YOUNG WOMAN LAWYER KILLS ONE, THREATENS ANOTHER

Unbridled Infatuation for Rich Advertising Man Results in Death

OFFICERS HUNT PRETTY SLAYER

Shooting Occurs at Palos Park, Exclusive Chicago Suburb.

CHICAGO—April 24—Mrs. Wanda Stopa, 24, a lawyer and recently 4th assistant district attorney here, today shot and killed Howard Manning, 60, and fired two shots at Mrs. Y. K. Smith, wife of a wealthy advertising man. The shooting occurred at Palos Park, exclusive Chicago suburb.

Mrs. Stopa leaped into a taxicab with the words, "Now, I'm going to the city to kill your husband."

Hundreds of police officers have been detailed to hunt for the slayer.

Smith, warned by his wife, immediately went to police headquarters and requested that a hunt be made for the slayer. Smith also told police that the lawyer was infatuated with him and often had asked him to leave his wife for her.

Mrs. Smith telephoned that Mrs. Stopa rushed into the living room on the lower floor of the house and screamed out:

"I'm going to kill you" and pulled a revolver.

Manning ran in and Mrs. Stopa turned and fired one shot at him. The bullet struck Manning in the stomach and he died a few minutes later.

Then Mrs. Stopa fired two shots at Mrs. Smith, both missing. Then she screamed she was going down to kill Smith and leaped into the cab.

Mrs. Stopa is a graduate of the Kent college of law.

Mrs. Stopa is described as being unusually beautiful.

Smith is handsome and about 40 years of age. He said he met the woman about two years ago at a friend's home.

MISSIONARY MEETING IS ENTHUSIASTIC

Large Number of Delegates Participate in Interesting Program at the Methodist Church Today; Final Session Set for This Evening.

Earnestness and enthusiasm marked the deliberations of the meeting of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church for the Pocatello district which was called to order at the church parlors here this morning by Mrs. C. OREGON LAKE HOLDS BODIES OF TRAPPERS

Mystery Surrounds Finding of Three Men on Lava Lake; Murderer Unknown. Discover Bullet Hole in Head of Each Man.

BEND, Ore., April 24—Out of the mountain silence today came the story of the slaying of three Lava lake trappers.

Bodies of Dewey Morris, Ed Nichols and Roy Williams, experienced woodsmen, were found shortly before dark last night, floating on the lake's surface.

The gunsome find answered the mystery of what had become of the men but it left a greater one—who was it that followed them to their lonely cabin to kill them?

The three trappers were last seen January 15. Their long absence from any settlements finally made people suspicious and a search started.

Their cabin was found abandoned. The trappers' guns and heavy clothing was missing.

All this was suspicious and the searchers continued to investigate. At the edge of the ice covered lake they found a sled with strike on it which appeared to be blood. There was a hole in the ice several feet from shore. On the edge two hunters saw human hair. Yesterday the ice broke up and just before dusk the lake gave up its secret.

MILK THEFT LEADS SAILOR TO SCAFFOLD

Hungry Seaman, Out of a Job, Takes Bottles of Milk; Quarrel—Follows, Which Ends in Death of Officer; Must Die.

SAN QUENTIN PENITENTIARY, Calif., April 24—Isaac Wolfeans, a sailor, who has no friends, is going to hang here tomorrow all because of two bottles of milk.

Wolfeans was in Los Angeles early one morning. He had no money in his pockets. In front of a grocery store, down on East Third street, he saw the milkman leave the day's supply of milk.

Wolfeans waited until the man was gone and then he drank two bottles. "I was hungry," he explained, "and I needed the milk."

But the law didn't look at it that way and H. A. Rude, patrolman, having seen him, pursuit of a "desperate criminal" started.

Officer Walter Dinsmore finally found Wolfeans and went with him to his room "to get 135" he said he had there.

Inside the room there was a fight. Dinsmore hit Wolfeans over the head with his "billy" and Wolfeans in turn shot and killed Dinsmore.

He was tried and convicted and sentenced to hang.

Last night he was taken from the condemned row in the penitentiary here to the death cell—there to sit alone with his thoughts, excepting for occasional visits from the prison guards and the companionship of the chaplain to await the coming of 10 a. m. on Friday when—under the orders of the court—a rope will be put around his neck and he will be snapped into eternity.

All because a sailor, out of a job, drank two bottles of milk.

