Political Week Turns Spotlight On Hoover, Garner And Roosevelt

President's Caustic Criticism of House and Texas Solon's Victory Over New York Man Feature

By D. HAROLD OLIVER
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, May 7—President Hoover's caustic criticism of the Democratic house for failure to point the way to a balanced budget and Speaker Garner's primary victory in California stirred presidential politics to a new speculative peak this week.

With little interest manifested in the remaining pre-convention primaries and conventions, politicians have settled back to weigh the consequences of these two important developments.

As to the first, President Hoover struck with such force in his message to congress on Thursday as to surprise even his staunchest followers. Placed on the defensive, Democratic leaders immediately replied in kind in both houses, while one opposition chieftain heard the message as the opening gun in Mr. Hoover's battle for reelection. Much more is expected to be heard on this subject in the near future.

The victory of "Texas Jack" Garner in California came as a blow to those hoping to nominate Franklin D. Roosevelt on the first ballot, although they believe future events will make that possible.

Swell Total

Primaries and conventions continue to swell the total delegates pledged and claimed for President Hoover's renomination. Washington state gave him 19 and Utah 11 more today to bring his convention vote to 818, including 259 claimed, with only 578 needed to nominate. A total of 841 Republican delegates have been chosen to date, with 313 to come.

With 770 or two-thirds required to nominate a Democratic candidate, the lineup tonight stood as follows:

Roosevelt instructed, pledged and claimed	333
Lewis pledged	58
Smith pledged	46
Garner pledged	44
Reed instructed	36
Murphy instructed and pledged	31
In doubt	168
TOTAL	706

Roosevelt's managers still claim he will go into the convention with more than 600 votes, despite California. While spokesman like James E. Farley, New York, in reiterating that claim, do not specifically where they expect the additional votes to come from, the prediction obviously must be based upon their belief that various favorite sons will turn from the field and switch their delegations to the New Yorker before the first ballot is tabulated.

35-Pound Boulder Smashes Car Roof On Boise Highway

BOISE, May 7 (AP)—D. C. Reynolds and Ben S. Matlock, Eagle, 10 miles west of Boise, escaped death by a miracle this afternoon when a 35-pound granite boulder smashed through the top of the coupe in which they were riding along a bluff on the road to Idaho City, 40 miles north of here.

The rock, loosened supposedly by a grazing animal, tore through the light framework of the top of the closed car after falling no less than 100 feet and came to rest back of the head of the driver, Reynolds, without touching either occupant.

The two men, thrilled enough for one day, stopped their car, turned around and drove back to Boise without completing their mission to the old mining town.

Idaho's $1,250,000 Highway Program Commences Soon

BOISE, May 7 (AP)—Highway work worth $1,250,000 will be placed under contract by June 1 under plans announced today by J. H. Stemmer, director of highways.

The work includes 236 miles of surfacing in preparation for oiling and the oiling which will begin immediately upon completion of the preparatory work. In addition other construction work aside from oiling and preparation for oil will be included in the work.

The surfacing and oiling was estimated as costing $720,000.

Scores of men will be put to work on the various projects. The state is requesting contractors to use local labor. In addition, each contract requires a statement of the wages to be paid and the charges to be deducted for board and lodging.

Of the resurfacing work in preparation for oiling, 50 miles will be between Burley and American Falls on the Old Oregon trail, 11 miles between Burley and Declo on the Raft river highway and 11 miles in Twin Falls county.

ANN HARDING OBTAINS RENO DIVORCE DECREE

RENO, Nev., May 7 (AP)—Playing a new and far more dramatic role than any she ever portrayed on the stage or screen, Ann Harding, blonde star of the films, today freed Harry Bannister from his marriage to her so that, he might seek a new career for himself.

Still protesting in love him, Miss Harding nevertheless went into divorce court here this morning and had their union dissolved by Judge Thomas Moran after testimony by Bannister that Nevada was his legal residence.

The actress emerged from the hearing with tear-stained face and seemed faint from the trying ordeal.

150 GOTHAM FIREMEN WATCH SMOKING RUINS

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—A reduced fire-fighting force tonight kept a cautionary eye on the smouldering flames in the ruins of the $2,000,000 Cunard steamship line pier here. The fire, which started at 6 A. M., yesterday, was brought under control after a 26-hour battle. About 550 of the force of 700 men massed to battle it were recalled.

One man was fatally injured by a hose line which broke loose while the flames were at their height.

BABCOCK CITES LAW REGARDING FILINGS

BOISE, May 7 (AP)—Candidates for justice of the peace and constable in the various counties get a tough break.

The attorney general declared today that all those who had filed for these offices were simply out of order, since the only way they can be nominated is to have their names "written in" on the ballot. No names of candidates for these offices will be printed on the primary ballots.

But worse luck, all those written in must pay the regular filing fee if they wish to have their names included on the ballot in the general election.

METHODISTS DECLARE FOR RACIAL EQUALITY

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., May 7 (AP)—Despite warnings that it was sacrificing "forever" the long-sought reunion with the Methodist church, South, the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church enthusiastically declared for strict racial equality today.

The resolution, adopted with a demonstration that overrode a sprinkling of opposition, directed that the quadrennial conference was never to meet in a city where the color line was drawn against delegates in hotels, restaurants and public places.

GASTON B. MEANS REMAINS IN JAIL

Steuth Involved in Defrauding Lindbergh Baby Hunters Hides $100,000 Well

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The elusive trail of the $100,000 paid Gaston B Means to bring about the return or the kidnaped Lindbergh baby today led department-of-justice agents to safety deposit boxes in the nation's capital as a part of a far-flung investigation.

Working quietly but intensively, the federal agents also attempted to untangle the many other ramifications of the melodramatic case, including whether the former department of justice investigator had any accomplices in his alleged attempt to defraud Mrs. Edward B. McLean of the money.

The estranged wife of the publisher of the Washington Post has charged she gave Means the huge sum on his representation that he could recover the child. When she became convinced her plan was fruitless, she reported to department of justice officials that Means refused to return the money.

Meanwhile, the portly ex-convict made plans for his release from the District of Columbia on $100,000 bond if the grand jury indicts him next Tuesday for larceny after trust. He has arranged for bail with a professional bondsman.

A possible hitch in his arrangements was indicated, however, by a statement from Leo A. Rover, United States district attorney, who has his own ideas about freeing Means.

Rover told newspapermen he would not be concerned if the prisoner were released—"provided he makes the right kind of bond."

"That means four bondsmen," he added, "each responsible individually for the whole amount." Under this arrangement, a $400,000 guarantee would be required before he could turn his back on his present abode.

His bond was fixed at $100,000 by Needham Turnagen, United States commissioner, at a preliminary hearing last Thursday a few hours after his arrest.

Means, wearing a heavy blue suit and felt hat, is confined in a cell with John Kendrick, charged with assault with intent to kill. He is spending his time reading newspapers and talking with other prisoners.

"He seems to be taking it all right," said William L. Peake, the jail superintendent. "He doesn't seem worried. He has a good appetite."

Governor Suspects Many Men Prominent in State Affairs of Shady Practices

IDAHO FALLS, May 7 (AP)—Here en route to Dubois, where he delivered an address at commencement exercises last night, Governor Ross declared in a newspaper interview that the case of Henry Gusman, convicted in Lewiston of conspiracy to defraud the state in the sale of motor equipment, "is only a lead."

"If we could get Gusman to talk," the governor said, "or get possession of the 'little book' we believe he has, we would have secrets concerning the highway department and the letting of contracts which would result in sending many men, prominent in the affairs of the state, to prison."

The "little book," the governor added, "is believed to be the confidential ledger kept by Gusman and a record of his transactions with contractors and others of the state living or doing business with the highway department work.

Declaring men in his own party "are cussing me now because I am demanding full service and dollar for dollar value when they will have to deliver or get off the job," the governor said:

"We cannot expect lower taxes until we have honesty and efficiency on the part of public officials and that is what we are to try to get.

"It is unfortunate that the statute of limitations is a defense in a number of cases, but at that we can get the information which will prevent such actions in the future. "Had we depended upon auditors and accountants to get the information in the Gusman case we would never have gotten anywhere. It required personal investigation and the following up of leads in order to get the evidence and the conviction, and we are still on the trail of many leads which are to bring us information."

SILVER QUESTION CLAIMS HOOVER'S ATTENTION AGAIN

Washington Senator Takes Matter Up With Chief Executive After Borah Expresses Ideas to Senate

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 7—The much-discussed question of an international silver conference echoed today in the president's office, with a senatorial advocate of silver remonitization declaring himself afterward to be "satisfied" with the chief executive's stand.

Senator Jones, Republican, Washington, reporting he had discussed the silver problem with Mr. Hoover—said that, although the president had not spoken flatly, he personally believed a concrete proposal for rehabilitating the metal, if brought to the White House, would result in invitations to an international parley.

There was no answering echo to this view from the executive mansion itself, however. Mr. Hoover remained silent. State department officials, also, remained publicly cool to the subject.

In one quarter close to the president the opinion was expressed that Mr. Hoover had not interested himself primarily in the question since rounding out various powers and finding them apathetic.

Not Hopeful

It was said later President Hoover is not very hopeful of an agreement on the proposal for rehabilitating silver, inasmuch as leading powers already have turned down suggestions for an international conference.

The president, it was added, would

WARREN G. SWENSEN HEADS NEW COMPANY

BOISE, May 7 (AP)—International Tractor and Equipment company, Boise, announced today through its president, Warren G. Swensen, Boise, formerly of Twin Falls, that it has bought the stock, assets and good will of the Idaho Equipment company, formerly headed by Henry Gusman, convicted of fraud in dealings with the state and now serving a prison sentence.

Swendsen, former state commissioner of reclamation, said the new company would increase its capital stock from $100,000 common stock to $200,000 common stock and $100,000 preferred.

Swendsen will be president of the company; Hall O. Robb, vice president, and George Grubb, secretary-treasurer. All are Boise residents.

NORTH IDAHO CHAMBER WANTS LAWS REVISED

SANDPOINT, Idaho, May 7 (AP)—Efforts of the Idaho State Chamber of Commerce to obtain revision of Idaho laws permitting reduction of governmental expenses and taxes were commended by the North Idaho chamber of commerce in a resolution adopted at the closing session of the spring meeting today.

Hope was expressed that North Idahoans would adopt the proposed constitutional amendments authorizing consolidation of counties, limiting exemption of municipal property from taxation to that owned in a governmental and not in a proprietary capacity, and the levying of an income tax.

