PASTOR SOUNDS FIRST NOTE OF RELIGIOUS WAR

Evangelist Charges Attacks on Her Version of Kidnaping Are Result of Malicious Combination of Churchmen.

(By The Associated Press)

LOS ANGELES, July 28.—Aimee Semple McPherson, evangelist, founder of the $1,000,000 Angelus Temple here, sounded the note of a religious war here tonight in the controversy raging on her kidnapping story, when she made the sweeping charge that attacks on her version of her absence between May 18 and June 23 were the result of a plot to wreck the temple, founded by a combination of Catholics and Protestants.

In a lengthy statement the woman religious leader of the "four square gospel" movement directly accused Captain Herman Cline, chief of detectives of Los Angeles and Joseph Ryan, deputy district attorney, of making a "determined effort to dig up dirt and filth wherever they could and hurl it at me."

Charges Persecution.

Cline and Ryan, respectively father-in-law and son-in-law, are, according to Mrs. McPherson's statement, "both Catholics, prosecuting a Protestant minister."

"A jealous rival pastor," unnamed, was pointed to by the evangelist as the Protestant author of an "outburst of calumny."

Refusing to comply with Cline's request that she permit her finger prints to be compared with some found in a cottage at Carmel, several days ago, and allow samples of her handwriting to be laid alongside script in a woman's hand discovered there, Mrs. McPherson said:

"Submit myself to the police finger prints—I who was abducted? Let them find my fingerprints and finger-print them. Not only do they try to befoul my name; they also try to insult my intelligence."

Time for Showdown

She asserted:

"The time at last has come for the final showdown before the great American public. I will reveal a sequence of sinister events, a chain of evidence which will make the motive of the whole damnable conspiracy apparent." Then she declared that Cline and Ryan changed their friendly attitudes towards her after she employed her present attorneys in preference to a man suggested by Cline.

The evangelist's statement concluded:

"The lust for gain, the glitter of envy known as fame, the devil's convention at its height because in Angelus temple hundreds of souls are being brought to Jesus."

Chief of Detectives Cline returned late today from Carmel-by-the-Sea, and went to the office of District Attorney Asa Keyes, where he said he would lay all the evidence in the McPherson case found in the north before the district attorney.

FLAMES SPREAD DESPITE EFFORT

Reports to Forest Headquarters Indicate Larger Conflagrations Rage Unattended.

MISSOULA, Mont., July 28. (AP)—Fires scattered through the Kaniksu forest of northern Idaho and eastern Washington have spread to 65,000 acres and several of the larger conflagrations are unattended, reports to headquarters of the Montana-Idaho-Washington district indicated today. The largest of those, the Sullivan lake fire, is said to be spreading rapidly. A large force of fighters today centered their attention on the Quartz creek fire in an attempt to check its advance into especially valuable timber areas.

Spread of the Hay creek fire, which yesterday entered Glacier national park, caused grave concern today, while two other barriers of flame, joining on the Blackfeet forest and scattering over 5000 acres was defying the efforts of 70 men attempting to hold the line.

Need Reinforcements

Need of reinforcements in the Kootenai forest was expressed in messages received here today. Strong, drying winds were said to be hindering the fighters. The Ruby creek fire in this district is out of control, and one new fire was reported as the result of lightning.

Two new fires are said to be burning on the Flathead forest.

A force of 100 men now is combating the flames in the Clearwater reserve, where yesterday a heavy wind blew spot fires as far as ten miles from the main conflagration.

Four lightning fires were reported today on the Helena forest near the state capital. One of these, close to the gate of the mountain, a scenic point on the Missouri river, is but a short distance from the outskirts of Helena.

Ferguson Charges Klan With Defeat Of Texas Governor

Husband of State Executive Issues Statement Regarding Recent Primary Election.

AUSTIN, Texas, July 28. (AP)—James E. Ferguson, in a statement tonight charged that the Ku Klux Klan was the "silent force" behind the defeat of his wife, Governor Miriam A. Ferguson, in last Saturday's primary.

"Nobody need be surprised to see the fiery cross in evidence and this crowd is so wild with victory that we need not be surprised to see a Ku Klux Klan parade in the next 60 days and perhaps some good American will fall a victim of the lash," the former governor declared.

"I hope in due course to be able to learn the real reasons for the results in last Saturday's election" Ferguson said. "I think the opposition in their desire to gloat over the defeat of a woman will aid us in getting evidence."

Ferguson said that regardless of personal feeling "my good wife and I are desirous and hopeful that Attorney General Dan G. Moody's administration may be one of service to the people."

EXPENSE PROBE FIGURES MOUNT

Senate Investigating Committee Uncovers Additional $177,000 in Day's Labors.

CHICAGO, July 28. (AP)—Another contribution by Samuel Insull, Chicago utilities magnate, to the campaign funds raised in the April Illinois primary was disclosed today before the senate campaign funds committee.

It was $10,000 paid to the powerful Crowe-Barrett republican faction of Cook county, which generally supported Frank L. Smith, chairman of the Illinois commerce commission, in his successful fight to wrest the republican senatorial nomination from Senator William L. McKinley.

The disclosure was known initially by Insull during the primary campaign to be $193,755.19, of which $125,000 was a gift to the Smith organization, $15,000 to George E. Brennan, who won the democratic senatorial nomination and $10,000 to the Deneen group in Cook county.

Insull's contribution was testified to by Charles V. Barrett, of Chicago, treasurer of the Crowe-Barrett organization, who disclosed also that his group spent a total approximating $175,000. This with other but smaller expenditures testified to during the day raised the known total in the Illinois primary to $965,655.47.

This total is divided as follows:

Senator William M. McKinley, $352,016.72.

Frank L. Smith $233,547.61.

George E. Brennan $230,841.42.

Deneen organization $120,894.63.

Crowe-Barrett group $175,000.00.

Insull direct for anti-world court propaganda $33,735.19.

The $10,000 Insull contribution revealed to day was withheld from the committee by the donor last Monday until he could confer with counsel as to the authority of the committee to compel an answer. He had been given until tomorrow to reach a final decision and Chairman Reed indicated tonight that he would be recalled and asked if he had made any contributions other than those disclosed by himself or the witnesses.

Catholic Churches In Mexico Will Not Suspend All Rites

Only Services of Religion That Require Intervention of Priests to be Discontinued, Statement Reveals.

MEXICO CITY, July 28. (AP)—The archbishopric issued a statement today declaring that the withdrawal of the priests from the churches on August 1, as announced in the recent pastoral letter, does not mean complete suspension of religious services.

Holy communion, confirmations, confessions and consecration sacraments which require the intervention of priests will be suspended, services which can be continued without the intervention of priests are modified masses, marriages and baptisms.

The archbishopric also announced that during the cessation of the priests' activities, a sincere act of repentance on the part of a Mexican Catholic will be considered equivalent to the confession necessary for death and marriage sacraments.

Churches Remain Open

After the priests' departure the churches will remain open and worshipers may enter at will. Laymen will act as the place of priests at the altar but worshipers may congregate and read from the prayer book as if the priest before the altar were saying mass. For the rosary, a secular may lead the worshippers in prayer, but, without taking the place of the priest before the altar. Seculars may perform marriages and baptisms, both properly witnessed and recorded, certificates being signed which the priests will officially reaffirm when they resume their functions.

YOUNGER FORD IS OPTIMISTIC OVER AIRWAYS

Son of Detroit Manufacturer Paints Confident Picture of Commercial Aviation in Conference With Coolidge.

(By The Associated Press.)

BAR HARBOR, Me., July 28.—The future of commercial aviation was pictured in confident terms today by Edsel Ford, son of the Detroit manufacturer, during his call on President Coolidge.

Invited to White Pine camp to be the guest, with Mrs. Ford, of the president and Mrs. Coolidge, the young man who heads the aviation activities of the Ford interests, reported on the progress he is making in developing the art of commercial flying and also brought an optimistic view of business conditions generally in the country.

To President Coolidge, who long has indicated a deep interest in the possibilities of flying in this country and particularly through the development of aviation in civil life, Mr. Ford was able to say that while his company does not intend at present, if ever, to enter commercial flying extensively, it is developing engines and plans which it regards as sound and efficient and believes there will be sufficient demand for them to make their manufacture in considerable quantities a paying investment.

Interest Increasing

Much remains to be done, he said, but interest in the new industry is increasing, there are many more commercial planes now than there were two years ago and the Ford company is ready to go ahead with airplane production.

