SILVERITES PLAN MOVE TO UTILIZE COURT'S VERDICT

White-Metal Supporters Chart Conferences to Capitalize On Gold Decree

SEE NEW STRENGTHENING

Wheeler Will Call Borah and Others to Senate Parley On Legislation

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—Congressional silver strategists sought today to capitalize the supreme court's gold decision in behalf of their favorite monetary metal.

Leaders of house and senate bloc said conferences would be called shortly to discuss effect of the court's opinions on proposed silver legislation.

"We've been rather dormant," said Sen. Pat McCarran, D., Nev. "The court's decision means that we must renew our activities."

Silverites Optimistic

The silver group has not had opportunity to study the majority and minority opinions in the gold cases, and its members appeared uncertain of possible benefits to their program. However, optimism was expressed generally.

Rep. J. G. Scrugham, former Democratic governor of Nevada, said:

"We attribute the decision as fully validating the power of congress to control the monetization of silver.

"The effect of this decision, we believe, will be to strengthen further the position of the white metal. Proponents of silver legislation in the house will meet at an early date to consider the next practical step toward further incorporation of silver as an essential component of the national monetary system."

Wheeler Sees Victory

Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., leader of the senate silver bloc, said he believed the decision destroyed contentions that silver remonetization would create a clamor for payment of private contracts in gold, thus nullifying the administration's efforts at dollar devaluation.

He said he would summon a

HAUPTMANN GETS RIGHT TO APPEAL

Chancellor Grants Error Writ Staying Execution Date; Hearing March 28

TRENTON, N. J., Feb. 19 (UP)—Bruno Richard Hauptmann today won the right to appeal his conviction for murder of the Lindbergh baby and was granted a stay of execution, originally set for the week of March 18.

Chancellor Luther A. Campbell granted a writ of error to C. Lloyd Fisher and Frederick Pope, of defense counsel, after Fisher had split with Chief Defense Counsel Edward J. Reilly. Reilly had proposed to delay the appeal action, and said either he or Fisher had to get out of the case.

Execution Stayed

Hauptmann's sentence to death was automatically stayed by granting of the writ. The state will pay the cost of printing the record for the appeal, because Hauptmann is a pauper.

The date of March 28 was set for argument before the court of errors and appeals. Fisher and Pope asked and were granted a writ for a review of Hauptmann's conviction in his trial at Flemington.

France Bans Steps To Collect Gold

PARIS, Feb. 19 (UP)—France decided officially today to refrain from trying to collect payment in gold on the United States gold-clause obligations held here and amounting to millions of dollars.

Leading banks, including the Bank of France, acted under official directions and refused to handle claims of clients who hold American gold certificates and have asked the banks to collect payment of the former gold basis at $1.69 to the present dollar.

New York Averts Elevator Strike

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (UP)—The threat of complete stoppage of elevators in the city of skyscrapers ended today with signing of a peace pact by building owners and union representatives.

The agreement removed the possibility of a widespread strike of building employes for at least six months. It came after hours of conference and much tubbing pounding in the office of Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, who threatened to use police and firemen to man elevators.

Headed for Death House Cell

His exterior calm still defying the world, Bruno Richard Hauptmann entered New Jersey penitentiary's death house to await either death or a successful appeal. Other convicts at Trenton penitentiary booed Hauptmann as he arrived manacled between Lieut. Allen Smith, left, and Sheriff John H. Curtiss, right. Standing back of Hauptmann and Curtiss is Warden Harry M. McCrea of Hunterdon county jail.

Average Citizen Finds Gold Cases Favorable

Rulings Show No Effect on Purse, and Should Boost Business

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—What do the gold cases mean to the man with a few dollars in the bank or with modest investments in securities?

Reduced to the simplest possible terms, here are the answers to questions many citizens asked today:

Q. How is the value of the money in my pocket or in my bank account affected?

A. Not at all. Aside from minor possible day-to-day variations in prices, it will buy just as much beefsteak, just as much gasoline as yesterday or the day before.

Q. How about the bonds I own?

Status Remains Same

A. If you own corporation or other non-federal bonds that formerly called for payment in gold, their status remains exactly the same as it has been since congress nullified the gold clause on June 5, 1933. The supreme court says you are entitled to one dollar of present paper money for every dollar of the face value of your bond; no more, no less.

Q. But my railroad bond promises I was to be paid in gold dollars of 25.8 grains and the New Deal has cut the dollar to 15 2-21 grains. Hasn't my contract been broken?

A. Yes, but the court found that congress had the legal power to do that in order to prevent unfairness in the readjustment of our monetary system.

Q. My government bond also promised to pay me back in old-style gold dollars. Can the government go back on its word?

No Real Loss

A. The supreme court says that constitutionally the government has no right to break its promise. But on the other hand it found that holders of government bonds had shown no real loss, because the present devalued dollars will buy just as much in this country as did the old gold dollars, and hence it threw out of court the suit of a bondholder who had sought $1.69 on the dollar.

Q. Are there exceptions to this finding?

A. Possibly American citizens who bought government bonds and took them to foreign countries, where because of currency rates they suffered real loss through devaluation, could collect extra amounts. Legal experts have not yet determined this point exactly.

Q. Well, if everything seems to remain just the same as it was before these cases arose, what was all the excitement about?

Bankruptcies Averted

A. If the cases had gone against the government and former gold

PROBE DELVES IN MELLON'S DEALS

PITTSBURGH, Feb. 19 (UP)—The intricacies of Andrew W. Mellon's financial transactions and widespread holdings were to be bared here today for governmental scrutiny in an effort to prove the government has no claim against his 1931 income.

Truckloads of records were ready to be hauled to the special session before the board of tax appeals, which is hearing the government's suit for $3,000,000 against the former secretary of the treasury. That amount, Attorney General Homer S. Cummings says, is due from 1931. Mellon insists that the government owes him a refund of $105,045.

NEW DEAL FINDS ADDED PRESTIGE IN GOLD RULINGS

Optimism Gains Under Impetus Of Supreme Court Victory For Administration

WILL BALK BOND SUITS

Leaders See Obstacles Ousted By Verdict; Conservatives Approve Dissent

By JOHN A. REICHMANN
(Copyright, 1935, United Press)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—New Deal prestige zoomed today under impetus of victory in the United States supreme court where administration gold policies were protected against legal attack. Victory came over the hot protests of four members of the nine-man tribunal.

The administration was reported planning new legislation to head off possible suits in the court of claims by Liberty bond holders alleging damage resulted from dollar devaluation. Some lawyers maintained the high court decisions left the door open for such suits.

Leaders Encouraged

New Deal congressional leaders were heartened by the victory. In it they found new strength to attack stubborn legislative opposition which has delayed the $4,880,000,000 recovery bill and jeopardized the program for economic security and extension of NRA.

Administration spokesmen feel obstacles to monetary projects have been hurdled. The New Deal plans to move on to higher commodity prices and ultimately a dollar stabilized internationally and at home.

In three distinct types of cases the court held:

1. Congress had ample authority to abrogate the gold clause in private securities.

Executive Authority

2. Congress exceeded its authority in abrogating the gold clause in government bonds but in the case at issue no damage was shown and the suit was thrown out of court.

3. Congress had ample authority to make gold certificates and

WHEELER OFFERS CORPORATE LEVY

Montana's Senator Introduces Proposal to Place Tax On High Profits

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—A bill to impose a graduated excess profits tax on corporations was offered today by its author as a challenge to congress was introduced today by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont.

It provides a federal tax of two per cent on a net capital return of more than $2,000,000. The levy increases gradually to a high of 25 per cent on returns over $50,000,000.

Wheeler told the senate the "bulk of our corporate resources, the product of the savings and labor of millions of individuals, rests in the control of a handful of men."

