12 KILLED IN ACCIDENTS AT CROSSINGS

Naval Delegates Await Japanese Reply, Hope for 3 Power Treaty

Italy and France Still Unable to Agree, and Only a Miracle Will Save Five Power Conference.

LONDON, March 24.—(UPI)— Unless the French and Italian delegates surprise the London naval conference by coming to some agreement on parity, Great Britain, America, and Japan, to the only possible task will turn, by the end of the month—a tripartite agreement.

DOHENY RESTING PREPARATORY TO HOMeward TRIP

Demonstration Planned After "Freeing of Oil Magnetic Fox."

Young Return to California; Fall Remains at Texas Home

WASHINGTON, March 24 (UPI)— Free of the charge of bribery, Edward L. Doheny, California oil man rested here today in preparation for a triumphant return to El Paso.

It was understood a demonstration was planned for him in Los Angeles.

A jury in District of Columbia court last night voted to grant a hearing Saturday to return a verdict of not guilty in the trial of the oilman, the government claimed gave him "advice and assistance" in his American project, was acquitted yesterday.

"They view this as the form of American-American project," he said.

Breakdown of the Japanese party has left Japan as a strong strategic position to extract the limits of its concessions. Both England and the United States have held hearings on the absence of the true cause of the fall of the five-power pact, Japan had within her power to prevent.

Then after Japan had argued there are some obstacles—for instance, is what number of its constituents in Great Britain and America need to be satisfied?

Fall, ill at his home in El Paso, Tex., was convicted last fall of charges of bribing Ishamay and Doheny.

He had been paying five years and his trial was the last of the series of seven trials resulting from the so-called investigation of circumstances surrounding the leasing of the Elk Hills, Calif., naval oil reserve field.

Fourteen Event Program Concluded—Before Crowd of 25,000 Persons, Richest Stake in the World Is Involved

AGUA CALIENTE, Mex., March 23 (UPI)—Only a few strangers remained at the track when an excited crowd of 25,000 persons watched the first $100,000 Ann Caledonia handcap—world's richest racing event.

Imported airplane service and a team of four horses from Los Angeles carried most-of-the-action-away yesterday at the close of the 14-day racing program.

Victorian, 5-year-old son of Whisker, had a new record set for the Ann Caledonia course by running the mile and a quarter (two minutes, three and one-fifth seconds).

The victory was worth $105,000 to the Warm Stable, including a $5,000 gift to Jockey George Ellin and a similar sum for Victorian's trainer, J. J. Taylor.

Two lengths behind the winner raced Alexander Puntingo, entered by the Carrollton stable, and from the same stable came in third, and W. C. and E. W. Hickner's My Dandy was fourth.

C. meets, and their showing was not unexpected.

Along with 62 and J. W. Porter, among the first year aspirants of Twin Falls took first in the all-titles are several young prospects.

Prizes were awarded the winners, but he has yet to prove his high places following the first, his ability in the more strenuous journey. Consolation prizes are being competition. Doubtless, too, the future of the game in the high schools of the country.

the high standards in the local teams.

The Daily Poem

LENTEN MUSINGS

By Ida Walton Thomas, in "Contemporary American Poets," published by the Stratford Co.
I am my maker made me.
He gave me life and soul,
Thought I was well worth world began—
An atom of His fiery plan.
To help complete the whole,
I can do all He asks me;
He never asks for more.
This is the plan given to me by my
The strength I need He will supply
If I for help implore.
I must be true and faithful,
He clean and pure command,
Be thoughtful, sympathetic,
Be merciful, not critical,
Be beautiful and kind.
I will thank you each morning
For the strength I have
What our Father asks of me
Through the vial I cannot see,
But I will trust and obey.

HOLDING THE LINE

ACTION taken by the Grange at its Friday meeting in Filer seeking rigid enforcement of the state noxious weed laws during 1930 merely goes to demonstrate again the progressive spirit of farmers on this tract which is so well known as to be taken as a matter of course by an overwhelming majority of us.

The display of awareness of the importance of this problem of noxious weed control such as has been shown by our farmers for several years merits something more, however, than merely being taken for granted.

It should be a source of more than a little satisfaction that the capacity for teamwork and co-operation such as is possessed by farmers in this part of the state in checking noxious weeds has furnished an example of effective control for districts in other states. From the leading agricultural county in Oregon something more than a year ago a delegation of some half dozen made a trip of 400 miles or more to study at first-hand the results secured in this county in fighting weeds.

That Oregon county has suffered from the presence of weed pests much longer than has Twin Falls county, but application of the latest effective methods in getting control of the pests was made here.

The example set at Friday's meeting needs to be followed by every farmer on the tract. While the percentage of those co-operating in this work is very high, it can not be said that sufficient is volunteered by 100 per cent of our farmers. There are those who do not realize the importance of ridding our lands of such weed pests as have established themselves in some areas and of being alert to prevent them from becoming established on areas now free. Such a spirit of negligence where it does exist is little less than criminal.

Of the several factors that have contributed to the outstanding agricultural accomplishments of this irrigated district of Idaho, the spirit of initiative and progress of our farmers is far from being the least. It is good to know that this spirit not only lives but grows stronger.

RALLYING TO BUTTER

ONE of the indications of a silver lining to a cloud that has some darkness of hue is the amount of publicity that has seen the light of day in Idaho recently about the necessity of being loyal to one of our most important products, butter. Hardly a newspaper in the state but has had something to say about the failure of Idahoans to use butter in the volume they should. The following is from the Shoshone Journal:

"There is a fact side and a figure side to this butter market problem as affected by the sale of butter substitutes."

