Sweeping Trojan Win Restores Supremacy Of Far West Football

U. S. C. Humbles Pitt Panthers 35 to 0 In Rose Bowl

PASADENA, (UP)—The powerful Southern California eleven, winning fifth over the University of Pittsburgh in the annual tournament game, crushed the Panthers at 35 to 0 in the rose-covered Rose Bowl here today and reasserted emphatically the prestige of Pacific coast football.

During the entire first of the season, western football teams lost games in intersectional competition. Some of the Pacific teams lost games to unknown opponents. Yesterday's results represented a revival. Immediately many decided that the west coast dynasty was at an end, at least for a year.

Twelfth Crushed

Then came the Notre Dame-U. S. C. game with Notre Dame an 8-point favorite. Southern California won, 13 to 0. Yesterday the coast team, wound up a hectic season by crushing a Pittsburgh team by a score of 35 to 0 and which represents, as the classiest team of the east.

The score was 35 to 0 and there is no alibi. Pittsburgh did not represent the difference between the eleven, still it did show that U. S. C. has one of those super-super teams.

Jock Sutherland, Pitt coach, was one of those who believed the Californians a fallacy.

Howard Jones, Trojan coach, said, "undoubtedly, has created a super-super football team. It has power plus elusive versatility and that is what I think, however, the one thing, more indicative than any other, gives our team."

Many Breaks

Without detracting to our hopes for the coming game, we have been lucky, which always, called for, crucial moments, and the bad breaks that have come to Pittsburgh have been of a different character.

Jones is likely to use the same eleven against Pittsburgh that started against Notre Dame, Homer Griffith, Trojan end, who was injured early in the game with Notre Dame, is expected to be in the lineup. California's recovery of four of our fumbles on our seven yard line, was the most costly.

"The Trojans really had too much power for us and the players were outplayed on this power," said Coach Harlan Fenton, Pittsburgh coach. "Our backs were stopped by the Trojan line. Pittsburgh really had too much power for us and the players were outplayed on this power were Griffith, Sarlos, Erale Smith and Aaron Rosenberg.

"Charles Hartwig, Joe Skladany and Harry Sarlos Fenton played very good football."

Coach Jones said nothing, not even praise for his eleven.

Sarlos said Pittsburgh played 100 per cent football and "I am very proud," he said.

The contrast of the many New Year celebrations and their own pitiful was too utter for words. Pittsburgh's citizens. They took their lives by their own hand.

Poison liquor took ten victims, fires killed five, two called to repeated brains, of freezing. An explosion took a victim in Texas. Thirteen victims in that state resulted from homicide, or suicide.

Texas had the highest violent death toll, with 21. Michigan was second with 12. Chicago had the most violent city with 10. Texas followed by Texas with 9, Michigan 7, New York City 7, and California 7.

SLASH IN COSTS OF GOVERNMENT STRONGLY URGED

Democrats Willing to Give Roosevelt Great Power to Effect Economy

EXPENDITURES EXCEED REVENUES BY BIG SUM

Leaders Schedule Conference With Next President for Thursday in New York

WASHINGTON (UP)—Reduction of government costs commanded attention today as a prime subject of the incoming Roosevelt administration.

House and Senate Democratic leaders who are preparing to confer with the president-elect in New York Thursday are reported to regard the cutting down of government expenditures from the economy standpoint, coupled with the first jobs to be tackled.

They are ready to grant Mr. Roosevelt almost dictatorial powers to do it. They see this as the chief alternative to an immediate taxes.

Falling Far Behind

Speaker Garner estimates government revenues are falling behind expenses, $1,000,000,000 a month.

This is $2,333,000 an hour.
It is $10,000 per hour.
It is $2,800 a minute.

Within the coming year $3,000,000,000 in government securities will come due, more than half the amount of the European war debt. It represents $7,500,000,000 in bonds issued since the birth of Columbus.

When a farmer or a home owner goes to the money lenders to renew his mortgage, the banker wants to know whether he is keeping up with his expenses. If he is not, he finds himself in the red. This is the way the money lenders look to him.

This is Hoover's record.

Hoover has increased the government expenses so out of sand and cash keep the interest payments. Some New York bankers have demanded certain industrial economies before they will lend any more money to the largest and richest city in the country, if not in the world.

Now in effect the federal government is asking the money lenders to ask for renewal of a $1,000,000,000 loan. That is

NEW YORK (UP)—In the small room at Columbia University, full of charts and equations, the technocrats of the nation's industrial institution has been stirred by a number of articles seeking to oust their leader in laughter at technocrats.