Nullifies Democracy

"It is the very negation of industrial democracy," he said. "It resembles, instead, a feudalism more pervasive than that of the middle ages."

Wheeler's bill would exempt telephone and telegraph companies, railroads, shipping, banks, and insurance companies, cooperative associations, charitable organizations, and corporations organized under federal laws and engaged only in export trades.

Committee Favors Farm Income Quiz

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—A joint resolution authorizing a federal trade commission investigation of incomes of farmers and corporations dealing in farm products today was ordered reported favorably by the senate agriculture committee. The resolution, by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., carries a $50,000 authorization.

Iowa Students Organize Club To Work Toward Dictatorship

IOWA CITY, Ia., Feb. 19 (UP)—Dictatorship is the only solution for the complex problems of modern civilization, in the opinion of a "League for the Promotion of War" which was organized today at the University of Iowa.

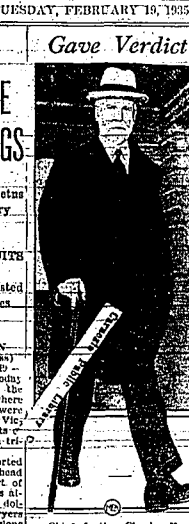
The league was created by students whose sentiments are opposed to another group here which is advocating world peace.

Compulsory military training for all male citizens in the nation is one of the resolutions agreed to at the organization meeting. All college students, both men and women, would be required to undergo four years of military study.

The group said it would invite Huey P. Long, Louisiana senator, to become honorary leader.

Officers of the league are: "H Duce," Joseph V. Impara, Mt. Vernon, N. Y.; "war marshal," J. H. Kejdejan, New York City; "minister of propaganda," Howard Connor, Muscatine, Ia.; and "minister of finance," Albert B. Rook, Ozone Park, N. Y.

Gave Verdict



Chief Justice Charles Evans Hughes, above, took historic place in American judicial history with reading of the supreme court's gold verdicts favorable to the government. The rulings were termed today to be as far-reaching as the famed Dred Scott decision.

PENSION CLAMOR SWEEPS STATES

Old Age Campaign Produces 238 Measures in 40 of 43 Legislatures

By FRED MYERS
(United Press Staff Correspondent)

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (UP)—Clamors in Washington for the Townsend old age pension bill penetrated the legislative halls of 40 states this week in a "demand that assured a national liberalization of pension laws, independent of congressional action."

State lawmakers rallied in unprecedented number behind 238 old age pension bills in 40 of the 43 legislatures in session or temporarily recessed. Solons of seven states acted favorably on the $200-a-month "speed-up-spend-up-consume" plan, although they want the federal government not their own states, to pay the bill.

A survey by the American Public Welfare association as of today showed that bills for giving money to aged indigents outnumber any other type of legislative proposal by a staggering proportion.

12 Uphold Townsend

Twelve states would memorialize congress to enact the Townsend plan, with a national 10 per cent retail sales tax. Three already have done so. They are Oregon, Nevada, and North Dakota. The proposal has been acted upon favorably by a committee or preliminary readings in New Mexico, Idaho, Montana and Wyoming.

The typical state pension bill, according to the American Public Welfare association survey, reduces the age of eligibility for pension from 70 to 65 years and increases the maximum gratuity to approximately $30 a month.

Only 28 states now have old age pension laws and an advanced eligibility age and meager income characterize most of them.

SENATE APPROVES STATE STORE BILL FOR LIQUOR SALES

COBBLEY WARNS IDAHO TO FIGHT BEET OPPONENTS

Growers' Chief Advises Open Meeting Here That State Must Battle Foes

A warning to the people of Twin Falls, Idaho and the western states generally was sounded at an open meeting of the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce at the New Rogerson hotel last night by George T. Cobbley of Blackfoot, president of the Idaho Beet Growers association and a representative of the national organization.

Making a strong appeal for a united effort to protect the beet industry in the west and Idaho particularly, the speaker admonished his listeners that "millions of dollars are being spent by lobbyists in Washington to curtail the industry or do away with it entirely in this part of the country."

Cuban Pressure

"Unless we are successful in bringing sufficient pressure to bear through our representatives in Washington, those who are fighting to promote greater use of Cuban sugar in the United States will take our allotments away from us and the beet industry in the west will be a thing of the past," the speaker emphasized.

To demonstrate that the sugar beet industry in Idaho is well worth fighting for, Cobbley pointed out that in 1933 it meant $3,000,000 to Idaho. "In that same year," he said, "it was worth more than $30,000,000 to the Twin Falls country alone."

Every acre of beets puts $90 in circulation locally, the association's president explained.

BENEFIT DANCES STAGED TONIGHT

Committees Forecasts Crowds, Good Time for Parties Aiding Pool Fund

To make the four benefit dances tonight outstandingly successful socially, as well as financially, was the goal set by the Junior Chamber of Commerce swimming pool committees, who today stated that ticket sales were large and were mounting as the day drew to a close, and that attendance at the entertainment affairs promised to be big.

Proceeds of the parties at Radio hall, Elks hall, Legion hall and Shadowland, the latter in Kimberly, will go to the municipal swimming pool in Harmon park, which the Junior Chamber is sponsoring. Cooperating are a score of other civic and service organizations which have united under a general committee, headed by C. H. Detweiler.

Serving as general hosts for the four dances will be Chairman and Mrs. C. H. Detweiler, Mayor and Mrs. Duncan McD. Johnston.

Services Donated

Complete sets of committees have been named for each hall, the owners of which have donated their services, four popular orchestras will supply their services free, as will the Marie Dunn-Helm school of dancing, which will provide entertainment numbers. There will be serpentine and confetti at a late hour and specialty numbers to delight and amuse the throngs, stated the committees in charge of entertainment.

All residents of Twin Falls are being urged to buy tickets, whether they dance or not.

Barker Guarded to Balk Prison Break

ST. PAUL, Feb. 19 (UP)—Armed with submachine guns and tear gas bombs and under orders to shoot to kill, federal and county authorities prepared today to thwart any attempt to liberate Arthur (Doc) Barker.

Orders were issued that Barker and his fellows with him awaiting trial in connection with the Edward G. Bremer kidnaping are to be shot, if a jail delivery is attempted, rather than let them escape.

The orders were issued as additional guards were placed around the jail in fear that three men believed to be among prisoners who escaped from the Oklahoma state reformatory Sunday were heading toward the twin cities.

Sends Proposal To Ross for Signature

~~Upper Chamber Votes 28-16 For~~ Measure Previously Given Passage in House

By MAX G. FUNKE
United Press Correspondent

BOISE, Feb. 19 (UP)—Twenty-eight members of the Idaho senate today decided that Idaho liquor sales would be conducted by the state. Under suspended rules, and over the protest of 16 members opposed to the state store plan, the bill was passed after less than an hour of debate.

The bill went to the governor this afternoon. He indicated he would sign it but probably not for a few days. No official statement was made, but those close to him said the governor was satisfied.

Under the bill the following is provided:

Creation of liquor control commission of three members.

Establishment of stores and special distributors.

Liquor may not be consumed on premises of liquor store.

Liquor may not be sold on Sundays, legal holidays or election days.

Individual permits for persons over 21, at 50 cents.

Special permits for doctors, dentists, pharmacists, etc., at $3.

Liquor sales must be cash.

No liquor advertising.

$250,000 bonds to provide funds for financing liquor control.

Restraint of "bootlegging."

No hint of the action was apparent as the morning session opened. Under the "first reading of bills" rule, the senate passed over HB 191, and passed measure, and persons in the packed gallery began to think that no action would be forthcoming.

But a later request that the body return to the order of business galvanized the entire chamber as HB 191 was introduced. Immediately a motion to suspend rules for consideration of the measure was made—and the members launched into debate.