NEW FOREIGN POLICY EXPECTED TO PLEASE MAJORITY OF PEOPLE

Federal Government Assumes Control of Anti-Plague Battle

WASHINGTON, April 24—The federal government today assumed complete direction of the fight being waged against the foot and mouth disease in California.

Upon receipt of a telegram from Governor Richardson of California, Secretary of Agriculture Wallace ordered Dr. L. G. Houck of the bureau of animal industry, at Sacramento, Calif., to take charge of both federal and state employes in the battle against the plague.

The department was prepared to move Tuesday when Richardson offered "closer cooperation" between the government and state authorities, but it awaited a more formal invitation.

Plan Sure to Offend Two Groups of Americans, However.

WASHINGTON, April 24—President Coolidge has struck the keynote of an American foreign policy that will be generally acceptable in most of the country, even if it offends two large groups of opinion, his advisers declared today.

This policy, based on the long list of achievements by Secretary of State Hughes will neither satisfy the isolationists nor the pro-league element of the United States, it is admitted.

However, Mr. Coolidge can answer these main schools of opposition, as follows:

To the irreconcilable element, which also is fearful of the American people being called on to foot the bill for Europe, the president can point to the unequivocal language in his New York speech declaring the league of nations dead so far as the United States is concerned and to his statement that he expects foreign nations to pay their debts to us.

To those calling for complete cooperation between the United States and the rest of the world, President Coolidge can turn to his speech where he is on record as approving participation of American finance in the international loan to Germany under the Dawes reparations—settlement plan and where he favors the calling of another disarmament conference, when the reparations settlement is established.

The Coolidge-Hughes foreign policy is now fairly well formulated and it is expected to have a prominent place in the republican platform. Briefly it is:

1—Co-operation with Europe when possible but avoidance of participation in European politics—economic and ex-officio co-operation being favored to political alliaments.

2—As a fundamental basis of this policy, all possible efforts to further world disarmament. The president and Hughes are understood to feel that if another successful disarmament conference can be held, the administration will have done everything possible in the interest of world peace.

PASTOR DENIES RECENT CHARGE

DALLAS, Tex., April 24—The Rev. John Quincy Adams, Holy Roller pastor who deserted his parishioners after predicting the end of the world and the return of Christ, returned to Dallas today and denied charges of wrong doing.

The pastor denied he had gone to the "mount" to meet the Lord and his disciples with funds given him by his congregation before he left the city two weeks ago. He explained that the money was used to finance his belief "The Time of the End," which prophesies Christ's return and the end of the world between 1924 and 1930.

Adams' little flock of worshippers welcomed him back, although many of them had sold all their worldly possessions in anticipation of the resurrection and given the money to Adams for his pocketts.

Your Next Car

Will be this Light-Six, if you learn the truth

WHEN you buy a car in the "thousand-dollar" class, here are some things you should know.

We made a canvass of men who bought rival cars in this class. And we found that 96 in each 100 bought without knowing these facts.

So, for your sake and our sake, we want to present them to you.

Save $200 to $400

Studebaker builds 150,000 fine cars yearly. It builds in model factories, modernly equipped. It has spent $38,000,000 in the past five years on new-day plants and equipment.

By quantity and up-to-dateness it saves large sums per car. A car like this Light-Six, built under ordinary conditions, would cost $200 to $400 more.

11.4% less to run

This supreme quality means lower operating cost. Owners of fleets of cars in this class made audited records to prove this.

They compared 329 cars, running up to 25,000 miles each. And they found that the Studebaker Light-Six cost 11.4% less to operate than the average of its rivals. This includes depreciation. The saving was nearly one cent per mile.

The reasons are these

The Studebaker Light-Six, in its chassis, represents the best we know. In steel and in workmanship it is identical with the costliest cars we build.

It is designed and superintended by an engineering department which costs us $500,000 yearly.

Each steel formula has been proved the best for its purpose by years of tests. On some we pay 15% premium to make sure to get them exactly right.

Each car in the building gets 32,000 tests and inspections.

The crankshafts are machined on all surfaces, as was done in the Liberty Airplane Motors. This extra care costs us $600,000 yearly, but it means perfect balance in the motor.

More Timken bearings are used in this car than in any competitive car within $1,500 of its price.

