FINAL CURTAIN FALLS FOR LON CHANEY, ACTOR

Screen's Man of a Thousand Faces Dies Suddenly in Hollywood; Passing Come As Surprise To His Fans

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Aug. 26 (UP)—Lon Chaney, the "man of a thousand faces" died here early today.

The end came with a hemorrhage of the throat at Vincent's hospital where he had taken last Wednesday when he became seriously ill.

Just a few minutes before his death he was conversing quietly with members of his family.

Suffered from Cancer

Although it was known that the noted character actor was suffering from carcinoma of the bronchial tubes and that his life was to be shortened by this form of cancer, his passing was unexpected.

Physicians did not believe he would live more than several weeks but they considered that he was temporarily out of danger when a blood transfusion was made successfully after a hemorrhage last Saturday.

Mrs. Chaney and their son, Creighton, were with the character actor when the hemorrhage started.

They immediately called Dr. John C. Webster but Chaney already was beyond medical aid.

Chaney's death was a shock to all Hollywood. He was one of the most beloved and successful of the film favorites.

News of the actor's serious illness was first generally known in the screen colony shortly after he finished work on his initial talking picture, "The Unholy Three".

He had planned to take a long vacation before working again but instead hastened to New York to consult specialists about his throat ailment.

Much Improved

Apparently much improved he returned from New York two weeks ago and went to his cabin in the high Sierras.

The first of three hemorrhages forced him to enter the hospital last Wednesday. His condition was regarded then as critical but when blood transfusions were successful, optimistic reports were given out.

Late yesterday, the improvement appeared so pronounced that Dr. Webster, in an official bulletin said "Mr. Chaney spent the best afternoon since he came to the hospital."

Mrs. Chaney and the son were broken up by the actor's death. The Chaneys had been married more than 22 years.

Chaney was born at Colorado Springs, Colorado, April 1 1883. He always was interested in the stage and shortly after he concluded his education in Colorado he went with a stock company.

His histrionic ability was recognized immediately and he acted as a property man for the company. He was fond of remaining about how expert he became at shifting scenery.

He graduated to the dual role of transporting agent and actor with another small stock company and finally was hired as a dancing comedian by the famous team of Kolb and Dill.

His turn from the stage to motion pictures was quite unexpected and resulted only from becoming stranded with another stock company in Santa Anna, California.

Without sufficient money to return east, Chaney decided to try Hollywood.

He worked first at the old Universal lot as an extra in western pictures.

He rose from the ranks of the extras and his work in the "Miracle Man" definitely established him as a film star.

Always he had experimented

The jury of six men and six women received the case last Saturday and deliberated until late yesterday. It was revealed after Judge Carlos Hardy had discharged the jurors that the count stood 10 to 2 for conviction of second degree murder, with the six women voting for conviction.

Ben Ross, mayor of Pocatello, loom up as the strongest Democratic possibilities for the nomination.

GAS FOR HEATING AND COOKING MAY BE BROUGHT HERE

Council Studies Application Of San Francisco Company To Install and Operate Plants in This Vicinity

The advent of gas cooking and heating into Twin Falls at an early date was indicated at the meeting of the city council Monday evening, when the application of the Thebo, Star and Anderson company of San Francisco for a certificate of convenience and necessity to install and operate gas plants and distributing system for serving air-mixed liquified natural gas, was read and discussed.

No definite action was taken by the council on the application, as E. M. Sweeley, city attorney, suggested that an investigation be made to determine the responsibility of the company and the legal aspects of granting the permit.

According to information received from the state public utilities commission, the company plans to install its plants in Idaho Falls, Blackfoot, Burley, Nampa, Caldwell, Payette, Weiser, Moscow and Coeur d' Alene, as well as in Twin Falls. Plants are also understood to be slated for construction in various cities in Oregon, Washington and California.

Following a discussion of losses in water rents during the last year, as indicated in the auditor's report of city finances submitted at the council meeting last week, the council adopted a resolution requiring a deposit of $3 by water users, as a guarantee against

Abe Lyman, Noted Orchestra Leader, Is Bandit Victim

LOS ANGELES, August 26, (UP)—Abe Lyman, noted orchestra leader, entered his theatre dressing room after the performance last night. Al Bernield, a friend, was with him.

"Don't move or I'll let you have it," were the words which reached their startled ears.

They found themselves facing an armed bandit, who came down the curtain on his act by leaving with $300, safe taken from Lyman and half from Bernield.

DEATH SUMMONS BELOVED WOMAN

Mrs. Zenas Smith Passes In Twin Falls Following Illness of Long Duration

Mrs. Jolena Coubs Smith, wife of W. Zenas Smith, state organizer and past president of the P. E. O. sisterhood, and member of the board of Independent School district No. 1 for four terms, died at her late residence on Seventh avenue east at five o'clock Monday afternoon, following an illness of several months' duration. Mrs. Smith was one of the most popular women of the community, and had played a prominent part in the various phases of civic and social life.

Caption D. P. E. O. sisterhood, of which she was a past president, will be in charge of services at the graveside in Twin Falls cemetery Wednesday afternoon at 4 o'clock. At this time her unusually wide circle of friends, and the public generally, will pay final respects to her memory. The P. E. O. organization of the state benefited greatly by the interest and service she directed toward it, acting as state organizer and state president.

First as an educator, serving four years as a member of the Twin Falls high school faculty, and later as a member of the board of independent school district No. 1, she was closely identified with the intellectual life of the community. She also served as clerk of the board.

Possessing a rich contralto voice, Mrs. Smith was prominent in musical circles of the city, and was in wide demand for concerts and musicals. She was iden-

ARTIFICIAL LUNG SUSTAINS LIFE OF YOUNG FATHER

Irving Johnson Saved From Death When Doctors Give Him Priority In the Use of Precious Robot Breather

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26, (UP)—A young man's agonizing gasps slowly lengthened into the deep, full breaths of normal respiration there today with the aid of a life-saving artificial lung.

In the same city the body of a young woman lies in a mortuary her fight for life ended because there was only one such respirator, and because the medical profession does not recognize—in its battle with death—sex.

Muscles Restricted

The difficult situation arose when the man—Irving S. Johnson, 25, married and the father of a 14-months-old boy, was removed to a local hospital, his diaphragm muscles so restricted by infantile paralysis that only an inadequate supply of oxygen could be drawn into his lungs. He was immediately placed under a "robot breather" or iron machine, the only one of its kind west of Chicago.

Thursday Miss May McCullough, 30, was also brought to the hospital, suffering practically the same affliction. She, too, needed artificial respiration or she would die.

The doctors were torn between their apparent duty to Johnson, on the road to recovery and a feeling of chivalry aroused by the knowledge that a woman's life was at stake.

A hasty conference was called by Dr. E. Shaw, in charge of the machine. While doctors debated, preparations were made for the transfer of patients.

Willing to Die

The young woman, through her tortured gasps for breath, pleaded that she was willing to die, that she felt she would be relieved as a result of her illness if she died.

Claiming that Johnson's recovery under the "robot breather" was assured—but that death would inevitably result if he were re-

SHERIFF'S POSSE PURSUES SLAYER THROUGH FOREST

Determined Manhunt Starts For George Vann, Demented Killer of Three Persons In Montana the Past Sunday

WHITEFISH, Mont., Aug. 26 (UP)—Through a forest vastness a sheriff's posse today stalked the trail of George Vann, demented killer of three and an expert woodsman.

