty on wheat.

The certificate would be redeemable, by any collector of customs in payment of duties on products imported by the bearer.

Rumors Insist Sinclair Will Lose Oil Position

NEW YORK, April 18 (UP)—Reports persisted in financial circles today that Harry F. Sinclair, chief of the Sinclair Consolidated Oil Corporation.

The rumor was without verification from any source close to Sinclair. Martin W. Littleton, the oil man's attorney, said Sinclair's position in the corporation had not his post, control of Sinclair Consolidated publicly would decide future plans of his client.

Wall street also heard rumors that Col. Robert W. Stewart, recently displaced as chairman of the board of Standard Oil of Indiana, would be elected to Sinclair's post, but Elisha Walker of Walker & Co., a power in Sinclair Consolidated, said:

"I have heard nothing about it and I do not believe it is true."

Last month it was reported that associates of Stewart were organizing an oil concern and would ask him to accept the presidency or chairmanship of the board.

HOLLYWOOD FILM COLONY STIRRED BY NEW STORIES

Betty Compson and James Cruze Reunited; Screen Juvenile Actor is Divorced

HOLLYWOOD, April 18 (UP)—Divorce, reconciliations, an actress' mysterious injury and the nocturnal pranks of one of the screen's serious men, added new fodder to the film colony's chatter-box today.

Following closely upon the reconciliations which reunited Betty Compson and her director husband, James Cruze, and Jim Tully, novelist, and his estranged wife, Margaret Myers Tully, was the divorce granted Mrs. Marion James from C. Gardner James, screen juvenile. Mrs. James, a daughter of Stuart Blackton, producer, charged cruelty and was granted $50 a month alimony.

In Santa Monica hospital, Mary Duncan, stage and screen actress, sought to clear the mystery surrounding the injuries which she first said she received in escaping from a "stranger" and later ascribed to a fall from her own automobile. Miss Duncan's injuries were not serious but her reports and police conflicted. Her latest statement did not agree with her early claims that she was escaping at a tryst from a strange motorist when her gasoline broke down. Development of the week was the court

AIRPLANES WILL BE CHEAPER IN FUTURE, BELIEF

Expert Foresees Drop in Price and Also Great Increase in Number Used in the Future

ST. LOUIS, April 18 (UP)—Two leaders in the field of transportation, William B. Stout, Detroit airplane designer, and W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania railroad, predicted today that within five years there will be 100,000 airplanes in the United States and that New York and San Francisco will be only 16 hours distant by rail and plane.

"In less than five years," Stout said, "I expect the number of small private planes in use, now 5,000, will have increased to 100,000. I expect production to double every year for the next four years. In contrast to the 5,000 planes built last year, I know that 10,000 to 15,000 were built this year."

Stout anticipates that planes which now sell for $2,500 to $25,000 "will be a cheap as $1,500 in five years and eventually even cheaper."

The Pennsylvania railroad official said, is now testing ten planes with which it expects soon to inaugurate 24 hour air-rail service from coast to coast, a saving of two days traveling time.

Hunters Kill Many Predatory Animals

PHOENIX, Ariz., April 18 (UP)—Federal and state hunters killed 74 mountain lions during the quarter ending March 31, according to figures released here today. In addition, the hunters efforts have netted 350 coyotes, 104 bobcats and 53 foxes, the report showed.

Individual prowess in the hunt was claimed by Carl Leeson, whose record shows a bag of 11 lions. William Caste, of the Seligman-Kingman district, accounted for 40 coyotes and bobcats, and three lions.

MOBILIZE AGAINST FRUIT FLY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 18 (UP)—A pestiferous little fly—the Mediterranean fruit fly—caused mobilization of four national guard companies today for fruit inspection duty in three Florida counties, and a quarantine by the state of Georgia on all bulk shipments of citrus fruit from Florida.

LEWISTON BANK IS RELIEVED OF $2,000 IN CASH

SPOKANE, Wash., April 18 (UP)—Sheriffs of two states were out on the trail of a bandit who walked into the Lewiston, Idaho, national bank today, shoved a note under the cashier's window and escaped with $2000 in currency.

The bandit, about 30 years old and roughly dressed, walked quickly from the bank, met a companion, commandeered a taxicab and drove nearly to Pomeroy, Wash., before abandoning the cab and stealing a farmer's automobile.

Acting on a report that they headed this way Sheriff Brower dispatched deputies to guard all bridge crossings in Spokane, while sheriffs of Idaho, and of Garfield and Asotin counties in Washington joined the search.

George Anderson, paying teller who was robbed, admitted later that he was so frightened he did not know which way the bandit, the robber had left the bank.

Aviator Rushes Serum To Aid Poison Victims

SALIDA, Colo., April 18 (UP)—Two victims of ptomaine poisoning were kept alive at this Gunnison county hospital today by liberal injections of anti-toxin serum, rushed here from Denver in an airplane which was the first ever to land in this mountain town, a mile and a half above sea level.

The victims were Louis Corsi, quarry worker, and his small son, Tommy. The other Corsi children, John, 9, and Elizabeth, 7, succumbed to the poisoning yesterday. The family was believed to have been poisoned by sausage and pickles, home-canned by the old-pack method.

The four cases were not reported until late yesterday. The first fatality came last Friday.

PARKER BRANIN WRITES THIRTY TO LAST STORY

City Editor of Idaho Evening Times Dies at Hospital In City Today

DEATH RESULTED FROM AUTO ACCIDENT SUNDAY

Father is Present at Time of Passing; Is Survived By Widow; Friends

Parker E. Branin, city editor of the Idaho Evening Times, died this morning at 9:30 at the Twin Falls county general hospital as a result of complications that ensued after an automobile accident on the Old Oregon Trail north of Filer Sunday evening. His father, Charles E. Branin, day editor of the Associated Press bureau at Portland, was with his son when death came.

A major surgical operation was performed at the hospital Tuesday night as soon as definite diagnosis of internal injuries had been made. He rallied temporarily after the operation, but complications developed that proved too much for his strength, notwithstanding the courageous fight he made to recover.

Parker Edwards Branin was born in Portland, Oregon, July 27, 1903 and was just 25 years old at the time of his death. He attended the Portland public schools and for three years was a student in the school of journalism at University of Oregon. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity.

During boyhood days and later the sea had had an appeal for him that caused him to ship before the mast. He made a number of trips one of which took him to the Orient where he was stationed in China and Japan and other eastern countries for several months.

Following his work in the university he served on the news staffs of the Salem Statesman, the Morning Astorian at Astoria, Oregon, and the Pendleton East Oregonian. When the Evening Times was purchased last September by a group of Oregon newspaper men, Mr. Branin was transferred to Twin Falls to be associate editor of this paper in charge of local news gathering.

His marriage to Miss Mildred West of Salem, Oregon, was solemnized August 25, 1926. Mrs. Branin survives him. She was with her husband in the accident that resulted in his death. The shock that she suffered in the accident was aggravated by the knowledge of the serious condition of her husband. Other relatives surviving are his father, brother Paul, student at University of Oregon, his step-mother and two step-sisters.

Considering his youth, Mr. Branin had figured in many big news breaks, but his outstanding contribution was the break he scored when his flash from Pendleton, Oregon, was sent that Will Hulett was the winner of the Pendleton Round-Up bronco riding contest.