Negotiators Near Deadline In Move To Recover Child

NORFOLK, Va., May 7 (AP)—With only brief glimpses of their movements obtained through the ever-tightly drawn veil of secrecy, John Hughes Curtis and his assistants were believed prepared tonight for a final and supreme effort to complete negotiations for the return of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

The report of a "deadline" being set for Monday, the possibility of which was admitted by one of the intermediaries, added to the feeling of tenseness occasioned with the maneuvers of the Norfolk negotiators. Working from the naval base as their point of operations, Curtis and his party have been putting out to sea in the yacht Marcon almost daily, presumably to engage in the delicate maneuvers of making contact with the kidnapers or their representatives.

In the meanwhile his associates in Norfolk, the Very Rev. H. Dobson Peacock and Rear Admiral Guy H. Burrage, retired, are preserving in utmost secrecy the progress of Mr. Curtis' work.

POCATELLO GIRL DIES IN WRECK

Miss Marjorie Wray, 15, Succumbs to Injury Received On Trip With Classmates

POCATELLO, May 7 (AP) — Miss Marjorie Wray, 15, was fatally injured and four other persons were seriously hurt when a school bus taking 35 students and sponsors on an outing crashed into a guard fence on the Old Oregon Trail 12 miles south of here today.

The party, from the Riverside grade and high school, was en route from Riverside, near Blackfoot, to Lava Hot Springs, when the truck in which they were riding swerved on a curve and struck the guard fence. Miss Wray was crushed between the truck and the wire netting on the fence.

Katie Wolfley, 14, daughter of Henry Wolfley, driver of the truck; Edna Chamberlain, 45; Bernice Wrecelitz, 13, and Mrs. Christina Hoppla, 28, also were crushed but suffered less serious injuries than the Wray girl. Physicians feared it would be necessary to amputate the Wolfley girl's left leg.

Miss Wray, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hyrum Wray, died while being brought to a hospital here.

Officers who investigated were unable to explain the cause of the accident, but indicated a shifting of the girls' weight as the vehicle rounded a curve probably caused the truck to swerve and leave the highway.

When the truck struck the fence, the side was torn away and the girls were thrown again the fence. Other occupants of the truck were only shaken up.

HOOVER AND MILLS MEET WITH SOLONS TO DISCUSS BILLS

Special White House Conference Centers On Further "Methods of Cooperation" In Legislative Matters

(Copyright, 1932, by The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, May 7—President Hoover and Secretary Mills at a special conference with Republican senatorial leaders tonight discussed further "methods of cooperation to bring about prompt enactment of the revenue bill and economy legislation."

The words are those of the secretary of the treasury, who was delegated spokesman as the group broke up after an hour and a half discussion embracing the legislative situation.

Those who sat down with Mr. Hoover and Mr. Mills in the Lincoln study were Vice President Curtis; Senators Watson, Indiana, the majority leader; Smoot, Utah; Reed, Pennsylvania; Bingham, Connecticut; Dickinson, Iowa — along with Walter H. Newton, the presidential secretary who deals especially with capitol hill.

One after another of the conferees declared on leaving the White House that political matters had not entered into the deliberations.

Secretary Mills, questioned as to the course of the cooperative endeavor, said it would lead "eventually to bi-partisan cooperation toward the ends sought. He refrained from saying whether any specific conclusions had been reached.

AUTHOR OF WORLD WAR DRAFT PLAN SUCCUMBS

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Tributes, led by that of Secretary Hurley of the war department, were paid today to Major General Enoch Herbert Crowder, the army's most noted soldier-diplomat, who died at Walter Reed general hospital.

The general's death followed a long series of breakdowns, the last of which was aggravated by an attack of pneumonia.

He devised the draft system during the World war and supervised its operation. His work in Cuba after that country's fight for freedom from Spain placed him among the founders of the republic. He later went to Havana as ambassador, but resigned because of ill health.

High French Officials Connect Assassin With Bolshevist Movement

HIGHWAY INTO PARK OPENS IN FEW DAYS

BOISE, May 7 (AP)—Highway into West Yellowstone and the national park will be opened about May 15, the state highway department announced today.

The highway has been blocked by snow east of Ashton for several months until snowplows within the past three weeks broke through to "The End of People." This is the point beyond which there are no more ranches on the Idaho side.

WIDOW OF FAMOUS JOURNALIST DIES

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP) — Mrs. Martha J. Stone, widow of Melville E. Stone, one of the founders and for 26 years general manager of The Associated Press, died today after a long illness. She was 85 years old.

Mrs. Stone's only daughter, Mrs. Malcolm Goodridge, New York City, was with her when she died at her residence here.

Her death came on the seventeenth anniversary of the death of her elder son, Herbert Stuart Stone, who lost his life when the Lusitania was torpedoed by a German submarine during the World war. Her younger son, Melville E. Stone, jr., died in Pasadena, California, in 1918.

BONUS BILL BACKERS BOW BY 15-10 VOTE

Supporters of Veterans' Measure Want Summer Session to Gain Ends

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Defeated temporarily at the gate, bonus plan today began a movement for a summer session to keep the proposal from the legislative death sentence by economy.

"The bonus issue is dead this session," Representative Rainey, the Democratic leader, told newspapermen today after he filed a report calling a grave for the $2,400,000,000 payment to veterans.

Signed by 13 members of the ways and means committee, it recommended that the Patman bill for a $2,400,000,000 new money issue to redeem veterans' certificates "do not pass."

That made it virtually certain that the bonus will not be taken up at this session if congress quits before the conventions but bonus sponsors replied: "Henceforth the issue will be, vote to adjourn is a vote against the bonus."

In voting against the bonus today, members of the ways and means committee reaffirmed an adverse ballot of 18 to 10 on yesterday, thereby taking the most drastic parliamentary course for strangling the legislation.

Only one faint hope remained for a house vote before the national political conventions in June—a decision by the powerful rules committee giving the rejected bills a special legislative status. Representative Fatman, Democrat, Texas, said he would appeal to this committee, but Rainey predicted confidently that the rules committee isn't going to approve it.

Patman said the fight would continue with "renewed enthusiasm," and added:

"It would not surprise me if the president changed his mind and endorsed the bill within the next 20 or 60 days. Purchasing power must reach the masses of the people some way."

Rainey's report was signed by the 10 Republican committee members.

Chairman Collier and Representative Crisp, Democrat, Georgia, Representatives Ragon, Democrat, Arkansas, and Lewis, Democrat, Maryland, who voted with the majority, will file special views, while a number of minority reports also are expected.

ROSS DISLIKES PRESS ATTITUDE ON INQUIRY

POCATELLO, May 7 (AP)—Governor C. Ben Ross unloaded a verbal barrage on the alleged hostile press of the state, Saturday, stating that certain Idaho newspapers regarded the Gusman highway fraud disclosures, recently probed at Lewiston, and subsequent announcement of further investigations, as a "peanut stand" probe. Declaring that he stood for good government and that the public press should do likewise, Governor Ross said further disclosures would make the Gusman loot appear small."

Saddened France Begins Last Tribute of Devotion to Lost Leader While Justice Pursues Grim Task

(By The Associated Press)

PARIS, May 7—Alexandre Millerand, former president of France, and Pierre Julien, head of the secret police, declared today that the assassin who killed President Paul Doumer was a Bolshevist.

Their statements came on the eve of the important runoff election which is to decide the make-up of the new chamber of deputies.

In the first balloting last Sunday, the voters swung toward the left. Some political commentators have seen in the slaying of the president and the horrified sorrow that has swept the nation a powerful factor toward counteracting this tendency to the benefit of more conservative parties.

M. Millerand asserted he had personal information which "permits me to say in the most categoric way that the assassin belonged to the regular Bolshevist forces."

The chief of the secret police backed him up with an announcement that he had obtained evidence which led him to believe Dr. Paul Gorgulov, the Russian who shot down the president, was involved in a Bolshevist group.

A saddened France began its last tribute of devotion to its slain leader while the agencies of the law set in motion the machinery that will deal with the assassin.

National Funeral

On Thursday the president will be given a national funeral, the highest honor accorded by the republic to its eminent dead.

The body will lie in state in Elysee palace Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, that all citizens may pay their respects at the bier.

President Gaston Doumergue will deliver the funeral oration from the steps of the Pantheon where the remains of the great of this nation lie, beside Rousseau and Victor Hugo.

The funeral preparations were made by the cabinet while Gorgulov was being charged with the assassination before an examining magistrate. On Monday a lawyer will be named to defend Gorgulov and as quickly as possible he will be placed on trial.

The alienists examined Gorgulov and declared him a sane man, responsible for his crime. This finding contradicted police who asserted yesterday that he was a madman.

The assassination came at the complexities of the already complex run-off election for the chamber of deputies tomorrow. What effect it would have on the voters was unknown, but some observers expected it to stop the tendency toward the left registered in the first balloting last Sunday.

From two sources came statements that the assassin was linked with a Bolshevist organization.

Pierre Julien, head of the secret service, announced he had obtained evidence which led him to believe that the Russian was involved in a Bolshevik group, and former president Alexandre Millerand declared he had personal information which "permits me to say in the most categoric way that this assassin belonged to the regular Bolshevist forces."

The body of the aged chief of the government lay in state in the green room of the presidential palace, past the iron gates of which streamed thousands of silent Parisians.

The public was not admitted today. But there was an unending flow of notable visitors, including diplomats of all the nations of the world bearing expressions of sympathy from their governments.

Throughout the nation flags were at half staff. Public buildings were draped in black and all civil and military officials were ordered to wear mourning for a month. The state theatres were closed.

From Premier Andre Tardieu, on whom fell the principal executive burden of the government, came a message to the people asking that "with all calm and dignity we render the chief of the state the only homage he would have desired."

CHEMISTS HOPE TO EMPLOY ROTENONE IN INSECT BATTLE

New Poison Appears Effective Against More of "Bugs" Than Any So Far Known

CHEMICAL HELPS TO KILL CODDLING MOTH

New Substance Holds Advantage of Being Harmless to Humans and Animals

Dr. H. L. Haller (left) and Dr. F. B. LaForge (right) took rotenone into the laboratory and wrested from the insecticide an analysis of its chemical structure that may make synthetic production possible. Heretofore a plant root has been its source. Some of the pests used in experiments are shown here getting fatal doses of the poison.

By F. B. COLTON
(Associated Press Science Writer)

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The secret of an "ace" among insect poisons has been discovered by government scientists just as the department of agriculture announces that insect pests are threatening serious damage in many parts of the United States.

The poison is rotenone, declared to be effective against a wider variety of insects than can be combated with any other insecticide.

