ANTI-STRIKE BILL WILL BE INTRODUCED

Cummins Anti-Strike Bill Would Penalize Labor or Employer for Bringing on Strike; Favors Living Wage and Consolidation of Railroads Under Certain Conditions.

(BY LAURENCE MARTIN.)

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—An anti-strike bill will be introduced by Senator Cummins, Iowa, early in the extra session of congress, which meets Monday.

This will be the keystone measure in a program of industrial legislation which Cummins, as chairman of the senate interstate commerce committee will propose.

He will try to get President Harding to urge enactment of this program either in his message to the extra session, or to the regular December session.

Cummins will confer with Harding today or tomorrow.

Republican legislators were amazed to hear of Cummins' determination to press for anti-strike legislation as a means of preventing future railroad strikes.

Most of them regard the present as the poorest time in recent years to suggest such a thing and there is little likelihood that Cummins' bill will receive serious consideration for a long time.

Cummins' program, which will apply primarily to the railroads will embrace the following measures.

1—An anti-strike bill, which would penalize either employer or employee who brought about a strike interfering with interstate transportation.

2—An amendment to the transportation law inserting a declaration in favor of a living wage for railroad employes.

3—Amendments to strengthen the power of the railroad labor board.

4—A bill for compulsory consolidation of railroads under certain conditions.

The program is not new. Cummins had it worked out last session but found no chance to press it.

The soldiers were searching among ruins for victims of last Saturday's terrific quakes when the new shock occurred. The falling walls of buildings covered the men, but most escaped without serious injury.

Soldiers are patrolling the various villages and towns that were caught last week's horror to prevent pillage.

Contributions for quake sufferers are being received at government headquarters from all parts of the country.

MORE THAN ONE HUNDRED ARRESTED DURING RAIL STRIKE

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—More than 100 persons were arrested during the rail shopmen's strike for violation of injunction granted by Judge James H. Wilkerson on petition of Attorney General Daugherty, according to figures furnished the United Press by federal officials today.

Most of the cases coming under the Wilkerson writ were in the Chicago district, a total of 107 were arrested in this district, in 64 cases of alleged violation of the court order.

Fifteen of those arrested were Clinton, Ill., shop workers, who were accused of having attempted to drive strike-breakers out of the town. They were allegedly found to have visited merchants, trying to induce them not to sell merchandise to strike-breakers.

Twenty-one were taken at Aurora on charges of picketing, throwing stones and others violating the writ. Most of the others were individual cases of men accused of violence against strike-breakers.

All of the 107 have been given a hearing. Approximately 75 were sentenced to serve from 20 days to six months. The remainder were placed under $500 bond or paroled in the custody of various officials.

Three were arrested in Oregon under injunctions issued by local courts and about 40 in Wisconsin.

Tillie Klimek Accused of Buying Coffin for Husband Before Death

CHICAGO, Nov. 15—A death in the family of Mrs. Tillie Klimek of Mrs. Nellie Sturner, alleged perpetrator of a dozen poisonings, was a gala occasion, neighbors told police authorities. They accused Mrs. Klimek's relatives to collect insurance. Prosecutor Wm. McLaughlin gathered evidence that within one hour of Mrs. Klimek's husands was ill, she sat beside his bed sewing on a mourning garb and assuring the patient he would not live.

"I found that Mrs. Klimek bought a coffin for $30 as it was a 'bargain' while her husband was still alive," McLaughlin stated. "After his death she played dance music on the phonograph in the room where the body lay."

The women will appear for preliminary hearing on November 22. The evidence will be presented to the grand jury Friday.

Former Premier Lloyd George was returned unopposed.

Justice Slain in Mexico; Unbalanced

EL PASO, Nov. 15—Revenge was the motive for the slaying of B. B. Cummings, former justice of peace at Lockland, Ohio, whose body was found in the hills behind Juarez, Mexico, late yesterday, authorities here believed today. Although Justice of Peace Cummings had been dismissed from heart failure local officers are working on the theory that the former justice of peace met with some foul play from his court while in Juarez and was attacked.

Cummings watch and money were undisturbed. Authorities believe he wandered into Juarez while out of his mind.

ALEXANDER IS FURTHER AHEAD ON LAST COUNT

Official Figures Show Plurality of 69; Stewart Forges Ahead of Duvall; Combined Vote of Democrats and Progressives Would Have Won All County Offices; List of Justices and Constables Given.

That M. Alexander carried the county by 69 plurality over Charles C. Moore and Jed M. E. Samuels by 533 votes was shown by the official count of ballots which edited this morning in the rooms of the commissioners. The Republicans carried the county for all other state offices. The more striking change locally over the unofficial returns is the fact that S. Claude Stewart is shown to have gotten more votes than D. P. Duvall. The first returns gave the probate judge the lead. Duvall got 3091 votes and Stewart 3106. On the other hand, the results showed, contrary to the first reports, that even for the office of assessor, the combined vote of Democrats and Progressives was greater than the Republican vote.

MAMMOTH AIRSHIPS WILL BE USED TO FLY ROUND WORLD

LONDON, Nov. 15—Airship passenger service encircling three-fourths of the globe will soon be inaugurated.

The British government is expected shortly to announce plans for a government air service between England and India. It will operate on a larger scale than anything heretofore conceived. Later the service will be extended to Australia.

Definite plans have also been prepared for the establishment of a regular airship line across the Atlantic. This latter venture has been undertaken by the General Air service.

Officials of the British air ministry state that they are prepared to offer any assistance. It is not impossible that the trans-oceanic airway will be run in conjunction with the British government's Indian service.

A special fleet of huge aircraft will be constructed for the route between London and New York. Each ship will be 900 feet long, 114 feet in diameter and capable of carrying 100 passengers.

They will have a cruising speed of 75 miles per hour compared with 52 knots now attained by the speediest ocean liners.

Bankers, commercial representatives and government officials will profit by the extraordinary reduction in the time required to cross the Atlantic.

Additional skips will be constructed as the popularity of air travel increases among tourists to and from the United States.