The craftiness born of years in the big woods seemed magnified a thousand fold by the frenzied urge which led him to kill three persons at Stillwater Inn Sunday, and it was only with difficulty that posemen, woodsmen themselves, followed his elusive trail.

Beggaring description, this rugged country, much of which was never trod by man before, hindered the progress of the manhunters, who were spurred on by a knowledge of the character of their prey.

Vann, crack rifleman and hunter, to whom the forest vastness

Battle Looms Over Naming Of Idaho Party Candidates

M'MURRAY SEEMS CERTAIN TO BE THE CHOICE OF G. O. P.

IDAHO FALLS, Aug. 26, (UP)—With the nomination of John McMurray, Oakley, seemingly assured on the first ballot, the Republican state convention convened in Idaho Falls at 2 p. m. today.

Over 600 delegates and alternates from 44 counties gathered at the largest Republican convention ever assembled in the state.

McMurray's full strength was revealed Monday night at an open caucus when 130 delegates—sufficient to procure his nomination on the first ballot—pledged their support. Supporters of W. D. Gillis, Filer, state attorney general and Byron Defenbach were reported discouraged over the McMurray setup. Prior to the Monday caucus the Defenbach and Gillis contingents had discussed a coalition to oppose McMurray. Whether or not this would still be attempted in view of the caucus showing was not known.

It became known today that Gillis has declined to let his name be used for renomination as attorney-general.

Well-informed observers predicted the following Republican nominations:

William E. Borah, United States senator.

Addison T. Smith, Twin Falls, representative.

Burton L. French, Moscow, representative.

John McMurray, governor.

Alfred Budge, Supreme Court.

Raymond L. Givens, Supreme Court.

Fred E. Lukens, secretary of state.

Norman Adkinson, state treasurer.

E. G. Galett, auditor.

W. D. Gillis, state attorney.

Kennedy-McPherson Row Comes to Peaceful End

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26, (UP)—Mrs. Minnie A. Kennedy, surrounded by $100 worth of flowers sent by her evangelist daughter, Aimee Semple McPherson, indicated today that the family quarrel is all over—except for one little detail.

"I shall insist," Mrs. Kennedy said, "that sister pay for my two nasal operations, even if I have to sue."

Mrs. Kennedy has charged she received the injuries to her nose in an altercation with her daughter Mrs. McPerson insists the injury was received when her mother "threw herself on the floor in a tantrum."

As for the flowers, Mrs. Kennedy suffed.

"I would rather receive one little crushed rose from Aimee herself than all those." She apparently referred to the fact that several of the baskets contained the cards of Emmis Schaeffer, Mrs. McPherson's secretary and confidant, and other persons connected with Angelus Temple.

Mrs. Kennedy is in Brentwood sanitarium and her daughter is in the Malibu Beach cottage which also contains a $350 a month, recovering from a nervous breakdown.

Twin Falls Boy Confesses Theft

Edward York, 16, is being held in jail here to face charges of the theft of two autos from Twin Falls persons, and is said to have confessed his guilt, according to city officers. York was arrested Monday afternoon, following a collision with the car of A. T. Ward here, and investigation revealed he was driving a car reported stolen from Bancroft, Idaho, police say.

Upon being questioned by city officers, York is said to have admitted the theft of a car belonging to Joe Atmster on August 11, and later, after Atmster had recovered it, on August 17. He is also said to have confessed to stealing the car of W. J. Tanner on August 9. Tanner's car was later discovered in the city hall park.

LOCAL INSPECTOR ISSUES WARNING TO FRUIT-BUYERS

Apples, Peaches, Pears and Other Produce Must Be Free from Disease, According to Horticulturist Gipson

A warning was issued Tuesday morning by Edgar V. Gipson, district horticultural inspector, that apples, peaches, pears and prunes offered for sale in stores and fruit stands must be free from any indication of worm damage or scale infestation.

"There is plenty of first class fruit to be obtained from the better growers who are interested in keeping up the reputation of Idaho in this respect," Mr. Gipson said. Storekeepers and fruit dealers are being asked to cooperate by refusing to handle infected fruit, and will be held responsible for any such held in their possession.

The Idaho law which governs the sale of fruit reads, in part, as follows:

"It shall be unlawful to sell or offer for sale, or have in one's possession for sale or barter, any fruit which is or has been infected with San Jose scale, or the larvae or larvae of the codling moth, or the peach-twig borer, and the fact that such fruit bears the marks of San Jose scale,

DERBYISTS LEAVE LOS ANGELES ON WAY TO CHICAGO

William Brock of Detroit Leads Field; All Planes Are Capable of Making Two Hundred Miles an Hour

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 26, (UP)—William Brock of Detroit led the Los Angeles to Chicago air derby from the Metropolitan airport here today, taking off at 4:55 a. m. PST.

He was followed five minutes later by Lee Shoemaker in the monoplane "Miss Silvercup."

Willy Post of Oklahoma, flying the "Winnie May" was the third to leave. He was timed at 5:30 a. m.

Col. Roscoe Turner in the "Gilmore" was away at 5:35 a. m., the last to leave today.

Flying with Brock was Robert W. Brown, radio announcer of WLW, Cincinnati, who will broadcast the progress of the flight over the plane's radio. Col. Turner carried his pet lion, Gilmore.

All the entrants flew in Lockheed Vega monoplanes of 425 horsepower, all capable of 200 miles an hour or more. As the planes were evenly matched it was believed the outcome of the race depended on the skill of the pilots in taking advantage of air currents.

The flyers hoped to make the 1725-mile journey in eight hours, reaching Chicago sometime this afternoon.

The flyers took a bee-line route for Chicago, the scene of the national air races, heading toward Las Vegas, Nev. From there they will fly to Colorado Springs, Col., Lincoln, Neb., Omaha, Des Moines, Ia., and thence to Chicago.

ROSS SUPPORTERS CLAIM VOTES TO ASSURE TRIUMPH

ST ANTHONY, Idaho, Aug 26 (UP)—The Democratic state convention convened at 2 p. m. today to select nominees who will carry the party standard at the November general elections.

Between 400 and 500 Democrats from all parts of Idaho have assembled for the two day convention. The conclave is being held in the L. D. S. tabernacle.

As the convention opened, it appeared that C. Ben Ross, mayor of Pocatello, was assured the Democratic nomination for governor—at least his supporters claimed he was promised 24 of the 135 votes; only 68 votes are required for nomination. The Ross faction held a caucus in the afternoon.

The contingent standing behind Asher B. Wilson, democratic national committeeman from Twin Falls, was reluctant to admit that Ross would be successful, despite the convention indications. Accordingly reports attempts to unite the Wilson and Ross forces in favor of Mayor James Pope of Boise were unsuccessful in view of the Ross strength.

Former Governor Moses Alexander sounded an aggressive note in a speech before the Ross delegation caucus this morning. The purport of his speech was "clean out the capital".

T. A. Walters, Caldwell, former attorney general, was temporary chairman and M. P. Strecker of Orofino, secretary.

According to reports just before the convention opened, Strecker was slated for nomination to succeed himself as Democratic National Committeeman. Jack Burley, attorney general; John A. Hinton, Preston, treasurer; William Spires, St. Anthony, auditor, and Hinton Kellogg, mine inspector.