A personal wordy battle between Senator Whitten of Boise and Senator Donart of Washington county failed to defeat the motion to suspend rules.

Senator Shimp of Elmore county protested that when discussion of the motion was heard, he was unfortunately called to the phone for a long distance call that was "it." Senator Just of Bingham said the same.

The vote to suspend rules was 23 to 6. Glasner, May, Peters, Shimp, Tapper, Whitten voted against.

Senator May opened the attack on the measure. He said it made a bootlegger out of every person who wanted a drink in his own home.

Beer should be eliminated from the bill in order that other legislation could be passed to control higher alcoholic content in the beverage, May said. The bill "made it impossible to drink beer without violating the law."

Action for passage came as a result of a dedicated motion to place the measure in the committee of the whole for amendment. The chair declared the motion lost—immediately asked, "Shall the bill pass?"

Opponents were caught asleep and the clerk began to call the roll. The only comments that could be made after that were those made as members explained their votes. Nearly 20 minutes were consumed during the roll call. Seven members explained their votes.

Those who voted for passage of the measure were: Adamson, Akins, Barker, Brocking, Burton,

Congress Will Hasten Action On Chief Bills

By H. O. THOMPSON

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—Freed of the nervous tension which existed while the gold clause cases were pending, administration leaders planned today to speed up action on three major New Deal legislative projects.

They were:

1. The $4,880,000,000 work-relief bill now before the senate.

2. The economic security program, upon which house and senate committees will conclude hearings this week.

NRA Legislation

3. NRA legislation, upon which a presidential message is expected tomorrow.

This activity will be augmented by the rush of proposed legislation from other quarters. Much of this had been held up until the supreme court acted. New proposals include:

1. A work-relief bill amendment by Sen. Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., requiring wider use of silver bullion and silver certificates. Thomas estimated immediate effect of his amendment would be to expand the currency by $325,000,000.

2. A bill by Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., to tax big corporations.

New Bonus Bill

3. A soldiers' bonus bill by Sen. Millard Tydings, D., Md., which may develop some administration support. Tydings declined to reveal details of the bill before its introduction.

4. A drive by Sen. Edward P. Costigan, D., Colo., and Sen. Robert M. La Follette, jr., Wis., for a greatly enlarged public works program.

5. The labor disputes bill of Sen. Robert F. Wagner, D., N. Y., expected to be ready for introduction Thursday.

ARMY BILL ASKS BOOST IN FUNDS

House Gives War Department Measure Requesting Large Appropriations

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—The largest war department appropriation bill, with one exception, in American peace-time history was reported to the house today. It carried an indirect warning to foreign nations that American plans a strong defense.

The $276,609,488 army supply bill provided for purchase of 547 new airplanes, strengthening the national guard and, on direction of the senate, equipping of the regular army from 128,750 to 165,000 men.

The appropriations committee called for the largest military outlay since 1921, with exception of 1931.

Navy's Budget

The budget for the navy was $477,224,000 for the next fiscal year.

The committee heeded the warning of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, chief of staff, that the present office of a regular army is a "continued menace to the safety of the country."

The bill failed to carry $20,000,000 asked for an airdrome at Hawaii, Pacific coast defenses and army housing. These construction items will be brought in under the $300,000,000 public works bill later.

APPROVE BALBO AWARD

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—The senate naval affairs committee today approved a bill to award distinguished flying crosses to Air Marshal Italo Balbo and Gen. Aldo Pellegrini of the Italian air force who led a formation flight from Italy to Chicago.

BONUS BOND BILL OFFERED SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—Sen. Millard Tydings, D., Md., today introduced a bill calling for the payment of the $2,800,000,000 soldier bonus bill in United States bonds.

The measure, attempting a compromise between the administration and bonus leaders, would not increase governmental obligations in the long run, it was said.

The bill provides for issuance of payable compact bonds bearing three per cent interest which would be exchanged for outstanding adjusted service certificates. Tydings said he had got enough administration leaders to back proposal, but could see no reason for objection [illegible] replace them with devalued currency.

Leaders of the silver bloc are mustering for any advantage that may be gained from the court's decision that value need not be related strictly to gold. First silver development was a proposed amendment to the recovery bill to currency by $325,000,000 with silver.

In the background there was a rumble of dissent. Justice James C. McReynolds spoke for three colleagues and numbers of his fellow citizens yesterday in bitter arraignment of the policies which a majority of the court was able to accept.

"The constitution is gone," roared the aging jurist. "This is Nero at his worst."

Scant Margin

By a scant five-to-four margin the supreme court upset Charles Evans Hughes, one-time Republican candidate for president but more often than not on the bench, members of the so-called liberal group.

McReynolds' bitter words sounded the passionate challenge conservatism utters to the New Deal and its monetary works.

"All is lost," McReynolds grumbled when the court split five-to-four a year ago to support the New York state milk control law.

Again he protested the court's approval of the Minnesota mortgage moratorium. But the anxiety of conservatism became an angry protest yesterday as McReynolds spoke.

Bitter must have been the court conference at which McReynolds arrived at their decision. Not in the memory of any who heard McReynolds yesterday has language so harsh been directed by a justice at the finding of a majority of his fellows.

Debased Standard

"We are dealing here with a debased standard," he said, "adopted with the definite purpose to destroy obligations.

"The destruction of all obligations by reducing the standard gold dollar to one grain of gold, or brass or nickel or copper or lead will become an easy possibility.

"Default is thus made both easy and safe. These bonds are held by men and women in many parts of the world. They have relied upon our honor.

"Loss of reputation for honorable dealing will bring up unending humiliation."

Raps Seizure Profit

McReynolds mentioned the treasury's $2,000,000,000 gold seizure profit. In bitter language he denounced it;

"To such counterfeit profits there would be no limit; with each new debasement of the dollar they would expand.

"Two billions might be ballooned indefinitely—to twenty, thirty or what you will . . . maybe enough to cancel the public debt, maybe more."

And with that hot shot he left the New Deal to its victory.

BECK RAPS VERDICT

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—The supreme court's gold decision met critical attack today from James M. Beck, former Pennsylvania representative and one of the foremost constitutional authorities.

Beck, author of several works on the United States constitution, expressed fear that the supreme court had opened the door to "impairment of public and private credit."

BABSON LAUNDS VERDICT

PHOENIX, Ariz., Feb. 19 (AP)—Roger Babson nationally known economist and anti-inflationist, today characterized the U. S. supreme court decision on the New Deal gold policy the "most momentous victory during President Roosevelt's administration."

"The decision of the supreme court will bring about much improved conditions," Babson said. "Nothing can stop a sharp and rapid rise in commodity prices. The cost of living will go up along with the prices of cattle, sheep, farm products and other commodities and generally better times will return."

SENATE APPROVES LIQUOR MEASURE

Passes State Store Program, Sends Bill to Governor For Signature

STATE WATCHES SENATE

BOISE, Feb. 19 (UP)—Interest today shifted from the floor of Idaho's 23rd legislature, where yesterday the first liquor control bill passed, to the senate where it would possibly take action on the measure today. Indications that the senate would suspend rules to pass the "state store" plan were numerous as the body went to work at 10 a. m.

Passage of the "revised Sharp bill" in the house came as a surprise. In dramatic surroundings which eclipsed the entire session, a motion to the previous question immediately after HB 101, the "saloon bill," was voted down. In one short quarter-hour, the bill, HB 101, was amended, third reading and passed. Debate on the saloon bill had carried over three hours of heated argument.

Voting in Favor

Those voting for the Sharp bill were Andrus, Bailey, Barry, Bradbury, Callaway, Christenson, Colbert, Curtis, Day, Foreman, Gossett, Graham, Handy, Hendricks, Herrick, Hersley, Hove, Jones, King, Klepfer, Leavitt, Lewis, Lind, Lindsay, Meade, Mecker, Powell, Reynes, Ramey, Satterfield, Sharp, Snow, Talboy, Taylor and Whittle. The only solon not to vote upon the state owned store bill was Hunman of Idaho county. He had voted against the "licensed store" bill a few minutes before.