Poison's Synthesis Seen

Chemists of the department of agriculture have discovered its chemical composition, opening the way to the possibility of making rotenone synthetically, perhaps more cheaply and easily than it now can be extracted from derris root, its natural source.

Rotenone, a "double action" poison, kills insects that eat or touch it, provided they are sensitive to its lethal effects.

Better still, it is harmless to human beings and animals, and so can be sprayed safely on fruits and other food products.

Carbon, hydrogen and oxygen atoms combine to form rotenone molecules in the ratio of 23, 22 and six. Knowing this, chemists have a basis from which to work in making synthetic rotenone and possibly other synthetic poisons.

Effective Against Two Pests

Rotenone is effective against two insect pests that the department of agriculture says probably will be abundant this season.

One is the codling moth, a fruit pest that went into "winter quarters" in large numbers and survived the mild winter well. The other is the fruit aphid, whose eggs are reported abundant.

Dr. F. B. LaForge and Dr. H. L. Haller, chemists who discovered rotenone's chemical structure, won a race with Japanese and German scientists working on the same problem.

Rotenone not only kills most insects that attack food crops, but also cockroaches and skin parasites of dogs, cats, canary birds and other pets.

Against some insects it is 18 times as potent as nicotine and 30 times as strong as lead arsenate.

Primitive savages first taught White men the valuable properties of rotenone.

by the senate finance committee yesterday as the type of cooperation set as the goal.

Asked whether the president was pleased with that bill, he returned jovially: "Well, I haven't lost my job yet."

It was practically a bill recommended by Mills at an executive session that the finance committee approved without ado after days of work on the house tax bill in which it reversed itself repeatedly.

Mills seemed to expect the bill to be reported to the senate in a very short time.

The treasury chief also expressed approval of the manner the house ways and means committee this week turned thumbs down on legislation to cash the veterans' bonus.

"That's a real committee," he said. "It always was."

spokesmen both in New York and Washington regard as significant the declaration of Senator Long, Louisiana, he would use his influence to throw the 20 from that state, heretofore regarded doubtful, into the Roosevelt column.

Another development of the week just ended that aroused speculation was the declaration by Senator Norris, Nebraska's Republican insurgent, that he would bolt the Hoover pasture again this fall and support Roosevelt if the latter is nominated.

Entire party vote was received following Norris' statement that a progressive of Roosevelt's caliber in the White House would be the only hope for the country. Without Roosevelt or some other Democratic candidate of his type as an opponent of Hoover, the speculation is that a third party ticket likely will be placed in the field as in 1924. Norris, Borah, Johnson, LaFollette and Pinchot are names that have been mentioned heretofore in this connection.

act if interest was shown by the powers most concerned in an agreeable recommendation.

Senator Jones, chairman of the senate appropriations committee and a member of the finance committee, said he had raised the question with the chief executive because of the interest on the West coast in the rehabilitation of silver.

"I feel satisfied, although the president didn't say so," said Jones as he left the White House, "that if a concrete proposal were placed before him it would be submitted to the powers."

Asked if he had a concrete proposal for remonetizing silver, Jones answered by recalling the widely publicized speech delivered in the senate this week by Senator Borah, Idaho. Borah stirred the question anew, declaring the rehabilitation of silver was one of the three pathways leading to economic recovery throughout the world.

The Washington idea today indicated a belief that Borah might be looked to for "the concrete proposal" needed. He said "Borah has given this matter a whole lot of study."

As a concluding sentence to his declaration of belief that Mr. Hoover would act if given something to act upon, Jones said:

"We ought to submit something to the president."

Senator Borah would not be quoted on Jones statement but he indicated that his suggestion for returning silver to the status it held before was a "concrete proposal."

Borah contended in his speech to the senate that since that time an effort had been made to force the gold standard on silver using countries which had contributed to the maldistribution of gold.

On his return to the capitol Jones was questioned about what he meant by a "concrete proposal."

He suggested that if the United States called an international conference to fix a ratio between gold and silver as a basis for international bimetalism it would be such a proposal.

Chairman Pittman of the foreign relations sub-committee, which has been considering the silver problem for more than two years, said a concrete plan had been proposed in the resolution adopted by the senate last year asking the president to call a conference.

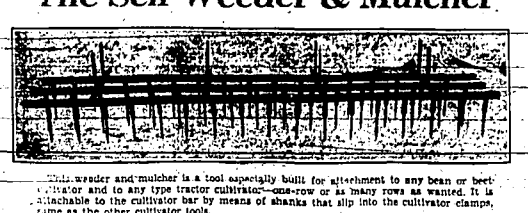
The Self Weeder & Mulcher



This weeder and mulcher is a tool especially built for attachment to any bean or beet cultivator and to any type tractor cultivator—one-row or as many rows as wanted. It is attachable to the cultivator bar by means of shanks that slip into the cultivator clamps, same as the other cultivator tools.

The teeth are made of tempered spring steel and rigid enough to get a deep mulch. The teeth have a staggered position on the angle iron bars, contains about 48 teeth, giving a spacing between teeth of about 1½ inches. The spacing for the rows or the crop which you are cultivating can be made most any width, owing to the extra holes in the bars and also by the means of slotted holes in the angle iron which allow you to move the entire bars, Nos. 1, 2 and 3, to most any position wanted.

This tool is particularly useful right now for breaking the crust on sugar beet soil and aerating the ground which is most beneficial to the beets.

We are adding another bar making 4 rows of teeth, which will be tried in blocking as soon as the beets are big enough.

PRESIDENT DOUMER

Those who are inclined to look for international complications as a result of the death of President Paul Doumer, President of the Republic of France at the hands of a Russian assassin would seem to have very little ground upon which to base their uneasiness.

It seems incredible that the most hairbrained of cranks could figure any possible good arising through the death of this venerable and kindly old man. For many decades a statesman of note and a keen student of international affairs, his later years have been given largely to a furtherance of the good of his own people, not so much along the lines of politics and government as in the direction of a development of the spirit of art, literature and public morals.

The dramatic closing of his career is not greatly different to the final scenes in the earthly course of our own Presidents Lincoln, Garfield and McKinley. There is a connection perhaps, at least a significance between the names of Guiteau and Czolgosz and Gorguloz, and the actual assassinations have much in common as between their chief characteristics.

But there is little ground for the thought that the act which brought to a close the career of President Doumer has any ulterior significance. Apparently conceived in the disordered mind of a semi-lunatic, it may be set down as another of the regrettable acts of which history offers all too many examples.

DEAR DOLLARS

Economists say commodities have fallen forty per cent from their prosperity level. Some of them have been remarking that the public and the government seem to show little realization, as yet, of what this fact means. One writer makes it quite clear. There will have to be a new balance established, and one of two things must happen.

Either commodity prices must be jacked up again to where they were, or other things must come down.

One way to bring up the commodity prices again is to devalue or inflate the dollar. If the process could be regulated, and stopped at the right level, the normal balance would be restored. This is what the House of Representatives proposes to do.

The alternative is to bring other things down to where commodities are. Stocks are already there, or lower. Real estate is almost there. It would be a question of pulling down taxes, interest rates, freight rates, gas and electric rates, and so on.

Of the two, blowing up the dollar looks better to many people because it looks simpler and easier. But there are dangers in it. Between the two, nature may be allowed to take her course. Eventually things will straighten out on some level or other. But nature unaided is slow.

UNCOMPREHENDING CONGRESS

Congress apparently has not heard much about a depression. Congressmen are supposed to keep their ears to the ground, but lately many of them seem to keep their ears turned only toward lobbyists and office-holders. Otherwise they would be hearing a dull roar from every point of the compass.

That roar represents the growing indignation of a public harassed by taxes it can no longer pay and bearing down to the bare requirements of existence by conditions it cannot control. The public feels that if it cannot get positive help from Congress, it has a right at least not to expect additional burdens. It feels, too, that it has a right to expect of Congress and other office-holding groups at Washington some participation in the self-denial that is inevitable among other classes of citizens everywhere.

The way the House of Representatives has treated the program for government economy is one of the most outrageous things perpetrated in Washington within the memory of living men. With private salaries cut to the bone everywhere, it refuses to accept cuts for its members and their political friends. With economy more essential than for forty years, it can only bring itself to save twelve million dollars out of a federal payroll of One billion three hundred million dollars. Members laugh and cheer in their triumph over the protests of the nation.

In view of the recent behavior of the House, it would probably be fair, with a few honorable exceptions, to mark the whole membership for defeat next fall. But intelligent voters hesitate to act as ruthlessly as Congress has done. There may still be hope of reform. If Congress would recess for a week or two and go home to consult the people, it might come to its senses. Living in the political atmosphere and artificial prosperity of a capital city supported not by industry and agriculture, but by taxes, Congress has lost contact with the spirit of the nation.

A SPLIT ATOM

A few years ago the play "Wings Over Europe" thrilled and terrified audiences. It told the story of a young man who had discovered the secret of the atom's energy. He maintained that he was able to destroy the whole world in an instant, and he proposed to use his tremendous power to compel the statesmen of the world to end war and abolish poverty and injustice.

Now it is announced by Lord Rutherford, a world-famous British scientist, that two young Cambridge physicists have been splitting atoms, and the world is undisturbed. It is a feat important to scientists but not as yet important to the general public. Says Lord Rutherford:

"It is difficult to say to what this discovery may lead. Up to the present the experiments have not yielded anything which will be of immediate commercial value.

"I have seen it stated that this discovery means we shall be able to produce an immense accumulation of added electrical energy for commercial purposes. But I cannot claim that for our experiments up to the present, for the simple reason that for every particle of energy we get, it requires millions of particles to make it effective. The experiments, however, are of great scientific interest and are likely to be powerful agents in extending our knowledge of the atom."

Fear of any dire consequences from continued experimenting along this line may now be allayed. Some practical purpose may be served eventually by this new knowledge, or, what is equally important, other new knowledge may be brought to light as a result of this work.

Guiding Your Child

YOUNG GARDENERS

By Mrs. Agnes Lyne

Hal and the boy who lived next door never had considered the rich black earth in the back yard as good for anything but digging and building tunnels and castles and villages.

One day they made a fence out of pea pods. That night it rained and when, a day or two later, the children came back to their village they found the peas had sprouted.

At once they decided to have a garden. They begged seeds and bought more with their own pennies.

They gathered the clipped-off tips of the neighbor's hedges and stuck them in the ground in long rows, where they took root and grew.

Slips from rose and geranium bushes donated by interested neighbors flourished and bloomed.

