CAMPAIGN AGAINST HOUSE TARIFF BILL GETTING UNDER WAY

Senator Borah Appears Confident of Gaining Support of Bourbons On Proposal to Limit Revision

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, June 13—A Democratic-Republican independent drive against the house tariff bill got under way in the senate today with indications pointing to an early vote on a proposal to limit tariff revision to farm products.

After the senate finance committee had rejected a resolution by Senator King, Democrat, Utah, directing the committee to confine revision to agricultural products, Senator Borah, Republican, Idaho, made the same motion in the senate and asked for a vote tomorrow.

Senator Watson, the Republican leader and a member of the finance committee, objected to the Idahoan's unanimous consent but paved the way for consideration of the resolution tomorrow by agreeing not to continue today's business over until that time. Watson announced privately his "violent" objection to the plan.

While Senator Borah appeared confident of gaining support of the Democrats, the outcome of the vote—if such is to be had—was in doubt tonight.

Favor Broad Protection

Some Democrats, especially those from the South, are understood to favor protection for many of the non-agricultural commodities of their section and also to desire an opportunity to seek a downward revision of some industrial rates.

Some of the Republican Independents, too, are seeking relief for some of the industrial interests of their states as well as farming interests and their votes for a revision restricted to agriculture also were in doubt.

Senator Watson, who declared in the senate yesterday that revision to the extent of that provided in the house measure was inevitable, was marshalling his forces tonight to vote against the Borah resolution.

Senator Edge, New Jersey, a Republican member of the finanec committee, described the proposal as "revolutionary" in that it directed a standing committee of the senate what to do.

Referring to rejection of the King resolution in committee by the administration Republicans on a strict party vote of 11 to 7, Senator Harrison, Mississippi, a minority member of the committee, asked Senator Watson if he thought the Borah proposal would be voted down with like precision

"I don't know anything about that," replied Watson, "but I intend to find out."

SUICIDE FAILS

NAMPA, June 13 (AP)—Twenty-four hours after slashing his wrists and throat with a safety razor blade, M. A. Lyons, fireman in the local railroad yards, was alive tonight in Mercy hospital, a suicide failure.

TREASURY FINDS TWO SLAYINGS JUSTIFIED

Republican of Wisconsin Characterizes Third Affair as "Assassination"

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP)—While the treasury today declared two of its agents who shot persons in enforcing prohibition were justified in firing, Representative Schafer, Republican, Wisconsin, characterized a third killing as an "assassination" and asked congress to investigate law enforcement by federal officers.

Denouncing the slaying at International Falls, Minnesota, Schafer asserted the "excessive toll" of lives taken by "dry" agents had "caused the citizens of the republic to be fearful that their lives might be snuffed out at any time they traverse the public highways."

He asked appropriation of $25,000 to meet the expenses of the proposed investigation.

Publishes Orders

The treasury made public orders issued two months ago to prohibition agents by Commissioner Doran which warned them that a prisoner escaping custody was not justification for using weapons. Doran's order was issued after the passage of the Jones-Stalker act which made transportation or sale of intoxicants a felony.

Assistant Secretary Lowman, in a statement, said investigation of the shooting of Archibald Eugster at Detroit by Jonah Cox, a customs border patrolman, showed that Cox fired in the performance of duty.

The shooting of J. J. Thompson at Silver City, New Mexico, by a prohibition officer and a deputy sheriff was upheld by Lowman on the ground that Thompson was caught delivering 10 gallons of whisky and opened fire first upon the officers.

No reports have been received at the treasury upon the shooting at International Falls of Henry Virkkula by customs border Patrolman E. J. White.

Veteran Commander of World Conflict Meets Comrade in Pocatello

POCATELLO, June 13 (AP)—When General Robert Lee Bullard stepped from a train here tonight one of the first persons he met was Fred Wetherington, a "buddy" of Spanish-American war days of 1898. In meeting his old friend of the Thirty-ninth cavalry, General Bullard recalled that in '98 he passed through Pocatello with 1200 troops bound for the Philippines.

Wetherington, who is a resident here, recalled activities of "Bullard's Indians," as his troops were called, in fighting Spaniards and Aguinaldo in the islands.

General and Mrs. Bullard were tendered a reception in memorial hall.

Tomorrow the visitors will go to the crater of the moon and later to the Yellowstone park.

FRENCH PLANE FAR OUT OVER ATLANTIC

Master of American Steamship Wytheville at Sea Wires Sighting of Craft

S. S. WYTHEVILLE, AT SEA, TO THE ASSOCIATED PRESS JUNE 14—THE MONOPLANE YELLOW BIRD PASSED OVER THE AMERICAN STEAMSHIP WYTHEVILLE AT 5:45 P. M., LATITUDE 41.09 NORTH, 49.40 WEST.

THREE FRENCHMEN IN CRAFT

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, June 13 (AP)—Somewhere over the Atlantic tonight three young Frenchmen were thought to be driving their plane—the Yellow Bird—on toward Paris.

The huge single-motored monoplane, shipped from France for the flight, sped down the beach here and at 94 miles an hour lifted gracefully into the air at 10:08 A. M.

While the French plane sailed on its way to the capital of the European republic—and glory for its crew—Armeno Lotti, jr., sponsor and co-pilot; Jean Assolant, pilot; and Rene Lefevre, navigator—the Green Flash, groomed for a hop to Rome, crashed in an attempt to take off and was wrecked.

Roger Q. Williams and Lewis A. Yancey, pilot and navigator respectively, of the plane, escaped uninjured when the wheels spread and the plane nosed over and whirled about.

There was a possibility that a stowaway was aboard the Yellow Bird. Two men told of seeing a youth clamber aboard while the motor was being warmed up and the parents of Arthur Schrieber, Portland, Maine, were advised by two of his friends that he had secreted himself in the plane.

The Yellow Bird was reported passing over Matinicus rock light 20 miles off the coast from Rockland, a little more than an hour after the takeoff, flying fast and about 1200 feet high.

When the coast guard amphibian which started with the French plane last saw her she was at an altitude of 2400 feet and speeding on at 115 miles an hour.

Before the takeoff Lotti announced that he would touch the tip of Capa

New Local Anaesthetic More Safe and Quicker

CHICAGO, June 13 (AP)—A local anaesthetic which produces anesthesia in from one-half to one-third the time required by drugs formerly used was demonstrated successfully today at Northwestern university dental college.

The new solution is ethyocaine borate. It was said to be much faster and safer than other drugs.

Idaho National Guards Take Part in Maneuvers

BOISE, June 13 (AP)—All branches of the Idaho national guard at camp here engaged in war maneuvers today and made the vicinity echo to battle sounds. The exercises took some units away from camp over night.

The day's program centered around firing of artillery batteries from North Idaho with French seventy-fives. First engineer outfits went into the hills to solve a combat problem and incidentally secure ranges for the guns, which then opened up barrages and gradually developed bombardments.

State Building Project Getting Well Under Way

BOISE, June 13 (AP)—The state will soon be engaged in four building projects financed by the last legislature and a fifth is already under way, Melvin Stevens, superintendent of public construction said today.

The basement for the dormitory at the Nampa school and colony has been dug and inmates of the institution will soon begin pouring cement for it. The balance of the building will be let on contract, bids for which will be asked in the near future.

The work at the Orofino asylum will be all done by inmates, including construction of quarters for 40 attendants as well as sheds for the livestock.

Repair work is going on at the school for the deaf and blind at Gooding and considerable replacement work is projected at the Blackfoot asylum. Contractors are already at work on the interior of the auditorium at Albion normal.

PUBLISHER HEATEDLY DENIES CHARGES OF SOLON OF NEBRASKA

Ira C. Copley Threatens Court Action if Senator from Middle West Repeats Statements Recently Made

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, June 13 — A heated denial of charges made by Senator Norris in congress that he was linked with the power industry was made today before the federal trade commission by Ira C. Copley, newspaper publisher, who declared he would take court action if the Nebraskan would repeat his statements off the privileged senate floor.

The publisher, who testified at the commission's inquiry into the publicity activities at his own request, issued his challenge to the senator in a statement submitted to the commission. Chairman Edgar A. McCullough refused, however, to allow Copley to read his statement or to introduce it in the record.

In his testimony, Copley reviewed his former ownership of the Western United corporation and its subsidiaries which served rural districts of Illinois with gas and electric power and explained he had sold his entire $7,470,000 block of securities in that concern when he entered the newspaper publishing field.

He declared that he did not now own a single share of public utility stock.

Describes Plan

The other witness of today's session, W. J. Sylvester, Chicago, secretary and organizer of the Industrial Conservation Board, inc., described a plan of his organization to utilize newspaper publicity, the lecture platform, radio broadcasting, the school rooms and the moving picture screen in a campaign to oppose government ownership of industries in competition with private interests.

He said this program, most of which had not yet been placed in operation,

$210,000 DEFICIT CAUSES BOISE FINANCIAL CRISIS

BOISE, June 13 (AP)—A deficit of $210,000 in city funds was reported by Clarence Van Deusen to the city council today in his audit of the books for 1928. This was the difference between $340,593 in outstanding, registered warrants, and $135,000 probable receipts from taxes in June and July.

Unofficially Van Deusen said this was the greatest deficit in city history. He recommended a bond issue to retire the warrants and put the city on a cash basis.

"It is a grave situation," said Mayor James P. Pope.

Famous Commander of World War Forces Points to Necessity of Strong Army and Navy to Protect Expanding Commerce of United States in Oriental Lands and Other Parts of World

Expanding commerce requires protection of a strong army and navy, Major General Robert Lee Bullard told an audience of 200 persons, comprised of American Legion members and members of San Francisco and Twin Falls Chambers of Commerce, at a meeting at luncheon in the Rogerson hotel here yesterday afternoon.

General Bullard was introduced after spokesmen for the San Francisco good-will excursion and Idahoans, headed by Governor H. C. Baldridge spoke in favor of closer relationships between this state and the Pacific coast center.

He pointed to increasing importance of the Orient as a market for American products and stated American shipping interests both in value and tonnage now are as great as those of the greatest shipping nation in the world.

"That trade," he declared, "must be protected on the high seas and in the foreign markets, and we must have sufficient strength in our army and navy to look after it."

Refers to Experience

He referred to experience in San Francisco fire and Galveston flood, when he said, "men previously regarded as civilized and respectable reverted to rapine and theft. It was necessary then," he continued, "to call upon a few army men to restore and maintain law and order."

"We don't need them often," General Bullard asserted, referring to the army and navy, "but when we need them and haven't got them we are in a bad fix."

"The American Legion," the general declared, "stands for adequate preparedness, just as the Grand Army has

Stooping, with his penknife in his hand, Major General Robert Lee Bullard traced in the gravel at the approach to the Twin Falls-Jerome bridge Thursday afternoon, the positions occupied by American army divisions on the Meuse-Argonne battle line in the late summer of 1918. He spoke with positive knowledge, because, as commander then of the American Second army, he assigned these divisions to their positions at the front.

An American Legion member's chance remark that his outfit had been in action on the Meuse-Argonne front brought forth the veteran commander's exposition, of this phase of the World war operations. It was enthusiastically received by the group of former service men, who had accompanied General Bulard on his visit to

MODERN COMMUNICATION EQUIPMENT FOR PLANES

BOISE, June 13 (AP)—Radio, printer-telegraph and radio telephones will be in regular use on the Varney air mail and passenger line between Salt Lake City and Pasco, headquarters officials of the service here said today.

