Heads Lawyers in New Wet Attack
The Eighteenth Amendment was recently ratified. That is what a committee of the New York County Lawyers' Association, headed by former Supreme Court Justice Daniel F. Cohalan, have decided. They will argue before the United States Supreme Court that national prohibition is in defiance of the Tenth Amendment of the Constitution, which safeguards the rights of states and individuals against any extension of federal power.

Many Banners
Thousands of banners denouncing the clericals were waved along the many routes to the square. Some of these read: "We will not suffer the foreign religionists to strengthen our Red army." "The Pope is a willing tool of imperialism." "Down with the holy war machine."

The Daily Poem
By Clinton Scott
Under a tent with winding to leeward
In the dash of the foam and spray,
Swift we sweep like a scudal seawant
Out of halfway bay.
Where will the life of the morning find us?
Who can fathom it? who can say?
Dare the hearts we have left behind us
There by halfway bay.
Though we cruise to the outmost islands,
Way-to-the lands of the Far Away,
Still our hearts will be in the highlands
Guarding halfway bay.

BURDENS OF LEADERSHIP
IF IT were humanly possible to make a true appraisal of all the complex changes that have come about in this country of ours and in its relationships with other world powers during the past 20 years, we should all be amazed at the transformations effected.
We have both achieved leadership internationally and have had leadership thrust upon us. There are distinctions. Leadership yields certain values that makes it not without appeal whether to the individual or the nation, but it also just as inevitably imposes responsibilities which must be discharged. So closely are benefits and responsibilities related and intertwined that it is interesting to contemplate where the profit of one leaves off and is replaced by the burdens of the other.
One of the burdens with which we have had time to become well acquainted since the war is the apparent necessity of being envied. We have prospered in greater measure than other powers with like ranking to our own since the war, so must bear the prickings that emanate from small and large envies. Our high tariff walls give rise to keen resentment on the part of other peoples. Our insistence that our war time allies repay their debts is another source of friction between our country and some of our world neighbors.
Our standards of living have been the wonder and the envy of other countries. Our efforts to maintain these standards when stability of world commerce requires that we hiey from other peoples create complex problems. We face the necessity of keeping our own domestic market stabilized and protected, and at the same time the continued existence and expansion of our industrial machine depend on developing greater world markets for the production of our factories.
The changes thus brought about have already affected the point of view of our country and its leaders and may be expected to work even more marked changes as our relatively new position of leadership becomes more clearly defined. Great prizes are never voluntarily accorded individuals or nations without the keenest sort of competition. Because of this fundamental principle, it is assured that in greater and greater measure we shall put down our roots into the soil of other countries to maintain our present position and safeguard it with such expansions as may be required.
Even though we in Idaho are far inland as transportation and interests are computed, the fact remains that these new conditions compel us to alter our point of view to make appraisal of the new and infinitely more complex picture thus created. Wider vision, greater wisdom and eternal vigilance are required of us in greater degree than ever before to maintain our place.

BEYOND NEPTUNE
THIS LITTLE planet we call Earth has just received some thrilling news. It has found that it has a sister about whom it had never before known anything definitely. The sister is not a new sister, because she has been in existence probably some billions of years. It is reasonable to surmise that she is a dird up old lady of a sister, a cold, aloof being. Little or nothing is yet known of her orbit, but she is even farther removed from the sun than is Neptune, and Neptune is an iceberg as compared with our warm Earth.

The manner of the discovery of this ninth member of the family furnishes reason why we should dwell a little while on the vastness of things and the realms of knowledge about which the great majority of us catch only a glimpse now and then.

What, or who, for instance, we may say, found this new planet. The answer may be given that a 24-year-old photographer caught the planet on a photographic plate. He got a picture of it. The news stories admit as much but that is not the story, not by a great deal. The answer back of that is that mathematics found the planet even before the planet itself had been found. By mathematics astronomers proved it should be out there on the edge of our system somewhere. After years of study and searching they found it. Then they checked back to prove themselves correct and let the world have the story. Almost two months intervened between the time of discovery of the planet by photographs and the actual announcement of the discovery.

Neptune is 2,769,000,000 miles from the sun, and its passage around the sun requires 156 earth years. The newly discovered planet is even farther away and is thought to be larger than the earth but smaller than Uranus.
Our sun is very small as suns go. Our solar system, the one of which our special sun is the center, is a midgest system—even though the scientists estimate Neptune is nearly three billion miles from the sun!

And on the earth there are a good many millions of men and women, and a majority of them are quite convinced of their own importance in the cosmic scheme of things. Possibly they are, but they look mighty small according to some scales of distance.

HAS THE FARMER ESCAPED?
ALTHOUGH wheat prices have slumped disastrously recently, Vice President Alford Smith of the Union Trust Company of Cleveland, is authority for the statement that the farmer is not the big loser, after all.