The journey from New York to London will take 48 hours. The passenger quarters will consist of well furnished staterooms, complete restaurant facilities, music and every provision for comfort and convenience.

It is hoped to inaugurate the trans-Atlantic service during the fall of next year.

Boulder Canyon Project Is Bitterly Assailed By Enemies; Graft Charged

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 15.—Hope was expressed today that delegates to the Colorado river commission in session here will conclude by the end of the week, preparation of a pact which will be equitable and acceptable to the seven states lying within the basin of the Colorado river. The commissioners, however, remained silent as to their deliberations which are held in executive session. Adjudication of the waters, as an engineering problem, is held to be comparatively easy though.

Principles alone, it is believed, have been under discussion thus far. Claims of the several states have been before the commission for several months, but have not been definitely taken up in the present conference.

From an unofficial source it was learned that Colorado desires water for the irrigation of 2,000,000 acres while New Mexico wanted water to irrigate 1,400,000 acres. This was the claim made by the state at the commission's conference in Washington recently.

Engineers who have studied the situation in New Mexico estimate that after the water is used for irrigation, there is approximately a 40 per cent return flow. The state has 20,000 square miles of land in the Colorado river basin but not all of this is irrigable.

Speculation Charged.

American speculators are planning to annex the Colorado river to Mexico, it was claimed by George H. Maxwell, executive director of the association.

Maxwell, who has been an observer here during the conference, claims that annexation of the river to Mexico would enable American speculators to put under cultivation one-million acres of land in Mexico, for the billing of which hordes of Asiatics would be imported. This Asiatic menace, he declared, would be infinitely worse than the flood menace which threatens Arizona and California.

Maxwell Makes Charges.

Maxwell's opinion is that the Boulder canyon dam project, designed to develop power as well as to afford protection from floods, may be a "stalking horse" for American speculators.

Armando Santa Cruz, Jr., chief engineer for Mexico on the international boundary commission, declared Maxwell's fears for the growth of an "agricultural cancer" were without foundation. Santa Cruz pointed out that below the Californian line there were now 200,000 acres in cultivation from the Colorado river and that increased acreage would mean employment of Mexicans, not Japanese or Chinese, as Maxwell intimated, to the detriment of the latter races in the republic.

HARDING OPPOSES BONUS IN SPITE OF ELECTION RETURNS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 15—President Harding, although the soldier bonus forces in the election gained sufficient strength in the senate to pass an adjusted compensation measure over his veto, is still strongly opposed to the bill, it was officially stated by a spokesman for the executive at the white house today.

The president directed this spokesman to deny reports that the executive's attitude toward the measure had been changed because of the elections, in which anti-bonus senators were defeated and state bonuses proved in five states.

WORLD WILL BE DRY IN 1930

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 15—The world will be virtually dry by 1930 and home dry by 1940, Miss Anna Gordon, newly elected president of the world's W. C. T. U., predicted today.

"We are rapidly sliding toward world temperance and within eight years the W. C. T. U. will annihilate the liquor traffic from the face of the earth.

"Two-thirds of the nations of the world are now seriously considering prohibition and several will equal our dry legislation before 1924."

In outlining the program for drying up the world, Miss Gordon said the schedule would be as follows:

Uruguay 1924; Argentine 1924; Chile 1927; Armenia 1928; Denmark 1928; Germany 1929; Great Britain 1929; France 1923; Japan 1924; Brazil 1928; Africa 1926; Mexico 1928; Italy 1926; Spain 1930; China 1930; Cuba 1940.

HERRIN MINE CASE WILL NOT INSIST ON DEATH PENALTY

MARION, Ill., Nov. 15—The death penalty will not be demanded in the state's trial of five men accused of participation in the Herrin mine massacre, it was indicated by prosecuting attorney today.

While every veniremen is asked his opinion on capital punishment a statement that he would not vote for the death penalty, does not bar him.

One of the three men tentatively passed by both the state and prosecution has voiced his disapproval of the death penalty.

Only three jurors of the first panel were in the box as the third day's examination of veniremen got under way in a half empty court room.

The prosecution had 56 more peremptory challenges to use in barring union miners and their relatives in an effort to get a non-union jury. While the defense still had ninety-nine challenges.

It seems inevitable that the prosecution will be forced sooner or later to accept veniremen on the jury, as nearly 90 per cent of the men examined have some connection with mining.

GERMANY MAY JOIN RADICALS

Downfall of Wirth Cabinet Has Tempted Germany to Try Bolshevism or May Return to Monarchial Form of Government; Reparations Are Nullified; Radicals Win.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Nov. 15.—Germany, as the result of the downfall of the Wirth cabinet, is now tempted to try bolshevism or a return to monarchial form of government, in the belief of diplomatic circles here.

"The German crisis greatly increases the fears of violent upheaval recalling the general European situation now believed by some to be nearing the "final crash."

The American government is can be stated is following closely the events in Europe and especially in Germany.

What, if anything, can be done by the United States to save the situation abroad is now one of the biggest questions before this government.

BERLIN, Nov. 15.—German leaders today sought a combination of political groups sufficiently stable to produce a premier. The Wirth government resigned last night after 18 months of office.

U. S. Refused to Aid Stinnes.

Refusal of the United socialists to join in a coalition which included the German people party, which is backed by Hugo Stinnes and other conservative element was the immediate cause of the Wirth downfall. Without the socialists he had not a sufficient majority to carry on in the face of adverse financial condition and the reparations tangle.

The radical left wing of the former independent socialists which has been after the chancellor's political scalp for more than a year, finally succeeded in pulling him down by persuading the United social democratic party to reject coalition with the Stinnes group.

Reparations Are Nullified.

Germany's reparations offers are nullified by the fall of the Wirth cabinet, in the opinion of political observers.

Chancellor Wirth is finished politically it is believed. The country needs more active management.

Ministers are holding their posts until a new cabinet is formed.

The reparations agreement recently reached by Wirth and discussions with allied envoys will not be carried out per se, by the new government if the present split in political ranks here is not mended.