And the following men will be named to oppose Senator William E. Borah, it was said: Henry Z. Johnson, Boise; E. M. Holden, Idaho Falls, and Joe Tyler, Pocatello.

The aggressive Ross delegation indicated it would revamp the entire state organization. It's floor leaders are Judge Morgan of Boise and S. O. Tannehill, Lewiston.

During the afternoon session today, memorial services will be conducted for the Late Senator Dubois and the late Ex-Governor James H. Hawley.

Beautiful weather greeted the Bourbon delegates among whom numbered C. P. Wilson, bewhiskered and picturesque delegate from Caribou county. In addition to a full program of business, an entertainment program has been arranged.

One of the problems facing the convention is the party's stand on the prohibition question.

Lewis county's delegation will avoid all discussion of prohibition if possible while Camas county's delegation has been definitely instructed to oppose a wet plank. Guy Holden, Idaho Falls, state Democratic chairman, hopes the party will compromise on a modification platform and, it was reported, will swing influence to this end.

Frankie Campbell Battles Against Death Following Last Night's Encounter With Max Baer at San Francisco

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 26 (UP)—King of all heavyweights on the Pacific coast for several years, Frankie Campbell was fighting a hard battle against death here today, suffering from injuries received in the most important bout of his career against Max Baer last night.

Campbell slumped in the ring, unconscious, during the fifth round of a scheduled 10 round match, Baer's right and left hand, and punches to his head, as he angered against the ropes in a corner had forced him to drop his hands and his knees suddenly collapsed from under him.

His life is suffering from cerebral contusions," Dr. F. Sheehy, surgeon, said tersely after a three-hour examination. "The prognosis (outlook) is poor. The critical condition will continue for 24 hours."

The outcome of the contest stunned 15,123 fans who had paid $55,106.74 to see the bout and jammed Recreation Park.

For more than 15 minutes Dr. Sheehy tried to bring Campbell's consciousness back while he lay in the ring. Almost forgotten was the fact that Campbell had lost his claim as the outstanding heavyweight in the far west to the youthful and comparatively inexperienced Baer. An emergency hospital ambulance was called when those at the ringside became more apprehensive and Campbell was taken to St. Joseph's hospital.

A Catholic priest was summoned to administer the last sacrament of the church.

TENNIS DOUBLES TOURNEY STARTS

CHESTNUT HILL, Mass., Aug. 26 (UP)—The national men's tennis doubles championship moved into the second round here today with all the seeded combinations expected to advance with little trouble.

Johnny Van Ryn, East Orange, N. J., and Wilmer Allison, Austin, Tex., faced little opposition in the navat officers, Lieut. G. W. Smith and Lieut. R. M. Watt, jr. The officers reached the second round by default.

Big Bill Tilden's determination to reach his eighth national doubles final seems endangered by his hip injury. Tilden limped badly yesterday and was forced to let Hunter do most of the court covering. Tilden and Hunter, however, should have little difficulty in disposing of Henry L. Johnson and Malcolm T. Hill, both of Waban, Mass., their second round opponents.

The NUT CRACKER

The rumor that Gallant Fox was doped following his recent defeat at the heels of Jim Dandy. While they're investigating that, maybe an inquiry should be made into the battle of Waterloo. Maybe somebody gave Napoleon knockout drops.

Some day a champion is going to lose his title and nobody will say he was drugged. That will be news.

Funny, nobody has ever suggested that Whiskaway, the one which ran third, also was given sleeping powders with his oats.

When a 100 to 1 shot can beat two favorites in a four-horse race it begins to appear that the experts are the ones who are dopey.

And, did you ever notice that after a 100 to 1 shot wins a race nobody can understand after the betting why didn't have a couple of bucks on him?

Gallant Fox beaten by an outsider, suggests unlimited possibilities to O'Goofity. He says it is not even beyond the pale of reason to figure a National league team winning a world series, this year.

OUR BOARDING HOUSE By Ahern

Hooks & Slides

William Braucher

Here's the Dope

Gallant Fox lost a race the other day to a 100 to 1 shot. It was the first time the Fox tasted defeated as a 3-year-old. After the battle of the mud, the experts dragged out the mud-pots and started flinging a bit themselves. It seems Gallant Fox had been ripped some knockout drops with his mash.

Mr. Woodward, owner of the champion and Sunny Jim Fitzsimmons, trainer, laughed at the rumors that the Fox's food had been tampered with. To begin with, there was not a chance to dope the Fox. Six men watch the horse constantly, and they are men Fitz can depend on. Not only these men, but a half-savage dog keeps strangers away from the Fox's boudoir. You couldn't get in there with a search warrant.

Where these "dope" stories originate it is sometimes hard to determine. Unless the creators of the fiction are experts, taking an easy way to keep their forecasts unsullied, the people who start such tales are anonymous.

Other Times

This isn't the first story of that nature. We can remember as far back as 20 years, reading a tale of the same sort after Jim Jeffries was beaten at Reno by Jack Johnson. It was whispered that Jeff had been given something with his oats, too. The truth was that age and nerves beat Jeff. At night before that July Fourth debacle, Jeff had been sleepless.

The advance stories from Jeff's training camp had painted him as in perfect physical condition. There were glowing reports about his stamina and power. It was discovered when he fought Johnson that he was merely a "shell" of his former self. The experts had been fooled, and the drug story was broadcast and given credence in a number of places. You still hear it occasionally.

Dempsey was given something, in Philadelphia. Some fellow had slipped something into his cheesecakes. He didn't seem to be the man that damp night there under the lights that he had been expected to be. It was hard to realize that the Dempsey of Toledo had become the Dempsey of Philadelphia. But it was true. Tunney's punches were the only dope handed the Mauler.

It was heard recently again, a new version of the same old tale when Sammy Mandell lost to Al Singer. Some "Borgia" had put snuff in Sammy's soup. We hate to suspect the "experts" of petty chicanery such as this. But if not the scribes, then who?

CUBS FACE BUGS AS CAMPAIGN FOR FLAG CONTINUES

Pirates Have Furnished Difficult Opposition for the Champions All Season and Close Series Is Expected

CHICAGO, Aug. 26 (UP)—Jewell Ens' Pittsburgh Pirates, fighting for a first division berth, furnished the opposition for the Chicago Cubs today as the National league leaders resumed their drive for the pennant.

Although the Pirates have been unable to climb above fifth place and are 11 games behind Chicago, they have been tough opponents for the Cubs this season, winning 7 of the 15 games played.

The Pirates were handicapped by injuries during the early part of the season but during the past fortnight they have equalled the Cubs' record of 13 victories and 4 defeats and they still have hopes of continuing their record of not finishing out of first division since 1918.

Ray Kremer, who has defeated the Cubs three times in as many starts this year, was named by Manager Rogers Hornsby as pitcher assignment while Sheriff Blake was expected to work for the Cubs. Blake was defeated in his only previous start against the Bucs this year.

Following the two game series with Pittsburgh the Cubs will entertain St. Louis for four days before embarking on a road trip which will keep them away from home until Sept. 26 when they return to close the season in a four game series with Cincinnati.