Immediately, when the house attacked the "licensed store" bill, there was a row. Whispers around the corridors said that the members wanted to wait until Saturday to pass the bill—any bill. But still more of them wanted to act or to talk on the "saloon bill" as they branded it.

Hectic Debate

Debate on the bill was at such a pitch that the representatives did not recess for luncheon until after 1 o'clock. At 2:30 they were back in session, tense and still. Hundreds of people lined the galleries. Curtains were drawn back to give all a chance to see and hear.

A full score of speakers had taken part in the debate on the licensed store bill by mid afternoon. All the "evils of liquor traffic," all the "evils of liquor traffic," all the "woe brought on by laborers spending their weekly pay checks before going home on Saturday night to their destitute families," all the "young men and young girls ruined by rum," were described by the speakers who grew eloquent as they spoke.

Many of the representatives became excited and then, at nearly four o'clock, someone "moved the previous question" and the roll was called on the measure that would have provided liquor must be sold as "packaged goods" in licensed stores or "with food" in licensed dining places. The bill lost, 21 to 38.

STIRRED UPROAR AT FLEMINGTON

Declaring that a man had confessed the Lindbergh kidnaping to him in his church, the Rev. Vincent Burns, pastor of an independent church at Tenafly, N. J., created a commotion at the Bruno Hauptmann trial, when he interrupted Attorney General Wilentz in his closing plea with the statement. Burns is shown here as he was handled roughly by the courtroom bailiffs, Judge T. W. Trenchard admonishing the jury to ignore the interruption. Authorities are considering action against Burns for what may have been an attempt to influence the verdict.

COBBLEY WARNS IDAHO TO FIGHT

Twin Falls factory's payroll, he said, was $227,781 in 1933, bonuses and salaries of its five executives. The Twin Falls district growers paid $267,000 for labor, and the Amalgamated Sugar company paid Twin Falls $1,000,000 for their beets.

Sees Good Year

Mr. Cobbley is of the belief that the Twin Falls country is to "have a very good beet year in 1935." He reported growers will be paid $7.50 a ton for their beets under operation of the Jones-Costigan act.

"But," he added, "it is entirely possible that the beet industry will be taken away from us entirely in 1936 unless we make a hard fight to keep it."

The nearly 100 Twin Falls business men in attendance pledged their support to a $2,000 fund to advertise the Twin Falls Empire after a committee composed of R. J. Schwendiman, chairman, and R. S. Toffelmire, Pat Brania and Bob Warner had explained a proposed program for such advertising.

Seeks Industries

The advertising, it was pointed out, would be directed so as to encourage tourists, buyers of farms and builders of factories to come to Twin Falls. Classified advertising in trade journals and similar publications would be the first step in familiarizing the country at large with Twin Falls' opportunities and advantages. To those making inquiry would be sent attractive booklets telling in detail the complete story of the Twin Falls Empire. This would be augmented with complete surveys for industrialists or canning factory operators who might be interested in locating in this vicinity. Sign boards at Bliss and Rupert to direct traffic through Twin Falls were also included in the proposed program.

Approval of the advertising plan was also voiced by R. P. Robinson, Curtis Turner and Joe Marshall. That Twin Falls should now take advantage of its many opportunities was the theme of their remarks.

U. S. Probes Airport

Lionel Dean, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce airport committee, reported that federal authorities are investigating the possibility of establishing a military airport in Twin Falls for "second line of defense." Despite the fact that other cities in this territory are making a strong bid for the airport, he said, conditions here are more favorable than at any of the other sites under consideration, and Twin Falls should stand an excellent chance.

Following the dinner 25 guests were taken for a sight seeing trip through Twin Falls. Afterwards they attended the theater.

GIANT

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 19 (UP) — The Negro was very frightened but eventually he admitted the three detectives understand there was a giant, an extra big one, sliding in the alleyway frightening people.

Through the darkness the three officers slipped along to watch the spot indicated by the Negro.

"Easy boys, he may be tough," counseled Detective Jack Spikert.

"Look out," shouted Detective Joe Donohue, "he's reaching for a gun!"

"I got him," yelled Detective Primo McDonough, firing six times.

The 8-foot giant, six bullets through its plaster Paris head, was carted to the station.

AVERAGE CITIZEN FAVORS VERDICT

Finds Gold Rulings Show No Effect on Purse; Should Boost Business

obligations had been ordered paid at the rate of $1.69 to the dollar, former gold debts of corporations and states and municipalities aggregating $75,000,000,000 would have at once taken on a value of $126,750,000,000. This might have thrown many of the country's greatest corporations into bankruptcy, demoralized markets and ruined general havoc. The government's own debt would have been increased many billions and the federal credit strained or wrecked.

Q. With these apparent dire events avoided, are the court's decisions to the government likely to have any general effect?

Business Should Rise

A. The uncertainty of the gold cases has been hanging over the markets for weeks. Now that is over, administration officials hope general business and finance can proceed further with new confidence and assurance.

Q. Are the decisions likely to affect the New Deal's future monetary policies?

A. Administration officials, hailing the decision as a complete and sweeping victory for the administration of U. S. money is now firmly butwarked by the highest court in the land. Presumably this approve "might make the president more willing to use the authority he holds from congress to reduce the value of the dollar another 10 per cent if he thought that desirable. But there is no indication whatever that the New Deal now aims at anything but continued stability of American money with no further changes in prospect.

Q. Does the court's action have any effect on the movement for remonetization of silver?

A. It does not affect the silver question directly, but it leads the silverites to believe that the court also would approve any action that might be taken to expand the use of silver money.

Q. Is the decision likely to have any political effect?

A. It emphasizes more sharply than any recent event the division between liberals and conservatives on constitutional issues. Justice James C. McReynolds, announcing the dissent of four conservative members from the court's majority decision, said it meant "the constitution is gone." New Deal lists said the constitution merely had been interpreted to meet present-day situations.

SILVERITES PLAN RENEWED EFFORT

meeting of silver senators within the next few days to discuss the gold cases. At his conference will be Senators William E. Borah, R., Idaho; Edward P. Costigan, D., Colo.; Elmer Thomas, D., Okla., Alva Adams, D., Colo.; Key Pittman, D., Nev., and Hiram Bingham, D., Conn.

Thomas, regarded as an inflationist leader in the senate, waited until the court's decision was announced and then introduced an amendment to President Roosevelt's—$4,880,000,000—work-relief bill providing for remonetization and so-called controlled inflation of the currency.

No More Trouble

"I think in the future," Thomas said, "we will not have any trouble regarding the constitutionality of monetary legislation."

Rep. J. A. Martin, D., Colo., house silver bloc leader, said:

"The decision was very encouraging. I expect some action on silver soon."

Martin said any other decision would have been "disastrous." He said the court "did not take into consideration the economic factors involved in the case."

It was understood that the club offered $27,000, that Gehrig asked for $35,000, and probably compromised on $30,000.

FOOTBALL CHIEFS DECREE MAJOR RULES UNCHANGED

FIND GAME NOW WELL-BALANCED

Two Minor Shifts Constitute Only Revisions Ordered by "Supreme Court"

By LAWTON CARVER

NEW YORK, Feb. 19.—(UP)—Football's cheering multitudes can go back to the game as they left it in the chill of last fall when the 1935 season rolls around because the supreme court of the gridiron has found that the present rules approach "perfection."

Except for minor revisions and clearer interpretations the rules of last season stand, the first time in more than 20 years.

