LIMITATION OF CRUISERS TO BE TAKEN UP FIRST

America Also Wins Right to Have Certain Press Representatives Attend

FRANCE AND ITALY STUDY RELATIONS

Reduction in Auxiliary Vessels Earnestly Sought by United States.

LONDON, Jan. 28 (UP)—The American delegation to the naval conference today won its demand for presentation of the case of auxiliary warships limitation first at the next plenary session, Thursday.

The chief delegates, meeting at St. James palace, also decided that the plenary session would discuss the main conference question in alphabetical order of the countries proposing.

Wins Second Victory

The American delegation won a second victory when it was decided to admit certain representatives of the press at the plenary session Thursday. Secretary Henry L. Stimson had first urged that the press be admitted and offered to give up three seats occupied by American technical experts to permit attendance of reporters.

An official announcement said the discussion of the conference agenda was continued this morning and that the meeting Thursday will set up a committee of principal delegates to study the question further. Reijiro Wakatsuki, chief Japanese delegate told the press that the Franco-Italian differences had been discussed and that the British delegates had presented their views on points of France's proposal to have the conference define categories of warships before taking up other questions.

Alphabetical Discussion

The agreement on alphabetical discussion of the main questions means that the American delegate will speak first, probably presenting the United States' case for auxiliary limitation, that is, for limitation of cruisers, submarines torpedo boats, etc., prior to discussion of battleship limitation. Discussion of cruiser problems first had been one of the chief demands of the American delegates in arranging the agenda.

GOES TO PRISON FOR BANK THEFT

John Mitchell Admits Robbery of Hazelton Bank; Sheriff Takes Three More to Prison

After serving two and a half years at the Montana state prison at Deer Lodge for a robbery charge, John Mitchell pleaded guilty in district court at Burley Monday to charges of robbing the bank at Hazelton, Idaho, on July 17, 1927, and was sentenced to serve from one to five years in the Idaho state penitentiary.

Mitchell was met at the doors of the Montana state prison upon his release there by Sheriff Fred Turner of Jerome county. Lawrence Wilson, alleged to have been Mitchell's partner in the Hazelton robbery, was sentenced to the Idaho prison a short time back but escaped last fall and is now at large.

Sheriff Fred Turner of Jerome county came through Twin Falls on his way back from Burley with Mitchell Monday evening. He will take Mitchell and three other prisoners from Twin Falls to the state prison today. The other three prisoners are William Miller, sentenced 1 to 14 years for bur-

SEVERE STORM SWEEPS EUROPE, BOATS ARE SUNK

Many Ships Go to Bottom As Elements Stage Rampage; Seamen Lose Their Lives

BIARRITZ, France, Jan. 28, (UP)—A steamer on the rocks off Biarritz has been identified as the British collier Knebworth of Newcastle.

One man has been lost in the storm.

Hope is held out for the other 22 members of the crew. The Knebworth was heavily loaded with coal.

VIGO, Spain, Jan. 28, (UP)—More than a score of fishing boats were lost in a storm which battered the coast last night, at least nine lives being lost.

The crew of nine men on the boat Maria Del Carmen were drowned. Crews of five other boats were rescued. Seven other boats were sunk at San Lucar, and many small ships damaged.

PARIS, Jan. 28, (UP)—Storms which crippled half a dozen steamships sunk more than a dozen fishing boats and caused wide damage on land developed tornado force in the department of Tarn today after sweeping along the Riviera.

The storm extended along the entire length of the Moroccan coast, where three coastal vessels were sunk. There was snow at Fez and Sefrou.

Nine fishing boats were lost at Ferrol, Spain, and the wreckage of three other vessels was swept ashore there as gales made it difficult for ships to enter port.

JUDGE ORDERS ACQUITTAL IN TRIAL IN UTAH

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 28, (UP)—Because there was no evidence of "heat of passion," and because the question of malice is excluded from a manslaughter charge, Wilford Bolton, 19, slayer of Charles Carter, was freed by court action yesterday when Judge David W. Moffat directed the jury to return a verdict of not guilty. Bolton had been tried on a manslaughter charge.

Bolton shot and killed Carter, a boxer, October 10, 1928, as the result of a quarrel over Virginia Bell, 18. An original charge of manslaughter was filed, and when the prosecution sought to raise the charge to first degree murder, the information was quashed. Then a first degree murder charge was filed but at a preliminary hearing it was reduced to voluntary manslaughter.

Moore Not to Be Brought To Twin Falls for Trial

Gov. Dern Holds Evidence in Case Insufficient

SALT LAKE CITY, Jan. 28 (UP) Extradition of R. D. Moore from Salt Lake to Idaho, to stand trial on a charge of robbing the store managed by F. M. Elrod, in Twin Falls, has been denied by Governor George H. Dern because testimony has indicated that Moore was in Salt Lake at the time of the robbery, and that his identification with the affair was the result of a mistaken identity.

William Allen, arrested with Roy Kent here January 22, admitted that he and his partner staged the Twin Falls robbery, obtaining loot totaling $111. No request for extradition of Allen and Kent had been made.

E. V. Larsen, Twin Falls county attorney, attended the hearing in behalf of Idaho's request for Moore's extradition. He withdrew a request for the return of William Wilson, who was arrested with Moore in Salt Lake January 16.

WORKERS DIG IN SNOW FOR BODIES OF LOST AIRMEN

Remains of Carl Eielson and Earl Borland Expected to Be Found Near Their Plane

NOME, Alaska, Jan. 28 (UP)—Hummocks of ice and snow in the deserted Siberian wastes today held the secret of the fate of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic aviators whose wrecked relief plane was found after it had been missing since November 9.

Relays of workers who had made their way to the scene of the wreck by painful trek with dog teams, dug in increasing circles around the mass of wreckage, scattered over a wide area when the ship struck the earth.

The silence of the northland was broken for the first time since the wreck by the clang of steel shovels and picks as they dug into the frozen surface.

There was little hope in the hearts of rescue workers that the airmen were alive. Instead they expected only to come upon the bodies.

Pilots Joe Grossman and Fred Gillam, comrades of Eielson who made the discovery of the smashed plane, continued today to operate from their base at the ice-locked motor ship Nanuk, taking men to the vicinity of the wreck to widen the search.

Wireless advices from the Nanuk, to the rescue of which Eielson and Borland were flying when they disappeared, contained no expressions of belief that the airmen had escaped death.

An apparently faulty altimeter and a clock stopping at 3:10 p. m. (6:10 pacific time) were brought back by Crosson.

While the altimeter indicated 1000 feet, the crash 90 miles south of Cape North was practically sea level, leading Crosson to believe that Eielson drove the plane into the snow while thinking he was far above surface.

Mute evidence of the untouched provisions in the cabin was almost the final proof to searchers that Eielson and Borland could not have survived the crash. But whether they jumped before the impact, or were thrown out when the plane broke up, only continued search might establish.

WATERS RECEDE IN FLOOD AREAS

VINCENNES, Ind., Jan. 28 (UP)—Still weak from hardship, many farmers and their families prepared to move back to their flood-swept homes along the Wabash and White rivers.

