Dogged Militiamen Stand Out Against Drive on Barcelona

Advancing Insurgents Lay Siege to Village, Nine and One-Half Miles Southwest of Capital

(By The Associated Press)

HENDAYE, France (at the Spanish frontier), Jan. 24 (Tuesday)—Insurgents advancing along the coastal mountain range laid siege today to the little village of San Boy, nine and a half miles southwest of Barcelona.

The attacking troops descended on the little town from the north after capturing the mountain position of Olesa de Bonesvalls.

San Boy was held doggedly by government militiamen because of its position on a hill above the Llobregat river dominating the coastal highway and the highway from Martorell and Barcelona.

Despite reports that Martorell, only 10 miles west of Barcelona, had fallen, government bulletins said the town still was in its hands though its position was critical.

Ordered to Leave

The government ordered Barcelona's civilian population to leave—except men and women engaged in war industries or physically fit for work on a vast system of innermost fortifications.

United States and British authorities arranged to remove their nationals from the Barcelona zone. A British cruiser and a destroyer were cruising off Barcelona and the American cruiser Omaha was ordered from Villefranche on the French Riviera to Barcelona to pick up Americans.

The Spanish government imposed a "full state of war" and "complete martial law" on both parts of government Spain, the Catalonian and southern segments, transferring all civil authority to the military.

At Madrid, General Jose Miaja, military commander of the southern part of government territory, said that "barriers raised against the invaders are impregnable in our zone."

The Barcelona cabinet declared it would remain in Barcelona although it was reported at the French border that ministerial archives and provincial courts already had been transferred inland, closer to the French frontier.

Northward Flight

It was expected that actual insurgent entry into Barcelona would send government officials northward where the cities of Gerona and Figueras would offer ample havens and possibly a seat of government until the insurgents still further narrowed the government's northeastern corner of Spain.

Walter D. Thurston, American charge d'affaires at Barcelona, summoned the cruiser Omaha tonight to remove about 30 Americans from the Barcelona area and 120 other Americans decided to stay.

Villefranche, where the Omaha was in port, is about 12 hours steaming distance from Barcelona.

Some advices said the government had thrown up the first outposts of its "iron ring" Barcelona defensive near Castelldefels.

Almost due north of Castelldefels, a second insurgent column was attacking near Martorell, 12 miles west northwest of the edge of Barcelona and on a highway linked with the coast road only a few miles outside the capital.

FLASHES of LIFE

By Associated Press

Painful Error

ST. LOUIS—A case of mistaken identity put Paul Bush, 24, in the hospital.

Bush mistook the house of his neighbor, John Quagliata, for his own, and attempted to enter.

Quagliata, 60, mistook his neighbor for a burglar and shot three times through the door, wounding Bush in the leg.

One-Car Dog

CHARLESTON, S. C.—It's hard to teach an old dog new cars.

It looked like stubbornness when Coolie, a chow belonging to Melvern Halsey, jumped into a car parked at a curb and would not get out. He was ejected only by force after the owner gave to the police station for help.

Later they found why Coolie refused to leave—the car was formerly owned by Halsey, who sold it a few months ago.

Compensation

NEWPORT, Ore.—The ill wind that gave Supervisor Alec Gallagher a road crew a good ducking also brought the men their lunch.

Carried up Pottery creek by a gale, the huge wave ducked the crew at work on a bridge. When it receded Gallagher found a live 22-pound red snapper, fully half a mile from the ocean.

More Twins

CASPER, Wyo.—Twins figure prominently in Daniel Elson's life.

Elson, a twin, is father of new born twins. The doctor who delivered the boy and girl is a twin. One of the nurses has twin children, another twin sisters. Elson likewise has twin sisters, one of whom is married to a twin.

GALES CAUSE DISTRESS ON LAND AND SEA

Fourteen Ships Send S.O.S. Signals as Wind, Cold And Snow Strike East; Storms Leave 29 Dead

(By The Associated Press)

Onslaughts of wind, cold and snow caused widespread distress on land and sea Monday.

"S.O.S." signals came from 14 ships scattered across the Atlantic while mountainous waves imperiled several hundred seamen and passengers.

When darkness fell the crippled ships were struggling before giant waves some of which were as high as 50 feet. The gales reached 50 miles an hour.

Nine vessels, some cargo boats, one of which, the British Dalsby, reported she was fighting fire and water in her holds in mid-Atlantic.

The two hobbling vessels were the Chilean motor vessel Aconcagua, of 7,230 tons, with an estimated crew of 200 and an unknown number of passengers, and the former British nine liner Medea.

FRANCE REACHES NAZI AGREEMENT

France to Permit Insurgent Victory, Germany Puts Pressure on Italy

PARIS, Jan. 24 (AP)—France was reported tonight to have agreed to do nothing to prevent an insurgent victory in Spain in exchange for a German promise to press Italy into halting her territorial ambitions in slices of France's African empire.

Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet had a surprise meeting with the German ambassador, Count Johannes Von Welczeck, at the foreign ministry tonight at which the agreement was said to have been reached.

The conference followed closely the appeals of the Spanish government's foreign minister, Julio Alvarez del Vayo, for French help in caring for thousands of refugees and soldiers if Catalonia is overrun by insurgent armies.

Official circles guarded the Bonnet-Von Welczeck interview with great secrecy but sources close to the government said an agreement had been reached by which Bonnet would guarantee in his speech on foreign affairs in the chamber of deputies tomorrow that France would stand by her policy of non-intervention in Spain.

ROOSEVELT MAPS HEALTH PROGRAM

President Proposes Activities to Cost $850,000,000 a Year

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—A vast program of federal state health activities, to cost ultimately $850,000,000 a year, was transmitted to congress today by President Roosevelt with a recommendation that the legislators study it carefully.