BRITISH LEADER REVIEWS WORK OF GOVERNMENT

Premier Baldwin Tells Big Gathering of the Conservative Party's Accomplishments

LONDON, April 18 (UP)—Premier Stanley Baldwin predicted today that the conservative government would obtain a majority in the general election at the end of May.

Baldwin opened the conservative campaign with a speech to a cheering audience that packed Drury Lane theater.

The premier replied to the liberal and labor election programs with an exhaustive review of the government's accomplishments and an outline of its program for the future. He devoted his attention mainly to domestic problems of agriculture, industry and unemployment. Speaking for the conservative party's efforts in behalf of industry, he reiterated that the conservative party is pledged not to introduce a protective tariff.

Baldwin's audience was largely composed of conservatives, including all of every member of the cabinet and most of the government officials.

He insisted that the government's unemployment and industrial policy was not attacked by the opposition, had been justified.

"We are recovering our competitive power," he said of the country's general condition. "Our trade is improving and providing there is no calamity of any kind in any way of a sudden, general deterioration of the industrial policy of the country, that progress will be maintained and unemployment will continue to fall."

Reviewing the government's policy Baldwin claimed that the conservatives have reduced unemployment, improved trade, lowered the cost of living, increased permanent employment through its policy of "safeguarding" industries, and improved housing conditions.

BANDITS STILL LOOSING

OAKLAND, Cal., April 18 (UP)—Oakland's two "mercurial" bandits who escaped with more than $12,000 from a branch bank here, were still listed as "missing" on police records today.

FEDERAL PLANE BOMBS HANGOUT OF REBEL ARMY

Bombardment is First to Take Place in Nogales Since Start of Revolution

AIRCRAFT THOUGHT TO BE FROM SONORA BASE

Government Troops Hope to Engage Enemy Soon in the Final Battle

NOGALES, Ariz., April 18 (UP)—A federal airplane dropped bombs on the rebel garrison at Nogales, Sonora, Mexico, today.

The bombardment was the first in Nogales since the start of the present revolution. The raiding craft apparently came from the federal base at Nogales, Sonora.

No one was injured and no property damage was done by the bomb although one of them struck only a few yards from the headquarters of Gen. G. Escobar, supreme commander of the revolution.

Nearly all of Mexico's organized federal forces were advancing toward Sonora today in the hope of smashing the rebels in the final battle of the current insurrection, it was reported.

Minister of War Calles occupied San Blas, Sinaloa after the rebel evacuation and took personal command of the federal army in its pursuit of the rebels in their northward retreat. Federal aviators reported that the rebel retreat was slow, with them taking out the rear guard was only 70 miles ahead of the federal troops.

Calles ordered Gen. Almazan, who was in charge of the successful federal operations before Juarez and Durango, to make a forced march from Chihuahua to Sonora and attack the rebels. Calles increased Almazan's command from 5000 troops to 20,000, indicating that he expected Almazan to engage the insurgents in what looked to federal officials as the last stand of the revolution.

Government officials said there was general discontent in the rebel army, particularly among the junior officers.

Irish Free State Is Soon to Hear the Sound Movies

DUBLIN, April 18 (UP)—The "talking movies" soon will appear in the Irish Free State to add to the troubles of the cinema, it was revealed today. Dail Eireann would be sought to regulate them.

The free state's censorship committee, just settling back comfortably, aware of the privilege which let the prettiest pictures for Irish eyes, was shaken rudely when it received a call upon for recommendations for Irish control.

The committee found, when it glanced over the censorship bill now pending that the talkies will be shown in the free state, that no matter how objectionable the words may be the picture cannot be barred from the country provided the pictures do not violate present laws.

One Killed, Two Hurt, in Looting Of Indiana Bank

Machine Gun Used by Four Bandits Who Loot Financial Institution at Columbia City; Robbers Take all Money in Sight and Repulse Officers at Door; Escape

COLUMBIA CITY, Ind., April 18 (UP)—One woman was killed and Sheriff J. M. Haynes and another woman were wounded today when four bandits, one of them carrying a machine gun, robbed the Columbia City State Bank.

Ralph E. Ferry, pressed a burglar alarm when the bandits entered the bank, summoning Sheriff Haynes and his deputies from their headquarters across the street. The sheriff was shot in the chin as he ran into the bank lobby.

A stray bullet from the machine gun which had been trained on the deputies killed Mrs. J. Fred Hinder, who lived in a second story apartment opposite the bank.

The woman who was wounded in the fusillade disappeared in the excitement attending the holdup and could not be found.

The sheriff and his deputies fell back as the machine gun went into action aimed them and the bandits escaped in an automobile which had been waiting for them at the curb.

Before the arrival of the sheriff and his men, the bandits had time to subdue Cashier Ferry, Elmer Bunyo, an employee, and several customers, forcing them to line up facing a wall.

The robbers then took all the money in sight, an amount which the bank officials were not able to estimate, and started for the door. There they met and repulsed the officers.

Melvin Kyler, bank custodian, was returning from lunch when he saw the bandits run from the bank and enter their automobile. He ran after the car, emptying his revolver as he ran, but was not certain that any of his bullets took effect.

PASSENGER AIR ROUTE PLANNED

Air Service Between Portland, Salt Lake City and Boise Will Be Started August 1

BOISE, Idaho, April 17 (UP)—The inauguration of an airplane passenger service between Portland, Ore., and Salt Lake City, Aug. 1, was announced today by Walter T. Varney, president of the Varney air mail service.

The time required for the flight was estimated at seven and one-half hours, which will cut twenty-four hours from the present train schedule. Eastbound plane will leave Portland at 8:30 a. m., arriving at Salt Lake 4 p. m., including the time required for refueling and inspection at Boise. The westbound plane will leave Salt Lake at 9 a. m., arriving at Portland at 4:30 p. m., the announcement said.

Three tri-motored Fokkers, costing approximately $85,000 each, equipped with 525 horse power motors will be used, Varney said. These planes will be capable of carrying fourteen passengers who will enjoy all the luxuries of modern Pullman cars.

The cabine will be sun proof, Varney said, and the planes will have a cruising speed of 125 miles an hour. Each plane will be manned by two pilots, and equipped with radio apparatus.

Varney said the inauguration of this service would be beneficial to business men due to the time saved over the rail schedule. It will be more attractive to tourists because of the scenic nature of the country the new route will follow.

From Pasco to Portland the course will follow the Columbia river, keeping close to the old Oregon trail a greater part of the way. Nearly all the route from Salt Lake will be unfenced.

Rates at present are undecided, Varney said, but the hope of giving railroads direct competition was entertained.

CLEVELAND WOMAN ADMITS SETTING HUSBAND ON FIRE

CLEVELAND, April 18 (UP)—Paris Teasley, 40, was near death here today and his wife, Anna, 28, was held by police charged with making her husband with gasoline and setting him afire.

Mrs. Teasley admitted to police she reprimanded her husband for coming home late last night. She said she struck her and threatened to kill her.

She said she picked up a can containing a gallon of gasoline, tossed it over her husband and set it afire with a lighted piece of paper.