Hal's father bought the young hedge plants and set them along the side. Mother bought the choicest infant rose bushes.

The whole neighborhood bought whatever the gardeners had to sell.

The children's project lasted for three or four years. Now the chief interest was in selling, now in getting new varieties and again in making a rock garden with back-breaking hard work.

Sometimes as many as six children would work together and then again the number would dwindle to the original two.

To work together, to make things grow, to have the fruits of one's work considered so valuable that others are willing to pay money for them, to carry through an enterprise from week to week, from month to month with continuous satisfaction — these are invaluable experiences for growing children.

TENDERLY BEARED

George was brought up by a mother who was in constant anxiety over his health, his education, his morals.

She watched over him every meal, kept him on a rigidly selected diet, never gave him a piece of cake or candy, talked about his alarming his thinness and then wondered why he had such a poor appetite.

He never went more than two years in any one school, because he had to be changed constantly about in search to find the one which was really best.

George was not allowed to play with any of the children in his quite respectable middle-class neighborhood. He might get into fights, learn vulgar speech, his morals might suffer.

Occasionally a playmate would be specially imported for him—another pathetic child who lived an equally sterilized life in his own home.

George grew up a pale, intellectual youth, able to discuss intelligently a great many things, but quite unable to get along with young people of his own age. He had no friends. He never had a date. At college he lived a lonely, old-maid existence.

Upon graduating he immediately took a position teaching Latin in a boys' school, where he continues his pale, refined, and certainly none too happy life.

It is no kindness to bring up any child, boy or girl, so tenderly that he loses contact with his own kind.

Thus reared, he must either go through a period in which he repudiates everything his home has stood for or he must accept the narrowed, devitalized path of life left to him.

TO MOTHER

(On Mother's Day)

By BERTHA RADO MUCKEY

God, I must thank Thee for this hallowed day—
This day that's to my Mother set apart
Oh let me kneel on bended knees to pray
That she may know the fullness of my heart.
Oh Mother, dear, thou art more fair to me
Than all fair things that Beauty claims her own.
Thy presence is to me a melody
So sweet my pen can scarce describe its tone.
Thy love so vast, so wonderful, so deep—
A love that came to thee from God's high throne—
Thou gavest me and sacredly I keep
It always in my heart for thee alone.

Oh more—Oh more than human eyes can see
Or voices utter, art thou, dear, to me.

SCREEN LIFE IN HOLLYWOOD

By HUBBARD KEAVY

(Associated Press Feature Writer)

HOLLYWOOD, May 7—There was little surprise in Hollywood when word got back from New York that James Cagney was "holding out" for more money.

JAMES CAGNEY

Cagney, his friends say, will get the salary he wants or quit pictures. He's that independent.

A few months ago, just before he was to start a picture, he refused to report for wardrobe fitting in the studio, where he is under contract.

Emissaries found out that Jimmy thought he wasn't getting enough money.

A few days' impatient waiting, during which his employers discovered Cagney meant "no fooling" when he said it, and then they agreed to give him more pay.

Wants Money, Too

Cagney has no illusions about screen greatness. Being a star appeals to him not in the least.

He frankly says he's out to earn money, not recognition alone, and that if he can't get what he wants in the movies he'll go back to the stage.

Cagney gave a hint of his spirit the first day he was in town. A note awaited him when he arrived, asking him to call on a certain director at a specific time.

Jimmy was there at the appointed hour. He waited 30 minutes in the director's outer office, then he said to his secretary: "Tell Mr. ——— that Mr. Cagney was here."

With that he left and it was three days before he was located.

Cagney is reported to be getting the comparatively small sum of $750 a week and a bonus with each picture.

He is said to feel, in view of his drawing power, that he should be receiving a larger portion of what he hopes to make.

Unless he returns to Hollywood soon, to begin "Blessed Event," his contract will be terminated.

Opinion here is red-headed Jimmy Cagney will be back—with a new contract.

"Chandelier" Accompaniment

One of Al Jolson's favorites is about the partners, one artistic and the other practical, who bought a theatre.

The artistic fellow pointed to the ceiling as they viewed their new property and said: "We should have a chandelier up there."

"Yeah?" said the other skeptically. "Who'll we get to play it?"

"Pain," being filmed now, is said to be a biography story of the career of A. P. Giannini, of the Bank of America.

Will Rogers' "Down to Earth" is a sequel to "They Had to See Paris."

The Literary Guidepost

By WARK TORREY

(Associated Press Feature Writer)

NEW YORK, May 7 — Louis Bromfield in "A Modern Hero" develops the career of a powerful American business man, with emphasis upon the chain of women who influence him through his life.

Pierre Radier, as a young circus rider, has his most colorful affair with Joanna Ryan. After she refuses to marry him, he opens a bicycle shop with an inventive-minded mechanic.

Going into the automobile business with Homer Flint, he shows the first hardening of his financial interest by cheating his former partner, and by marrying Flint's daughter to solidify his position.

The book is divided, as is Pierre's life, among the women with whom he identifies himself. Each one draws upon a different fiber in his character, and through his attitude toward each Pierre is clearly graphed.

SATIRICAL DISSECTION

John Riddell, otherwise Corey Ford, offers a new installment of his highly individual brand of parody, titled "In the Worst Possible Taste."

The book is shaped with a satirical eye upon the Shaw-Terry letters and the Harris biography.

With careful forceps, persons of fame, especially literary fame — Shaw, Galsworthy, Edna Ferber, Charles and Kathleen Norris — are held up in a strong light, and dissected by accurate cuts. Styles of writing and thinking are parodied with most successful humor.

"Pity of God," Beulah Marie Dix's first modern novel, takes up the small and important problems of a Hollywood suburban family, and inevitable progress the more hopeless entanglements.

Characterization is Dix's ready vivid. The solution of the plot by external force is made more satisfying by the clear declaration of the title.

AERIAL ADVENTURE

An unusually definite description of air fighting in the World war is given in Philip Arnall's novel, "Portrait of An Airman." The daily life of officers of the Royal Flying Corps forms a background for Stephen's slow realization of himself.

"The Spanish Crown: 1808-1931, An Intimate Chonicle of a Hundred Years" by Robert Sencourt traces with frankness and thoroughness the influences directing an important phase of Spanish history.

Gustav Eckstein, in "Lives" tells with a sensitive touch the personal histories of animals, birds, insects and some persons whom he has known, cared for and studied.

Among books of the week are "John Wesley" by C. E. Vulliamy, "Life's Adventures: the Story of a Varied Career" by Elwood Worcester; "Awakening Japan" by Erwin Baelz, and Radclyffe Hall's new novel, "The Master of the House."

MOTHER'S DAY

By J. F. HUCKLEBERRY

We have as a nation many holidays and holy days to observe, but none of them have more significance than Mother's Day. In 1914 Congress proclaimed the second Sunday in May to be observed in memory of our Mothers, living and dead. It is but fitting that we should pause for a few hours on that day to show respect to one who has suffered and sacrificed so much to bring us all into being and to bring us to the place we now occupy in the world. Wear a white flower, if she has gone away into the shining beyond, and a red one if she is still living. If she is in reach of you go and see her and tell her you love her. If she is too far away for that, write her a love letter to cheer her loving heart that she may know you think she has not lived in vain. Say some nice things to her you know she deserves to hear from you. Don't wait to throw flowers at her coffin, but give them to her while she needs them and can appreciate them while she stays in this world.

Twin Falls, Idaho, May 7.

We wish to express our sincere thanks and appreciation to our many friends who were so kind to us during our recent bereavement, and also for the beautiful floral offerings.

A WASHINGTON Bystander

By KIRKE SIMPSON

(Associated Press Feature Writer)

WASHINGTON, May 7—Time was when every senator enjoyed an individual veto power over federal appointments within his state.

By mere assertion that the appointee was personally obnoxious to him, a senator could prevent confirmation.

Under its unwritten rules, those hoary precedents of senatorial courtesy and custom, the senate would at once deny confirmation without asking reasons.

But times have changed. Popular election of senators has had much to do with that.

And the new senate habit of holding its primitive sessions in public unless some grave reason of state, not of personal privilege, intervenes, has clinched the virtual abandonment of the custom.

During debate over the appointment by President Hoover of Charles A. Jonas as federal district attorney for the western district of North Carolina, this change in senate custom was sharply brought out.

In voiceing objections to that appointment Senator Josiah W. Bailey of that state employed the "personally obnoxious" phrase. He, however, repeatedly qualified it with the assertion that it was for the wholly impersonal reasons he also stated, not because of politics or his own dislike of Jonas, that he opposed confirmation.

Confirmation was denied. On an effort by Senator Hastings of Delaware, to induce reconsideration of the vote, Jonas again lost 26 to 42. Yet here is a curious circumstance:

On the roll call all Democrats voted against reconsideration and with them voted Senator Reed, Republican regular of regulars, and Senator Cousens, Cutting, Dale, Frazier and Norris of the Republican irregular group.

For reconsideration voted the solid front of regular Republicans present and Senators Borah, Johnson and Brookhart of the Republican irregular faction.

And of all senators voting only Reed of Pennsylvania disclosed himself as moved by the old, unwritten rule granting veto power to individual senators.

Reed insisted that the custom was not as "foolish" as it sounded.

As opposed to his view, however, Borah said that while it had prevailed almost without exception up to the time he came to the senate a quarter century ago, it has been frequently disregarded since then.

"I do not recognize the rule," he said. "I have not recognized it for 12 years. I am convinced it is unsound and not in the public interest."

Apparently 25 other Republicans felt the same way about it.

Nor is it reasonable to suppose that men like Cousens, Cutting or Norris were controlled by that outworn privilege of a senatorship.

It could have played little part in rejection of Jonas' name.

As the first move toward securing the state highway through the Twin Falls country, an automobile path-finding tour was made from this city to Pocatello last Saturday by a committee of the Commercial club, to log the route and seek the aid of T. T. Turner, Pocatello, a member of the state highway commission. The committee consisted of A. L. Swim, Dr. F. F. McAtee and C. D. Thomas. The trip was made in Mr. Swim's car, and the party left this city Saturday afternoon. Pocatello was reached Sunday noon, with a stop over night at Burley. On the return trip the party left Pocatello Monday morning and arrived home the evening of the same day. It is the purpose to have the new state highway through southern Idaho instead of through the central northern portion of the state, which consists largely of desert.

Baker, on Sunday last at 5 o'clock. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Woodhull. The couple will remain in Twin Falls for about two weeks, when they will go to Calgary, Alberta, to make their home.