Arriving yesterday, Mr. Ford remained with the president until this afternoon, when he departed for Bretton woods, New Hampshire, and Seal Harbor, Maine. He accompanied the chief executive this morning to the executive office and at that time received newspaper correspondents, outlining to them the aviation situation with the aid of memoranda he had brought for the inspection of the president.

Business Conditions Good

Business conditions also came in for comment, Mr. Ford declaring that from the sales of the Ford Motor company, he regarded them as extremely good, with the only unfavorable spots in the Dakotas and Minnesota, where poor crop conditions, due to drought, have had a retarding influence.

The Pacific coast 18 months ago, he added, was in a period of retrogression or depression, but now is well recovered, while sales in the corn belt region would indicate a prosperous condition there.

The country, in fact, he said, is in

PRINCE MAKES LAST ADDRESS

Gustaf Adolf Thanks America in Final Talk to Citizens at San Francisco Dinner.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 28. (AP)—Crown Prince Gustaf Adolf of Sweden, speaking before his last American audience before he continues his world tour, discussed briefly the things that impressed him most during his visit to the United States, at a banquet given in his honor by the chamber of commerce here tonight.

The vastness of the country, the dashing and energetic spirit of enterprise, the national parks, American culture, and the hospitality of the people were among the subjects mentioned by the royal visitor.

"Who must not admire the iron works at Gary, their rapid development and masterly organization, he said in discussing the nation's business and industrial enterprise. "Who does not find the automobile industry in Detroit with its phenomenal output to be one of the most remarkable things in modern industry, and a triumph of organization?"

Compliments Railroads.

"And the signal system of railroads, drawn through deserts and mountainous districts over thousands and thousands of miles, how have they not contributed to the extention of civilization and to the common cultural welfare of the people? I want to pay a special compliment to the American railroads as well as other means of communication, they are indeed admirably organized.

"And the national parks have perhaps struck us more than anything else (among the natural beauty of the country) by their grand scenery,

Rids Los Angeles Of Rodent Pests; Honored by City

Dr. Rupert Blue Completes Campaign Against Rats and Plague in Coast Metropolis.

LOS ANGELES, July 28. (AP)—Dr. Rupert Blue, assistant surgeon general, announced here today at the completion of his battle of months against rats and plague, that the fight had been won and Los Angeles now was entitled to a clean bill of health.

Dr. Blue's announcement was made at a gathering held in his honor by the Los Angeles chamber of commerce during which he was presented with a handsome testimonial of his work here.

In replying he said:

"Owing to the cooperation of the health commissioner and his department, and the loyalty of property owners generally, in rat proofing their premises, the work has been done in a comparatively short time."

CROWDS THRONG TO SHRINE FOR CHURCH RITES

High and Low, Roman Catholics of Mexico Make Their Way to Favorite Places of Worship; Pray for Relief.

(By The Associated Press.)

MEXICO CITY, July 28.—Mexico presented again today a picture, perhaps unprecedented since the middle ages, of vast assemblages throughout the nation moved in unison by extreme religious emotion.

From wretched hovels and the sumptious residences of grandees, the faithful of the Roman Catholic church swept in countless multitudes to their places of worship, beseeching the divine authority to come to the relief of the faith they believe to be endangered.

Each day worshippers have come to the Mexico City cathedral and the shrine Guadalupe in increasing numbers. Today they overflowed all the area around the cathedral, sweeping in solid streams through all the roads leading to the shrine of Guadalupe, the favorite saint of Mexico and dear at beloved of the Indians throughout the nation.

All Churches Filled

Every Catholic church throughout the country held its greatest crowd. Sunday Saturday the last day on which Catholic priests will officiate in the churches, in obedience to pastoral orders withdrawing the priests as a protest against the government's new religious regulations, the faithful of that religious are engaged in an intense movement to avail themselves to the utmost of the rites of their church while the opportunity permits.

The government firmly continued today its preparations for inflexible enforcement of the regulations, and also its investigation of the proposed opposition of these regulations in the form of an "economic boycott" under the leadership of the league for the defense of religious liberty.

Executives Under Arrest.

The executives of the league who are prominent citizens, are under arrest charged with inciting the people to disorder by their program, which if put into effect, would mean the purchase of only absolute necessaries, so that business and industry would diminish and the government suffer embarrassment possibly sufficient to cause modification of its religious attitude.

Consideration is still being given by the government to the question of a judicial examination, leading to the formal arrest of the archbishop and bishops who signed the recent pastoral letter, if it is decided that this document constitutes sedition.

No further information has been received of the reported killing of

Mysterious Attack On Mellett Family

Puzzle to Probers

Gas Released From Unknown Source Envelopes Porch of Home; Six Become Ill.

CANTON, Ohio, July 28. (AP)—A mysterious gas attack of serious consequences on the members of the family of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher tonight was perplexing investigators, delving into the assassination of Mellett July 14.

The widow of Don, and their four children and Mrs. Lloyd Mellett, wife of the dead man's brother, became ill from an obnoxious gas which enveloped the front porch of the Mellett home. Two members of the Canton police force at the home also detected the gas which they described as having a sickly sweet odor. No evidence of a bomb or container which might have been broken were found in the vicinity.

The Melletts could not recall having seen an automobile pass the house before the gas swept across the porch where the women and children were.

They discounted a theory that the vapor might have been released from a gas gun such as police rioting squads use. They also leave a trail of smoke.

GOVERNORS ARE RODEO GUESTS

State Executives End Twelfth Annual Conference by Attending Wild West Show.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 28. (AP)—After three days occupied with examining the problems and defects of their own state governments, 30 governors forgot state affairs late today as their twelfth annual conference came to a close and watched the luminaries of the cowboy world perform in a brilliant retrospect of the days of old western frontier.

"Top hands" of the range lands competed in the thirteenth renewal of the Cheyenne frontier days celebration, before an August sun, possessing as this city ever has seen. Cowboys competed for the world's champion slip broncho "busting" honors, other cowboys and cowgirls tossed lariats with startling skill and courageous "punchers," leapt from their galloping mounts on to the necks of full grown steers to toss them with their bare hands in the cowboy's most dangerous sport—bull dogging. Indians from three tribes—the Sioux, the Shoshone and Arapahoe—once enemies of the white governors joined with the cowboys in exhibitions of skill in bareback riding and lariat throwing.

Name Bronchos

In the bucking contest each broncho was named for a governor and the cowboy riders strove to master the outlaw horses with every trick of horsemanship. Wild yells from the lips of 15,000 persons greeted each governor as he was introduced to the crowd.

During the closing sessions this morning the state executives elected Nellie Taylor Ross, Wyoming's woman governor, as a member of the conference's executive committee in company with Governors John Hammill, Iowa; John W. Martin, Florida; Adam McMullen, Nebraska, and Ralph O. Brewster, Maine.

Little Rock, Arkansas, and Baton Rouge, Louisiana, invited the governors to hold their 1927 conference there. St. Paul and Honolulu previously had indicated they would submit bids for the 1927 conference but did not present any invitations.

Voelker Will Tell Ramifications of Poison Booze Ring

Attorneys for Alleged Distributor Announce Client Is Ready to Give Information; Death Toll Mounts.

BUFFALO, N. Y., July 28. (AP)—Announcement by attorneys for Vincent Voelker, alleged poison liquor distributor, that he would tell all he knew about the ramifications of the ring with which he did business, featured developments today in the investigation into the poisonous alcohol situation here. The death toll resulting from the sale of 3500 gallons of bad alcohol said to have been shipped here from New York as pure grain alcohol, mounted to 41.

The latest victims were reported dead in Jamestown, N. Y., and Toronto, Ont.

Makes Partial Confession

Major Eugene C. Roberts, Jr., by administrator, made it known that Voelker in a partial confession said that he sold 400 gallons of the alcohol shipment and that he had 100 gallons still in his possession when he learned it was poisonous and delivered it.

Ernest W. McIntyre, counsel for Voelker, said his client was the innocent victim of those who sold him the bad liquor.

Voelker pleaded not guilty to a charge of murder. He was remanded to jail without bail.

WITNESSES FOR DEFENSE HEARD IN PETEET CASE

More Than Dozen Persons Take Stand to Recount Movements of San Diego Family During Sojourn in Tijuana.

(By The Associated Press)

TIJUANA, Lower California, July 28.—Cabaret entertainers, resort proprietors, police officers and others were called to the stand today in the second day's trial of former Police Chief Zenaido Lanos and three other men charged with statutory offenses last February against Clyde and Audrey Peteet, aged 18 and 23 respectively. The two girls with their parents later ended their lives in their home in San Diego supposedly from remorse over their experience here.