Radio equipment is now being installed and will be in use for weather reporting by July 1 if operators can be obtained by then. Automatic telegraph machines will be installed and connected by August 1, it is expected. All passenger planes, to begin service August 1, will have radio telephones for constant communication between pilots and ports.

Maine Youth Stowaway On Board French Plane Flying Over Atlantic

PORTLAND, Maine, June 13 (AP)—Arthur Schreiber, 22, tonight was believed to be a stowaway aboard the Yellow Bird as it winged its way to France.

A letter written to his parents here have convinced them that he stowed away before the huge monoplane raced down the sands on the takeoff.

"God will save my boy," Mrs. Schrieber said as she walked the floor of her home awaiting some word from the plane.

The envelope carried the instruction, "not to be opened until three hours after the departure of the Green Flash for Rome."

A youth known only as Clark told Mrs. Schrieber over the telephone that he and their son had flipped a coin to see which should attempt to stowaway and that Arthur won.

ABDUCTORS OF STATE OFFICER STILL FREE

Posses in Three Northwest States Continue Man-hunt For Desperate Bandits

OROFINO, Idaho, June 13 (AP)—Search for the abductors of Lieutenant Governor W. B. Kinne and two other men, who were believed fleeing in a stolen automobile, tonight was being carried out by posses in northern Idaho, eastern Washington and eastern Oregon with the expectation that the four fugitives would be taken soon.

The abduction of Kinne took place yesterday when the official was motoring from Lewiston, Idaho, to his home here. Robbery and theft of the lieutenant governor's automobile apparently were the motives. W. L. Tribbey, a business man, and Al Kilde, a lumber worker attempted to rescue Kinne when the bandits halted his car. Tribbey was severely beaten and Kilde shot twice, although not dangerously wounded. The three subsequently escaped after the abductors had tied them to trees. The bandits also wrecked Kinne's car.

Flee In Automobile

The four men fled in Tribbey's automobile. Late today a guard of Ahsahka bridge, near here, reported that a car containing five men passed over the bridge, headed north and that the license number was 2H-060. That was the number on Tribbey's blue sedan. Good descriptions of the robbers were given the posses by the three victims.

Every man in this vicinity, who can possibly spare the time, strapped on pistols and revolvers today and joined in the man-hunt.

Besides stealing Tribbey's car, the bandits took $200 from him and $14 from Kinne.

The checks were made good. The presiding judge advised that he be placed in a sanitorium.

"No more booze for me," was all Ryan told friends.

Wife of Negro Solon at Function in White House

WASHINGTON, June 13 (AP) — The first outstanding function to be participated in by the wife of Representative de Priest, the negro Republican member of the house from Illinois, apparently was carried out without any commotion.

She was among about 40 women of the congressional circle who called at the White House for a tea party yesterday afternoon. The affair was one of a series at which Mrs. Hoover is entertaining following precedent, and in line with another precedent the names of the guests were not announced.

Order Halts Canadian's Sale of Mine in Idaho

WINDSOR, Ontario, June 13 (AP) — Samuel Griggs, Walkerville, Ontario, has been restrained by writ of injunction from sale or transfer of the Deming gold mine in Maria, Idaho, pending actions against him by bondholders of the company.

The injunction was sought by counsel for Duncan E. Munro, Alvinston, on behalf of himself and all other bondholders of the Deming company. It expires June 19, but a continuance will be asked before the supreme court at Toronto. The plaintiffs meanwhile seek an accounting of the company's affairs and have sued Griggs, chairman of the company's trustee board, for $150,000.

The action was started last April 8 in the courts of Boise, Idaho, when Griggs' action was attacked. Judgment was reserved.

LOWER HOUSE VOTES TO DEFEAT EXPORT DEBENTURE FEATURE

Friendly House and Hostile Senate Go to Work in Earnest On President's Extra Session Programme

By FRANCIS M. STEPHENSON
(Associated Press Writer)

WASHINGTON, June 13 — A friendly house and hostile senate today went to work in earnest on President Hoover's extra session program, disposing of virtually everything but the tariff in the rush for a recess.

The president won and lost. The house overwhelmingly endorsed the administration farm bill by a 250-to-113 vote to demand its enactment by the senate without the export debenture relief plan, on which the senate has twice overridden Mr. Hoover.

The senate relented in its rebellious ways long enough to send to the White House the census-reapportionment measure asked by the president, but then turned around and refused to consider the presidential recommendations for suspension of the national origins immigration quota basis.

Borah Causes Trouble

The day also brought new troubles for the administration in the senate from Senator Borah, Idaho, who participated in the Republican revolt on farm relief. He offered a resolution proposing to sidetrack the house tariff measure and have the senate tariff bill confined solely to revision of the agriculture schedules.

His proposal is in direct conflict with the program announced yesterday by Senator Watson, Indiana, the Republican leader, for as general a revision of the tariff as was made by the house. Borah's move followed a futile attempt by the Democrats on the finance committee earlier in the day to confine the committee's consideration strictly to revision of the farm rates.

Bill Near Enactment

The day's work left two of Mr. Hoover's four legislative recommendations disposed of—census and reapportionment approved and suspension of the national origins basis [illegible] also [illegible] bill to [illegible] of enactment.

There was no indication tonight as to what effect the Borah resolution on the tariff may have on the vacation plans. If it is adopted, the whole program may be up in the air.

The senate tonight made its unfinished business the proposal for revision of its rules to permit open sessions in the consideration of executive nominations.

NEW SUNBURN METER SCIENTIFIC TRIUMPH

Device Makes Automatic, Written Record of Invisible Ultra-Violet Ray

B yHOWARD W. BLAKESLEE
(Associated Press Science Editor)

NEW YORK, June 13—Creation of a sunburn meter, an outstanding scientific achievement, was annouced tonight to the New York Electrical society by Dr. H. C. Rentschler, director of research for the Westinghouse Lamp company, and newly elected president of the society.

The meter uses a photo-electric cell to make on automatic, written record and measurement of the presence of ultra-violet rays, the invisible wave lengths of light that cause sunburn.

These same rays possess curative powers which have come into such wide use with artificial sunlight lamps, that recently medical authorities have broadcast warnings against overdoing. The danger has been in lack of any sure way of measuring the invisible, but powerful rays. The new meter is designed to furnish a safeguard.

Slight Modification

A slight modification of present photo-electric cells is the basis of the new meter, the modification is use of uranium, a rare metal, as the sensitized coating inside the cell. The function of this coating is to react to light by emitting a stream of electrons—that is, a measurable electric force. The uranium is specially sensitive to the wave lengths of light that cause sunburn. Thus, although invisible to the eye, they are figuratively glaring to uranium.

Consequently uranium's reaction to them can be calibrated and recorded. Thus the sunburn rays make a glow tube flash, the rapidity of the flashes showing the volume of ultra-violet shining on the photo-electric cell.

A modified glow tube is used in the dosage meter, operating a [illegible] cell on a paper-covered revolving drum.

This is said to be the first applied use of uranium in a photo-electric cell. Heretofore the inner coatings have included other metals.

Soldier Recounts Experiences Abroad

the big bridge, on which he set out after learning on his arrival here at noon, that the reception and luncheon that had been arranged would have to be postponed an hour because of delayed return of the San Francisco goodwill excursionists, whom he was expected to address.

Compares Bridge

War-time reminiscences, though, did not interfere with the general's appreciation of the big bridge from the standpoint of an engineering achievement and its importance to this region, and he referred to it later, comparing it to another big bridge now under construction on the Hudson river near his home, in New York.

Idaho, as a whole, in fact, seemed to have made a great impression on the general, who has been the guest of the state since last Friday, when he came here to dedicate the memorial armory-gymnasium on the University of Idaho campus.

"You who have just entered the borders of this great state," he told the San Francisco excursionists, "can't begin to appreciate its immense resources and possibilities."

The great irrigated region known as the Twin Falls country, he pronounced the richest and best developed area of its kind, without exception, and compared it with other irrigated regions which he had visited.

In conversation, the veteran commander manifested a lively interest and a vast fund of information, offering a great range of subjects, but it was the questions that the former service man brought to him that started the train of thought he seemed to prefer to follow.

He related with evident delight his first experience with Idaho soldiers, when, as commander of a regiment of volunteers in the Philippine Islands, he became the leader of 500 men who had been recruited in the Pacific Northwest.

"They weren't much for discipline," the general declared. "Most of them had drunkhouse records as long as one's arm, and had not much regard for the rules of warfare when they were irritated by depredations of the natives. They were the liveliest men I have ever had to do with. They became known as Bullard's Indians."

Members of this outfit, General Bullard said, had come to meet him on a number of occasions during his present visit to the state.

General Bullard was the guest of Twin Falls American Legion post at a luncheon meeting and later addresses a joint meeting of the World war veterans and members of the San Francisco excursion here Thursday and their guests, including nearly 100 representative business men of this region.

The American Legion Women's Auxiliary entertained for Mrs. Bullard at luncheon at the Dickey Party House, followed by a sight-seeing trip.

done, and my advice to you, when they speak on this subject, is that you listen to them."

General and Mrs. Bullard, with John McMurray, Oakley, and M. B. Yeaman, Idaho Falls, representing the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce, left last evening for Pocatello, in a special car placed at their disposal by the Oregon Short Line. General and Mrs. Bullard will leave the state next Sunday after spending 10 days in Idaho, when they will be met at West Yellowstone by H. M. Albright, superintendent of national parks, and taken on a fishing excursion.

49 Excursionists on Tour

The San Francisco Chamber of Commerce good-will excursionists, numbering 49, led by Elmer M. Newhall, president, arrived here on their special train early Thursday morning, and were guests of Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce on a 150-mile automobile trip that included brief visits at Jerome, Rupert and Burley. They returned here for the luncheon meeting, at which they played host to nearly 100 business men of South Idaho. After the luncheon they were taken in automobiles to Bliss, where they boarded their train again, en route to Boise.

Spokesmen both for the San Francisco delegation and for Idahoans at the luncheon meeting emphasized desirability of cooperation and reciprocity, and this idea was carried into suggestion that there should be more frequent meetings of representatives of the two regions and a definite invitation to Idahoans to return the San Francisco delegation's visit during the week of next September 9.

Paul Clagstone, San Francisco western manager for the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, who was for many years a resident of Idaho, was the spokesman for the San Francisco delegation. He traced the development of agriculture in this state and outlined Idaho's wealth in minerals, lumber and agriculture, and referred to its scenic and recreational resources. He told also of rapid and substantial development of Pacific coast centers, and, indicating possibilities of cooperation between the two regions, he declared 'the great future of the Pacific area is pulling all of the states within its borders closer and closer together.'

In recognition of the comunity of interests of San Francisco and Idaho, San Francisco chamber had organized the goodwill excursion, Elmer M. Newhall, president, explained. He was introduced to preside over the meeting by Secretary N. S. Wight of the Twin Falls chamber. He referred, in the course of his remarks, in terms of appreciation of the agricultural development of this region and of its citizenship.