Eight persons were killed and many severely injured in food rioting which broke out in various parts of the country yesterday.

In Cologne where four were killed, the police were called upon to break up an alleged Communist demonstration in the market place. Besides the four dead, four were injured. During the raid the police seized hundreds of pamphlets calling for a general strike. British troops have been called upon to assist the police.

50,000 Out of Employment.

It is estimated that there are fifty thousand unemployed in Cologne.

Four persons were killed and many wounded in riots in Dusseldorf.

TWO NUDE WOMEN DANCE IN PUBLIC

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Nov. 15—The dance of two naked women, recently caused a new political crisis in the turbulent administration of Lew Shank, nudist governor of Indianapolis.

The trouble began when a doctor lost his job on the board of public safety. The doctor claimed his arrest he made on complaint of wives of the alleged raiders, in the nudist "orgy." The doctor had lost his job, he said, because the women entertained at a banquet of prohibition business men.

The women, it was alleged, danced the hats for the collections which included the fair sketches, discovered their escort in the nudist "orgy" during an investigation, it was charged. Shank announced he would talk it over with his political advisers. Mrs. Chief Rikoff says the raid already has been much interference in his department.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 15.—Charles Lewis, former Kansas football star, today assumed charge of the University of Missouri eleven following unexpected resignation of Head Coach Tom Kelly.

LITTLE TALKS ON THRIFT

By S. W. STRAUS, President American Society for Thrift.

ONE of the values of thrift lies in the fact that under prudent care your dollars, as you add to one, become your constant co-workers. And no matter what else may happen they will keep on working for you day and night as long as you allow them to do so.

A squandered dollar is lost and gone forever. Whatever of value it may have possessed for its owner has ceased for all time.

Saving a dollar constitutes merely the beginning of a helpful process. Enthusiasm for thrift is aroused which makes it doubly easy to save the second, and so the good work continues until, in less time often than had been considered possible, a substantial sum has been accumulated.

If you are among those who unfortunately have never become a saver of money do not feel that the start is not worth while, because the amount of your first saving must perhaps be a very limited sum. No matter how slow your progress may seem at first and how many of the excelled pleasures of the world you appear to be giving up through self-denial, you will find that in the end the pathway of thrift leads to success.

Save that first dollar. Put it to work for you. Not next week or next year, but now.

Worth Remembering.

An ant is a wise creature for itself, but it is a shrewd thing in an orchard or garden. And certainly most ants are great lovers of themselves and the public. Divide with reason between self-love and society; and be so true to thyself, as thou be not false to others, especially to thy kind and country. It is a poor creature of man's actions, himself.—Francis Bacon.

... AT THE ... THEATRES

"REMEMBRANCE" PLEASES MANY TWIN FALLS THEATRE FOLKS

Irresistibly strong in its appeal and unlike anything heretofore presented on the screen is the Goldwyn production of "Remembrance," written and directed by Rupert Hughes and showing for four more days at the Lyceum theatre.

For the first time in the annals of motion pictures the father of a family has been made the principal character in a story of such depth and sincerity and truth to life that it cannot leave the spectator unmoved. What Mr. Hughes did for the mother in "The Old Nest" he has done for the father, in "Remembrance," and the result is the most genuinely worth while picture that has come to the Lyceum theatre in many months.

We are introduced to an extravagant family—mother, sons, daughters, all of them spending money recklessly in order to maintain their social position and never thinking of the poor, over-worked head of the household who must pass his days and a large part of his nights slaving to pay the bills. Then he breaks down under the strain. It is a serious illness that threatens to result in his death and for the first time the selfish family realizes what it has done. At the close of the picture one is made to understand that at last dad is going to have his innings.

The story is superbly presented and acted, with Claude Gillingwater in the role of the father, a character that he portrays with perfect sympathy. It is the kind of a performance that reaches straight to the heart and leaves one better for having seen the picture.

FAMOUS MUSIC AND DRAMA UNITED TO PRODUCE "MY WILD IRISH ROSE"

Vitagraph has again done the unusual in an attractive adaptation of both a song and a story—each one a classic—to the screen. "My Wild Irish Rose" which will be shown at the Orpheum theatre on Friday and Saturday, slips the sweetness from both Chauncey Olcott's song, and Ilion Bouicault's famous stage success, "The Shaughraun."

Irish romance is always gripping, but when music, wit, a rich Irish brogue, romance with tuneful song and a wealth of scenic beauty are blended, the effect is startling. One is completely saturated with the sentiment of the song and the plot, in other words it is an example of near 100 per cent in "atmosphere." It will send many an audience whistling and humming up the aisles.

Director David Smith, in the opinion of those who have seen the picture, has filmed another big picture—one that will live on and on with "Black Beauty," and "The Little Minister."

YALE PLAYS PRINCETON SATURDAY

(BY JACKSON V. SCHOLZ.)

NEW YORK, Nov. 15—The Jones' method of coaching which has been under some criticism will have its acid test Saturday when old Eli goes against Princeton in the second of this season's big three games.

Yale has been showing great improvement of late and from where we sit it looks as if the bulldog and the tiger would play a tie.

Of course, a favorite will pop up before game time. There has to be a favorite, because the general football fan as in any other sport, demands something to walk about it the favorite loses or an excuse to stage a snake dance if the underdog comes through.

Of course, no one expects a favorite to win this season but that has nothing to do with the matter.

Some of the more daring or fortunate critics will have the opportunity to spread their "I told you so" while the majority—who made the favorite—spend several days explaining why they were mistaken. Princeton is trained to take advantage of the breaks and has shown ability to do this in practically every game this season. There will be breaks in the Yale game as in any other game and if the Tigers are on the job, as usual, it looks like a score.

On the other hand the Bulldogs have shown a slowly increasing strength that will in all probability burst forth into something resembling real football in their first big three game. With the unquestionable strength and quality of Yale's material in the line and backfield, inspired by contact with an another rival, it is doubtful if the Tigers can keep their goal line from being crossed.