More than a dozen witnesses were heard. Their testimony dealt principally with the movements of Thomas M. Peteet, father of the two girls, and his family during their four days' visit here which culminated February 3, in the alleged drugging and subsequent attacking of the two girls.

To Speed Up Trial.

Judge Saturino Urias, holding court in improvised quarters in the municipal building, announced that every effort would be made to speed up the trial. The session tonight continued long after the usual closing hour despite refusal of American border authorities to permit unreturning of the party to San Diego after 6 p. m. This hour was set by the United States government as the limit time for returning to the American side following agitation for stricter border regulations after the Peteet deaths.

Ramon Cerma, policeman here, told of having escorted Audrey Peteet to a hotel here after she had been sent back from Tia Juana hot springs, a resort several miles distant, by police chief Lanos.

Describes Visit.

He was followed to the stand by Francisco Krauss, police official, who described a visit of Peteet to the police station here seeking Clyde Peteet. Krauss said he accompanied Peteet to a hotel where the girl later charged she had been attacked by Louis Amador, one of the defendants. On finding his daughter, Krauss said, the family returned to San Diego.

Juanita Kniser, concession proprietor and "Duchess" McGarvie, cabaret entertainer, told the jury of having met the Peteet family and that they were intoxicated on several occasions.

Jack Emery, former manager of the hot springs hotel where Audrey Peteet charged incidents involving police chief Lanos, was placed on the stand and corroborated statements of Lanos tending to disprove the girl's charges.

Service Refused.

Jack Watkins, a bartender, described a visit of Mrs. Peteet and her two daughters to his saloon seeking to drink a cheer. He declared the trio was intoxicated to the extent that service was refused.

ACCORD AWAITS FALL SESSIONS

Consideration of Ratification of Debt Agreements Laid Over Until October.

PARIS, July 28. (AP)—Ratification of the Washington and London debt agreement must wait until the chamber of deputies convenes in October. The premier, Poincare, made clear to the finance committee of the chamber when he appeared before that body today to urge the passage of the financial bill.

He reiterated the statement contained in the ministerial declaration of France's most earnest desire to settle its intermitted debts, "within the measure of its capacity for payment."

M. Poincare gave no inkling as to accords, but said that the financial bill was the most important and that parliament lacked time to open a long discussion, which undoubtedly would follow the introduction of the ratification bills.

Favors Finance Bill

The financial bill was approved in principle, 502 ayes, the chamber committing, 30 ay, 115 nay, 48 abstaining. The separate articles, however, met with stiffer opposition, one of them, number 4, dealing with the tax on railroad passenger and freight rates, being defeated.

This gave the premier an opportunity to show what a strong hold he has on the deputies, when, after he had discussed the question privately with finance committee, the house reversed their decisions and approved the articles in 12 ...

EAST HAMPTON, N. Y., July 28 (AP)—Playing her first tournament match since she underwent an operation for appendicitis two months ago in Paris, Helen Wills today defeated Mrs. Edward Raymond of New York in the second round of a women's invitation tennis event at the Maidstone club, 6-1, 6-4.

INDIANS TAKE TWO CONTESTS

Cleveland Increases Hold on Second Place by Copping Twin Bill From Mackmen.

CLEVELAND, July 28 (AP)—Cleveland increased its hold on second place to full three games today when it won two contests from Philadelphia, taking the first 5 to 2 and the second 2 to 0.

The victories were acquired as a result of the superior pitching by Levsen and Uhle, the two Cleveland hurlers striking out 13 Athletics and frequently breaking up rallies by fanning batters.

Uhle in the second game allowed but one man to reach second, that being in the ninth inning.

Ehmke also pitched effectively, both Cleveland runs being the result of errors of judgement.

FOUL BALLS

By Podge.

Now, isn't that the chicken's aching molar? Just when it looks as though the Bruins were away to a good start the balloon goes up and away.

Only eight errors. Rosy got three of them and Gorman and Apperson each got one chalked up against them. Oh, well, you read the box score.

A bad start for Red Holmes may mean a good ending. He evidently was not used to the high altitude or something, for he issued nine free tickets.

It looks as though the local fans would see nine games on the local lot. Three with the Bannocks and six with Ogden. Ought to know the Ogden gang pretty well by the end of the week.

The game Saturday with Pocatello will be played at Buhl at 2 p. m. The game Friday will start at the usual hour 5 p. m. and the Sunday game at 2.

The Bruins can still take the series by winning the game today. Probably Bahr will pitch and according to the dope he should be right. He lost his first start against the Bees but was up against one of those freak days.

Notice that Prentice was in there yesterday and got one safe blow. He has the rep of being a slugger. It sorta looks as though the skipper would use him in the out field and put Backer on third.

Apperson passed Gorman in the fight for base stealing honors. Phil got two yesterday making him 26 to 25 for his teammate.

Can anybody beat those Spuds! Logan had 'em licked until the ninth. The Bruins can't get on top unless some of these other teams lick Bill Leard.

Only one more day to wait and then we can see how it happens. Friday at 5 p. m. That's all.

BRAVES SCALP CHICAGO CUBS

Errorless Ball Features Boston's 13-Inning Victory Over Western Opponents.

BOSTON, July 28 (AP)—Errorless ball and sensational fielding featured Boston's 13 inning victory over Chicago here today. The Braves won three to two when singles by Welsh and Brown and a base on balls to Moore filled the bases, and Burrus's hit past Grimm scored Welsh after High had popped. It was Boston's fifth straight win, and its second straight over the Cubs in the present series.

NEW YORK—The latest sartorial rage in the metropolis is the "skeleton cap," a transparent visor held in position by straps across the head. It is a modification of the so-called "Helen Wills eye shade" and has become so popular that a leading five-and-ten store announces sales of 300,000.

MODERN AIDS TO BEAUTY BANNED BY OLD STATUTE

Ancient French Law Prohibits Women to Beguile Men Into Marriage by Means of Rouge, Powder or Perfume.

(By The Associated Press.)

PARIS, July 28.—There is still a law on the French statute books although not enforced, that imposes a penalty on women who beguile men into marriage by means of rouge, powder, perfumes, and similar feminine aids.

"Whosoever attracts into the bonds of marriage any male subject of his majesty by means of rouge or powder, perfumes, false teeth, false hair, steel corsets, hooped petticoats, high heels or false hips, will be prosecuted for sorcery and the marriage will be declared null and void, if the accused is convicted."

This law, passed by the parliament of 1770, is still on the French statute books and could be appealed to by a present day complainant. It seems to show that the mere man of king Louis XV's time had some protection from the wiles of the woman who resorted to artificial means to win a husband. Even the introduction of the new civil code in 1801 left it in force, under the section dealing with "fraud in the quality of merchandise."

So great is the number of Americans in Europe this summer that virtually every home-going steamer during August and September was booked to capacity by the end of June, while hundreds of travellers were fighting for a chance to get passage. As a result, hundreds of Americans who would stay weeks longer abroad if they could get home later, are booking themselves for the latter part of July.

The careful travellers made their reservations for return before leaving the United States, but they were in the minority and all experienced globe trotters. Hundreds and even thousands of others, who had no definite plans came abroad to stay as long as their money lasted, and then expected to go home at any time they applied for passage, their money may not give out by the time they are now obliged to leave, but they are leaving from necessity through lack of berths later, just when France is at its best in summer.

The Leviathan and other ships of the United States lines have not a single berth left for August and September, and conditions are similar in other companies for this year, which has seen a record rush of Americans abroad.

La Fronde, a Paris daily written by women for women, has undertaken a crusade to abolish bull fighting in France by strengthening of the law against cruelty to animals. The paper would make penalties such that no one would attempt to organize the spectacles and would confiscate the receipts whenever a fight was held.

The popularity of bull fighting in the south of France is scarcely realized outside of the country as it is generally believed that the sport is limited to Spain. Thousands of persons, however, attend many bull fights every Sunday. The French claim that these fights are not as cruel as those staged in Spain.

La Fronde is not finding active support from President Doumergue in its campaign, since the French president, a true son of the south, is a fervent supporter of bull fights.

"I was more nervous when I went on the stage at the opera Comique the other night than when I made my debut at the Metropolitan," Mary Lewis told the Associated Press, after her recent appearance as Mimi in La Boheme, "and the critics were right in what they said about my poor showing. It would not have been criticism otherwise."