Idaho declared Governor Baldridge, who was introduced by Asher B. Wilson, president of Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce, is vitally interested in upbuilding of San Francisco because "it is one of the four great portholes for this region," and because its development implies a greater market for Idaho's products. The governor referred to large proportions attained by dairying and poultry growing, two new industries in this state, and quoted figures showing that a large proportion of the products of these industries are consumed in California centers. He urged that the San Francisco excursion be not regarded as a mere junketing trip, but that host and visitor alike endeavor to make the most of the opportunity it presented for advancing mutual interests.

Twin Falls' Chamber of Commerce secretary quoted statistics showing $15,000,000 value of Twin Falls county's agricultural products last year, and showing also that there were shipped into this county during the year 7070 carloads of freight, including 3000 carloads of merchandise and 1100 carloads of miscellaneous freight.

General Bullard, before being introduced to the larger audience, had been the guest of Twin Falls American Legion post at a luncheon meeting in a private dining room adjoining the larger hall, where the San Franciscans and their guests were served. Harry Benoit, past commander of the Legion post, introduced the veteran commander of the American Expeditionary Forces, voiced pride of the legionnaires in their war-time leader and expressed their pleasure in sharing their meeting with him on this occasion.

While asserting he owned no utilities securities, Copley testified that he had in his name 14 bus shares with a par value of $1,250,000 belonging to his wife, his sister, and W. W. He said there also were 50,000 shares held under escrow in a Chicago bank for which he had been paid one-fifth of the purchase price and at present was drawing the dividends.

In concluding his testimony, Copley declared he was an "old-fashioned American citizen", and did not believe "a senator of the United States or an agency of the government of the United States has a right to injure my reputation or my business by making or publishing reckless and baseless charges affecting me and my business integrity."

He cited an instance of what he described as damage to his reputation which had occurred in San Diego, California, following Senator Norris' charges in the senate against him last May 20.

"While my wife, her sister, and a friend and I were in an automobile," he said, "a newsboy shoved a paper into our car and said:

Sable and then head for the corner, the junction of the ship lanes approximately 1000 miles east southeast of Old Orchard.

From there he had two courses in mind. The Southern would take him over the Azores and make the flight over 4300 miles, the Northern would take them to longitude 47, latitude 29, and thence east to St. Nazaire and Paris a total distance of only 3700 miles. Conditions when he reached the "corner," were to determine the course.

Dr. James H. Kimball, New York weather man, said they would have "as near perfect" weather as would ever be found over the North Atlantic.

Lotti, who also acted as radio man, said he would not send any message until the ship had traveled at least 1000 miles.

Saturday, or Monday

Does Saturday afternoon, Saturday night, or Monday morning mean a time for you to carry much of the weekly pay check to some high priced, credit grocer in payment for foods already consumed—or is it a time when you take the weekly pay check to Twin Fall's most popular Food Store—O. P. Skaggs System—select the items needed to replenish the pantry, pay cash for them and take them away at a big saving in price?

One or the Other

Most people buy foods by one or the other plan. Those who run accounts pay out 20 to 40% more each week than is necessary, or than it would cost them if they paid "cash and carry" at our store. Besides, every O. P. Skaggs System patron has the greatest food satisfaction, because our brands are the best, and our stores the cleanest. Try paying cash this week-end.—You'll be surprised at the big difference.

SOMETHING NEW

They are putting the little potatoes into cans now, and in these days of ever increasing habitues of the kitchenette, to say nothing of growing demand for food that is ready to serve, it looks as though a new and profitable avenue for marketing of a considerable portion of the potato crop has been opened up.

The obstacle heretofore has not been in lack of a readily cultivated demand for the product.

Once the idea of canning potatoes came into being, there remained necessity for working out formulae and developing a process that would work. That has been accomplished after eighteen months investigation by a California chemist, with finanical backing of a Florida investor.

According to press dispatches, these men built a small factory in Florida last year and have been turning out an average of two hundred and fifty cases of canned potatoes since operations started last April. Already plans have been made for building a chain of potato canning plants along the Atlantic seaboard. Most of the work is done by machinery. The little potatoes are used. The cost of the potatoes and the canning process is said to be so small that the product can be marketed at a nominal cost.

The enterprise is interesting not only as a development in modern living conditions, but because it holds out a possibility that may be of very real value in potato growing regions.

SLOW PAY

A Bradstreet report from forty-two leading American cities shows business collections only "fair" in most of them, and "slow" or "poor" in the rest. A similar situation exists in smaller cities.

This is not because business is bad, nor because there is a lack of money and credit. The trouble seems to be psychological—a human failing. People have simply got into the habit of slow payment. It is not good for business.

"With all the anxiety now prevalent," says Roger Babson, "lest high rates for money affect business prosperity, one of the most helpful things that business men and the general public can do is to pay their bills promptly. If checks were mailed today for only one-half of the unpaid bills over ten days old, the volume of credit released would at once relieve the money situation."

Money so released, getting into circulation, goes around and around. It speeds up the whole debt-paying chain when everybody gets the idea, and soon comes back to the payer again.

HIGH INTEREST RATES

The United States government is going to pay five and one-eighth per cent on four hundred million dollars of Treasury certificates issued June fifteenth. This is the highest interest paid on any government loan since the year after the war, when the country had drained its credit to finance the world.

It is ridiculous that the wealthiest and soundest nation on earth should have to pay such a rate for money. It shows the extent to which American finance has been upset by the tidal wave of speculation. When billions of bank credit flow to Wall Street, the United States Treasury runs dry. Gamblers will pay so much for the use of funds that the government has to bid high.

Ordinarily there would be a flood of money offered the Treasury at this rate. But apparently people still prefer expensive gambling chances to a sure thing.

Quail Need Protection

Quail cease to increase in number after a time, even when not molested. Probably for lack of cover and food. After a territory has its full population of quail the birds do not increase in number unless man, by planting food and cover, makes more covey ranges.

FORMER SALESMAN AT BURLEY FACES CHARGES

BURLEY, June 13 (Special to The News)—After acting as an automobile salesman for Burley firms for some time, D. B. Johnson seems to have utterly vanished, leaving in his wake a galaxy of victims of his trickiness that grows in numbers from day to day.

Getting wind that there was a warrant issued for him for defrauding an eating house man out of $50, Johnson borrowed an automobile and journeyed to Salt Lake City the night of May 21. There he is alleged to have sold the borrowed auto to a man for $250. Meeting a former Burley friend on the street, he invited the friend to endorse a check at a bank for $250. The friend did so, and Johnson, it is said, pocketed the cash.

Then complaints began to trickle in to Police Judge Dunn's court and Sheriff P. D. Pace consulted with Salt Lake City authorities over the wire. Johnson was evidently not there. But the automobile was located and the owner brought it back, leaving the purchaser in a reflective frame of mind.

LAUNDRY BUILDS HOME FOR MOTOR DEPARTMENT

Work is well underway on the 54 by 125-foot garage being built by the National Laundry company at a cost of $8000 on lots immediately west of the Troy plant on Second avenue west.

The garage is designed to afford maintenance facilities for the fleet of trucks and the cars used in the various departments of the business. It will be in charge of E. E. Leichliter who has headed this service for several years. Various leased locations have been used, but the growth of the business has made imperative a permanent home for the motor department.

Enlargement of the plant through a 50 by 100-foot addition is also being pushed and it is anticipated that both structures will be ready for occupancy by August 1.

A 12-foot driveway separates the two buildings, leading into a court provided for loading and unloading routemen's trucks. A 30 by 54-foot cement basement is being constructed under the rear of the garage to be used for the manufacture of the soap used at the various units of the National.

Installation of escalators and conveyors through the plant, together with the newest and most efficient equipment, and a complete rearrangement of the various departments are planned to make the Troy a most efficient plant. Corresponding improvements in the other company units are being made in line with the policy of offering superior service, according to statement made by George Sandholtz, president of the company.

DEATH CALLS MRS. LENA SCHIFFMAN, IDAHO PIONEER

Mrs. Lena C. Schiffman, 76, Twin Twin Falls county pioneer and widow of late John A. Schiffman, died in Los Angeles, June 12, just after her arrival in that city from Twin Falls with her son, R. D. Schiffman, according to word received by her son, W. C. Schiffman, here.

Mrs. Schiffman had been somewhat ill all winter. Her daughter, Mrs. Minnie S. Koeppe, Kearney, Nebraska, had been staying with her for some time. During May, Mrs. Schiffman appeared to be improving in health. On May 23 she suffered an attack of paralysis, which, however, did not render her unconscious. Her son, R. D. Schiffman, came here from Los Angeles to take her home with with him. They left here June 10 on the train and arrived June 12, shortly before Mrs. Schiffman had another stroke which resulted fatally. Mrs. Koeppe left Wednesday evening for Los Angeles, where the funeral will be held Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sheiffman and their family came to Twin Falls county in 1904 and lived at different times in Kimberly, Filer and Twin Falls. In recent years they lived in this city. Mr. Schiffman died four years ago.

Mrs. Schiffman is survived by four children, Mrs. Minnie S. Koeppe, Kearney, Nebraska; W. C. Schiffman, Twin Falls; C. J. Schiffman, Mount Vernon, Washington, and R. D. Schiffman, Los Angeles.

EPIGRAM FEATURES BENNETT'S ADDRESS

Chautauqua Speaker Uses Wit in Address; Play, "Skidding," Next Number

With a wealth of epigram and dramatic gesture that reminded his audience of Rev. Billy Sunday, William Rainey Bennettt drove home his philosophy in his address on "The Man Who Can" at the chautauqua tent last evening. He said that he stood for Main street against Wall street. Pointing out the tensity of the struggle necessary to reach the top, he took the optimistic view that this struggle is necessary for the highest development.

With many witty sallies he defended the independence of modern women and the emancipation of the sex from old time clothing, but regretted the fact that youth now has all the experience of life before reaching the age of 20.

Modern progress in America was lauded and the fact pointed out that we now get designs of cars from Europe, make them here on large scale production with higher wages and ship them back to undersell the Europeans. Roosevelt, Dawes and others were named as samples of "The Man Who Can."

A pleasing musical program was put on in the afternoon by Elsie Patay and the Vienna Cymbalom Symphony, who also gave the prelude in the evening.

Tonight, "Skidding," advertised as the "Broadway hit" of the last winter's season, will be presented. Among the complimentary press notices quoted is that of the New York World, which said it was greeted with "a burst of applause roused by genuine admiration for honest comedy."

The administration of Junior Town took time from games yesterday to vote to go to the "nat'torium" today and to hold a picnic at 5 P. M. There will be a doll show and track meet Saturday.

Pacific Northwest's Early Explorers Responsible for Many Weird Reports

By FLOYD W. LANSDON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

SPOKANE, June 13—It was a lucky break for some of the early visitors to the Pacific Northwest that there were no radio announcers, movie news reels and newspaper reporters. If there had been, some of the wild tales spun to gullible European courts would have been given the laugh.

In the old days, when most of Europe still believed that a narrow body of water cut through the northern part of North America, thus opening an easy route to the East Indies, a great many "gentlemen explorers" sought wealth and royal favor by hunting for it. Some of these came to the Northwest, while others, apparently, turned their ships into some civilized harbor and thought up a good yarn. And the maps they brought back showed that their penchant for narration was unhandicapped by truth.

One explorer drew a very convincing map of the Northwest coast, showing the great wall of China touching the sea about 15 miles from the mouth of the Columbia river. On this chart the Pacific ocean was little larger than a river.