Most wheat growers, he says, sold their crop before the slump came, and the big losers are the speculators and middlemen.

This is encouraging news—not that anyone has any grudge against the speculators and middlemen, but because the poor farmer has taken enough bumps in the last few years. If he has avoided this one, so much the better.

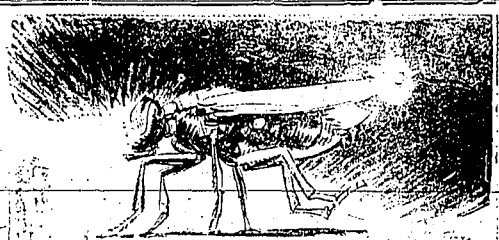

The news suggests, furthermore, that we might as well reserve judgment on the complaints that are made about the farm board's responsibility for the price decline. The wheat speculator has no love for this farm board, and nothing would please him more than to persuade the average citizen that the farm board has hurt the farmer.

OF THE TOTAL
IDAHO STATESMAN

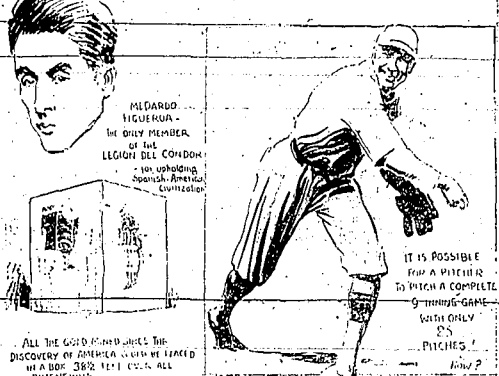

Those who have their fingers in their pockets to help support Uncle Sam with income taxes will wonder what proportion they contributed to the government's total revenue. Statistics for this year are not available, of course, but here are figures for the fiscal year of 1929 the personal income tax accounted for 27 per cent of the government's revenue, the corporate tax for 21 per cent, the tariff collections for 15 per cent, tobacco taxes for 10 per cent and proceeds from foreign obligations for 6 per cent, with the other sources of income listed as "miscellaneous."
Individual income tax returns tallied 4,851,000, which means that about one in every 10 individuals of all ages in the United States, if married, had in 1929 either a net income of $2500 or a gross income of more than $2500, or if single, had either a net income of more than $2500. There was one income tax return for every seven families in the United States.
Seventy-seven per cent of the returns filed in 1929 showed income of $5000 or less; 14 per cent of $5000 to $10,000; 6 per cent of $10,000 to $25,000; and 2 per cent of income of over $25,000. Of the total taxable net income reported, one-third was reported by the taxpayers with incomes of $2000 or less, and another one-third by the taxpayers with incomes of $25,000 or more.
However, the total income tax paid the government, the taxpayers with less than $2000 in income accounted for only 1 per cent; those with $2000 to $10,000, for 2 per cent; and those with $10,000 to $25,000, for 7 per cent. The $25,000-$100,000 income class paid 20 per cent of the total tax; the $100,000-$250,000 class paid 25 per cent; the $250,000-$500,000 class paid 25 per cent; and the $500,000 and over class paid 25 per cent.
Whatever one may say about the justice or injustice of the income tax, the figures in the foregoing paragraph may be respectfully referred to those who contend "the little fellow" is compelled to bear an unjust proportion of the total burden.

Shoshoni Zeb! Married The Bible
Shoshoni Zeb! was the most famous of the Pacific Northwest. A mystic and a charlatan, he was joined his Jewish brethren by his "Messianic" hopes. In order to lead "weight" to the peninsula, he had pretended against his parents, with great pomp the festival of his marriage to the Bible. The ceremony of "Salvage" Greece, turned out to attend the solemn ceremony.
Shoshoni Zeb! "creakily" adopted Mohammedanism to escape punishment at the hands of the Sultan of Turkey.

Better Radio Reception Is Predicted for 1930

BY ISAAC KLEIN

Radio reception is going to be better this year than it has been in the last seven or eight years.

Sun spots have declined almost to a minimum and their interference on radio waves has subsided with the decline.

In the tremendous heat waves of the sun there have been vast fire whirlwinds of gas, radiating stretching thousands of miles by width across the surface and throwing electrical emanations millions of miles outward. These electrical emanations have struck the upper atmosphere of the earth, and have caused serious magnetic storms.

These magnetic storms have radio communication extremely difficult and sometimes impossible.

In 1927, when sun spots were at their greatest, the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey and engineers of the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington counted 83 days of magnetic storms. It has been impossible to receive signals from ships at short distances.

Stop Foreign Programs

Magnetic storms recently have defeated attempts to relay broadcast programs from England and Germany on short wave lengths by kicking up severe interference. These storms are not to be confused with the static which is electrical disturbance in the atmosphere during bad weather. One or the other of these.

The two combined make for a reception interference.