Penniless Negro Walks 22 Miles for Jury Service

ELGIN, Ill., April 18 (UP)—A tired, dusty negro limped into the municipal courthouse today. Judge Frank E. Shopen as the court clerk was preparing to list an absent "John Edwards," called for jury service.

"Here I um, sir," the negro said.

Judge Shopen frowned.

"Boy, you know you're an hour late," he asked.

"Your honor," Edwards replied, approaching the bar, "I apologize for being late. I tried hard to be on time. I started at 3 o'clock this morning and I came those 22 miles on foot, walking from Algonquin as fast as I could."

"How did you come?" Judge Shopen asked.

"I walked, your honor. I've been out of work for a long time, and I didn't have ten cents for the trolley car."

"Edwards, you are a good citizen. I want to shake your hand.

And as he shook hands with the tardy juryman, Judge Shopen instructed his clerk to pay Edwards the $4.20 mileage mentioned. Edwards drove $75 cash from, exploring towns, and if, for all time, I live to exceed the negro and Edwards applied for jury service. "I'm going to be a juror," he said.

AMARILLO, Tex., April 18 (UP) Gene Howe, Hearst-Amarillo editor, has come into his own, Eden or Colonel Charles Augustus Lindbergh, has come into his own at Amarillo.

Editor Gene started in on Lindbergh several months ago. Amarillo was dumbfounded.

Now, because editor Howe said what he thought about Mary Garden and her Chicago opera company, Amarillo business men, one thousand strong, are going to eat dinner at the Hotel Amarillo dinner ever given in the cow country of west Texas.

Furthermore, according to Mayor Ernest Thompson, the 1c Amarillo business men who signed the $10,000 guarantee for the Chicago grand opera company are going to pay the amount, claiming the goods was not delivered as described."

"We are going to keep Gene here," Mayor Thompson said. "At the dinner we are going to tell him just how much we think of him, and also that we will increase our advertising with him if he will stay here with us."

INDIAN-SKIPPER LIKES LOOKS OF ROOKIE FIELDER

Earl Averill Already Has Two Home Runs to His Credit; Manager is Well Pleased

By FRANK GIBBS

United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, April 18 (UP)—The Cards usually are stacked against the debut of the high-priced rookie in baseball. Once in a dog's age, the rookie turns the tables and makes good from the start.

The latter is true of Earl Averill, who hails from far off Snohomish, Wash., and now plays in the outfield for the Cleveland Indians. In two games, Averill is reputed to have cost the Cleveland club $45,000, has two home runs to his credit—both of them healthy belts over the right field wall of the Indians' home grounds.

Earl is happy as a kid with a new toy, and Manager Roger Peckinpaugh is feet exactly grieving over the situation. The Indians need all the help they can get this season and if Averill lives up to his early promise the Cleveland club may have a look at the first division—now and then.

Ty Cobb broke in with a bang, when he came to the majors more than a score of years ago, and others have done so, but it is not on record that a rookie with the eyes of the home town fans fixed critically upon him has come through heretofore with a homer a day for his first two days in fast company.

"I hope I won't get a swelled head," said Averill to the United Press last night. "I've got sense enough to know it's far too early to make any predictions of what I will do in the big leagues.

"I'm tickled to death over my good beginning, and I'm going to keep right on trying.

"Out in the Pacific Coast league I usually hit 25 or 30 homers a season, but the parks are smaller out there than here.

"Anyhow, I'm ahead of Babe Ruth, for the moment."

The new Cleveland find weighs only 160 and is six feet tall. His regular bat weighs but 40½ ounces, but occasionally he goes up to the plate swinging one of 48 ounces.

Averill came to Cleveland from the San Francisco club in the Pacific Coast league—1928 champions—in 130 games last season he made 270 hits, including 56 home runs, but none made the impression at his circuit clouting during the past two days. On his first trip to the plate on Tuesday Earl knocked the ball over the fence. Yesterday his homer came in the 11th inning.

He's the best looking youngster to come up in a long time, Manager Peckinpaugh told the United Press today. He's just a real good hitter. We won't say anything about his home run record for a while yet, but I feel sure Averill is going to make good.

FIGHT RESULTS LAST NIGHT

(By United Press)

PARIS, April 18 (UP)—Spider Pladner, French flyweight, is a 5 to 2 favorite over Frankie Genaro of New York for their 15-round return match at the Velodrome d'Hiver tonight.

NEW YORK, April 18 (UP)—One of the most promising bouts arranged for this spring is that between Kid Chocolate of Cuba and Fidel Labarba, former flyweight champion, which will be held at the New York coliseum May 21.

Bobby Graham, Erie bantam, who was disqualified for fouling Chocolate last week, is under indefinite suspension.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., April 18 (UP)—Between Indian Jim Climstock of Oklahoma, and Paul Jones of California, Climstock's legs had the better body scissors grip in a match here last night. Just 16 minutes and 44 seconds after the bout began Climstock's legs found Jones' middle and that was the end. Roy Steel, Seattle, defeated Hans Bauern, Germany.

SAN FRANCISCO, April 18 (UP)—Jimmy Patterson, a hard hitting local welterweight, came from behind in the sixth round of a scheduled 10 round affair here last night to knock out Oscar Wright of Seattle.

OAKLAND, Cal., April 18 (UP)—Jimmy Duffy, veteran Oakland welterweight, had too much class for Johnny Murray of Santa Rosa, and their scheduled 10 round bout was stopped in the second canto. Murray hit the canvas three times before Referee Bobby Johnson interceded.

Watching The Scoreboard

Yesterday's hero—Rogers Hornsby, who weathered a storm of criticism for his "failure" to star at bat in the opening game of the season and provided the big punch in the victory of the Chicago Cubs over the Pittsburgh Pirates with a home run with the bases filled in the eighth inning. Hack Wilson made four hits as the Cubs supporting good pitching by Malone, won 13 to 2.

The presence of President Hoover and a distinguished gathering of notables could not save the Washington Senators from a 12 to 4 defeat at the hands of the Philadelphia Athletics. Foxx starred at bat.

The Cincinnati Reds have started right in after a new double play record, making good use of three double killings to beat the Cardinals 5 to 3. Last year the Reds made 194 double plays to set a record. Pete Donohue, veteran pitcher, held the National league champions safe while his mates pounded out their 12th victory.

George Ehle, rehabilitated hurler, pitched his new club the Tigers, to a 15 to 3 victory over his former team mates, the Indians. Earl Averill, high priced rookie, made his second homer in two days.

Alvin Crowder, leading American league pitcher of 1928, kept Chicago's hits scattered and the St. Louis Browns made it two straight over the White Sox, 5 to 3.

Rain once more prevented opening games in New York, Philadelphia, and Boston, with better weather prospects for today.

If the New York Giants succeed in getting started at Philadelphia this afternoon they will be without a regular second baseman and may have to use Pat Crawford, a rookie first baseman, at the keystone sack. Andy Reese, regular second sacker, wrenched his back yesterday. Andy Cohen is laid up with a bad leg, and Mel Ott is needed in the outfield.

Baseball League Planned Here for Months in Summer

Twin Falls may have baseball this summer, according to W. W. Frantz, who is working on a plan to have a town team from this city entered in a league of this section of the country. A twilight league may be organized here with the best players to form the team to represent the city in the league.