The activities of the Twin Falls police force in collaboration with the federal authorities, in enforcement of the liquor laws, commends itself to all good citizens. The force under Chief P. O. Herriman is insufficient in size, but this is not the fault of the administration as many of those who are criticizing it for not doing the impossible were among the leaders of the element which refused to increase the levy for the general fund last spring, which would have enabled the police department to put on an extra man. The police force has done excellent work and Twin Falls is one of the cleanest and most orderly cities in the state. Commendation must also be voiced for Sheriff M. E. Finch and his deputies who have worked continually and successfully to promote law and order throughout the county.

In many ways a fine executive the stand of Governor Al Smith on the liquor issue renders his nomination for either the presidency or vice presidency out of the question. The democratic party must take a stand in favor of enforcing the present liquor law and must nominate a man, whose position on this issue is beyond doubt. It would be bad politics to sacrifice the great principles of the democratic party in order to get the liquor vote, which will be cutieed into the republican ranks on the theory that the elimination of Pinchot leaves that party somewhat moist. The democrats to win must nominate a man who believes that the liquor laws and the anti-trust laws are intended to be enforced.

Gifford Pinchot made no friends by his belated endorsement of President Coolidge whose administration he so freely criticized for failure to fully support him in his liquor fight, and for its failure to endorse progressive measures. If all that the Pennsylvania governor said about the administration were true, then he was absolutely inconsistent in seeking election as a Coolidge delegate at the last moment. A similar situation exists in Idaho. Fully one-half of the followers of Senator Borah are convinced that President Coolidge and Governor Moore represent the reactionary element of the republican party, and are shouting for LaFollette. Yet Senator Borah has made peace with both Coolidge and Moore. Whether the same fate which overtook Pinchot awaits the clever and eloquent Idaho senator is something which only the results in November can tell.

The action of the Illinois state democratic convention in adopting the unit rule under the circumstances is liable to cost more votes for McAdoo than it lost. The right of a state convention to instruct delegates which it selects itself and to bind them by the unit rule is perfectly well understood and undoubted. But it is generally held that a convention cannot morally bind any delegates who are not elected by itself, and who therefore do not represent it. In Illinois the delegates were elected by the people, if press dispatches correctly represent the situation, and a number of them were elected to support McAdoo, although a majority were against him and in favor of the Boss Brennan machine which is working with the Boss Murphy machine of New York and the Boss Taggart machine of Indiana. For a state convention which met thereafter to instruct delegates thus previously selected may be the Illinois rule but not the general rule.

MINISTER QUITS KLAN

On the eve of the municipal election in Des Moines, when the Ku Klux Klan in that city undertook to gain control of the city's affairs, the Rev. L. H. Griffith, pastor of the Douglas Avenue Church of Christ, made public his resignation as a member of this hooded battalion.

"I am a believer," explained Mr. Griffith, "in the teachings of Jesus Christ, who said, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself.' I have a neighbor who is a Jew and another who is a Catholic. I have come to the inevitable conclusion that one cannot follow the teachings of Jesus Christ and also be a member and a part of an organization that is opposed to and prejudiced against these people, my neighbors."

Other clergymen have permitted themselves to become identified with the klan, which feels that it wins a great victory when ever a minister dons the sheet and pillow case. One Cedar Rapids church has been almost wholly taken over by the klan, following the capitulation of its pastor, who doubtless will have a glib answer to Mr. Griffith's well chosen explanation of his withdrawal from the three kays.—Cedar Rapids Gazette.

The Sick Pearl

BY BERTA RUCK

Blue Ribbon Fiction

—SYNOPSIS.—

Up to the time Margaret Verity was twenty years old she was a robust outdoor child. She and her wounded mother were poor, but they lived comfortably in the gray cottage in sight of the sea. Mrs. Verity's husband was a sailor, who died at sea in the late autumn of 1914.

Around before Margaret's twenty-second birthday Mrs. Verity's uncle, Tom Lloyd, in the office of a chain of five hotels as a bellhop girl. Margaret decided she and her mother would change the scenery on a trip to London. When Lloyd wrote the train and the proper guests, he made a first class reservation, accepted by Chas. Mount, as his way of enticing, boarding in lieu of tips. Margaret's chaperon and his nephew asked her to write to him. He was a fine young man, seeking his fortune in the hotel. He was a relative, a brother, a friend, a father, and an adviser, and he was handsome, having shared with Chaplin the honors of the outdoor life.