Though he did not ask specifically for adoption of any detail of the plan, drawn up by his special committee on health and welfare, he referred to it as a program "to reduce the risks of needless suffering and death."

Compulsory Insurance

One step recommended by the committee was an Americanized version of compulsory health insurance as it is now in effect in many European countries.

"The health of the people is a public concern," the president said. "Ill health is a major cause of suffering, economic loss and dependency; good health is essential to the security and progress of the nation."

Linking the committee's proposals with the social security act, the president added that it was recognized five years ago "that a comprehensive health program was required as an essential link in our national defenses against individual and social insecurity."

He did not comment in detail upon the recommendations made by the committee and avoided any mention of the compulsory health insurance program.

Health insurance has been the basis of a controversy between the committee and the American Medical Association and is the only one of the five recommendations made to the president which the association failed to endorse.

California Income Tax Boost Urged

SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jan. 23 (AP)—Increases in the state income taxes ranging up to $4,000, were proposed today by Governor Culbert L. Olson, in presenting his $597,000,000 fiscal program to the California legislature for the next biennium.

These earnings up to $4,000 would continue paying 1 per cent. The tax above that to $8,000 would be 2 per cent; above $8,000, 3 per cent; above $3,000, 4 per cent. The tax on $12,000, would be 5 per cent, on $15,000, 6 per cent, and 8 per cent on $50,000. Above $250,000 no change would be made in the scale which increases to the maximum 15 per cent.

Europe's Fears Sweep Markets

LONDON, Jan. 23 (AP)—An undefined wave of fear swept European stock markets today, causing what many commentators described as the "blackest" day since the September crisis when it appeared Germany, France, Britain, Italy, Russia and perhaps others were about to go to war over Czecho-slovakia.

London's city — the British equivalent of Wall street in New York—was caught during the day between the whiplash of apparently untounded rumors of troop movements in various parts of Europe and quick official denials.

Rumors of "abnormal troop movements in greater Germany" were followed by reports reinforcing their frontier services facing old Austria. The report troop movements were promptly denied in Berlin.

Such unsettling reports were coupled with a pessimistic interpretation of the basic international outlook.

BOMBER CARRIES PILOT TO DEATH

Twin Falls Man Narrowly Escapes in Crash at Los Angeles

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 23 (AP)—An Angeles mail modern mail bomber crashed in flames in a parking lot near the Los Angeles municipal airport today, killing its pilot, John Cable.

A passenger, identified as Paul Chemidlin of Paris, a representative of the French air ministry, was dragged from the rear cabin of the mail bomber before it burst into flames, and escaped with a broken leg, severe back injuries and minor head wounds.

Ten persons, including four women, sented in cars in the parking lot where a number of employes of the North American Aviation Co. were eating lunch, were painfully injured by flying pieces of wreckage and nine automobiles were demolished.

One of North American Aviation employes at the crash scene was Bill Key, son of Mrs. M. L. Powell of Twin Falls, who had been employed as a mechanic at the corporation's Inglewood plant since last June. He wired his mother last evening:

"Escaped by 50 feet. Letter follows. It was horrible."

Cable, a test pilot for the Douglas Aircraft Corp., fell to his death when his parachute failed to open at 200 feet. He was killed instantly when he struck the earth less than 50 feet from the smashed bomber.

CHINESE SLAYER SUSPECT TAKEN

Boise Police Arrest Oriental Wanted for New York Crime

BOISE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Police Chief J. Emer Harris reported tonight the arrest of Tom Yen, 36-year-old Chinese, who is wanted, he said, for the murder of Yep Chow, also an Oriental, in New York City November 29, 1935.

"The prisoner has been positively identified by fingerprints and photographs," Chief Harris said.

Louis J. Valentine, New York City police commissioner, informed us that the murder for which Yen is sought was committed at 305 Broome street, New York City with firearms."

Yen was held tonight in the Boise city jail.

"We found him in Chinatown in the back room of a store," Harris added.

He was armed and prepared to shoot it out when he was taken.

The police chief said the Chinese

VETERANS URGE STATE OFFICER

Disabled Ex-Service Men Call for Rehabilitation Representative

BOISE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Declaring membership of the Idaho department of the Disabled American Veterans is now at the highest point in history, the organization's state executive committee sought today appointment of an Idaho rehabilitation officer by national headquarters.

"We believe inasmuch as some states having less population than we have do have rehabilitation officers to represent their veteran's administration facility hearings that Idaho should be furnished such an officer at the earliest possible date," recited one resolution adopted by the committee at its annual meeting here yesterday.

The Idaho membership numbers 275, department Adjutant Bert Schroeder of Lewiston reported.

"The American Legion is the only Idaho veteran's organization which now has a state rehabilitation officer," said department Commander Harry W. Christy of Lewiston.

May 5 and 6 were dates set for the annual state D.A.V. convention to be held this year at Twin Falls.

The committee's legislative program included these recommendations:

Continuation and enforcement of employment and preference laws pertaining to any Idaho service-connected disabled veteran; Idaho registration appropriating funds to match federal works progress administration monies for a graft registration service; employment of disabled veterans, and other state legislative institution and development of health center, possibilities at Lava Hot Springs, and opposing removal of the Soldiers' Home from state jurisdiction and placing it under the veterans' facility administration.

"The Idaho American Legion delegation to the national convention last year unsuccessfully sought the Soldiers' Home change," Commander Christy declared.

WOMAN DEAF-MUTE CONVICTED OF SLAYING

OLATHE, Kas., Jan. 23 (AP)—Johnson county district court jury today convicted Mrs. Lillian Laughlin, 31, deaf-mute, of charges she shot her husband, Ira Laughlin. Laughlin had asked a third recommended a life sentence for her. Laughlin also was a deaf-mute.