Several nearby towns have already expressed their willingness to organize teams for the league, Burley and Declo are planning a league for that county and it is possible that the league may be expanded to include Twin Falls and other towns. Last year there was an inland league on the north side and teams of that league may combine with the others to make one good strong league in this part of the south central Idaho.

Ram Edward Hickman, the Call board murderer of Little Marian Parker had been captured. It was Mr. Branin who secured the first authentic account of Hickman's flight in an interview in the city jail at Pendleton that lasted several hours.

His residence in Twin Falls dated from early in September, 1928, a little more than seven months and during that brief period he had come to count a great many friends in this community.

Definite arrangements for funeral services have not yet been completed, but tentative plans are that the remains will be forwarded to Portland for services and interment. The departure from Twin Falls probably will be made Friday.

Film Color Process Makes Man Wealthy

NEW YORK, April 18 (UP)—The story of how $10,000 here and nine years ago has developed into a $2,500,000 project was revealed by William Travers Jerome was when the deal by accident and confirmed as a gamble.

It is the story of Technicolor, the process by which motion pictures are given the colored film headpiece.

Jerome said he became interested in the project when a client came to him several years ago and inquired if there was enough merit in the colored film invention to justify an investment. The client went away to make his investment, but Jerome became interested and, together with several friends, put $10,000 into the business.

They went into it purely as a gamble, Jerome said, and believed they could securely establish the business they had spent $4,000,000.

The advent of talking motion pictures enhanced the value of their investment.

Today there are 500,000 shares of stock in the corporation outstanding. It was selling over the counter yesterday at between $41 and $45 a share, giving it an approximate value of about $22,000,000.

Daily Poem

"THERE ARE SUCH WEARY LITTLE LINES"

By Margaret E. Sangster. From a delightful book of verses entitled "Prose Roads," published by Frank F. Lovell Bible House, New York. The author has long been a member of the editorial staff of the Christian Herald.

There are such weary little lines about the mouth of you,
Such tragic little matchless lines—they mock at dreams come true,
And twist your line when you would smile, until all joy is dead,
And I, who want to laugh with you, am fain to weep instead!

There are such dreary little lines about the mouth of you,
They make me want to whisper that summer sky is blue,
And the rain is like a lance of silver through the air,
And that the flowers in the lane are growing tall and fair!

There are such tired little lines about the mouth of you—
As if you thought that life was cold and loving friends were few.
They are such lonely little lines that I, some day,
Will creep close to you in the dusk, and kiss them quite away!

A CAUSE AND AN EFFECT

STRANGE are the tales that are told in the divorce courts. Some of them are tragic, some of them are comic and all of them are instructive.

Into the courts at Lawrence, Mass., the other day there came a woman from the nearby city of Lynn, asking a divorce from the helpmeet who had deserted her several years previous. She told a moving story.

They had been happily married, she said, for eight years. During that time they had had no more quarrels than fall to the lot of most comfortably married people. There had never been any real trouble, and no one had ever said a word about a separation.

Then, one day, came catastrophe, unlooked for and unexplainable.

A heavy truck happened to pass by the house. Lumbering over the uneven pavement, it made the building shake. The kitchen stovepipe, being somewhat insecure, was jarred loose. It came down—to fall squarely on the head of the unsuspecting husband, taking his ease in a chair below.

Instantly the man sprang up in a rage.

"This," he cried, "is the end!"

And forthwith he put on his hat and coat and dashed out of the house. And his wife has not seen or heard from him to this day.

It takes all kinds of people to make a world, and it takes all kinds of things to wreck a marriage; but surely this affair is unique. There is such an utter lack of connection between being accidentally hit on the head by a falling stovepipe and deserting one's wife that the actions of this Massachusetts gentleman are more than ordinarily interesting. One has a feeling that the husband, if he could be found, could tell a story that would make the whole business a lot clearer. Beyond doubt he could make cause and effect seem more closely related.

Probably the gentleman had been suffering in silence for a long time. It is easy to picture him, choking down his dissatisfaction, year after year, keeping his mouth shut when he felt impelled to make a protest, curbing a mad desire for escape, pretending a serenity that he did not feel—until, finally, an unexpected whack on the head, which added insult to injury by making him look slightly ridiculous as well as hurting him, snapped the long chain and ended all of his repressions before he knew what was happening.

Things like that happen oftener than we think. It was the last straw, according to the proverb, that broke the camel's back; and frequently it is some little, apparently meaningless event that touches off an explosion that had been generating, all unknown, for years.

To ascend from domestic difficulties to a parallel in international affairs; you might recall that a pistol shot fired by a half-crazed student in an obscure Austrian town sent the whole world headlong into war.

BOOTLEGGING DOESN'T PAY

THE bootlegger, as everybody knows, makes a lot of money. If he is energetic and lucky, he can become a millionaire in a short time.

But don't be in too big a hurry to envy him. The job, it seems, has its drawbacks.

In Kansas City one of the most prominent bootleggers was Frank De Mayo. He was arrested, eventually, and brought to trial. Four times he won a disagreement; it looked as if he never could be convicted. But one day recently he went to court, pleaded guilty and took a sentence to the penitentiary.

Why? Because, he says, bootlegging doesn't pay. De Mayo is very rich, but the uncertainties, dangers and constant worry of the trade counterbalance his big income.

"You can't beat this game," he says. "I want to do my time and be a free man. No more bootlegging for me."

SPEED OF THE PLANE

THE advantages of aerial travel are strikingly demonstrated by the action of David S. Ingalls, assistant secretary of the navy in charge of aeronautics, who commutes, week-ends, from Washington to his home in Cleveland.

Flying his own plane, Ingalls is able to reach his Cleveland home in less than three hours from the time he leaves Washington. When he closes his desk Saturday noon he jumps in his plane and gets to the Ohio city in plenty of time for dinner. Then he has Saturday night and all day Sunday and Sunday night at his home, taking off at 7 o'clock Monday morning and getting back to the capital in ample time to begin the new week's work.

The speed which the airplane gives is seldom better exemplified than in Ingalls's case. With the example before them, how long will it be before business men generally begin to follow suit?

NOT SO VERY FUNNY

THE homecoming of young Tom Heflin, Jr., has stirred many citizens to a good deal of mirth. The young man's hilarious arrival in New York, his eagerness to see Al Smith and "tell him there's no hard feeling," and the contrast between these actions and his father's record as a bitter anti-Smith dry, have taken on a humorous aspect in a great many minds.

Really, though, there isn't anything so screamingly funny about it. The spectacle of a much-loved son coming home to his father intoxicated never was really amusing. The presence of the eighteenth amendment in our constitution is largely due, no doubt, to scenes just such as that.

However much you may disagree with Senator Heflin's public record, it is hard not to sympathize with him right now.

"The American Legion is the greatest, the most powerful organization in the country today."—John G. Sargent, former attorney general. (Outlook.)

SINCLAIR, JAILBIRD

(Pendleton East Oregonian)

Decision of the United States supreme court that Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator, must serve his sentence of three months in jail is something of a windfall to the doves of bolshevism which are being administered to the country by revolutionary quacks.

