its own producing plants located there. This purchase of Columbia's properties affords a nucleus from which it is anticipated that the productive capacities of the company can be expanded from time to time, both to the interest of the corporation and the public.

The total annual steel output of Columbia is 240,000 gross tons, which is converted into a rela-

This will increase the U. S. Steel corporation's properties

The cost is approximately $66,-

Daily Poem

BORROWED SILVER

The plain seems green and beautiful from afar,
 The hills above the sun.

The trees stand in rich masses,
 The river is silver and beautiful in the evening light.

No one would believe standing here,
 That the plain is half desert.

And that the river is only polished rock.

Shining in an alien glow.

—Arthur Davison Ficke, "Mountain Against Mountain."

HAULING COSTS.

A INSTANCE of how freight rates affect agricultural business is afforded by a statement made to the Idaho Statesman by Walter M. Pierce, ex-governor of Oregon, during his stop in the state capital.

To move the wheat crop from the big ranch owned and operated by him and his son in the Grande Ronde valley cost $4,000 during the war times, the ex-governor stated. This year the freight bill on the Pierce crop of wheat was $7,000.

"Now railroads are just as much entitled to their legitimate and fair profit on the work they do as the poorest individual in the territory they serve. By the same standard of fair play they should not, just because they are big and powerful, be permitted to penalize their districts by excessively high freight charges.

The public service commission of Oregon claims that the rates charged for moving wheat from Oregon points to tidewater are too high, as now constituted and should be reduced. The contention is based on a cost study made for the commission by J. P. Newell, consulting engineer.

According to this cost study as it applies to shippers from Pendleton, Oregon, a carload of wheat costs in freight $153.55 to Portland. The direct cost of haul to the railroad is $41.54 per car. The total cost, including direct costs, 100 per cent of indirect costs and with allowances made for a reasonable return, amounts to $81.90 per car. In other words, according to the contention of the Oregon public service commission, the rates on wheat movement from Oregon points should be reduced 50 per cent.

On the basis of the cost figures worked out by the Newell report, wheat rates from Idaho points to tidewater are too high.

DECIDEDLY INANE

IN ITS issue of Wednesday the local morning newspaper carried an editorial under the title, "Two Sides," which said in part:

"It is not an easy thing for county officials to point an accusing finger at a fellow worker in the court house . . . and the officers upon whom this unpleasant duty has fallen . . . are entitled to credit for fidelity to the obligations of their offices under trying conditions."

Just what our esteemed contemporary means to convey by this editorial we are unable to say. If it had said that the community regrets that necessity dictated that such a charge had to be brought against anyone, either an official or a private citizen, its statement would have been understood and would have echoed the sentiment of all thoughtful persons, even though that truth is so obvious as to need no utterance.

But when it seeks to congratulate an official elected by the people and sworn to uphold the laws of the state and the national government because he did his duty in an unpleasant situation we are hard put to it to understand the reason for any utterance at all. It seems to this newspaper that it would have been so much better to have kept quiet. Trying situations come to public officials' enforcement agents and members of the legislature.

the judiciary quite often. The condition of unpleasantness may be assumed to be never far removed when public duty has to be fairly and honestly performed. What reason existed to cause our esteemed morning contemporary to issue congratulations?

Maybe we were treated to an example of an effort to exemplify good example.

Or maybe it was deemed wise to look on the bright side of a situation that might get into politics at the hands of inconsiderate partisans.

None is defined by our office dictionary as follows: "Without contents; empty; void-of-sense; or intelligence silly."

WHEN CHILDREN HURT
THEIR PARENTS

Q UITE often, unless they are exceptionally kind and thoughtful, boys and girls cause unnecessary grief and heartache to their parents.

Just the other day a new tricycle disappeared from in front of the home of children in Twin Falls' broad daylight. It was a dandy tricycle, a regular humdinger of a tricycle, the kind any boy or girl would be proud to own. This tricycle disappeared. Darkness came and it still remained lost.

The next morning it was returned. With it came the little boy who had taken it and the mother of the boy. The family live temporarily at one of the campgrounds, and the mother is working at an apple packing plant. She found the tricycle the evening before on her return from work. Her boy could not remember where he had found the tricycle, so it could not be returned until the next morning.

The little boy had formerly had a tricycle much like the one he had seen and taken in Twin Falls, the mother explained. He had felt an overwhelming desire to ride it and took it. His mother was deeply distressed that he had forgotten his training to such an extent as to take something that did not belong to him, but the next morning she started searching for the owner and lost an hour at work before she and her boy discovered the rightful owners of the property.

The little boy was sorry, too. He had taken something that did not belong to him—he had made other children unhappy. Worst of all, perhaps, he had caused his own mother grief and heartache that she might so easily have been spared. So it is with too many boys and girls between the ages of 10 and 50. They could have so much more fun and be better citizens if they would always remember to make the lives of mothers as free as possible of any unnecessary grief.

How long does apparently intelligent gentlemen spend in the world before they can find behind signs of "frame-up"? Do they believe that they can hoodwink the public mind by forever changing "politics" and "frame-ups" when they are disclosed in courses that are far from what the public expects from them? Don't they know that the public they are insulting the intelligence of the people of the country?

The latest to seek a haven behind a charge of "frame-up" is none other than Senator Bingham of Connecticut. He is the gentleman who recently took a man in the employ of the Connecticut manufacturers' association into closed meetings of the Senate finance committee under the guise of his "secretary" who was then writing the rates of the tariff bill.

Senator Bingham secretly arranged for that man to come to Washington. He told nobody that he was the employee of the manufacturers' association. He told nobody that he was the employee of his "secretary" only while the tariff bill was under consideration.

He told nobody that this man was receiving $10,000 a year from the manufacturers' association while drawing $3000 from the government as Senator Bingham's "secretary." He told nobody that the manufacturers' association was paying this man's hotel bills, his entertainment bills, his library and his other expenses. Then, when he testified at the Senate hearings on his "secretary," he secretly continued to bring an employee of the manufacturers' association into the closed senate hearings on his "secretary" what does the senator do?

He tries "frame-up." He charges "politics." He says the committee is trying to "damage the Hoover administration."

The Hoover administration is not trial in the Bingham tariff case. Neither is the king of England or the premier of France. Neither is the sultan of Zulu. Nobody is on trial save Senator Bingham of Connecticut, and he is revealed in a role that throws very serious question on whether or not he should remain a member of the Senate of the United States.

And his feeble charge of "frame-up" is comparable to what might be expected from