GRIDIRON GOSSIP

(BY MUDGUARD)

Tonight will practically end hard practice for the coming battle with Idaho Falls.

The fact that the managers at Idaho Falls refused to listen to any offer to have the game here indicates a tough battle for the Blue and White machine and determination and support in Idaho Falls for their team. Apparently they realize as does Twin Falls the value of home support.

With Jenkins still unable to come out for practice prospects are not so rosy as they might be for the Friday game.

The special train, which is a feature used in a great deal by colleges, also brings to our mind the fact that Twin Falls high school is also blessed this year with yell leaders of exceptional ability. The "interpretive" dances and other antics of "Bill" Siggins makes one wonder if he hasn't a few more bones than most people are supplied with. The numerous games, bullfights, races and so forth, with the ability to get the crowd to yell has supplied a great deal more pep to the games this year than in the past. The other members of this noted aggregation, "Dave" Flynn, "Hoover" Ormsby and "Chink" Riley, they are also possessed with ability and deserve credit for their work.

Coach Evans plans to take about twenty-five players to Idaho Falls.

The eastern city is noted particularly for onside kicks and spread plays, and the game should be a thriller.

Old Mudguard is about run down so remember, I'll see you on the special, which is the slogan of all good Twin Falls rooters.

BILLY EVANS SAYS

What about the new play in football that gives the team scoring a touchdown the right to make one play, from scrimmage in an effort to score another point either by crossing the line or kicking a goal from field.

Recently while in the east attending the world's series I talked with a number of leading coaches and stars of former years concerning the play. All agreed that the new play would simply resolve itself into a kicking game.

It was practically agreed that very few teams would try to cross the line through the medium of a forward pass, circling the ends or going through the line. Trying to score a field goal by a drop kick or from placement would be the play ninety-nine times in a hundred the experts agreed.

The play from scrimmage after a touchdown was substituted for the try for goal after a touchdown. There was no thrill about the goal after touchdown because there was little or no element of uncertainty. Often some specialist on an eleven would kick anywhere from 20 to 40 successive goals during the season, according to the number of touchdowns scored.

It was more or less of a clinch. The one injustice was that it placed a premium on where the touchdown was scored. If the ball was downed directly back of the goal line a try for goal from directly in front of the posts was allowed. However, if a team scored a touchdown at the extreme side of the field it was forced to take a chance on punting out to get into a good position to try for goal. Often the opportunity to kick a goal was lost if the punt out was missed.

That, of course, was unfair because a touchdown is a touchdown regardless of where the player was downed back of the line. The new rule recognizes this inasmuch as it gives the teams the same opportunity to score from scrimmage. That at least makes it a fair rule.

Now as to the element of uncertainty. It was hoped the new rule would provide this. The skeptics were doubtful. Missing a goal after touchdown in the old days was the exception. What about the new play? Let us glance over the scores of a few of the big games played recently.

Iowa beat Yale 6 to 0, in the big thriller of the season up to date. Iowa failed to score the extra point from scrimmage. That play gave Yale hope of winning until the game ended.

Harvard defeated Dartmouth 15 to 0, scoring two touchdowns and a field goal. Harvard failed in the two opportunities to score from scrimmage. Such a failure is liable to be fatal in the big games of the year.

The Army beat Alabama Poly 19 to 6. The Army failed in two of its three attempts, the southerners in their one. So that in four attempts to score from scrimmage three were "throwns."

It was the same all over the country, east, west and south. In all the games the number of misses for the extra point after touchdown were surprisingly high. It would seem that the new play has at least added uncertainty, which provides thrills.

WELBY MURDER CASE SEEKS A TRIAL JURY

Martin Gardner Accused of Participating in Shooting of Joseph H. Irvine Last April Near Welby. This Is Second Trial of Woman Charged With First Degree Murder.

SALT LAKE CITY, Nov. 15—Jurors are being selected for the trial of Mrs. Martha Gardner of Gerrans, accused of the degree murder because of her participation in the fatal shooting of Joseph W. Irvine by George H. Gardner of Welby on April 15.

Forty special veniremen have been summoned to appear in Judge Ephraim Hanson's division of the Third district court for examination. From this number a jury of twelve will be impanelled probably today, or tomorrow, according to J. F. Burnett, deputy county attorney, and W. H. Hutchinson, Jr., assistant district attorney, who will prosecute the case for the state.

The state's evidence and the testimony of the defense will be virtually the same as was offered last June, when the jury failed to agree on a verdict. Mr. Burmer and Mr. Hutchinson and Mr. Burmer held yesterday. Hopeless disagreement was reported by the jury foreman at the first trial a day and a half after the case had been submitted.

The state's case is based on the charge that Mrs. Gardner urged Gardner to "get get Irvine," and that she brought him a horse so that he might overtake and shoot the victim who died after Gardner killed Deputy Sheriff Gordon Stuart. The man, in company with several other deputies went to the Gardner farm to replevin some stock and implements claimed by Irvine.

The woman has insisted she had no desire to see Irvine killed, and that she only urged his pursuit to prevent Gardner from shooting other deputy sheriffs. She brought Gardner a horse under fear of death if she disobeyed his commands, she testified.

JACK DAW'S ADVENTURES

BY ELTON

Jack then crept cautiously around the rear of the castle. Another guard was sleeping on duty. This was luck for Jack. Nevertheless he decided to remain quiet and await developments. In the meantime, he made Flip lie down so he couldn't be seen.

Shortly the guard woke. Then he started away to make his rounds. This gave Jack his chance and he climbed carefully over the fence. Flip followed and the two companions ran as fast as they could away from old Ogre's mansion. Jack was glad to be free again.

After they had traveled out of sight of the big castle Jack set out a place to spend the night. He was tired and very, very tired. Flip slunk down beside Jack and the boy put his head down on the dog's back. Soon they were fast asleep.

Radio fans will be exhilarated by the news that the concerts given by famous artists in Aeolian hall, New York, are to be broadcast, with the hope that later opera may be added to the service. President Lewis of the coal miners' union, who has just been re-elected without opposition, announces plans for an assessment to raise two million dollars, and that when the present wage scale expires next April the miners will insist that no reduction be made. Is this the first announcement of a coming repetition of this year's chaos?