Sinclair is a very wealthy man and it too frequently happens that malefactors of great wealth escape the penalties of the law. At least it seems that way, and those radicals who would overthrow our system of government are quick to seize upon such instances as ammunition for their cause.

The whole world knows that Sinclair was guilty of corrupting high public officials for the enrichment of his own purse. The supreme court has already branded as a fraud the negotiations through which he secured the leases to the Teapot Dome oil fields and ordered the leases cancelled. But one of the conspirators in the great oil scandals had suffered only punishment except in pocket and reputation. Juries stood between Sinclair, Fall and Doheny and their just deserts. Blackmer and O'Neil left the country and were never brought back.

Sinclair took refuge behind his bank roll and, thus fortified, felt secure. He flouted the authority of the United States senate when it sought to compel him to testify. He was accused of tampering with the jury that was to pass judgment upon him. The senate had him indicted. He was convicted of contempt and sentenced to three months in jail. He appealed again to the highest tribunal in the country and that court has sustained the lower court. He must serve his sentence.

Three months is not a long sentence. Men who have stolen only food for their families have gone to prison for a longer time, but it is a victory, for justice that the moneybags of this despoiler could not save him from jail. It restores respect for the courts and the law. If Fall and Doheny could be sent along with him to keep him company in his cell, then the American public feel that a proper ending had been written to a sordid tale and point with pride to their lot as convincing evidence that our law is no respecter of persons.

"CONQUEST"

BASED ON THE CANDLE IN THE WIND

by MARY IMLAY TAYLOR

Copyright 1929, Warner Bros. Pictures Inc.

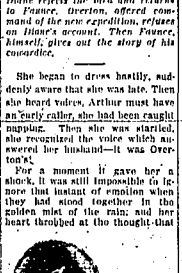
"CONQUEST," starring Monte Blue, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

On an Antarctic expedition Simon Overton is lost. His friend, Arthur Fraunce, returns and proposes to Diane, Herford, whom both loved, and marries her. Fraunce arranges another expedition. Then Overton returns and inadvertently reveals his love to Diane and part of the true story. Overton wants to conceal Fraunce's cowardice for Diane's sake. Torturing her by this thought, Fraunce confesses to Diane that he became panic-stricken and deserted Overton to save himself. Diane's father arranges a divorce and then Diane rejects the idea and returns to Fraunce. Overton, offered command of the new expedition, refuses on Diane's account. Then Fraunce, himself, gives out the story of his cowardice.

She began to dress hastily, suddenly aware that she was late. Then she heard voices. Arthur must have an early caller, she had been caught napping. Then she was startled, she recognized the voice which answered her husband—it was Overton's!

For a moment it gave her a shock. It was still impossible to ignore that instant of emotion when they had stood together in the golden mist of the rain; and her heart throbbed at the thought that



He has faced the terror of ice and snow.

Overton must have believed that she had left her husband only for him.

Now something had changed in her heart, or a new and deeper emotion, an instinct as old as the world, had stirred within her.

She had taken a step toward the door and stopped, arrested by the thought that the two men might have something to say to each other about Arthur's confession that they would not want her to hear.

She was still standing there, when there was a soft knock at the door and Fraunce entered. He came in quietly, and closed the door behind him.

"Diane," he said in a low voice, "Overton is here. He's come to tell me something which seems—well, it seems almost unbelievable after yesterday——" he paused and his flush deepened, but his eyes held hers steadily. "He's been sent—by the very men to whom I contemned yesterday—to offer me the supreme command of the expedition. He has finally refused it."

For a moment Diane was unable to speak. The thought that the chance had come to him—come at the moment when she had seemed to foresee it—sent a thrill of joy through her. With a half groping gesture she put out her hand and Fraunce took it, holding it close.

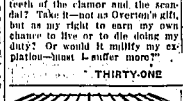
"There's one thing more, Diane," he said softly. "Overton has told the newspaper men that he asked me to go, that he's not strong enough yet to assume command of an expedition. He wants to convince them that my conduct was not criminal, that he faced the terrors of ice and snow and he knows—as I do—the terrible chance that both might be lost when either could be saved. He wants them to understand that we still stand as friends, that he—he hasn't condemned me as the papers did last night. He's done again the noble thing the expedition is to be mine, the chance is to be mine—to atone you—" his voice broke a little, but he smiled—"that your husband is no longer a coward, that he'd rather die than to fail you again!"

Still she said nothing, but her hand quivered in his and he saw that her dark lashes were wet with tears. He drew her slightly to the window, looking into her beautiful downcast face.

"I came up ask you," he said quietly, "I came to ask you, then, if I should take the command—or after I gave up, take it in the teeth of the clamor and the scandal? Take it—not as Overton's gift, but as my right to earn my own chance to live or to die doing my duty? Or would it mollify my expiation—hurt I suffer more?"

THE END

THIRTY-ONE



PAUL REVERE'S RIDE

Listen, my children, and you shall hear
Of the midnight ride of Paul Revere,
On the eighteenth of April, in seventy-five;
Who remembers that famous day and year.

He said to his friend, "If the British march
By land or sea from the town tonight
Hang a lantern aloft in the belfry arch
Of the North Church tower, as a signal light—
One if by land, and two if by sea;
And I on the opposite shore shall be,
Ready to ride and spread the alarm
Through every Middlesex village and farm—
For the country folk to be up and to arm."

* * *

So through the night rode Paul Revere;
And so through the night went his cry of alarm
To every Middlesex village and farm—
A cry of defiance and not of fear,
A voice in the darkness, a knock

Again her hand quivered in his, but this time she lifted her eyes to his, and he saw in them that new and exquisite content, the calm tranquility which not even her fears could veil.

"I want you to go," she replied softly. "I want it—because I have faith in you, Arthur. I know that this time there is no power on earth that can make you fail!" And in the days that followed, days in which the expedition was briefly delayed while Fraunce resumed his duties, he wrote to Gerry. Much as he wanted Diane to go with him, he began to fear the hardships for her. Two days before the ship sailed he received a letter from the doctor, and Diane received one from her father.

The sight of his handwriting gave her a shock of mingled fear and pleasure. Had he written to quarrel with her? It was not like him, there was always too much finality about his rages. Or had he relented? Her cheek reddened, but her eyes softened, after all. It was her father's way to do violent things violently. She opened the letter.

"Dear Diane," the judge wrote; "Gerry has told me all that your husband has written to him about you. Gerry and I are of one mind, we can't bear to have you face those hardships now. I said I'd disown you. I've tried it, I can't, you're all I've got! I know how you feel. Gerry well, I'll forgive him, too. I'm down, I'm an old bear alone in the world. Will you come now, Diane, come to your old father?"

The letter rustled in her hands she stood holding it and looking out into the street.

Fraunce rose from the table, where he had read his letter, and came over to her side.

"Diane," he said gently, "I wrote to Gerry, I told him. I've been afraid the hardships were too great for you. Here's his answer. He admits the hardships, but he says you can face them if you will. You're young and strong."