The annual meeting of the rules committee of the National Collegiate Athletic association was held in customary secrecy at Absecan, N. J., over the week-end and the announcement of what the coaches and fans regard as joyous news was made last night by Secretary W. S. Landford.

"Achieves Balance

"We find that the game now approaches perfection," he said, "providing a maximum of entertainment with a minimum of danger, and offering a long sought balance between offense and defense."

Lou Little of Columbia, chairman of the coaches' committee which recently recommended to the rule-makers that no changes be made, said:

"I think Langford crystallized most of the coaches' sentiments into verbal touchdown."

Two minor changes deemed necessary as announced by Langford are:

Dead Ball Amended

1. To encourage the open game, a provision was added to the dead ball rule, making it permissible for a runner still on his feet, although tackled, to pass or kick until the whistle is blown.

2. The rule providing that fouls committed by both teams offset each other is amended by an exception. In case a punted ball is illegally touched by the kicking team and a foul is committed by opponents, the captain of the kicking team may refuse the offsetting penalty. The ball then would belong to the receiving team at the spot where it was illegally touched.

The rule covering interchanging of linemen and backs was clarified by defining the positions of center, guards and tackles as those occupied by those players when they enter the game. Also, the captain must designate, upon request of officials, the positions of his players.

SET 'EM UP ON THE OTHER ALLEY

Boxing is Mean Racket, Opines Title Contender

By HENRY McLEMORE

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 19 (UP)—"It's the toughest, meanest racket in the world, and any guy who sticks in it is nuts."

The speaker was Tony Shucco, 25, of Boston and the outstanding contender for Bob Olin's light-heavyweight championship of the world. The time was last night. The place a pub on Beach street.

Thirty minutes before, Shucco, now on an extended tour of the tall timber, had just put the finishing touches on one Joe Lippa of Charlotte, in Armstrong's warehouse, an ill-lighted barn of a place across the railroad tracks.

Asserted Card

Shucco's fight with Lippa was the windup of a card that started with an exhibition by a tramp strong man and carried on with a battle royal between two Negroes whose clothes were tatters and who, after beating one another for three rounds, scrambled about the ring on all fours, racing for the coins tossed to them in their mouths.

He knew I had seen his bout, so I asked Shucco if it was not a fight program at the one at Armstrong's which prompted his bitter appraisal of boxing.

"Yes," he replied. "That and a lot of other things. Like that beating I had to give that kid. Nice-looking boy, wasn't he? Strong, too, and eager. But he didn't know one glove from the other. I couldn't miss him, even when I tried. A few more beatings like that and he'll be through. But I couldn't do anything else. It's boxing, and I'm in it. There wasn't much in it for me—money, that is—but I had to give it to him. He had a nasty right hand, and if I had kidded around he might have connected, and I'd a lost my shot at Olin and some serious money, and when and if that happens I didn't want it to happen in a little club where I'm getting two-fifty."

Can't Quit

If he felt that way about boxing, why didn't he chuck it?

"That's the hell of it—you can't. I've given five or six years of my life to it—five years of beating about in high places and low places, all to get a shot at the championship, and now that I'm about there, I couldn't quit, could I?"

After watching that fight card in Armstrong's warehouse one couldn't help but agree with Shucco that it is a tough racket, a hard, hard way to make a living. It's bad enough in New York's plush Madison Square Garden, where the fighters fight in conditioned air, and before thousands. But it's tougher on the kerosene circuit, of which Armstrong's must be typical. Hard pine benches thrown about a ring whose canvas padding is dirty and worn.

No bells, no handage or bathe the preliminary boys. No one to pull out a stool for a boy when he staggers to his corner at the end of a round. If out, he just sits there and bleeds. Trunks are worn and faded, and the gloves sorry from long usage.

An one pair of preliminary boys climbed into the ring last night a cur dog followed them through the ropes and, settling down in the center, began scrutinizing fleas. He was yanked out amid laughter. Twice the lights went off, leaving the fighters thumping about in the darkness.

It made you wonder if the fight to keep boxing alive was worth the effort.

GIANT WRESTLER ON FEB. 27 CARD

"Man Mountain" Dean Slated For Two Bouts at Legion Show Here

Sporting a luxuriant beard and tipping the scales at almost 320 pounds, "Man Mountain" Dean will headline the American Legion's next wrestling card here Feb. 27 Promoter Bill Child declared today.

The colorful Macon, Ga., behemoth—ranked as probably the major wrestling attraction in the nation—will stage a double headliner by taking on Leo Papiano, 216, Los Angeles, in one of the single fall matches and Don DeLaun, 230, in the other match.

Coast Drawing Card

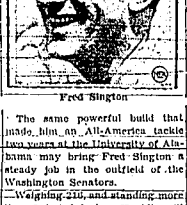
Dean, who has been packing them in at his coast bouts, will be making his first intermountain appearance when he wrestles on the Twin Falls Legion card, Child said. Both bouts will be 30-minute time limits.

The remainder of the Feb. 27 menu here will provide plenty of action. Matros Kirilenko, the ex-Cossack who defeated DeLaun last week, will tackle Sherman Christiannon, Salt Lake City heavyweight grappler. The battle will be for two out of three falls with an hour time limit.

A taste of lighter and speedier competition will be given local fans when Ify Sharman, Salt Lake City, defends his intermountain welterweight title against Dave Reynolds, Iowa. The foray is two out of three falls, 45-minute time limit.

The opener sends Don Mathews, Texas, against Burz Reynolds, Iowa, in a one-fall match at 30 minutes.

ROOKIE ROUNDUP



Fred Sington

The same powerful build that made him an All-America tackle two years at the University of Alabama may bring Fred Sington a steady job in the outfield of the Washington Senators.

Weighing 215, and standing more than 6 feet 2 inches, Freddie will get his big chance at Biloxi, Miss., this year when the Senators start training.

The big youngster was a sensation in the International league in '34, leading the loop in driving across runs—147—and was third in getting the apple over the fence—29 homers. His batting average was pretty healthy, reaching .320 as the season closed.

With the possibility that Johnny Stone's broken leg has not responded fully to treatment, Sington may be a big factor in Bucky Harris' pennant drive. The Nats are taking only one other rookie outfielder to camp, Alvin Powell, a teammate of Sington's at Albany. Should Stone not be in shape, Freddie may get the call.

JEROME INVADES TWIN FALLS LAIR

Bruins, Bruinettes Will Meet Visitors Tonight; Girls' Game Vital

Twin Falls Bruins and Bruinettes will meet two determined Jerome aggregations here tonight in a double cage bill at Twin Falls gymnasium. The feminine clash will start the program at 7:30 p. m.

Coach H. V. Jones' Bruins, with an impressive string of victories to uphold, will be seeking their second win of the season over Coach Earl Williams' Jerome quintet, keyed up for a mighty effort to snap the Twin Falls 11-game conference victory streak. No tournament results hang in the balance, since the Bruins go direct to the state meet here and Jerome is certain of a place in the district finals at Burley.

Class A Journey

It's another story with the girls' encounter tonight, however. Coach Dorothy Cain's Bruinettes, and the Jerome feminine sextet are both battling for one right to enter the feminine tournament. Loss for the Brunettes this evening would ruin their chances.

Kimberly's schedule calls for an invasion of Filer tonight as the only other program listed.

Class B teams are idle, with eyes trained on the mid-district tournaments scheduled for this week.

Twin Falls meets Gooding in a double-header here Friday evening. On Saturday the Bruins oppose Rupert boys and Twin Falls sophs battle Buhl sophomores.

How Much Would You Pay for a DOLLAR BILL?

THIS IS A TRUE STORY: It started with a half-serious wager, and it teaches a lesson.

Two business men were visiting a famous resort. One offered to bet the other that he couldn't sell real dollar bills for 50c apiece. The other accepted the challenge and went to work.