Senators Hear Debate on Hopkins

INTENTLY listening to the senate debate on confirmation of Harry Hopkins as secretary of commerce, are three members of the senate (front to back) Senators Kenneth McKellar (D-Tenn), Alben Barkley (D-Ky) and J. Hamilton Lewis (D-Ill). At the moment this picture was made, they were hearing Sen. Guy Gillette (D-Ia) announce he planned to vote for Hopkins' confirmation even though Hopkins had supported Gillette's opponent in the Iowa Democratic primary. The former WPA chief won approval after three days' discussion.

Senate Votes, 58-27, To Confirm Hopkins

Endorsement of Roosevelt Choice for Cabinet Follows Three-Day Attack

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23—Harry L. Hopkins was confirmed as secretary of commerce by the senate today after a three-day attack on his administration of work relief. The vote was 58 to 27.

Shortly before the vote, two administration supporters, Senators Barkley (D-Ky) and Schwellenbach (D-Wash) arose to declare that President Roosevelt, not Hopkins, was "the target" of the criticism aimed at Hopkins. Schwellenbach said:

"It's an attempt to break down the confidence of the American people in the president and the government of the United States."

Most of the previous discussion had been dominated by Republican and conservative Democratic critics of Hopkins. They assailed him principally on the ground that political activity was rife in WPA under his administration.

The final vote showed a margin of more than two to one in Hopkins' favor. The Republican minority, numbering 17, voting almost solidly against confirmation, polled a total of 21 votes, and received the assistance of one Farmer-Labor and five Democrats, all of whom have been at odds with the administration from time to time. Fifty-three Democrats were supported by two Republicans and by every minor party senator, in confirming the appointment.

Youth Climbs to 110,000-Volt Line

TALLADEGA, Ala., Jan. 23 (AP)—Jimmy Lee Taylor, 16-year-old Negro, climbed a 75-foot tower supporting a high-tension wire to charge his flashlight battery.

Investigating officers said the youth's body, badly burned, was found at the foot of a tower after he touched a 110,000-volt electric power line.

SENATE RELIEF BATTLE BEGINS

Administration Chiefs Rally Forces for Struggle Over Appropriation

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Administration leaders in the senate rallied their forces today for the first big battle of the new session, an endeavor to give President Roosevelt the full appropriation which he requested for work relief.

Lined up against them, it was apparent, were most of the Republican and conservative Democratic blocs of Democrats arguing that the time had come when a start must be made toward reducing the nation's vast expenditures.

The issue lay between two sums proposed to be appropriated to maintain WPA from Feb. 7 to the end of the fiscal year next June 30. Mr. Roosevelt and WPA requested $875,000,000. The house and the senate appropriations committee approved an outlay of $725,000,000.

For days there has been behind-the-scenes herdmanship for votes. The open battle of debate began tomorrow.

In an endeavor to attract the votes of members who are anxious for economy but opposed reducing the relief rolls during the winter months, the senate committee attached a proviso forbidding WPA to discharge more than five-per-cent of its 3,000,000 workers before April 1.

The committee majority bulwarked that today by submitting a report saying that the view of expenditures for public works, the armament program and "the very definite uptrend in business conditions" there was reason to expect a voluntary decline in the number of relief workers exceeding the 500,000 or 600,000 drop of the spring of 1936 and 1937.

The committee minority disagreed. In a report filed by Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) it said the majority had reached its figures "by guesswork." Under the bill as it stands, McKellar said, WPA will have to cut its rolls from 3,000,000 to 1,050,000 by June.

CATERPILLAR PROFITS

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 23 (AP)—Caterpillar Tractor company reported today it made $3,235,700 net profit in 1938, or about one-third the $10,168,689 net profit of the preceding year.

Crash Survivors' Song Guides Rescuers' Boat

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Only a song from the 10 survivors of the lost Imperial Airways plane Cavalier guided the lifeboat which edged through utter darkness to pull them heroically from the Atlantic.

"This was told tonight as the 10 reached port aboard the rescue tanker Esso Baytown, which lurched there early yesterday after they had spent nearly 10 hours in the waters of the gulf stream in which their three companions perished.

Complete Darkness

Stanley Taylor, a seaman who stood in the bow of the lifeboat as it put out from the Baytown, said that without that last desperate and almost timeless chorus from the victims they might not have been pulled from the sea in time.

"We were without stars, moon or sextant—in complete darkness," he said. "And then the whole crowd of them started singing—we listened and the song guided us to the spot."

Then, he added, as the lifeboat pulled toward the four life preservers upon which they had clung so long in the near presence of death, two members of the Cavalier's crew—Neil Richards, the first officer, and Patrick Chapman, radio officer—struck out and swam to the Esso Baytown.

All save Capt. M. R. Alderson of the flying boat still were able to cry out. Alderson was unconscious.

Taylor reported, and had been saved only through the heroic efforts of Mrs. Edna Watson of Montreal and Bermuda, one of the Cavalier's passengers. For hours—no one knew how long—she had held the pilot afloat.

Ice Factor Disclaimed

Alderson, the most seriously injured of the 10, denied previously accepted reports that the Cavalier was forced down by ice in the eastern Atlantic, but he declined immediately to explain the nature of her trouble. The plane sank to the sea last Saturday midway between New York and Bermuda.

Taylor praised the master of the Budget Slashes Pave Way for New Proposals

Measure Indicated to Authorize State Board To Designate Course of Study in Higher Learning Institutions

(By The Associated Press)

BOISE, Jan. 23—Behind the scenes of the 25th Idaho legislature committees wrestled today with complex educational institution problems and government financial conditions that were described as "deplorable."