Margaret, now twenty years old, is a brunette, lissom, and between young beauty, the beach, and love in her heart, has all the health she can absorb. Her chaperon, Mrs. Bennett, is stationary in an authority of men's tweeds, build, manner, cocktail absorbing, street sensation, at full clothing, mother-in-law, modern student of the most unfashionable type of adventure in Lord Chilton. His sister, Cynthia, is the young heiress' closest friend. Margaret gives a Chaplin at the Ritz for her twenty-first birthday, after an absence of three years, and there she sees Arthur Mount. Margaret becomes ill. On her recovery she goes to the south of France. Arthur Mount's pack is found in the hotel room at Nice, and Margaret is invited on board for tea. All the guests but Margaret unfortunately leave the boat, and the yacht sets sail with the invalid young heiress aboard. She is furious when she awakens in the night; grows violently seasick, and loses all idea of the time she is aboard. She is rather uncomfortable of a stern, and a wreck, after which the Sick Pearl spends an hour or so aboard with Arthur Mount, at her sole companion.

"You lied! I had received Arthur Mount to see the adventure through with him, but he disappeared, leaving poor Mount and poor little Margaret. After several weeks on the island Margaret shows a great improvement, physically and in composition.

INSTALLMENT XXXVII.

DISHARMONIES.

Knocked to pieces on the rocks, she assumed. Yes, she had assumed, when she first spoken of it at odd times, that the yacht had been dashed to pieces, reduced to matchwood that all that, apparently, remained of the boat was that one plank which, washed upon the shore, Mr. Mount had broken in two and had used when he was bailing her bail. He was also trying to carve out of it some sort of a comb for her.

But somebody would have rowed that boat? You can't row and hold another person's hand. Also, if there had been only Mr. Mount, in the last-ever land there been somebody else? Dazy, you think, for Margaret to have asked these questions of the young man then and there. No.

At this moment Margaret herself did know what was beginning to occupy her. Much like rivet, basically, about that boat, apparently, remained of the storm, the wreck; those were surface ripples on the deep. Deep down, she was astonishingly interested in this question of the touch of another person's hand. It can be a vital thing, casual.

Curious, if you go back to the scene when she had looked among her brooch cushions, with her lax fingers held, so, left in the hand of young Lord Oddley:

left, just as negligently as she would have left them in the folds of warm, lemon scented lilies brought by the black satin aspect who asked, "Do you wish with the ends curl round or pointed, madam?" So many, many times Margaret had given up her hand to Claude Oddley never once had the touch even of his lips upon it meant more to her than the pressure of her manicurist. Had it been in the dark, she would have known no difference in the hand clasp of any one of her boyfriends.

Only Mr. Mount's had been different. His had been magnetic, comforting—what else could she call it? Words failed her. Having once recognized his touch, she knew she would in future always know it again. Strange little revelation. It had been pleasant to her quite suddenly she had been made to feel that she liked him to hold her hand.

This, naturally, was the instant when she took it away from him and dropped it, with fingers that opened and shut, once, against the rough fold of her skirt. She liked it! As she could not explain this to herself, how, possibly, could she explain it to the man? She could not speak about it. She could not frankly answer her question, "Why do you ask me?"

Obtundedly she said, "I wondered. I was half asleep all the time in the boat. I just wondered if I'd dreamt it." Then, as if with renewed interest, "What is the time?"

"Between six and seven—just seven."

From that hour the note of their life changed. That rhythmic monotone of will being broken into disharmonies. The next morning sounded several of them.

That morning, for the first time since the sick puppy incident, Mr. Mount spoke to Margaret almost formally. Not stiffly, no, she could not have accused him of that. Still, something had left his manner. Something that made all the difference had now gone out of his voice. It wasn't only what he said.

What he said was, "I say, should you mind if we finish only half these trout for our breakfast today, and put the others aside for our evening meal? And do you mind if we feed rather later tonight? And, if you wouldn't mind, I shall have to ask you to keep to this creek until I see you. Miss Verity. I shall have to put you on, as it were, do parole, while I am away all day."

Surprised, Margaret looked up from cleaning the fish, which hideous fatigue she now achieved without turning a hair.

"Away?"

"Yes. I really ought to look at the interior of this place. Do you know all these days I have hardly been more than a couple of miles inland, ever? I might bring back—some sort of souvenir," said Mount.