Except at a few places where ice jams have blocked escape of water whose level reaches the housetops, the rivers are within their banks. Ice gorges on the Little Wabash in the Shawneetown, Ill., territory, threatened disaster as the water level grew steadily higher. Aviators said there were few signs of life in this territory where many persons are marooned.

MacDonald Regime Is Safe; Discord Splits Foes of Government

LONDON, Jan. 28.—Because the Liberal party of Great Britain fears that an early general election might bring about the almost total disappearance of its Parliamentary representation; because the Tory party believes that the country and, particularly, big business would resent an early election; and because the present Tory leadership is faced with an attack upon its position by powerful nominally Tory newspapers—the present Labor government, which lacks a majority in the House of Commons, will probably continue to survive for some time.

It is the most piquant situation in the political history of the United Kingdom. For the six months it has been in office, parliamentary life for the Labor party has been just one crisis after another. Time after time, writers on the opposition press have predicted it would fall.

It was to fall because of the Indian mess. But the Labor government was taking the advice of a trusted Tory viceroy, Lord Irwin, and Tory Leader Stanley Baldwin, ex-premier, stood by them.

Egyptian Crisis Loomed

It was to fall over the Egyptian mess but the Labor Foreign Secretary, Arthur Henderson, had no trouble proving that the former high commissioner, Lord Lloyd, whom he had let out, had had trouble with the Tory government which appointed him.

It was to have fallen because of its bill aimed to reconstruct conditions in the coal-mining trade but in spite of the onslaught of Tory and Liberal leaders the government got a majority of eight—thanks to Liberal votes.

The coal bill crisis started all the political and social buzzing. It had been stated that back of the scenes negotiations were being carried on between Lloyd George, former Liberal Premier, and the Socialists, so that the Labor and the Liberal parties could agree on a coal measure.

But then came Lloyd George's slashing attack, followed up by Winston Churchill, the Tory.

So the rumor started that Lloyd George and Churchill were in agreement to bring their respective parties into a union to destroy the Labor government and follow this up with a Tory-Liberal coalition in which Lloyd George, Churchill and Lord Birkenhead, also a Tory, would be the leading figures.

The Labor party promptly took up the challenge its leaders and its newspaper organ proclaimed that if the older parties wanted an early election, Labor was ready.

Then the public got several sharp surprises. Before the last election, the powerful press controlled by Lord Rothermere had passionately beseeched Tories and Liberals to form a compact to defeat Socialism, which Lord Rothermere regards with horror. So it was supposed he would favor the coalition movement.

But an editorial in one of Rothermere's papers killed the rumor by defending Philip Snowden, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who engaged in a verbal duel with Churchill. The Rothermere editorial said Snowden the Socialist, not only had made a brilliant retort to Churchill, but made a detailed and damaging exposure of the "reckless" and extravagant Tory administrations." In a later editorial a Rothermere paper made a slashing attack on Baldwin because of his India policy.

RACE WAR LEADS TO NEW ARRESTS IN CALIFORNIA

Youth of 20 Believed Responsible for Starting Recent Attacks Against Filipinos

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 28, (UP)—Race rioting between whites and Filipinos in California today threatened to flare into new heat after a few days of apparent truce.

Three more arrests had been made. Two were Filipinos, jailed after the first San Francisco riot last night. They were charged with disturbing the peace after being slightly beaten in a street battle with whites because they were accompanied by white girls. Their assailants escaped.

The third arrest was that of Leonard Brassette, 20, San Jose. He was held on an open charge for investigation, following reports to authorities that Brassette had been advocating a campaign of terrorism to drive the Filipinos from Santa Clara and Monterey counties, where rioting cost the life of one Filipino and serious wounding of a white man.

MANILA, P. I., Jan. 28, (UP)—A mass meeting of mourning and protest will be held in Luneta Park Sunday, resulting from the death of Fermin Tobera, 22, Filipino in race riots near Watsonville, Cal.

Oregon Railroad Brief is Filed

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28, (UP)—Benefits accruing to local communities from the construction of a railroad between Keddie, Cal., and Klamath Falls, Ore., connecting the Western Pacific with the Great Northern, were outlined in a brief filed with the interstate commerce commission today by supporters of the proposed construction.

Developments of the local territory and the advantage of having a second route to the northwest competitive with the present route of the Southern Pacific, were two of the benefits cited in the brief.

PALS OF MISSING AIRMAN PROMISE DILIGENT SEARCH

Jimmy James, Al de Garmo and Fred Kelly Maintain Lookout for Maury Graham

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 28.—When everyone else gets tired of fighting the blizzards and bitter cold of southern Utah and Nevada in the search for Maurice (Maury) Graham, night mail pilot who has been missing since Jan. 11, Graham's three closest pals will take up the hunt and stick to it until the end.

The three men who mean to find the missing aviator if it takes a year are Jimmy James, Al. de Garmo and Fred W. Kelly. They have an incentive that no other searchers have—they are hunting for their best friend.

These three, with Graham, were the four original pilots of the Western Air Express. They started flying the Salt Lake City-Los Angeles mail route together, and because of their close friendship became known all along the line as the Western Air Express' "Four Musketeers."

Found "Lost Battalion"

In the World War, Graham won fame as the discoverer of the "Lost Battalion" in the Argonne forest.

James, De Garmo and Kelly determined to find their missing comrade, have the full support and sympathy of Western Air Express officials. Superintendent C. C. Cole, who has directed the great hunt by land and air, in which no fewer than 45 airplanes have taken part at various times has anticipated their wish. He

SEVEN PERISH AS FLAMES SWEEP HOME IN COLORADO

Mother, Five Children and Miner Who Attempted a Rescue Burn to Death In Little Town

GREELEY, Colo. Jan. 28 (UP)—Seven persons perished today in a fire that destroyed the home of Paul Martinez at Frederick, a small mining camp, Southwest of Greeley. The dead were Mrs. Martinez, her five children ranging in age from an infant a few months old to twelve years and Ernest L. Newlin, who attempted to rescue them.

Martinez was at work at the time.

Newlin was operating the pumps at the mine near the Martinez home when he saw the house on fire.

He ran to the building and shouted and called in an effort to awake the sleeping woman and her children.

Failing to get any response, he ran to the back of the house, smashed the glass in a window and leaped into the burning building.

His heroic attempt cost his own life, for he failed to emerge from the flaming interior of the house.

Other residents of the little mining camp ran to the scene, but they were powerless to give any assistance.

The camp is without fire apparatus and by the time the alarm had spread, the house was roaring and it was impossible for anyone to enter.

FREDERICK, Colo., Jan. 28 (UP)—A roaring fire that engulfed the squalid two-room house of Paul Martinez cremated his wife and five small children today, while a miner from the nearby slope coal mine gambled his life on the chance of saving them, and lost.

The miner Ernest L. Newlin, 34, died the death of a hero. He smashed out a window and jumped into the flaming interior, to arouse the trapped family, all of whom apparently were overcome by smoke, before Newlin passed that way and discovered the fire.

Newlin, also, was overcome as soon as he leaped into the house. He toppled over into the flames and perished. Besides Newlin, those killed were Mrs. Della Martinez, 30, and her children Pauline, 12, Emma 10, Rosie, 5, Ernest, 6, and Francis, 13 months.