The San Francisco district court of appeals has ruled that the King James version of the Bible is the book of a religious sect, in the meaning of the law which forbids the use of such a book in the public schools of the state. That Protestantism, composed of many sects, is itself a sect, is his honor's dictum. The court probably has "started something."

Reforming the flapper by showing in the "movies" a "typical flapper enjoying herself" and by way of contrast "a girl of refinement enjoying herself in a refined manner" was proposed by an official of the Parent Teacher association, speaking at Atlantic City Wednesday. It would at least be interesting to see how the typical "movie" director would interpret such a scenario.

POTATO GROWERS COMPLAIN

As we look about in other states we find that we are not the only ones who are complaining about the price of potatoes and the manner in which they are being marketed. The following editorial from the Butte Miner will be read with interest here because the conditions in some respects are somewhat similar. However, we would like to say before quoting this editorial that the Montana editor is sadly mistaken about their potatoes being equal to Idaho potatoes.

"Montana farmers are very much discouraged over the poor price that potatoes are bringing this fall, and yesterday the Miner received a letter from a ranchman, writing from Willow Creek, complaining of this condition, and stating that he had let 40 acres freeze up in the ground, and that in his neighborhood there must be 100 acres of spuds left in the same condition.

"He naturally would like to find a remedy for this situation, which every few years finds potatoes a glut on the market and very little sale for them, and none at all at a profitable figure to the raisers.

"This newspaper does not know what the remedy is for this very unfortunate and uncommonly condition.

As far as its observation of many years in this state goes, it has noticed that usually when the seed is high in the spring, potatoes are cheap in the fall, and by the same token, when seed is cheap in the spring, potatoes are almost invariably high in the fall.

"Apparently the reason for this is that the growers are likely to put in a larger acreage when the price of seed is high than when it is low.

"Montana consumers of potatoes could help out the growers of this state very materially, if they would insist upon buying home-grown products.

"Instead of doing that, a leading merchant in Butte one day last week related an experience of his own in this respect.

"He said that during one forenoon three telephone calls, one after the other, came to his store, asking if he had Idaho potatoes.

"He replied that he did not, but he had some splendid Montana ones, and in all three instances, the inquirers declined to buy the Montana product, insisting that the Idaho one was better.

"According to this storekeeper, consumers are cheating themselves, for Montana potatoes this year are of exceptional quality, and as a general thing, run better than the Idaho spuds do although the latter, usually are a little higher priced.

"It seems to the Miner that Butte housewives could help the potato growers of this state very considerably, if they would show a little more home pride and loyalty and insist upon getting Montana grown articles whenever they can be obtained.

"In addition to exhibiting a lack of the right kind of spirit, these housewives are giving themselves the worst of it when they pay more for a poorer product, just because it is raised outside the state.

"This practice appears to be unfortunately all too common."

RESURRECTION ROCK

by Edwin Balmer

(Copyright, 1922, by Edwin Balmer and J. B. Lippincott Company)

So startling was the consequence of this that Daniel could not at once realize it was simply a consequence. He moved up in fright, imagining that his grandfather suddenly had suffered from a cramp or other physical seizure.

"Why, grandfather, you want some whisky! I'll get you—"

Lucus controlled himself and stood up. "Indigestion," he mumbled. "Cayler here tonight. Go on; what else happened?"

When Daniel informed him that nothing else transpired at the school, he thought for a while that his grandson was concealing something; but at last he satisfied himself that he knew all and he went to his room.

For Lucus never did anything at all at Gallifee except meet Jaime Quinlan there and there direct J. Q. to do deed that was to be done.

It was marvelous how, throughout the forty-six years which had passed since that meeting, Lucus had carried consciousness of his own guilt always associated with the place of meeting, "Gallifee." He had not known that Quinlan had done so too. He had supposed that Quinlan had lived out his life with a different assumption. And yet this was natural enough.

"Natural enough" Lucus muttered to himself, "Gallifee!"

But J. Q. was dead; Kinchelloe had put his body in the lake. Who, then, knew about Gallifee and could establish it with a finding tonight? No one else in all the world but Lucus himself! Yet Ethel and that Louisville and Dunbar had found out.

"By God," if they drew "Gallifee" out the church from him, what else could they draw? If they obtained it from the dead, how much more would the dead tell?

That was a stagnrre for Lucus who had acted upon the simple and effective formula that dead men tell no tales. "Gallifee and a finding tonight!" Lucus winced and swung back to his window. So old J. Q. though dead, had lived! How could Lucus shut up a ghost?

An idea, half formed, seized him and he stood stark. It progressed in his mind; and he laughed. In assertion, it revolted himself; he disavowed it; but it came back to him, more convincingly, more complete, and it promised him triumph.

It was after nine the next morning before Ethel awoke; and then it was so delightful to lie in bed, dreaming over the hours of the evening, that she made no stir, and it was ten when a maid knocked at her door. She answered joyously. "Some one for me?"

"Yes, Miss Dorothy. Mr. Lucus Colville, your grandfather."

Ethel hastened down and found her grandfather with his overcoat on and looking his hat in his gloved hand, standing in the center of the morning room and gazing critically about.

"You little fool!" he accosted her peremptorily. "Can't you feel even when your own flesh and blood tries to protect you?"

"Flesh what, grandfather?"

"Had it ever occurred to you that the reason your father never came to my house was that he couldn't?"

"No," Ethel said.

"Think over it, a minute."

"Why?"

"Why wouldn't I have him there? He couldn't tell you, I wouldn't. I thought I'd never have to tell you—forced me. This fellow you call Louisville.

"You believe that your father—my Bonnie's been telling me—got in touch with this fellow called Louisville after your father died? That started your interest in him?"

"Yes."

"Why do you suppose your father did that? Why did he pick him, I mean?"

"Why—why, grandfather; he was going to meet me. Father knew that, some ways."