"Much better artists than myself have been criticised harshly," she declared, "but really there was some reason for my disappointing the great audience that filled the opera Comique. Mimi is not a hard role to sing, but I was told on Sunday night, four days before the performance, that I should have to sing the part in French instead of in Italian, as I expected. So I had only four days to learn the French and the changes from the Italian.

"However, no excuses. I knew I was not doing well, but that is over, and gone. I do think though that the audiences here are much more friendly to an artist than are those at home. We are really more critical of our own than foreign artists, when they appear on the American stage, but the audience at the opera Comique treated me wonderfully. And then, the French members of the company complimented me on my French pronunciation, which was best of all."

Miss Lewis is leaving Paris for Salzburg, where she will spend the summer in study, returning to New York early in the autumn for a tour to the coast.

"Nu au Nunnette," is the title of a summer revue now being staged at a leading music hall. The title is obiously a play on "No, No Nannette," the American musical comedy, which has scored a success in Paris.

The French revue, however, is not a burlesque on the American comedy, but has given the writers a chance to play upon the now familiar title and to introduce "Nu", French for nude, thrice in their own title. The play upon words is considered particularly apt since beauty, unadorned, is a specialty of the theatre.

BUS OPERATORS BEFORE BOARD

Motor Traffic Problem Occupies Attention of Interstate Commerce Commission.

CHICAGO, July 28. (AP)—Operators of the immense infant industry of motor bus and truck traffic occupied the day's session of the interstate commerce commission's fact finding investigation.

The truck operators stood in a solid rank today against federal supervision while there was a division of sentiment expressed by the bus men.

That part of the testimony which dealt with revenue losses by the railroads attributed the inroads not to the increasing interstate bus business but to the privately owned automobiles. In that there was agreement with testimony brought out yesterday when the railroad and electric line executives appeared before Commissioner John Esch. Tomorrow the public will have its day, after which the hearing will move to St. Paul.

H. T. Kelting of Louisville, president of the Motor Truck Company of Kentucky pleaded that federal regulation at this time would strangle a growing industry.

R. C. Kunz, representing the Gray Line Motor Tourist company of Illinois, believed "federal regulation is bound to come," and stated readiness for "any reasonable regulation."

WYOMING GOVERNOR IS UNOPPOSED IN PRIMARY

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 28. (AP)—Governor of Wyoming for two years following the death of her husband in that office in 1924, Nellie Tayloe Ross, the first woman state executive, is unopposed for the nomination for re-election by her party—the democrats—in the primary, August 17.

Her republican opponent would be a man. Two state officials, Frank C. Emerson, state engineer, and Frank E. Lucas, secretary of state, are seeking the republican nomination.

Political observers are at sea as to the re-election of Mrs. Ross, for Wyoming is normally a republican state. In her election in 1924 she received an 8000 majority.

PHI BETA KAPPA HONORS FRENCH

Idaho Representative, With Two Others, Initiated Into National Fraternity.

UNIVERSITY OF IDAHO, Moscow, Juyl 27. — Congressman Burton L. French, Commander Robert L. Ghormley of the United States navy, and Mrs. Wilson Johnston of Portland were initiated Monday evening into Phi Beta Kappa, national honorary scholastic fraternity, at a special meeting of the Idaho chapter. These three alumni were among those who could not be present when the chapter was installed at commencement time.

Mrs. Johnston, a member of the class of 1896, received the first diploma granted by the university.

French and Ghormley are subjects of a paragraph in a university advertising pamphlet, headed, "Why It was 'Burt' and 'Bob' in Washington, D. C.," as follows:

"How big a navy shall the United States have? What does the University of Idaho have to do with that? For it's a question of national and international importance.

Opposed In Committee.

"A few years ago this was being threshed over in Washington, D. C., before the congressional sub-committee on naval appropriations, in which the navy was represented by the naval aide to the first assistant secretary of the navy. He was a lieutenant commander, there to get for the navy all it deserved, whereas the chairman of the committee was the watchdog of the treasury to see that expenses were kept down.

"The naval officer called the congressman 'Burt'. The congressman called the naval officer 'Bob'. A reporter for a Washington paper inquired and learned that the two, Burton L. French and Robert L. Ghormley, had been fraternity brothers at the University of Idaho, and it was so published in the Washington paper."

DRUNKEN DRIVER GETS PRISON TERM SENTENCE

their great interest and their wonderful organization for the benefit, welfare and pleasure of the whole people. It is, indeed, a great satisfaction for us to have been able to see for ourselves the high cultural level of the country and to find that the cultural development goes hand in hand with the material one.

Praises Architecture.

"To me the modern development of American architecture is a highly interesting one. Your libraries, private and public alike, seem to me to be quite excellent, arranged with refinement and practical sense at the same time. It is difficult to imagine a library arranged with more refined taste than Mr. Morgan's in New York, or one practical than that of the Harvard university in Boston."

Speaking also for his consort, the Princess Louise, the prince mentioning that it was their final appearance before an American audience, expressed their "sincerest and deepest gratitude to all with whom we have come in touch, authorities as well as private persons, for the overwhelming kindness with which we have been received in this country."

Veteran Disputes Scope of Dry Law

Jesse Lynch, 85 years old and a veteran of the Civil war, pleaded guilty in probate court here Wednesday to charges of illegal possession of home brewed beer found by officers at his dwelling on Third avenue south. He was sentenced by Judge J. L. Hodgin to serve 30 days in the county jail.

"Don't you know that it is a crime in Idaho to make that stuff," Judge Hodgin inquired of the venerable defendant.

"No, is it? It shouldn't be," was the succinct reply.

Lynch denied that he had sold any of his home brew. Some of his friends, he said, came in occasionally to drink with him, and sometimes they left a donation.

Mrs. S. B. Hopkins was hostess at a charming party Wednesday afternoon at her home on Main North, in honor of Mrs. Fred Alt, who is leaving Twin Falls to make her home at The Dalles, Oregon. There was a delightful musical program which included two vocal numbers by Mrs. James Hall, violin selections by Mrs. E. V. Berg with Mrs. Hall at the piano and piano solos by Mrs. Donald. The guests then wrote train letters to be read by Mrs. Alt en route to her new home after which Mrs. Hopkins served delicious refreshments. Those present in addition to the honoree and hostess were Mesdames James Hall, E. V. Berg, Griffin, Noggle, Hammond, Woods, Braun, Johnson, Donald and Shirk of Filer. The rooms were attractive with a profusion of the flowers of the season.

On Tuesday evening at the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. G. Humphrey the members of the official board of the Methodist Episcopal church with their wives were hosts at a reception in honor of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Finch, who were presented with a pair of silver candlesticks in token of appreciation of their services as officials of the church. During the evening business concerning the closing of the conference year was discussed by the board. The rooms were beautifully decorated with the various flowers of the season and dainty refreshments were served buffet style to the thirty guests in attendance. Mrs. Humphrey was assisted in serving by Mrs. William Baker and Mrs. C. H. Stinson.

The Woman's Progressive club met at the home of Mrs. L. Gibson on Seventh avenue east with Mrs. Hollen as hostess. Thirteen members answered roll call with recipes for salad. After a brief business session the afternoon was spent with needlework and conversation. The next meeting of the club will be on Wednesday, August 11, with Mrs. Neugarten as hostess.

Women Secure
against lost charm, this new way of solving oldest hygienic problem—offers true protection; discards like tissue

SHEER gowns and ill-timed social or business demands hold no terror for the modern woman. The insecurity of the old-time "sanitary pad" has been ended.

"KOTEX," a new and remarkable way, is now used by 8 in 10 better class women.

It's five times as absorbent as ordinary cotton pads!

You dine, dance, motor for hours in sheerest frocks without a second's doubt or fear.

It deodorizes, too. And thus stops ALL danger of offending.

✓ Discards as easily as a piece of tissue. No laundry. No embarrassment.

You ask for it at any drug or department store, without hesitancy, simply by saying "KOTEX."

Do as millions are doing. End old, insecure ways. Enjoy life every day. Package of twelve costs only a few cents.

TRAFFIC REGULATIONS

Twin Falls city administration is the throes of bringing forth new traffic ordinances, has been brought to appreciation of the fact that changing traffic conditions, with enormous increase in the number of motor vehicles plying the streets, necessitate changed regulations.

A few years ago Twin Falls traffic regulations called for sounding the horn at each street intersection. Such requirement today, if enforced, would produce such a din on the streets that protest would be general and immediate. But, other provisions of the present regulations are almost as archaic as that, and these the council members are seeking to remedy.

