POPE DISCUSSES CAMPAIGN ISSUES AT MEETING HERE

Boise Mayor Tells of Hoover's Promises Four Years Ago

RIDICULES FARM RELIEF PROGRAM

Dwells on Growth of Federal Taxes Amounting to 05 Per Cent

James P. Pope, mayor of Boise, and Democratic candidate for the United States senate, addressed an audience of 600 or more in Legion Memorial hall Thursday evening on the issues of the present campaign and received manifest approval in his claims to election over Senator John Thomas.

He was introduced by Dan J. Cavanagh, Democratic county chairman, who presented also a number of county and legislative candidates. A band supplied musical selections and previous to the meeting paraded through the streets, collecting a throng to the auditorium.

Announcement Made

Mrs. E. J. Malone made an announcement on behalf of the Twin Falls County Democratic Women's club, stating Mrs. Reese Hadenbaugh, and Mrs. Frank DeRay, would be principal speakers at the last meeting of the club previous to election at the Baptist hunger, Saturday afternoon of this week at 2:30 o'clock. All women were invited to attend the affair.

Mayor Pope revealed his attitude on government spending and asked the listeners to judge him on the basis of his stand during an equal opportunity for all in the benefits of government.

Praises Champion

He paid a tribute to Orr Chapman, his rival in the primary, for the nomination, which being won, he said he was anxious to see the Democratic national, state and county tickets.

"I'm sometimes hard of distinguishing between Republicans and Democrats," he said, and deplored the attitude of which "different states" then had before election time.

"We are being urged to support the present national administration on the theory that conditions would be worse if we dodged, and therefore I am asked to support conditions confronting 12,000,000 unemployed and their families.

"Many people are now drifting under Hoover's Digest Prosperitarism," he said in speaking of the jungle towns, which have grown up around every city.

"He contracted these conditions amid a land of plenty where nature and man had done their parts, creating the failure to overcome the problem of distribution was manifestly man-made, and that "I look to this man as the responsible element of humanity, to rescue ourselves from this unfulfilling situation under the leadership of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Recalls Promises

He recited the promises of candidate Hoover of four years ago and asked, "Did he fulfill them?"

EMINENT AUTHOR SOUNDS WARNING

World Faces Disaster Unless Things Change Says

A. E. Wiggam

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, (UP)—Universal disaster and civilization unless humanity applies the same scientific ingenuity which has substituted the wheel for the ox cart, to the problems of political and economic problems, Albert Edward Wiggam, noted author and lecturer, told the Educational association last night.

In contrast with universal failure, Wiggam said, that "the fact of Wiggam said, that "our social, political and economic processes are manifestly inferior as applied and power and wheel are."

"We not yet civilized as actually or potentially we might be, and that civilizations have run away with this great industrial machine, Frankenstein, which we have created without applying to their wage systems, their taxation systems, their monetary systems, their political systems, the same scientific method that created the machine."

Recounting the history of the rise of the race, he said, "Every body has agreed, civilized have at least two evils, poverty and war, but it a man hard little sense, I would give him two votes, if he substituted tube and brain power for muscle power, if he would work for the public good, if he could confer on him four or five votes."

17,000 HEAR PONS 'LUCIA'

A new record for grand opera attention was set in San Francisco when Lily Pons starred in "Lucia" in the War Memorial Opera House crowded to its 3,000 capacity. 14,000 others listened by remote control in the Civic Auditorium and amphitheater and overflow crowd of several hundred in the City Center. TEACHERS FROM EIGHT COUNTIES HEAR ADDRESSES

A. L. Merrill, Pocatello, and W. D. Vincent, Boise, Speak Friday

ENROLLMENT AT NOON OF FIRST DAY IS 550

"Be Thankful for Your Job," Lawyer Admonishes His Listeners

Superintendents and principals and faculty members of high and grade schools of eight counties, Bingham, Camas, Cassia, Goodding, Jerome, Lincoln, Minidoka and Twin Falls counties, assembled in Twin Falls high school auditorium Friday morning for the opening session of the annual convention of the Idaho Education association, district No. 4. They heard two forceful addresses on the attitude of educators, particularly in this time of stress.

President Speakers

W. D. Vincent, Boise, commissioner of education, and A. L. Merrill, Pocatello, president of the district convention speaker, addressed the delegates. Attorney Merrill gave a second address Friday afternoon.

Enrollment at noon Friday was 550, according to Miss Eva Dunagan, registrar, C. D. Morrill, principal of Gooding high school, presided as chairman of the district. The convention closes Saturday afternoon.

"Be Thankful for Job"

"Be thankful for your job and the opportunity to work. You are not the only group and the only class affected by the depression," Attorney Merrill challenged his audience. "If American civilization is to stand, the fundamental principles of popular government must be taught. It is the essential duty of you educators to teach children to believe that this is the best type of government on earth, a government of expression and direction of public opinion, and the duty of the legal profession to keep adults reminded of the same principles. Popular government is organized self control.

"The theory of popular government has made possible your job and mine. The depression is temporary."

PRINCIPALS AT ROYAL WEDDING

Two of Europe's oldest royal families were linked in the wedding of Coburg, Germany, of Crown Prince Gustaf-Adolph of Sweden and Sybille Culms, daughter of the duke and duchess of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha. Hitler's swastika was displayed in all its glory in honor of the occasion. Thousands of Nazis gathered in the city to pay their respects to the couple, who some day may occupy Sweden's throne.

Hoosier Metropolis Agog Over Visit of Hoover and Ritchie

Activity Hums in Indianapolis; Both Will Speak

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (UP)—The city hummed today with political activity as thousands of Republican and Democratic gathered, the Republicans for President Hoover's address tonight, the Democrats for a rival speech by Gov. Albert C. Ritchie of Maryland.

Delegations from all over the state were arriving for the meetings at, one of which the President is expected to address 20,000 persons at the Butler University field house. Many prominent Republicans including Gov. Harry G. Leslie and Senator James E. Watson and Arthur R. Robinson will board the President's special train as it enters Indiana and accompany him here.

Parade Planned

The President will be given a parade from the station to the home of Gov. Leslie where he will be a dinner guest. Mounted troops will escort the President, including the famed Black Horse battery troop from Culver military academy.

While President Hoover's meeting is being held at the field house on the city's edge, Governor Ritchie will address a Democratic rally at downtown Cadle tabernacle.

BATTLE RAGES

WASHINGTON, D. C., (UP) President Hoover moved into the middle-west today in his fourth campaign drive for the important electoral votes of that area while from coast to coast other political warriors sharpened their thrusts in the battle for the doubtful states.

The partisan attacks, rapidly increasing in heat, included a charge by the Republican national committee that James A. Farley, Democratic executive chairman, had sought a campaign contribution from a Canadian business man. Farley replied was a political charge that Republican national headquarters "has issued a forged document purporting to come from me."

Former Governor Alfred E. Smith, charging Republican delay in formulating an economic program, opened the final Democratic drive in the New England section in his Boston speech tonight. He appealed for "full and complete support for Frank Roosevelt and John Garner." Meanwhile, Governor Franklin D. Roosevelt conferred at Albany, N. Y., today with advisers, preparatory to his swing into New England. He also decided to conclude his campaign for the presidency with a whirl-

BANKS IN IDAHO PREPARING FOR MONDAY OPENING

Final Details Being Completed Says R. F. C. Representative

BOISE (UP)—"Every preparation is being made for the reopening of the First National bank on Monday morning though a definite statement is being held up until the last detail of the work of preparation is complete," said Jay Leftoy, representative of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, Friday afternoon at the bank.