"Foolsolery! Look here, your father was killed, and after he was dead—do you think—he tried to talk to this Louisville. So let's just take your own information; your father's spirit, the first thing after he was dead, goes about looking for a fellow named Barney Louisville. Now sister—all I've heard of—usually go first for those closest to 'em, don't they?"

"Why? usually, grandfather."

"Well, what make you think this is an exception?"

Ethel shrank back, comprehending his hint more than the ugliness of his infection.

"What do you mean?" she demanded.

"Well, who more natural for a father to seek him his son?"

"My father?" Ethel said. "You're talking about my father?"

"Before he was your father, I knew him! He was about sixteen. Partain quite a little in the old days—quite a little! You may remember I would not have him marry my daughter. So they ran off. I knew—there was a girl to go to Resurrection Rock."

ETHEL HASTENED DOWN AND FOUND HER GRANDFATHER.

Ethel flung herself at him and with her fists flailed his chest; she pummeled him on the chest. "You lie—you lie! You lie! My father! You lie—you lie—"

He caught her fists and held her brutally before him. He saw that he had put at all a confused fear; but he had not expected to simply by this statement of the false before combining it with what was true. He was too old and shrewd in experience to fail to know how a truth told may carry with it a lie.

"Who was his father then?" he demanded of his grandaughter, half shaking her? "Do you know? Then tell me! I don't know, of course; paternity's not like maternity; but his mother— Do you know who she was? Well, Ethel, I don't know." He dropped Ethel and gestured horridly with both hands. "Your father and my daughter! Friend—sister!"

"Oh! Oh! God!" Ethel cried.

Her grandfather said not another word; he stood for some moments more, looking at her; then, satisfied, he pulled on his hat and stalked to the door.

In the whirl of her emotions, she was endeavoring to fasten thought upon Barney only as certain Agnes's son; but against her will, she saw him here, thoughts of her father would come in.

Oh, last night he had taken her as a lover. Agnes's son and—her father's? She was here in Agnes's house—such as she might have been—might have been—

She heard some one coming and, starting up, she saw Agnes Louisville's hopeless pity. Mrs. Wain, usually so calm, so completely in control of herself, advanced under a nervous tension which visibly shook her slight body. Her words confirmed, she had been listening.

"What was he saying to you of Mrs. Oliver Collier?" she beseeched, her hands trembling on Ethel's shoulder. "What was he telling to you? Oh, you must tell me; he said Mrs. Collier—

"Nothing about her now!" Ethel cried. "I mean, he was talking about her long ago. But—but," suddenly she collapsed in the housekeeper's arms. "I'm going away; home to Wyoming, Mrs. Wain. You must help me off." And if Mr. Louisville calls for me, or telephones, I can not speak to him! I can't see him! Perhaps—perhaps I can write. I must never meet him again!"

CHAPTER XVI

EARLY that afternoon, Lucus's dependable operative reported that he had followed Ethel Carew to the Union Station where she purchased a ticket and boarded a train for Sheridan, Wyoming. She had been "unstrapped" and plainly under the stress of strong emotion.

What Ethel had told Barney was brief and simple in its final statement.

"Dear Barney:

"I have found that I must leave at once for my home. Some time later, I shall know how to explain what must seem madness to you. Now I can not.

"Where you are and how you are and what you are doing remain with me the most important things in my life; so you must let me know all about yourself. My address will be Sheridan, Wyoming.

"ETHEL."

It was several days later that Mrs. Wain, the housekeeper, phoned a request for him to call.

"I speak to you, sir," Mrs. Wain said hesitatingly, after she had sunk into the seat, "upon my own responsibility, sir, entirely. So I must ask you, before I say another word, to give me your word as a gentleman that you will make no use of what I shall tell—unless I allow you."

Barney felt his pulses pounding again. "What is it?" he demanded.

"You will meet me, sir—when you're sure you're not followed?"

"Where?"

"At the corner of Tenth and Wabash."

Barney went immediately downtown. He had to wait on the corner only a few minutes before Mrs. Wain drove up in a taxi and invited him in.

"St. Luke's Hospital," she said to the driver; and when the door was closed, she vouchsafed to Barney, "She's had another operation; it was performed the day before yesterday. She rallied at first but sank later."

Still the housekeeper gave no intimation of who "she" was; and Barney was aware that direct inquiry would be vain.

Barney did not know her; when he spoke to her, he had been beside the bed, moved away, and Mrs. Wain held back and Barney advanced alone. He was not conscious of ever having seen the woman who lay on her side with her profile plain against the pillow. Yet a fluttering of awe—of more than awe—came over him as he halted silently beside the bed.

Her face, as she lay turned toward him, was beautiful, though illness and intense suffering she had surely endured. Her skin was clear and lovely even in its deathly pallor; her hair—black and abundant—had clung to its luster as had her dark brows and the lashes which lay on her cheek. Even now the indomitable sense of herbeauty—presence of her spirit which persisted through consciousness long was gone—was keeping up the faith, Barney felt. And he wanted her to win; oh, how he wanted her to win!

It seemed to him he had never wished so for another life; and why? Because, for the first time, he was beside some one who belonged to him by blood? Because she was his—mother?

Sugar Beets Bring $110,000 to Growers On Twin Falls Tract

Best Yield Runs as High as 20½ Tons per Acre and Price Will Be at Least $7 per Ton; Amalgamated Company Sending Out Checks for More Than $110,000; Growers Should Have Had a Million If Larger Acreage Had Been Planted.

Payment of $111,964 was made today by the Amalgamated Sugar company to the farmers of the tract for 30,879 tons of beets delivered prior to November 1. There is a total of 1650 acres on the Twin Falls tract. Had the farmers planted 10,000 acres for the year as suggested, the total payment would have been $1,600,000. The company figures that considering the poor price for some crops raised a million dollars was lost.

Yield is Heavy.

The beet yield was exceedingly heavy. Some fields yielded 20½ tons. The forty acres of the Amalgamated Sugar company on the W. F. Ahrenth farm at Filer, averaged 20½ tons. Each ton of beets furnished tops which sold at 35 cents.