One Espezo admitted in Europe that he did not sail to Cathay (China) from the Northwest strait, but said that he took a Concho Indian buck's word for it that the Celestial Kingdom was a day's sailing from the present site of Seattle. He drew a map to prove it.

Juan de Fuca, after whom the strait was named, visited the northwest, sailed down Puget sound, probably, then dashed back to Europe to tell that he had at last found the great northwest passage—in fact that he reached the Atlantic ocean by cruising through it.

Sir Francis Drake, a wily Englishman, knew how to spin his yarns and not be accused of lying. He hinted of glorious discoveries for England, and soon was credited with the discovery of the Strait of Anian, which in fact, never did exist.

SCOUTS IN CEREMONIAL FLAG DAY CELEBRATION

In observance of a custom established here several years ago, Boy Scouts in Twin Falls, of whom there are about 200, will celebrate Flag day today by assembling on the high school campus at 7 A. M. and raising the Stars and Stripes with the reville ceremonial that is observed daily at all American army posts and camps.

While the scouts stand at attention and a bugler sounds "to the colors," the flag will be drawn up to the top of the mast where it is to be displayed throughout the day.

E. V. Larson, Twin Falls attorney, will address the scouts at the close of the ceremonial.

SUCCESS OF SARGON ALMOST INCREDIBLE

Phenomenal and Ever-Increasing Demand for New Scientific Formula Proves Sensation of Drug Trade—Sets New Sales Records Wherever Introduced—Thousands Tell of Astonishing Results Obtained from Its Use—Unprecedented Demand Explained by Merit Alone.

NEVER before, perhaps, in all history, has the demand for a proprietary medicine ever approached the wonderful record that is now being made by Sargon, the celebrated medicine which has been accomplishing such remarkable results in all parts of the country.

The instant and phenomenal success which Sargon won when it was first discovered has rapidly spread throughout the United States, and from coast to coast, wherever it has been introduced, it is now a household word. On the American market little more than a year, Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills have established records that actually stagger the imagination!

In the state of California alone, the astonishing total of eight entire carloads was required to supply the tremendous demand during the first sixty days this remarkable medicine was on sale. Six solid carloads were ordered by firms in Texas the first ninety days after its introduction in that state. The success of Sargon in Minnesota has been so overwhelming that the Twin Cities, Minneapolis and St. Paul, are selling it at the rate of $200,000 a year through retail channels alone, to say nothing of the immense wholesale distribution. Over 250,000 bottles have been sold and distributed by Kansas City firms—Memphis wholesale and retail dealers have required more than 150,000 bottles—Atlanta retail firms are selling it at the rate of $60,000 yearly. These are actual figures, which can easily be verified, and the sales in other sections have been correspondingly large.

The only explanation of Sargon's triumph is its undisputed merit. Back of its triumph in the drug stores is its triumph in the homes, for literally hundreds of thousands have taken Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills with the most astonishing results and have pronounced them the greatest medicines ever made available to the public. Men and women in all walks of life, afflicted with stomach, liver and blood disorders, many of them of long standing, as well as thousands of weak, thin, nervous men and women, some apparently on the verge of complete collapse, have testified that they have been fully restored to their normal health, weight and strength by its use.

Among these grateful thousands are many prominent men—including Governors, United States Senators, State Legislators, well-known state and county officials, leading educators, government officials, and even ministers of the gospel, who deemed it their duty to tell the people what Sargon has done for them.

Although introduced here less than two weeks ago, it is now a foregone conclusion that the wonderful success attained by Sargon in other leading cities of the country will be repeated—if not far surpassed—in Twin Falls.

FAME OF SARGON IS NATION—WIDE

Celebrated Medicine Now Sold From Coast to Coast—Leading Druggists Marvel at Record-Breaking Demand

Sargon was first placed on the market in April, 1928—just a little more than one year ago. Today it stands pre-eminent in the field of proprietary medicines wherever it has been introduced and the name of Sargon is rapidly becoming a household word throughout America.

Although the Sargon Laboratories at Dayton, Ohio, one of the largest and most completely equipped in America, have been running at top speed for months, it has been almost impossible to supply the enormous demand for Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, and plans are now under way to increase production at this large plant.

Wholesale dealers are buying Sargon exclusively in carload lots and hundreds of thousands of bottles of this epoch-making product have been shipped to take care of the tremendous demand.

Although Sargon was introduced in the Southern States, only a few months ago, Mr. Robert R. Ellis, Chairman of the Board of the Van Vleet-Ellis Drug Co., of Memphis, Tenn., probably the largest independent drug house in America, said:

"In our opinion we are now selling more Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills than any other ten proprietary medicines put together."

The Faxon-Gallagher Drug Co., of Kansas City, Mo., one of the largest wholesale concerns in the entire Middle West, said:

"Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills are having the largest sale of any proprietary medicines within the memory of the oldest members of our organization."

Local men and women have been quick to recognize Sargon as a revolutionary product and reports of its amazing powers are pouring in to leading druggists from people right here in Twin Falls who have put it to the test.

CHICAGO'S OUTLOOK GOOD, SAYS VISITOR

John E. Ramsey, Former Purchasing Agent of Cook County, Visits Twin Falls

"Chicago is destined to be the largest city in the United States, and in spite of the bad reputation given it in the newspapers, is not more wicked than other large cities," said John E. Ramsey, Chicago, who is the guest of his nephew, Fred Ramsey, Hansen, and who was in Twin Falls yesterday on a brief visit.

"I have lived in Chicago for 45 years and have never had any disagreeable experience with lawless elements; that is the case with most people who go about minding their own business. Chicago is a city of 3,000,000 inhabitants and has a lawless element; so have most cities and villages for that matter.

"I have retired from the position of inspector of purchases for Cook county, Illinois, in which Chicago is situated, and which has, you know, a government different from that of the city. I inspected all the county purchases, and made most of them during the 32 years that I served in that capacity under changing administrations, so I ought to be somewhat familiar with conditions. The purchases amounted to many millions of dollars during my time of service.

Lawlessness Will Go

"Al Capone and similar lawless people will eventually be driven out. Mayor William H. Thompson is not in sympathy with lawlessness regardless of what newspapers say about him. He is a broad man who knows how to deal with the entire situation. William Dever, who was mayor before Thompson, is a most exemplary citizen who did everything in his power to give Chicago a good and honest administration, but he was not strong enough to handle the situation. He was an idealist, but was not a practical administrator.

Change For Better

"The change from William Crowe to John A. Swanson in the office of prosecuting attorney was a change for the better. Governor Emerson of Illinois is a splendid executive. Let me say, too, that there was really nothing the matter with Governor Small, except that the newspapers were down on him. They never proved that he stole anything. R. G. Ingel and Mrs. Walter S. Smith entertained with a beautifully appointed shower and bridge supper, Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Ingel on Ninth Avenue East. Supper was served buffet style from the dining room table which had as a centerpiece a bouquet of exquisite yellow rosebuds and fern, on either side of which were tall white tapers. Miss Wolfe presided at the silver service. The small tables at which the guests were seated had a festival decoration of yellow rosebuds and fern, and the place cards were tiny yellow and green parasols. The rooms were most attractive with wicker baskets holding painted daisies. At bridge with three tables of players, four-high score was won by Mrs. J. D. Sinema. After the games the gifts, mostly linens, attractively wrapped in yellow and green, were presented to the bride-to-be.

Mrs. C. E. Booth, Mrs. Morgan G. Heap, Mrs. A. B. Colwell, Mrs. F. F. McAfee and Mrs. E. B. Williams motored to Shoshone Thursday where they were entertained at luncheon at the home of Mrs. D. Sid Smith with Mrs. E. G. Gooding assistant hostess. The afternoon was spent informally with conversation and bridge.

Mrs. J. A. Keefer was hostess to the Harmony Club Wednesday afternoon at her home on Third Avenue North. Luncheon was served at one o'clock after which two tables of players enjoyed the bridge games, the club diversion. Mrs. J. P. Orr was winner of the prize for score.

Mrs. Dale Jakeway entertained the Highland View Club Wednesday afternoon. Mesdames Ramsey, Neeley and Misses Anna Carter and Valene Tarr were guests and fourteen members were in attendance. After the usual business was transacted the afternoon was spent quilting. The hostess assisted by Miss Anna Carter served refreshments. The club will meet Wednesday, June nineteenth, with Mrs. Bert Johnson.

Mrs. J. M. Bush was hostess to the Women's Progressive Club Wednesday afternoon with seventeen members present. The program arranged by Mrs. Oscar Walker consisted of the readings or by Mrs. E. J. Stepken a club guest, three of her original poems, "Duty," "Life," and "Thrill." Mrs. Katherine Provost, also a guest, spoke on "Textiles." The white elephant presented by Mrs. Personnette, was won by Mrs. G. A. Oater. Mrs. D. W. Updegraff, out-going president presided over the business session, roll call responses were quotations on flag day. Plans were made for the annual picnic for the children of the club to be held June nineteenth at Jerome city park. Officers were elected for the coming year as follows: President, Mrs. G. A. Oater; vice president, Mrs. L. W. Nuttall; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. C. Carr. Mrs. Updegraff expressed her appreciation of the support given her by the various committees during her term of office, and Mrs. Oates, incoming president took the chair. Two names were submitted for membership. A pleasant social hour followed during which refreshments were served. The club will meet with Mrs. H. A. Bush on June twenty-sixth.

Members of the Scribbler's Club were entertained at the home of their president, Mrs. D. Harvey Cook, Wednesday evening. Character sketches, assignments for the meeting, were read and criticized. The song, "Dear Pal O' My Heart," the words of which were written by Mrs. Cook and the music by Mrs. Floyd W. Lyons, and introduced by A. Wilton Peck, was heard by the club at this time. Members answered roll call with vocabulary drill work. A letter written by Mrs. Cook, which won a prize. The club will review the story "White" in a recent magazine contest was read. Oaks of Jalna," by Mazo De La Roche, sequel to the Atlantic Monthly prize story, "Jalna." At the close of the evening refreshments were served, the linen and decorations featuring a yellow color motif.

The Women's Council of the Christian church met at the home of Mrs. John Bevercomb Thursday afternoon. Devotionals were led by Mrs. H. C. Swisher and followed by prayer. At the business meeting presided over by the president, Mrs. W. S. Parish, plans were made for a bazaar to be held Friday and Saturday, November fifteenth and sixteenth. The program for the afternoon was in charge of Mrs. Max Buckentin. Mrs. Herman Deiss gave a splendid talk and read an article on "The History of the Flag." Mrs. J. L. Barnes presented a clever musical contest. Refreshments were served at the close of the afternoon by Mrs. Buckentin's division.

IDAHO INCREASES FRUIT AND VEGETABLE PRODUCTS

SPOKANE, June 13 (AP)—Idaho, Washington and Oregon have more than doubled their shipments of fruits and vegetables during the last nine years.

Luscious apples, cherries, pears and other fruit, combined with green produce and other vegetables from the Pacific Northwest filled 46,937 cars in 1920. By 1923, says the Pacific Northwest advisory council of the American Railway association, they were sending out 117,230 cars.

This means that the three states shipped 10.8 per cent of all fruit and vegetables handled by the whole nation during 1926. The state of Washington filled 64,133 cars during that year, or more than half the total for the northwest.