Little was accomplished on the floor today, the beginning of the fourth week of the session.

No one would be quoted on the problems of education, but these matters were widely discussed:

1. Introduction of a measure to amend present statutes so as to place in the state board of education the power to determine what courses shall be taught in all institutions of higher learning, including the University of Idaho southern branch, and abandonment of attempts to secure enactment of a bill to make the branch a four-year school.

Legislator Urges Transfer

2. Transfer of the law school at the University of Idaho in Moscow to Boise.

3. Attempts to restore at least portions of budgetary requests lopped off by Governor C. A. Bottolfsen.

Latah and Bannock county delegations, which have been called legislators described as a "precedent-setting move" in an attempt to settle their differences.

Spokesmen said some education board members are inclined to go so far as to suggest that third-year work begin next fall at the southern branch if legislation is passed authorizing the board to determine courses.

Under terms of the proposed legislation the board would be empowered to go as far as was proposed in the measure designed to create a four-year, degree-granting institution at Pocatello.

Sponsors of the proposal said legislators in southwestern Idaho "would be inclined to approve such a setup if the law school were transferred to Boise," which is the seat of the federal and supreme courts, as well as the legislature and state law library.

Boise also has district and probate courts.

Budgets Slashed

The pending agreements among lawmakers were brought on by slashes in institutional budgets.

"We must get some of the reduced appropriations restored," Rep. Lance Jackson, said. J. P. Jenny of Cottonwood, a member of the state board after he attended a hearing of the joint finance committee.

"Look at what would happen to the faculty which would face sharp salary reductions if the finance committee keeps the figures at the governor's recommendation."

Rep. F. M. Bistline (D-Bannock) minority floor leader, said the proposal to reduce educational courses at the southern branch has "apparently reached a stalemate" as a result of the governor's request that the Pocatello school's appropriation be slashed.

A bill introduced last week to provide four-year courses at the branch was referred to committee by Bistline assertedly for "correction."

Bistline last week said a revised measure would be introduced shortly.

"We will await results of the appropriations committee and conduct

TVA Inquiry Fund Blocked by Utahn

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—Senator Elbert D. Thomas (D-Utah) blocked senate approval today of $25,000 additional funds to complete the investigation of the TVA by a joint congressional committee.

"I want to know why they need these additional funds and why they have not made the report ordered by congress more than three years ago," the senate session. "It may be all right but I want to know."

Senator Donahey (D-Ohio), chairman of the committee, had asked for the additional funds and an extension of time to April 1 to complete the inquiry. A request for unanimous consent for approval of the proposal was met by King's objection.

King said he may withdraw opposition after an investigation. The committee received $50,000 last session with instructions to report at the opening of this session July 3.

ALLIANCE PLANS BOISE MEETING

Relief Workers Organize for Mass Protest Against WPA Reduction

Advocating "mass pressure" protests against slashes in WPA rolls, south central Idaho Workers Alliance members will rally today for a march on Boise and a meeting with Governor C. A. Bottolfsen.

A call has been sent out to Alliance members of Hupert, Burley, Buhl and Twin Falls to assemble at the courthouse at 8 o'clock tonight. Arrangements will be made to send committees to Boise, officials of the relief union announced, one group leaving Thursday and others following on Saturday morning.

"Mass pressure can change the line of the lame that is being spun in Washington by conservatives about WPA," Perry Morris, chairman of the Twin Falls Alliance, declared in a statement issued here today.

"Referring to a warning from Boise officials against contemplated distribution of circulars without first obtaining a $25 license as required in a city ordinance, Morris denied that his organization had any intention of defying authorities.

"We are not defying the city officials of Boise or for that matter,

PICKETS DISBAND AT IDAHO FALLS

Jobless Plan 'Showdown' at Next Meeting of Commissioners

IDAHO FALLS, Jan. 23 (AP)—Approximately 150 unemployed "men" and women, who "picketed" the Bonneville county commission for eight hours and threatened a sit-down strike unless their demands for immediate establishment of relief projects were met, left the courthouse peacefully tonight under terms of a temporary agreement.

They were scheduled to meet with the commission again Wednesday at 1 p. m., when the "unemployed" delegates said would be a "showdown."

Grover Livermore, grizzled World war veteran and spokesman for the delegation, instructed the pickets to "bring your bedding and plenty to eat when you come next time," he said, adding that he had told the county commission's office until we get action."

A five-hour conference with the board of commissioners, attended by the unemployed group, but the three commissioners—P. H. Jensen, chairman, Iyle Anderson and Carl Carlson—emerged from it with "we will investigate our district conditions closely to see if we can develop road improvement projects for you."

The commission signed more than 60 food and clothing orders to aid the unemployed "needs until the investigation is completed."

The protesting faction accepted the orders but reiterated an earlier declaration that "we want work instead of donations."

Cable Stops Car, Saves Six Lives

LOVELAND, Colo., Jan. 23 (AP)—Six persons owed their lives today to a wire cable which wound itself about their automobile as it plunged over a 100-foot embankment west of here Sunday.

State Highway Patrolman Max Olin said Howard Henderson, 18, of Fort Collins, could not negotiate a turn on the highway from Estes Park to Loveland. The car skidded, struck high concrete posts which held the guard cable, breaking them all at their base. It overturned twice and then was checked by the cable, he said.

The occupants of the car, four girls and their escort, escaped with only minor bruises.

BOARD OUTLINES COUNTY BUDGET

Weed War, Legal Limit Levy for Indigent Swell Totals

A tentative budget providing for a legal limit levy for indigent relief and for expansion of the war on noxious weeds has been adopted by Twin Falls county commissioners for the coming fiscal year.

