OUR COUNTY FAIR WITHIN about two months some of our achievements as a county during the current year will be displayed for our study and appreciation at the county fair at Piler.

The fair reflects a vast amount of accomplishment, most of it naturally in the big field of agricultural endeavor. The merit and significance of such progress is readily apparent to the great army of men and women who have first-hand knowledge of farming and farming methods.

Would it not be a fitting tribute to the vast strides taken by this country to dramatize some of our most outstanding accomplishments in beautiful pageantry as a feature of the county fair? Before answering the question ponder on the changes that have been brought about here in the past quarter of a century.

AN ORDERLY FOURTH THE DAY was when it was taken for granted that the Fourth of July would result in many drunken parties, brawls and other manifestations of rowdism.

during the celebration held in Twin Falls. Just such incidents as this furnish the most convincing proof of the improvements that have been worked in a score of years.

QUIRKS OF THE LAW THE ins and outs of criminal law are beyond the comprehension of the average man— which, perhaps, is one reason for the average man's steadily growing distrust of the courts.

Al Capone, Chicago gunman, was arrested a month or so ago in Philadelphia for carrying concealed weapons. He promptly pleaded guilty and was sent to jail, where he now is.

But the other day his lawyers filed a brief in the Philadelphia courts seeking his release, alleging that his trial was "prejudicial."

WITHOUT LICENSE PLATES IF YOU should lose your automobile license plates some day, you wouldn't venture to drive downtown until you got new ones, would you? You'd figure naturally and rightly enough that some traffic officer would grab you before you had gone half a dozen blocks.

Not long ago two Montana ladies set out for a motor trip. Through some mischance or other their car lacked license plates. They got all the way to Massachusetts before any officer noticed it.

IN 99 cases out of 100, you couldn't drive from your home to your work in a plateless car. Yet these women went thousands of miles, through big cities and small towns—and got away with it.

VICIOUS BLACK PANTHER GEORGE BISTANY, wild animal collector, returns from a trip into the wilds of Africa and reports that the black panther is the most desperate and vicious of wild animals, and any man who was properly brought up will find that statement rather convincing.

For the man who was properly brought up, of course, read Kipling's Jungle Book as a boy; and no reader of Kipling's Jungle Books ever failed to put Bagheera, the black panther, in his shrine of notables.

Bagheera was perhaps the most fascinating animal in those great books. Kipling, the 30-foot python, was a great creature, to be sure, and Shere Khan, the villainous tiger, was an omen and a portent of the jungle's terror.

Best Editorial of the Day EXAMPLE IS PREFERABLE TO PRECEPT (Spokesman-Review) The man who talks to people about a problem is no stranger in most American communities. He rates among the oldest residents. He is always on hand to advise and to encourage.

It is not so much what our children learn from books as from living men that determines their worth in the world. They may grow rich and powerful and yet be the enemies of mankind.

PHYSICIAN FEMINE YEAR—FURNACE FACTORY TRIST... Imagine, if you can, the usual product of the awnings of hills of heat or, further to exaggerate the power of your imagination, the number of hundreds of thousands of humming birds congregated into a small mobile unit—hundreds of thousands.

Woman... the Buyer... Robert Burton, a philosopher who lived back in 1640, had his finesse or subtlety about him. In so many words he declared, "Women wear the breeches." In the modern business world, the thought is expressed a little differently. We should say: "Women are the purchasing agents of the home." This is a business fact of such tremendous importance that no business can greatly succeed which ignores or forgets it. For women really buy most of the automobiles, houses, investments, haberdashery, nearly of the merchandise sold today. They shop for their husbands; they shop for their brothers and their sons and their fathers. And they are consulted on every purchase of every sort. This is one of the outstanding reasons for the admitted popularity of the EVENING newspaper as an advertising medium. The evening paper is the paper read by the woman as well as by the whole family. IT IS THE HOME PAPER. IT STAYS HOME. And it is published at the ONLY TIME IN THE ENTIRE DAY when both men and women have the leisure to read. Women have the shopping instinct strongly developed. They read advertising closely, compare values—expose themselves to printed salesmanship. You may have noted what a haphazard affair is the purchase of a hat or tie by a lone, lonely man. "No one to guide him." In North America there are nearly twice as many EVENING newspaper readers as there are morning newspaper readers. There's a reason!