FIVE PERSONS DIE IN PLANE CRASH MONDAY

Motor Fails When Travelair Machine Is Near Airport; Flying from Wichita, Kan.

A black mark on the snow in an open field here marked the place today where five persons were crushed and burned to death in a flaming airplane.

Pilot Duke Landeman, apparently struggling with a failing motor, had made an effort to land his Travelair six-passenger carrier at a time when he could see the swinging beacon and red markers of Fairfax airport, his goal, just a mile away.

The airplane, which flew from Wichita, Kan., late Monday, was behind schedule and darkness had closed in when the trouble developed. Landeman, losing altitude, according to witnesses swung away from a building, then went into a vertical bank to crash from about 150 feet.

The crew of a switch engine near the scene said the craft was enveloped in flames before it fell. The motor was broken in half, both sections digging into the hard ground. The steel framework and undercarriage was twisted and charred. Everything else, including the bodies of the pilot and his four passengers, were burned.

The Dead

Pilot Duke Landeman, Kansas City, Kans.

Passengers:

Miss Margaret Dice, St. Joseph, Mo.

C. R. McKinnon, Chicago, recently assigned as branch manager of the Robbins and Meyers Elec. Co., St. Louis.

James Eggert, 709 Woods Theatre Bldg., Chicago.

The plane was operated by the Central Air Lines, a subsidiary of the Universal Aviation corporation. Rural Goldsborough, vice-president of Universal with officers in St. Louis, will arrive today to investigate the crash.

GRANGE MEETING GETS UNDER WAY

BOISE, Jan. 28. (UP)—The twenty-second annual state convention of the Idaho State Grange opened in Caldwell this morning with 500 delegates present. The session today has largely been taken up with roll calls and annual reports, the annual banquet tonight being the day's big feature.

Interest is centered on Wednesday's sessions, which will take up important resolutions of controversial nature. Revision of taxation methods in Idaho, placing more of the burden on industry and less on farming, and Governor Baldridge's highway building program will receive special attention.

Indication of individual delegates, who openly discuss their views on these questions, point toward a bitter fight over the Baldridge plan, to issue gasoline tax anticipation notes to provide for a complete highway system for Idaho. Opposition to the governor's highway program, which may call for a special session of the legislature, seems overwhelmingly in the majority among the grangers.

GEORGE PERRINE DEATH RESULTS IN DAMAGE SUIT

Widow Demands Judgment of $35,000 Because Husband was Killed in Crash Here

Claiming damages of $35,000 because George W. Perrine, 25, was killed in an auto collision here in Twin Falls on September 17, 1929, Evelyn Perrine, his widow and the administratrix of his estate, has instituted suit in district court here against Roy E. Wells and the Casey-Parker Co.

The complaint, filed today by Frank Stephan and E. L. Ashton, the plaintiff's attorneys, sets forth that George Perrine was riding in a truck owned by the Casey-Parker company on September 17, 1929, at the request of the company. The truck was going southwesterly on Second avenue south. At the same time Roy Wells was driving a car southwesterly on Second street south, and because these men drove their vehicles negligently a collision resulted at the intersection of Second street and Second avenue south, says the complaint. As a result of the collision the truck overturned and crushed George Perrine so that he died the same day.

The complaint sets forth that the deceased was survived by Evelyn Perrine, his wife; Barbara Nelle Perrine, his daughter of 18 months; and Willa Margaret Perrine, a daughter born December 15, 1929, following his death. He was in good health before the accident and engaged in farming near Twin Falls.

The wife and children were wholly dependent upon the deceased for subsistence and support and by reason of the man's death were left utterly helpless and destitute, and are therefore damaged to the sum of $35,000 which, together with costs of the suit, are asked in judgment [illegible] the complaint [illegible]

PHIL SCOTT CLAIMS HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE

BRITISH FIGHTER BELIEVES HE HAS RIGHT TO CROWN

Sharkey's Next Opponent Is Not Bashful About Reciting His Record of Victories

NEW YORK, Jan. 28, (UP) "I consider myself heavyweight champion of the world," said Phil Scott of England before he departed today for Miami, Fla., to begin training for his 15-round match with Jack Sharkey of Boston on February 27.

"What is a champion, anyway?" Scott was asked.

"It seems to me," he said, "that a champion should be the man who has beaten the champions of all the other countries. I have beaten 15 champions, including three German champions, and the title-holders of France, Australia, New Zealand, Holland, Belgium, Canada, South America, Italy and other countries.

"I honestly think I am entitled to the championship without fighting for it, but I have always been willing to meet any man in the world and I shall continue to do so as long as I remain in the ring."

Scott was asked if he would claim a foul if Sharkey hits him low.

"I hope that Sharkey does not resort to unfair tactics," replied Scott, "but if he hits me low I shall certainly expect the referee to award me the bout. I would like to see a good clean sporting fight and I shall try to the best of my ability to put up such a contest."

Scott was asked to explain how he considered himself world's champion with four knockouts against him and five victories on fouls credited to him.

As for the knockouts, Scott passed over them quickly by saying Paolino really fouled him and that he was disconcerted when Knute Hansen knocked him out in one round in his American debut at Madison Square Garden in 1927.

"I was new in the game when Hansen knocked me out," said Scott, "And I wasn't quite sure about the bell. There are two of them and they upset me. I can't even remember who the other two men were that knocked me out."

NORMAL SEXTET BEATS GOODING

GOODING, Jan. 28, (Special) The first game of the Albion sextette invasion on the Gooding college court resulted in a 28-27 victory for the Normalites Thursday night. With Heidner of Albion as high point player for the game, the Albion team stalled off a last minute rally to win by one field basket.

The second game of the evening showed the Mountain Home Legion team in action against the Gooding Bobcats. Monastero of the visitors scored a total of 12 points to lead his team to victory by a single basket 24-22.

The circus battles of Friday night showed the Gooding girls mixing with their traditional rivals of Albion again. At the half the team from the State Normal led 9-8.

With the opening of the second half the play became faster and in the last minute, Brewer scored a foul to tie the count 24 all, which it was when the whistle blew. Thompson of Gooding led the scoring with 13 points. Both pairs of guards did excellent work and the play at center was fast.

Lineup:

| Albion |  | Gooding College |

| Clifford | F | Brewer |
| Heidner | F | Thompson |
| Fine | C | Jones |
| Alexander | C | Anderson |

TWIN FALLS BOY AIDS IN VICTORY FOR TIGER TEAM

Elvin Kelly, Stellar Member of Branch Quintet, Helps Beat Montana Miner 34-21

Butte, Mont., Jan. 28, (UP) — On even terms throughout the first half the Southern Branch of the University of Idaho outplayed and outsmarted the Montana School of Mines in the second period Monday night to win by a score of 34 to 21.

Checked by the Mines guard combination of Matlock and Little, the Pocatello sharpshooters could not groove the basket in the first half. The period ended 13 to 12 in Idaho's favor.

The break in the game came at the beginning of the second half when the slippery Elvin Kelly, of Twin Falls, Idaho, Pocatello forward, netted three baskets in quick succession, giving his team a commanding lead. Barrett, the other Idaho forward, followed up this point advantage by lobbing in several long and difficult shots that brought the crowd to its feet cheering.