The three Northwestern states combined loaded 50,721 cars with apples last year, which is 42.4 per cent of all the apples in this country.

Intensified instruction in cooking, map making, camp making and study of points of interest on their itinerary have been outlined for this camp.

"BE EXTRAORDINARY," DR. SANFORD TELLS STUDENTS

In an address before the students of the Gregg Business college yesterday at 9 A. M., Dr. C. M. Sanford, chautauqua lecturer, suggested certain rules to be followed by those seeking a successful business career. The speaker advised the students to be extraordinary, not merely ordinary. Dr. Sanford was introduced by Miss A. Schill, director of the chautauqua.

Dr. Sanford stressed the importance of looking into the future and visualizing one's status 20 years hence.

"In order to be a success you must study," the speaker said, "put into practice what you have learned, and be observant of those who have been successful, thereby benefiting yourself from their experience.

"Learn to be silent about the business transactions of your firm or employer, for the repetition of an innocent remark may cause the failure of an important business deal.

"When opportunity knocks at your door have the nerve and the grit to grasp it and make use of it.

"The highest point, however, is 'Be more than ordinary.' We have so many ordinary people that we must prepare ourselves to be extraordinary."

To all who will buy a lot for cash before July 1, 1929, I will give a money back guarantee with 6 per cent added. C. G. Fargo, Farmer's Store. Phone 885-W or 456. adv

WEATHER CONDITIONS FAVOR IDAHO WHEAT

Lower Temperatures Beneficial to Bread Cereal Crop in Southwest Area

BOISE, June 13 (Special to The News)—Conditions were generally favorable for wheat and for meadow and pasture grasses in southwest Idaho during the week ending June 11, according to the weather and crop summary issued by Clinton Norquest, meteorologist of the department of agriculture weather bureau.

The summary includes the following information:

SOUTHWEST IDAHO: The week was cool and cloudy. Sunshine was inadequate. Conditions were generally quite favorable for wheat and for meadow and pasture grasses, but it was too cool for cultivated crops to do well. Fruit in commercial orchards is doing well and the outlook continues favorable for a good crop. Good rains in many localities Saturday, Sunday and Monday were very beneficial to dry farm crops, which were much in need of moisture. The showers were not so welcome to alfalfa harvesters, some hay being caught in the swath and windrow. A marked improvement in range feed is reported and stock is generally making good gains.

SOUTHEAST IDAHO: The frosts of last Monday did some damage to tomatoes, beans, and, in a few places, to beets. The temperature of the week was generally above normal. Spring grains are doing well. Winter wheat is fair, but much in need of rain in some sections. Potatoes are all about planted. The early planted are coming up to good stands. Peas are all planted and coming up nicely. Alfalfa is making only slow growth. Summer fallowing is progressing in some sections. The range is good, but dry.

Field notes:

GOODING — Considering the late start, crops are all looking fine; crops and farm operations have been carefully planned to meet the expected shortage of storage water this year; light sprinkle Sunday did no great good.

HURLEY—Cold and windy first of week; heavy frost Monday; all crops backward, need warmer weather; beets need rain.

POCATELLO — Temperatures above normal; no rain; spring grains coming up well alfalfa very slow; potatoes about all planted; early planted coming up; beets doing well; being thinned; range fair, needing rain.

LITTLE BASIN DISTRICT WILL HAVE NEW SCHOOL

BURLEY, June 13 (Special to The News)—Little Basin, a thickly settled community east of Oakley, is to have a new two-room brick schoolhouse. Ray McIntosh, clerk of the school board, is asking for bids, the building to be ready for use at the beginning of the fall term. The new school will supercede a "stockade" built structure, plastered on the inside and covered with ship lap. The school was considered a great improvement over the old log cabin, built in 1881, which was of undressed logs, chinked and mudded, with dirt roof, in which many of the Little Basin residents of the present day studied.

Burley May Reorganize Band for City Concerts

BURLEY, June 13 (Special to The News)—Steps are being taken to reorganize the Burley municipal band, which disbanded in 1926 after 17 years of active service. During this period William Schlick, now city councilman, was either director or manager of the organization.

A band library and musical instruments worth about $1500 will be turned over to the new band if reorganization takes place, Mr. Schlick announced. Mark Freshmeh, music director of the Burley schools, is actively behind the proposed step to furnish city band music at public concerts.

FIGHT OVER DISTRICT PLAN GOES TO BOARD

County Commissioners Hear Closing Arguments For and Against Proposal

Argument for and against the proposed Southern Idaho Irrigation district that would take over the irrigation system now operated by the Salmon River Canal company, was closed before Twin Falls county commissioners Thursday afternoon, and the commissioners entered upon deliberations leading to their decision whether the proposed district organization shall be submitted to vote of its residents.

In its closing phases, the contest turned on question of the sufficiency of the petition presented by advocates of the proposed district. Under the law such petition must bear signatures of the title to lands equivalent to one-fourth of the total area of the proposed district.

Advocates of the district who had endorsed a plan for supplementing the Salmon River irrigation project water right by construction of a tunnel four and a half miles long and a canal 35 miles long to divert waters of the east fork of Jarbidge river to the project, were confronted Thursday by a report made in 1920 by Paul S. A. Bickel, chief engineer for the Twin Falls Land and Water company, which built the Twin Falls irrigation system. In this report Mr. Bickel estimated the cost of the proposed tunnel and canal at between three and four million dollars and pronounced the scheme impractical.

Advocates of the district had introduced statement of other engineers who estimated cost of the undertaking at from one million to a million and a quarter dollars. They attacked the Bickel conclusions on the grounds that estimates were based on abnormal wartime cost bases.

The case for the district was summarized in argument Thursday by R. P. Parry of Walters, Parry and Thoman. Judge Bothwell and W. Orr Chapman presented arguments in opposition.

MUSKRATS BLAMED FOR BREAK IN HIGHLINE CANAL

Muskrats were clearly responsible for the break which took place in the high line canal near the Ed Domrose farm, six miles south of Hansen, Wednesday night it was stated last evening by John E. Hayes, manager of the Twin Falls canal company. Seventeen men and three teams closed the gap in less than eight hours yesterday, Mr. Hayes said. By arrangement water was turned on in the canal, where it had been shut off, and reached the point where repairs were being made, just as they were completed.

Wednesday evening, just about the time that the break took place, the big drag line shovel used to clean the canal had a mishap five miles farther up, when the inner rotary dropped into a beaver house, in the bank and almost threw the entire machine into the canal. It took three hours to get the machine out and started again when the water was out. Three beavers were seen by the workers shortly after this accident.

Launches New Attack On Well Digging Liens

In behalf of 57 landowners, Harry Benoit, Twin Falls attorney, has instituted suit in district court here for cancellation of Twin Falls Canal company liens filed in September, 1926, for digging of wells on the property in question. These liens constitute a cloud on title to the land, and, it is contended, they are invalid because the well-digging was completed more than five years before the liens were filed and after the time limit for foreclosure had expired.

The same issue has heretofore been raised by the Twin Falls attorney in a suit in behalf of one named landowner "and others similarly situated." The district court here held that the liens were invalid, but decision was reversed by the supreme court on the grounds that the canal company had already released the lien as against the named landowner.

League of Nations Acts to Suppress Counterfeiting

DELEGATES FROM 35 NATIONS TAKE PART IN GENEVA MEETING

For Certain of Contracting Parties Convention Involves Obligation to Modify Domestic Codes

By JOSEPH E. SHARKEY
Associated Press Correspondent

GENEVA, June 13.—The international conference for the suppression of counterfeiting, recently convened under the auspices of the League of Nations, drew up a convention with a protocol and final act with a view to effective prevention of the offense of making spurious money. Various legislative and administrative measures were agreed upon.

For certain of the contracting parties this convention involves the obligation to modify their domestic penal codes and to take concerted administrative action with a view to preventing the counterfeiters from escaping punishment.

One of the results of the conference will be the convocation of an international congress of the national police offices dealing with the suppression of counterfeiting currency.

Urges Inquiries

The conference further recommends that an inquiry should be made into the international measures that might be taken with a view to preventing the counterfeiting of securities, such as share and debenture certificates, cheques, and bills of exchange.

Delegations from 35 countries, including the United States, participated.

The word "currency" in the convention is understood to mean coins, as well as paper money and bank notes. The contracting parties recognize that the following should be punishable as ordinary crimes:

1. Any fraudulent making or altering of currency whatever means are employed.
2. The fraudulent uttering of counterfeit currency.
3. The introduction into a country or the receiving or obtaining of counterfeit currency with a view to uttering and with knowledge that it is counterfeit.
4. Attempts to commit or any foregoing acts.
5. The fraudulent making, receiving or obtaining of tools, dies or other instruments peculiarly adapted for the counterfeiting or altering of currency.

Each of these acts, if committed in a different country, is to be considered as a distinct offense and no distinction is made in the scale of punishments between acts relating to domestic currency and to foreign currency. In countries where the principle of the international recognition of previous convictions for offenses of counterfeiting currency shall be recognized for the purpose of establishing habitual criminality.

Covers Extradition.

The convention further includes provisions concerning the extradition of foreigners, which vary according to the currency, as well as the instruments of the different countries, but all are based on making it the convention in a general way at preventing the offender from escaping punishment owing to the fact that he is residing in a foreign country or in a country other than that in which he has committed the offense.

There are also provisions for the seizure and confiscation of counterfeit currency. There are stipulations regarding the institution of a central international office with which the national offices will correspond.

On the proposal of Rumania, an optional protocol was laid before the conference by which contracting parties undertake in their mutual relations to consider the acts referred to in the convention as ordinary offenses so far as extradition is concerned.

The optional protocol has so far been acceded to by Austria, Czecho-Slovakia, Greece, Portugal, Rumania and Jugo-Slavia.

MONEY RATES PLAY PART IN REDUCING BUILDING ACTIVITY

Speculative Construction Hardest Hit, Declares Noted Bay State Statistician After Deep Probe

By Roger W. Babson

BABSON PARK, Mass., June 13—Statistics clearly indicate that high money rates have adversely affected certain kinds of building and will continue to do so until rates are lower. On the other hand, the construction industry as a whole has made a surprisingly good record considering this adverse factor. The type that has been hardest hit has been speculative building, particularly of large apartment houses and small home subdivisions. Industrial building, on the other hand, is holding up well, and public works and utilities are forging ahead. The result is an balancing of total construction so that current activity is only about 1 per cent below last year.

Contracts awarded in the first three months of 1929 were disappointing. Cold and wet weather over most of the country were undoubtedly a contributing factor to the delay in starting new projects. High money rates were a vital factor, but probably less influential than has been commonly asserted. Money rates alone have not controlled building. Otherwise there would not have been the sharp recovery in April when money rates were even higher than in the earlier months of the year. As a matter of fact, numerous industrial concerns have been able to finance new plants without resorting either to bond issues or mortgage loans. Some of this has been done by issuance of stock and some out of surplus earnings. In New York the financing of hotels and other large projects by a new stock financing plan is proving very successful. Moreover, the ability of the building industry to maintain so great activity as it has under extreme money conditions undoubtedly testifies to the great latent demand for new construction. As soon as interest rates return to a more normal level this pile-up demand should cause another spurt in building operations.

