BOBCATS FAVORED TO WIN PLAY OFF IN SALT LAKE GYM

Interest Running High in Coming Games and Hard Battles Are Expected by Intermountain Sport Fans

SALT LAKE CITY, March 6. (UP)—Hoping that it's three-day champions will go into the title series without any of the excitement which marked their appearance against Utah Aggies early last week, Coach Taylor put his Montana State Aggies through a light workout today in preparation for the first game of a series with Utah Aggies here tomorrow night. The Utah Farmers, won two straight from the Bobcats in knock-out championships from the sole leadership for the first time in four years. The series here will decide the western division Rocky Mountain conference, championship games will be played tomorrow and Saturday night, and if one team does not win both, a third contest will be staged Monday. The Aggies, who are the usual conference class with the western division champions appeared to have picked up Colorado University, coach-leader, definitely abandoned plans for a series because of late season. The contest for all were originally scheduled to be played this week end, but the western division was decided as a play-off, "conflict".

TYING TO TIDEWATER

CONSTRUCTION of the Minidoka-Buhl extension to the main line of the O. S. L. would shorten the distance of the haul to the west coast on an average of more than 100 miles for shipping points in Twin Falls county. At present our railroad distance from Portland in 701 miles from Twin Falls. Construction of the cutoff would reduce this distance to approximately 600 miles. The reduction would be greater for Filer and Buhl, and less for Kimberly, Hansen and Murtaugh. More than, the reduction of distance important, though that is, should be realized by this construction work. When we get the cutoff we move nearer to tidewater. The facilities of transportation furnished by the Pacific ocean will be just so much nearer at hand, and what those facilities have to offer, Idaho to date has had little reason to consider.

It is high time that as a district we should begin thinking of the possibilities of ocean commerce as a means of improving our own condition. The lanes of world trade lead to Portland over the Pacific, and there is no reason why this district of Idaho should not be brought nearer tidewater when the construction of a few miles of railroad will make this possible.

The Union Pacific's chief interest is to have the long eastward haul, and it loses no opportunity to deprecate the possibility of an increased westward movement of traffic from Idaho. Its own interests dictate such an attitude. The freight schedules have been so made as to force our products east. The Pacific coast is rapidly developing as an industrial district. Manufacturing and commerce are increasing by leaps and bounds with a consequent growth in population. To insure ourselves a rightful share of the increased business created by this growth, Idaho needs to keep a sharp eye on its transportation facilities.

In this connection, it is well for us to remember that Washington, Oregon and Idaho are renewing their interest in the possibilities of utilizing the Columbia and its chief tributary, the Snake, for water transportation. This interest will find expression in reality some of these days, just as the Ohio and the Mississippi are being utilized now. Whenever the day comes when barge lines operate on the Columbia, this part of Idaho will have moved an additional 200 miles nearer the Pacific. We might haul by rail to Umatilla and use the Columbia from that point to Portland.

There are reasons in plenty why we need to be thinking and working to realize our ambition to have the Minidoka-Buhl branch extended west to the main line.

BUMPING ONE'S NOSE

OF APPROXIMATELY 3,000 questionnaires sent out by the fact finding commission, authorized by the annual meeting of the Twin Falls Canal company, only about 30 per cent have been returned, according to a statement from the office of the company.

By means of the questionnaires, the commission is seeking to secure facts about the number of cisterns, wells and sink holes and the prevalence of seepage and such problems.

The failure of land owners to co-operate and make available such facts as are in their possession is hard to understand. Procrastination probably explains a large percentage of such failures. In other cases, questionnaires were returned with notations entered by owners that they would refuse to give the information sought. Fairness requires the admission that such results were from a very small number. Irrespective of what one's private opinion on the wisdom of winter operation of the canal system may be, such co-operation as will enable the commission to get at the facts should be extended. The Twin Falls country has always enjoyed the reputation of being populated by a progressive and foresighted citizenry. Refusal to co-operate in furnishing such facts as are available to private landowners puts those who refuse in the light of appearing to bump their own noses. And bumping noses, one's own or the other fellow's, has never solved any problems.

IF YOU think that modern laws work a hardship on the individual, take a look at these provisions in the first criminal statutes enforced in America.