The new brick garage of the Twin Falls Auto company on Second Avenue north is practically completed and is thrown open today for business for the first time. Frank Magel, Glenn Magel and J. O. Gates constitute the firm, and besides doing garage and repair business are agents for the Studebaker automobile and Indian motorcycle and a large line of sundries and supplies.

Saturday, May 10, seems destined to go down as the greatest day in the history of the Twin Falls high school. On that date will take place the first annual state track and field meet. The day will be a great athletic carnival. Sixteen of the high schools of the state have made entries up to date. The schools entering teams are Idaho Falls, Mountain Home, Blackfoot, Pocatello, Rupert, Kimberly, Burley, state deaf and blind school, Gooding, Buhl, Caldwell, Hailey, Rigby, Shoshone, Boise and Twin Falls.

Dr. D. L. Alexander returned Tuesday evening from a business trip to Jarbidge.

I. B. Perrine left Sunday for New York and Washington, D. C., to look after business interests.

Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Starrh arrived in the city Sunday from Boise. They will make Twin Falls their future home. Mr. Starrh having accepted the position of manager of the City Pharmacy.

Frank Terrill, Artesian City, was a business visitor in the city the forepart of the week.

J. W. Heinecke and family left last Saturday for Portland, where they will make their future home.

WHY ARE HAAG ALUMINUM TUBS BETTER THAN PORCELAIN TUBS?
Well, if you have ever dropped a porcelain enameled pan to the floor—you know!
Porcelain simply cannot withstand bumps and blows without cracking or chipping—the HAAG pressed aluminum tubs are not bothered that way—and are just as easy to keep clean.
We are utterly fair in this—for HAAG washers can be had with either kind of tub.

SOCIETY and CLUBS

EDITED BY MRS. E. B. WILLIAMS
Phone 896

MANY social events are scheduled for this week, which will open with the regular meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution on Monday. Tuesday, chapters D and A.I, P.E.O Sisterhood, will be joint hostesses at their annual Mother's day party to be given in American Legion Memorial hall. The same afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. A. Gates the Women's Progressive Club are entertaining the presidents of clubs with a luncheon. Wednesday and Thursday will be taken up with the Rural Federation convention at Kimberly. The addition of activities in connection with the closing days of the school year will combine to make a busy week.

Pan-Hellenic Club gave its annual spring luncheon which is also observed as "guest day," Tuesday at one o'clock in the banquet room at the Park Hotel. A profusion of spring blossoms decked the rooms and the twenty small tables at which the party was served had tulips as centerpieces and the nut cups and place cards featured a color scheme of pink and yellow. A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. J. Paul Thomas, after luncheon and was followed by a splendid musical program given by Falk's Accordion Band. Bridge completed the afternoon, guest prize being won by Mrs. Miles Browning and the club prize by Mrs. Vaughn Price. Hostesses were Miss Cora Jensen, who was chairman of the luncheon, Mrs. J. O. Rasmussen, Mrs. O. W. Burgess, and Misses Vivian Wilson, Helen Newman and Mary Simonton. Members and guests attended from Buhl, Wendell, Filer, Kimberly, Burley and Jerome.

Mrs. H. O. Hayes entertained in honor of her sister, Miss Betty Phillips, Friday evening, announcing her engagement to Howard Hall, Murtaugh. The guests were relatives and close friends of the honoree and numbered twenty-six. Cards and a clever contest were the diversions for the evening, favor for cards going to Miss Lucille Pace. Refreshments and decorations were in pink and white.

Misses Katherine Boone, Ruth Griggs, Elsa Gordes, Barbara Gamble, Marion Graham, Margaret McClain and Vatura Van Engelen, seniors in high school, gave a charmingly arranged dinner Saturday evening at the Gordes country home in compliment to their mothers, in honor of Mothers' Day. Covers were laid for fourteen at one long table attractively decorated with spring flowers. The girls prepared and served the dinner unaided.

Junior-Senior banquet of the Hansen high school at Wray's Cafe last evening was one of the pleasing social events of the closing period of the school year. Clarence Hughes was announcer for the evening. Blessing was given by R. T. Nybland, superintendent of Hansen schools. A. E. Olth gave the address of welcome, to which response was made by Herbert Hughes, president of the senior class. B. Parish made a clever address on the toast, "Why Everyone Shouldn't Use Good English." Superintendent Nybland spoke on the subject "Jokes." Vernon Bales responded to the toast, "Four Reasons Why Seniors are Clumsy Playing Football." A. Jacobson enlarged on the theme "Why Senior Girls Should Learn to Cook." Charles Bailey gave an explanation of "Why I Go to High School." Irvin Kevan responded fervently to the toast "Why I Go With Girls." Superintendent Nybland, in the spirit of the evening, responded to the toast "Why Students Shouldn't Go Through High School." Following a number of informal talks, the program closed with a reading by Fern McParland. The junior class presented Superintendent Nybland with a military set as a gift in appreciation of his work. The programs were made out on a neat representation of a ship on the hull of which were written the words, "Tonight we launch; where shall we anchor?"

Members of the Young People's Class of the First Christian Church, and their teacher, Mrs. H. L. Holmes, entertained their mothers and friends Friday evening with a banquet in the dining room of the church. There were forty persons present. The tables and the room were lovely in their decorations of apple blossoms and in candles of pale shades. Streamers of orchid, green and pale pink streamers which hung from the chandeliers, and were laid in a stripe on the tables also enhanced the beauty of the room. The program included a vocal solo by Mrs. Glen Hutton, "Mother of My Heart," accompanied by Mrs. Rose Gish at the piano. Mrs. Gish also entertained the group with a piano solo, "Dance Americano." The word mother furnished the themes for the tributes given as follows: "Modern Mother," by Fern Johnson; "Our Daughters," by Mrs. O. W. Parsons; "Our Sons," by Mrs. J. E. Blimp; "Trials," by Nora Mae Denny; "Harmony," by Helen Swope; "Encouragement," by Dean Brandon; "Reverence," by Gladys Shriver; "Smiles," by Vaudis Turner. William Blimp was toastmaster. Each of these talks brought a closer companionship between mothers and their sons and daughters. A reading, "Mother of Live Tapestries," or "The Mother of Gennezaret," was given by Maude Warfield. Rev. Glen W. Hutton, pastor, at the close of the dinner, gave a short talk of welcome and appreciation to the class and their guests.

Thirty-six members of the Sigma Delta Psi held a farewell smoker at the Park Hotel last night for Ellis Clover, Charles Andrews, Dwight Bennett and Kenneth Smith, members of the graduating class. The evening was spent playing games. Refreshments were served. After the smoker members attended a midnight prevue.

LITTLE CAPE WINS PARISIAN FASHION EXPERTS' APPROVAL

Stylists Favor Brief Circular Wrap For Morning Noon and Night With Cotton, Wool or Silk Dresses

By BARBARA BEAUFORT
(Associated Press Fashion Editor)

PARIS, May 7—A little cape is the badge of chic this spring.

Fashion favors the brief circular wrap for wear morning, noon and night with frocks of cotton, wool or silk. It may match the frock or contrast with it in both color and fabric.

It may flare partly or lie smoothly over the shoulders. But its cut is universally short.

One designer favors capes as accompanying wraps for her wool street frocks.

Dresses of water green, nattier blue, gray, and beige wool are designed with capes falling to the bust in front and long enough to tuck into the belt in the back.

A row of small buttons straight down the back matching the leather belt in color is the only trim on the wrap.

Another creator in the Rue de la Paix has evolved a cape of crinkly crepe to match her afternoon frock.

It is a triangular waistlength design with a slit in the center through which the wearer's head is thrust. It is cut to form a point in the back and edged in crinkly ribbon.

A little pique elbow length cape is another smart contribution to the short wrap mode.

White moccasins are worn with black street frocks and bright hues with white or ivory colored sports frocks.

Some of the designs button to the front of the bodice, while others are finished with ties which wrap about the waist.

The evening mode likewise reflects the cape vogue. Elbow length capes of aquarelle tinted failles and higlength wrap around capes of shirred velvet are worn with smart dinner frocks.

BOLERO SUITS SMART FOR COLLEGE GIRLS

PARIS, May 7 (AP)—Bolero suits are fashion's spring edict for the college girl.

One of the smartest designs is of green faille designed with a high-waisted skirt and a straight long sleeved bolero which is short enough to reveal several inches of a crisp dotted swiss blouse flecked with green dots. It is worn with a green straw sailor hat.

TURKISH WOMEN FLOCK INTO RANKS OF LABOR

ISTANBUL, May 7 (AP)—How Turkish women have swarmed into the ranks of labor during eight years of Kemalist emancipation is shown by the first statistics of the kind, indicating that in Istanbul alone there are 13,179 women laborers.

Among these, 6000 are employed in tobacco factories, 365 in the industry of salting fish, 4500 in knitting factories and 950 in dressmaking establishments.

Remarkable are 60 women "hamals," Turkey's human delivery wagons famous for their ability to carry everything from giant fish to grand pianos on the saddles strapped to their backs.

SPORTS ENLARGE FEET OF WOMEN IN ENGLAND

LONDON, May 7 (AP)—English women's feet which have always looked a little large to women across the channel in France and across the Atlantic in America, are getting even larger.

"The current vogue for athletics has increased the size of women's feet very considerably," says A. Lutley, head of a large English boot and shoe factory. "The smaller shoes of yesterday now lie undisturbed on the top shelves of the shoe shop.

"Whereas the demand used to be for sizes three and four it is now universally for fives and even sixes." He estimated that the average Englishwoman's boot has increased a size and a half in the last three years.

10-CENT DRESS WINS APPROVAL AT SOCIAL

TUPELO, Ark., May 7 (AP)—When Mrs. Jack Robinette, young matron, appeared at a recent social gathering, she was complimented on her new dress.