Mr. Leftoy had just finished a half hour conversation with Washington, D. C., and said he had told the office of the comptroller of currency and the Reconstruction Finance corporation the same thing.

"It may be 12 or 1 o'clock tonight, or even 2 a. m. before every last detail is worked out, but we do not want to disappoint people by saying the bank will open Monday, and then not open it Monday," Mr. LeRoy said.

With the selection of Homer Pierce, San Francisco banker, as executive vice-president in charge of the reopening bank, all matters of reorganization have been completed by the committee which has worked ceaselessly for several weeks, successfully overcoming all barriers of refinancing and depositors agreements to "freeze" their accounts for a short time to protect any persons run when the institution reopens.

Eight of the branch banks affiliated with the Boise bank will reopen simultaneously, the remaining one at Yale, Oregon, being consolidated with the Ontario, Oregon, bank.

Roosevelt Far Ahead In Presidential Poll

Democrat Maintains 3-2 Advantage in Digest Vote

NEW YORK, (UP)—Tabulation of nearly 3,000,000 ballots in the Literary Digest nation-wide poll shows President Hoover is a ratio of 3 to 2 in the total vote, and "certains" 41 states to his opponent's seven, the magazine announced tonight.

President Hoover showed a slight gain over the previous tabulation, and the vote in New York state continue to be closer than any other, with Roosevelt less than 10,000 ballots ahead out of approximately 325,000 votes cast.

The race is also close in Delaware, where Roosevelt's lead of one vote last week was cut to 176 today.

Several states where the vote is close, the Literary Digest points out, "may be fairly classed as doubtful" and may appear in the opposite column on November 8.

The seven states still held by the President in this poll are: Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, and New Jersey.

Western state results include:	Hoover	Roosevelt

Preliminary data for the October survey showed the trend back to work continuing at the September rate.

'HAPPY WARRIOR' TALKS TO 20,000

Alfred E. Smith Asks Voters To Support Roosevelt And Garner

BOSTON, Mass. (UP) The unqualified, full and complete support of Franklin D. Roosevelt and John N. Garner was asked of the voters of Massachusetts late night by Alfred E. Smith in an address to 20,000 of his followers.

The former New York governor's speech, made with his characteristic vigor, denounced the Republican administration, attacked President Hoover's Detroit speech, defended his previous utterance charging the Republican management with "bigotry," and urged all Democrats to support the national ticket.

"I am not satisfied with that Chicago convention," Smith declared, "and I know you were not satisfied with it, but I have to. We settle those troubles in our party. We don't want any advice, and above everything else, we want no sympathy from Senator Moses or from his Republican cohorts."

FAMOUS WOMAN SPENDER PASSES

Mrs. J. J. Brown, Prominent In Eastern City

NEW YORK, (UP) — Funeral services for Mrs. J. J. Brown—"the unfortunate Mrs. Brown"—an international figure for more than 30 years and lavish spender of a $25,000,000 fortune her husband wrested from the mines of Leadville, Colo., "will be held Sunday at the home of her daughter at Bedmead, L. I.

The passing of the widow of the fabulous "Leadville Johnny" Brown after a spectacular and sometimes turbulent career of 53 years, was scarcely marked by thousands who had watched, breathlessly, her triumphal course a few years ago, through the capitals of Europe.

Born to the rigorous life of a mining camp, she died Tuesday to leave only a few modest thousands of her once great fortune.

It was the "little Johnny" mine at Leadville, that brought fame and fortune to the red-haired mining camp girl who married Capt. J. J. Brown, geologist, prospector and rumor. The "little Johnny" in turn brought fortune to original man who asked the claim "don't know how to spell 'Johnny'." Hard luck accompanied notice when its owners took from it, in the space of a few years, approximately $3,000,000 in gold.

Younger-Players Not Always in Shape For Contests

By JOHN LAW
Former Notre Dame Football Captain

NEW YORK, (UP)—The contests of the present season reveal strikingly the necessity of proper preparation for athletes playing this game.

Eighteen deaths have resulted directly or indirectly from football injuries throughout the nation; yet not a single fatality came from college games, virtually all the deaths originated in prep school or sand lot contests.

While the new rules changes are proving beneficial to the game, eliminate the hazards of intercollegiate play, as they are being strictly enforced in college competition, they are by no means entirely responsible for the lop-sided death toll between college and non-college contests.

Lack of adequate preparation among athletes participating in prep school and sand lot competition always is a big factor.

Without more attention to preparation, this toll will increase annually because more and more young chaps are playing the game. As in traffic accidents where more people are being exposed to hazards than in years gone by, more people are driving automobiles, so with football. Incompetent, green drivers and improperly physically conditioned players increase the hazard.

Semi-professional football teams, almost without exception, are properly prepared physically and mentally to avoid accident risks; high school

NEIGHBORS PAY FARMER'S DEBT

Enough Money Raised to Renew Notes; Auction Is Called Off

BONNER SPRINGS, Kans. (UP) — A visitor at the Harold Piper farm today would notice nothing strange, but he came yesterday.

Some 300 persons were gathered before the modest Piper home in the yard were 40 head of dairy cattle posted on a sale, was a "forced sale" notice.

An auctioneer was present. He was ready to sell the possessions of Harold Piper. After the sale, well, Piper didn't know what he and Mrs. Piper and the six children, ranging from Dorothy, 17, to Dr. R. H. Hayes attracted the attention of the crowd. He said he was a friend of the other neighbors and had been "thinking".

"A little money would renew these notes," Dr. Hayes said.

Men—neighbors—passed through the crowd collecting money. Enough was obtained to meet the notes. What had been planned as a sale turned into a picnic.

Harold Piper went about his work today, as usual.

COFFIN TO RETURN HERE NEXT MONTH

Democratic Congressional Nominee On Same Platform With Smith

Thomas O. Coffin, Democratic candidate for congress, was at Twin Falls visitor Friday afternoon, on route to Glenns Ferry for a campaign address that evening. He spoke at Buhl, Sperling the night before, sharing the platform with his opponent, Congressman Compton I. White.

Mr. Coffin will return to this section, again before election, speaking on Nov. 4, at Jerome and at Buhl the night of Saturday, Nov. 5.

At Soda Springs, he says, the Republicans have a candidate for the local Democratic congressional, there had engaged the auditorium for a meeting, but the hall had been taken by the Republicans, having both been filled in Soda Springs, the town of the same name, Mr. Coffin said, he was forced to accompanying Mr. Smith was Oscar Bottolfsen, Caribou, Republican candidate for lieutenant-governor, and Mr. Smith was introduced by Democratic nominee for a governor, Inspector General Bottolfsen, who spoke first, said that Mr. Coffin is generally regarded as the Republican congressional candidate, but that Mr. Coffin's opponent, Mr. White, following the Republican convention, had gone to Soda Springs, saying he had been nominated by the Democrats, and had asked the Democrats to withdraw their candidate, Mr. Coffin, in favor of Mr. White. Mr. Coffin said he had told the people that he had been nominated by the Democratic convention, and that he was the Democratic candidate, and that he would remain in the race.