The game was closely contested; far more so than the score indicates. Victory came to the Idaho five when they finally solved the Matlock-Little guard combination. They finally discovered an effective attack by which they could slip behind these stellar guards and get short range shots at the basket.

There ladies and gentlemen, you have been introduced to the "wonder girls" of basketball, an aggregation of fair feminine tossers that will win the national tournament at Wichita, Kan., in March. Authority for that statement comes from every son and daughter of Arkansas.

A village of 900 farmers and lumbermen in the central part of the state is privileged to claim the girl wonders. From "backwoodsy" middies and bloomers of grammar school days they have jumped to the last word in "chic," abbreviated trunks and jerseys to national prominence through remarkable deeds on the basketball court.

Queen of the Sparklers who have set their heart on winning the national championship is Quinnie Hamm, 20-year-old forward and acknowledged leader of the group. Quinnie, by the way, has All-American rating as a forward while her sister, Irene, and Cossie Fife and Marjorie Leonard likewise have received that honor at guard, center and forward respectively.

Quinnie was introduced at the Wichita event last year as the "greatest girl basketball player of all time." Her performance entitled her to such recognition.

53 Goals In Game

In one contest that her team won by a score of 164 to 9, the "Queen" looped 53 goals and three additional foul tosses for a total of 109 points. On another occasion she snared 61 points in just two quarters, the largest score ever recorded by a single performer in national tournament competition. 16 field goals for 32 points, also went to Quinnie. A total of 1215 points in 29 games last year made her total a fraction under 43 points per game.

Though eight games this season she accounted for an average of 42 points a contest.

Dallas Their Jinx

Twice have the Sparklers entered national tournament competition but both times they fell victim to Dallas Tex., girls. They lost to the Dallas Cyclones 16 to 14, in the semi-finals of the 1928 event. Schepp's Aces of Dallas doused the Sparklers 27 to 24 last winter. And there, kind readers, are the only defeats in the lives of "Queen" and ladies of her court.

Aggressive but not to the extent of illegal tactics, the girls "simply adore" mixing it with opponents. Seldom however, is one expelled from the court on personal fouls.

J. R. North, general manager of a Sparkman lumber company, "discovered" the girls and launched them on the road to national prominence. Through his own activity in collegiate athletics, North readily recognized ability in the girls as they administered a decisive trimming to another girl's team on an outdoor court. He sought the coach, Maxie Brown, graduate of Henderson-Brown college, and suggested that the Sparklers be paraded against sterner competition.

That was the beginning of a remarkable record of achievements in the feminine cage world. Since then they have graduated from outdoor courts to a splendidly equipped athletic plant built by public subscription. So well patronized were their games, however, that construction costs have been refunded to subscribers, while additional funds have been available for long trips.

Visits abroad have proved "pleasingly educational" to the girls who, prior to 1926, never had been outside of Dallas county. Today they feel at ease in the country's most luxuriant hostelries and can tilt their well-powdered noses at the best of service.

BASEBALL TEAMS GATHER PLAYERS

NEW YORK, Jan. 28, (UP) Connie Mack's world champion Philadelphia Athletics are expected to start the 1930 season with last year's lineup intact, but the other leading major league pennant contenders have definite plans for strengthening their efforts, as the clubs prepare to move southward for spring training.

The Chicago Cubs have obtained Lester Bell and will try out a number of minor league pitchers. Unless Gabby Hartnett has recovered from the ailing arm which kept him out of action last season, the Cubs also will need another catcher.

The New York Yankees need pitching strength and must fill vacancies at third base and in left field. Ben Chapman and Dusty Cooke, St. Paul rookies, are slated for the berths.

Cleveland and Detroit hope to develop first class short stops. The Tigers also need pitching strength.

Pittsburgh is counting on Gus Suhr, costly San Francisco recruit first baseman, to complete the Pirate infield and expects Grantham to perform satisfactorily at second.

If Eddie Marshall or Andy Reese comes through at second base, and one of the recruits makes good in the outfield the New York Giants' weakest spots will be strengthened.

Harry Heilman and Bob Meusel are expected to give the Cincinnati Reds the needed hitting strength in their outfield.

At St. Louis Manager Gaby Street has secured Sparky Adams from Pittsburgh to complete his infield and believes the Cards need only pitching strength to make them a strong National league contender.

SHIKAT DEFENDS TITLE

NEW YORK, Jan. 28, (UP)—*Richard Shikat successfully de*fended his claim to the World's heavyweight wrestling title by throwing Jim McMillan, former Illinois football star, in one hour and 51 seconds at 71st Regiment *armory last night. ## Utah Man Fatally Hurt in Accident

Speaking Of Sport

CHICAGO, (UP)—Baseball talk and there's plenty of it in Chicago since Joe McCarthy took over the managerial reins of the Cubs centered on Donie Bush, the White Sox's new pilot today.

Those fans who have been going out to the south side for years hoping their favorites might get somewhere in the American league Pennant race have a hunch that Bush is the man who is going to take Charles Comiskey's hirelings and make a ball club out of them.

And there's justification for that optimism despite the fact Bush will have practically the same material to work with this year that Ray Schalk and Lena Blackburne attempted to mould into a ball club last season.

Donie will be boss on the south side. He informed the world of that when he came to Chicago a few days ago to talk things over with the White Sox officials. Bush minces no bones about running the club he manages. He showed that when he led the Pittsburgh Pirates to the National Pennant and then benched Hazen Cuyler, his star outfielder, while his charges dropped four straight to the Yankees in the world series. Donie received much criticism but the demands of the crowd meant little to him.

Donie has an idea the White Sox haven't played within a mile of their potentialities. He thinks he has a pitching staff good enough for a championship team. And when one considers Lyons, Thomas, Faber, McKain and Henry the hurling corps stacks up with the best of them. Then there's a young fellow, Vic Fraser, whom Bush thinks will be a "hell of a pitcher." Lyons and Thomas are as good as they come and Faber appears to have another season left in his aged arm. McKain looks like a real threat with added experience and if Fraser comes through Donie will have no worry on that score.

As for C. Arthur (The Great) Shires, Donie anticipates no trouble. Bush won a few fistic arguments himself in his day as a player, and if Shires attempts to treat the new leader as he did Blackburne he's going to bump against a man who used to argue with Ty Cobb, a fellow who never was considered a slouch at expressing his beliefs. Shires has announced that he will play his head off for the new boss and "show the fans how first basing should be done."

PALS OF MISSING AVIATORS

plans to give the trio planes and equipment after the other searchers give up, and let them hunt "where they choose and as long as they choose."

De Garmo is now a pilot with the Boeing Air Transport, but as soon as Graham was reported missing he asked for and obtained a leave of absence so that he could join the search.

Kelly, formerly an Olympic hurdling star, is the chief pilot on the Los Angeles-Salt Lake link of the Western Air Express, and has never had even a forced landing. In 1928 he established a record by flying 115,760 miles during the year.

Know Dangerous Country

It would be hard to find three pilots better qualified to conduct such a search. They know the country thoroughly; they know the weather hazards of a Rocky Mountain winter from long experience, and they are spurred to rience, and they are spurred, Graham is their best friend.