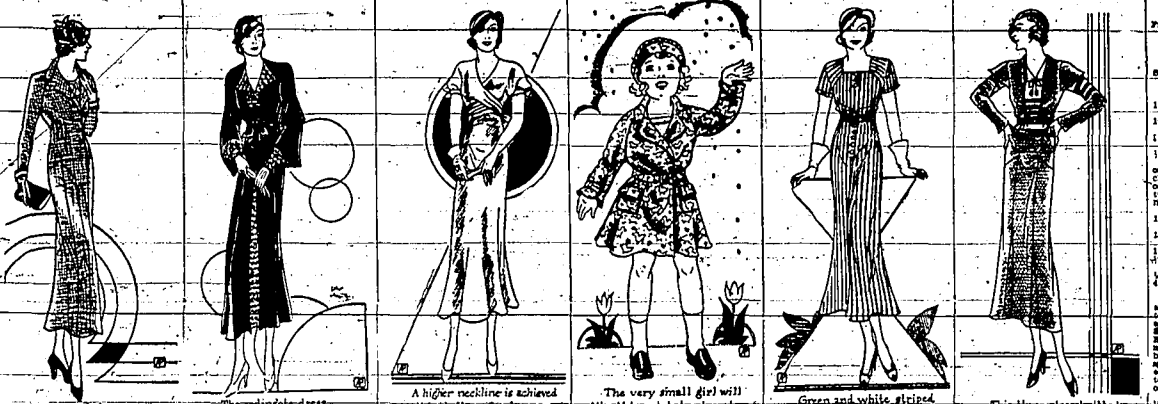
Later, she revealed that the new frock cost her exactly 10 cents, and was made entirely of flour sacks.

The dye cost a dime.

"BORDEAUX RED" GETS SANCTION AT CAPITAL

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—"Bordeaux red"—a deep shade varying between wine and American beauty—is combined with pink in an effective manner. A bridesmaid's costume of pink dotted net has a wide velvet girdle of the Bordeaux red.

STRAIGHT FROM PARIS—Smart Notes From The World's Fashion Capitol



A semi-fitted suit in an attractive knitted fabric like the one above is a favorite for spring and summer.

The redingote dress costume above is fashioned of black crepe. Sleeves and upper portion use a conservative black and white print.

A higher neckline is achieved in this dull surfaced crepe dress through overlapping bias cut of the bodice. Sleeves are short and puffed.

The very small girl will like this printed raincoat with its matching hat. The material is designed with tiny ducklings.

Green and white striped flannel is used in the chic sport dress above. Green buttons and narrow green belt are the only ornaments.

This three-piece knitted suit fashioned of crepelle, subscribes to a tri-color theme for its enlivening touch. Note the epaulette treatment.

Backs Come To Forefront Of Fashions

This gay-flowered silk creation for afternoon wear is of pink and yellow with blues predominating on a white ground. The blue transparent velvet jacket shows the Lanvin type sleeve.

For extremely formal wear is this Ardanse evening gown of pique, featuring a long skirt. The cape collar continues around to meet a lace bodice in brassiere effect. The flounce is higher in front.

Printed Moire is the material used in this frock worn by Frances Dee, motion picture actress. Charming for dances, it is of pink, splashed with blue and pale green flowers.

Informal Dinner Table Grows Colorful

By HOPE HAMMOND
(Interior Furnishings Editor, The Woman's Home Companion. Written for The News)

Milady's informal—luncheon—or dinner table grows more and more colorful. Accessories are becoming more picturesque and informal.

Ecru mats and napkins in green striped material are the very latest spring offering. Plated flat silver in modernistic designs is entirely compatible with furnishings of almost any period.

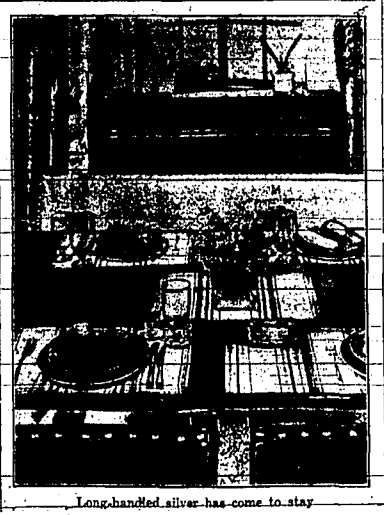
Among the new designs in flat silware is the short pointed, long-handled fork and its accompanying knife in matching proportions, with a non-tarnishable steel blade. These revolutionary changes in the time-honored implement of mealtime evidently have come to stay.

Pewter plates maintain their popularity for the soft lustre which blends appropriately with the brilliant-colored glass now so much in favor.

Color is being emphasized in the leather upholstery of the newest dining-table chairs. Tangerine leather, for instance, is an innovation which seems to have much to commend it as a decorative note of high importance, in a room which has for many generations been too dull and sombre.

The French ministeries of air, war and navy have been combined into one group under the title of ministry of national defense.

The birth rate for Minnesota dropped from 18.4 per 1000 in 1930 to 18.1 in 1931. The death rate fell from 10 to 9.9.



Long-handled silver has come to stay

EVEN NOSE VEILS TURN PATRIOTIC

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—The prevalent vogue for red, white and blue finds expression even in the tiny nose veils.

A riding outfit comprising a blue suit and jaunty red tie sported a little blue veil bordered with red, white and blue dots.

Mrs. Hoover Gets Degrees

By SUE McNAMARA
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

WASHINGTON, May 7 — Mrs. Herbert Hoover has received an honorary college degree every year since she entered the White House. With those previously conferred she now holds six.

This year, making the seventh, will be conferred on May 14 at Wooster, Ohio, when she will be given the honorary degree of "Litterarum humaniorum doctor" by Wooster college.

The degree of L. H. D., doctor of letters of humanities, is given in recognition of her work in social service. It will be conferred at the one hundred twenty-fifth anniversary celebration of the founding of Wooster.

Mrs. Hoover's great-grandfather, William Henry, was one of three men who had laid out the town.

Mrs. Hoover has become accustomed to standing beneath stately campus elms and oaks with a black cap on her silvery hair or perhaps some colorful hood peculiar to the degree conferred.

She is considered one of the most cultured and widely-traveled women ever to occupy the White House. She speaks five languages and is an acknowledged geological expert.

Doctor of laws and doctor of letters are the two honorary degrees most often conferred upon her—the first for her humanitarian work, the second for her part in translating with the president a book in mining and metallurgy—Agricola's "De Re Metallica."

Colleges besides Wooster, which have honored her are Whittier and Mills which she attended in California; Swarthmore, Elmira, Goucher and Radcliffe.

Her interest in humanity is as great as was Read.

Mrs. Herbert Hoover will receive a degree of L. H. D. from Wooster May 14 as a tribute to her interest in social service. Each year in the White House has brought her a similar honor.

WHITE HATS COMBINE WITH DARK COSTUMES

PARIS, May 7 (AP)—White hats with dark costumes are fashion's latest commandment of chic, the favorite combination being navy blue and chalk white.

One smart Parisian wears a frock of navy blue foulard patterned with white flowers and a little hat of varnished white straw designed in pantaloon effect and perched on the extreme right side of her head.

It is trimmed on the left side with a band of navy blue velvet ribbon caught at the end with white gardenias.

YARN AND SUEDE MAKE ATTRACTIVE SPORT SUIT

WASHINGTON, May 7 (AP)—Brown yarn and yellow suede combine to make an attractive golf or hiking outfit. Yellow suede forms the body of the sweater, which finishes at the waist with knit hand flecked with yellow.

A soft brown hat with yellow quill accompanies it. The knitted skirt is brown.

Cotton Mode Gains Favor

By ALVIN HALLMAN
(Associated Press Staff Writer)

LONDON, May 7 (AP) — Peggy Wood, pretty American actress starring in the London version of "Cat and Fiddle" has brought a message from the Southern cotton fields to the women of Mayfair.

She wears a cotton pique evening dress with such good effect in the last act of her show that London couturiers report a considerable sale of similar models to other women.

The pique evening dresses, much of the beauty of which is in their starched unblemished white, show up particularly well in artificial light of the ball room.

They have an expensive air, rumpling so easily that they can be worn only once without laundering, and hence probably will remain a luxury.

Most models shown thus far are from the shop of a French designer, of cotton cloth of French manufacture from lint imported from the Southern states, but the designer in point is undertaking manufacture in England of British-woven fabrics.

The pique seems to do up best for evening in plain, severe designs, with a few pique-covered buttons, perhaps but no intricate ruffles.

This last touch is given to Peggy's gown by a bow made of pique bits, and with all the appearance of feathers of some strange, exotic bird. Only plain white has been shown thus far.

The last time pique was in vogue was 35 years or so ago when women tennis and croquet players wore enormous skirts of the material.

But the very smart new gowns may bring to Southern cotton a textile aristocracy it has not known for years.

A 151-pound turtle, believed the largest ever taken from the Ohio river, was captured at Louisville, Kentucky.

Peggy Wood, American actress, wears this cotton pique evening dress in a play starring her in London, thereby helping to further a vogue for cotton helpful to American growers.

Film Star Studies Future

(By The Associated Press)

HOLLYWOOD, May 7 — Ann Dvorak is a little breathless—but not too breathless to think about the future.

Ann's first real chance, her first success and her first marriage have followed so rapidly one after another, that this 19-year-old miss should be a little dizzy.

But she isn't. On the contrary, she is as level-headed as she was six months ago when she still was a chorus girl, begging for a chance to show she was an actress.

Ann and her husband, Leslie Fenton, already are making plans for their lives, serious plans which young screen players often overlook.

"I'd hate to grow old in this work," says Ann, "and never be able to enjoy an talk about anything but motion pictures.

"Leslie and I have talked that over. Neither of us wants to stay in this business forever, accumulating money—more money than we spend — while knowing nothing about the rest of the world.

"Having a career is swell, but if it robs you of the fun of life it's the bunk!"

This from a girl who has become something of a sensation in Hollywood.

When she finished her fifth picture, only one of the five had been released—so convinced were men in authority that Ann Dvorak would be a box office draw.

Producing organizations spent more than a million dollars on pictures featuring her before the public generally had ever been afforded a glimpse of Ann Dvorak as a featured player.

This sudden interest in Ann was the more remarkable in view of the fact that less than a year before she, even with the help of her friend, Joan Crawford, had been unable to interest anyone in her possibilities as an actress.

As a favor a friend promoted her to assistant dance instructor. Another thought she might be a good script girl.

But as for parts—well, they said, "Wait until you're a little older, Ann."

A career seems "swell" to Ann Dvorak of the films, but not when it robs you of the fun of living. Then, she says, "It's the bunk."

CHICAGO, May 7 — One bad inning by Brooklyn decided a mound duel between Pat Malone and "Babe" Phelps today and gave the Cubs their second straight victory over the Dodgers, 3 to 0.

Phelps pitched well except in the sixth inning, when Chicago, led by "Young Bill" Herman, scored all its runs. Malone was a bit wobbly at the start, giving four walks in the first two innings, but he settled down and pitched a six-hit shout-out and fanned seven men.

The victory extended the Cubs' home winning streak to nine victories in 12 games. It dropped Brooklyn to seventh place in the standing, behind the Mis New York Giants.