"At the dawn of a new year many people find themselves over to reflection of the past, and many questions arise in their hearts when they think of what happened during the past year. To some, it means so many seconds, minutes, hours, days, months; a brief span in their lives. To others it is a milestone on the way to eternal things," said Adjutant Stack.

Continuing, he asked the question, "What is the way? We have been the landmarks for each one of us? Have we suffered defeat through adverse circumstances, or have we defied the times and the hard knocks of the past year brought us through with new triumphs and victories which shall be to us now and sustaining strength in the new year before us?"

PROOF READER'S SALARY DEBATED

Amount to Be Paid James D. Whelan at Boise Causes Exchange of Words

BOISE, (UP) — "Economy like charity begins at home."

This was the challenge hurled by Senator Donald Callahan, Shoshone county, Republican minority leader, into the Senate's Democratic ranks this morning.

Yesterday, when the motion to create the office of proof-reader was before the Senate, Callahan protested creation of another office carrying a salary of $5 per day. S. O. Van Hoesen, Adams county, Democratic president pro tempore, amended the motion to reduce the salary to $3 per day. This motion carried. James D. Whelan, Twin Falls newspaper man was the appointee and among the legislators several regret.

Suddenly realizing what they had done, several senators went into a huddle. Three dollars a day wouldn't buy much bacon and beans. Before the huddle broke up, Van Hoesen gave notice that he might call for a reconsideration of the vote by which the proof-reader's office was created.

Amends Motion

Today the battle was renewed. The Senate voted to reconsider the motion. Van Hoesen amended the motion to provide the proof-reader's salary from $3 back to $5. Callahan objected again. It was explained that structural salaries are fixed by law at $5.

"What law?" Callahan inquired.

"Part of 1931," he was told.

"Let's change it," Callahan answered. "If the majority wishes economy, why not repeal the 1931 law, fix the salaries of attaches—and since economy like charity begins at home, why not reduce the salaries of the members of this body?"

Freeloader Airs Views

Then the battle began.

Senator A. L. Freeburn, Payette county, Democratic whip, took the floor. On life opening day of the 1931 session, he recalled, the Republican majority created 14 extra offices now, he pointed out, the Democratic one but two extra offices—a secretary to the president and a proof-reader.

Callahan returned the fire. In the past there were able Democrats in the Senate, he said. They convinced the people that they could give them a more economical administration. Callahan added, with a wry smile, "They throw us out on our necks."

Callahan declared that he had found times like arrival in Boise for the present session that, if his salary were cut to $1 a day, he could live as comfortably as in the past and still save money. Numerous county jobs are now trying to live on $1 a month, he said, and they seem to manage.

Freeburn, Democratic whip, said he was "worried." Van Hoesen, owner, Alton Hawkins, against a fence, breaking several rifles, jumped into the track and then jumped out, breaking his neck.

STOCK EXCHANGE HAS SLUGGISH DAY

NEW YORK, Jan. 3 (UP)—Financial and commodity markets lapsed into lethargy today in the first session of 1933. Price movements were mixed.

IDAHO SENATORS ENGAGE IN ROW

Proposed Extra Printing of Governor's Message Precipitates Debate

BOISE (UP)—In more of a gallery wingeed the joint session of the Senate and House of Representatives of the twenty-second Idaho legislature Tuesday when Gov. C. Ben Ross gave his message. The crowd heard the argument between Democratic Senator Donald Callahan and Clark on the one side and Republican Senator Donald Callahan on the other over the printing of 500 copies of the governor's address.

Callahan Opposed

At the close of the argument started by Senator Callahan after Senator Van Hoesen had moved that the address be printed in both Senate and House journals and an extra 500 copies be printed, Senator Callahan opposed, calling attention to the fact the economy was stressed in the address of the governor and that it should be put into effect immediately.

Senator Van Hoesen rose to remark that two years ago it was his mother-in-law, Senator Callahan who had proposed 2,000 copies be made.

Clark Speaks Up

"It was at this point that Senator Van Hoesen and myself, a majority of the legislature will take all responsibility of the printing of the 500 copies," Senator Clark stated in a resonant voice. "The address of the governor is worthy of being read by every citizen of Idaho and we propose to see it spread out so as to be read. And we do not propose to let a majority, the minority, at least, of the legislature, Senator Callahan, Senator Van Hoesen and myself, be called out of the Senate roulled in an effort to save money. In the House it stood 60 ayes and one nay."