County Political Issues Clarified in Statement

Former Republican County Attorney Objects to Arguments advanced by Campaigner Against Present Board of Commissioners

By J. W. TAYLOR, Buhl Attorney
In Recent Public Address Here

In the course of the political campaign being waged by the Republican party to secure the election of some of the offices from which its representatives were removed by the people's mandate two years ago, there have been made some criticism of the present Democratic officers, reflecting upon their official conduct and the wisdom or desirability of their actions. I will discuss some of these criticisms and endeavor to show whether they are ill-founded or unfair.

It has been urged against the present county commissioners that they have charged and received from the county payment for their mileage in traveling to and from the county seat to attend meetings of the board. It has been also called this matter to our attention with some spirit of indignation. First of all, I may say that in charging such mileage, the present commissioners have simply followed the custom established and maintained for a number of years by all of the Republican commissioners who preceded them. Upon taking office, they merely assumed that their Republican predecessors had observed the law, and without making any inquiry or inquiry, followed the same practice. The custom is attacked at this time, not as a custom upheld by our good Republican friends for a number of years, but apparently with the purpose of making it appear as a Democratic assault on the treasury.

Lawyer Disagree

Attorneys disagree on the interpretation of the statute which controls such charges. The opinion of the Republican attorney general, which is in effect, holds Mr. Swetgy is in fault somewhat under notice, as in one part it says that such a charge is not proper, and in another states that county commissioners have a right to collect for their mileage in the same as other county officers. The attorney general admits that the statute was passed in the horse-and-buggy age, when it was not probable or even possible for people to travel so much as they do now, and in days when it was not expected that commissioners would travel at all and forth from the county seat frequently. The attorney generally opinion is, of course, only the opinion of a lawyer, is often mistaken.

NOTRE DAME'S COACH EXPECTS WIN OVER PITT

Irish Unlikely to Undergo Test Until Northwestern Struggle

By GEORGE KIRKSEY
United Press Staff Correspondent

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (UP)—The acid test has yet to arrive for the Notre Dame football team, but from available evidence the nation's football capital will be transferred from Los Angeles back to South Bend.

Notre Dame won its first three games with ridiculous ease from Haskell, Drake and Carnegie Tech and comes down to the Pittsburgh games this week undefeated, untied, and unscored on.

Team Confident

Some weeks ago it was thought the Pitt game would give Notre Dame its first real battle of the year, but the Irish players now reaches left for Pittsburgh Thursday night confident of taking the Panthers without undue exertion. Pitt's screcelss tie with Ohio state last week disainpted much of the glamour previously built up around the easterners.

Pittsburgh's passes may bother us a little," said Coach Hearty Anderson, "and they may even score on us, but from the reports my scouts have turned into me they haven't enough power to give our line any trouble. We'll outscore them and win."

So from all appearance Notre Dame won't get its first scare until the Northwestern game November 12.

Real Strength Unknown

Notre Dame's real strength must remain an unknown quantity until they meet a major foe. Any attempt to rate the Irish on their first three games may be a bit premature. The Irish may be much stronger than they showed in those games.

An inkling of just how much sheer power the Irish possess may be conveyed from the figures on those three games. They rolled up 177 points, gained 1535 yards on 167 plays or an average of 7½ yards every time the ball was snapped. Fourteen different players figured in the scoring, and from 35 to 40 players were used in each game.

For numerical strength, replacements and balanced power this year, Notre Dame squad may be the peak of perfection. If there is a weak spot in the Notre Dame ranks, it is not now apparent.

If you saw Coach Anderson the difference between this year's team and last year's he nightly answers: "They play faster and have more experience."

A Little Grid Action on Two Western Fronts

A forward pass to Castro after touchdown gave University of California the one point that beat the Husky.

BRUINS OPPOSE NAMPA ELEVEN

Friday's Game Begins at 3:15 On Junction City Gridiron

NAMPA, (Special) — Although Twin Falls high school has one of the strongest teams in the Big Ten conference, the Nampa Bulldogs have hopes of defeating them when the locals invade Nampa territory Friday afternoon at 3.15 o'clock or at least they expect to put up a good battle. Twin Falls defeated Albion Normal, Burley and Pocatello. In strength the team ranks about with those.

The Bulldogs have been working all week on their offensive and defensive on their defensive which showed a weakness in the Caldwell game last week. Robinson, Orwin, Peterson, Fatsis and Hershears, Hoke will be the officials. The lineup will be the same as in last week's game, says Silvern, coach.

prosperity, that "poverty would be banished from the land," of "a chicken in every pot" and "two cars in every garage," and dwelt on the fact that the campaign was then waged by the Republican leaders on the issues of prosperity and farm relief. He exhibited a Hoover 3cent postage four years of prosperity.

"Never again can a party seriously contend that it can assure prosperity, and that its continuation in office is any guarantee of special dispensation," said the mayor. Then he quoted President Hoover in his acceptance speech which he referred to as his "Great Apology" as saying "The past three years has been a period of unprecedented calamity."

He ridiculed the accomplishments of the Hoover farm relief efforts, saying he vetoed the debenture plan, which Borah voted for and Thomas didn't; said the equalization fee bill was frustrated by the administration which passed the "iniquitous Grundy tariff bill," of which Borah said, "This does violence to the pledge to the American people."

Contrasts Votes

He contrasted this and other votes of Borah and Thomas, pointing out "they were exactly opposite where the interests of the people were concerned," and said that whenever Borah voted in the interests of the people and mankind in general, he can will be right alongside Borah. He said, "I am not talking free trade," he declared, "but I am denouncing excessive duties which have driven our manufacturers abroad, and caused tariff retaliation by 41 nations and reduced our export trade from five billions to two billions of dollars."

He said on a trip to France last year he learned that wheat was no longer being purchased there from the United States, because a retaliatory embargo had been placed against this country on account of the Grundy tariff.

Tell of Tax Growth

He told of the growth of federal taxes amounting to 65 per cent, and reviewed governmental extravagances in bounties to steamship lines carrying mail, junkets of senatorial committees, city buildings in Washington, housing 166 departments of agriculture, the increase in the number of federal employes and the growth of bureaus and commissions.

He reiterated the fact that Senators Borah and Thomas had voted exactly opposite on the matter of placing the federal electricity tax on consumers instead of on the power companies and in closing made a plea for the protection of bank deposits, pointing out that there had been no bank failure in Canada in 10 years while in this country there had been 5000 during a similar period and 2200 in 1931 under the present administration.

TODAY'S SPORTS PARADE

NEW YORK, (UP)—Lost: one football bandwagon, answering to the name of Ben Dreyfuss. When last seen he was sulking through the Long Island valley, battling factory workers, a crack shot, a piston rod and a pair of blue serge pants, and timeline last. Probably wearing a coal black cigar. Wears an 8½ shoe and likes parsley.

Finder will be rewarded with three (3) stalled trucks, one guy which open and shut eyes, and return ticket, from Malden, Massachusetts, where Chinese are outraging daily.

But he must be returned alive, able to go about the business of picking winners. We want no part of it. The tomfool when we got down to bat for the professional last week. They fired (both barrels) when the returns came in, showing that we had missed eight out of twenty-nine guesses, for an average of .690, which reduced the department's average for the season to .729, not exactly a figure to be proud about.