CINCINNATI 9, BOSTON 8

CINCINNATI, May 7 (AP)—With two out and two on in the twelfth, Ernest Lombardi cracked his third double of today's game against the Boston Braves and the Cincinnati Reds won, 9 to 8.

Hargrave's triple in the Braves' half of the same inning, following doubles by Worthington and Maranville, marked a three-run drive that shot the Bostonians into apparently sure victory. It seemed more sure as Heath, first Red at bat, filed out. Then High, up for Durocher, walked, Roettger filed, Douthit walked, Morrissey was safe on an error and Heilman, batting for Crabtree, singled bringing one in, then Lombardi batted in the tying and winning runs.

PHILADELPHIA, May 7—Philadelphia Athletics raised their 1931 American league championship flag today, and then took a beating from the Cleveland Indians, 10 to 7.

George Earnshaw, the right-handed ace of the Mackmen, started the game and was driven out in the fifth inning, Joe Vosmik's home run being the death blow. After that Connie Mack sent in Deshong, Cain and Rommel, but they failed to stop the Indians to any great extent.

Four homers featured the game, two on each side. Jimmy Foxx slammed out his seventh of the season, and "Mickey" Cochrane his fifth. Cissell sent a homer into the left field seats with two Indians aboard to start the downfall of Earnshaw in the second inning.

Willis Hudlin was credited with the victory for Cleveland, but had to be relieved by "Wes" Ferrell in the ninth with two on and none out.

NEW YORK 4, DETROIT 1

NEW YORK, May 7 (AP)—Charley Ruffing gave the Yankees their second brilliant pitching performance today when he held the Detroit Tigers to three singles and a homer by Jonathan Stone and struck out nine to win, 4 to 1. The Yanks got all their runs off Tom Bridges in the seventh. "Babe" Ruth was ejected from the game in the seventh for disputing a decision by Umpire Owens.

40,000 Spectators See "Burgoo King" Win Kentucky Race

Earle Sande, American Falls Jockey, Rides "Over Time" to Fourth Place Finish On Churchill Downs Track

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

LOUISVILLE, Ky., May 7 — The thoroughbred son of a royally-bred sire, "Burgoo King" came down the stretch today with a smashing drive to capture the rich Kentucky derby, duplicate the victory of his daddy, "Bubbling Over," in 1926, and give the hearts of the old Bluegrass their greatest thrill in many a Southern moon.

"Burgoo King" whipped the best that the East had to offer in an unwieldy field of 20 starters, whipped them all soundly, and gave his owner, Colonel Edward Riley Bradley, the master of Idle Hour farm of Lexington, honors that no turfman has ever gained before.

An unexpectedly big crowd of 40,000 roared its tribute to Colonel Bradley's third victory within a dozen years, a record for all time. In addition to the conquest of "Bubbling Over" in 1926, the Bradley entry of "Behave Yourself" and "Black Servant" ran one-two in 1921. "Bagenbaggage," another Bradley horse, ran second to "Bubbling Over."

Taking full command in the stretch after being rated nicely all the way by Jockey Eugene James, a former Louisville newsboy, "Burgoo King," left little doubt he was the best of the three-year-olds in this fifty-eighth running of America's most colorful horse race.

The big chestnut son of "Bubbling Over," "Minawand," finished five good lengths in front of his nearest Eastern rival, "Economic," owned by J. H. Louchheim, New York.

"Economic" after setting the pace for the first mile and then being unequal to meeting "Burgoo King's" strong finish, saved the place by the margin of a head over "Stepenfetchit," main hope of the stable of Mrs. John Hay Whitney, New York, and ridden by the veteran "Buddy" Ensor.

A half length behind "Stepenfetchit," noses separated the next three horses as "Brandon Mint" finished fourth, "Over Time," the other Whitney entry with Earl Sande, American Falls, Idaho, in the saddle, fifth and the heavily-played favorite, Mrs. Louis O. Kaufmann's "Tick On," sixth.

"Tick On" Favorite

"Tick On" went to the barrier the popular choice at odds of 9 to 5, but used up most of its energy in bad behavior at the barrier. The black son of "On Watch" contributed mainly to the delay of exactly 15½ minutes at the post, finally broke poorly, was kicked in an early jam and was never a contender despite the efforts of Jockey Pete Walls to pull the favorite out of the ruck. "Tick On" manifested plenty of gameness and speed in spite of misbehavior and bad breaks, which effectually destroyed any real chance this colt had of giving the winner a race.

"Burgoo King's stable mate, "Brother Joe," finished last after "Liberty Limited," the hope of Three D's stable of Fort Worth, Texas, broke down in the back stretch, but nobody paid any attention to that oddity as the handsome victor came back to the stands to receive a terrific ovation while Governor Ruby Laffoon presented the trophy to Colonel Bradley.

With the complete entry list of 20 going to the barrier, thereby upsetting expectations of a half dozen scratches, the derby was worth $62,875. The winner's net earnings amounted to $52,350. "Economic" drew down $6000, "Stepenfetchit" $3000 and "Brandon Mint" $1000.

"Burgoo King," going to the post at odds of slightly better than 5½ to 1, paid the good price of $13.24 to win, for each $2 ticket, also $5.08 to place and $4 to show.

"Economic" paid $15.62 to place and $8.54 to show while "Stepenfetchit's" price to show was $3.52.

"Burgoo King's" winning price was the best the machines have shown since "Zev" romped to victory under Sande's guidance in 1923. Sande's bid, incidentally, for a fourth triumph and a jockey record, failed despite a gallant effort.

"Burgoo King," which stepped the mile and a quarter in 2 minutes 5⅕ seconds, is the second son of a derby winner to add to the family prestige with another victory. "Halma," winner in 1895 sired "Alan-A-Dale," which came home first in 1902.

Except for "Tick On's" bad luck, it was as truly run a race as any in which so big a field has gone to the post. In only three previous years, 1923, 1928 and 1930, did bigger fields start and none of these was quite as unruly as the score of three-year-olds handled today by Starter William Hamilton.

"Burgoo King," unhampered by having number 13 post position, was as well behaved as any in the stall gates. "Tick On" was the worst, breaking through the barrier no less than 10 times.

Idaho Loses Again In Moscow Meet

MOSCOW, Idaho, May 7 (AP) — Showing great strength in the field events the University of Oregon defeated the University of Idaho, 83 to 47, in their dual track meet here today. No conference records were established.

"Gallant Knight" Wins Race Classic

BALTIMORE, May 7 (AP)—"Gallant Knight," the Audley farm's sturdy five-year-old son of "Bright Knight" and Ethel Gray turned in a record-breaking performance today to win the $15,000 Dixie handicap and turn the four-year-old debut of Albert Bostwick's "Mate" into a debacle.

"Gallan Knight," giving no intimation that on three different occasions he has broken down and has been termed an unsound horse, not only showed his heels to seven other racers over the mile and three-sixteenths, but set a new track record for the distance and a new mark for the stake.

His time was 1 minute, 58 seconds, 2-5 of a second off the track record, and a full second better than the record for the event, set in 1926 by Hal Price Headley's Mike Hall.

"Mate," with Pete Bostwick, young brother of his owner, Albert C. Bostwick up, ran into third place at the first quarter, and then dropped back to fourth where he finished, weakening badly toward the finish. He had heavy weight of 128 pounds.

(Associated Press Financial Writer)

NEW YORK, May 7—Although the rally in stocks was hailed by weekend profit-taking today, the existence of a generally firm undertone suggested that encouragement given by budget news from Washington was still a constructive market factor.

There was a little selling in the first half hour and again at the close. Early losses were quickly recovered, but when leaders pushed above Friday's final prices further realizing sales appeared, especially in industrials and utilities, and small net losses were the rule. Rails, however, held up well. Sales totaled 639,949 shares.

The late sag may have been influenced in part by concern lest the house ways and means committee reverse yesterday's unfavorable report on bonus legislation, for the market closed before it was learned that the previous decision was to stand. However, technical influences seemed to be dominant.

Major fractional declines for American Telephone, United States Steel, General Electric, Case and Woolworth were slightly exceeded by a few stocks, including American Can and Allied Chemical, on the other hand, Santa Fe, Southern Pacific, Delaware and Hudson, Norfolk and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio closed firmly. New York Central and Union Pacific lost about half a point. Standard of New Jersey and Pan-American Petroleum B maintained the good record being made by the oils.

Expressions of opinion on recent Washington developments constituted most of the conversation in commission house circles. Commentators pointed out that several uncertainties were still to be confronted and that the senate committee's budget bill had yet to face the membership and conference with the lower house. Nevertheless, prospects of prompt action were believed to be much brighter.

Some other steel producers followed the leadership of United States Steel corporation in cutting wages and salaries. One question brought up by these reductions is whether fresh pressure will now be brought to bear on prices or whether renewed price cutting will make its appearance. It was reported that manufacturers were determined to maintain present schedules on finished materials.

BOSTON WOOL

BOSTON, May 7 (AP)—Near the close of the past week a slightly better undertone was noted in the wool market. While the improved sentiment was not asked upon any increase of actual business on wool, some manufacturers were in the market looking over offerings and trying to appraise the market situation. Only a few took wool and purchases were mostly of a type suitable for woolen goods.

GRAIN QUOTATIONS DIP IN WINDY CITY

Keeping in Step With Stock Market Traders On Pit

See Price Advance Undone

By JOHN P. BOUGHAN
(Associated Press Market Editor)

CHICAGO, May 7 — Keeping in step with the stock market, grain traders reversed their position late today, and saw price advances more than undone.

Final dips by securities wrecked bullish sentiment associated with likelihood of international difficulties because of the killing of President Doumer of France. Paris dispatches comparing his assassination with the assassination which started the World war failed to arouse new buying of wheat, despite authoritative assertions that the slayer of Doumer belonged to the organized Bolshevik forces.

Wheat closed unsettled, ⅝c to 1c under yesterday's finish; corn ¾c to ⅞c down; oats ⅛c to ¾c off, and provisions 2c to 7c up.

Transient Advance

A transient advance in stock market quotations helped wheat to overcome an early dip that came after rain beneficial to the entire domestic grain belt. The temporary strength of securities also was more than sufficient to offset comparative weakness of the Liverpool wheat market, where yesterday's price advances on this side of the Atlantic met with little response. Wheat price gains that followed, were in the face of the fact about the only complaint as to wheat left standing for harvest was that Hessian fly infestation appeared heavy in some sections, and that spring wheat seeding in the Northwest was being delayed.

Meanwhile, Russian operations in the world wheat market remained much indeed, and the fact that Russia as a buyer instead of a seller was looked upon generally as a potential element of strength.