"How do you do," he said to a passing stranger. "Will you give me 50c for this dollar bill?" The stranger paid no attention.

The salesman tried again, and again. But nobody bought—and finally he had to admit that he'd lost his bet.

All of which suggests that people like to know who the seller is before they buy. You can trust the merchants who advertise their products in this newspaper. The advertisements offer useful, dependable information about things you need and want. Read and heed the advertisements carefully and you will reap savings and satisfaction.

NEW PROSPECTS FOR BEETS

Hope of a sugar beet crop in this district this year brightens with indications of a favorable white fly situation, assurance that 10,000 alloted acres have not been transferred to California as was charged in the political campaign of last fall, a contract similar to those of past years, and announcement of the Amalgamated Sugar company that it is in the field ready to sign agreements for this year's crop.

All this means, undoubtedly, that the sugar factory here will operate this next fall and winter, and because of this prospect the entire community, the chambers of commerce, the service clubs and the agricultural organizations can well give impetus to the program.

During the worst of the depression years here the sugar beet crop proved a veritable god-send to this section, providing as it did a cash crop of certain value, a large amount of labor both in the fields and at the factory, good yields and fair returns to the growers.

Up to a short time ago it was felt that the 1935 crop year here would be devoid of the sugar beets, continuance of the factory was in doubt, and the industry as a whole was threatened. Without waiting for the annual prediction of the bureau of entomology, it is no exaggeration to say now that the picture has changed, and new hope and opportunity for a successful sugar beet year is now in prospect.

Much of the credit is due the cooperative association which has fought the battles of the growers in good years and bad. Coupled with this is the added compensation provided through the agricultural adjustment administration, and the apparent willingness of the Amalgamated Sugar company to go as far as it can.

The encouragement which can be given the program by growers contracting to grow beets, and the moral support which should be forthcoming from all business and commercial interests here, should assure what is so greatly needed in south-central Idaho this year: another successful beet crop with all its attendant advantages and assets.

PERSPECTIVE

Legislators should be made to come home week-ends, if for nothing more than just to keep in contact with their constituents.

They are sent to Boise as representatives of the people, yet often they lose the viewpoint of the home folks because they are surrounded by solicitous lobbyists who distort the picture of conditions as they actually are.

If a state senator could get in a car some day this week and visit the voters of his county in the same manner he does during a campign, talk with them over taxes, liquor control, IERA, Ricks college, appropriations or any of the other problems which he is called upon to face, he would get a clearer insight into the views of the people he represents than is ever possible from the whispered words of a paid lobbyist in a hotel corridor, the stereotyped telegrams of those who have been induced to send them, or the oratory of a fellow-legislator who paints but one view of the picture.

The legislative term draws to a close, with little of definite value accomplished to date. Perhaps what is needed most is for representatives and senators to get out of Boise for the week-end, to obtain a perspective not possible in the hectic turmoil of the last few days of the session.

Something like this is essential, if the twenty-third session is to have anything more to its credit than the mere record of having met.

DECLINE OF COFFEE

If you happen to be the average American coffee drinker you drank less coffee last year than in the year before—some 16 cups less, to be exact. This is on the word of the New York Coffee and Sugar Exchange, which has just finished a survey showing that the consumption of coffee in the United States fell of during 1934—which, by the way, was the first ful-year of repeal.

Now there are two possible explanations of this fact, neither of them, to our notion, worth a great deal.

You might say that a lot of people who used to drink coffee are now drinking alcoholic beverages, and that that is why coffee consumption has dropped. Or—remembering the desperate way in which a man gropes for lots of black coffee on the morning after a thorough bender—you could argue that the decline in coffee consumption last year reflects a similar decline in the drinking of hard liquor.

As we say, we don't think much of either explanation.

What fooled the captain of the Australian cruiser in the South Pacific was that he thought the call for help from the Seth Parker sounded too much like a radio news broadcast.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Laura Lou Brockman © 1935 NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

GALE HENDERSON, pretty and 23, works in a silk mill. She and her 19-year-old brother, Philip, support their invalid father.

STEVE REYNOLDS, who also works in the mill asks Gale to marry him. She promises to give him an answer in a few days.

Gale goes skating, breaks through the ice and is rescued by BRIAN WESTMORE whose father, Hugh, owns the mill. Brian has come home after two years in Paris to study the mill. Gale disappears before he learns her name.

VICKY THATCHER, daughter of ROBERT THATCHER, general manager of the mill, schemes to captivate Brian.

Gale's father becomes ill in the night. Gale gets little sleep and is late at work next morning. FISHER, the foreman, tells her that if it happens again she'll lose her job.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVIII

THE morning wore on slowly. Gale worked mechanically, wishing her lunch would stop fooling the way it did, wishing the room wasn't so warm or so noisy, wishing that just for one minute she could close her eyes, lean back and lean back and close her eyes and forget the flying spindles.

"It wouldn't have done any good," she thought, "to tell Fisher about Father being sick."

No, it wouldn't have done any good. And she couldn't be late again—not after that threat. It made her job seem unusually precious—she thought—that she might lose it—and Gale bent and snapped off a bobbin, her hands moving swiftly in spite of the ache in her shoulders.

She couldn't afford to lose her job—

When lunch time came instead of going to the cafeteria she went into the wash room where there was an old couch sagging on one of the walls. It was back in the shadows and Gale laid down on it and pressed her fingers over her eyes.

Her head felt as though something were pushing down on it. It had felt that way all morning. She wasn't sleepy now, but there were pains like little knife-jabs in her arms and in her shoulders.

The door opened and Gale turned to see who had come in. A tall girl stood facing her. She wore a blue uniform like Gale's, but it was rather short for her. The girl had dark hair and eyebrows that looked as though they had been drawn on with a pencil and her upper teeth were slightly prominent. She wasn't a pretty girl and she wasn't homely. Her name was Leota Boller.

THE newcomer moved toward the couch and looked down at Gale. "All in, kid?" she asked sympathetically.

"Tired," Gale told her. "I had to be up most of the night. My father was sick."

"Gee, that's tough. It's tough when anybody's sick, all right." Leota Boller took a vanity case from her pocket and went to the mirror. She inspected her face critically, opened the case and began carefully powdering her forehead. She turned then and asked, "Had your lunch?"

"I don't want any," Gale told her. "I'd rather stay here and rest."

Leota applied the powder puff to her cheeks and chin. When the entire surface of her face had assumed a pinky-whiteness she opened satisfied and put the vanity case back into her pocket.

"You ought'n to try to work today," she volunteered. "You couln't take the day off."

"I couldn't," Gale told her. "Even if I wasn't afraid to ask for time off I couldn't afford to. There's another doctor's bill to pay and I'll have to buy medicine. They're enough bills as it is. I can't afford to miss a single day's work."

The other girl sighed. "Gee, it's tough all right," she said again.

Suddenly she crossed the room to a locker, opened it and took something out. "A moment later she was back, holding out a chocolate bar toward Gale.

"Here," she said, "eat this. I brought it for lunch and then forgot about it. It's fresh as good. Chocolate's real nourishing, you know."

Gale looked doubtful. "I don't believe—" she began.

"Go on," Leota insisted. "Oh, go ahead and eat it! You'll feel better—honest, you will. Gee, if you don't eat anything you're liable to keel over like that Connie Bauer did the other day. Did you hear about that?"

Gale broke off a bit of the chocolate bar and ate it. She said, "Yes, I heard about Connie. Thanks, Leota."

"Forget it! We're all in the same boat here. Gee, the way they work us and the little they give us is a crime, that's what it is!"

Gale sighed. "I guess there isn't much we can do about it."

SUDDENLY Leota drew nearer. If Gale hadn't been so tired she would certainly have noticed the nosy look that had come to the other girl's eyes. She would certainly have noticed the change in Leota's tone. As it was Gale was entirely unsuspicious.