Experience being the best teacher, or as well as the mother of invention, we will do a better job this week. Too, there are not so many tough ones to call.

Notre Dame vs. Pittsburgh—If you hear of any Pitt money, phil, lemme know.

N. Y. U. vs. Purdue—The bettermakers go sentimental and pluck a victory.

Minnesota vs. Northwestern — Minnesota has a shade.

Yale vs. Dartmouth—We wouldn't pick Yale to beat Slippery Rock.

Columbia vs. Cornell—Columbia by a couple of touchdowns.

Michigan vs. Princeton—Michigan by as much as it cares.

ALBION SWAMPS HANSEN ELEVEN

ALBION, (Special) — A powerful high school football team, playing in top form, swamped the previously undefeated Hansen eleven, 32-0 Thursday, in a Class B game. Indications are that Albion, leader of the south side Class B division, will oppose Shoshone, best on the north side, for the title later in the year.

Albion scored two touchdowns in every quarter but the second, using backs and runs and an aerial attack. Hansen threatened only once, carrying the ball to the 15 yard stripe where they were held.

RICHFIELD WINS HAZELTON GAME

HAZELTON, (Special) — The Richfield football team came here Thursday and trimmed Hazelton 13-6 in a bitterly-fought contest. All the scoring was done in the third period. Richfield's touchdowns were due to an intercepted pass and a fake reverse. Hazelton's score resulted from a pass, Peterson to Barrett.

Oakley Noses Out Shoshone's Squad

OAKLEY, (Special) — Oakley, a Class A team, was forced to use every bit of its power to win from Shoshone, Class B leader, 7-6, Thursday afternoon on the local gridiron.

Using a wide variety of plays Oakley scored in the opening period. The extra point was made. Shoshone put a touchdown across in the second quarter, employing passes and line plays.

The game, hard-fought throughout, standings of the teams were different classes.

GLENNS FERRY ELEVEN VICTOR

DIETRICH, (Special) — Scoring one touchdown in the third quarter the Glenns Ferry high school football team defeated Dietrich 6-0 here Thursday.

Both teams did considerable punting and in this department Glenns Ferry did better work.

The greatest thrill of the game came when Anderson, Dietrich quarter, intercepted a pass and ran 65 yards to the goal line, but as both teams were off side the ball was called back.

Hollister Beats Wildcat Seconds

HOLLISTER, (Special) — The Filer second team went down to a 6-0 defeat before the Hollister first string Thursday. The winners employed chiefly straight football and power plays. Filer's fumbles robbed the team of several opportunities to score.

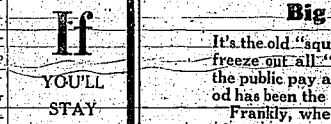
HAMPTON BEACH, N. H., (UP) — Weary wives of Hampton County farms have enjoyed unusual vacations here this year. They spent a week at the seashore, with their husbands barred from the resort.



EVERY GALLON OF GASOLINE YOU BUY FROM LIND'S IS A VOTE FOR LOWER GASOLINE PRICES.

Squeeze Lind's Out

Seems to be the Battle Cry of the Big Oil Corporations

It's the old "squeeze" game again . . . cut the price and freeze out all "troublesome" competition, then make the public pay all the cost and more. This unfair method has been the main weapon of big interests for years.

Frankly, when we dared to refuse to raise the price of gas to 26½c some months ago, we expected just what we are getting . . . but we were betting on the support of the good people of south Idaho . . . and we have been getting it.

Again We Say—

IT'S UP TO YOU

The big boys have put the price of third structure gas down again, and we expect them to drop the price of their first quality soon, as they are still 3c higher than our price.

Sooner or later they will likely offer good gas at less than we can sell it . . . then the big test will come, and we are still betting you will stay with us, because we can't stay with you if you don't.

If YOU'LL STAY WITH Us WE'LL STAY WITH You AND THE PRICE OF GASOLINE WILL STAY Down

AMERICA ACTS TO CURB SEA FLIGHTS

Publicity Stunt Hops Scored As Five Lose Lives

By RODNEY DUTCHER
NEA Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Publicity, stunt trans-oceanic flying which reached a new peak during the past five months, may be severely curtailed in the future.

The Commerce and State Departments are working out regulations designed to reduce the risk of such flights and to eliminate foolhardiness from them as far as possible.

Since May 1, 24 men, women and children have attempted to fly across the Atlantic Ocean. Only seven have succeeded. Five of the 17 who failed were lost at sea, and 10, including Colonel George Hutchison, Mrs. Hutchison and their two small daughters, were saved from a similar fate by rescues in which luck played a large part.

There ought to be a preventive regulation calling for certain qualifications of plane, plan and equipment, in addition to the probability of completing the trip, according to Colonel Clarence M. Young, assistant secretary of commerce for aeronautics, who drew up and now enforces the laws of the air.

Soon it may be necessary to obtain the Commerce Department's sanction for a transatlantic flight, with the assistant secretary empowered to use a considerable latitude of discretion.

Colonel Young has every sympathy with the experienced pilot who wants to fly across the ocean or establish a new long-distance mark as a sporting venture. But he would like to think the flights that are made professedly "for the cause of aviation,"

"Praises Amelia

"I had thought that sort of thing was dying out, but apparently I was mistaken," Colonel Young said. "So many such flights have been made that it is getting hard to find an excuse for one. I liked Amelia Earhart's trip. She did it as a sporting venture and not to advance the cause of aviation."

"Under present circumstances and with our present equipment, I don't think these sporting flights contribute a thing to aviation.

"The northern route to Europe has been flown a number of times, and Von Gronau, the German, has been across three times. So aviation knows the route, its possibilities and its landmarks, and there is nothing to be gained by 'stunts' along that course.

Future Service

Eventually, Young predicts, there will be regular transoceanic air transportation with equipment especially designed for the purpose.

Young concedes the difficulty of legislating against poor judgment or a man malice or unsanctioned flight over the sea and loses his life, the law can't very well be enforced against him. And if he is successful, receiving plaudits in the country where he lands, and their cheers from home, no one is going to feel much like fining him and taking away his license when he returns.

'Pay Load' Progress

"Under present conditions," Colonel Young explained, "to take a plane which will carry only the fuel, equipment and personnel necessary to make the flight to my way of thinking contributes nothing to aviation. Future possibilities.

"But a flight with an airplane that would carry not only the necessary fuel, equipment, crew and food, but also a pay load of one kind or another, would justify the venture.

"The fact that no one can remember those who have made the transatlantic flights adjudges to me that the publicity value is highly overrated and the return small.

"After the Lindbergh and Byrd flights, which were pioneer efforts and unquestionably contributed to aviation's progress, there came a lull. Then there was the mass flight to Hawaii, which some aviators survived and others did not. Another quiet period followed and then a series of distance flights. Now there appears to have been a surfeit of short hops.

"I have a lot of respect for the courage of the early trans-Atlantic fliers and such recent ones as Russell Boardman and Amelia Earhart Putnam. But there are not enough of them to warrant the expense of the multiple rate of insurance at the present time. These birds come four a month.

"The last thing I want to do is discourage those who have made the transatlantic flights adjudges to me that the publicity value is highly overrated and the return small.

Then there was the mass flight to Hawaii, which some aviators survived and others did not. Another quiet period followed and then a series of distance flights.