HASKELL INDIAN HOLDS TITLE OF FINEST ATHLETE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Aug. 26, (UP)—Wilson (Buster) Charles, full-blooded Oneida Indian of Haskell Institute today held the title of America's best all-round athlete, the second Indian to hold that title since the days of Jim Thorpe.

Charles brought his record to a flying climax on the closing day of the A. A. U. track and field championships here yesterday when he won the 1500 meter run, giving him 336 points and a point total of 7,313,343. Jim Stewart of the Los Angeles A. C. was second with 7,119,565 points.

Buck had staged a thrilling battle for the title, Charles leading by 85 points at noon.

Other outstanding events of the closing day were topped by Hermann Brix, Los Angeles A. C. giant, who tossed the 12-pound shot 58 feet 8¼ inches to break John Kuck's American mark of 58 feet 7¾ inches. Brix also tossed the 8-pound shot 68 feet, 9 inches to exceed Ralph Hopp's record of 67 feet 7 inches.

Although none of the relay events embraced last year's records, the Los Angeles A. C. team won both the 440 yard and 880 yard titles while the A. A. team won the mile championship race. The two mile relay title went to the Pennsylvania Railroad A. A. of Chicago.

Indoor Golf Course Being Erected Here

"Weenie" golfers who have been worrying about the approach of winter months when play on outdoor miniature golf courses will be unpleasant, if not impossible, may ease their troubled minds for Twin Falls is to have an indoor "weenie" links, complete in every detail, according to an announcement made Monday afternoon.

Preliminary work was begun Tuesday morning on installing the course on the first floor of the building at Second street and Second avenue, formerly occupied by the Service Motor company. H. C. Edmunds, Twin Falls accountant, will be manager of the indoor links.

According to plans announced by Mr. Edmunds, the course will be complete in every detail, with an 18-hole putting course containing some new ideas in obstacles, and with driving nets and greens for approach shots in the basement of the building. Greens are to be constructed from a composition said to closely resemble real grass greens in speed and accuracy, and the floors of the building will be covered with rubber matting. Special attention will be given to lighting. Mr. Edmunds said, so that conditions will be ideal for continuance of the game through the winter months.

PARACHUTE CHAMP DESCRIBES JUMP

By BERT WHITE
World's Champion Parachute Jumper of Los Angeles
(Written for the United Press)

CURTISS-WRIGHT AIRPORT, CHICAGO, Aug. 26 (UP)—After five years of parachute jumping during which time I won the world's record by falling 26,000 feet, it remained for me to get the biggest scare of my career by dropping into the grandstands here at the national air races.

When a jumper takes an ordinary hop he doesn't think much about anything. But when I hopped out of that plane at about 2,000 feet yesterday and later saw I was headed for the grand stand with all those people in it, I thought plenty fast.

I dropped several hundred feet without opening my chute so the folks would get a thrill.

When I dropped within 600 feet of the ground I saw that I was going to land in the stands. I had thought I could fall over 'em.

Then I saw something had to be done pretty quick so I opened my second chute and hung on to the ropes with my hands. That was so I wouldn't be dragged over the crowd by the wind as I would have been with the chutes strapped on.

It hit pretty hard on the concrete aisle and the silk chute tangled a lot of people up but none of us was hurt.

That's the first time I ever was in any danger of hurting myself or anyone else in five years of jumping.

LEE PRESENTS IDAHO PROTEST

BOISE, Aug. 26. (UPI)—William E. Lee, former Idaho Supreme court justice, and now member of the Interstate Commerce Commission, today notified the Idaho Public Utilities Commission that he had presented its protest against granting postponement of the effective date for decrease in grain rate schedules.

Following application by railroads to the Interstate Commission asking for extension of time from October 1 to January 1 in which to complete rearrangement and publication of rate schedules as ordered by the commission, the Idaho Public Utilities Commission protested through Commissioner Lee any extension beyond Oct. 15.

Lee stated that he had received copies of the Idaho protest to all members of the Interstate Commission and would do all possible to prevent any undue extension of time.

Postponement of the new rate schedule until after the fall shipping season will cause a loss to Idaho ranchers of approximately $1,500,000 the Idaho Commission estimates.

CENSORS IN PERU CLAMP DOWN LID

By UNITED PRESS

Strict censorship was established today by the military council which has taken control of the Peruvian government and putting down of events there was complete.

The future fate of the deposed president, Augusto B. Leguia, was in doubt. Apparently the military junta which forced him to resign had promised he could leave the country, and he boarded the Peruvian cruiser Admiral Grau.

The cruiser, however, was ordered to leave. When anchor was the heads of the committee in Lima to change their minds was uncertain. It was considered possible that General Luis F. Sanchez Cerro, leader of the successful revolt in Arequipa which precipitated the president's downfall, might have intervened with the leaders of the Junta in Lima and refused to permit Leguia to escape.

General Manuel Marie Ponce, president of the Junta in Lima, assured students who demanded punishment of Leguia that he would be returned there if the popular voice demanded it. The official newspaper Prensa announced today that the Admiral Grau had submitted to the jurisdiction of the Junta, which made it seem likely that the deposed executive might be taken back to Lima and placed on trial.

A group of Peruvian political exiles in La Paz, Bolivia, telegraphed to Sabelio Cerro and Pons, informing them that the Peruvian revolutionary committee in Bolivia feels that the military Junta is not responding to the popular will calling for the complete destruction of the former regime. The people demand the punishment of Leguia and his policies, the message said.

The indications thus were that there may be internal friction among the factions in Peru which are attempting to build a new government on the wreck of the old one.

Fellows said the liquor was directed from a Canadian exporter.

GASOLINE PRICE IS REDUCED HERE

Twin Falls motorists who drove their cars into filling stations for gasoline Tuesday morning were pleasantly surprised to discover the reduction of the price on motor fuel from 27½ cents, the level maintained by dealers here, to 25½ cents. Price cuts announced by local dealers are said to be the result of action of one or two stations in the city which have been retailing gasoline at a figure a few cents lower than the standard price.

Motor business has been dropping steadily during the last few days, and I was glad to join the ranks of lower-priced stations," one dealer remarked this morning.

It was understood wholesale prices have been made by distributors on that dealers are operating on practically the same margin of profit as at the 27½ cent level although at least one distributor reduced his retailers' margin one cent.

Definite information concerning the permanency of the cut was not obtainable, although managers of distributing plants here do not anticipate an early return to former prices.

NEW FARM MACHINES BATTLE CORN BORER

Two new farm machines, developed by the U. S. department of agriculture, give promise of considerable aid in checking the spread of the European corn borer. The one shown above shoots sheets of flame, against the ground, burning stocks and stubble in which the insects live. The one to the right is called a low-cutting combinder. It can easily be made in the farm workshop and differs from the regular combinder in that it has a long stationary knife set a short distance ahead of the regular sickle to slice the stalks off at the ground as the binder moves forward. Subsequent disposal of the stalks results in destruction of the borers.

TREATING THE SYMPTOM

A DOCTOR who tried to relieve his patient of unpleasant symptoms without studying or attacking the disease which produced them would not, presumably, last very long. To prescribe a mild gargle for a sore throat when that sore throat was really the first stage of diptheria would not, in this enlightened age seem like good business.

Nevertheless, that is very much the attitude most of us take in connection with the disturbing symptoms presented by crime conditions in our biggest cities.