It is subject to downward revision, but unlikely to be increased to be increased.

The final budget for the year is to be adopted following a five-day public hearing beginning next Feb. 13.

The tentative budget's $190,425 total exceeds by $30,779 the preceding year's approximate total budget.

The increase may be accounted for by a proposed boost of approximately $21,000 for purchase of weed war materials, which is to be refunded by landowners—and a $62,000 increase in proposed funds for poor farm and indigent aid for county commissioners' funds that are expended largely for relief.

Comparative Expenses

Records included in the published call for the public hearing on the tentative budget show expenditures estimated for the past year totaling $207,246, and for the year before, $271,183.

Estimated county revenues, other than from current taxes, for the coming year total $219,150, including $50,000 retained for weed war materials; $80,000 from the county hospital, and $20,000 from the county fair.

County's share in profits of state liquor stores is estimated at $14,000; and the poor farm is expected to return some $8,000 revenues from sale of crops.

Income Estimates

Estimates of income from revenue producing offices, as reported last December by then incumbents of these offices, are:

Auditor, clerk, recorder, $15,000; sheriff, $3,100; treasurer, $11,850; probate court, $1,620.

PAIR TAKEN IN HOLDUP ATTEMPT

Local Men Charged With Attempted Robbery of Store

Charles Darrow, 35, and Robert R. Mayer, 32, both Twin Falls residents, were in the city jail yesterday faced by complaints of attempted robbery. Because a 64-year-old storekeeper resisted their efforts long enough to obtain good descriptions.

The two men assertedly entered the South Park Highway grocery at 6:30 p. m. Saturday, and shoved a gun into C. C. Peterman's ribs with orders of "this is a stick-up."

Peterman grabbed the gun and started to fight, but was knocked unconscious. Police later ascertained that the gun used was a "cap pistol" owned by Darrow's five-year-old son.

The aged storekeeper was alone in his firm when the men entered. He was discovered unconscious on the floor of his store by a customer who by name was not learned. He telephoned for the police and later said that he had noticed two men fleeing in an automobile.

Acting on the description of the men as given by Peterman, police arrested the pair Sunday morning.

Chief of Police Howard W. Gillette said that Darrow and Mayer quickly confessed the attempted robbery when questioned.

Peterman had recovered from the beating yesterday, reporting that he had only a "sore thumb."

Darrow is married and has a five-year-old son. Mayer, a laborer, lives at 249 Pine street. Darrow was janitor at the Idaho theater.

"These interests alike with the unemployed and WPA workers, they continue in the small farmers and small business men. We feel sure that the present administration of Boise is unsympathetic with our cause, and it is all probability not responsible for the crimnace in question. We consider the hand bill or handbill incident and affair nothing but lurridly relations with the city administration of Boise."

Morris addressed a meeting of 150 workers at Rupert Saturday night. The gathering attended by a delegation from Twin Falls, was presided over by Editor McGill, who was named to head a committee for the Twin Falls meeting.

Guest Speakers At Conference

Four guest speakers from Salt Lake City appeared at the LDS church quarterly conference here Sunday. They were Mrs. Vera Walquist, and Mrs. Helen Davis of the Primary general board, and Earl J. Glade and Hanner Reeer of the Sunday school general board.

President J. W. Hickins conducted the meeting, and the second ward choir, directed by Charles Shirley sang. Miss Margaret Eldridge, recently returned from northwestern missions, and Irvin Schiek a former missionary to the Netherlands, spoke briefly.

The M.I.A. effected a musical program in the evening. A priesthood meeting will be held April 1 and 2.

BREVITIES

Called Away—Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Haynie have been called to Baker, Ore., by the serious illness of Mr. Haynie's father.

Hobby Show Changed—The Girl Reserve hobby show planned for this week will be held in February instead, according to Marjorie Black, general chairman.

Daughter Born — Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Squires of Buhl are the parents of a daughter born Sunday at the Twin Falls county general hospital maternity home.

Sister Dies—Mrs. Jennie Barkhuff of Tilden, Neb., died Friday at her home, according to word received by her brothers, George A. Childs of Twin Falls and O. J. Childs of Filer.

Licensed to Wed—Leroy Christofferson and Thora Hales, both of Murtaugh, obtained a marriage license at Twin Falls county recorder's office yesterday.

COUNCIL TO OPEN BIDS ON LIBRARY

Mayor Announces $45,000 to Be Available for Construction

General construction bids, including heating, plumbing and electrical installations on the Twin Falls public library building will be opened Monday, February 13, at 7:30 p. m. at the city hall by the council, it was announced last night.

Mayor Len A Chapin reported at the council meeting that approximately $40,000 will be available for erecting the limit PWA-city structure at the corner of Second street and Fifth avenue East.

The council passed ordinances last night establishing the Twin Falls Bank and Trust company as a depository for public moneys of the city and school district.

The bank has pledged securities of $75,000 to County Auditor Walter C. Musgrave to protect city accounts. The ordinance fully complies with Idaho's public depository law.

Before adjourning the council authorized beer licenses applications of R. A. Assmussen, for his place of business at 130 Second avenue south and Clyde Miller, for his firm at 212 Main South.

GALES AND SNOW CAUSE DISTRESS

Friday night and early Saturday the east and New England to the wake of a brisk blow that dashed pounding surf against the coast from Massachusetts to Maine.

Snow storms swirled through the west and midwest.

At least 20 deaths were reported on both sides of the ocean. Gales, at times reaching a velocity of 91 miles per hour, killed 12 persons on the southwest coast of England. A fresh gale, coupled which brought rain, hail and snow to New England left three dead. Five fatalities in upstate New York, seven in Pennsylvania and two in Ohio were attributed to the frigid, wet weather.