With 700 pounds of mail, Graham took off from Las Vegas airport on the night of Jan. 10 in a blinding blizzard and vanished into the unknown. Dozens of airplanes have flown out to hunt for him, scouring the desert wilderness and jagged mountain fastness between Las Vegas and Salt Lake City without finding any trace. A thorough ground hunt, carried on by hundreds of Union Pacific railroad employes, miners, ranchers, sheep herders, and prospectors, has supplemented the aerial search.

Carried Emergency Rations

Every report has been checked and rechecked. Every clew has been followed until it disappeared, but nothing of value has been found. It is believed that Graham crashed in the storm and that his plane burned leaving no traces that could be seen from the air. Some believe that his plane simply crashed and was hidden beneath the falling snow.

If he was not killed in the forced landing, it is feared that he met death trying to walk to civilization. There was one report that he was captured by Indians. The emergency rations he carried would have given out long before this. He also carried blankets and a small emergency stove.

But James, De Garmo and Kelly insist they will stick to it. They will take up the hunt where the others leave off, and they will not give up until they find Graham or his lifeless body.

Gun Stolen While People are Away.

Daily Poem

THE REAL NEW YEAR

By Martha Coleman Sherman

Some one made a great mistake placing New Year's day.
In the dead of winter when it should have come in May.
May, when the fruit trees burst in bloom, show'ring pink and white,
Like a glimpse of fairyland, blooming over-night.
May when early butterflies, small and blond and neat,
Flutter in the gaudy green of the early wheat;
When each hillside we have known silent, gaunt and bare
Is athrob with blooming flowers, growing everywhere.

AN EXCELLENT THING

A UNITED PRESS news story from Washington D. C., gives the information that George Washington university will launch a course next September which will teach, among other things, that Wilhelm II of Germany was guiltless of any desire to launch the World war.

"The entire version of the war, as taught by this course, will differ radically from that held by the average American at the present," the news story goes on to say.

In other words, the university will disregard the spirit behind the propaganda and of the propaganda against Germany of war days and of post war period and will substitute therefor authenticated historical facts. The propaganda and the facts are not only shockingly divergent, they are in the harshest sort of contradiction.

According to the terms of the peace treaty, Germany stands convicted of responsibility of starting the war. But historians have been working on the matter, and their verdict is that Russia and France are the two chief authors of the war with England guilty of blame in only a slightly less measure.

Germany was admittedly militant by reputation, and the world, or at least a great part of the world, has assumed that Germany wanted the war. Germany did indulge in a great amount of sabre rattling, but disclosures made in Senator Robert L. Owen's "The Russian Imperial Conspiracy" leave one dazed in the conviction that the sabre rattling by Germany was merely the whistling of a small boy in a neighborhood of strong spooks passing a cemetery at midnight in the dark of the moon.

Russia's foreign policy had been shaped for several decades prior to 1914 toward acquisition of the Dardanelles. France sought revenge and the return of her lost provinces. The two countries entered into a secret treaty in 1892 looking toward an offensive war against Germany to crush that country. In 1912 they secured a commitment from Sir Edward Gray that England would not stand in the way of their plans. The plans were carefully laid and the war, instead of suddenly breaking forth on an unsuspecting world, was the result of deliberate, considered, wilful planning.

If the United States fought Germany on some grounds that were well founded—and she did—her part in the conflict on the grounds that Germany was responsible for starting the war was based on a myth. Germany had to fight Russia and France or be crushed. She both fought and was crushed.

The Russian revolution and the consequent revelations when the old royal state archives were secured furnish material for a lot of reading which the average American has not yet done.

The George Washington university course is a good thing. One of the livest factors in the activities of the world today is the war, and the more light we can have on that war the more assured peace should be if the world can be trusted to learn.

SOME OF JEFFERSON'S RULES

MORE than 100 years ago Thomas Jefferson expressed a part of his philosophy of life in a letter to a namesake, Thomas Jefferson Smith. The great statesman and patriot enumerated 10 rules to epitomize his ideas on conduct.

We of this later age have discarded some of these rules, or if we have not discarded them then we honor them more in the breach than in the observance. A question as to whether we should spend our money before we get it, as many of us are in the habit of doing, is raised again by the statement of one of our country's founders. The list of 10 rules, as follows, makes interesting reading:

1. Never put off till tomorrow what you can do today.
2. Never trouble another for what you can do for yourself.
3. Never spend your money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap; it will be dear to you.
5. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst and cold.
6. We never repent of having eaten too little.
7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.
8. How much pain have cost us the evils which have never happened.
9. Take things always by their smooth handle.
10. When angry count ten before you speak; if very angry, an hundred.

OUR POLITICAL GROUPINGS

THE editor of Collier's Magazine sat down the other day to find out how many political parties we really have in the United States today. He made out a list something like this:

Progressive Republicans, the Southern Democrats, the Al Smith Democrats, the Western Progressive Democrats, the Democratic-Progressive-Republican Coalition Party—

And then he quit in despair.

Probably you can think of three or four more classifications; and the matter is complicated by the fact that some people belong to two or three of these groupings at once.

The whole situation emphasizes anew our need for a new political alignment. If the present chaotic situation in the Senate helps to bring such a thing about we shall all be better off.

One thing at least sub-zero temperatures such as we recently experienced prove—that frozen legs are more numerous in the silk stocking age than in grandmother's day when the girls wore long woolens and heavier stockings. But don't construe this as a reflection on silk stockings!

FATHER, INC.

Baltimore Sun

If father were a public utility, he would go to his employer and say, "Look here; $35 a week is not enough and I must have $40." His employer would say he couldn't give Father $40 a week and if he does not like it he knows what he can do.

Then father would go to the public service commission and say he needs $40 a week to make ends meet. The public service commission would say, "Now Mr. Brown, what is your capital investment?" And Father would say well, there is the house he paid $8000 for, and his wife is worth approximately $10,000 to him, and he values four children at $5000 each. The children are not productive yet but they may be some day. Then he has the old second-hand car that has seen a good deal of use but it's a good make and its replacement value is $2000.

In addition to that he owns a dozen bath towels and two dozen hand towels and six pairs of sox, blankets and a dozen pillow cases and odds and ends of furniture and the lawn mower and the garden hose and a few rakes and picks and shovels and spades and a refrigerator and a raspberry patch and some grape vines, and shades at the windows that do not roll when you pull them. And though none of them is worth very much he figures the replacement value would be at least $2000. And then, of course, he should at a value on himself, and if his wife is worth $10,000, he would estimate his own value at about $7500. So all in all he would value his physical properties at $45,000 in round numbers.

Then the commission would rule on the matter and its ruling would go to the court of appeals, and its ruling would go to the supreme court and the supreme court would say that Father is entitled to a return of 7.11 per cent on his valuation of $45,000 which is $3318 a year, or $64 a week and anything less than that is confiscatory.

Then Father would say he does not wish to be piggish about it and that $40 a week will do and later when the children have grown up and his wife has stopped asking for things, perhaps he will work for much less than that.

By refraining from over-indulgence, if you would maintain the modern figure of fashion

Avoid the snags along the common-sense path to fitness and fashion. Don't let over-indulgence deprive you of the tantalizing contour of the modern figure. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. Eat healthfully but not immoderately—when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence, if you would maintain the graceful, modern figure with its captivating curves.

Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

AUDIT CONTRACT ALLOWED BY CITY

Acting Mayor L. A. Chapin and City Clerk O. M. Hall were Monday night authorized by the city commissioners [illegible] confer with the city attorney [illegible] prepare a contract letting [illegible] audit to H. C. Edmunds of Twin Falls on his low bid of $1250. Other bidders were Edwin A. Wilson at $1950 and J. C. Osgood at $2195.

There are to be three angles to the audit, the first to be an audit of all delinquent taxes on the county books regarding local improvement district No. 24 of the city of Twin Falls, including all tax collections and apportionments made and a list and description of the delinquent property affected by the district. This is being done in view of a shortage on hand to pay the bonds due on this district on July 1, 1930. The audit is to cover the period between the year 1930 and January 1, 1930 for the district. It was the commissioner's belief that the information as to delinquent taxes for these improvements should be available for the bond holders should the city fall short in payment.

The second angle of the audit will be a check of all amounts of fee appropriations together with a list and description of delinquent properties on city local improvement districts 35 and 37 from July 31, 1925 until January 1, 1930.

The third angle will be a city general tax audit from July 31, 1925 until January 1, 1930, including all general city taxes and the city's highway apportionment.

Mr. Edmund's bid was made on a per diem rate of $20 per day for a senior accountant and $10 per day for the work of a junior accountant, with the maximum charges to be $750 for the first section, $200 for the second and $300 for the third, all auditing to be done at the same time for expediency. It was agreed that the audit, at least the first two sections, should be completed by June 1, 1930.

WILLIAM HAINES WELL FED IN "NAVY BLUES"

A screen star may have to work hard but at least they feed him fried chicken once in a while. William Haines consumed six orders of fried chicken while filming the Y. W. C. A. entertainment scene in "Navy Blues" his first all-talking vehicle—now being shown at the Idaho theatre.

In the new picture which Clarence Brown directed for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Haines had to eat his own plate of chicken and Anita Page's too. There is dialogue in between; there were many rehearsals, poor Haines by the time the scene was finally completed, had eaten so much fried chicken he could hardly walk.

The Y. M. C. A. scene in which the entire crew of one of Uncle Sam's dreadnaughts are entertained while on shore leave, is only one of the many humorous scenes in the navy picture which depicts the life of the gob on deck, in the fo'castle, and in a number of other musical spots.

Miss Page as the heroine of Haines' exploits and Karl Dane as his buddy, contribute no little to the film's many laughs. Others in the cast are Edythe Chapman, J. C. Nugent and Wade Boteler.

Three Cheers for Triumphal Return of Navy Blue

By Frances Paget

Copyright, 1930, by Style Sources.

NEW YORK, Jan. 27. (UP).—Navy blue is again smart. Paris has been sponsoring it for winter, a most unusual procedure for the formal season. Off-shades of navy are quoted; sometimes it is the darker tone, midnight, oftener it is the bright navy, which show a slightly gayer effect than true navy.

Navy is to spring what black is to the winter season. It is a standby color. It may be extremely smart and extremely popular at the same time. It is practical, but in its choice of fabric and combinations it may be charming as well, and it has always the appearance of being in good taste.

It is not marked as are the novelty colors which stand out ostentatiously in the crowd. It qualifies for the separate coat as well as the street suit, it combines effectively with all the clear frank colors as well as the pastels which may be styled to have utmost distinction, for the street ensemble, the afternoon frock and its prestige is exalted this season by its personal success for evening wear.

Navy blue is eligible for strong spring promotion. It will share a fair proportion of the attention directed to suits, that by clever selection and distinction of types it may spread its success from popular, though moderate priced to exclusive merchandise. But there are many shades, designated as navy and for the sake of the spring harmonies millinery, costumes and accessories should agree on the promotion of the same tones.

Art Adventurer

AMERICA needs less civilization and more of the simplicity of barbarians," declare Eric Berry, painter and writer of the black pagans of the west coast of Africa. Back from her third trip into the land of cannibals, she says: "The automobile hazard when crossing American streets is more dangerous than the barbarous cannibals. Because the cannibal needs provocation before killing you. American autos do not.

COME INTO THE KITCHEN

Toaster and Grill

Lives there a man who can resist the lure of the cozy nook—a table set with colorful linen and—say little flowery breakfast dishes, pussy willows and jonquils in a little brown bowl and waffles!

The diet of a Digger Indian will in time make one a Digger Indian—yes?—no? Hence we offer you three breakfasts—over the wire!

Breakfast via Toaster—This type is pretty well standardized, by necessity. It revolves around fruit, coffee and toast, with possibly a ready-cooked cereal, and varies mainly with the choice of bread; raisin bread and nut breads toasted, provide additional nutriment, and it's surprising how good yesterday's muffins or biscuits are when split, browned and spread with a bit of butter and cheese.

The Grill Breakfast—Grills or tablestoves are such handy things—not only for breakfast but also for lunch, quick meals and late suppers. Creamed dishes are especially adaptable.

This versatile creature cooks three things at once—what more could one wish? For instance—

1. Broiled bacon, toast, fried eggs.
2. Hot cakes, sausages, toast.
3. Steamed eggs, fried potatoes, oatmeal bread toast.
4. Creamed beef or poached eggs on toast, left-over buttered asparagus.
5. Fried mush, (beware the calories if you've too much anatomical upholstery already.) broiled fish, toast.

Is there any limit? —Gracious no—only your imagination! Oh yes—don't forget omelets. They do work out so well on these little stoves.

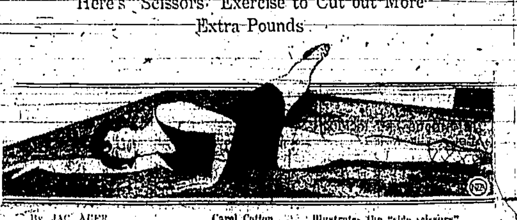
Here's "Scissors" Exercise to Cut out More Extra Pounds



Carol Cotton . . . illustrates the "side scissors"

By JAC AUER

Written for NEA Service

One of the first steps in rounding the 1930 curves consists in reducing the hips and thighs until they are of the desired proportions.

New standards of beauty in feminine figures call for curved contours it is true, but they should be only slightly curved. The hip line should avoid excessive fullness, the thigh, heaviness. Moreover, the body should have a lilt to it that can come only from suppleness.

There are several exercises that take off the flesh and limber up the body until it is thoroughly supple. All of these hip and thigh reducing exercises that really are efficacious are done on the floor. The best exercise to start with is called the side-scissors. It should be done as follows:

1. Stretch out on the floor on your right side, with your right arm extended as far above your head as it can reach, in a straight line.

2. Stretch your legs out straight together, also in a straight line with your body.

3. Raise both legs an inch or two from the floor with a quick swing, thrust the right leg back and the left leg forward as far as you can stretch both of them. Bring them together and repeat.

4. Turn onto your left side, stretch out your left arm and begin the exercise again, always swinging the under leg backward and the top leg forward.

Begin this exercise with three "scissors strokes" on each side. Increase the number to five the second day, and by the third, take 10 strokes on each side.