Diane turned quietly and gave him her father's letter. She did not look at him while he read it for she knew he had suffered much at her father's hands, that she had been guilty of setting her father against him. For the first time since that moment of confidence, of complete reunion, she dreaded to look at him. Presently, however, he handed it back to her and she met his eyes. They were calm, they had, indeed, that new look of strength in them that nothing seemed to dash. She knew the chiseled habit had been absolutely broken, that with a strength of will which amazed his doctor, he had let the drug go. Now she saw that the moral force had been as great as the physical.

"Will you stay?" he asked gently, his eyes holding hers.

It seemed a long moment before she answered, and then with a mute, adorable gesture, she laid her cheek against his sleeve.

"I'm not afraid," she said in her low, alluring voice. "I'm going with you, Arthur."

He made no answer in words, an inarticulate murmur was all that escaped him, but he held her close and she seemed to feel the thrill that her assurance gave him. She was no longer an outsider, no longer a helpless burden on her stepside, they were united, their marriage was no longer merely a physical, it was a spiritual union.

The same thought was with her the day the ship sailed. It had been a day of conflict for Fraunce, a day of trial, for he had had to face the publicity and the questions, but he had shown a strength and composure that amazed himself. As he had told Diane, his confession had freed him, he was no longer a slave, he had nothing to fear, and he faced the future with a courage so high that it transformed him. Diane saw it, she could read it in him as the ship, slipping its moorings in the North River, dropped down the bay. It was a day of clouds, and a light fog hung like a veil about the great city. Above the gray clouds drifted, below, the dark water lapped, but Diane lifted her eyes to the face of her husband.

Suddenly, the gray clouds parted and showed a rift of exquisite blue, like a window in the sky, and a shaft of sunlight shot across the sky. It touched the clouds with gold and it glinted on the towering figure of Liberty holding aloft her torch to light the world.

In the far distance she mists over the narrow gray path and luminous blue. Diane looked into Arthur's face, and did not look back, she looked forward. Out of that future, out of those clouds and that golden glory, she seemed to see the form of her husband—no longer fallen and defeated, but coming back to her in the semblance that she had dreamed, clothed in manhood, once mortal and spiritual, and wearing the laurels of victory.

He's Only Ten But Averages 150 as Bowler

If there is any 10-year-old bowler better than Joe Miske of Milwaukee he hasn't been heard of. Miske has an average of more than 145 for better than 3001games in the last four seasons. He bowled with an otherwise adult team this season and pushed his average up to 150. Young Miske is shown here with the 14-pound, three-fingered ball he uses to topple the nuples.

Grim Reaper Takes Pioneer of Burley

BURLEY, April 18 (Special)—C. Anderson, familiarly known as "Dick" Anderson, died Tuesday at about two o'clock of general debility, at his ranch home four miles east of Declo. Mr. Anderson was about 70 years old and had been a resident of Cassia county for about 50 years, most of which time he has been interested in cattle and ranching. The Dick Anderson ranch is well known on the east end of the project, where the family were among the earliest settlers. Mr. Anderson served Cassia county as sheriff in the earlier days, for a number of years, and was perhaps as widely known as any man in the county. He came to American Falls from Kentucky when he was 19 years old, and has ever since lived in southern Idaho, most of the time in Cassia county. Shortly after coming to Idaho he became a stage driver over the Oregon Trail. Funeral services will be held at Albion, this afternoon at two o'clock, from the Masonic hall. He leaves a widow and several children most of whom are grown and live in the valley.

Colorado Woman Retains Right to Redeem Property

DENVER, Colo., April 18 (UP)—Although a $16,000 mortgage on the famous Matchless Mine, source of the Tabor millions, already is over due, Mrs. Elizabeth McCourt Tabor, almost destitute widow of the late Senator H. A. W. Tabor still retains the right to redeem the property.

Mrs. Tabor, who has been having difficulty in raising the necessary funds told representatives of the Storeton Mining Co., holders of the mortgage, that "I haven't the money now, but I will have it within a few days."

Tireless in her efforts to retain the mine, Mrs. Tabor, who has been working the property with the aid of one employe, recently was left a legacy of $20,000, which she apparently has been unable to collect.

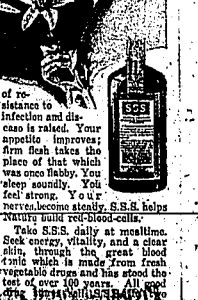
"I was determined to have a Clear Skin"



A CLEAR, smooth, lovely skin bespeaks rich, red blood. It is Nature's outward reflection of the condition within you.

Men and women, both justly covet complexion. Everyone can expect such satisfaction to its fullest extent if they are the possessors of a clear unblemished skin.

If you are unfortunate in having skin blemishes, pimples, boils, eczema—you owe it to yourself, and friends to remove the cause. Nature will then provide the complexion which is so much desired.

S.S.S. has been a blessing to millions of people who have taken advantage of its wonderful medicinal properties. It gives to Nature what it needs in building you up so that your system throws off the cause.

When your system is filled with rich, red blood, the body's power of resistance to infection and disease is raised. Your appetite improves; firm flesh takes the place of that which was once flabby. You sleep soundly. You feel strong. Your nerves become steady. S.S.S. helps Nature build red-blood-cells.

Take S.S.S. daily at mealtime. Seek energy, vitality, and a clear skin, through the great blood tonic which is made from fresh vegetable drugs and has stood the test of over 100 years. All good drug stores have S.S.S. for sale. The large size is more economical.

Steamer Evanger Taken from Beach

SAN PEDRO, Calif., April 18 (UP)—The Norwegian steamer Evanger, which went aground yesterday off Huntington beach, arrived here early today after being pulled off the sand by tugs.

The vessel, just in from South American points, was placed under quarantine. Port officials said the craft was not damaged and that neither its crew nor its passengers suffered.

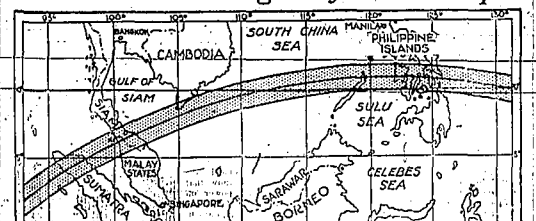
The Evanger struck the sand about 100 yards out. The heavy fog was held responsible for the mishap.

SERVICE HAS BIRTHDAY

LOS ANGELES, April 18 (UP)—Three years ago today a day letter took off from Wall field here with a few pounds of mail, inaugurating the first air mail service between Los Angeles and Salt Lake City, Utah.

Ned Perre chamber of commerce discussed plans for improvement of Stevens crossing in Lawyer's Canyon south of town.

Science to Put Einstein Theory To Test During May Sun Eclipse



It will be May 9 in Ireland when the total eclipse of the sun will leave a shadow path along the route shown on this map, in town along the center line scientists flocked to observe this phenomenon. That day there will be the night of May 7 and 8 here.

For more than two years observations have been made of weather conditions at convenient points along a patch of the moon's shadow will take when the sun goes into total eclipse on May 9. Ships have been constructing special costly and delicate instruments to observe this phenomenon.

And now they are on their way to the orient, from as many as eight countries, thousands of miles away—

All for five minutes or less of observation!

Even these few minutes of study, for which astronomers have made extensive preparations, may prove worthless if the weather proves bad. This is the gamble science takes in order to observe certain conditions that only a total eclipse of the sun can reveal.