Heavy seas delayed the arrival of the rescue tanker Esso Baytown in New York until late afternoon. On board were the ten survivors of the tiny 65-foot Cavalier, which sank Saturday with a loss of three lives.

Residents of New York City shivered in the coldest weather of the season when the temperature dropped to 16 above early in the day. Upstate, readings included 30 below in the Adirondack mountain hamlet of Mountain View, 28 below at Owls Head, 10 below at Malone, 10 below at Watertown and Saranac Lake.

The sudden descent of temperatures in New England glared many highways. The thermometers registered 36 below at Stratford, Washington, in New Hampshire.

Snow ranged from two inches to a foot in depth in Northern New Mexico, Northeastern Colorado, Nebraska and Iowa as the storm moved northeastward toward Illinois, Wisconsin, Indiana and Michigan.

Earthquake Jolts City in Montana

BOZEMAN, Mont., Jan. 23 (AP)—A sharp earthquake shock jolted residents of this Montana city at 10:45 p. m. last night, an earthquake shook this area.

No damage resulted from what Dr. Eric Therkelsen, Montana State college seismologist said was a weak shock of high frequency, local characteristics of earthquakes. He said it showed a duration of seven seconds, beginning at 11:39 p. m. (Mountain standard time).

mission turned down a proposal by Mayor Chas. A. Cook to revive a number of city work projects.

Meanwhile several members of the group began circulating a petition for the pardon of Leonard and Percy Fritzsche, who pleaded guilty to grand larceny charges last week in connection with the theft of two home chickens. They said they were forced to steal the chickens because their children were hungry.

Their wives were in the group today which participated in the five-day picketing. It here City officials at home and nominal in the city in order for them to be eligible for WPA relief.

The relief crisis came, the commissioners agreed, "is in Washington because of the reduction of WPA relief."

A report released by Sylvan Olson, county superintendent of the department of public assistance, declared that approximately 100 families have been denied WPA jobs certification.

Hunter Admits Duck Possession

Sentencing of Austin Chambers of Twin Falls on a charge of illegal possession of a wild duck was set for 2 p. m. today in Probate Judge C. A. Bailey's court following his plea of guilty to a complaint filed by Grover C. Davis, district deputy game warden.

The complaint charged Chambers with possession of a spring or pintail duck which he allegedly shot.

BUDGET SLASHES SWITCH TACTICS

further conferences with the state board of education and northern Idaho legislators before introducing a new bill," Bistline asserted tonight.

Seek Settlement

"The northern and southern groups are working toward a settlement and are hopeful a satisfactory settlement of the four-year tangle can be reached.

Senator George Pugsley (D-Bannock) said regarding university of Idaho southern branch appropriations:

"We have been cut to a point where we can't operate what we already got."

Senator Harry A. Brenn (R-Latah) said:

"Looks like there has been a cut of around 7 per cent in all four institutions of higher learning, but I understand nothing definitely yet."

Representative Arthur Peck (D-Bannock) said:

"Apparently the economy bloc is going mad.

"It appears that the finance committee is slashing the budgets even below the governor's figures.

"It looks like they want to cut the southern branch dean's salary $1,000 a year and the salaries of most instructors $400 annually."

Comparative Figures

Figures were the currency of house state schools and the decreased appropriations recommended by the governor:

University of Idaho—$1,549,535 and $1,312,165.

University of Idaho southern branch — $512,459 and $380,740.

Idaho State School and College — $310,167 and $198,091.

Lewiston Normal school — $255,022 and $217,859.

The gravity of the state's financial problems was expressed in a statement by Senator W. Scott Hall, Ada Democrat, majority floor leader, who said:

"We now have $7,000,000 in delinquent taxes in the counties and $500,000 in mortgages held by the state are delinquent. Delinquent interest on the two items amounts to another $200,000.

"Nearly all delinquencies involve farmers, and in most instances are not getting out of production for their labor. Their condition is deplorable. Five percent employees in various state institutions and departments even in the lowest brackets would look mighty good to most farmers.

One Way Out

"We must relieve the farmer from the tax burden whether the tax is direct or indirect. The only way to get any substantial relief is reduction of expenditures including salaries in the big tax-eating units—the departments and institutions.

"There is no use pinching pennies—no hope for any substantial increase in appropriations.

"Owing to the tax situation, I am publicly stating that during the past few years the financial condition of the state is deplorable.

"Regardless of any criticism that might be leveled by the state legislature it appears we are faced with the necessity of finding $1,000,000 which there is no available source of revenue.

Hall did not explain his last statement which contained a hint that he might offer an ironic measure to increase revenue.

Said Senator K. C. Barlow (R-Cassia), chairman of the joint house and senate finance committee:

Enforced Reduction

"We hope to be able to start some general appropriation bills rolling next week.

"Frankly, we are being forced to make reductions in all departments and activities of the state government.

"Some of the reductions will be below those recommended by the governor; others will be above.

"The finance committee is working nights and long hours in an effort to gain an intelligent picture of the situation and draft the bills."

The house of representatives passed one measure and four new bills were introduced and the senate passed two and three new ones were introduced today.

Both houses received shortly after noon, until 10 a. m. tomorrow.

Action by Senate

The senate passed three bills:

By house industry committee: Exempting Idaho's two big farmers' co-operatives and 7-C's from paying gasoline tax on shipping and placing them in the same status as out-of-state farmers in that respect. The vote was 40 to 0.

By Representative W. E. Gillham (R-Ada) — Correcting an Idaho statute to make it conform with federal statutes relative to attachment and claims involving third persons and their exemptions. The vote was 45 to 0.

A bill calling for an appropriation of $15,000 to investigate Idaho school requirements was committed to the finance committee on the motion of Senator Gillham (R-Ada). It was up for final action.