BANKRUPT POLITICS

Save the United States from bankruptcy! Save Idaho from bankruptcy! Save the farmers from bankruptcy! Save everything from bankruptcy!

As the great national campaign approaches an end the strains of the Republican theme song continue to boom in the peoples' ears with about as soothing an effect as would come from so many tom-toms.

It is quite evident that the G. O. Partisans are going to leave no stone unturned, and that if a little mud adheres to the stone in the turning so much the better.

And if they cannot win their cause by sound argument and sane appeal, they will resort to something more spectacular—such as endeavoring to terrorize the people into stampeding into the Republican corral.

Whether or not they take much stock in such utterances, the American people already are well aware of the Republicans' slogan from a national standpoint: "Elect the Democrats and the country will go bankrupt."

And now we have this same ridiculous war cry brought home to us in Idaho. Over the signature of the Republican State Central committee, an advertising splurge has just gone out through the state warning the people to: "Save Idaho From Bankruptcy! Elect Byron Defenbach Governor." As if he had a record in this regard which will guarantee financial solvency!

That no one may die of fright before the election, it might be well to explain the set-up with respect to the present state administration, which the theme-song singers would like to make us believe is bankrupting the state.

The state examining board which passes on all bills and therefore controls the expenditure of funds is made up of a Democratic governor, a Republican attorney general and a Republican secretary of state. Governor Ross, the Democrat, it must be borne in mind, has one—and only one—vote against the Republicans' two. Attorney General Babcock and Secretary of State Eulkens have had control of the examining board during which time the Republicans insinuate the state has been going broke, which it is not. Really the state central committee is doing its own candidates a grave injustice.

For it is borne in mind, also, that State Treasurer Barrett, a Republican, has been custodian of all these funds, and that State Auditor Gallet, another Republican, has been entrusted with authority of keeping account of these funds and working for their preservation. Incidentally all these Republicans are seeking reelection on their record!

In their own minds the Republican leaders of Idaho know they have a Republican administration with a Democratic governor—a governor who has but one vote concerning things financial. Yet they are so unwise as to indicate that the state has been going bankrupt at a time when the statehouse was full of Republican state executives. And they are so foolish as to attempt to insinuate Ben Ross is the villain.

To just what extent the Grand Old Party will revise this latest theme song as the campaign progresses we do not know, but we do trust that those who are none too sure that the Republicans will be victorious will not burn up their property, kill their pets, don their white nighties, and with lily-in-hand await returns of the election.

Frankly, we don't believe the world will come to an end if they aren't elected.

WELCOME EDUCATORS

Twin Falls welcomes the visiting delegations of the South Central Idaho Education association in annual convention this week-end.

The six hundred instructors who have in their care the schooling of the younger generation of this district are all expected to be here for the two-day session which is given over entirely to the creation of new enthusiasm for those who toil with the problem of imparting education to youth, and to coordinating the educational processes and standards among the schools of the state.

It is hoped the visiting instructors will find their time here profitable, and the community joins in wishing their stay here will be enjoyable.

THE ANNUAL NERVE-STRAIN

Within a few days the ancient festival—or whatever you want to call it—of Hallowe'en will be celebrated, and already householders are nervously speculating about the amount of damage carefree youth will inflict on their property and their peace of mind.

It is on old tradition in this country that almost any kind of hoodlumism is excusable on Hallowe'en—and for that matter, on the last eight or ten nights preceding the occasion. The result has been, to put it mildly, deplorable. Carrying away the doors of someone's garage, soaping up his windows, deflating the tires on his car—these may be childish pranks, but they are also a severe pain in the neck to the chap on the receiving end.

Children do these things, generally, because their parents let them understand that anything goes on Hallowe'en. If the parents could snap out of it, we might have a Hallowe'en that would be a little less hard on the nerves.

CALL of the WEST

BEGIN HERE TODAY

STAN BALL rescues ASPER DELO, timber king, at crooked gambling and of cheating men who are sent to check up on his activities. Ball says he is making a check. Delo says he will personally protect Stan. Upon leaving Delo's office Ball saves DONA, Delo's daughter, from kidnapers. He tells her his name is STANLEY BLANK.

DUDLEY WINTERS, in love with Dona, goes with her to Three Rivers to get Delo to give up the fight with Ball. In a cabin in the woods Dona sees the certificate signed. Ball is captured and wounded badly. SWERGIN, Delo's hard thinker boss, blames Ball for the ambush and for the kidnaping of Dona. Dudley has taken to sulking in the silo hunting Ball. Dona tells her father she has married Ball and shows the certificate in an attempt to get him to stop.

Ball comes in for food and hears of the supposed marriage. He is surrounded by a posse. Dona tells us of her love for Stan, says she shoots him and he takes a wound, capturing her. He takes her to his cave hideout. Swergin tells her over radio that Ball escaped and captures him upon his return. He takes Ball to a cabin and guards for him. Dona is sent on ahead while the men plan a lynching. The men get the rope ready while Ball waits to hear he can. Dona escapes from a man sent with her and returns, she frees Ball and they ride away.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXXIII

STAN BALL seated himself on the grass facing his prisoner. "Let her sit down and rest a few minutes," he said.

Dona sat down and propped her chin in her hands to steady herself. She could not look Ball in the face. She did not regret for a moment saving him from the mob but she did hate to have to admit that she could not go through with her threat to exact the heaviest penalty of him. Her weakness of the past hour irritated her and made her determined to take Stan more thoroughly this time. She knew she would be impossible if she looked at him or let him make her talk.

Several minutes passed. Then Dona said in a low voice, "I am ready now."

Stan got up and whistled softly to the black mare. He helped Dona into the saddle and she willingly accepted this assistance. Leaping up behind her, Stan bended the mare around the steep slope, for he would have to take a roundabout route to the timber camp. Only the foolhardy daring of his enemies could save him. He was worried, too, for fear some excitable lumber man might see the black mare and take a shot at them, injuring the girl. For Stan had given himself up completely to the realization that he was utterly in love with Dona.

They cut back, dodging in and out for several miles. Every stride of the black mare carried them into territory that was deadly for Stan but he smiled grimly and urged the horse on. As they entered the cutover ground with its recent cover he began to whistle a bit of a tune under his breath. Dona was silent but she let him hold her firmly when they crossed washes and fallen logs.

THEY were making a dash across an open space when a rifle cracked to their right and a spurt of dust rose almost under the flying hoofs of the mare. Stan spoke sharply and the little animal darted to the side and leaped into a thicket of alder and berry bushes. From this cover Stan sent her plunging through a dense growth of aspens. Dona had suddenly become very much alive.

"Please stop!" she begged.

Stan pulled up and slid to the ground. He jerked out his gun and stood ready to ward off an attack.

"'Have been thinking you in?' the girl said slowly. 'I intended to let them capture us.' She met Stan's gaze for the first time. Suddenly she burst out angrily, 'Could ride into camp with me?' Her lips trembled.

He shook his head negatively. "No. I aim to take you to the edge of the clearing and then make my getaway. I don't care to commit suicide now." His gray eyes held hers.

"You are going to leave me here? The fool that fired at us can take me in." Dona's eyes lowered and she flushed deeply.

"It will be worth the trouble to take you the rest of the way," Stan grinned. "The lady and I" (he mentioned to his horse) will enjoy a bit more excitement."