He stood there, looking the typical, the comfortable, the fabulous castaway. Their sole toilet implements, I'd be should have finished hacking out that comb, with those sticks of eucalyptus, with ends frayed into brushes which they used, boy scout fashion, as tooth brushes. Clean as the sea breeze were these two people. Cleaner, from the freshness of air, sea, exercise, than is the most meticulous Oriental, the most frequenter of Turkish baths, who spends quarters on crystals and creams. But, also, they were shaggy as the mountain beats. Mr. Mount's inconsiderable beard had come fair to rumble-bee proportions. Level of black to match his hair, brown, and Dahlia. Quite comfortable, these two colored" mem. With that coloring, with his wonderful figure, jaunty in sake and shaggy, disheveled clothes, Mr. Mount looked an Adonis according to Augustus John. Margaret, not even as old as she was this morning, was bomber through her rammuffin attire than she had shown in any of her French frocks, looked up at him. As she did so, there flashed back to her, a thy from out of a previous existence. This same young man, looking a composite advertisement for men's evening dress, perfect in outline, perfectly polished, turning upon her a ballroom smile.

"I am so sorry, Miss Verity, I haven't had the chance to dance with you and now we have to go.

Miss Verity. "O, well, that's your loss, isn't it?" Shades of the Berkeley! Had that ever happened?

Again the island grew back around her. Again this man's doings became paramount. He was suggesting going away for the entire day.

Injured, she asked, "Am I not coming with you?"

"Who would see to the bonfire?"

"It has never gone out yet."

"I have been left so long."

"Couldn't we damp it down? It goes on smouldering underneath for hours. I remember once at home, in the garden, our last bonfire was alight for two whole days without our doing anything to it. Mr. Mount, We just left it."

"You probably weren't dependent upon it, then, for all the warmth and cookery you had."

"Well if this fire did go out, we could light it again. We've got matches! You have a whole box of matches left!"

"Imagine wasting a match. Where do you suppose our last box of matches will come from?"

"I don't know," answered Margaret coldly, indeed, very coldly. She found her adopted brother detestable this morning. She found him touchy, bad tempered, even quarrelsome. All friendliness had left his tone; he looked at her, too, as if he wished to goodness he were the only castaway here.

Around them smiled sands, bay, skies. Farther and farther they seemed to grow apart. With such a saddeness, too, and for no reason that Margaret could see. It was, as if something had happened since they had said good-night.

"The fire," remarked Mount drastically, "might not be too easy to relight. Supposing it came on to rain, with our fire dead out? Just because it's been fine so far—you hadn't thought of—of one of those tropical thunderstorms that might come on?"

Swiftly, Margaret's small face altered from sulky to pensive.

"You won't leave me, will you, if there's going to be thunder? Anything else I shan't mind. Even storms at sea I don't mind as long as it isn't thunder as well. I'd—I'd much rather have wild animals—savages."

NOTED DANCER COMING TO THE IDAHO

On Friday night I am going to present Miss Bethea Cutler, late of New York City but now of Burley who will present a dancing class here, bringing all the children from Burley with her, Joe-K says. Naturally the parents will come along and I look for quite a few people to come to Twin Falls. Miss Cutler has the endorsement of all the societies, clubs and the bodies of Burley and it is her intention to open a dancing school here in Twin Falls (not for the bunny hug, shimmy, wiggle, Hard twist, etc.) the kind they teach children. I am going to present her in addition to her usual program.

As a gardener I am a good baseball umpire. It must be so because I admit it myself.

WHO IS A WOMAN OR A MAN WRITE 'FLAMING YOUTH'

Stars Give Their Opinion of Author of Novel Signed Only by Pen Name.

Baffled in their efforts to learn the identity of the author of "Flaming Youth," the First National film version of which is being shown at the Orpheum theatre this week, members of the all-star cast which interpreted the story unanimously agree as to whether the book was written by a man or a woman.

Boni & Liveright, publishers of "Flaming Youth," declare that it would amount to a breach of contract to reveal the authorship of the volume other than the dom de plume "Warwick Fabian."

Colleen Moore, who plays the role of "Patricia" in this picture, declares that the author is a woman, and Elliot Dexter, who enacts the role of "Dr. Hicks," is equally sure that a man is responsible.

GOOD ORPHEUM PROGRAM

Morlen and Doran, the former the accordion wizard and the latter the violinist, in an exceeding catchy act received and merited the big end of the applause in vaudeville at the Orpheum last evening. The number was unusually good even for the excellent Orpheum programs. The Flash Trio of dancing girls were an airy and pleasing bunch, but did not get as much audible appreciation as they deserved. Dayton and Palmer, and Phillip Goode, the Sinbhnuti orator, were up to the usual vaudeville standard. "Big Dan," featuring Jack Dobbs, was a wholesome talk, and there was a good comedy reel.—Times Critic.