The figure side is that a million and a quarter pounds of oleomargarine and other substitutes were sold in the state of Idaho alone in 1929. This represented a per capita average of 2½ pounds per person, and at the prices for which butterfat sold constituted an economic loss of a half million dollars. As an actuality, however, because of the indirect phases involved the loss must have been considerably greater.

The fact side is that physical damage is being done humankind with the omission of butter from the daily diet. Butter just about tops the list of all food items when it comes to nutritive value. When this is replaced by "monkey food" which serves to fill rather than to nourish, some rather hard-earned economy is being exercised.

It is hard to believe the assertion that sellers of butterfat have been among the heaviest users of substitutes. If they have been, it is to be hoped they have learned a lesson. Butter is a friend worthy of loyalty.

It may be hard to believe that butter is discriminated against by the very part of our population that produces it, as the esteemed Journal says, "but there's so much smoke over the subject" that it seems that butter has been "knifed" in the sense of being passed up for substitutes. Here's hoping the practice is being discontinued.

An idea of the value that is attached to the work of the Southern Idaho Fish & Game association is reflected in the fact that its membership drive has netted 800 members and that an effort is being made to increase this figure to 1,000. A country may be desirable as a place to live even if it offers no attractions in fishing and hunting, but the adding of these sports is well worth while to a great big percentage of the population.

Today's air castle: Wish I had a dollar for every blister made by farmers in Twin Falls county as a result of resumption of spring work.

Spring wind that sings so loud a song, we wish you'd hike yourself along and leave the sunshine in full sway to sweeten pleasure in our day. March always makes us feel that way.

WELL'S WORLD FEDERATION

PDXLND OREGONIAN

Federation of the world is the main aim of the League of Nations, as well as Well's and the division of mankind into many national states has been rendered obsolete by modern communication, travel, transportation, commerce, which have rendered the international boundaries of the world almost irrelevant in contrast between states and individuals of different status as observed by their boundaries and all that these committee-armed patrols, tariff, diplomatic and other methods of separating the world have drawn across the globe crisscrossing in its political division. But only a small proportion of the people in each state realize this to be the case, and the public fails to realize that in our national associations and organizations in our own race, language, customs, and in desire to live like themselves in a state of their own, but in dispute of other nations and that this is associated with their national pride.

Most progress in interwar among nations had been made before the world war and was expected to prevent such a catastrophe. But notwithstanding this the world still retained the independence of people and nations and the demand for self-determination of peoples. This hope was expressed that the mingling of American soldiers with the British, French and Australian soldiers to form a combined and friendly force would not be successful among these nations, but it did not. The Americans on their return seemed to be thinking only of the points they disliked about "la belle France" and "la belle Britain" while the English and French were thinking only of the points they liked.

The hope of the French that they would make a lot of little peace treaties with our former friends and enemies. Every time they get up, it is noticed that they have a new hat, but they have yet to do a little bit of boasting, of boats, of millions, billions.

They claim that I obtained (in the Versailles treaty) everything I could reasonably be expected to obtain—they say to me, "You should have broken with Wilson." I nearly lost my life in Paris. Forty-eight hours before the ratification of the treaty (which ended the world war), I nearly got killed by General Gouraud (the British prime minister) wanted two years of occupation of Mesopotamia, as it was arranged by Wilson (the American president) arranged the peace.

Most of the volume in which Marx, who occupies a position in China, to that of secretary to Chiang Kai Shek, is summarized in conversations of a general nature. Premier is devoted to similar paragraphs. Clemenceau was describing his life as an old man who was not afraid of death, his reward for 50 years of rigorous political life. His version of the failure of the Treaty of Versailles was that the failure of manpower behind him was a clear presentation of his own mind.

"Greece should have been more to do with it," he told Marley in reciting his successors' failure.

SISTERS CLAIM GREAT FORTUNE

Southern Women Expect to Get Share of Four Hundred Million Next October

NEW ORLEANS, (UPI)—Children the fortune it has not expected for many years, the share of William Jennings, 19th century English banker, has turned again in the eyes of his heritage seeking descendants.

Four New Orleans sisters claim that settlement of the accrued estate, now amounting to $100,000,000, will be made in October, and they will share $700,000 of it.

The sisters are Mrs. Thomas Stites, wife of a stockbroker, Mrs. Anna Koenig, whose husband is a trainer of racehorses, Mrs. Edith Kalter, who operates a dairy with her husband, and Mrs. Sam Linton, widow of a former banker.

They are planning how best to spend their fortune.

Over a century ago, descendants of the late Sir John-Jones, metallurgist in Dickens' "Black House," have sought to trace their lineage, and the descendants of the honest old Willmott, who names failed to make a will, and a conservative estimate gives 500 in the number who will share in the estate if it ever settled.

Reputation Is a Store's
Most Valuable Asset.

"Reputation is the most valuable asset any store can have. It is more valuable than the location or the stock on the shelves. If it hasn't a reputation for dresses, it can't sell dressed. If it hasn't a reputation for rugs, it can't sell them."

"There is nothing that can give a store more publicity and build up a department (provided the merchandise is satisfactory) than OUTDOOR ADVERTISING."

People who go into a store to buy merchandise do so because they feel they have the specific need for a certain article and they go to that store which has impressed them to buy that merchandise by its reputation."