A thrashing in the brush warned them that several men were hot on their trail. Dona still sat in the saddle and Ball leaped up behind her. With a short laugh he sent the horse flying through the brush. Angry shouts floated down to them but no shots were fired.

The cover was beginning to thin. Suddenly a man rose from behind a boulder just ahead. He was balancing a rifle in the hollow of his arm and listening. It was evident that he had heard the galloping mare and was trying to locate them. Stan changed their course sharply right and up the slope where they could keep to cover. Finally he pulled up and whistled softly.

"The woods are full of lumberjacks," he said grimly. "There's one just ahead in that patch of timber and there is another just above us."

DONA did not reply for a moment.

"I'll get down and walk out into the open," she said firmly.

"Have something to say to you," Stan interrupted.

"Not now!" Dona was suddenly afraid of what he was about to tell her.

"I have to get it off my chest," he insisted.

"But you are literally surrounded and may be shot at any minute." Dona was on the verge of nervous collapse again.

"I'm used to tight places. This isn't half bad." Ball smiled gently.

"Take the horse and make a break back up the trail," Dona almost pleaded.

"Not until I tell you." He held her in the saddle when she started to slide to the ground.

"Please go!" she begged. Visions of the last few hours, of Swergin's gang and the narrow escape this man had made from lynching were flaming before her eyes. She did not care what he was or what he had done, she wanted him to have. With an unreasoning urge, Dona wanted him to escape unharmed.

"I couldn't get a 100 yards on horseback," Ball spoke calmly, looking up at her.

"Hurry! Tell me," she cried.

"I give you my promise on oath to leave this country and not to return," he said, holding her eyes.

"Then go!" she urged.

"I'll send you down to the camp on the mare but I'll have to have her to get away." He hesitated a second then hurried on. "I'll come down to the patch of timber behind the main building tonight at 9. Can you have the mare there?"

Dona met his questioning gaze squarely. "I can't take her. I will walk," she insisted.

"You must take her!—It's my only chance. If we wait here much longer I won't need her."

"I'll meet you." Dona said simply.

Stan slapped the mare across her flank. "Hike, lady!" he called softly to the horse.

The black mare laid back her ears and whirled. Dona had to hang on to keep from being tossed off. Down through the timber and into the open they sped. Men appeared from hiding and watched her go. When they saw that she was alone they turned their attention to the cover she had just quitted and began to circle around it.

Dona pulled up and watched them humming in the spot where she had left Stan Ball. With wildly beating heart she waited. At that moment she realized that had Ball asked her to ride away with him she would have gone.

A RIDER burst from the timber and galloped toward her. It was Dudley and he was disheveled and dusty, the first time she had seen him so since coming to Three Rivers.

"Dona!" he shouted.

The girl forced him mechanically and handed the black mare to his direction. At her side, Dudley leaped from his saddle.

"Are you hurt?" he cried.

She looked into his eyes and suddenly Dona became repentant. Dudley had suffered during her absence, that was certain.

"I'm all right. How is Dad?" She spoke rapidly.

"The running around like a wild man. We'd better get right in before he burns down the camp." Dudley was beginning to regain his composure now that he saw she was not harmed.

"Has he been riding?" Dona asked contritely.

"Has been riding! Sent the posse up the mountain! You'd never know how glad I am to see you—I could no more handle him than I could a wounded tiger!" Dudley seemed plainly relieved to have Asper off his hands.

"We'll gallop right in," Dona said. She cast a last glance up the slope where the posse was forming, around the dense growth in which she had left Stan Ball. The circle was tightened and the men now were crawling forward with the greatest caution.

Dudley mopped his face with a polka handkerchief as he jerked along at her side.

"Has Swergin been in with anyone?" Dona asked.

"We haven't had a word about you. This is the first news." Dudley shouted to make her hear above the rattle of the horses' flying hoofs.

Dona's lips pulled tight and her eyes flashed. She would have something to say to the big timber boss when they met and she realized she was going to have some explaining to do on her own account. Her father might not be easily convinced that she acted kind of under duress. Dona was sure there would be a scene when she explained the new lynching.

15 Years Ago

"I look for a period of unusual prosperity following the close of this present war similar to that which prevailed during the period of development following the Civil war," said S. S. McClure, famous lecturer, in a Times reporter yesterday. "I think that the trade agreements between the nations now fighting Germany will be more liberal than heretofore; between them and Germany probably less liberal for a time at least.

"I do not think much of the proposed league of peace and universal disarmament. Regarding disarmament, the nations will discard armament when they have no further use for them, and not before. Things like that have to grow. They cannot be brought about at a date by agreement until conditions are ripe for them."

That will be nearly two millions.

BONUS

Roosevelt was apparently dissatisfied with the reaction he received to his trial balloon he sent up on the bonus issue. They suggested the bonus could be raised, returns in next or relief.

While that sounds logical the vets did not want it. They have resolved against taking what they call "a pauper's oath" before getting their money.

That was why Roosevelt left out when he took his stand against payment of the cash bonus to all.

CRIME

Congressman Lankford of Georgia returned to the capital waiting wall recently after his defeat in the primary. His wounded comrades asked him what happened to him.

"My successful opponent made only one charge against me—that I was a member of the last Congress," said Lankford. "That was enough."

NOTES

The man who filled the sales tax, Congressman Jacobstein, is being sorely pressed in his election contest in New York.

Proof who succeeded Chenault as Washington Chief of Police is neither here nor there in politics.

He received the promotion as a matter of seniority. Chenault's resignation came the day before a national weekly magazine came out with his analysis of the bonus army, which was uncomplimentary to the Administration.

Democratic Finance Committee Meets

Most of the big election bills you hear rumors about are stage money. A large group of Wall Street men, friendly to Hoover, got it to be known that they had half a million dollars to offer at proper odds. A bunch of Democrats came back with offer of a quarter million. It was all good clean fun.

DEBARDING

A significant sign of progress is the cancellation of safety deposit boxes reported by several large banks. They also report present little bags of gold have been handed over to the tellers quite regularly for the last three months.

STEEL

The campaign to boost steel activity is now in full swing. The railroads are the particular target. Maintenance loans from the R. F. C. should put a lot of men to work soon.

Freedheim Denies Endorsing Either Senate Candidate

H. Falk Freedheim, Twin Falls, vice president of the ninth district of the Idaho Federation of Labor, today denied that he had attended many sessions of the executive committee which has gone on record endorsing the candidacy of James P. Pope, Boise, Democratic candidate for United States senator against the present incumbent, John Thomas of Gooding.

Freedheim says his name was included in a dispatch sent out by a press association (UOCHC Only) that Freedheim endorsed Pope, but adds that "as a class-conscious Socialist I am forbidden to personally endorse any candidate on the major parties." He was acting secretary of the Socialist party of Idaho for John Nelson, clear the impression this report (seemingly) makes, that my political faith is repugnant to me, namely, endorsing the nominee of either of the two parties," and finally, "never endorsed Pope or Thomas."

Water Situation Clears Up

Politicians Ready to Capitalize on Suspected Plot

Complication of the city water supply caused by the drying up of the mains to permit repair work and resulting in the aqua pure having an unusual odd taste thereby to exhaust the supply of home-brew and other canned liquid within the interpretation, it is revealed in a survey made by asking the question "What are you using in place of water?"

The municipal water department today indicated the situation would doubtlessly be saved, with the issuance of a statement that the water was turned back into the canal Thursday and the new supply should be in the pipes before daybreak.