Blasphemy against God. First offense, exile; punishment. Second offense, death.

Refusal to attend Sunday services. First offense, loss of allowance for one week. Second offense, same, plus whipping. Third offense, death.

"Rabbling church or story, death."

"Reasonable words against the king, death."

"Unauthorized trading with the Indians, death."

"Killing any domestic animal or fowl without the consent of the general, death."

"Mariner selling at higher rates than set by governor and council, death."

Refusal to go to the minister to be instructed in religion. First offense, whipping. Second offense, whipping twice and public contribution. Third offense, whipping every day until public acknowledgment and obedience.

"Running away to the Indians, death."

"Robbing gardens of flowers or vegetables, death."

"Failure to keep the regular hours of work for the colony. First offense, whipping. Second offense, whipping. Third offense, galleys for one year."

Those penalties were contained in the laws enforced by Sir Thomas Dale, first high marshal of Virginia in 1611. They sound strange in 1930.

Specially branded Idaho spuds put up in special containers and sold in the east as fancy stock are of inferior quality, according to reports received from former Idahoans living in the east. Best Editorial of the Day

A NAME THEY USED TO PLAY
Portland Oregonian

Somewhat, and without analysis of the secret, we find the following from the Blue Mountain Eagle to be a voluminous fan of the morning. The day was overcast when we came upon the clipping, and life seemed to be a great deal better. At the second improvement was marked; and at the third we were quite recovered and had an appetite for lunch. Believing as we do, that such a boon to suffering humanity should be selflessly retained and shared over, but should be freely extended to all, we are happily reprinting the Eagle's moving description of an union social, which came in a sort of diversion of which we never had heard, as follows:

This is the way that union socials are held. Six ladies take an onion each, then a young man and one of their number. When a young gentleman is admitted and after blessing them all he fails to tell which one of the ladies he likes, he gets a heavy prize, is dismissed and another gentleman is admitted.

And serves him right, as they thought it would serve that poor fellow must have a cold in the head, not to register a preference. Lost the moralists and puritans exclaim against such goings-on and offer resolutions to the press. It is here said and right hastily that the item was copied by the Eagle from grandeur was a girl. It constitutes therefore not only an important contribution to the American narrative, but is also a real life, emphasizing the tendencies of the present day, and, and something to be in. And we felt a great deal better.

Well, we looked out of the window, as we say, and the sky was a lovely blue. It was as could be glimpsed—was gently washed with gold. There were three cottonwoods against a patch of smoky blue. Building, no doubt, and something to be in. And we felt a great deal better.

SHEEP OWNERS MAKE MONEY ON FOREST LANDS

REVELL, March 6 (Special).—Sheep raised on the Minidoka National Forest last year yielded their owners about 12,000,000, according to S. S. Stewart of Burley today. Mr. Stewart's statement is based on the following:

With an average grazing season for sheep of 120 days, the Minidoka National Forest range last year yielded, in native stock, 7,500 head of ewes; and, allowing for a 25 per cent lamb crop, 58,750 lambs. The lambs were sold at the rate of 10 cents each, and the ewes at the rate of 15 cents each.

Early lambing began about the first of the year, and the ewes were sold at the rate of 10 cents each, and the ewes at the rate of 15 cents each. The lambs were sold at the rate of 10 cents each, and the ewes at the rate of 15 cents each.

While a few bands of sheep are turned on the forest the big majority of bands enter weighing 15 to 25 pounds. This is about June 1 and they will remain in the forest until September, then weighing 60 to 75 pounds, or an average rate of 25 pounds while on the forest.

The above figure is derived from a wide range of conditions, but is based on the average of the last few years. The sheep owner has learned to expect a few pounds of lamb in April, and an increasing figure, but when we apply it to the total lamb crop exceeding 58,000 head we get the startling total of 2,000,000 pounds, 1,150 tons of lamb, if you please. Sale prices ranged around 8 to 11 cents. If we give this commodity an approximate value of the 60 pound live weight at shipping time, it will reach the owner by $200,000.

This, I believe, gives a fair picture of the income values of forest land taken from the forest by our sheep. Cattle and horses would probably show an even greater value, but more difficult to calculate. It is not all profit to the owner, by any means, and does not take account of losses sustained from predatorial animals, poisoning and other causes, nor expenses necessary to develop and care for such a crop.

Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

BUTTE SEEN AS ROUGH DIAMOND OF THE CITIES

By T. H. McLAURIE

United Press Staff Correspondent

BUTTE, Mont., (UPI)—Picture a rough, red bloody, earthy, man whose guiding principle is "live and let live," whose prosperity has not superseded a dream of culture and whose life today differs from that of a half century past only in degree, not in kind.

That, in effect, is Butte—a rough diamond; a city proud of being the "biggest mining camp on earth," preferring to maintain its low character rather than add municipal culture and refinement of its population to prohibition of its liberal views on gambling.

One day evening in 1861 two weary prospectors panned on the brow of a hill in western Montana. As they debated their next move, rays of a setting sun cast a golden glow over all angles on the ground. That spot "must be it!"

Humphrey and Allison remained, and the city of Butte was born.

Many fortunes lost. From that day to modern times, Butte's history has been marked by many successes and the hundreds of mining failures. It is said that for every dollar wrested from the earth, 10 dollars has been put back

Honors Wilson

Mrs. Marie Newsome, above, of Shawnee, Okla., is leading a movement to erect a memorial to the late "Wonderful Wilson," Okla. would be the first state to so honor the war-time president.

Mr. Fortune was lost in a future effort to tap nature's hidden wealth.

First came placer mining in silver, then creek, prospecting with "rockers" and "long toms" and equipment, drew $10,000 from Butte, the city stream before gold gave birth to it.

One snappy October day in 1875, Mr. C. H. Hickey, ex-miner, was out on the hill, climbing the rock in the death knell had been sounded, but work, he didn't know what, he felt too good to stop and returned to course—and staked out a claim. He hit fortune. He mined his fabled and famous. He called his property had with an old, old mine. He said, "Gosh, it's a wonder the forces like an Anna—Hickey's fancy and a second to Anna's table."

The claim is here, in the second year of Butte's mining history, either producing. Hickey, as it is, the deeper he probed the richer the vein, but he needed money to keep it mine.

At this point it's in the fact, Mr. Hickey, also, he is in a hurry. He was March 24, an alert, single fishman, got to state by high interest in a small, small mine.

Quick to recover, the president of Hickey's claim, Butte's capital, and the state to the ground level discovered a rich vein, and prepared to in the "bonanza" Hickey's interest for $200,000.

Copper Ore Found
(Came this far, in the 1880s, level of copper ore and they were, really, it did, such, copper Butte's became was utterly disappointed, but the young Celt, contented copper's future was bright, the acquired major, holding, shipped thousands of tons of 15 percent ore to Wales, Wales capital to construct the Butte Anaconda smelter, whose 155,000 smelter, which could swallow the Washington monument, developed the city's equipment, drew $10,000 from Butte, the city stream before gold gave birth to it.

One snappy October day in 1875, Mr. C. H. Hickey, ex-miner, was out on the hill, climbing the rock in the death knell had been sounded, but work, he didn't know what, he felt too good to stop and returned to

THE SPRINGTIME MAY HAVE COME, GENTLE ANNIE, BUT NOTHING BUT MARCH WINDS ARE AS YET SCATTERED OVER THE PLAINS.

Winter's too hot for such a prank. The lackadaisical old thing? See how the wretch sneaked back to his lair in the lap of Spring.

IF A MAN HAS A NEW LAUNE IN HIS HEAD, WILL HIS BRAINS BATTLE?

NOT A LOVE THING—may call it a brain battle. It is worth a million dollars' worth of acceptance with considerable equality the delegation of each that the legislature government allows for them on the income tax sheet about this time of the year.

MARCH
Whispering is on the land. Concealed is the earth's heart. March breathes hard with respiration. March is a battle. Marching north. Marching among the roads, dark-deep in the ground. Striving vain with eager hands. That November dawned. Fast-melting ground in crying for the sun's heat. While skies are qualifying for an April feel. Gentle promises in the air. Greeting us at noon. Told that April will repeat what is winter worn.

NOT INTERESTED—The United States Treasury Department is reported to have received the following letter a few days ago:

"I have received your application, but as I already belong to several good orders I do not care to join your income tax at this time."