They are endeavoring to correct a situation that made it possible for an Idaho citizen, recently returned from California, to declare that he would rather drive indefinitely through Los Angeles' heaviest traffic than to drive through Twin Falls business district.

The solution must be found in regulatory measures. And in the drafting of traffic regulations there are two principal factors to be considered. One is that the regulations shall be as simple as possible in order that they may be easily understood; and the other is that they shall conform as nearly as possible to the prevailing practices of other towns and communities in order to avoid confusion growing out of multiplicity and diversity of rules.

THE THOMPSON MISSION

It would not be easy to find a well-informed American who does not regret the purchase of the Philippines, and the responsibilities which their possession entails.

The 320,000,000 paid to Spain and the millions more invested in pacification, administration and education have paid no dividends, and although we have reason for honest pride in what has been accomplished, it is only too apparent that the great mass of Filipino population is by no means ready for anything approaching true self-government. The time when we can decently wash our hands of the whole troublesome and expensive business seems very far away.

Under the circumstances the tour of investigation undertaken by Colonel Carmi Thompson at the instance of the president becomes more than ordinarily interesting. Colonel Thompson is looking into the possibilities of making the islands a source of the crude rubber supply which the United States needs so urgently, yet American capital will be slow to venture to the islands while our occupation is recognized as temporary and we continue periodically to assert our intention to let them go.

The Thompson report will doubtless be interesting, for the colonel is a good business man and he should be a keen observer—but we may be excused for wondering if he find reasons to hold the islands as a legitimate field for exploitation.

DICTATOR ALBERT

King Albert of Belgium, recently made responsible for saving the Belgian financial situation, is a dictator with a difference. He derives his authority from parliament itself and not from any group attacking the parliament's powers. He will work with the aid of parliament toward a specific end, to meet a national emergency.

There is another novel feature of this dictatorship, aside from the fact that it is established by the government. This is the fact of the dictator's kingship. Mostly European kings are finding themselves relegated to minor roles in government. Dictators may kindly consent to let the kings continue wearing some of the insignia of royalty, but they don't let the kings have much say about anything of any importance.

With King Albert, it was different. He has long been regarded as the true leader of his people in the best sense of kingship. It was confidence in his loyalty to the Belgians as well as in his outstanding ability that made the Belgian parliament place this great authority in him.

Other kings in other places could learn much from Albert of Belgium.

The Sustaining Springs

Idaho people, from the irrigated districts especially, who visit their mountains may witness the sources of their production in the springs from which thread rivulets that develop creeks and rivers in succession. These springs, the lifegiving of irrigation, have their origin mostly in melted snow—water that seeps into the earth early in the spring and finds outlet through capillary attraction or gravitation—little things, places that once their limited supplies into pulpy pools, the parents of rivers, millions of springs—then the Snake. Millions of springs—and then the Clearwater, the Salmon. Millions of springs—and then the Coeur d'Alene lake, the Pend Oreille, the Payette lakes, the lakes of the Sawtooth. Millions of springs—then life in desert places.

When one observes the beginning he may not be so deeply impressed as when envisioning scenes farther along; but one is absolutely attuned when, seeing the beginning, he considers the possible and right there; when he contemplates the first useless though torrential run-off from early melted snows into reservoirless rivers, and the only dependable supply evaporated as it could easily be without the protection and retaining arms of the mountains.

And then he has had his lesson in conservation; he realizes the positive necessity for protecting our forests; no longer does he withhold support from the agencies, limited or organized, that are banded together to furnish that protection and perpetuate the well springs of agricultural life.

And we must include other great industries—lumbering, mining, livestock raising—in the category of those whose lifegiving mountains hold in an injudious embrace the lifegiving waters.

North and South Thinkway

Millions invested in the north and south highway, yet the property is not productive as it should be because unfinished. "Prompt and full completion" is demanded by the Idaho State Editorial association as a matter of sound economics to say nothing of recreational opportunities. The Editors present some powerful reasons for their position. This a partially frozen investment or asset. It requires the sunshine of completeness to thaw and fully enliven and make it a giant.

Maybe the next legislature will see it and maybe it will not. If mostly composed of new men, there will be the usual long period of instruction and inactivity. The editors looked the situation squarely in the face with relation to numerous Idaho problems and proposed four year terms for state senators, under a hold-over plan to the end that there shall always be in office a group of experienced legislators. Idaho has demanded an increase in the legislative lowering of the legislative halfbrer dicus, having noted, as stated, a under the prevailing "ham and" salary.

Behind these representations no doubt is the belief that Idaho people are not cheap skates; that they are willing to pay well for good service and are not comfortable in the thought of paying anything for poor service.

The north and south highway is not only a connecting road for commerce and pleasure, but a great link bringing remote sections into closer relationship for the solution of problems the editors made reference.

of grave import, to some of which it is worthy of prompt completion and proper maintenance as a North and South Thinkway.

JUVENILES BUILDING UP INTERNATIONAL GOOD WILL

TOKYO, July 28. (AP)—Juveniles of Japan and America are contributing to international good will by exchanging letters. More than 50 have been written by children of grammar schools in the countries under the encouragement of the League of Nations association.

M. Kakuwa, in charge of the Boy's section of the Association in Tokyo, believes the movement, growing in popularity, is sure to contribute materially to mutual understanding and the peace of the world.

American children are particularly fond of Japanese picture post-cards and letter paper of pretty design. On either side the youngsters exhibit a friendly curiosity as to the life and persons with whom they correspond.

The GIRL in the MIRROR

By Elizabeth Jordan

"Here I am," snapped Rodney, "ready with my play, the best plot I've had yet. You won't let me even mention it to you. Here's the new season. Here's Epstein, sitting on our doormat with a check-book in each hand, waiting to put on anything we give him. You know he's lost a small fortune this fall. You know it's up to us to give him a play that will pull him out of the hole he's in. Here's Haxon, the best director in town, marking time and holding off other managers in the hope that you and I will get down to business. And here you are, the fellow we're all counting on—" He stopped for breath and adjectives.

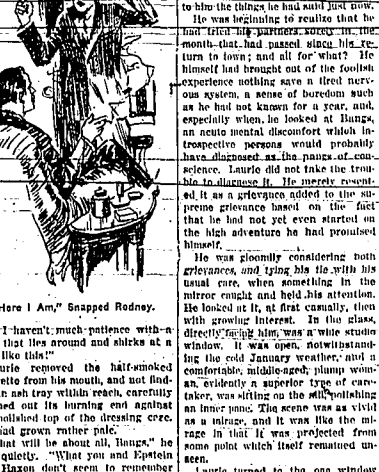
"Yes," Laurie politely prompted him. "Here I am. What about it? What am I doing?"

"You know d—d well what you're doing. You're loafing!" Bangs fired the word at him as if it were a shell from a Big Bertha. "You're loafing till it makes us all sick to look at you. We thought a week or two of it would be enough, when you realized the conditions; but it's gone on for a month; and, instead of getting tired, you're getting more and more into the loafing habit. You abuse time till it shrieks in agony."

"Good sentence," applauded Laurie. "But don't waste it on me. Put it into a play."

Bangs seemed not to hear him. He was standing by the room's one window now, staring miserably out of it, his hands deep in his pockets, taking in the knowledge of the failure of his appeal. Under the realization of this, he tossed a final taunt over his shoulder.

"I can forgive the big blunders a man makes in his life," he muttered; "but I haven't much patience with a chap that lies around and shirks at a time like this!"



"Here I Am," Snapped Rodney.

Laurie removed the half-smoked cigarette from his mouth, and not finding an ash tray within reach, carefully crushed out its burning end against the polished top of the dressing case. He had grown rather pale.

"That will be about all, Bangs," he said quietly. "What you and Epstein and Haxon don't seem to remember is just one thing. If you don't like matters as they are, it's mighty easy to change them. It doesn't take half a minute to agree to dissolve a partnership."

"I know." Bangs returned to his chair, and, dropping limply into it, his hands still in his pockets, stared despondently at his outstretched legs. "That's all it means to you," he went on, morosely. "Our partnership is one in a thousand. It's based on friendship as well as on financial interest. If I do say it, it represents a combination of brains, ability, backing and prospects that comes only once in a lifetime, if it comes at all. Yet in one year you're sick of it, and tired of work. You're ready to throw it all over, and to throw over at the same time the men whose interests are bound up with yours. You're dawdling in cabarets and roadhouses and restaurants, when you might be doing Work—" Bangs' voice capitalized the word—"real work," he added fiercely, "work other fellows would give their souls to be able to do."