Speculation Falls Off

It seems that speculation in the building business has suffered more from high money than speculation in the stock market. The real estate men tell me that the slackness in residential is primarily due to the public placing its funds in the stock market. At any rate, residential building over the first three months of 1929 was 34 per cent below the same period in 1928. April showed a recovery. In that month residential work was only 7 per cent below the same month last year. Nevertheless, the pressure continues against large apartment building enterprises, and cannot be expected to lift until money rates fall.

In sharp contrast, public works and utilities in April were 30 per cent ahead of April a year ago. Industrial building including factories, warehouses, etc. also gained sharply in response to demand for increased production facilities.

Where Building Is Best

Counting all types of construction, figures compiled by F. W. Dodge company for April showed greatest activity in the Middle Atlantic states. In the states of Pennsylvania, southern New Jersey, Maryland, Delaware, District of Columbia and Virginia there was the largest monthly total ever recorded for that section. To be sure, several exceptionally large contracts of a commercial and public utility type helped to swell the total; but general building activity was also well sustained. New York state and northern New Jersey showed sharp recoveries from the poor months earlier in the year. April contracts in that section were 12 per cent larger than April, 1928. A few biz contracts for highway construction and one huge hotel contributed to this gain, but activity was general throughout the district.

New England building showed a 28 per cent gain in April over March, but was still 10 per cent under April of last year. In the northwestern states of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Michigan, building has recently been one of the bright spots on the business map. Contracts awarded in April this year were 54 per cent ahead of last year. It is noteworthy that 30 per cent of this total was for public works and utilities and 23 per cent for industrial projects, indicating the great activity for engineering projects throughout the northwest. Residential building was only 19 per cent of the total in that district.

Heavy Building In South

Another prosperous building area is the southeastern states, including Georgia, Florida, Tennessee, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Arkansas, North and South Carolina. This territory reports the second highest April volume of building on record. It was 52 per cent ahead of March and 19 per cent ahead of April last year. Here again industrial projects, public works and utilities accounted for the sharp gain. These two classes alone constituted 60 per cent of all construction work.

Texas Continues Active

For the first four months of this year Texas has consistently shown a high volume of construction comparing favorably with the record figures of a year ago. In this state 36 per cent of the work was residential, 24 per cent for commercial building, 10 per cent for public works and utilities and 6 percent for schools. A large amount of new building is planned for this district during the next few months. The contemplated projects running in the value of 46 per cent ahead of last year.

Weather Retards Operations

Weather conditions have doubtless had much to do with the delay in building operations in the Central West. The Spring has been unusually cold throughout this area and the Winter was severe. For the first four months of the year new construction contracts were 14 per cent less than in the same period of 1928. Residential work is nearly half of all building in this area and since residential building has been the most adversely affected by the money situation it has reduced the total volume of construction considerably. There are a number of large utility and industrial projects planned for this area including the States of Indiana, Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Oklahoma and Nebraska.

Good Time to Build

While money is high and hard to obtain for speculative building purposes, this does not apply to the man who wants to build his own home. There is plenty of money to be had for this purpose, and rates are just about the same as they have always been. The average man will be far better off to forget the stock market and put his money into a home. He can do this through the savings banks, the co-operative banks, or building and loan associations. Instead of paying 8 to 10 per cent interest to brokers on margin accounts in stocks and possibly losing half of your principal is it not wiser to employ your money in the construction of a home—a thing of permanent value and satisfaction? Moreover, with prospects for a higher tariff on lumber, cement and other building materials building costs may advance later on. The present looks like as good a time as any to build your own home. Business by the Babsonchart is now 7 per cent above normal compared with 5 per cent above a year ago.

Contests in Factories Will Speed up Soviet Production

By WILLIAM RESWICK
(Associated Press Correspondent)

MOSCOW, June 13 — Due to high percentage of waste, weak discipline, low productivity of the individual worker and other similar causes, the Soviet industrial plan for the first half of the current economic year has not been carried out fully. A considerable underproduction, as compared to the plan, has been especially marked in coal mining and in the textile industry.

With a view to increasing the output of industry in the next six months, a "Socialistic Contest" has recently been proclaimed throughout the country. The nature of this contest is as follows:

"Soviet industrial plants, factories, mines and state farms pledge each other to fulfill industrial and financial plans mapped out by government experts. The items in these plans include lowering the cost of production by 7.5 per cent, raising the productivity of labor by 17 per cent, decreasing administrative expenses by 20 per cent and increasing the total output of Soviet industry by 21 per cent.

Enterprises, which by the end of the current economic year show best results in carrying out these terms, will be declared winners of the contest.

"Recently six of the largest textile factories in Russia, employing almost 60,000 men, signed a mutual agreement to this effect. The following extracts give a clearer understanding of the "socialistic contest":

"We, the undersigned representatives of the above-named textile factories, proclaim a socialistic contest between our factories, in carrying out the *instructions of the government and com*munist party, as given in the Industrial-Financial Plan.

"By signing this economical-political agreement, we give a sworn revolutionary promise to carry out in full the program of production in our factories. To ensure success in this contest we obligate ourselves to:

"(1) Lower at once the cost of production to a degree corresponding with that given in the industrial-financial plan.

"(2) Strengthen the discipline among our workers, and put an end to idleness and self-willed cessation of labor in working hours.

"(3) Raise the average productivity of each machine and worker.

"(4) Immediately put into life all economically well-based suggestions of workers, directed towards rationalization of production."

The document closes with an appeal to all workers of the Soviet Union to follow the example of the textile workers.

Young English Girls Like Hatless Styles

LONDON, June 13 (AP)—To the despair of London milliners, English girls are seen more and more without hats.

It is not a common practice by any means, but fashion experts are looking with interest on the girls and women who quite boldly take their walk through Hyde Park or to the corner grocery hatless. On warm days even staid and proper Bond street and the Strand see well-dressed misses carrying their hats stuffed under their arms.

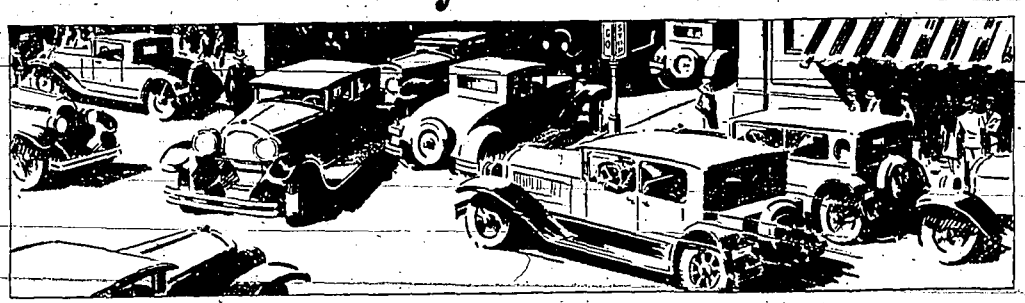
The Safeguarded Milk "from Contented Cows"

Stop pouring gasoline into your oil!



YOU don't do it deliberately—you wouldn't think of doing it! But drop by drop you are wasting fuel, drop by drop you are diluting your oil with "wet" gasoline!

Down the cylinder walls it goes—every time you use the choke or thrust open the throttle or shift gears in traffic. And who can drive today without doing these things? Yet you can stop the waste and danger of "wet" gasoline, very simply.

Use a "dry" gas. Shell 400, refined to an exact point for highest efficiency, goes completely vaporized—dry—into your motor. All of it is used; none of the heavy "wet" droplets of ordinary gasoline are left to run into the crankcase.

And in a thousand miles of driving, instead of finding your oil half gasoline—ruined—there'll be only traces of gasoline in it; not enough to seriously harm the oil.

Knowing these things about Shell 400 you can better appreciate its just claim to greater power, more mileage!

The same price you pay for ordinary gasoline will buy "dry" Shell 400 at the thousands of yellow and red Shell pumps everywhere. Let it be your next filling station purchase.

At the left: An example of what a thousand miles of ordinary driving with ordinary gasoline can do —oil 31% "gasoline"—thinning caused by incomplete explosion of "wet" gas

Shell 400 the "dry" gas, reduces oil thinning to a minimum. Note this diagram at the right—only 9.3% in a thousand miles of ordinary driving

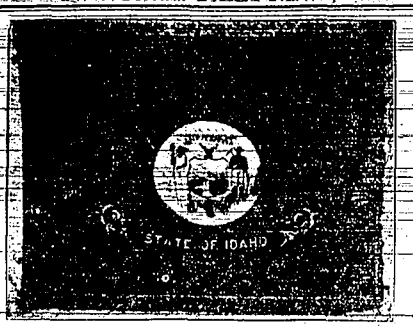
ACT OF LEGISLATURE PROVIDES IDAHO FLAG

State's Emblem Prescribed By Adjutant General of Silk With Blue Field



BOISE, June 13 (Special to The News)—Idaho's state flag came into official existence by an act of the legislature giving the adjutant general supervision over its construction. The only thing prescribed by law was that the flag "shall be blue, charged with the name of the state in such colors and of such size and dimensions as shall be prescribed by the adjutant general."

The adjutant general thereby prescribed the following:

"A silk flag, blue field, five feet six inches fly, and four feet four inches on pike, bordered by gilt fringe two and one-half inches in width, with the state seal of Idaho 21 inches in diameter, in colors, in the center of the blue field. The words "State of Idaho" are embroidered in gold block letters, two inches in height, on a red band three inches in width by 29 inches in length, the band being centered in gold and placed about eight and one-half inches from the lower border of fringe and parallel with the same."

Such a flag has been made and now stands in the office of Governor H. C. Baldridge at Boise. The field of this flag is Copenhagen blue. The flag contains an embroidered reproduction of the great seal of the state and this emblem came into existence March 14, 1891, when an act of the first state legislature approving the design submitted by Miss Emma Edwards was signed by the governor. Miss Edwards, who is now Mrs. Green, Boise, describes her inspiration and work as follows:

"The question of woman suffrage was being agitated somewhat, and as leading men and politicians agreed that Idaho would eventually give women the right to vote, and as mining was the chief industry, and the mining men the largest financial factor of the state at that time, I made the figure of the man the most prominent in the design, while that of the woman signifying justice as denoted by the scales; liberty, as denoted by the liberty cap on the head of the spear, and equality with man as denoted by her position at his side, also signifies freedom. The pick and shovel of the miner, and the ledge of rock beside which he stands as well as the pieces of ore scattered at his feet, all indicate the chief occupation of the state. The stamp mill in the distance, which you can see by using magnifying glass, is also typical of the mining interests of Idaho. The shield between the man and woman is emblematic of the protection they unite in giving the state. The large fir or pine tree in the foreground of the shield refers to Idaho's immense timber interests. The husbandman plowing on the left side of the shield, together with the sheaf of grain beneath the shield, are emblematic of Idaho's agricultural resources, while the cornucopias, or horns of plenty, refer to horticulture. Idaho has a game law which protects the elk. The elk's head, therefore, rises above the shield. The state flower, the wild syringa or mock orange, grows at the woman's feet, while the ripened wheat grows as high as her shoulders. The star signifies a new light in the galaxy of states. The translation of the Latin motto, "Esto Perpetua," is "It is perpetuated," or "It is forever." The river depicted in the shield is our mighty Snake or Shoshone river, a stream of great majesty."