Such things as racketeering, gang killings, graft by public officials and inefficiency and corruption in police departments and courts are not isolated evils. They are symptoms of a very serious underlying malady; and our present system of trying to attack each symptom separately without touching or even recognizing the disease that causes them is just about as sensible and effective as the procedure of the hypothetical doctor mentioned above.

The symptoms center, of course, in our two greatest cities, New York and Chicago; but every other city has similar symptoms, in greater or lesser degree. If we could withdraw our eyes for a moment from the alarming symptoms themselves and try to find out what they signify we might have some chance of finding a remedy.

What does lie behind these things anyway?

Isn't it quite obvious that the underlying disease is something very like an utter breakdown of our whole system of municipal government? The gangster owes his continued existence largely to the crooked, inefficient or "controlled" holder of public office. That individual, in turn, owes his position to the political ring that exists not to render public service but to look out for the best interests of its own members. And the ring, in turn, owes its place to two things—the presence of huge masses of ignorant, uneducated voters whom unscrupulous demagogues can sway by appeals to prejudice, and the refusal on the part of another vast bloc of citizens to exercise the franchise or take any active interest in governmental affairs.

There is no use in trying to whitewash the situation. This disease is as serious a thing as the United States has encountered in its whole life. Democracy is on trial.

By awakening our dormant sense of public responsibility, by seeing to it that education becomes both more widespread and more genuine than it ever has been before, by insisting on high standards of honesty in every phase of social intercourse, by making sure that the children born in our big cities have a decent chance to grow up to decent citizenship—in some such ways as these we may hope to find the cure.

If we fail—if we ignore the disease entirely, or fumble our efforts to get a remedy for it—you may rest assured that the disease will ultimately prove fatal to democracy as we understand it.

WAGES BY THE YEAR

THERE is a great deal of sound common sense in the suggestion of William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, that wage-earners in American industry be paid by the year instead of by the day.

To be sure, to put Mr. Green's plan into effect would call for some drastic, almost revolutionary changes in industrial relations. But the result might well be worth the trouble.

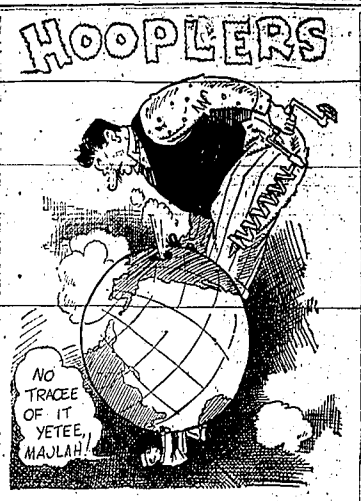
The annual wage system he proposes would go far to eliminate seasonal unemployment, and would probably have an even better effect by compelling manufacturers to spread their work evenly over the entire year rather than going at top speed for five months and idling at half-capacity for the remainder of the year. It is very probable that in the next few years we shall be hearing a great deal more of the plan. Let us hope that Mr. Green will keep hammering away at it.

WHY WE LIKE DIRIGIBLES

ONE OF THE British newspaperment who made the round trip across the Atlantic on the dirigible R-100 writes that the whole trip was reminiscent of Rudyard Kipling's fanciful tale—written a couple of decades or more ago—about transatlantic airships. There was the same sense of drama, of romance, the same feeling that the old science and tradition of the sea had been transfigured by being put into an entirely different setting.

It is that fact, probably, that makes most of us rather hope that commercial trans-Atlantic airship services will eventually be established. We don't care much whether they would be time-savers; they would be very thrilling, and that is enough for us. Whenever the imaginative fiction of the one age can be translated into the reality of the next we are all the gainers. That probably goes far to explain the general public enthusiasm for dirigibles.

HOOPLERS



End! Not to mention, By Jove, Major Hoople is off again! He has sprung three more "HOOPLERS" in "OUR BOARDING HOUSE"—and they're on Page 2. Turn to them—read 'em and see if you can answer them.

In the meantime he has prepared the answers for the two "Hoopler" that appeared yesterday. These are the Major's own answers and he sticks to them.

QUESTION 1—How cold is it when it is twice as cold as zero?

ANSWER—When it is twice as cold as zero, it would be that much colder than zero as zero is colder than what you think is cold. (Hoople denies twice as cold as zero would still be zero, even though he admits two times zero is still zero.)

QUESTION 2—If a hole were bored through the earth, to the opposite side, and you dropped a flatiron down it, would it come up in the air through the other end of the hole?

ANSWER—In the first place you can't bore a hole through the earth below about 60 miles it would constantly fill up—the earth at that point being plastic. However, if the hole could be bored through it, the heat of the earth would melt it. But—if the heat wouldn't melt it, the flatiron would pass practically all the way through, on its own momentum, but then be pulled back by the force of gravity and again it would pass the center of its momentum. The iron, in other words, would swing back and forth like a pendulum, but eventually stop at the center—goodness knows when.

At the Theatres

"FLORADORA GIRL" IS COMING TO IDAHO

A breath of a brilliant, if somewhat faded, past sweeps across the screen of the Idaho Theatre Wednesday and Thursday, when Marion Davies' latest talking picture, "The Floradora Girl", will be the feature attraction. For here we have a panorama of New York of the gay nineties when bathing suits had high necks and long sleeves, and a trip to Staten Island on a "bicycle built for two" was decidedly more of a treat than a motor trip is today.

The picturesque scenes, quaint costumes and outmoded morals depicted in "The Floradora Girl" offer a similar diversion to that of looking through Grandma's family album with the added interest of the droll characters coming to life and mouthing such old fashion sentiments as "Now I really don't like to slander the poor girl, but I heard that she was actually seen smoking a cigarette!"

From the Public

Editor Twin Falls Times,

About three years ago I contributed various articles to your paper, mostly on sports. The contributions were given without expectation of remuneration.

I am a regular subscriber of the Times, though I would like to write again occasionally for practice. The enclosed article is different from anything I have ever tried before. Do not know that it would be suitable for newspaper publication. If not I am sure there will be no offense felt nor is it expected for you to take the trouble of returning it. It makes no material difference whether or not my name is used.

With best wishes to yourself and the Times, I am,

Very Truly Yours,

THE DUFFER

He buys golf balls, which he promptly loses, in preference to a new spring frock for his wife, thinks nothing of driving the family car a hundred miles or so to play over some reputed difficult course, but vehemently vetoes a five mile drive for a family picnic because of the expense.

He goes around the course in something over a hundred, not counting those strokes when he misses the ball entirely. He digs up more turf than a professional gardener and uses more violent words than a mule skinner. From tee to green he is a perspiring, anathematizing maniac with no more control over his temper than he has over his ball. But in the club-house after the game he becomes instantly a jolly good fellow—and the most accomplished liar on earth. The angler can only stretch the length of "the ones that got away" a foot or so at the most, but the duffer stretches the length of his drive by yards and yards.

He returns home that evening more physically fagged than a well digger but refuses to take in a movie where he might possibly rest. Instead he betakes himself to the nearest miniature golf course thinking to improve his putting. All he improves is his cussing.