PERSONALS

IN THE WORLD OF SPORTS

Rupert Loses Exciting Track Meet to Locals

Overcoming an early lead by a strong finish, Twin Falls defeated Rupert in a closely contested meet held at Lincoln field Wednesday afternoon.

Timm was high point man with three firsts and three seconds, Lenz was next with three firsts, closely followed by Burcher with two firsts, a second and a third place.

Rupert started the meet by taking six firsts, one second and three thirds in the first six events and chances for the locals winning the meet looked poor.

Long lived up to his reputation as being the fastest man in the state by beating the speedy Timm in the 50, 100 and 220-yard dashes. In the 440 yard dash Timm was leading at the half way mark but with a flying finish Long beat him by inches.

Hockaday ran a pretty race in the half mile, taking the lead on the last stretch and making a strong finish. Ross finished an easy second.

Stone Disqualified

The 440 was probably the most thrilling race of the day with Stone, Rupert's star quarter miler of last year running a sensational race against Witham. Taking the last turn for the final stretch of the track Stone tried to pass Witham and it was from here on that Stone's sportsmanship was questioned. With Stone's elbow and body continually in his way Witham sprinted gamely to the finish only to lose by a few inches, when Stone crowded him from the track.

Finish Strong

Gradually cutting down Rupert's lead, the local athletes finished the meet strong, making a clean sweep of the shot put and placing well in all other events.

Simpson ran a pretty race in the low hurdles, pushing the fastest man in the high hurdles.

L. Hall ran a steady dependable race in the mile, taking first place, Harrison placing an easy second with a strong finish.

With the meet already won the local mentor kept out several regular men from the relay team which resulted in Rupert's winning the event by a considerable distance.

For Rupert Long proved that he is still the sprinter of last year and Burcher looked like a valuable all-around track man. Hutchins in the pole vault, and Hockaday in the half mile will also bear further watching.

Timm Stars

For the locals, Timm showed that he is a natural born athlete and his work was the big feature of the meet. Witham in the 440, Simpson in the hurdles and Hall and Harrison in the mile looked good and much is expected of these men in the district meet.

The summary of events is as follows, names being in order of the way in which they finished:

50-yard dash—Long, Rupert; Timm, Twin Falls; Burcher, Rupert. Time, 5 3-5 seconds.

High jump—Hyde, Rupert; Burcher, Rupert; Garrity, Twin Falls. Height, 5 feet 6 inches. (Both Hyde and Burcher cleared the bar at this height).

Half-mile run—Hockaday, Rupert; Ross, Twin Falls; Nelson, Rupert. Time, 2 minutes, 13 3-5 seconds.

WATCHING THE SCOREBOARD

Yesterday's hero—Dave Bancroft. The manager of the Boston Braves singled in the 15th inning and drove in the run that beat the Phils 2 to 1.

Speaker's double in the 10th inning pushed over the run that gave the Indians a 6 to 5 win from the Tigers.

George Sisler got three hits in five times up, scored two runs and stole a base, helping the Browns win from the White Sox 9 to 5.

Led by the Duke who hit a single, double and a homer and scored three runs, the Yanks ran away from the Red Sox, and won 12 to 1.

Hauser's homer with a Strand on base enabled the Athletics to beat the Senators 6 to 4.

The Cubs broke out with a batting rush and beat the Cards 12 to 1.

Triple Play Termed Remarkable Exploit

But Far More Skill Needed in Making Double.

Much less is made when a team makes a triple play. Certainly it is a rare occurrence and a farce to the opposition, for with heavy scoring in night three men are blotted out in an eye wink.

When a spectator sees a triple killing, it will often in his memory. He is very likely to talk about it for a week. The Athletics made one against Detroit last season.

Runners were on second and first and, of course, nobody out. Cobb was at bat. He lashed a terrific liner down to Galloway, who made a clear catch and threw to Schang, getting another Tiger. Schang whipped the ball to first before the other runner could return there and Detroit was out.

That was a remarkable achievement, for with nobody out, runners on base and a man of Cobb's power at the bat, heavy scoring was presaged.

Yet when you analyze a triple play, it is almost an accident. In the first place, the opposing side must have nobody out. Nine out of every ten triple plays are on line drives, which are comparatively easy to handle, certainly not nearly as difficult to gather in as a ground ball.