No benefit accrues from overdoing exercises. Women are apt to rush into exercises enthusiastically, overdo them for a day or two become lame, and stop altogether. The best method of procedure and the surest is to start slowly and increase the number of exercises gradually. And you must make up your mind that it will take a week or so before your body get used to stretching and exercising. If you continue faithfully each morning for a month or six weeks, you will find yourself thoroughly enjoying the stretching and bending and swinging. And you will find, too, that your body misses it all if you should stop!

FEWER CASES OF MEASLES FOUND

The epidemic of measles in Twin Falls county is now on the decrease, it was stated today by Dr. George Halley, director of the county health unit. There still remains about 50 cases in the county, but it is believed the spread has been checked and the situation improved. With one exception the cases of measles have left no ill effects. The exception was that of the McClain boy who died of pneumonia following measles.

Two cases of diphtheria were found and carriers of the disease located and treated, stated Dr. Halley. There has also been a decided decrease in the spread of scarlet fever, there now being but two cases in the county where there were five cases. There is one case of typhoid, and samples of the water supply have been taken and sent to Boise for testing.

Jury System Will Be Debate Subject

Debaters of Idaho will this year discourse upon the resolution, "Resolved: That the system of trial by jury should be abolished; constitutionally waived," it was stated today by John Estes, debate coach of the Twin Falls high school, who has just received a communication from the state association. The students competitive in extemporaneous subjects have ten subjects from which they will be required to deliver addresses. They are: My Idaho; enforcement of prohibition; influence of radio on American life; the place of physical education in modern life; saving and investing money; choosing a career; promotion of international amity; economical employment of our time; student participation in school government; criteria of good citizenship.

Among the things barred for use this year in dramatic work are: Humorous, China Blue Eye; dramatic, Finger of God; oratorical; the Union Soldier; one act play, Comedy.

Choosing a Friend for 1930

FOLKS use words carelessly sometimes. They speak of "friends" when they may mean mere "acquaintances", or neighbors who nod carelessly as they pass one's porch.

A friend is something finer than that—something better than just some nice person you know.

The longer you have read The Idaho Evening Times, the more you realize that here you have a big, wholesome FRIEND. A real friend, for every day and every mood!

If you have been getting your paper next day through the mail, arrange for home delivery on the day the news happens. ¶Choose the Idaho Evening Times as your friend for 1930. Read it carefully and completely every day. Keep informed and in step with the times. ¶Then you will learn to face the world with a new confidence and a clear understanding of the strange events of these parlous days.

No individual—not even our twenty richest men—could afford to buy such service for themselves exclusively as the readers of The Idaho Evening Times get each day for less than 2½ cents.

By means of trained correspondents everywhere, and with the marvelous facilities of the telegraph, cable and telephone, The Idaho Evening Times receives the news of the activities of the district and the whole round globe each day.

Competent editors present this information in attractive, easily understood form. ¶The fact that thousands of people co-operate in getting this service—you and the thousands of other Times subscribers—gives two cents a purchasing power which would have been considered incredible a hundred years ago.

The thinking, active, progressive, upstanding citizens of Twin Falls know that The Idaho Evening Times is their friend; that The Times is committed to the welfare and progress and betterment of this thriving community.

WHEAT BREAKS TO A NEW LOW

CHICAGO, Jan. 27, (UP)—Wheat broke to a new low for the present movement on the board of trade today due to heavy selling for both long and short accounts induced by discouraging export trade and weak foreign cables. Winnipeg was weaker than Chicago and this tended to restrict buying here. May was selling at $1.25 and under.

At the close wheat was 1¼ to 1½c lower, corn was ¼ to ⅝ off, and oats was down ⅝ to ¾c. Provisions were firm.

"GENERAL CRACK"

The Warner Bros. & Vitaphone production starring John Barrymore, is based on this novel

SYNOPSIS

Princess Eleanora, first engaged to King Leopold, Elector of Bavaria, has become the wife of General Crack, soldier of fortune. She is the price Leopold has paid, for reasons of state, so that General Crack will fight on his side. The Duchess of Schonbuchel persuades General Crack to give Eleanora time to like him. He leaves for the campaign, entrusting Eleanora to the Duchess. Gabor, implacable enemy of Crack, forges a letter, by Eleanora to Leopold, protesting love, and presents it as genuine.

"Your Majesty's mind can tell you what I mean. Reflect on my words, sire, and you will see the very heart of my meaning. Prince Christian keeps the maiden for the end of the campaign. The maiden, Sire, waits for—" and he paused, smiling at Leopold; the word "you" had been formed upon his lips. "She is as she was when she left her father's house. Her dreams of love, Sire, are undisturbed.

"That was a subtle move on Prince Christian's part—his way of love, Sire. And there she stays in Ottenheim, her Paradise serene. Love waits for the lucky man, Sire."

"Is this possible?" breathed Leopold. "And how do you know?"

"It is very possible, Sire, to the fantastic-minded. Prince Christian cared enough to wait, seeing perhaps that she was occupied with thoughts of another man."

She dreamed of seeing Leopold again.

"But he," cried Leopold, "could not have known this, even if it were true."

Again Gabor shrugged, spreading out his hands.

"It is not for me to say. I come not into this at all, save as a passing confidant of the distracted maiden. She has confided in me, Sire—" He glanced towards the envelope. "She has trusted in you. I have no further part, save in so far as you should care to command me."

"I command nothing but your secrecy," said Leopold, scarcely knowing what he said. "I know not at the moment what to say or do—leave me; I have no longer any time—"

"Nor any answer for the Princess Eleanor, Sire?" smiled Gabor. "The lady is in deep distress and confusion."

"But these matters that you speak of—that she is still . . ." Leopold paused and altered his sentence, which, in his agitation, he scarce knew how to phrase "—that she is only by her name his wife? How is this known to you?"

"It is known, Sire, to every one in Ottenheim."

"Go now," he said, "and before we leave Berlin I will send my answer; if not by you, by another."

"Best by me, Sire," remarked Gabor, calmly, "since this is scarce a business into which to bring too many meddlers. Tongues move quickly, Sire, in such an affair. It were well," he added, boldly, "not to offend Prince Christian before the issue of the campaign is decided."

"Why should I in any way offend Prince Christian?" said Leopold, nervously and wildly.

"Sire, if I may dare to say, I think perhaps if you wrote to the Princess Eleanora or she wrote to you it would most deeply, and even mortally, offend Prince Christian."

Leopold had not thought of this, and the words brought him up sharply as the sudden sight of an abyss might bring a man up who had been stumbling through fog. All his hopes, all his destiny, lay in the hands of Christian—the husband of Eleanora.

"Give me the letter," he muttered, hoarsely, "and presently I will let you know my resolve."

"How then shall I find Your Majesty? It is not so easy for me, once we have left the city, to come into your Imperial presence. Hepsdorff can see no reason why I should be closeted with you, Sire; and as for Prince Christian, I am in his deep displeasure."

"I will contrive it," said Leopold, eagerly; "somehow I will contrive it. Leave that to me—and now begone! Neither," he added, with deep distaste, "neither your service nor your reward shall be forgotten, Prince Gabor."

The Transylvanian bowed, and gracefully stepping backwards, left the Royal presence.

Leopold immediately tore open the letter.