A description of the colors used in the seal given by Miss Evangeline Church of the governor's office follows:

Embroidery around seal and shield, gold; the motto is in brown letters on a white band which has a red lining; the upper part of the background of the seal is white while the lower part is light green; the river is light blue; pine tree, dark green; figures of man and horses, dark brown; the woman's hair is brown, the liberty cap red; staff, light brown; face and arms, flesh; wheat, light yellow; scales, gold; dress, white; man's hat, dark brown; pick and mustache, brown; shirt, red; trousers, blue; boots and rocks, black; sun, orange center, yellow rays; mill, brick color with slate roof; hills, amethyst; elk, brown; cornucopias, yellow; fruits and flowers, purple.

A new package . . that is as fresh and attractive as Snowdrift itself

You will recognize the new blue and white can on your grocer's shelf as Snowdrift, even before you read the label.

The design is so clean and inviting and fresh—so simple and modern. For all the world like Snowdrift itself!

You'll be pleased when you learn of the convenience of the large cans—the new three and six pound sizes. Just about as wide as they are tall and as easy to spoon from as from your own mixing bowl. These new sizes add to the convenience of Snowdrift itself.

And convenience, you know, is just another word for Snowdrift's creaminess. A creamy texture so smooth and so spoonable that you never have to work it into sugar or flour—just put them together and mix with a few stirs of the spoon.

Maybe that's why Snowdrift cakes and biscuits and pie crust have such an unusually fine texture, and why food fried in Snowdrift is so deliciously good to eat.

By CLAUDE A. JAGGER
(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, June 13—The stock market shook off to some extent the stagnation of recent sessions today, and moved forward with renewed vigor, under the impetus of more plentiful money. Total sales once more rose above 3,000,000 shares, a moderate turnover in comparison with past bullish performances, but about 5 per cent larger than previous sessions this week.

Public utility, steel, and chemical shares led the advance, which was rather selective in character, and failed to include many of the coppers, oils, rails or motors. Much of the upturn was attributed to short covering, but the belief that many issues had reached bottom continued to grow, and it was rumored that some of the more powerful investment trusts were adding to their holdings.

The ease in money, which sent call loans from 8 to 7 per cent, and time loans to a flat rate of 8¼, from 8¼ to 8½ for the shorter maturities yesterday, was attributed to temporary conditions, resulting from the piling up of funds here against midmonth settlements, and bankers still warned that higher rates must be expected before the end of the month.

Statements Show Gain

The federal reserve condition statements, which appeared after the close of the market, however, were interpreted in some quarters as indicating that the federal reserve authorities for the first time in months are now acting in a manner which would prevent any serious flurry in call money rates. The New York reserve institutions showed a gain of approximately $10,000,000 in bankers' acceptances purchased, and a gain of $22,000,000 in government securities.

In quarters close to the bank, however, it was insisted that no change in the tight money policy was indicated, that the gain in acceptances was the result of repurchase agreements, and that the increase in government securities, merely incident to the new treasury short term financing. But regardless of the federal reserve policy, it appeared that member banks had purchased new government securities in order to have them for collateral against additional rediscounts. The New York banks increased their borrowings by about $13,000,000 and the reserve bank showed a similar increase in bills discounted which were secured by government obligations.

No Change in Loans

Other pleasing features in the credit situation were the extraordinary announcement of no change one way or the other, in federal reserve brokers' loans, and the fact that, as expected, the New York reserve bank made no change in its rediscount rate. Both sterling and Canadian exchange fell well below the incoming gold point, and a large importation of gold from Montreal was said to have been arranged.

The utilities were still feverishly bought in today's market, under the impetus of further reports of bringing together practically all of the important power companies in the East into an alignment sponsored by J. P. Morgan and company. The Associated Press index of 20 utilities rose more than 7 points to a new high record. American Water Works, American Power and Light, Commonwealth Power, North American, and Public Service of New Jersey were among issues reaching new high ground.

Such old favorites as American Telephone, American Can, and United States Steel rose from 4 to 7 points, the first named drawing strong support on announcement of record sales of its subsidiary, Western Electric. General Electric rose 11 points to a new high record but a fraction under the 300-mark.

In the commodities wheat rose nearly 3 cents. Corn was firm and cotton was steady, closing around 50 cents a bale higher.

Foreign exchanges were fairly steady, save for sterling cables, which fell to $4.85¾, around the low of the year, and the Canadian dollar, which sagged to near 99.15 cents.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, June 14 (AP)—There was a little more activity in the raw sugar market today and prices advanced 1-32c with refiners showing more interest and offerings comparatively light. Sales reported included about 42,000 bags of Philippines and 60,000 bags of Cuban to refiners and operators, all at $3.30 delivered.

The better tone of the spot market had a steadying influence in raw futures and prices were higher throughout the entire session, closing from 2 to 4 points above the previous close. With the near approach of first July notice day, shorts were inclined to cover and this together with some outside buying, which was attracted by the advance in spots, was responsible for the upturn, while offerings were on a comparatively limited scale. The market opened unchanged to 2 points higher, and after showing further advances of 1 point, reacted about 1 to 2 points under realizing. Offerings became lighter on this moderate setback, however, and in the afternoon the market firmed up again on trade buying which was believed to be in the way of covering hedges against sales in the spot market, with final prices at about the best of the session. Approximate sales 41,400 tons. July closed $1.61; September $1.73; December $1.80; January $1.82; March $1.86; May $1.97.

Refined prices were unchanged at $5 for fine granulated and while second hands were available at from $4.77½ to $4.80 withdrawals on old contracts continued on a liberal scale.

WASHINGTON REPORT BOOSTS WHEAT PRICE

Shattering of Debenture Plans Goes Hand in Hand With Higher Quotations

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)

CHICAGO, June 13—Shattering of debenture plans went hand in hand today with higher prices for grain. Wheat and corn each rose about 3 cents a bushel and then reacted because of an outburst of selling to realize profits.

Closing quotations on wheat were unsettled, ¾c to 1¼c above yesterday's finish. Corn closed at ⅛c to 1½c net advance with oats unchanged to ⅜c up and provisions unchanged to a rise of 22 cents.

Highest prices of all the day in the grain pits came about in short order after announcement of the vote at Washington by which the house put on record a decisive rejection of debentures as a part of the pending farm relief bill. The outcome of the voting was forseen generally among traders and from the outset today was made the basis of spirited buying at times. There also was expectance in most quarters here that the debentureless farm bill would quickly become a law, possibly tomorrow.

Under such circumstances the wheat market showed an evident upward trend the greater part of the day but outside early gains by jumping 1½c a bushel or more after word came that the knockdown and drag-out of debentures apparently had been accomplished, so far at least as the farm relief bill itself was concerned. The final bulge in prices, however, le d to much increased selling, mainly to collect profits. As a result the day's top prices failed to hold, the market losing a good share of the gains.

The board was all but swamped by the heavy profit-taking sales in the late trade. Early the market showed itself decidedly responsible to wheat strength and to news of unwelcome rains. Oats reflected the action of other cereals.

Provisions advanced owing to upturns in hogs values and grain.

PUBLIC OFFICE ATTRACTS MANY FRENCH CANDIDATES

PARIS, June 13 (AP)—If there be people who like holding public office better than the French, statistics have not revealed their identity. Of the 10,000,000 voters in this country, 1,200,000 were candidates in the recent municipal election.

Every village, town and city in France, 37,984 comunes all told, elected a mayor and a municipal Council. About 400,000 men got jobs as municipal councillors, or aldermen. The minimum number of councillors, no matter how tiny the commune, is 10. In some places every voter is an office-holder, and in the hamlet of Riboux, in the Var department, where there are only eight voters, two office-holders had to be borrowed from a neighboring village.

The municipal jobs used to be good for four years, but the new incumbents were elected for six. The longer term is presumably more agreeable both to men who like the dignity of little titles and to those who know how to get pork out of a barrel.

Not the Right Way

I never wait until the first of the year to make good resolutions. I make them every morning. And by January I sometimes almost hope I have made a little progress. But I am never able to accomplish anything by promising to quit all my bad habits at once.—E. W. Howe's Monthly.

Justice

We can drive a stone upward for a moment into the air, yet it is yet true that all stones will forever fall; and whatever instances can be quoted of unpunished theft, or a lie which somebody credited, justice must prevail, and it is the privilege of truth to make itself believed.—Emerson.

Most People Are Honest

The files of the Associated Credit Men of New York show that 98 per cent of all retail charge customers are honest, although many of them are negligent in paying bills.—American Magazine.

"What? Remain here—at Ardrington Hall?" he exclaimed.

"Why not? You will be your own master. You can choose your own recreation. There is a gymnasium somewhere, a small golf course in the park, and the tennis courts, I believe are good. I am not sure that in my present state absolute solitude is good for me. You shall give me an hour or two of your time each day. It will interest me," he went on thoughtfully, "to hear more of your views about life. You represent a class of which one knows too little because one seldom meets them under the right conditions. If the historians and prophets of today tell the truth, it is upon your shoulders that the burden of carrying on the Empire will remain. You accept my invitation, I trust?"

"Of course, I do," Martin assented, a little dazed. "I don't know why you ask me, unless, perhaps, you are very bored with your own friends. If I may say so without offense, I am just as curious about your class, as you are about mine."

The dull booming of a Burmese gong reverberated through the hall. Lord Ardrington rose to his feet.

"Your clothes?" he inquired.

"I have a portmanteau in the car. I had thought of moving on to Lincoln tonight."

"I will have it sent to your rooms. Meanwhile, we will join Lady Blanche and my stepdaughter for tea."

They passed across the hall, Lord Ardrington's hand resting lightly upon his companion's stalwart shoulder, into the old-fashioned drawingroom, which was one of the splendors of the house, a copy of a room in a Versailles palace, from which indeed most of the furniture and mirrors had come. At its farther end was a smaller apartment, with windows opening on the terrace, where Lady Blanche and her cousin, reclining in low chairs, were engaged in what seemed to be an animated conversation. They broke off abruptly as the two men approached and Martin was uneasily conscious of the sound of his own name.

"Mr. Barnes tells me that he has already made the acquaintance of you two young ladies," Lord Ardrington observed.

They both smiled a greeting at him.

"We've been admiring your car, Mr. Barnes," Lady Blanche observed. "What a selfish man you must be to go touring about the country all alone."

"I have persuaded Mr. Barnes to change his plans and stay over a few days with us," Lord Ardrington announced. "Laurita, you must see Mrs. Holmes and arrange for some rooms on the south side to be prepared. In the meantime, will you give us some tea?"

Laurita pirouetted across to the table. There was a faint flush of color in her cheeks and her eyes were suddenly bright.

"What an exciting announcement," she exclaimed. "Will you take me out in your car, Mr. Barnes?"

"With pleasure," he answered.

"And play tennis with me?" Lady Blanche demanded.

"If there's a spare racket anywhere about," he agreed.

"I can see the end of our lotus-like idleness," Lady Blanche sighed. "I think that you are a very brave man, Mr. Barnes, to accept my uncle's invitation. Laurita, fresh from boarding school, has simply been aching for a little male society, and I am almost as bad myself. How we will partition you out, I can't imagine."

Glancing around, Martin suddenly caught a flash from Laurita's eyes—something which he utterly failed to understand, yet which in a sense thrilled him. She held out a cup and her eyes and smile invited him to the chair by her side.