The house passed a measure sponsored by the highway department authorizing the issuance of chauffeur's licenses to operators of motor vehicles for hire to a non-paying guest. The vote was 55-0.

Representative W. E. Ritchie (R-Gooding) said the bill would provide protection from hitch-hikers, "or even from the driver's own friends or neighbors" in event of an unintentional accident.

lories, crowded throughout the day. Of particular interest to the caller were the votes of the three democratic senators whose renomination President Roosevelt personally opposed last year. They were Senator Gillette (D-Ia), whose renomination Hopkins opposed, voted for confirmation.

Senator Glass (D-Va), in a brief address, told the senate that he told Hopkins anything Hopkins had asked of done." But that he believed in the right of the president to select his own advisers. When the question of confirmation was put, the Virginia senator did not vote.

Opposition speeches were made in particular today by Senator White (R-Me), who asserted that the "free ballot was in jeopardy" as a result of politics in relief, and by Senator Davis (R-Pa) who said Hopkins had refused to cooperate with him in removing politics from relief in Pennsylvania.

STATE PROJECT AT LAVA URGED

Legislative Committee to Inspect Property and Study Needs

BOISE, Jan. 24 (AP)—Inadequate needs for adequate development of state-owned property at Lava Hot Springs will be pointed out to a committee of the Idaho legislature at Lava Hot Springs, Idaho resort town in the west Friday.

E. F. Mackenzie of Pocatello, secretary of the Lava Foundation committee, and other members of the commission, Chairman B. W. Henderson of Afton and William Peters of Jerome, will meet with the legislative committee at Lava Hot Springs and go over needs for the institution.

"We have planned improvements including development of a waterworks system and natural health facilities," Mackenzie said.

"What we are able to accomplish depends upon the committee's recommendations and possible legislative action.

"Governor Bottolfsen looks with favor on the project and feels that the foundation is worthy of state development."

Mackenzie said the people "do not realize what we have there," and suggested the state either take some action to develop the 280-acre tract adjacent to the town, two swimming pools and various mud bath facilities "or turn it back to the politicians."

Henderson said the state has "enormous natural resources at Lava Hot Springs for development of the outstanding health resort of the intermountain west."

SURVIVORS' SONG GUIDES RESCUERS

tanker, Capt. Frank H. Spurr, for his assistance in getting the vessel within half a mile of the survivors, said they owed their lives to the fact the Cavalier went down in the relatively warm and placid waters of the gulf stream.

The Esso Baytown was welcomed by a great throbbing of harbor whistles and by shining searchlights overhead as she pushed her ice-coated prow into the pier.

As the tanker moved up the harbor, Miss Nellie Smith of Pembroke, Bermuda, one of the survivors, danced a jig on the deck.

Yesterday afternoon the survivors were hanging a four life preserver when the lifeboat pushed into sight through almost total darkness.

Tiny Craft Overcrowded

Mrs. Watson, the heroine of the week, gave a graphic account of the plane's descent to the sea.

"We were flying at what seemed a good speed and without trouble," she said. "I was looking out the window enjoying the bright sunlight; it had been dark and cloudy. Then suddenly it started to slow and halt.

"A steward came and said 'We're going to land on the beach.' All of us strapped ourselves into our seats for the landing. Of course, there was no beach.

"The next thing I knew there was a terrific crash and the bottom seemed to be breaking up. The crew was amazingly courageous and the stewardess wonderful.

"There was no panic and no one was hysterical.

"We all jumped into the water, which was freezing, emptyingly cold. We all stuck together, drifting in the waves. Maybe it was the herd instinct.

"We talked of everything that came into our minds—how long it would take a plane to reach us, or just anything to keep ourselves and we all shouted desperately. Then we lost the ship and all felt pretty blue. Then the tanker (Esso Baytown) appeared and we thought we were saved. And when it came up to us it was the most wonderful feeling I ever had."

One of the weariest of the survivors was Charles Talbot, of Brookline, Mass., former Harvard athlete, who saved himself despite the fact that one arm broken in a ski accident was in a cast. He was going to Bermuda to convalesce.

OKEH EXPECTED FOR LIQUOR BILL

Three Persons in Line for Appointment Under New Set-Up

BOISE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Indications tonight were that Governor C. A. Bottolfsen would sign tomorrow a bill to replace the present three-man state liquor control commission with a non-administrative board that would employ a manager.

Among persons discussed for appointment to the new board were:

Otto Hoebel, Arco bank president.

Thomas Madden of Lewiston.

Mrs. Curtis F. Pike of Boise, former state senator by appointment.

The new manager would receive $3,000 annually. The board would be paid per diem wages and expenses.

The bill would be effective immediately upon signature.

The measure would make no other changes in the 1935 act placing sales of hard liquor and wine in the hands of 128 state stores and dispensaries.

Into Flat Spin

Expert witnesses who saw the tricycle geared, high-winged ship go through a series of difficult aerial maneuvers said Cable apparently became engine at 3,000 feet preparatory to climbing back to half-power.

A moment later the plane fell into a steep, vertical bank, they reported, and Cable apparently sought desperately to bring the Douglas bomber under control by "gunning" both engines.

Instead, the plane rolled into flat spin, one of aviation's most dreaded maneuvers, and quickly lost 2,000 feet altitude. At 500 feet Cable was seen hurtling from the forward cockpit. Now, it was not known whether he had jumped or had been thrown out by the plane's gyrations.

CLARK NAMED IN TRIAL AT BOISE

Former Governor Says Congressman Drew Lease for Machinery

BOISE, Jan. 23.—The name of United States Senator D. Worth Clark was drawn today in the director court trial of a civil action against J. F. Martin, Boise attorney.