All no group will be happier than the city water department staff, for hundreds of telephone calls have been received from users making inquiry about the water, and its dubious taste, and asking when the normal quality of water would be restored, etc., etc.

The official explanation is that the water for the past two days has come from the storage ponds, and the foreign taste is that of algae and moss. However, Superintendent Harley Rayburn has been losing no opportunity to cleanse out pipes during the period, fire hydrants have been opened, and the filtration plant has been operating continuously, assigning water chemically purified according to the superintendent.

One local resident, upon tasting the water the first days it "went bad", complained to his wife that he thought she was trying to poison him.

Others were of a mind to believe that maybe politics were to blame, and looked through all the newspapers for ads signed by Pat Parry pointing out that Governor Ross, who was here Monday, was responsible.

Democrats were on the verge of issuing a statement blaming the situation on the two city Republican politicians. That was offset by threats on the part of the former Red Cross chairman to charge in his Deep Creek address that the county commissioners were at the base of the easterly conspiracy, which attack would be printed in full in the morning paper and duly commented upon editorially.

The critical situation seems to have been averted with the official pronouncement that the "water holiday" is about over, and once more the campaign arguments were sidetracked and the public had nothing left but a bad taste in its mouth.

County Political Issues Clarified in Statement

Former Republican County Attorney Objects to Arguments advanced by Campaigner Against Present Board of County Commissioners

and always ignored by the courts. The only satisfactory way to decide the point is by having the courts pass upon it, for the interpretation of a statute upon which lawyers cannot agree should not be made a matter of forbidden discussions and campaign enthusiasm. Political speakers, as in the case of Mr. Sweeley, are likely to become affected in their judgment on the law, by their eagerness to win votes for their party, especially when members of their own immediate families are seeking office.

"Ambiguous Statute"

In this particular instance, Mr. Sweeley occupies a rather unenviable position. The Democrats will not be likely to take legal advice from the attorney for the Republicans, and the Republicans themselves, for whom Mr. Sweeley assumes to speak, have discredited him in advance, for the manner in which he has acted and for years followed the very practice which he condemns in the Democrats. When we adopted, or continued, the Republican policy in this county, it is assumed that our Republican friends had acted honestly and honorably—and we dislike, at this late hour, to be advised by Mr. Sweeley that we were mistaken, and learn for the first time, that the Republicans were dishonest over a period of years, and that their dishonesty was brought to light only when Mr. Sweeley was trying to use it as a basis for restoring members of that party to public office. In the uncertain and ambiguous statute which Mr. Sweeley has invoked should finally be construed as he explains it, we prefer to believe that the Republican commissioners who misunderstood it were honest, and not dishonest, as Mr. Sweeley seems to think them. It would, we think, be unfair to say that the Republican officers were justified, and the Democrats unjustified, in making the same kind of charge. It would be not much like political unfairness to assert that an act is unlawful when done by a Democrat, but is lawful when perpetrated by a Republican. The rule should be equally fair to both parties.

The Democratic commissioners, however, feel that their own want of tact may be responsible for this criticism. It is a matter of common knowledge around the courthouse that Mr. Sweeley some time has sought to have the Commissioners put him on the county payroll as a sort of unofficial county attorney and advisor to the county officers, and they refused on the ground that the regular county attorney was the legal advisor of the office.

Gives Figures

On the other hand, let me give you the only figures I am going to give. Here is the statement of current expense fund costs of the county for three years, as taken from the official report of the county auditor:

1929 (Republican commissioners) $221,152.30.

1930 (Republican commissioners) $221,352.28.

1931 (Democratic commissioners) $199,543.80.

$22,000 less. That should give you some idea of who was extravagant. Remember that in 1931 there were more than $10,000 additional and unusual expenditures because of Hoover prosperity payments.

Mr. Sweeley makes another charge against the Commissioners. He says they have failed to require an affidavit of indigency—pauper's oath—from persons requesting county aid. In this he is mistaken. The commissioners have required them—during from January, 1931, and on, in justice to Mr. Sweeley, however, I will add that these papers should be kept in the auditor's office, but that at Mr. Parker's request they were kept in the commissioners' office, and Mr. Sweeley for that reason probably overlooked them. It is also but fair to add that before the year 1931 such affidavits were not required, even by the Republicans while in office.

There is another complaint to which I will refer, which is directed at both the commissioners and the county treasurer. Complaint is made that when school funds belonging to common school districts are deposited in the banks, the interest which accrues on such money is not turned over to the districts. Neither the commissioners nor the treasurer can be blamed for this. These moneys are not apportioned by the county treasurer.

Explanation Simple

It is also claimed that the commissioners failed to act promptly or to take any proper action to protect the county deposits when the Hollister bank failed, although Mr. Sweeley strongly urged prompt and drastic action. The inference is left in your minds that the county has lost, or is likely to lose, money because the securities pledged by the Hollister bank have not been handled properly. The explanation is very simple. These securities consist of warrants of various taxing units in Twin Falls county. The warrants are registered and draw interest. The commissioners could, of course, have brought suit to collect, and thereby could have caused additional financial burdens of these taxing districts—and could also have furnished employment for an attorney. They preferred to wait until payment of taxes should enable these districts to pay the warrants without being punished for the Hoover depression. The warrants are perfectly good and will be paid. What would you have done under the circumstances, if you had been on the board of county commissioners? The taxing districts are pretty much in the same situation as the county commissioners. This is no time to adopt measures so dear to those institutions, known as the Federal Land Banks, and to plunder, wherever we have the opportunity. The taxable property in our county was $28,000,000 in 1930, and fell to $21,000,000 in 1931. One-seventh of our taxable property has been robbed off the state to our year. The Hoover administration saw the folly to us collectively what it has already done individually. The commissioners, in dealing with those taxing districts acted according to the principles of the Democratic party.

This present political campaign is becoming more and more bitter and accusative in its nature. The national and state contests have roused the interest of the citizens to an unusual degree, and prepared their minds for a kind of criticism which has been made against our county officers. Where there is such good opportunity to investigate the correctness of these arguments, the interested voter can readily inform himself by consulting the particular county officer under criticism and soon learn the facts.

Teacher Claims He Has Discovered Cure for Baldness

SPOKANE, Wash. (UP)—John Roy James Gilmore, S. J., science professor of Gonzaga University, claimed today he has perfected a vegetable compound that will grow hair on "perfectly bald heads."

The priest said the compound consisted in his college laboratory after years of research, and produced half on the head of John Duffey, Spokane student who has been bald for two years.

Pictures appeared on Duffey's head two weeks after he began using the formula and he now has a full growth of hair, it was claimed.

WENDELL TO GET NEW MOVIE HOUSE

WENDELL (Special)—For several years Wendell has been without a moving theater. The Methodist church having bought the Odeon building, with the intention of using it for a movie theater and for church purposes. Talking pictures killed the silent drama and the show was discontinued. Now the building is being equipped for the exhibition of pictures again.

It is reported that some injury has been done to pointers by the heavy frosts during recent nights.

A large part of the crop was secured before severe frosts came.

One of Wendell's young married men says he has found that two can live as cheaply as one as long as his dad holds out.

Miss Sheda Eason, who spent the summer in California, has returned home.

