AN AUSPICIOUS START THE fact that the commission of the Twin Falls Canal company which is to investigate the proposal as to whether winter canal operations should be suspended made an auspicious start when its organization meeting was held Tuesday afternoon.

The chief duty to be performed by the commission is to arrive at some definite program of procedure about winter canal operations, and whether such operations should be discontinued or continued.

But the value of the commission's labors, provided they are carried out in the splendid spirit manifested in the beginning, will apply in a larger way than merely to throw light on this one important problem.

The work of the commission will also focus attention on canal-company policy and practice and bring home to the public with added force the magnitude of the problems the canal faces in its everyday operations.

We have a right to expect real benefits from the work of this commission, irrespective of what its final action may be.