He ended on a flat note, oddly unlike his usual buoyant tones, and sat still as if everything had been said.

Laurie lit a fresh cigarette, drew in a mouthful of smoke, and exhaled it in a series of pretty rings. In his brief college experience he had devoted some time to acquiring this art. Admiringly watching the little rings pass through the big rings, he spoke with studied carelessness.

"It was a pretty good scene, Bangs," he said, "and it showed careful rehearsing. But it would be a lot more effective if you had a real situation to base it on. As it is, you're making a mountain out of a molehill. I haven't worked like a horse all last year, and you know it. Now I'm resting, or loafing, if you prefer to call it that, and—to hit off the words and fairly throw them at his friend—"it will save you and Epstein and Haxon a lot of mental wear and tear if you will mind your own business and let me alone."

Bangs raised his eyes and dropped them again.

"You are our business," he somberly reminded his partner. "I've got so I can't work without you," he added, with a humility new to him. "You know that. And you know I've got the plot. It's ready—Brent Scott, it's boiling in me! I'm crazy to get it out. And here I've got to sit around watching you kill time, while you know and I know that you'd be a d—n sight happier if you were on the job. Good Lord, Laurie, work's the biggest thing there is in life! Doesn't it mean anything at all to you?"

"Not just now," Laurie spoke with maddening nonchalance.

"Then there's something rotten in you."

Laurie winced, but made no answer. He hoped Bangs would go on talking and thus destroy the echo of his last words, with which the silent room seemed filled. But nothing came. Rodney's opportunity had passed, and he was lost in depressed realization of his failure. Laurie strolled back to the mirror, his forgotten tie dangling in his hand.

"We'll let it go at that," he said then. "Think things over, and make up your mind what you want to do about the contract."

"All right."

Bangs replied in the same flat notes he had used a moment before, and without changing his position; but the two words gave Laurie a shock. He did not believe that either Haxon or Epstein would contemplate a dissolution of their existing partnership—but an hour ago he would not have believed that Rodney Bangs could say to him the things he had said just now.

He was beginning to realize that he had tried his partners sorely in the month that had passed since his return to town; and all for what? He himself had brought out of the foolish experience nothing save a tired nervous system, a sense of boredom such as he had not known for a year, and, especially when, he looked at Bangs, an acute mental discomfort which introspective persons would probably have diagnosed as the pangs of conscience. Laurie did not take the trouble to diagnose it. He merely resented it as a grievance added to the supreme grievance based on the fact that he had not yet even started on the high adventure he had promised himself.

He was gloomily considering both grievances, and tying his tie with his usual care, when something in the mirror caught and held his attention. He looked at it, at first casually, then with growing interest. In the glass, directly facing him, was a wide studio window. It was open, notwithstanding the cold January weather, and a comfortable, middle-aged, plump woman, evidently a superior type of caretaker, was sitting on the sill polishing an inner pane. The scene was as vivid as a mirage, and it was like the mirage in that it was projected from some point which itself remained unseen.

Laurie turned to the one window the dressing-room afforded—a double French window, at his right, but a little behind him, and reaching to the floor. Through this he could see across a court the opposite side of his own building, but no such window or commonplace vision as had just come to him. In his absorption in the phenomenon he called to Bangs, who rose slowly, and, coming to his side, regarded the scene without much interest.

"It's a cross-section from a house diagonally opposite us," he said, after studying the picture a moment. "It must be that old red studio building on the southwest corner of the square. If we had a room back of this and looking toward the west, we could see the real window."

"As it is," said Laurie, "we've got a reserved seat for an intimate study of any one who lives there. I wonder who her that studio?"

Bangs had no idea. He was grateful to the little episode, however, for spreading over the yielding ground beneath his feet the solid strip on which he had crossed back to his chum. He threw an arm across Laurie's shoulders and looked into his face, with something in his expression that reminded young Devon of a favorite collie he had loved and lost in boyhood.

"All right now? the look asked, just as the dog's look had asked it of the little chap of ten, when something had gone wrong. Rodney's creed of life was held together by a few primitive laws, the first of which was loyalty. Already he was reproaching himself for what he had said and done. Laurie carefully completed the tying of his tie, and turned to him with his gayest smile.

"Hurry up and finish dressing," he cheerfully suggested, "and we'll go out to breakfast. Since you insist on waiting 'round for me like Mary's little lamb, I suppose I've got to feed you."

Rodney's wide grin responded, for the first time in many days. He busied about, completing his toilet, and ten minutes later the two young men started out together with a lightness of spirit which each enjoyed and neither wholly understood. Both had a healthy horror of "sentimental stuff" and a gay, mutual disregard of each other's feelings in ordinary intercourse. But in the past half-hour, for the first time in their association, they had come close to a serious break, and the soul of each had been chilled by a premonitory loneliness as definite as the touch of an icy finger. In the quick reaction they experienced now their spirits soared exuberantly. Breakfasted together in fellowship such as they had not known since Barbara's marriage, the month before.

If Bangs had indulged in any dream of a change of life in Laurie, however, following this reconciliation, the next few days destroyed the fleeting shoots of that hope. Laurie's manner was that of a pleasant companionable workmate, and he met as strangers and passed each other by. The routine of his days remained what they had been during the past five weeks. He gadded about, apparently harmlessly, came home at shocking hours, and spent most of the bracing January days wrapped in a healthful slumber that invariably found him wandered in and out of their apartment like an unhappy ghost. On the rare occasions when he and Rodney lunched or dined together, Laurie was entirely good-humored and, when Epstein was with them, seemed wholly impervious to any hints thrown out, none too subtly, by his prodigious partner.

Identifies Tool Used by Burglars

A steel punch left by safe crackers in the high school building here last May has been identified as an instrument that was stolen from Colville, Washington, according to advices received Wednesday by R. E. Leighton, Twin Falls police chief, from Sheriff Johnson of Colville. Identification of the tool tends to connect Fred Morris and Cecil Morris, with the school house burglary for which they were arrested here. The Morris brothers now are awaiting trial in Colville on charges of burglarizing a Piggly Wiggly grocery there. A gun identified as having been taken from the Colville grocery was found in their possession when they were arrested here.

SUES TO ESTABLISH TITLE

Suit to quiet title to property in Twin Falls recently purchased by the Pacific Coast Dehydrator company for its plant to be established here was instituted in district court here Wednesday by the McCornick Investment company against John J. Pilgerrim and others. The property, which is described as lot 9 to 12 of block 135, on Third avenue south, was owned at one time by the Adams-Pilgerrim company, operators of a planing mill, and became the property of the McCornick Investment company in November, 1918. The company is represented in this action by John E. Davies, attorney.

SEED LAW AIDS IDAHO PRODUCT

Gooding Bill, Recently Effective, Calls for Distinguishing of Crop Origin.

According to the International grain and hay show records, Idaho has won 45 per cent of the premium money in the small seed class in Chicago during a period of five years, by C. H. Ahlson, field agronomist and Idaho state seed commissioner expects that record to be beaten in the next five years as a result of the signing, April 26, of the Gooding Seed Staining bill, which became effective 30 days later, he stated.

"There will always be a demand for Idaho seed provided we establish more weed districts in this state and produce high quality product and in the meantime solicit the cooperation of the agronomists and seed dealers of the middle west and eastern states, who make recommendations to their farmers on sources of seed," Mr. Ahlson adds.

Secures Cooperation.

"This cooperation was accomplished in a market degree last August when Senator Gooding and Congressman Smith accompanied 22 agronomists, seed dealers and U. S. D. A. representatives on a tour of Idaho seed producing areas held under the auspices of the university extension division. The plan is to bring to Idaho this fall other men who are influential in their respective territories.

Bill Benefits Idaho.

"The measure is also designed to afford protection against the misbranding of seed in interstate commerce. This will assure the Idaho farmer that Idaho seed is marketed as Idaho grown seed.

"The Gooding bill, according to Mr. Ahlson, will be of inestimable value to the Idaho seed grower.

"Idaho farmers may now increase the alfalfa and red clover acreage several times to replace the mendicant seed formerly shipped into this country.

"Idaho is the premier seed producing state for quality and there is an enormous field for increase in the acreage of red clover, particularly and also alfalfa.

"The bill does not prohibit the importation of seed from foreign countries, including Canada, but provides that at least 10 per cent of the seed of alfalfa and red clover in each container be stained red and where practical the color used shall indicate the country or region of origin.

Tests Uphold Bill.