Sometimes a triple play is the result of a very hard jumping catch on a liner, but not always. As a rule, they travel straight to an opposing infielder and are known as "duck-soup."

When a triple play is made on a ground ball, it is nearly always a negative achievement, for some bad base running on the part of the opposition was needed to make it possible.

Therefore, often a triple play, while spectacular and unusual, does not require nearly the skill of a double play on a ground ball. Then the infielder must make a clean stop, often on a difficult chance, and then get the ball very nimbly and accurately to the other infielder.

Then the second player receiving the ball must make a long and hard throw to first base ahead of a runner who is only a few steps away from the bag.

Contrast this to the triple play. Both runners in motion at the plate, a soft catch and plenty of time to throw to the bases before they can return.

In other words, it takes more skill in the majority of cases to make a double play than a triple play, but there is no chance of players ever being lionized by a crowd when they retire three opponents on one batted ball.

Dave Griffith, formerly a manager in the Western and Texas leagues, has deserted organized baseball to manage a club in the Midwest league.

Pitcher Claude Thomas, who was recently purchased by Stroxeport from Los Angeles, has retired from baseball rather than play in the Texas league.

A. Lundquist, a 220-pound right-handed pitcher, has signed with the Kansas City Blues. Lundquist was with Salt Lake for a trout several seasons ago.

The Hartford club of the Eastern league has signed a catcher named Ward, who was in the Boston Twilight league last year. Strow, a New York semi-pro pitcher, also has been signed.

Fighting Fishes.

Prize-fighting fishes are very common on the coast of Japan and Siam. Their pugilistic tendencies are soon pronounced, so much so that the natives make them take the place of boxers in Siam, and arrange matches in glass bowls between two of the species, heavy bets being laid on the result.

"Gets-It" Removes Corns Quickly

One touch of "Gets-It" puts corns or callous pain to sleep forever. Two or three drops applied to corn or callous soon shrivels them into a loose piece of dead tissue that can easily be peeled off with fingers. There is no danger, no pain, no sore toe—just quick, sure and painless relief. "Gets-It" does the job. Satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed. Costs but a dime. E. Lawrence & Co., Chicago.

PRAYS IN THREE LANGUAGES

Frances Daisy Hoy, a seven-year-old girl in Ann Arbor, Mich., each night says her prayers, but the task is much greater than that imposed on most little girls. For she has to say them in three languages. First she English for herself, for Frances Daisy is first of all a real American. Then in Polish and in Chinese, for her mother is a native of Poland, and her father is from the Chinese empire. Every day she attends school, and is popular with her teachers because of her determination to excel, so that she may more and more become a true American girl. She is a sturdy little girl, good to look upon. And each night on her knees she says her prayers in these languages that all her family may be included.

A Good Reason.

FRECKLES AND HIS FRIENDS — Danger — BY BLOSSER

CHEAPER COAL FOR IDAHO IS SAMUELS PLEA

President of Teton Coal Company Asserts That the Oregon Short Line Refuses to Make Repairs Which Would Open Vast Field for Benefit of Consumers and Give Employment to Many

"We are putting this matter up to the people of Idaho to decide whether they want cheaper coal, or whether they are satisfied with the present situation," said President H. F. Samuels of the Teton Coal company here today, speaking to a mass meeting at the Parish hall. "We want the people, if they want cheap coal," he said "to get in behind us and urge our claims in their own behalf before the public utilities commission, asking service and requiring the Short Line to haul the product of the mines at reasonable charge, and to keep the road in repair.

"The road to the mines was built during the war by the United States government, after examination of experts had determined that it was of a high grade bituminous quality. The government report declared that there were 11,000,000 tons of this coal at a depth of not to exceed 500 feet, not counting what might be found on deeper levels. Then some fellows tried to grab it and the matter got into the courts where Judge F. S. Dietrich refused to permit this scheme to grab the mine."

Mr. Samuels said that during the past year he had had work done, as president of the company which would enable the company to produce 100 tons of first class coal daily. He said that the report of Robert N. Bell, former state mine inspector, agreed with the reports of the agents of the federal government as to quantity and quality of the vast deposit.