"That's where you're wrong," Leota said. "All wrong. There's a lot we can do about it."

"What do you mean?"

"I mean I think it's time to do something about the way we're treated here—and the way they cut our pay for every little thing, and let people out and make the rest of us work harder. I heard how Fisher bawled you out this morning. Gee, that was fierce—the big bum! I don't see why you let him get away with it."

"How could I help it?"

"There's a way!" Leota said darkly. "I'm telling you—things we're going to go on like this forever!"

Gale looked at her curiously. "I don't know what you're talking about," she said.

The other girl's eyes narrowed. "Can you keep your mouth shut?" she asked.

"Yes."

"You're sure of that?"

"Why, of course."

"Well, then—I'll tell you something. But you mustn't say a word to anyone—not a word. Promise?"

"Yes."

Leota's voice had dropped to an undertone. "We're going to organize," she said. "That's what we're going to do."

"Organize?"

The other nodded. "We're going to get together and demand our rights. And we'll get them, too. There's going to be a meeting. Not many know about it yet—we've got to be awful careful and only ask those we can trust. The men have been having meetings and they're going to let some of us girls in, too. Haven't you heard anything about it at all?"

"No," Gale told her.

"Well," Leota went on, "once we get organized they can't go on treating us the way they have. We won't stand for it. That's why we're going to have the meeting to get things started. I don't know when it's going to be yet, but if I let you know, will you come?"

GALE wished Leota would go away so she could close her eyes and rest some more before it was time for work to begin. She didn't take much stock in this talk of secret meetings or organization. She didn't think it was anything but talk. But there didn't seem to be any other way of getting rid of Leota, so she said, "Why, yes, I'll come—if I can—"

The other smiled. "Good!" she said. "I thought you would. I'll let you know just as soon as I hear anything. Remember, though, don't say a word about it to anyone!"

Gale said, "I'll remember."

There wasn't time to get any more rest, however. The bell rang then and Gale got to her feet. Leota said, "Lord, the time goes fast!" and walked in the doorway. As they stepped out into the corridor she put her arm around Gale. She began talking about something that had happened the day before, something that must have been funny because she laughed. Gale wasn't listening. She could still feel the weight pressing down on her forehead and her feet were like lead.—She wished Leota hadn't put her arm around her.

As they stepped into the big room where they both worked Leota dropped her voice again. She said, "Maybe I'll have something to tell you tomorrow," and hurried away.

Gale walked down the broad aisle and took her place before the spindles. She didn't think of Leota again until three and a half hours later when another bell rang and the day shift crowded down the corridors, their day's work ended.

Then it was Josie Gridley who pushed her way to Gale's side. "I saw you at noon," Josie said, "with that Leota Boller. You'd better stay away from her!"

Gale asked "Why?"

Josie tossed her head. "Suit yourself," she said, "only I'm warning you. You'd better keep your distance. That dame's a—"

"Here comes Fisher," Gale said. (To Be Continued)

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the National Capital. By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator.

(Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

WASHINGTON — Long-view prophets are beginning to get their range adjusted for the presidential election next year.

Everything is too uncertain to warrant open talking, but the best once expect a three-cornered race. They believe the final entries will include a radical of the Huey Long stripe, if not Huey himself. This third entry will have no chance of winning for himself, but he might interfere seriously with Democratic plans for President Roosevelt's re-election.

You can see it if you consider that the president polled about seventeen million votes last November, the Republicans thirteen millions. A switch of two million votes in the right spots would have changed the results of the landslide.

If a radical can take several million votes away from the Democrats next year, the race will not be won by default, as everyone has been predicting.

PREPARATION

This analysis is not just a personal viewpoint of one or two men. It represents the vague basis on which advance planning now is being done in several camps. The political harvest you will reap next year is beginning to be planned now.

One small seed may be observed in the hobnobbing of certain substantial anti-New Dealers with Huey Long. The Louisiana people have noticed it and are asserting that these men inspired Huey's attack on the Democratic chairman-general. This is probably not entirely correct, but there can be no doubt that these anti-New Dealers are privately mentioned by the Farleyites have been lending aid and encouragement of a sort to the Louisiana eccentric. That is only natural. His attacks are food for their elephant.

MONEY

Far more important is the prospect that a third party radical movement will not lack money next time. This angle is being overlooked even now. If Huey wants a war chest, he will not the job have to travel more than 250 miles from Washington to find plenty of people who might be glad to chip in on anything with a reasonable chance of stopping the New Deal.

Many things may happen in the next year to change this trend, but there can be no question that it is the trend which will guide strategy for the next few months.

MILLENNIUM

So far this has been the dullest session of congress since the depression started. Committee meetings of both houses are still being curtailed to an unprecedented extent. And when they do meet, the usual sparks of political debate is lacking.

The main reason, of course, is that President Roosevelt is feeding his program out very slowly, one piece at a time. But there is a deeper contributing cause.

You may not believe it, but there is less bunk and hokum in congressional discussions now. Congressmen are cutting down on their stage plays for home consumption. The record is less padded with political blurbs.

One wise observer says the boys are beginning to realize at last—that the old-fashioned hoey does not get over with the voters as it used to.

MOSES

The Moses noise does not seem to have made the slightest impression on the White House. Mr. Roosevelt, behind his phlegmatic silence, is not much annoyed. Apparently he intends to follow through on his move to squeeze the New York bank commissioner out of the New York City relief picture.

The White House slant is that Moses has lots of friends for whom he has performed favors. These friends are the only ones who are making the noise, in the White House opinion.

No other reasons exist for the squeeze, other than those which have been printed. The public excuse is that the president wants a New York City relief director who can devote his whole time to

There is little doubt, however, that this question would not have been raised had Mr. Moses been less sarcastic about Mr. Roosevelt in the Moses campaign for governor of New York last year.

Mr. Roosevelt remembers both his friends and his enemies.

NOTES

There can be no question about Mr. Roosevelt's memory being unusual. At a private conference recently, he mentioned offhand the precise number of vessels involved in various war-time transactions which occurred when he was assistant secretary of the navy.

Mr. Roosevelt's new shipping proposal will contain a new type of direct subsidy to supplant the ocean mail contracts. The idea will be to equalize building and operating costs here with those abroad, the government financing the difference.

Reports that Senator Wagner is going to drop his proposed labor bill are wrong. It will be introduced shortly, proposing free elections among workers and giving the labor board power to enforce its decisions.

The Shannon congressional committee on government competition with private enterprises says big-hearted Uncle Sam complaint is made of coast guard assistance given to save life in casualties of the sea, but we do recommend that the salvaging of ships and cargo be discontinued."

You May Not Know That—

Contrary to a belief which prevails, there is no filing charge or other such expense involved in making application of a building permit in Twin Falls.

The city solicits such applications from those contemplating making property improvements; and for property owners to proceed legally, it is incumbent that they first secure permits from the proper authorities.

NEXT WAR URGED 'PAY-AS-YOU-GO'

House Committee's Proposals Advise Plan for Averting Huge Debt

—WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—The house military affairs committee, in a report before congress today, proposed the next war be fought on a "pay-as-you-go" basis.

The unique proposal, contained in a report backing the McSwain bill to take the profits out of war, called for special wartime taxes, including a 100 per cent excess profits levy, "munitions" and "meatless" days and price stabilization.

No Debt Burden

Such a plan, the committee held, would leave the nation at the end of a war "free from the burden of debt and prepared to go forward in her great mission of human justice and enlightenment among her own citizens."

Profiteering made 22,000 new millionaires and doubled the cost to Americans of the World war, the report said.

"If we sacrifice more, if we cut out extravagances, if we conduct a war on an economical basis, then we will not have piled upon the future the cost of the war during the period of the war," the report said.