"The experiment stations in the middle west have proved conclusively that a large proportion of the imported seed is unadapted to the corn belt. One hundred fortyfive plantings of domestic red clover seed from Iowa farmers in 1924 showed an estimated stand in 1925 of 82.3 per cent and every planting made a crop. Seventy-three plantings of imported red clover seed from commercial shipment of unknown origin showed an estimated stand, in 1925 of 13.5 per cent and only two plantings made a crop. According to this farmers have taken an enormous loss because millions of pounds of unadapted seed have been imported each year.

"The stained seed will be readily recognized and farmers can use their own judgment in buying."

At The Theatres

AUTHOR OF "JACKIE'S" NEWEST

Willard Mack, widely known playwright is one more responsible for a Jackie Coogan picture, and this time he has extended his dramatic powers in an effort to supply the youthful star with his greatest vehicle. "Old Clothes" is the title of Mack's most recent brain child, which will be seen in its screen garb at the Orpheum theatre Monday.

AT THE IDAHO

Harrison Ford plays the masculine lead opposite Madge Bellamy in the screen version of "Sandy," which will be seen tomorrow and Saturday at the Idaho theater. These popular players head a cast of consistent strength which includes Leslie Fenton, Hardam Bard, David Torrence, Gloria Hope, Lillian Leighton and others. "Sandy" has proved one of the most popular offerings presented by Fox films this season. The picture was directed by Harry Beaumont.

Besides "Sandy," there will be one of the Buster Brown comedies, "Oh, You Buster," and "Beware of Relatives," another riot of fun. "Valerie," the Paramount picture with Bebe Daniels and Ricardo Cortez, closes tonight.

NORTH IDAHO CANDIDATE FOR GOVERNOR VISITOR

William J. Hall, Idaho commissioner of public works whose candidacy for the republican nomination for governor was recently announced, arrived Wednesday for a brief visit in Twin Falls. He was accompanied by Herman J. Rossi of Wallace.

The commissioner's claim for the nomination, according to Mr. Rossi who announced the commissioner's candidacy, is based largely on the claim of the northern part of the state for one of its citizens in the governor's chair. No north Idaho man since W. J. McConnell, 30 years ago, has been governor of Idaho, Mr. Rossi stated.

Northern Idaho is almost solidly supporting the candidacy of Mr. Hall, Mr. Rossi stated. Kootenai county is supporting Mr. Hall, Mr. Rossi stated, but is expected to swing to Hall after the first ballot or two.

There is no issue in the campaign, Mr. Rossi stated, "except the trying need, widely recognized, that Idaho must be sold to the outside world."

WHEAT PRICES TREND LOWER

Breadstuff Grain for July Delivery Only Thing in Demand on Chicago Market.

CHICAGO, July 28. (AP)—Although wheat available to fill July contracts here was much in request today, other deliveries needed friends. Rain and cool temperatures in the Canadian northwest tended to increase selling of July and September wheat. As a whole, the wheat market finished irregular at 3-4c net decline to 1c advance, with corn 1-8 to 1 5-8c down, oats at 1-8c off to 1-2c up, and provisions showing 5 to 27c loss.

Unlooked for backwardness of arrival of new crop wheat in Chicago led to evident anxiety on the part of traders who have only three more days to effect month-end settlements of contracts. Receipts here today totaled 206 cars against 403 cars a year ago, and talk was current that the peak of the movement in the southwest had been reached. Furthermore, the cash trading basis for wheat at the Gulf of Mexico was 1-2c higher and at Kansas City was firm with a continued good milling demand reported.

Rallies Fail to Hold

On the other hand, price rallies in September and December wheat deliveries failed to last in the face of more favorable weather conditions northwest, despite some Canadian advices telling of crop damage.

According to these reports, much of the Canadian crop had ripened prematurely. Latest unofficial estimates of the probable Canadian yield ranged from 320,000,000 bushels to 360,000,000 bushels. Notice was also taken of reports that harvesting of wheat in Europe is getting into full swing.

Rains in the west, together with indications of further beneficial moisture over the main portion of the corn belt turned the corn market downward at the last. Increased offerings weakened oats.

Provisions were depressed by larger receipts of hogs than had been expected.

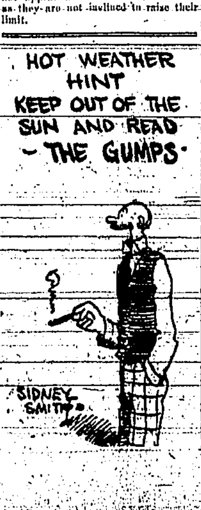
BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, July 28. (AP)—Current trading is restricted to the houses having a broad selection especially of territory lines and Texas wools. Mills are buying for the immediate requirements to cover orders, but there is apparently a tendency to anticipate future business. Foreign wools received an occasional offering on sizeable quantities rather below current quotations, presumably to test the strength of the market, but the trade is holding firm and buyers do not appear anxious to take the wool as they are not inclined to raise their limit.



GENERAL MOTORS SHARES SOAR TO NEW HIGH MARK

NEW YORK, July 28. (AP)—Featured by another sensational buying demonstration in General Motors, which soared over seven points to a new high record for all time at 170 3-8, the "bull" movement in the stock market broadened out perceptibly today, due in large measure to the re-awakening of public interest on publication of unusually favorable quarterly reports by the General Motors and United States Steel corporations. United States Steel common showed a net gain of three points at 143 after an early period of heaviness which reflected speculative disappointment over failure of the directors to make a special dividend distribution at this time.

The announcement that car loadings in the week ended July 17 were the largest this year, the optimistic tenor of the weekly steel trade reviews, the stiffening in non-ferrous metal prices and reports that California refiners were drawing heavily on light oil stocks all helped to maintain bullish enthusiasm. The usual flood of rumors also accompanied the rise in individual issues, with stock split-ups predicted in several of the high priced specialties. General Motors was mentioned in Wall street gossip at contemplating the formation of a new corporation to take over all the varied manufacturing interests of that an dthe Du Pont companies, but these lacked confirmation.

Oil shares, which had been slipping back for several weeks on selling inspired by the increase in crude production resulting from the discovery of several new fields, responded quickly to the appearance of fresh buying power, Marland, the Pan-American issues, Panhandle Producers and Standard Oil of California, all showing net gains of a point or more. Coppers moved upward under the leadership of Cerro de Pasco, which touched a new high for the year at 69 3-4.

MONEY

NEW YORK, July 28. (AP)—Call money steady; all loans 4; closing bid 4; time loans firm, mixed collateral 60 to 90 days 4 1-4 to 4 3-8; 4 to 6 months 4 1-2; prime mercantile paper 4.

LIBERTY BONDS

NEW YORK, July 28. (AP)—Liberty bonds closed:

3 1-2s, $101.2.
Second 4s $100.4.
First 4 1-4s $102.4.
Second 4 1-4s $100.25.
Third 4 1-4s $101.8.
Fourth 4 1-4s $102.10.
U. S. Treasury 3 3-4s $101.14.
U. S. Treasury 4s $103.30.
U. S. Treasury 4 1-4s $107.18.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, July 28. (AP)—Raw sugar was easier today with offerings more liberal and spot prices 1-32 of a cent lower, to 4.18 for Cuban, duty paid. Sales were 25,000 bags of Cuban to an outport refiner for late August shipment at 4.21 and 10,000 bags of Cuban from store to local refiners, at 4.18.

Except for a little steadiness at the start, raw sugar futures were generally lower, selling for trade and Wall street account, promoted by increased offerings in the spot market. The close was one to two points net lower. Trading was light with approximate sales 18,000 tons. September closed 2.40; December 2.57; January 2.61; March 2.64; May 2.73.

Refined sugar was unchanged to 10 points higher. List quotations ranged from 5.70 to 5.80 for fine granulated.

Hogs—Receipts 17,000; market closed mostly 10 to 25c lower than yesterday's average; top $13.75; bulk desirable light hogs $13.60 to 13.75; average up to 180 pounds at outside price; bulk 220 to 260 pound butchers $12.60 to 13.40 280 to 325 pound averages mostly $11.75 to 12.25; bulk packing sows $10 to 10.50; strong weight slaughter pigs $13.25 to $13.75; shippers took 3500; estimated holdover 5000.

Sheep—Receipts 16,000; fat lambs mostly 25c lower, some 50c lower, heavy sorts considered; bulk western to packers $14 to 14.35; top on natives $14; bulk $13.50 to 13.75; heavy buck lambs around $12; cull natives 25 to 50c lower at $10.50 to 10.75; mostly sheep steady, bulk fat ewes $6 to 7; few $7.50.