An enjoyable potluck dinner was given at the Methodist church by the women of the Home Missionary society last Friday evening. Each member of the society invited a young women to attend as her unknown daughter. None of the guests knew who invited them and had to find her "mother" by any means she could. After dinner prizes were given for those who would decipher the names of those present from pictures representing the different games, which were hung on the wall. Irene Dunn won first prize, and several tied for second prize.

If the earth had no atmosphere we would be subjected to a constant bombardment of shooting stars.

WHEAT STEADIES ON DAY'S MART

CHICAGO, Oct. 28 (UP) Wheat steadied on the board of trade today after a slump of almost 4 cent a bushel. Some British trade reports from the southern hemisphere and selling carried the market down, but cables received just before the close and a better undertone was noted.

Most of the session the market was lower because of absence of a broad outside demand.

At the close wheat was unchanged to ½c lower, corn was off ¼ cent to up ¼ cent and oats were ¼ to ¾ cent higher.

STOCKS ADVANCE 10 3 POINTS

NEW YORK, Oct. 28 (UP)—Stocks advanced 1 to 3 points in the last hour of trading today, after fluctuating aimlessly most of the day. Volume continued light, sales barely reaching the half million share mark.

In the absence of any important developments to shake the market out of its rut, traders resorted to the old idea. Most of the business originated on the floor among the professionals. The late rally was mostly brought on by the small amount of short covering.

BUHL AUDIENCE HEARS MORGAN

Candidate Criticizes Administration' Attacks Defenbach Statement

BUHL, (Special) — Government as a commodity that can be bought by those who have the means to pay for its wax vigorously condemned in an address here Thursday night by Judge William M. Morgan, Boise, Democratic nominee for state Supreme court justice, who spoke to a large audience at a local theatre. He criticized the Hoover administration for its subservience to "special interests" and quoted from a speech by John J. O'Connor, New York in the House of Representatives, showing that large sums of money had been paid out in cash refunds to the treasury department in the three years ending June 30, 1932, to the amount of $1,000,000 to the United States Steel corporation, $1,000,000 to the Standard Oil company, $1,000,000 to the Mellon interests and $1,000,000 to the Morgan interests.

Comments on Tax

Judge Morgan also criticized the statement of Byron Defenbach, Republican nominee for governor, regarding the kilowatt tax which has brought to the state large revenue, and declared that if Defenbach favored the repeal of the tax law he was the only man in Idaho without opinion.

"I have not yet found a single person who over said anything against the kilowatt tax," Judge Morgan declared. "Unlike the federal power tax, imposed upon the consumers, our state kilowatt tax law places the tax upon the companies." Mr. Defenbach is the only person in the state who has spoken a word against it. On two occasions I have been able to learn, of course, the power companies are not in favor of it, they contested it through the courts, even to the United States Supreme court. But it was upheld, and in the first year of its operation it brought in revenue to the state about $200,000 more than the cost of administering the law, including the cost to the state of court expenses, was less than $6,000.

"Our kilowatt tax law cannot be used to place payment of the tax upon the consumers, because it isn't built that way."

Helped Frame Act

Judge Morgan helped to frame the act which was adopted by the last legislature as part of the program of Governor Ross to reduce the taxes of the people of the state.

"As against the theory of government as a commodity, we have the theory of equal rights to all. That was the dream of Thomas Jefferson, and it is the principle of Franklin D. Roosevelt."

Judge Morgan urged voters to elect men to the United States Senate and the House of Representatives who will be in accord with the policies of Governor Roosevelt.

Lauds Pope, Coffin

"No one questions that Roosevelt will be the next president of the United States," he said. "Give him James P. Pope as senator, and Thomas C. Coffin as representative. He fair to Governor Roosevelt and if you are going to elect him don't handicap him with men who aren't in sympathy with his policies."

Judge Morgan exploited his platform of a non-partisan judiciary upon which he is a candidate for the state Supreme court. He urged the return of the courts to the non-partisan basis since the courts, he asserted, "have no business in politics."

Judge Morgan was the first justice to be elected after a non-partisan law had been adopted in 1915, and after serving his term, during which he was chief justice he refused to become a candidate for re-election after a legislature in 1919 repealed the non-partisan act.

Judge Morgan discussed the state ticket generally, defending Governor Ross from the attacks of Republican opponents.

THOUSANDS GET JOBS

ber gave President William Green of the federation said.

He described the employment status as seasonal and predicted that "November and December layoffs, as they always do." Of 670,000 factory workers he estimated had set back since the first of the year, 325,000 received work in September, he said. Mine department employment increased to 127,000 in the United States, while 80,000 found work on farms during the fall harvest season. Other industries, he said, had employed 60,000.

"As an indication of seasonal business improvement these reports are encouraging," Green said. "But as relief for the millions unemployed they show small progress indeed. Much of the work gained in the last three months has been only part time employment."

Blames Grid Toll On Poor Condition

boys frequently are not prepared physically to meet the strenuous requirements.

Neck and spine injuries are too numerous. The boys too often tackle improperly — head on, neck relaxed. Minor sprains, strains and bruises are too numerous to call to notice the necessity of studying the human anatomy. They should make head-on tackling taboo. When tackling, the head should be up and in the side, neck tense, with the shoulder absorbing the impact.

wind finish on "the sidewalks of New York."

President Hoover faced his most intensive speech making trip of the rapidly closing campaign today. At every twin stop he plans to make a speech, of course. We are going to meet the situation and meet it right, for we have wonderful jobs, you and I, and sure is the duty of teaching Americans to love popular government. If a government is bad, the people come to ruin; if it is good, the people prosper in proportion to their ability to take advantage of opportunities.

"School people have just been passing through the golden age; the past 25 years has been most phenomenal. Most definite advances have been made. Now, because of financial conditions, the way seems blocked," said Commissioner Vincent. For the first time, education is a storm center. A chapter on "Present Education is Ineffective and the Products Thereof Pitiful" has been made. The schools, by some, are even held responsible for the wave of gangsterism. The home is one of the principal agencies which is failing in teaching right social consciousness. The schools must teach honesty, decency and public integrity, from kindergarten through college, and better citizenship must be our objective, even if it means a complete change in the set-up of school.

"The higher educational standards and higher salaries have helped to bring about the Better Teacher; but these are still too few in number. The professions and industries are constantly demanding better educated people. Placating that education is a failure. Teachers are lacking in professional spirit. I would have teachers professionalized beyond anything heretofore in education circles. You women teachers have cheerfulness to your community, your personality and your school room.

"You sing the glorious song of peace; you have the glorious opportunity to make luck platform addresses. He speaks in Indianapolis tonight.

into the field of salesmanship which you employed, many of you, in working your way through school, and make the common school a highly regarded and indispensable institution in your community. Then, let me urge all of you to find yourselves in the Idaho Education association and the Parent-Teacher association, either services under these two banners.

A meeting of the district trustees, called because of the sectional meetings this year, sectional meetings will also be called for Saturday morning at 10 o'clock.

Convention directors this year have stressed invitations to the general public, particularly school patrons and trustees, to attend sessions of the convention, to learn for themselves the tasks of educators—particularly in those times, and to be apprised of the new in educational ideas.

In addition to A. L. Merrill's address, the afternoon program included music by a trio, Mrs. Henry White, Mrs. Herman Yarbrough, and Mrs. Arthur Barker, and announcements by A. L. Stitz, Jerome.