Explain Plan to Bankers.

The following paragraphs from a letter issued today explains conditions of sale to the beet raisers:

"For the purpose of keeping you advised of the sale and price of sugar manufactured from the 1922 crop of beets now being delivered, we wish to inform you that up to November 12, we have sold 196,351 bags under the customary guarantee against decline in price until delivery at destination. Of this amount sold we have actually shipped and invoiced 110,111 bags, which will net us $4,025. The beets actually sliced and tested in Idaho up to November 12, averaged 17 per cent sugar.

"If you will examine your beet contract you will observe, that if the cossette test remained as above, and if the above price of sugar will be averagely maintained for the crop you will receive approximately $7 per ton for your beets.

We wish, however to have it understood that this price is based only upon the sugar actually sold to date and we cannot state what change may take place in the price during the balance of the year, as our returns are based upon the price of Cuban raw sugar as sold from time to time in New York. Our study of the market situation and reports and opinions of sugar men generally indicate at the present time the sugar prices should be fairly well maintained at a considerable higher average than last year.

WOODMAN BANQUET DATE IS SET FOR NEXT WEDNESDAY

Deputy Head Consul Hoover, of the Woodmen of the World, will be here November 22 instead of November 15 as at first stated to attend the banquet of the order on that date at the Parish hall. A splendid musical program has been arranged for the occasion. There will be a venison dinner with pheasants as a side issue and lots of eloquence in sound-out the affair.

After the banquet the women present will be guests of the organization at a show at the Idaho theatre while the candidates will strive to break the lodge goat. At 10 o'clock a grand ball will begin at the Parish hall.

NO CHANGE IN THE REGULATIONS ON THE CANAL SYSTEM

Likely Debate Precedes Carrying of Motion to Hire Salt Lake City Firm and Local Engineer to Make Final Test on Whole Contract, All Strangely Opposers.

The first display of pyrotechnics since the awesome rhetorical race between Charlie, Hank and Moses boom to attract attention, was shown at the commission meeting last night when Mayor J. D. Tucker called attention to the promise of the body to investigate the paving work of the Warren Construction company. He produced a letter from McGuigle & Ullrich of Salt Lake City to show that if preliminary work were done by the city, they could finish the investigation of the contract in about seven days at $25 per day. There would be expenses for transportation and for their report. He said that Mark M. Murtaugh would do the preliminary work for $15 a day with possibly a helper at $5 a day.

All Opposes Plan

Commissioner S. S. All opposed the plan. He said that the defects could not be known before spring. He also declared that this was laying the foundation for a lawsuit and said he opposed that where not necessary. The mayor replied that they were elected pledged to make the investigation. Not only that but the opposition ticket ran its ticket on a similar platform and carried a big advertisement, with big letters at the top saying so. Nineteen-twenty-one of the people wanted it. To leave it until spring would mean that they would leave off in without doing what they promised. "All wants to wait till we are out before we begin investigation," said Commissioner Cogswell. "Oh, I am not a mind reader like you fellows who know everything," replied All. "But I can see some things. Sometimes the plan is to lower expense and some times to spend money." Mayor Tucker said that the Salt Lake City firm was in the market and ready to come. They could tell as well now as in the spring whether the work was well done or not. He moved the adoption of the resolution to hire them and to engage Mr. Murtaugh. The motion carried with All voting no, stating he thought it the wrong time to investigate and that the investigation was heading for a lawsuit.

IDAHO CROP REPORT

POTATOES—It is estimated that Idaho's 79,000 acres of potatoes have yielded 185 bushels per acre for a total of 14,615,000 bushels, last year's acre yield was 155 bushels and total production was 10,545,000 bushels, because of a smaller acreage. Quality is placed at 92 per cent compared with 89 per cent last year.

The crop matured nicely, but a considerable acreage still remains undug because of the small margin left after digging and marketing expenses have been sold. It is probable that only that portion of the crop grading No. 1 will be shipped this season, which amounts to little more than 50 per cent. Prices to growers are slightly lower than a month ago. Burals bringing 35 cents per cwt., and Russets mostly 65 cents.

Special reports from the large eastern points states indicate conditions similar to Idaho. Large crop, storage space mostly taken, car shortage and poor markets—all of which will cause considerable wastage.

The United States average yield per acre is 102.6 bushels for 4,729,000 bushels, compared with 96.5 bushels and 346,923,000 bushels last year.

APPLES—Serious worm damage caused considerable late season loss to the crop in Idaho and the whole northwest. Because of the peculiar weather conditions, worms came out in an almost continuous hatch instead of in broods at distinct intervals as ordinarily. The proportion of "g" grade will be larger than usual. Idaho has probably harvested 3,900,000 bushels as against the October 1 estimate of 4,276,000 bushels and the 1921 crop of 4,289,000 bushels. All storage space is filled and the car shortage has caused much concern.

The United States has a 203,529,000 bushel crop compared with 56,583,000 bushels last year.

RED CLOVER SEED—The yield is reported at five bushels per acre on 15,810 acres for a total of 79,200 bushels. Last year's yield was 4.5 bushels, but the acreage harvested was 18,000 or 12 per cent greater than this year. Quality is generally good and prices quite satisfactory.

FALL PLOWING—The long, dry fall seriously interfered with plowing and seeding and it is probable the area seeded to winter wheat is less than last year. Fall plowing for spring crops is likely 50 per cent of the amount usually completed.

ORIENTAL WOMAN SHOULD HAVE MORE SCHOOLS-HOSPITALS

Boston Woman Makes plea for schools and Medical Aid for Women of the Orient; Idaho Farmers Should Have Aid.

Mrs. H. W. Peabody addressed a fairly good sized audience last evening in the high school auditorium on the needs of the women in Oriental countries. She raised the question early in her address as to whether we are brother and sisters to those across the sea. This is an age of great humanitarian movements and education of the women of the far east is one of these great needs. We are now so far into nationalism that we must apologize if we do not have some part in this movement. Sometimes we hear folks say we have enough to do at home but we did not say this during the great world war.