Senator Van Hoesen, Senator Clark and Senator Callahan voted against putting an end by a Dud Amendment to collect money, said Senator Clark, saying that the Senate was due to blame because of the Senate's refusal to accept the coach plus expiration of the work-day. Years ago, Senator Clark said, Senator Van Hoesen had introduced a bill to limit the salary of the coach to $4,000 in one year for football coaches.

Widow Turns Sleuth and Traps Killers of Husband After Hunt

ROSE GONZALES AT END OF TRAIL

Memory of Brutal Slaying Causes Woman to Make Determined Search

By HELEN WELSHIMER
NEA Service Writer

YONKERS, N. Y.—Rose Gonzales came to the end of her search. She believes she has found the man who murdered her husband. Nearly two years of scrubbing have spurred the dream to Spain, and home again to Yonkers, she has been rewarded at last.

Julio Perez and Bernardino Arias were arrested in Yonkers, charged with having killed Manuel Gonzales on January 8, 1931. Both of their arrests is the story of a woman's desire for vengeance.

When the police lost the trail of the men along Mrs. Gonzales had accused of stealing her husband she picked it up. First she searched for them around New York City. Later she found Julio Perez and Arias had gone to Spain. An ocean couldn't stop her pursuit.

Sold Hotel

She needed money, though. Therefore, she sold the hotel and boarding house which she and her husband had conducted. They brought $8000. She put the money in her pocket, engaged a transatlantic passage, and the chase began.

All the way across the ocean she remembered things. She remembered how she and her husband had worked hard and prosperous with their little hotel. Laborious men who lived there forged the cash of outrageous thirty shillings to Manuel, when they were paid after banking hours. They knew that they could trust him. One night he had $1000 on hand.

Julio Perez and Bernardino Arias often came to the restaurant at the hotel for young Manuel's called. They knew that Manuel kept money around.

Then, on the fatal January night, she wakened.

"I saw the men in the room," she says. "I knew they well. They often came to the house. I screamed. When I did they began to shoot. I flipped over the side of the bed and lay on the floor, by the bed, but my husband was shot. The men fled. Julio Perez was there. I was told. I went to the house, but he had learned that I was in town and came on to another city.

Trail Turns to U. S.

Undaunted she sought a vessel and went to the town in which Perez was there. He had been, though, she heard. There were rumors that both men had been at various times. She spent much of her money searching in Madrid. She explained the situation to the mayor's wife and obtained her cooperation.

But the men were gone. For three months Mrs. Gonzales travelled from town to town, asking on clews which friends, in various places, gave her. Finally, she was informed that the men were in America again. She took the last of her money, purchased another passage, and came home.

The trail didn't stop! She kept searching. People in the Spanish colony in Yonkers and New York supplied deep clue leads.

There a few days ago, she received word that they were at certain addresses. She reported this fact to the police who arrested the two suspects, in spite of their declarations of innocence.

The hotel and boarding house are gone now. So is the $2000. Vengeance can't bring Manuel back to his wife. But she is happier. She did her best. She says.

The burning memory of the brutal murder of her husband (upper right) on the floor (upper left) on the chair (upper right) on the bed, which may have led to the capture of his slayers.

Reduced Costs in Government Badly Needed Say Solons

what it amounts to in tough terms. The bankers insist that the federal government is on a basis of output, but when they know that the expenses are each day falling more than $3,000,000 behind its income, they want to know why. In behalf done about it before they decide how much interest they are going to charge the government. Actually the matter is considerably more complicated, but in good faith, there is not much opponents do.

Lavish Spending

The report of the president's committee on social trends just issued declares the tax bill of the federal, state and local governments in 1929 was 16 per cent of the income of the people. Last October, Franklin D. Roosevelt estimated that the national income would be about 50,000,000,000 and the total cost of government about $10,000,000,000, one third of the entire income. This would mean that the taxpayer would, theoretic, give his money twelve days out of the year to the government. Actually, of course, it doesn't work out that way, though they vary, all point to one central fact. While the national income has already shrunk by one third, when private business has resorted to every conceivable means of economizing, when at least 10,000,000 persons are out of work and millions of others are barely existing on part time employment, the government has continued to ride along in a jolly, income-time expansive mood, spending money, in many ways which are one to be ruthlessly eliminated by the new administration.

Early Technocracy Ideals Are Revived

—All wealth, at present, is in the form of "debts"—stocks and bonds and debentures and loan money, which is a "debt" of the government—and these debts must be paid in future dividends, money stocks and bonds and bonds.

Those are the mechanics to stimulate them, the technocrats have assembled a model figure and charts. What they propose to do with this information remains to be told.

(Note—A second article on technocracy will be carried tomorrow.)