Sun spots come in cycles of 11 years duration, astronomers have observed. From a period of almost no activity they increase to a maximum and then decline. The years of extreme disturbance, such as occurred during 1927, which happened to be the closest of the present cycle. This activity has declined since, until now it is reaching its most quiet stage. In 1931 sun spots will be at a minimum.

Less Trouble This Year

As a result of this decline, we may expect much better results from long distance communication than we have experienced in the history of this branch of wireless. We will have much less magnetic storms to interfere with trans-Atlantic broadcasting, and expect to see the first trans-Atlantic broadcast perhaps only 10 days of it throughout the year. This is quite favorable compared with the stormy days of 1927.

This gives us a great deal of hope," says C. W. Johnson, manager of the National Broadcasting Company, "and a brightening spell during which scientists and engineers will actively pursue their investigations and perhaps find a way of overcoming the responsible behavior."

Magnetic storms affect not only wireless, but even land line communications at such sensitive points of relay, leaves a strong strain to observe the faintest signals they receive the signal strength of long waves.

Simply, however, does not affect the signal strength, but interferes in the form of a crackling noise by robbing the power of broadcasting stations. These four causes of interference have caused some of the worst of the trouble.

It has been the custom in Washington to receive the sun spot data from the U. S. Coast and Geodetic Survey.

Producer of "Birth of a Nation" Now at Work on Gorgeous Spectacle of Color and Replete with Great Scenes

BY DANIEL THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD, Calif.—If you enjoyed that famous picture, "The Birth of a Nation," and who didn't, that great picture director is now working on "Abraham Lincoln," now nearing completion under the guidance of W. W. Griffith, is reminiscent of "The Birth of a Nation" in more ways than one.

Like the earlier film, it revolves about the Civil War, which it is being filmed in a large studio.

And, like the first, it is a well-told, stirring history in the blood and being the picture of the life of a great man.

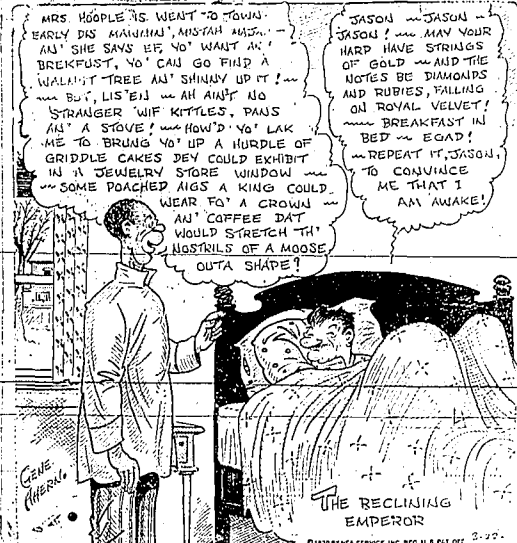

All of this is by way of saying that "Abraham Lincoln" is apt to make quite a splash when it is released.

Just as the gallant champion, although in his white robes, on a dark sky, because an eagle, was the first picture to be shown in color, so "The Birth of a Nation" is the first picture to be shown in color.

Stephen Vincent Benet, the poet, has written the story and dialogue for the picture. Mr. Griffith traces the life of Lincoln from the Indiana boy, who grows up to be a great man, to the day when he is shot.

Woman in Montana Dies at Age of 103

ANACONDA, Mont., March 21.—A woman who had been born for 103 years passed away here for Mrs. Elizabeth Skiffington, Anaconda's oldest resident.

The centenarian died following a long illness. She was born in County Wick, Ireland, in 1827, and came to America 12 years later.

Often she recalled the pre-war times in Ireland and told of the troubles and hardships of the land of birth.

Mrs. Skiffington's excellent health, mental ability, physical vitality and good humor amazed friends and neighbors for years.

JAPS NOT WORRIED ABOUT WAR SCARE

TOYOYO (UPI)—Official Japanese spokesmen today are not worried about China's latest war scare.

The recent exchange of telegrams between Chiang Kai-shek, head of the national government, and the Japanese government, of which the latter, according to official spokesmen, led to an extensive war, hostilities on a major scale likely will not start before the end of the month.

An official spokesman told the United Press that the Japanese government is not surprised if differences between the two leaders are adjusted. He said that the Japanese government is not surprised if differences between the two leaders are adjusted.

DEVICE PREVENTS PRISON OUTBREAK

BOSTON, March 22 (UPI)—A figure in the striped suit of a convict climbed stealthily through darkness to the top of a prison wall, and then, with a single leap, he was gone.

The figure clumped. Electric gates opened. Glistening beams of light from the guard tower scanned the prison grounds.

Edwin H. Volder of East, Pa., 21-year-old inventor, has been awarded a patent for a device which he has named "The Electric Eye."

The device is designed to prevent prisoners from breaking jail.
