FAITH,

— By John Banister Tabb
In every need to breathe the flower
In every drop of dew
To reverence a blistered star
Within the distant star
To wait the promise of the bow,
Despite the shodded balaclava,
Is Faith—the rigid evidence
Of loneliness beneath.

A SUGGESTION.

A SPEAKER before a local club the other day had a suggestion of a way for making possible the construction of a joint memorial and armory building in Twin Falls.

His suggestion was: Raise the sum of $10,000 by sale of 100 bonds of the denomination of $100 each. The sale should be made to local people, the ones who will benefit by erection of the structure. Make the interest yield of the bonds three per cent and pay interest and principal on an amortized plan over a period of 18 years.

Use of this plan, according to the speaker, will make possible an improvement that has long been desired by the American Legion and will also accomodate the needs of the local national guard unit without costing any individual money.

The suggestion is one of several put forward in connection with the movement looking toward the securing of a new home for the local guard unit since the state adjutant informed local guard officers that Twin Falls can no longer defray providing satisfactory quarters for the unit. Legal people should be thinking of this problem. The Evening Times is interested in seeing something done to save the unit to this community. What plan, or its authorship, is not important.

We do need to do something, and there is no time to lose.

KEEP MOTHER WELL

TO BE AN acceptable and creditable home maker is quite a large task, as most of us usually admit and take for granted.

If mother and the children decide to forsake the old homeestead on a visit and take father to the company of his own reflections, one of the firmest conclusions he is apt to reach is that it takes more than a house and some furniture to make a home. He is quite likely to reach the conclusion long before the return of the family.

It another way fathers may be unintentionally disciplined for the good of their souls and taught the path of humbleness. Just let mother become bedfast through illness and father will have time to do quite a lot of thinking, provided he can think and try to keep ahead of the multitude of chores that cry loudly for his hounding attention. He will be able to revise his estimate of himself as a utility man downward—if mother has the misfortune to be ill when naps—or sneezes or whooping cough have the children bedfast.

It's some job, this job of being a mother! It's odd how one may be enlightened by a new appreciation of this truth by having mother go on strike through illness.

The county health unit workers are going day and night now, all over the county. They are certainly busy, and no mistake about it. Maybe they get some destructive criticism at times—most public workers do. The Evening Times has a constructive suggestion to make to the unit which should be stressed by the unit workers even when they are working day and night.

The suggestion is that they do all in their power to keep mothers well. We may be hard luck for father to become ill, particularly if he is inclined to be grouchily at such a time, but for mother to become ill—that is a serious matter.

WHEN THE ROAD IS ICY.

IDY roads put an extra responsibility on the shoulders of every motorist, and nowhere is this responsibility heavier than in the neighborhood of railroad crossings.

In Ohio recently a motorist approached a grade crossing very carefully. An automatic signal was heralding the approach of a train, the driver put on his brakes. But there was a slight incline leading down the hill to the tracks, and the road was very icy. His car slid down the hill and went on the track just in time to get his by an express train—and the motorist, for all that he had been driving carefully, lost his life.

Ordinary care isn't enough when the roads are paved with ice.

Feet—when you come to a grade crossing, The driver's vigilance circumstances to be tripped under such circumstances

Adventurers get into some tight situations at times, and Wash Tubbs is no exception, but all of us can forget our anxiety over the fate of the midget since Easy solved the mystery of who shot the duke. We really hope Wash takes things a bit easier now for a time because he is a likable chap, and there is a limit to what he should be called on to endure.

It looks now as if there will be a lot of votes cast at the school election, Friday, February 7, when taxpayers decide about the proposed $20,000 bond issue.

It isn't a question of whether you will vote for the school bond issue, but of how many additional supporters for the measure you will enlisted for the measure you will enlist.

REALTY BOARD ENDORSEMENT

The Idaho Falls Times-Register

The Idaho Falls Realty board rushed into print with an endorsement of the sixteenth in its place, stately and watery, listing dollars for the spending up of the state highway program.

The endorsement on the part of the Realty Board is made before an opportunity has been had by the people of the state to make up their minds as to whether the plan proposed by the highway department is the right plan.

The board expresses a strong view of the fact that the proposed plan is to be phased after the people of the state for study, and the answer to be made in the form of an official referendum.

Much stock is made of the Realty board's "endorsement" with the statement that the endorsement comes from the "heart and center of the opposition." By that statement it is meant that eastern Idaho is opposed to the enlarged program as a whole, is not true.