Important Results

If the weather is good however, the time and expense and trouble the scientists will undergo will be more than repaid by the results obtained. For then they will have further photographs and facts which will help prove—or disprove—the Einstein theory, discover a new theory of the constitution of atoms, study the effect of the eclipse on the transmission of radio signals, measure the temperature and pressure of the various gases in the sun's corona and learn more significant details about that and the sun's chromosphere or outer layer.

It is only during an eclipse that the corona, which consists of they gases flowing for millions of miles out of the sun's surface, is visible. Because it is seen only on these rare occasions, Bittle's known of its phenomenon.

The eclipse which will reveal the corona to scientists this year occurs in the lower orient on May 9, oriental time or the night of May 7 and 8, according to the time in this country.

The path which the moon's shadow will take at this time will start from the Indian ocean and move eastward across the north of Sumatra, the lower part of Siam and the north of the Malay Peninsula, the southern tip of Cambodia, the south China sea, the middle of the Philippines and die out farther in the Pacific.

It starts in the morning with the rise of the sun and ends at sunset. Only along one thin line a few miles wide does it appear as a total eclipse, and it is at various points on this line that the scientists are preparing to observe it.

Members of the U. S. Naval observatory, under Captain C. S. Freeman are taking up their station at Alledo, on the island of Panay in the Philippines, where they will have only three and a half minutes to take all their photographs and make their observations. There they will erect an observation tower 60 feet high, on which they will place a special camera 60 feet long.

Beside them will be a group of German scientists, and it is believed some Norwegian scientists will also participate in the observations there.

Another American expedition will be that of Prof. John A. Miller, noted astronomer of Swarthmore College who is said to have observed more eclipses than any other scientist. He will go on to Sumatra where he will set up his station alongside those of another German group, a Dutch and an Austrian group.

Two more German expeditions will put up their instruments in Siam, where two British stations are to operate. On an island south of Cambodia, the French will have their observatory. In addition there will be an Italian expedition at another advantageous site.

These groups are all scattered along the path of total eclipse that clear photographs and other complete data are certain to be gathered. The weather may be against one group, but another or more expeditions may be spared that discouragement. The scientists, however, have picked the places where weather is most likely to interfere anywhere along the line.

CANADA THISTLE SERIOUS MENACE TO AGRICULTURE

Many Farms Have Been Abandoned Because of Noxious Weed Says County Agent

Editor's note.—This is the second of a series of articles on noxious weeds prepared by Ralph Bristol, agricultural agent of Bannock county, and secured for publication in the Idaho Evening Times by M. E. Brady, Twin Falls county weed commissioner. Each article will deal with noxious weed and methods of control.

Canada thistle is, next to wild morning-glory, probably the most prevalent and serious noxious weed present on the farms of Bannock county. It, like the morning-glory, has taken complete control of whole farming communities where nothing was done to check it. Many splendid farms have had to be entirely abandoned on account of the encroachments of this weed.

Canadensis Canadian thistle is also sometimes called small flowered thistle, perennial thistle and cursed thistle. University of Idaho Extension Bulletin No. 65 describes this plant as the most noxious of the thistle group. It is an introduced perennial which reproduces by running rootstalks and seeds. Stems are upright, slender, one to three feet in height, bearing many green, shiny, clasping, prickly, deeply notched, ruffled-like leaves. Spines are stiff and straight. The flowers are somewhat smaller than other species of thistles, about one inch across, purplish in color, borne in clusters, topmost bud blooms first, seeds—brown, satin-finished, carrying them great distances by the wind; produces abundantly some seasons, in other few are formed on well-established plants.

Although Canada thistle is sometimes confused with other thistles it can be readily identified by its jointed horizontal rootstalks, which are found six inches to three feet in depth. From these rootstalks at various points arise shoots that in time become individual plants forming dense patches.

Bull thistle, a biennial or two year plant is often mistaken for the Canada thistle but there is a marked difference in root system. The bull thistle has one large top root and rather fuzzy leaves while the Canada has the running rootstalks and smooth leaves. Bull thistle is found most often in pasture and along roadsides and ditch banks.

Eradication of Canada thistle has been a most serious problem and only in the last two or three years have satisfactory control methods been established. Clean cultivation has given very unsatisfactory results as the field must be thoroughly cultivated at least every three or four days for the entire growing season. Nekton for a few which allows the plants to emerge through the ground will ruin an entire season's work. On some irrigation projects, flooding has been used but with indifferent success. Our Idaho soils are too porous and difficulty is experienced in retaining sufficient water in the dikes to cover the weed and insure eradication.

Spraying with solution of sodium chlorate after the weeds are practically mature has proven satisfactory at this is the method proposed to be used in Bannock county. It is necessary for every farmer to plan his farm operations so that patches of the weeds can be left uncultivated during the season of 1929.

Bulletin No. 56 entitled Idaho Weeds is available at the county agent's office in Pocatello and can be obtained by calling or writing for the same.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

What fun the Tinymites all had! Of course the bunch were very glad that they had met the coal man, and had found a little car. As Scouty pushed and Coppy showed they got a ride that they all loved. Then Coppy said, "I'm getting tired. I can't push very far."

One little coal man snapped reply. "Say, I'll jump out and gladly try to take my turn at pushing." "Course this made the Tinies smile. Said Scouty, "That won't do at all. You're mighty kind, but much too small. You couldn't push his car, 1 fear, a quarter-of a mile."

Then Carpy said, "I'll lend a hand. I'm pretty sure I understand just how to keep the little car in motion. It's a cinch." He tried to push it all alone. "Twas funny how he'd puff and groan. And then somebody helped, him 'cause it didn't move an inch.

Away they went! The track ran straight, then quickly turned. Oh, it was great. The little coal men laughed in glee when they began to hum: "Of course we never like to shirk, but we just ride while others work. For us it's naught but pleasure. Oh, we guess we're not so dumb."

Just then a thund-rous noise arose, and Scouty shouted, "Good-ness knows what's happened just ahead of us. Keep going till we see." They shot around a little bend. A coal man hollered, "Here's the end of our nice ride until we work as hard as can be.

"Much coal has fallen on the track. I'm sorry, but we can't turn back. You Tinymites are strong. Please take the shovels from the car and work away just as you are." As soon as all the track is clear we'll travel right along."

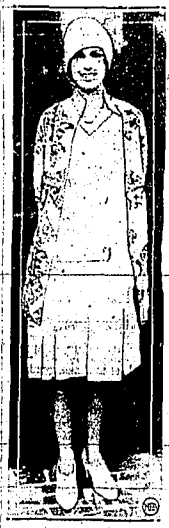
Married? Sure! It's a Law Now



Thanks to the Connecticut legislature, she's Mrs. Stanton E. Ashley. When she was Miss Elva McElfrid, she was married to Ashley at a country club near New Britain. After they sailed on their honeymoon, it was learned that, contrary to law, they had been married in a different county than the one in which they procured the license. But the state legislature, meeting in extraordinary session, passed the act making the marriage valid. Mrs. Ashley is pictured above at Savannah, Ga., on her wedding trip.