Platte Rejects Demand

Mr. Samuels stated that he made a written demand upon H. V. Platte, general manager of the Short Line to repair the road and supply cars to haul away 100 tons daily. This Mr. Platte refused to do, and said that the track should be fore up and the rails and ties used elsewhere. Only a little ballasting is needed to make the repairs, Mr. Samuels stated. The public utilities commission declined to let the Short Line tear up the track and petition backed by the Victor commercial club, the Driggs commercial club and the Tetonia commercial club and dated April 16 has been filed asking that the commission order the repair of the track and the delivery of the cars. Mr. Samuels says that several thousand tons of coal were used near the mines this year at a saving of $6 a ton to the users and that the opening of the road would mean much to the people of Idaho.

He ridiculed the idea of the demand for a deposit from the road which he said was absurd and unreasonable and denied the truth of the road's criticisms of the quality of the coal.

He says that there would be a saving of $4 a ton to consumers and $6 would be paid in wages for each ton mined so that, all told, Idaho would benefit to the extent of $9 a ton.

DAIRY POINTS

Considerable Reduction in Calf Raising Costs

The high cost of raising calves can be considerably reduced by supplementing their extensive ration of milk with other food, says Prof. S. W. Mead, New Jersey State College of Agriculture.

"The supplemental food method of raising calves has been used with considerable success, and while the calves so raised will not be quite as fat and sleek as calves which are raised on the maximum amount of milk, they will, nevertheless, develop into healthy, normal animals.

"Allow the calf to remain with the dam for 48 hours. The first milk or colostrum is laxative in action and insures the proper action of the bowels for the first few days.

"Take the calf from the cow at the end of 48 hours and feed it from a pail. The amount to be fed depends on the size and vigor of the calf. On the average, three feedings a day, totaling six to eight pounds, are given during the first few days.

"This amount should be increased gradually as long as the calf's appetite remains good and as long as scours do not set in. If the calf does scour, the feeding should be taken away for one or two feedings and a dose of castor oil administered.

"By the time the calf is three or four weeks old it should be given all the alfalfa and clover hay it will eat and a good grain mixture. The following has been used with success:

100 pounds of ground oats	200 pounds of oil meal, old process
200 pounds of wheat bran	100 pounds ground oats

"The more grain and hay the calf eats the less milk will be required. In parts of the country where skim milk is available the calf should be changed gradually at two or three weeks of age from whole milk to skim milk. The amount of skim milk fed, however, should not exceed what would usually be given of whole milk.

"By the time the calf is four months old the milk feeding may be discontinued and the calf raised on grain and hay. But remember, the calves will not look as fat and sleek as those fed milk to a later age, though their ultimate development will be the same."

New Publication Gives Practical Information

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

The raising of dairy calves, beginning with the new born calf is born and carrying the young stock along to two years of age, is the subject of a recent Farmers' Bulletin, No. 1324, Feeding and Management of Dairy Calves and Young Dairy Stock, now ready for distribution by the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C.

The new bulletin is full of practical information covering all the essentials in the production of good dairy animals for breeding and milk production. It includes chapters on feeding before birth, weaning the calf, teaching to drink, cleanliness, pasteurization of milk for feeding, quantity and quality of milk fed, frequency of feeding, rearing for calves, grain feed, mineral substitutes, quarters, sanitation, prevention of horns, water and salt, marking calves for identification, diseases, and several chapters on the feeding and management of young stock beyond the calf age.

The bulletin may be had free of charge by writing to the department as long as the supply lasts.

Calves to Develop Well Must Have Sanitary Pens

If calves are to remain healthy and develop perfectly they must not only be correctly fed but must have sanitary quarters when in the stable. Recent investigations have shown that lack of sunlight is a powerful contributory cause of rickets in all young animals. Direct sunshine kills germs and, therefore, lessens the liability to scours and other calfhood ailments. Calf pens are too often dark, damp, dirty and badly ventilated.

Foul bedding is even more common and is equally detrimental.

Dairyman Should Know Every Cow in His Herd

No dairy cow has ever produced her maximum unless her feeder knows her. Knowing her means more than simply calling her by name and reciting the names of her ancestors. It means understanding her every need, desire and condition. By means of a pair of scales, a Babcock testing outfit and a little work, every dairyman could know what each cow in his herd produces, and thus have a sound basis on which to feed and judge the individual merits of each cow in his herd.

Best Milk for Calves.

For the first few days give the calf eight to twelve pounds of milk from its dam in three feeds a day, making the intervals between feedings as nearly eight hours as possible. Milk containing not more than 4 per cent butterfat is considered best for calves.

Meat From Dairy Herd.

Bulls that are no longer desired in the herd for various reasons make up a part of the meat from dairy cattle. They are seldom suitable for dressed beef.