LONDON WOOL SALES

LONDON, July 28. (AP)—The wool auctions closed today with offerings amounting to 12,558 bales. There was a fair demand at unchanged prices and the auctions closed firm. Compared with the previous close fine, greasy merinos were unchanged; fine crossbreds were unchanged, while medium and coarse grades were unchanged to 5 per cent cheaper. Cape of Good Hope and Natal wool was also unchanged to 5 per cent lower with Punta Arenas unchanged to 5 per cent dearer and the inferior grades 5 per cent down. The continent took 53,000 bales; the home trade took 43,000; America 1000; and 71,000 were held over or not offered.

LEGAL ADVERTISEMENTS

NOTICE OF SPECIAL MEETING OF STOCKHOLDERS OF THE SALMON RIVER CANAL COMPANY.

Notice is hereby given that a special meeting of the stockholders of the Salmon River Canal Company will be held at the office of the company at Hollister, Idaho, on Friday, July 30, A. D. 1926, at 9:30 A. M.

The purpose of said meeting shall be to consider the question of improving the water supply of the Salmon River project and matters incidental thereto, and particularly to consider and determine the following propositions:

1. Shall the Salmon River Canal Company acquire water from the American Falls Reservoir and deliver it to its stockholders by pumping?

2. Shall water be obtained from the East Fork of Bruneau and diverted and conducted to the project by a tunnel?

3. Shall water be purchased from the Idaho Farm Development Company or the Roseworth project?

4. Shall the water supply be increased by the purchase and elimination of lands now within the project?

5. The stockholders shall consider any proposal which may be presented by which the water supply may be increased.

6. Amendments to the by-laws of the Company will be considered for the purpose of making more efficient use of the existing water supply.

7. The stockholders will consider the manner and means of financing either or any of the foregoing proposals.

Said meeting of the stockholders will remain in session until the business of the meeting has been concluded.

This notice is given by the President of the Salmon River Canal Company pursuant to Section 22 of the By-Laws of said Company.

In witness whereof the undersigned, as President of the Salmon River Canal Company, has set his hand and seal this 6th day of July, A. D. 1926.

(Seal) NELSON HAYWARD,
President, Salmon River Canal Company.

Attest: C. L. SMITH, Secretary.

WOOL GROWERS MOVE TO KEEP LAMBS IN IDAHO

State Association Cooperates With Other Agencies to Finance Feeder Operations and Stop Waste.

Idaho Wool Growers association is cooperating with the livestock finance corporation and other agencies in an effort to eliminate economic waste caused by shipping Idaho lambs out of the state when Idaho feeders are shipping lambs into the state, it was stated Wednesday at the association's headquarters here.

With this end in view a series of three feeders meetings at Blackfoot and Rupert has just been concluded bringing out a wealth of information in respect to the feeder situation. Discussion at these meetings indicated that there is sufficient feed this year for cattle and sheep and that the dry condition has produced fatter cattle and a higher per centage of feeder sheep. Prominent sheep men of Nevada, Idaho, Oregon, Washington and Montana took part in these meetings.

Explains Plan.

E. F. Rinehart, field animal husbandman of the University of Idaho extension division, at these meetings explained that the feeders and producers were planning to cooperate to make feeder lambs and cattle accessible for the feeder. He stated that Idaho is fast becoming an important state in the feeding of livestock for market. In the interest of this industry it has been discovered that there are a great number of small feeders in the state that could feed from one to five carloads of sheep or cattle, but cannot afford the expense of securing feeder sheep and cattle. A plan is being developed, according to Mr. Rinehart to make it possible to obtain as few or as many feeders as desired by reporting the number required to the extension department or the wool growers' association.

500,000 Feeder Lambs

It was estimated that there are 2,500,000 sheep in the state which would indicate that there are approximately 2,000,000 lambs raised this year and there will be 500,000 feeder lambs. That Idaho is unusually well adapted to raising sheep was brought out and the practice in the past of shipping Idaho lambs out of the state, while at the same time Idaho feeders ship lambs into the state for feeding was condemned as poor economics and the feeders and producers are endeavoring to avoid this waste.

Hugh Sproat, secretary of the Oregon Wool Growers' association, who was formerly a resident of the state of Idaho, reported dry range conditions in Oregon, which will increase the percentage of feeder lambs. He stated that it is estimated 75 per cent will be feeders leaving 25 per cent fat lambs that will be shipped directly to market.

Report From Nevada.

The report from Nevada was given by Joe W. Wilson, who stated that there are approximately 160,000 feeder lambs this season and about 20,000 feeder cattle. According to Mr. Wilson the range is dry this year, but there is an abundance of dry grass which produces fat cattle and feeder lambs.

Ed Wilson of Montana reports that very dry conditions prevail in eastern Montana, but normal conditions in the western part of the state.

The Idaho range report was given by E. S. Larson of Teton, Mr. Palmer of Oakley and Mr. Mean of Malad who stated that favorable conditions prevailed over the state for beef cattle, there being sufficient dry grass which produces fat cattle, but a higher percentage of feeder lambs. All reports of cattle in Idaho indicate fatter cattle at the present time than a year ago.

The prospective price for feeder lambs is 10 to 10 1-2 cents per pound. It is expected that the movement from the range will start earlier than usual this year.

CANAL COMPANY AMASSES CREDIT

Directors to Decide Whether to Take Cash Rebate or Buy More Storage Water.

Twin Falls Canal company directors have been requested to determine whether additional storage water rights in the American Falls reservoir shall be credited to the Twin Falls company in lieu of rebate of approximately 42 per acre on the contract for purchase of a half-acre foot per acre of water in the reservoir for the Twin Falls company, it was announced Wednesday at the company's offices here.

The company contracted for American Falls water rights on the basis of estimated cost of construction of the smaller dam at American Falls, the contract price for the Twin Falls company being approximately 87 per acre. Building of the larger dam has reduced the cost per acre foot, making the cost to the Twin Falls company approximately $5 per acre.

Advice to this effect was received Wednesday at the canal company offices from the American Falls reservoir district.

Twin Falls Canal company directors will meet next Tuesday to consider this and other matters, it was stated.

MOVE INTO NEW QUARTERS

Hudson and Essex sales and service headquarters in Twin Falls were moved Wednesday into the handsome brick building on Second avenue north that has just been completed by Jack Jensen, proprietor. The new building adjoins the quarters heretofore occupied by the Hudson and Essex agency.

SUE ON LEASE CONTRACT

Suit for recovery of $505, claimed as the balance of rental due on account of a lease for a year on the Filer bean warehouse, was instituted in district court here Wednesday by John Crecker and George Conover against E. Porter Poison and Marvin Atkins. Plaintiffs allege that the lessees quit the premises without notice after occupying it from March, 1924, until the fall of that year. The complaint was filed by Shad L. Hodgin, attorney.

SAMUELS TO SPEAK FOR MODIFIED COAL RATES

H. F. Samuels, sometime nominee of the progressive party for governor and United States senator and owner of coal mining property in eastern Idaho, will speak as a member of the Idaho grange at a public meeting to be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon in the Turkish hall here, at which he will call for adoption of a resolution calling on the state public utilities commission to modify freight rates on Idaho coal shipments.

It is the conclusion of Mr. Samuels and the state grange that existing freight rates are discriminatory as against movement of Idaho coal.

The meeting here is one of a series of 25 meetings being held throughout the state under auspices of the state grange for presentation of this matter.

Northern Lights Seen; Temperature Still Low

Weather forecast for today—Fair.

Moderately warm weather prevails—at least it has for the last two days, maximum for Wednesday being recorded as 88 degrees, a single point higher than the preceding day. To make up for the increase, minimum was a point lower than it was the preceding night, at 53 degrees. Except for a brief hot spell, when the mercury went to 100 and back in the space of three days, the weather here has been moderate since the eighteenth of the month, when a temperature of 96 was recorded.

M. Hammond, in the weather recording station, reports that the aurora borealis was observable night before last. The northern lights are very rarely to be seen in this latitude, but have appeared twice this year, due it is believed to extraordinary sun-spot activity.

FILER MAN IS SUMMONED

FILER, July 28.—(Special to The News)—S. G. Seymour, for many years a resident of the vicinity of Filer, died this evening at a hospital in Twin Falls where he had been a patient for about 10 days suffering from an affliction of years' standing. He was about 54 years old. The body was taken to the Drake mortuary here. Arrangements for funeral services will be announced later.