The committee warned against attempts to amend the McSwain bill, which was unanimously reported favorably and which may be brought up in the house this week.

Wide Powers

The bill empowers the president to stabilize prices in wartime, license industries, put in effect a universal draft for military service and commandeer all material resources and public services.

"But we must not be led astray by purely idealistic and impractical theories about a complete equalization of the burdens of war," said the report, warning that confiscation of wealth in time of war might "socialize and communize all of the property and industrial system of America."

"To contemplate such a result is truly abhorrent," the committee said.

DECLO

QUOTES-KIPLING

Editor Evening Times,
Dear Sir:

During the Boer war Kipling wrote these lines:

"When you've shouted rule Britannia,
When you've sung God save the queen,
When you've finished killing Kruger with your mouth,
Will one kindly drop a shilling in my little tambourine
For a gentleman in khaki ordered south?"

When we have done organizing Townsend clubs, calling Townsend meetings, signing Townsend petitions etc., will we kindly notice the chief executive is not endorsing the plan? I did not vote for President Roosevelt, but he is astute and capable and if he thought the Townsend plan would abolish poverty in the nation and end the depression he would exclaim, "Eureka! I have found it!" It is noteworthy concerning the he is maintaining a very discreet silence which speaks louder than words. Secretary Perkins said—as did I—"The plan is fantastic."

Yours truly,
EDWIN LOHNES.

PRICES SET LOW FOR BABY BONDS

Citizens with $18.75 in Cash Can Purchase Securities After March 1

WASHINGTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—Beginning March 1 anyone with $18.75 or more can step into any one of 14,000 postoffices in the country and buy a government bond as easily as he can buy a stamp.

The purchaser will get an average of 2.9 per cent interest on their "baby bonds" which mature in 10 years. Buyers can cash their bonds after the first 60 days, but will get no interest unless they are held one year. No person can buy more than $10,000 worth.

Here is how much they will cost March 1 and how much they will be worth in 10 years:

Now	In 10 Years
$ 18.75	$ 25
37.50	50
75.00	100
375.00	500
750.00	1,000

Final details of the "baby bond" drive had been completed today at the treasury.

Little fanfare has attended the bond sale so far, but it appeared either Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, jr., or President Roosevelt may make a personal appeal for their sale to stimulate recovery.

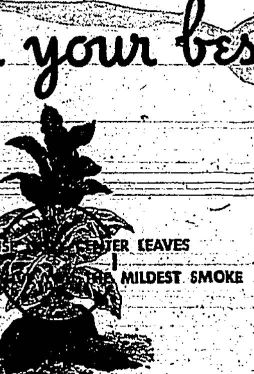
I'm your best friend
I am your Lucky Strike



I give you the mildest smoke, the best-tasting smoke. You wonder what makes me different. I'll tell you. It's center leaves. I spurn the little, sticky, top leaves . . . so bitter to the taste. I scorn the coarse bottom leaves, so harsh and unappetizing. I am careful of your friendship, for I am made only of the mild, fragrant, expensive center leaves.

WOOL

BOSTON, Feb. 19 (UP)—Asking prices on graded western grown spot wools in Boston have been revised downward from recently quoted levels, at which they had not been moving, to ranges within which similar wools handled direct from the country had been selling, according to today's report of the U. S. agriculture department.

The new basis of asking prices on western grown wools also brings the price basis of these wools nearer to the parity at which fleece wools have been selling for a long time. Recent weakness in prices of fleece wools and easing in foreign markets are influences that have contributed to this revision of quotations.

CORN DROP HITS PRICE OF WHEAT

CHICAGO, Feb. 19 (UP)—Grain markets were depressed today by failure of an anticipated broad outside demand to materialize.

This encouraged the taking of profits reaped before trading was suspended yesterday after announcement of the U. S. supreme court's ruling in the celebrated gold clause cases.

Wheat closed ⅛ to ⅝ cent lower. Corn was under considerable pressure and finished with net losses of ¾ to 1¾ cent, while oats were off ¾ to 1 cent a bushel when the final gong clanged.

Much of the selling in the wheat pit was induced by the break in corn.

STOCKS DROP ON CONGRESS BILLS

NEW YORK, Feb. 19 (UP) — Stocks today declined fractions to two points from yesterday's close and were down one to more than six points from the highs made when the supreme court decisions were announced in the third hour of trading yesterday.

Sagging tendencies increased in proportion to the increase in bills introduced in congress which got into full swing after an apparent lull during the gold clause uncertainty. Many of the items, including a soldier bonus suggestion, a graduated corporate tax, a $10,000,000,000 public works program and the Rayburn bill to eliminate utility holding companies worried the traders.

U. S. JOB AGENCY VALUE STRESSED

Reynolds Informs Employers Competent Applicants Are Ready on Request

In an effort to make clear the advantages offered by the U. S employment service, Ralph S. Reynolds, manager of the office at 209 Shoshone street south, has prepared a statement directed to employers in private industry, in an effort to accomplish mutual advantages to both employers and employes.

"The service has carefully classified all labor, both men and women, who have made application for employment," he says. "The applicants are bona fide residents of Twin Falls county and many competent workers are to be found in the various skilled and unskilled trades represented in our files. The applicants are registered, classified and referred according to their qualifications alone.

Complete Registration

"We feel that most Twin Falls county citizens are interested in employing local residents as long as they can secure qualified labor. However, if local help is not sufficient to meet their needs the employment service has a complete registration of every county in the state.

"Should an employer not care to make a number of interviews in selecting an employe, and application is made to the employment service, we can go through our files and carefully select the names of those we feel may meet the requirements and qualifications. A list of names can be furnished to the employer from which he may make a selection, or the employer may call at the employment office and we will gladly furnish him with the work history of any applicant. Where satisfactory applicants can be found, the service will be glad to make arrangements for an interview.

"The U. S. employment service is not connected with relief in any way and does not regulate hours or rates of pay."

New Deal Groups' Leaders Endorse State Store Bill

Action on liquor control measures for Idaho is sought by the executive committee of the New Deal clubs of the county, which today announced adoption of the following resolutions:

1. That we go on record as being opposed to the return of the open saloon in any form and favor taking the profit out of the sale of strong liquor by means of state owned stores.

2. That we solicit the support of the churches and other organizations in the state to memorialize the legislature as being opposed to any plan of control other than state owned stores.

3. That all money over and above expenses of handling, raised by the sale of strong liquors be used in meeting Idaho's contribution to relief and old age pension funds.

4. That both branches of the legislature be advised immediately by telegraph of this action and ask other organizations interested to do the same.

3,000 Pennies Pay For Baby's Birth

AUSTIN, Tex. (UP) — A baby is worth nightly more than twice its weight in copper, a local physician has discovered.

The physician, who had delivered an infant for a young couple, was surprised one morning to find a sack containing 3,000 pennies on his desk.

When born the baby weighed just seven pounds. The pennies weighed sixteen and a half pounds.

SODEN PREDICTS 1935 SALE BOOST

Forecasts Business Uptrends For Electric Refrigerator Business in Nation

Enthusiastic over 1935 sales possibilities, John Soden, proprietor of the Soden Electric Appliance company, has returned from a sales and advertising conference in Boise. The session was called by the Westinghouse company to acquaint dealers with the new refrigerators and sales promotion plans for the coming years.

New sales records for electric refrigerators in the country as a whole and in Twin Falls are predicted by Soden, who says that the 1935 Westinghouse model offers striking new design based on the fundamentals of correct and efficient refrigeration. A contemplated extensive advertising program will result in splendid business prospects in this territory, Soden believes.

Addition to a prosperous year for electric refrigeration is a result of record-breaking sales, a number of allied industries will also benefit, thus improving general business conditions, he concluded.

Deep sea divers are not attacked by tiger sharks, because the air bubbles escaping from the helmet scare the sharks away.