"Mr. Barnes will have to be specially kind to me," she said, "because, although it is my home, I have visited it so seldom that we are really both strangers."

"Laurita already cadging for sympathy!" Lady Blanche complained. "Don't be carried away by that childlike, appealing manner, Mr. Barnes. Laurita is a babe, just out of boarding school. I am one of the noblest works of nature—an emancipated woman. You almost discovered that in London, didn't you? Mr. Barnes was terribly shocked, uncle, when he heard that I had independent rooms over a mews."

"No sane persons pretends to understand the ways of you of the younger generation," Lord Ardrington remarked, stirring his tea. "A revision to Victorianism, I should think, is due at any moment."

"It might be effective," Blanche mused. "Could you be demure, Laurita? Not with those eyes, I am afraid. And I don't think sidewhiskers would suit you at all, Mr. Barnes."

"I once tried to grow them," he admitted. "They thought I looked rather young for the post I was holding."

"I should look divine in a crinoline," Lady Blanche reflected. "I am not at all sure that I could manage the modesty stunt, though."

Lord Ardrington laid down his cup.

"I shall leave you to the entertain*ment of these young ladies, Mr. Barnes*," he said, as he turned away. "Dinner is at 8 o'clock. My stepdaughter will see the housekeeper about your rooms, and she will appoint one of the men to look after your clothes."

His tone had suddenly become listless. He left the room with the air of one anxious to escape. Lady Blanche looked after him wonderingly.

"I wonder what you have been doing to my uncle," she reflected. "He has that strange, haunted look which comes to him sometimes, as though he weren't living with us at all."

Martin shook his head in concern.

"He changed like that without the slightest warning this afternoon," he remarked. "Then, after a time, he seemed to get all right again. I hope he isn't regretting that he asked me to stay."

"I'm sure it wouldn't be that," Lady Blanche declared. "As a matter of fact, it ought to be good for him to have a altogether unnatural about the way he is shutting himself up here."

Laurita, who was looking out across the park, shivered. It was a very beautiful view, but curiously devoid of any visitor to talk to. There is something sign of human life or movement. There was a wonderful stretch of flower garden, cattle in the nearer meadow, a few deer beyond—but no sign of any human being.

"Can one have nerves at 17?" she demanded.

"Certainly not," Blanche scoffed. I am the only one who has any right to such a luxury. I am many years older than you; I smoke far too much; if I have the whim, I drink too many cocktails; I sit up to all hours of the night and misbehave in every conceivable way. But for my rude health I should be a nervous wreck. Why don't you go and see about Mr. Barnes' rooms, Laurita? Get it over, and then we can decide what to do with him until dinnertime."

Laurita made a little grimace.

"I do not like leaving you two together," she declared. "It is not fair. You are already the older friend."

Blanche rose from her chair with affected reluctance.

"In that case I must sacrifice myself. I will come with you, Laurita; and while we are gone, Mr. Barnes can drive his car round to the garage—through the gates to the left just as you came in."

Martin drove down the avenue and into the great courtyard. The door of which was opened to him after a long delay. The place seemed desolate and bare. There was moss growing between the stones and most of the boxes were empty. The gates were locked even for the few minutes that he was there, and a postern gate leading out on to the village street was secured by two iron bars of enormous strength. The nearer view of the back of the house was even more forbidding than from the lane; the windows were most of them barred and the blinds drawn.

"Are you afraid of burglars here?" Martin asked the man who helped him put away the car and finally let him out.

The man balanced the great key upon his little finger. He had a tired look about the eyes, as though he slept badly.

"I can't rightly tell what it is we're afraid of, sir," he confided.

PANORAMIC HIGHWAY ATTRACTS TOURISTS

Idaho's North and South Road, With Scenic Features, Proving Popular

BOISE, June 13 (Special to the News)—Each year more tourists are discovering Idaho's new way to the Pacific Northwest over the North and South Panoramic highway, the highway of a thousand thrills.

Probably nowhere in the country within 500 miles, the distance covered by this highway, is there such a variety of scenery. Mountainous roads, roads that climb hills, one of them 12 miles long, over easy 5 per cent grades, roads that roll over high plateaus checkered into grain fields, roads that sweep along the shores of beautiful lakes—all these experiences are included in the one trip over Idaho's North and South Panoramic highway.

Lakes in North

The lake country is found on the northern end of the trip. Coeur d'Alene and Pend d'Oreille, Idaho's two largest lakes, are directly on the highway, while Priest, Hayden, Spirit and many others are but short distances from the main highway.

Swimming, boating, fishing, aquaplaning and other sports are enjoyed on Idaho lakes, and they are the resort centers for many thousands of people. Their shores are campgrounds for those who seek their recreation away from cities, and many beautiful summer homes have been built there.

Prairie Highway

Skirting the south end of Lake Coeur d'Alene and crossing the "shadowy" St. Joe river, highest navigable stream in America, the highway leaves the lake country and enters an agricultural region of which St. Maries is the center. For miles toward the south the highway travels over rolling prairie, cut in many places by canyons whose rounding sides curved downward toward some sparkling stream. In the spring these rolling plains are green with wheat.

Moscow, the seat of Idaho's highest institution of learning, the university, is located in the heart of this region, which has sufficient elevation to win the slogan, "Where Pine and Prairie Meet."

The University of Idaho is credited nationally with one of the finest schools of forestry in the country.

Jobs to Fit Students Rule For Germany

BERLIN, June 13 (AP)—German students who will soon graduate are deciding the route by which they will enter the business world on the theory that a job should be chosen, not only because of its mental appeal for the candidate, but also because it is physically the best suited to his or her own physical make-up.

Working on a skyscraper scaffolding and driving a car are, according to extensive medical tests, the two occupations which have the most soothing effect on the nerves.

Acting, journalism, law office work, on the contrary, have been found to be occupations tending above all others to produce frayed and unstrung nerves.

Dwellers on "Whiskey Run," Ohio, objected to the name and have rechristened the famous highway Springvale road.

Idaho's Leading Gun-Wielder Back In State to Spend Summer Months

BOISE, June 13 (AP)—Ar thrilled by the sight of his name blazoned in the white lights of some of the East's leading theatres as he often is by the sight of the moon hanging over some lonely peak in the Sawtooths, Bob Limbert, Idaho's leading gun-wielder, has returned to his home state for the summer.

Bob, as he is affectionately known by the recently incarcerated Al Capone and other prominent gangmen with whom he became acquainted while in Chicago, said he learned a great deal about the West while in the East

"All the leading citizens wear sombreros and chaps out here, I was told. As a matter of fact, until I adopted the garb I couldn't make any money. Nobody would believe that I came from the West, in spite of my sunburned complexion and close acquaintance with firearms."

Bob indignantly denied he had been offered a job by the gangsters while he was appearing in a shooting act in Chicago.

"They didn't seem to need any help," he said. He said he paid a call on Capone and found him to be a "likable fellow."

Since arriving in Idaho for the summer, Limbert has been teaching the police how to use firearms as well as to take them from others in the act of doing the shooting. He staged a down-town demonstration for Boise police this week and snarled up traffic to a certain extent as the people had to dash to their posts to untangle it before he could continue.

No regulation pistoling lessons went into the training of Limbert. Just wandering about the hills shooting at things developed in him a keen eye that enables him to split coins tossed into the air, break two bottles at once in widely separated positions, drop a bottle and draw his gun and shoot the bottle to pieces before it hits the ground.

All these types of shooting he demonstrated to eastern audiences last winter and often drew down $300 a sitting, or shooting.

But his gun-play was only one part of his usual program. Of most interest to himself was his talks on nature. Limbert replenishes his stock of natural information by frequent and prolonged trips into the unexplored sections of the Sawtooth mountain country. Sometimes he sets to guide and sometimes just wanders in alone with a gun and camera.

His photographs of natural scenes and wild animals are ranked as some of the finest taken in Idaho. A number of them are kept on display each summer in the state house where tourists may view them.

A story is told of how he led a party of easterners into the Stanley basin in central Idaho. "Oh, aren't those peaks magnificent," was the exclamation of members of the party. Bob waited until their excitement had quieted down and then remarked that "now we'll go on over these foothills and into the scenic country."

He returned with a trunk full of press clippings but apparently unspoiled by the reception he had received. The press clippings pleased him immensely. In fact he was literally tickled pink about them but the lacre which poured into his humble jeans has not deadened his interest in Idaho's scenery and he plans to absorb a lot more of it before he returns again to the East next fall.

ANTI-DRINK DRIVE IN MEXICO GAINING

President Gil's Campaign Becomes One of Chief Topics Throughout Country

By JOHN LLOYD
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

MEXICO CITY, June 13 — President Portes Gil's campaign to rid Mexico of the drink evil has gained such momentum that it has become one of the chief topics of discussion throughout the country and one of the principal subjects of legislation.

The president's appeal to state governments to second his endeavor has met with ready response in the form of orders restricting the sale and consequently the consumption of alcoholic liquors as well as regulating the number of saloons.

Governor Raymundo Enriquez, Chiapas, has instructed the state treasurer to establish so heavy a tax on intoxicating drinks that their manufacture will be unprofitable. This measure, in addition to discouraging manufacture of liquor, is calculated to oblige the saloons to charge prices beyond the reach of the average man.

Governor Enriquez also has ordered that the saloons be forced to pay increased taxes, looking through this means to cause many of them to close. Furthermore, he has prohibited the sale of intoxicants on ranches and farms, many of which employ hundreds of peons.

Similar although less stringent measures have been adopted in other states, and the War Department has prohibited the sale of liquor to soldiers. Soldiers who overcome this obstacle and become intoxicated will be subjected to severe punishment.

The government of Mexico City has placed a ban on sale of liquor in dance halls and has notified cabaret proprietors that they will no longer be allowed to employ waitresses. The city fathers hold that these girls become alcohol addicts.

Anti-Alcohol leagues have been formed throughout Mexico among mothers, teachers, school children and workers, and lectures on the evils of the drink habit are being given in theaters, the schools, union headquarters and other public assembly places.

Army air students are now counseled from the ground by means of radio-phone.

SWEDEN RICH FIELD FOR ANCIENT RELICS

STOCKHOLM, June 13 (AP)—Sweden's prehistoric relics are the richest in the world, and this is because the same race has inhabited the country for about 15,000 years, says Professor Cinthon, state antiquarian.

The scientific museums of Sweden contain more than a half million treasures of antiquity.

The structures of the landscapes, with patches of fertile soil lying among barren areas, thick forests, or craggy hills, has also helped to preserve these materials of ancient lore. These natural obstacles have kept farmers from encroaching upon the sites where prehistoric tombs, fortifications and Viking rune stones have been hidden.

Moreover, the Swedish government realized 300 years ago the importance of preserving relics of antiquity and enacted laws to that end.

RUSSIA TO INAUGURATE COMPULSORY EDUCATION

LENINGRAD, June 13 (AP)—Compulsory education is to be introduced into Russia, although rather gradually. The central executive committee recently decreed that by 1933 every child between the ages of 8 and 11 must be in school.

This city, being well advanced in comparison with other centers, has found it possible to put in order into immediate effect.

The delay in making the decree universal is due to the necessity of providing addition school facilities, teachers and equipment.

Another factor is expense. All needy youngsters will have to be supplied with shoes, clothing breakfasts and free fares on street cars. This expense averages about $30 to the child for each schol year.