DESIGNER OF U. S. CAPITOL IS URGED FOR HALL OF FAME

WASHINGTON, (UP)—Charles Bulfinch, "the first American architect," and designer of the U. S. capitol, has been nominated to the Hall of Fame by the board of directors of the American Institute of Architects. Summaries of the achievements of the early American designer have been sent to each elector of the Hall of Fame by the Board.

"Few architects of today can boast of a list of such notable buildings as those designed by Bulfinch," says the board in its plea. It was stated that Bulfinch's record as a statesman during the formulative period of Boston should be sufficient to elect the architect to the Hall of Fame as a statesman, if not as an architect.

Bulfinch was born in Dowdein Square, Boston, August 8, 1763. He died April 15, 184—.

A graduate of Harvard, Bulfinch became interested in designing work while attending to improvements on his father's and friends' houses. Later he was able to make an extensive tour of Europe, studying the types of architecture used in the old cities.

While serving as a statesman in Boston, Bulfinch inaugurated street lighting, the system of co-education, established the first board of health, and the financial committee that brought about order and system in the method of collecting city taxes.

In 1817, after completing his second term on the board of selectmen, Bulfinch was appointed architect of the United States capital in Washington.

Among the many buildings designed by the architect are: the Connecticut State House in Hartford in 1792, the first theatre in Boston, and five institutional buildings, 10 churches, three hospitals, seven schools, and seven commercial and bank buildings.

with make-up even when he was a scene shifter.

"I just liked to make around with that fool stuff," he often related, "and I found out I could do some rather good stuff with it."

Screen producers also learned that Chaney "could do some rather good stuff" with make-up and he became the greatest of all make-up artists as he registered one hit after another in the Hunchback of Notre Dame, The Phantom of the Opera, Laugh Clown, Laugh, While the City Sleeps, West of Zanzibar and others.

Through all his screen career, Chaney achieved his grotesque appearances through his own skill at making up.

He refused to permit others to ply him and he refused to divulge his secret of how he made himself so unpleasant looking for such pictures as The Hunchback of Notre Dame, The Phantom of the Opera, West of Zanzibar and The Unholy Three.

Here's How to Conduct an Office on Blistering Days

Here it is, the office workers' Utopia. When a record-breaking heat wave threatened to disrupt the office of Walter Montague, millionaire sportsman and publisher, he transferred his office staff to his country estate near Baltimore, Md. Dictating machines, typewriters and special telephones were installed on the edge of his artificial pool and "business as usual," interspersed with swims and cooling drinks, was the order of the day.

HARD TO STOP

PUSH RESEARCH WITH ROCKETS

Steel Towers Are Built at Camp Devens for Experiments.

Worcester, Mass.—From a small depression in a remote corner of Camp Devens, near here, where thousands of American soldiers trained during the war, there will soon echo sounds of explosions reminiscent of war-time artillery practice, but the sounds will not be of big guns, says the Chicago Daily News.

They will be from rockets sailing upward from a steel tower to heights that cannot be predicted with certainty. Perhaps their greatest altitude for some time to come will be measured in only thousands, or even hundreds, of feet, but from them scientists are looking forward to the time when they will be able to explore heights above the earth far greater than any reached by airplanes or balloons. Perhaps eventually travel to the moon or even to other planets will become possible by a development of such rocket experiments.

Backed by Guggenheim.

The Camp Devens experiment is part of the work of Dr. Robert H. Goddard, professor of physics at Clark university here. Doctor Goddard is one of the pioneer students of this form of locomotion. It was in 1912, while at Princeton university, that he began his researches. In 1914 he went to Clark, where he has worked ever since. Much of his work has been done with the assistance of the Smithsonian institution and later of the Carnegie institution of Washington.

So important have been Doctor Goddard's researches and so much do they promise that now a grant has been made to him by Daniel Guggenheim in order that he may continue them with adequate facilities.

The Goddard rocket is essentially the same as the Fourth of July pyrotechnic, in that it is propelled by the recoil from the discharge of gases.

Professor Goddard has perfected a liquid propellant for his rocket which has many advantages over gunpowder or similar explosives. As this burns up as it is used the rocket continually becomes lighter. In scientific exploration of the upper atmosphere above the present altitude records instruments would be carried up and a parachute would bring them safely to earth after the charge had been exhausted.

Hope for Results.

Doctor Goddard does not promise when he will be able to send rockets up to these great altitudes. The only one he has fired so far are small affairs, which have only ascended a few hundred feet. Similar rockets will be fired from the Camp Devens station, though increasingly higher and higher altitudes should be attained. He compares his present experiments with the first efforts of the Wright brothers, who flew only a few feet but whose work laid the foundation for the development of the airplane.

After the rocket is perfected scientists expect many present-day puzzles will be solved. It will be possible to study the spectrum of the sun without the screening effect of the one layer 50 to 75 miles above the earth, which cuts out a large part of the solar radiation. Knowledge will doubtless be gained of the Kennelly-Heaviside layer, the ionized stratum in the atmosphere that makes possible long-distance radio.

Samples of the atmosphere from these high altitudes may be brought down for analysis, and it may prove that at these heights what rarefied atmosphere there is consists mainly of hydrogen and helium instead of oxygen and nitrogen. And then in the far distant future, perhaps, the scientists foresee the time when they can actually send a rocket to the moon, 240,000 miles away, or even to one of the other planets, millions, of miles distant.

Lynching Is Issue In South Carolina

COLUMBIA, S. C., Aug. 26 (UP)—South Carolina Democrats were choosing candidates for senator and governor today and indirectly settling an argument on lynching.

The lynching issue was brought into the campaign when Senator Cole L. Blease upheld it as the only successful method of preventing Negro assaults on white women.

BORE BRUNT OF EARTH TREMORS

"Apennines of Naples" Is Hardest Hit by Recent Quake in Italy.

Washington.—"Italy's recent earthquake was confined in its most destructive effects to the mountainous region known as the Apennines of Naples," says a bulletin from the National Geographic society.

"That north of Naples the mountain range that extends down the middle of the Italian peninsula loses its form at a definite ridge and breaks down into rather distinct mountain groups, joined by cross ranges and elevated saddles. This area of elevated masses and deep dells, where towns and villages perch on hilltops and cling to mountain slopes, has borne the brunt of the earth tremors. Farther to the east the tableland of Apulia has been shaken, too, but not so disastrously.

Crowded City in Beautiful Setting.

"Naples, situated where this broken section of the Apennines slopes down to the Tyrrhenian sea, and close to where Vesuvius has belched out cubic miles of lava, has been shaken severely as it has here many times before. The city is largely built of gray lava from Vesuvius, and in its old part consists of low houses along dark, narrow streets and alleys. It is Italy's most populous community in one of the world's most beautiful settings.

"Venosa, an inland town of 9,000 population, which suffered damage, was the birthplace in 64 B. C. of Horace, best loved of Roman poets. There is buried Robert Guiscard, great Norman soldier-duke, in the Church of St. Trinita, built by him in 1059.

"Melfi, another town in which the toll of life was large, lies near Venosa and under the pyramidal peaks of Monte Volture, which marks the southern extent of the Apennines of Naples. In Melfi, Robert Guiscard set up his capital until he captured Salerno on the coast, and made that town his headquarters. Melfi was practically wiped out of existence by an earthquake in 1851.