Corn and oats lagged after wheat. Fairly heavy selling of corn was noted, and apparently Argentine was still effectively competing abroad against corn from the United States. Provisions averaged higher, helped by support from packers.

You Can't Marry

by Julia Clift-Addams

SYNOPSIS: "I'll marry you tomorrow if you like," Georgie Revell tells Eddie Townsend. She makes one condition. The marriage must be kept secret, for if her employer, Gratien Matching, hears of it he will discharge her from the position she has found of. Eddie agrees, and they plan a week together before he leaves for Mexico. Georgie takes the work she has been doing in to Matching. She has been abruptly called away from Ryder Vale's dinner party for this night work, leaving her cousin Jenny with Vale. Jenny has been interested in Garth Aveney, whom Vale introduced to the girls this evening, but Aveney has seemed attracted to Georgie and is now waiting outside Matching's house for her. Matching is using his nephew to test the possibility that Georgie is responsible for the "leaks" of the firm's private business, and it has been implied that Aveney is the nephew.

Chapter 7

MISS LOYALTY

"Without pause, Gratien Matching seized a fountain-pen, signed the statement which he had just declared inaccurate from first word to last, and rang one of his many bells.

A door in a shadowed corner opened and a man-servant came in. He had a broad, slightly bent back, next to no neck, and dark hair growing gray. Georgie, who didn't like him, always thought of him as a mole.

"Take this to Townsend, the pilot." The Old Man's gray claws were surprisingly dark with envelope, wax and seal. "Tell him to get straight away with it—any speed that doesn't break his neck."

Georgie, rubbing the finger that had been slapped, watched the valet take the packet and go. He walked with a curious, bi-ped-like gait—not a shuffle. It looked slow but actually it got him along with unusual speed. . . . She turned to find Gratien Matching's stony eyes upon her.

"Have you anything else for me tonight, sir?"

"No. Hurt your finger? Here, have some sweets."

She took the messy little bag he rooted out, thanked him and dropped it into her overall pocket. It lay against one he had given her a week ago when he had thrown a paper weight at her . . . He pulled himself higher against his pillows and stared her up and down. He resented at the gleam of apricot velvet under the overall hem.

"Where were you when I sent for you? How many times have I told you, you're to be where I can get at you when I need you? What about—the—salary—you're getting? What d'you think you get it for? Keeping me waiting? Gadding about town with—who were you with?"

"Mr. Ryder Vale and a Mr. Aveney and my cousin."

"Male? Female?"

"The girl who shares my apartment. Georgina Revell — the same name as mine. But she shortens it to Jenny."

"I don't want to hear about her or her ridiculous name. I'm not concerned with your private affairs." (Georgie's lips grew tighter in spite of effort to suppress a smile.) "But I won't be kept waiting. I won't—be—kept—waiting! Is that clear, Revell? Is that clear?"

"Quite, sir. Good-night."

She turned away.

A familiar sound followed her — the muffled — hum of the model dynamos. Gratien Matching had switched them on and, twisted grotesquely, his wig crooked, hung over them. He was taking to them but not in his dreadful falsetto.

"Pretty — oh, very pretty indeed." It was a thin monotone that merged into the humming of the wheels. Reserve of power there. And economical. And smooth. Smooth as velvet. Beautiful—"

Georgie closed the door.

She took a deep breath. Thank heavens, those estimates were settled and on their way. The Old Man would be more bearable tomorrow. She hoped that Eddie wasn't breaking any records, getting down to the air field. He was a fine flier, an iron nerved "bird-man" whose rams had spread, whose "luck" was a by-word. But Georgie thought himself not it bluntly—a rotten motorist. Whatever carried him, motorcycle or car, he took insane risks with it.

Georgie, passing the window that by daylight lit this upper hall, drew aside its tapestries and peered out. A car was at the door, an uncommonly nice car. In so far as the street-lights let her see it. The figure at the wheel was indistinct until another car passed and its headlights showed him. Garth Aveney.

She raised a half-amused eyebrow and proceeded on her way. In the bedroom permanently reserved for her, she pulled off her overall. Meeting up her face at the glass, she pondered on the odd chances of life. Of all the men she'd met, Aveney was the only one of the type that Jenny did. Jenny, called "worthless" . . . But Georgie was not a flirt and she got no great pleasure out of the infatuation of a man who meant nothing to her. She wished she could tell him straight out that by this time tomorrow she would be Eddie Townsend's wife.

That reminder of tomorrow swept everybody but Eddie from her mind. She went into her working-room and found the promised scrawl upon the desk. "City hall twelve sharp. We get lone of car from someone."

Poor old Ed. Spelling was not his strongest point. But what did that matter? He didn't need to spell, he hurtled along in the air or on the earth, a big, simple, grinning, lovely boy! She thrilled to that. She understood it. She was — outside the ruthless discipline of her job—like that herself.

Jenny knelt at the open window and watched the opposite roof-tops grew black and blacker as the young moon slipped down the sky. In a distant square a clock chimed. Eleven? No, not yet, a quarter to. Her birthday was nearly over.

She put her forehead down on her cold, clasped hands and at once pictures were painted against the darkness. A clearing in a forest full of moonlight, a straight green tree with straight silver candles on it. . . . She unclasped her hands and moved them upward until they gripped her shoulders, half expecting to feel them buried in fur. While fur. But her shoulders were bare. And she was a fool to kneel here spoiling the wonderful gown.

There was nothing — was there? — to agonize about, just because a tall, slim, hazel-eyes man had tumbled headlong into love with Georgie and didn't trouble to conceal it. Even if his love was hopeless—and it would be, for Georgie really did care most for Eddie — the elusive laughter would not be banished forever from the hazel eyes. He would forget — this mysterious, incalculable Garth Aveney would forget Georgie in time: as completely as he had no doubt by now forgotten Georgie's little cousin Jenny.

Eleven o'clock. With the last chime came the sound of Georgie's key in the front door and the sound of her voice; and the sound of a man's voice answering her.

Jenny's face scorched suddenly in the darkness of the bedroom and she stumbled to her feet. When she had made a bad headache an excuse not to go on to the Crescendo with Ryder Vale, she had thought that she needn't see Garth Aveney again tonight. She had stupidly forgotten that Georgie might bring him here, and she had forgotten, too, that if Georgie didn't go on to the Crescendo either, she wouldn't know that Jenny had come home.

The simplest thing, considered Jenny, would be to undress very quietly in the darkness and go to bed. She groped for the intricate fastenings of her new frock and at last stepped out of it and carried it to the wardrobe. The wardrobe stood across from the unused double doors which separated the bedroom from the living-room and as she cautiously opened it she heard, as though she herself were in the living room, the click of the telephone receiver dropped back into its bracket and then Garth Aveney's voice.

"Well, now you've done your duty. You've phoned him at once, you've made your attitude absolutely clear. Now I want you to let me tell you something else."

"There's really nothing you can say. I told you I'd have to phone him about you and I did. That settles the whole affair." Georgie sounded very curt.

"No, now I'm going to justify myself. I told him I would, once you'd refused."

Jenny stepped back from the wardrobe and swung its door shut so heavily that it slammed; she feared that Georgie would hear the noise and investigate. But Georgie, still in the living room, was loudly exclaiming over something—her voice ringing out of its usual crisp warmth into a shrilled tone that came to her when she was indignant . . . Jenny assumed that she was indignant because Garth Aveney was trying to take her away from Eddie. Presently — just as Jenny slid into the little camp bed that had been put up for her alongside of Georgie's — Georgie's voice sounded in the hall and then Aveney's.

"Goodnight, Miss Loyalty." Aveney was saying, "I'm forgiven, then?"

CITY LIABILITY IN DROWNING DENIED

Twin Falls Municipality's Legal Advisor Answers in Parents' $15,000 Suit

Denying liability on the part of the city of Twin Falls in connection with the death of Ralph Monroe Hendrix, three-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hendrix, drowned in the Eighth avenue lateral April 18, last, E. M. Sweeley, city attorney, filed an answer in district court here yesterday in an action wherein the child's parents seek to recover $15,055 damages from the city.

The city attorney's answer denies responsibility on the city's part for a bridge across the lateral from which it is believed the child fell into the stream. Without regard to question of desirability of covering the ditch, the attorney's answer says, the city had no legal obligation or duty to cover it. "No part of the ditch or the bridges that have been built across it was intended for public use," the answer asserts.

The city attorney's answer also stated that the ditch's location has not been changed since 1909, and that the child's parents made their home in the vicinity of the ditch knowing the conditions that existed with respect to it.

The lateral, the city's answer points out, extends a distance of 1320 feet between Locust street and Blue Lakes boulevard, and runs for more than a mile in practically the same direction outside the city limits. It carries between 28 and 50 second feet of water to irrigate approximately 3000 acres.

COUNTY BOARD PUTS TAX NOTES ON SALE

Twin Falls Commissioners Offer $124,000 Baby Bond Issue to Local Investors

Twin Falls county commissioners yesterday bought newspaper advertising space to promote sale of $124,000 of 8 per cent tax anticipation notes issued in denominations of $100 to $5000, and maturing January 15, 1933, or July 1, 1933, at the purchaser's option. The county's 1932 current expenses and other county tax levies are pledged for payment of these notes.

Commissioners pointed out in their sales talk that the investment is "gilt-edged and affords an opportunity for the people of the county to invest in their own securities at an attractive rate of interest."

Money now in hiding or in depositories outside the county, would be brought into circulation in this county through investment in these notes, and so be of general benefit, the commissioners said.

LIBRARIAN ANNOUNCES CANCELLATION OF FINE

Bargain period, cancellation time, jubilee era, has been declared by the Twin Falls public library, covering the rest of the month and remitting fines imposed by those who have kept books out of the library longer than rules prescribed, it was announced yesterday by Miss Jessie Fraser, librarian, who said that failure to return books when due handicaps the work of the library, and that patrons continue to keep them out, possibly in some cases because they cannot conveniently pay. All books due previous to May 1 may be returned without fine any time during the month, she said.

Better Spark Plugs

Lewis Schneider, winner of the 1931 A. A. A. Championship, and of the 1931 500-mile Indianapolis race, always uses Champions.

Race drivers the world over insist on Champions because they outperform under every condition.

An eight-year string of victories and world's records made by automobiles, motor boats and airplanes, in competition the world over, prove Champion performance is unequalled.

This year, the advantages of installing a complete new set of Champions are more obvious than ever before. For the new and improved Champions make every engine a better performing engine. We know this from our own customers' experience.