She wrote: "Sire, Monseigneur—I am left here, bewildered and alone. They say that I am wed to Christian of Kurland, and some ceremony there was. Yet I am free at heart as when we met in the beechwoods of Dursheim. Why did you go away? Will you come back some day and tell me what all this means? I am lonely, and often frightened. He whom they call my husband is a stranger to me; they talk of his return. Often he writes, and I cannot answer. Yet because of many dreams, I write this to you. Help me or comfort me! Your broken-hearted Eleanora."

Leopold was utterly deceived. So she might write—the romantic, lonely girl, shut away in Ottenheim. What had Gabor said? His pulses beat quickly. "The maiden waits."

He need not think of her as Christian's wife. That pure, sweet and delicate creature, shut up with all the mercenary's plunder and all his gaudy and vulgar wealth in Ottenheim! No, she was still Eleanora of Anhalt-Dessau, and that Lutheran marriage was as nothing. He thought of Eleanora, and of how he could answer her letter.

XI

THE Duchess of Schonbuchel moped in Ottenheim. Usually at this time of the year, she was in Vienna, where she found a great deal of enjoyment and amusement. Apart from her promise to Christian, which she regarded quite seriously, her affection for Eleanora held her there, as guardian and companion of a girl so dangerously ignorant and so dangerously highly placed.

The Duchess got what consolation she could out of Colonel Pons, but he, also, was dreary, and mostly in an ill humour; he found his post one of those vexatious and galling honours which irritate more than they glorify.

Pons had received this mandate gloomily.

Christian wrote regularly enough, but he had little to say of public events.

The tale of Guastalla's and Olivenza's defeat dribbled through and the Duchess was deeply vexed by the last of those disasters.

Colonel Pons assured her, with melancholy dryness, that they were perfectly safe at Ottenheim.

The Duchess was not so sure.

But Eleanora was happy at Ottenheim. Her lessons had ceased, the masters were gone, the girl was suddenly independent, deferred to, respected and admired; the very atmosphere was full of adulation. The surroundings were to her like the surroundings of enchantment in some of the fairy tales which she so enjoyed reading. After the commonplace home which she had been used to, both in Anhalt-Dessau and at Dursheim, this had a touch of delicious unreality.

She found Colonel Pons far kinder than her father had ever been.

She might read what books she liked; she might walk abroad when she liked; there was a little chariot that took her down the shining road, to the river; there was a white horse she could ride in the park; Eleanora did not find the days long.

Christian did not write to her, but the Duchess always showed her his letters, wherein he wrote of gifts he had bought for her—a Mechelin flounce in Berlin; a pair of Sevres vases; a great fan of ashy grey herons' plumes, mounted in silver; these things he had bought for her, and they were coming when the roads were clear. There were dresses, and jewelry too, to arrive from Vienna and Paris. Christian knew where to buy such clothes as would best befit Eleanora.

Eleanora very much wished to go to Vienna. She had never seen any town bigger than Dessau. This was the excuse she gave herself, the longing to see the capital; but she wished to see Leopold again, wished to see him crowned and robed—Caesar indeed!

"Shall I go to the coronation of the Emperor?" she asked, courageously.

And the Duchess said: "Yes, indeed, of course you will go—as Princess Christian of Kurland, with a coronet on your head, and an ermine gown, with a purple velvet train."

"And then shall we go to Kurland?" asked Eleanora, wonderingly. The whole of her future life seemed bitterly strange and alien. Kurland was to her only a name on the map, far away, and most surely

Prohibition Warfare Proves Sensational As Factions Clash Over Enforcement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 28, (UP)—The prohibition controversy was revived Monday and spread over a wide front.

The white house, the senate and Attorney General Mitchell figured in the new developments, while democrats entered the controversy with charges of political machinations in prohibition enforcement personnel.

As Senator Burton K. Wheeler, democrat, Montana, was asserting in the senate that the prohibition issue is being made a political football, W. C. Deming, civil service commissioner, was protesting to the house expenditures committee that the pending Williamson bill would lessen the influence of civil service on appointment of the prohibition personnel.

Attorney General Mitchell preceded Deming on the stand, taking the position that more laxity should be allowed in the selection of attorneys when prohibition enforcement is transfered to his justice department from the treasury under the pending Williamson bill. He contended civil service restrictions hampered appointments and argued that selections of attorneys could best be made without regard to the rigid rules of the service.

These developments followed a charge from Jouett Shouse of the democratic national committee that a card index system promulgated by the white house to obtain date concerning government employees, was "part of the spoils system."

A denial was promptly made by one of President Hoover's secretaries, Walter Newton, who asserted the index was a routine census, which long had been in use at the white house. He contended Shouse was animated in his charge by political motives.

Wheeler brought the issue before the senate in connection with the transfer of John F. C. Herbert, former prohibition administrator at Baltimore, to the same post in the Montana-Idaho district. He demanded an investigation of the transfer and publication of the justice department report concerning Herbert's activities in Baltimore.

Senator Borah of Idaho, unofficial dry leader who is planning a fight to revise the existing enforcement, declared he had seen the report and that if it were true Herbert "ought to be transferred out of the country."

WHEN REASON TOTTERS

Arnold Bennett remarked recently that a man takes more care in choosing a car than in choosing a wife.

Why is it when I buy a car,
Careful inquiry I must make,
How many cylinders there are
And if it's got a four-wheel brake,
And if the bearings are indeed
Quite strong enough for constant use,
How many miles I can proceed
Per gallon of the vital juice?
And yet, when I select a wife
None of these things do I require,
Although I'm taking her for life
And each of us may quickly tire;
Why do I rush to make her mine?
The reason is not far to seek—
Cars are of standardized design,
While every woman is unique.

Physiology Teacher: "Johnny, can you give a familiar example of the human body as it adapts itself to changed conditions?"

There are at least four mistakes in the above picture. They may pertain to grammar, history, etiquette, drawing or whatnot. See if you can find them. Then look at the scrambled word below—and unscramble it, by switching the letters around. Grade yourself 20 for each of the mistakes you find, and 20 for the word if you unscramble it. ## Attempt to Rescue Friend Rewarded

BURLEY, Jan. 28.—(Special)—Official notice was received last Friday of the award by the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission, of a medal for heroism to Junan H. Moore, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Moore of Burley. On August 10th, 1925, the then 17-year old boy made a valiant attempt to rescue J. Arnold Worthington from death by burning, when Mr. Worthington's clothing caught fire while engaged in weed extermination in this county. Young Mr. Moore was near at hand when the accident occurred, and rushed to the rescue and made a desperate attempt to save the life of his friend, and himself received severe burns, from which he later recovered. Police Judge Arthur C. Dunn, hearing of the brave attempts of the boy, felt constrained to call the matter to the attention of the Carnegie Foundation, with the above mentioned results.

The award carries with it, besides the medal, a cash award of $1500.00, conditioned only that young Mr. Moore use the same in educational work, and this must be taken advantage of within five years from the date of the award.

Mr. Moore graduated in the Burley high school in 1927, and will graduate in the Albion Normal school this spring. It is not definitely known just what course he will pursue, but it is believed that he will avail himself of the award by furthering attendance at some college to be later selected.

The community is proud of such youthful heroism.