First Glimpse of Old Roman Galley

It was a proud moment for Premier Mussolini and Italian archaeologists as this find was placed upon a bit of wood projecting from the waters of Lake Nemi—historic "Diana's Mirror"—in Italy, for here you see success crowning their efforts to recover from the lake the luxurious galleys of Emperor Caligula of ancient Rome. At the order of Il Duce, engineers have labored for months to drain the large lake and bring to light the crafts which have lain for centuries on the bottom.

Working at Night, With Crude Tools, He Dreams of Freedom and New Career

Jack Landingham was an art student until he gave up his education to fight in France. Penniless when he returned to America, he became involved in an irregular business deal and landed in prison. But with the aid of pencil and paper he is continuing his career as a sculptor and here you see him with a recently completed bust made in his cell at night.

RALEIGH, N. C.—The art career which Jack Landingham gave up to serve in the World War is being resumed here with considerable difficulty, for Landingham now in prison and is pressed for time and for materials.

When he lays down his pipe after a day of hard labor, he fills a cotton sack, beneath which is a mask of moistened plaster of Paris and a chunk of modeling clay. This he carries to his cell and goes to work. His body are a blunt pocket knife, a five-inch piece of steel spring, a whet stone and a small sponge.

Sometimes he works far into the night, because the prison authorities keep late hours. He cannot keep his slender, nervous hands from caving.

Landingham has carved a very good likeness of the oldest son of the prison superintendent. He has made striking statues of a white heron, a rabbit, a bull dog, a horse and a bust. Some of these animals being fought at the prison he has been obliged to work from pictures.

He's Given Materials

Prison officials first became interested in his work when he carved a figure of Amelia Earhart from concrete. He contracted a bone tuberculosis from working on hard surface, but he achieved a striking likeness and won the respect of officials.

It being the policy of the institution to encourage prisoners to practice crafts, Supt. Gwyn Garner has given Landingham a few tools and R. Poe gave Landingham a few sacks of plaster of Paris, and permission to continue his career after working hours.

His next opus was "The Happy Warrior," characteristic bust of Al Smith. He is now planning a group he will call, "The Spirit of Reformation."

Bears War Wounds

Landingham was born in Knoxville, Tenn., 32 years ago. He was an art student at the Rice Institute in Texas when the war came. He left school and enlisted in the army. He was wounded overseas. On his body are seven wounds he received in contact with a German machine gun nest. All his companions on that adventure are dead.

Jobless and penniless, he came back to his country, after the Armistice. He couldn't go on with his art, because he had to earn a living immediately. He went into the advertising business and violated, through ignorance, a law said a rule of the Merchants Association of Asheville, S. C. Having learned all his money, he was unable to make financial restitution, became frightened and fled the town. When found, he had no money to fight his case and admitting the fact that he had run away would convict him, he pleaded guilty.

In the background, his wife, despair of any old love affair. While Landingham was in France, another man won the girl he loved, and shattered a romance that had motivated his life.

Plans Art Career

Trying to forget her, to establish a livelihood so he could afford to continue his art studies, he finally landed in prison. His greatest difficulty is that he is handicapped by lack of money and models and is dependent on the generosity of prison officials for terms and time.

When his term is finished, he wants to go far away from his prison walls, set up a studio and work. He is anxious to visit Georgia and see the work that has been done on Stone Mountain. He wants to visit the Metropolitan Museum in New York and other galleries with famous collections of art. And way ahead there is the desire to visit Italy and Spain. In the meantime, Convict Landingham does hard labor by day and "Art" Landingham works in the evening, deftly fashioning likenesses of anything he can find that will serve as a model. Prison officials admire his industry as well as his talent, and are helping him as much as they can.

Radio Fans Hear Thunder Over Air

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., April 18 (UP)—A modern thor stood in a steel cage at Pittsburgh last night and hurled thunderbolts at a miniature village, while he audibly explained it all to thousands of radio listeners who were tuned in on WGY, the General Electric station here.

Lightning crackled and thunder reverberated to punctuate the talk by F. W. Peek, noted electrical engineer, who spoke from the company's laboratory. A "mike" was set up in the cage for the first broadcast on record of a "thunder storm."

Peek revealed that through study of the effects of the man-made bolts, which have been stepped up to as high as 10,000,000 volts by transformers operating from a light socket, some of lightning's most dangerous weapons have been snatched away.

"We make lightning for the same reason the physicians cultivated germs in test-tubes," he said. "We keep thunder under control and study its habits. Thus we bring it under control."

The lightning was issued from an "artificial cloud," a condenser which emitted electrical explosions darting at church steeples and house tops in the "village," which covered the top of an ordinary sized table.

STOCK PRICES TURN UPWARD

NEW YORK, April 18 (UP)—Stock market prices moved forward again today and declines were on a more active scale than in the last two weeks. Gains of 1 to 5 points were scored in the leading issues and the whole market moved forward with a few exceptions, until near the close, when the usual profit taking reduced some of the gains. On the list selling in industrials, rails which had lain dormant, earlier came to life and moved forward.

Steel issues were leaders and further strength developed in the oil group where Pan-American petroleum and Shelly made new highs for the industrial group. American can made a record for the present shares on expectation of record business this year, while radio corporation crossed the 100 mark for the first time in several days and real buying brought heavy gains in such issues as Warner brothers pictures, commercial solvents and several special issues.

Highway through Connell will be oiled this summer.

I kissed her on and on and on,
Then as she heaved, above it,
I paused for breath and she cried:
"John
Dear, have you ceased to love me?"

"My, husband is a Lion, a Mason, an Elk, and an Eagle," proudly boasted a Twin Falls matron. A friend replied: "You should put him in a tent and charge admission."

"Poor beast—I heard her threaten to take the front door key away from him."

A reader from Buhl asks: What is a four-flusher? A four-flusher, in common parlance, is a bluffer, brazzart, or cheat. The term originated in the popular American diversion known as poker. In poker a flush consists of four cards on one suit and one card of another suit he has a four flush, also called a bobtail flush. Sometimes a player with a four flush presents to have a full flush and attempts to drive out an opponent by betting heavy. This practice is perfectly legitimate in poker, but such a play is known as bunthushing. If he succeeds the other player never knows what card he held. If he is called he must show his cards and his bluff is exposed.

Sunday Is Paint Day at Hatchery

The first quota of trout eggs received by the local fish hatchery from the Hayspur hatchery is beginning to hatch and the second quota has been received here. The spawn taken locally has now amounted to about 20,000 eggs. The main front at present is exceptionally heavy at the two traps, one at the hatchery and the other at Slaughter House creek.

Sunday is paint day at the hatchery. The Twin Falls Fish and Game association wants all the painters to turn out Sunday with their biggest paint brushes to get the work accomplished as soon as possible. Paint has been donated by the Moon Paint company, the C. W. and M., the Salkaday Hardware, the Twin Falls Hardware, the Diamond Hardware, the Gem State Lumber Company and by Krenzel's Machine company.

The members hope to have all of the troughs in operation at the hatchery soon. Mr. Dahlquist, caretaker, has devised a clever and efficient diversion system to distribute the water to the hatchery troughs, feeding ponds and other parts of the hatchery. This control system is Mr. Dahlquist's own idea and is a clever engineering feat. The control of water is considered one of the most vital necessities of a good fish hatchery and Mr. Dahlquist has answered the problem excellently.