"Foggia, farthest east of the towns to feel the marked force of the recent quake, lies near the Adriatic side of the peninsula. It is the capital of the great Apulian tableland that was once a huge sheep pasture, maintaining millions of the animals. The town is large (70,000), and with its low white houses, has a somewhat oriental aspect. It was largely destroyed by an earthquake in 1731. The Apulian tableland that surrounds it has been called Italy's most dreary and barren area.

"Nearby is Lucera, where Emperor Frederick II planted his famous Saracen mercenaries, 60,000 strong, in the first years of the Thirteenth century. Frederick lived among these Moslems, dressed as the sultan of Lucera, maintained a harem guarded by eunuchs, and used his Mohammedan forces in his struggles against the Christian soldiers of the Papacy.

One of Italy's Oldest Towns.

"Benevento, where property was damaged and lives lost, is a thriving town, capital of the region between Foggia and Naples. It is finely situated on a mountain high above the Appian Way and its two rivers. There stands one of the most imposing of the triumphal arches outside Rome, erected to Trajan. It is one of the oldest of Italian towns and stood out against the Romans successfully until 270 B. C.

"Potenza, base of operations for some of the relief expeditions, was itself stricken by the recent tremors. It lies on a low saddle which cuts the Apennines and roughly marks the southwestern limit of destruction. This town of 14,000 inhabitants, was almost completely razed by the earthquake in 1857, which devastated the region of the Apennines of Naples."

EXPLANATION TO YESTERDAY'S CARTOON

The Garthwray's Roughest Trip—The Garthwray left Grangemouth, Scotland on June 12, 1922 headed for the west coast of South America by way of Cape Horn. Could not arrive at Iquique, Chile, its destination, until December 23, 1922. The intervening 519 days, in which the log showed a distance of 21,000 miles, constitutes one of the stormiest epics of the sea ever written. It was replete with hurricanes, sixty-foot high seas, dangers, hardships, and constantly threatening disasters. The story was published in all leading newspapers during March 1924.

The Wilson Phalarope—The egg of Wilson's Phalarope, which is an American bird, are incubated by the male alone. Contrary to the rule prevailing in bird life, the females are larger than the males, more handsomely colored, and more aggressive than their males.

Crepe paper soaked in a small amount of water, and then squeezed out will result in ink that can be used in an emergency.

Achievement Stories Of Women Are Sought

In order to enlarge records which ultimately will have historical value, the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs is announcing a nation-wide contest for women for the best stories of the achievements of business and professional women submitted within the next two months. Word of the competition which is being held in cooperation with the Exposition of Women's Arts and Industries, of which Mrs. Oliver Harriman is chairman, has been sent to the 1,200 clubs comprising the federation which has a membership of 60,000 women throughout the United States.

According to Miss Emily Kneubuhl, executive secretary of the National Federation, the purpose of the competition is to add to the large fund of material on the progress of women in the business world already assembled by the federation as part of its service as a business women's organization.

Attractive Awards

The finest individual story of the achievement of a business woman submitted by October 1, will win the first prize, of $50. The next best story will be given honorable recognition and a prize of $25. Records of odd and unusual occupations followed by women, stories of women who have built up businesses for themselves, who have attained high executive positions against heavy odds, or who have secured distinctive success in a field unfamiliar to women—these are the types of material sought.

"Increasingly," Miss Kneubuhl states, "magazine and newspaper writers are coming to the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs for information as to women who are scoring unusual successes. Much valuable material is already on our files, but we are certain that there are thousands of human interest stories about business women lying unrecorded in hundreds of cities and towns throughout the country.

A group of prominent New York women who are vice-chairmen of the Exposition have been asked to serve on the committee of judges. Judging of the manuscripts will be 50 per cent on their own merits and 50 per cent on the brilliance of the achievements they record.

Anyone Eligible

The contest is open to any woman in the United States whether or not she is a member of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs. The contestants may write of their own business success or may tell of the enterprise of some other woman.

Manuscripts must not exceed 1,000 words in length. To be accepted, manuscripts must reach the offices of the federation, 1819 Broadway, New York City, prior to midnight on the evening of September 31. Entries must be addressed to the Women's Achievement Contest. Two copies of each manuscript must be submitted.

The publicity committee of the local Business and Professional Women's club calls this matter particularly to the attention of the many local women interested in writing.

Picking up the slayer's trail near his abandoned automobile on the Hobsewell highway, the posse struck off into the deep woods in pursuit.

A forest ranger, who knew Vann, saw the slayer farther into the woods, armed and provisioned, a pack on his back. At the time he was unaware of the tragedy at Stillwater inn.

From there, the trail rapidly faded and pursuers became more difficult. Sheriff Ralph Hopke said it was doubtful whether or not Vann would be taken alive unless privation forced him from his retreat.

Reading of a letter complaining of the noise from radio loudspeakers operated by business firms along Main avenue precipitated a discussion of an ordinance to prohibit this sort of disturbance, but no definite action was taken.

His back against the huge steel door controlling the opening of all Folsom prison's cell blocks, Warren K. Billings, indicated by arrow, convicted of the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness Day bombing, is shown here as he faced six California supreme court justices in a hearing unprecedented in American legal history. Curtiss, John W. Shenk, Emmet Seawell, Chief Justice William H. Waste, the court stenographer and Justice John W. Preston.

DOCTORED EGGS PRODUCE ODD BABY CHICKENS

LONDON, (UP)—Turkey eggs that produce White Leghorn hens and Rhode Island Red eggs that hatch a "duck-chicken" may be possible as the process of transferring yolks from one egg to another develops.

Poultry experts who deal with nutrition believe that experiments which have been going on for some time will make this possible. Mlle. Bouges, a French representative to the World's Poultry Congress, has made a survey of such experiments.

She says it is well known that foodstuffs affect organs of the body, both by their amount and by their composition. The effect is said to be more noticable in young than in adults. Little has been known in the past, according to the French nutrition expert of the influence of diet on embryonic development.

Experiments conducted to influence the embryonic diet of the chicken by modifying the contents of the egg have been done by means of a hypodermic needle during the incubation stages of the egg.

To perform such experiments the shell is pierced and good materials are added, removed, or exchanged. After the egg has been pierced, the shell is repaired with plaster of paris. The small amount of air and light which enter the egg seems to do little damage. Mlle. Bouges first recorded success with two eggs of the Leghorn breed. The chickens produced had quite normal appearance and developed into normal, healthy fowls.

Mlle. Bouges says the process has been applied to about 600 eggs, and the operations include the exchange of yolks between eggs of the same breed and those of different breeds, and also between hen eggs, turkey eggs and duck eggs. "Birds resulting from these experiments have been interesting," she says.

Characteristics of coloring are believed to be modified by the influence of diet and some experiments have led poultry breeders to believe that diet also may play a part as one of the factors determining sex.

Card Club Losers Entertain at Golf

BURLEY, August 26, (Special)—The golf tournament at the miniature course, played by the Big Pak Kewis club of Burley, which were included, Friday evening following a dinner of smart appointments at the National hotel, was enjoyed by those participating. Miss Lillian Delamater of Hollywood, California, won high score for ladies, and William Scullian for men. The occasion was the annual entertainment of the lows for the highs with Mrs. H. G. Sattre chairman of the hostess committee, which included Mesdames J. W. Burgess, H. L. Harpster, Fred Cater, J. C. Lynch, and I. H. Harris. Tentative plans of the club will be resumed in the very near future, at the request of the president, Mrs. A. G. Sathre, at which time a new president, vice-president, and secretary-treasurer will be elected to succeed the following officers of the club, Mrs. A. G. Sathre, president; Mrs. Roscoe Hich, vice-president; and Mrs. Fred Cater, secretary-treasurer. Much work has been accomplished by the club in its history, the public library being its favored objective, in the past years of work.