Representatives from sections of eastern Idaho in an open discussion asked leading questions at the Peacob meeting of the state chamber when the matter was thrown open for discussion, telephoned questions have been raised upon as opposition and selfishness.

The question had to do with these facts: The proposal as outlined omits in a large measure certain eastern and southern Idaho counties from participating in the benefits which would be derived from the proposed enlarged program on the basis that the counties in question already have their highway built, which brought about the reply that it was true, but those counties built the highways with their own finances and means without state aid and to all appearances those counties are to be penalized for having done so.

The question was also asked, "What is the position of the highway department?" The statement is made that there is no provision in the bill fund for that part. Eastern Idaho made the statement that agriculture being the prime economic factor of the state, it is entitled to more consideration than that being given. Premiums, political and otherwise, have been held out that the new program for highway construction would include the market roads. So far as can be understood that program is not taken care of in the proposed big deal.

Other questions of equal import were asked and were not answered.

Eastern Idaho is not opposed to the general program, nor any program for the general benefit of the state, but eastern Idaho, so far as is possible to do so, will insist upon an equitable and fair apportionment and distribution of the $3 billion dollar fund.

Eastern Idaho has been, and will continue to be, a large contributing factor to the funds which will make the big program possible, and naturally and fairly asks consideration of its claims.

an opportunity to consider the details and before the people generally have had an opportunity to discuss the matter, is not good judgment and in its haste to get on the band wagon the Realty board has gone beyond either its provinance or its jurisdiction.

The WOMAN'S DAY

In the winter after a place had been sold, occurs an option on her for several years hence when she will "make enough to leave home." This is often paid for by the fact that they are ten years old, usually, though they are not claimed until 16 or 17 summers have passed over their heads.

"Just when we think that all the hard payment may be, and have reached a conclusion, and are prepared to go home, suddenly it is, four head of cattle. And as soon as the child is old enough to be useful around the house, we'll be sent back again."

For instance, in California, the Indians have agreed to give us at least a part of the land on which they have made two generations.

The Indians, however, are another, probably for the Indians, obligation, ten cows in addition. Then the father turns back.

When the father turns back,

the payment is not paid off,

but the Indians have paid off, the cost of the cattle he has taken from the estate he has been left.

In fact, a man may indeed have a right to do this.

Zulu, Young Man?

According to Barbara Harris, who went to Africa to study wild life and collect skins of rare animals,

she has seen many blood

Missionary Retreat Scores Big Success

The outstanding success of the missionary retreat under the direction of the Central association of the Idaho Baptist Missionary Society was a satisfaction to the Twin Falls women who presented the program. It was a pleasure to the downtown girls from Idaho Falls, Jerome, Knoll, Rupert and Shoshone. More than 100 women participated in the affair. Women from all over the state and afternoon programs were carried out as had been announced. The luncheon served at noon, on which were invited the members of the local church, was a great success. The annual camp conference being conducted under the direction of Dr. W. A. Shanks, Dease, executive secretary of the Baptist convention of Idaho, was a popular feature of the meet.

A patriotic motif prevailed in the luncheon table decorations. The luncheon was served at the home of the minister, Rev. J. H. Johnson, who was master of ceremonies. Dr. Shanks of Boise pronounced the invocation, Rev. Wakem conducted a community singing, and Dr. Shanks' wife presented an offering. The afternoon's program of the missionary retreat was presented immediately following the luncheon. An inspiring address was delivered by Rev. W. G. Glouck, of Idaho Falls, and there next year. The invitation extended under the direction of Dr. Shanks gave a "taste" in George Washington, and Rev. Ace, a man of Kentucky, whose home was the home of Rev. Shanks, an ex-in the library.

The Idaho Evening Times cordially invites your contribution of social and club items to this department, either by telephoning its helpline 11-1111, or mailing them to the editor, the Social Editor, care of the Idaho Evening Times. It will be appreciated if announcements are telephoned to this office before 11 a.m. of the day they are to appear in these columns.

GATES RESIDENCE IN SCENE OF RETREAT

Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Gates entertained at their home on State Avenue on Saturday evening an attractive group of friends. Guests went to Mr. D. C. Davis and Oscar Walker. Arranged down through the center of the table, a serpentine service, specially appointed in shades of red, white and blue, was at the conclusion of the meal an attractive trim miniature game. The guests included Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Hartman, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Arnart, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Ham, crystal candleholder holding lighted red candle. At either end of the table, white flannel containers held fresh-cut flowers. The arrangement of flowers was completed the decorative scheme. Mr. J. H. Johnson of Twin Falls completed the decorative scheme. The afternoon's program of the Idaho Falls.
