ATTENDANCE AT BASEBALL GAMES SHOWS INCREASE

Cullen Cain, National League Publicity Director, Sees No Reason for Alarms and Splintered Rumor Sport Is Fast-Wasting

By Frank Getty
Cullen Cain, publicity director of the National League, reports that baseball attendance has increased in the past three years. He says that the reason for the increase is that the game is fast-wasting and that the public is getting tired of the same old story.

The same growth applies to the American League. The American League baseball tournament was held in Chicago in 1929. It was the first tournament of its kind in the United States. The tournament was held in Chicago because of the excellent facilities that the city has to offer.

More than twenty million people attended the ball games in the past three years. This is a record for any sport in the United States. The reason for this is that the game is fast-wasting and that the public is getting tired of the same old story.

YEP, today's the old Hammbie's birthday. Born in the little town of 30 years ago. Long while ago, ain't it? Ben through a lot, too, believe me. Made a few records in this old racket called baseball, though, haven't you? Yeh, every year they tagged me for 'first base' more reason. 'Folli' those days, though. 'Pie's of good baseball left in this racket. Lots of homers in the old war club yet. Pie hundred hit man. Yeh, I've never been hit before. I'm a done. I'll be little homers as long as the old pie stand up under me. Yeh, great shape now. Golf every day and get a pain any place. 'Pie baseball money? Oh, from some 'bout pieching in Baltimore for a couple weeks I was still in St. Mary's. First contract, though, still back there. Order for $600 a year. Back in 1914. Yeh, just a kid pitcher then. My first major league home run first year in the big show. 'Doh Grounds, May 6, 1915. No, lost the game, 4 to 2, in 15 innings. 'Pie, I've never pitched perfect. Think they say 'Pie's something like $125,000 and a big lead. Yeh, Henton struck out another year, but the weeks gave me a new one at $20,000. Hoped to go $100,000 in 1921. 'Pie $115,000 homers that year. After that three months, I got into a three-year contract at $25,000 a year. Guess they weren't sorry they came through with the $70,000 contract in 1927. Yeh, I up and hit 50 home runs for 'em. 'Pie? What do I want now? Why, $50,000 a year and a three-year contract. Yeh, guess that'll hold a lot of money. 'Pie a real player, though, ain't it?

Mrs. Joslyn Gives Excellent Survey Of Modern Fiction
In a brilliant discussion of "The Trend of the Modern Novel," at the University "Guild" meeting Thursday evening at the business women's club room, Mrs. L. E. Joslyn gave a most comprehensive survey of the literary situation of the present time in America. Her own comments as well as those of well-known critics who have written the extracts from the various books which she discussed were well chosen and illuminating. Mrs. Joslyn, who had had an extensive study of the subject, admitted that she had by no means read all of the modern novels, but she was able to give this from an eminent American critic: "Intelligent people do not read the modern novel with the modern literature; probably because they wish to remain intelligent."

PROPOSED STYLE CHANGE DISLIKED

Medium Length Frocks Are Considered Ideal For Every Day Wear
NEW YORK, Feb. 7, (UPI)—In hundreds of fashion shows to be staged throughout the United States during National Business Women's week, March 10 to 16, business women will breathe life into the long skirts which couturiers have attempted to thrust upon them.

With the evolution of business women's fashions from the days when teachers in dance schools (lest rapped the knuckles of unruly "small boys" to make them behave, and women appeared permitted—business in nature, purchasers in abode in their own homes, will be illustrated in these fashion shows, the focal point of many of them will be a demonstration of the fashions of 1929 and 1930 as the couturier conceived them, and as business women want them to be.

Miss 1929 will make her entrance in the abbreviated skirts which were the vogue for the early part of last year. Miss 1930 will represent the new line in the long, flowing, clinging dress which she has achieved the mode. And Miss 1931 will march along in the long, flowing, clinging dress which she has achieved the mode.