There are 420,000,000 people in China and 320,000,000 in India and at least one-half of them are women and the teaching of those Orientals is that a woman has no soul and is little better than a slave. Mrs. Peabody spoke of the martyrs and the first foreign missionary movement and stated that it was during the civil war period. She stated that it must have been the spirit of Lincoln which was inspiring these women at such a time.

Only one woman in 1000 in China can read. There are a million women in India living on 5 cents a day. We have been taught to give a cup of cold water but is that enough. We do so much for ourselves. We have our clubs and we send our girls to schools largely for selfish reasons" said the speaker.

Mrs. Peabody stated that it was better to take the schools to the Chinese girls rather than bring them here, and that it was much more economical. She stated that 100 girls were turned away last year who wanted to study for service.

Hockefeller has promised to give $1,000,000 for this work if we will raise $2,000,000. And we are going to get the $2,000,000. Seven children have given $75,000 to this work.

"I think that the next thing I want to do after getting this cause over is to go back to congress and ask them to give the western farmer a fair deal," said Mrs. Peabody.

Preliminary Program.

Superintendent M. C. Mitchell presided and introduced Mrs. Peabody. Professor Paul G. Hanft rendered a piano solo and Dr. A. Salmon sang. He was encored and responded with a second vocal selection.

WIFE OFFERS TO DIE TO SAVE HUSBAND

DENVER, Nov. 15—Offers of Mrs. Martha Jones to kill herself so that her husband, John Carl Jones, might be released from jail to wed the 17 year old girl he is alleged to have wronged, were refused by authorities here in one of Denver's strangest tragedy cases.

Mrs. Jones reiterating her love for her husband, said to have been intimate with the young girl, has hired two attorneys in her efforts to save her husband from probable imprisonment in the penitentiary.

Jones refuses to comment on the case.

"I love my husband and am willing to be divorced in order that he might marry the girl he loves and save himself from imprisonment," she said.

CANAL CHARGE IS CUT AND PAYMENT THEREON DEFERRED

Last Payment Falls on October 1 In 1923; Relief That Money Will Be Forthcoming Allows Reduction.

Payment of the last installment on the annual assessment of the Twin Falls Canal company will be postponed until October 1, next year, instead of being collected a month earlier. It was decided by the canal board, which at a 4 clock yesterday voted to reduce the annual fees from $1.50 to $1.25. The first payment which is $1 is due March 1, the second this year will be deferred till October, so farmers can move their crops.

The reduction was made after considerable debate. The board considered the matter from every angle and decided that if farmers would pay promptly, the reduced assessments would be enough to finance the company for the year. Hope is expressed that this will be done and that in view of the greater economy, the people will pay a crop when the time comes.

REYNOLDS BILL PAID BY MEMBERS OF GOVERNMENT

Overshot Made in Hiring Chicken Ordinance Scratches Up Debater Red Cross Makes Proposal for Nurses; Road Ordinance Considered in Advance.

Resignation of D. R. Reynolds who swore at once to accept a position in California, was followed by the appointment of L. V. Carlson to take his place as patrolman. The discussion revolved around a peculiar situation regarding a bill for $32.50 on drayage. Reynolds was sworn in September 26 and took his position the night following. On September 28 he was engaged by street Superintendent Joe Krivanek to bring up some pipe. This bill totaled $32.50. It was discovered later that it was illegal under the commission form for anyone to work for the city in this manner, who was regularly employed. City Attorney J. D. Davis held that he became an officer within the meaning of the law as soon as sworn in. The mayor said that since the bill could not be legally paid, he would donate $5 toward paying it. Superintendent Krivanek said he would do the same since the bill was done through an oversight of his men. Commissioner Macauley said he could chip in.

Relief of Small Mutters

Balances from the sprinkling assessments of the last two years, aggregating $446 were ordered paid into the general fund. The Weaver rooming license was formally revoked, previous revocation having been held invalid on account of wrong description. Peter Wilmer was denied certificate licenses for his places on Main avenue and on Shoshone street. John Jones and The Brunswick were given licenses. A split license was given to W. G. Bennett. B. H. Gilbert was granted a license to fix a crossing on his sidewalk beside his vulcanizing works. Mayor Tucker read the statutes to show that they hold him personally responsible for several overseeing of the city. He said this warranted his apparent interference from time to time which he did not wish to continue in defiance. H. L. Gilbert got leave to build a garage at 211 Second avenue. Bills totalling $955.05 were granted and ordered paid.

Red Cross Wants Nurse Here

Imperative need for a nurse for the schools was strongly urged in a letter from Dr. C. H. Caldwell. It was stated that nothing help could be gotten it would not be possible to engage one. It was proposed to get 200 from the city, the same amount from the school district and $600 from the county. The mayor was instructed to take the matter up with the school board and the commissioners.

Chickens Create Stir

Alleged presence of a large number of fowls on a small lot inside the city created a round table talk when an ordinance was offered for consideration forbidding anyone to have more than three dozen chickens, ducks, geese or turkeys on one lot. It was objected that lot might mean a section of land, or a city block or five acres. At first it was determined to amend by inserting the words "within the original townsite." This was met with the objection that there were different definitions of that expression. Then it was suggested that the method of pinching those selling specially known as the original townsite be inserted. This was met by the objection that the intent was to prevent the keeping of great flocks of chickens in a small space in the residence district. Then it was decided that it would be better to defer the matter to the site of the lot intended, and the city attorney was ordered to present a new draft at the next meeting.

Road License Ordinance.

Inquiry by Mr. Cogswell of the road license ordinance received an answer from City Attorney S. D. Davis that it was being drafted and that it would be presented till after Judge T. Bailey Lee had given a decision on the old tent cases, so the law would be clear. The matter of pinching those selling meats on an equal footing as to practical application of sanitary regulations was discussed over at length, various opinions expressed. It was stated by Commissioner All that those selling on the sale grounds often did so in a big rent, the ordinance will be finished when Judge Lee gives his opinion.