Mrs. C. L. Barclay and daughter Miss Mary and Miss Gwendolyn Griffeth left Monday morning on an outing through Yellowstone park, on to Montana, stopping at Missoula to visit friends, then on to Kellogg where Miss Barclay teaches biology in the high school and Miss Griffeth, home economics. Miss Barclay will journey to the state convention of Federated clubs at Hayden lake held September 3-5, after a few days visit at Kellogg.

V. C. Claar, secretary of the Idaho Wool Growers' association, accompanied by Earl Walters of Filer, left Friday for the National ram sale at Salt Lake, which will be held at the stock yards, August 25-28. Mr. Claar also attended a national lamb advertising meeting, held at Hotel Utah, August 23.

C. H. Booth, formerly of Burley, who is living in Boston at the present, is here, looking after his many business interests, making the National hotel his headquarters.

Miss Perrine of Twin Falls, who is one of the librarians there was in Burley Friday, instructing local librarians, Mrs. Frank Parker, Mrs. Homer Taylor, Mrs. J. R. Arthur and a group of girls, in the rebinding of books.

Mrs. Parker, city librarian, is very appreciative of the instruction given, turning it beautiful work, very cleverly done, which will make it possible for the ones receiving the able instruction to do the rebinding and repairing in the future.

Fren Moore, extension poultryman and a representative of the economics department of the University of Idaho, will be in the county, August 26 to assist County Agent Palmer in the starting of several poultry management records. These records will cover the cost of production, returns and other data regarding the flock. It is expected that there will be five or six classes. This flock management will be devoted entirely to chickens.

The second of a series of bridge dinners was charmingly given at the home of Mrs. H. E. Dean on Burton avenue, Thursday evening, with Mrs. G. H. Tonison, joint hostess of the occasion. Bridge was played at seven tables with Mrs. E. Nichols winning high score favor, Mrs. D. E. Warren was awarded draw-out selecting the right number from a bouquet from which the numbers were drawn. At the dinner tables a color note of pink was used. The home was artistically decorated with beautiful baskets of flowers.

Mrs. Loren Lewis entertained her Bon Hour club, at her home on Burton avenue Friday afternoon, bridge being played at three tables. Mrs. D. L. Pence who has recently been asked to join the club, drew the lucky number favor of the occasion. Following the games, Mrs. Lewis assisted by her daughter, Irma, served a delicious tea.

Nevada Ranchers Shoe Range Bulls

RENO, Nevada (Special)—The blacksmithing industry, which suffered a setback with the coming of the automobile, has received a new stimulus in Nevada recently in practice adopted by some range livestock men—of putting shoes on their bulls.

In at least two counties of the state ranchers have shod bulls which go out on the range, and the practice is expected to spread to the entire state, according to information received by the Nevada agricultural extension service from its agents.

A special bull shoe of two pieces is used on account of the cloven hoof of the animal, and it is put on by use of a specially constructed frame to hold the bull.

Advantage of shoeing the range bulls each year, which they believe is caused by sore feet, a better calf crop, better condition of the bulls as they come off the range and consequent better prices when the bulls are sold in the fall, are also said to result from the practice.

general (Gillis has announced he will refuse the nomination).

Myrtle Davis, state superintendent of schools.

Stuart Campbell, mining commissioner.

Oscar Halley, lieutenant governor (if he wishes).

The delegates will be busily engaged this afternoon in forming organization committees, listening to keynote speeches and balloting for governor. The delegates will reconvene Wednesday morning for further nominations.

The race of secretary of state seems to be a four-way affair with Lakeman, Harry Rogers, Wallace, Ted Ellsworth, Ripby, and John McKinney, all striving for the nomination.

Prohibition may or may not reach the convention floor depending largely, it was reported on the ability of Senator Callahan of Shoshone county who will introduce in committee an anti-prohibition plank. Callahan indicated today he would insist on a minority report in event his stand is ruled out—and it will be said that, according to close observers.

POLITICAL EXILE SEES DISCONTENT ACROSS THE SEA

PARIS, Aug. 26, (UP)—New life would be given European peace if France should return to Germany a few of the colonies it gained under the Versailles treaty, Count Michael Karolyi, former president of Hungary and now a political exile, believes.

Internationally recognized for his knowledge of world political events, Count Karolyi gave his views on the trend of European politics since his return from his lecture tour in the United States.

"So long as the spirit of Fascism continues to inspire and excite the principal nations of Europe," declared Count Karolyi, "so long will danger of war exist, but even underlying that is the old sore of economic conditions. The only nation sound economically in Europe today is France and so France does not want war, but those nations which are not sound, and Germany is in the forefront, will not remain tranquil as they are, under their present leaders.

"They will seek war. Anything will do as a pretext—revenge, necessity for expansion, anything—but the result will be the same in any case."

Thornton's Face Is His Fortune

NEW YORK.—When it comes to using the old brain to make a fortune, you've got to hand it to Walter Thornton.

Few people know his name, but many have seen his head and face for he is the most sought-after young man in New York by advertisers.

You've probably seen his countenance on numerous car cards, magazine ads, automobile layouts and in all sorts of apparel, for he is the young man with features considered 100 per cent perfect by illustrators and photographers.

A few years ago he was a brick layer. Dull season found him out of a job and, finding he had such excellent features, he started posing. Now he is making a fortune from his face.

THE TINYMITES

STORY by HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES by KNICK

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE).

The long canal trip soon was o'er. Once more the bunch were back onshore, hopping in a big machine they took a long, long drive. "We're going back to Atlantic now. This car will get us there somehow," explained the Travel Man. 'In just a few hours we'll arrive."

They drove through open country and the Tinymites thought it was grand. "I've never seen such pretty trees," said Scouty. "Just look here! The leaves are green all year, can be a sight like that appeals to me. Goo. If this ride took several days, I'm sure I wouldn't care."

"I'd rather hurry back to town," said Clowny, "where I could settle down. I know a nap would do me good. For hours I wouldn't peep." The others only smiled at him. Said one, "You never seem in trim. I guess you must be lazy, 'cause you always want to sleep."

And then they passed a farm. Good stretch and Coppy said, "I'd like to catch a ride on that farm wagon, if the farmer wouldn't care. Just look! Big oxen pull it. See! I'll bet they're lazy as can be. The wheels are made of wood and it's a queer two-wheeled affair."

The Travel Man then, with a smile, said, "Well, come on, let's stop a while. The peasant looks quite friendly. Note how strange by he is dressed." The peasant shortly met each one. Said he, "I'll help you have some fun." The Tinymites felt real lucky, treated with kindness they were blessed.

The helped the man pitch hay a while. "I travel now for half a mile," said he. "And then I pack the hay in my barn, safe and sound. Now, if you want a ride today just hop right up there on the hay." The Tinies did and shortly went a bumping over the ground.