Former Governor C. Ben Ross, Idaho's only three-term chief executive, named the powerful democratic senator as the author—while an assistant in 1935 under then attorney General Bert H. Miller—of agreements by which the state highway bureau rented road equipment.

Ross was a defense witness in the action brought by the state to recover $1,800 he allegedly paid Miller illegally.

The state contends the equipment was purchased without paper bids.

Rental Agreement

"Didn't you purchase equipment under a rental agreement whereby the whole thing was charged against the federal government at one time?" Assistant Attorney General Lawrence Quinn asked Ross.

Ross asked the attorney general to draw up a lease agreement." Ross recalled that the job was suggested to D. Worth Clark. He drew an agreement whereby we rented equipment."

Quinn asked him if the equipment was to become the property of the state after payment of a certain amount and Ross replied:

"I based an order that when and after we had paid the value of the property in rentals we wouldn't let the contractor walk away with it."

"Isn't it true," Quinn asked, "that when the federal government loaned money for the Christian church, you declined to pay the amount of those contracts?"

"In some instances," Ross replied.

Reviews Conditions

Under direct examination by Defense Attorney Jess Hawley, son of former Idaho governor, Ross told of unemployment conditions in 1933 and of steps taken by state and federal governments to provide jobs.

The former cowboy chief executive who was defeated for election to a fourth term as governor last November, said the federal government ruled that relief funds "could be used to purchase equipment or rent it from public governmental units."

He said the state did not have money to buy the equipment and for that reason the rental agreements were used.

Bobby Appeals to God to See Dead Pal

Six-year-old Bobby Lesko (right), was the protector of Floydie Hightrom, 4, a cross-eyed pal, teased by uncomprehending playmates. Floydie died under anesthesia at an operation for his ailment. Bobby, weeping at the funeral heard the minister say Floydie would find peace "upstairs in heaven." Minneapolis postal inspectors found this letter to God about the same time Bobby was praying at his bedside.

Burley Church Men Organize

BURLEY, Jan. 23—Burley chapter of the Christian Men's league was organized Friday evening, in the home of the Christian church, with Curtis Price in charge.

Preceding the meeting, supper was served by the Blue Triangle Guild which covers laid for forty men. Decorations consisted of sprigs of barberry, red candles and colorful mums. Group singing was enjoyed during the supper and Edward Schroeder played two numbers on the musical saw.

During the business session, the following officers were elected: Curtis Price, president; Ernest Steelsmith, vice president, and W. A. Sayers, secretary-treasurer. Clyde Gouchnour was placed in charge of the membership committee, with Blair Gouchnour in charge of fellowship activities. The next meeting will be Friday, Feb. 17, and the group will attend a district meeting at Rupert sometime during February.

U. S. SPENDS $194 TO PAY $14 BILL

Federal Employee's Freight Costs Require Act of Congress

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The federal government spent $194 to pay $14 freight bill.

All methods of economizing were followed, but the costs mounted steadily.

A government employee was transferred and his department didn't have funds to pay for shipping his furniture.

Then the law there was only one way to get the money—an act of congress.

Then the costs started to pile up. A bill was introduced in the house. It had to be printed. The claims committee had to publish a report.

The same procedure had to follow in the senate—printed bill and report.

Then the bill, as passed, had to be printed again and sent to the president for his signature.

Robert E. Mitchell, clerk of the house claims committee told of the costs piling up in an inverted pyramid.

It cost as much to pay that $14, he said, as it did to handle the committee's biggest claim bill.

That big bill was based on damage claims totalling about $17,000,000 for fires throughout the state of Minnesota in 1918. Sparks from locomotives operated by the railroad administration during the World war started the flames.

Courts heavily upon damage actions and finally congress was asked to act. The Minnesota fire claims bill authorized the general accounting office to pay verified claims for fire damage.

"But we're probably not through with it yet," said Mitchell. Chances are that claims from those fires will keep coming in from persons who aren't satisfied with the settlements they are offered."

Most of those claims will be less. The committee has adopted a rule setting limits on time for filing claims. Those limits are changed from time to time. The current limit rules out claims for damages accrued prior to 1920.

That rule cuts out many of the approximately 1,200 claim bills left in the committee's hands at the end of the last session of congress.

During that session 725 claims bills were passed, 500 more were rejected by the house committee.

ROADS SUBJECT OF NEW INQUIRY

Highways Involve Expenditure of $106,275,109 During Last 25 Years

BY WALTER R. BOTTCHER

BOISE, Jan. 23 (AP)—Idaho's highway building and maintenance bill—to be the subject of a new legislative inquiry—involved expenditure of $106,275,109 during the last quarter century.

Of this, $30,872,467 was put up by the federal government, $15,095,997 for forest roads and $35,786,499 on federal aid projects; the state contributed $25,796,057; the counties, $9,552,310; highway district, $4,324,703; and miscellaneous funds, $557,731. State and local funds expended for maintenance totaled $16,070,834.

The federal contributions for construction totaled 56.39 per cent.

During the quarter of a century prior to October 31, 1938, the number of paved or oiled miles of road increased from five to 2,538. In 1916 there were 108 miles of crushed rock or gravel-surfaced roads; in 1938 it had increased to 4,386. The state highway system included 2,255 miles in 1916, of which 1,614 was unimproved and 528 miles, graded only. Twenty-five years later the system stretched over 4,876 miles, only 400 of which was only graded and 572 of which was unimproved.

Criticism of the highway bureau has come regardless of the political party in power.

No Convictions

Only two years ago a Democratic legislature appropriated $25,000 to investigate and make an audit of the bureau. Indictments were brought by the Ada county grand jury on the basis of the audits on the grounds of certain technical irregularities. So far there have been no convictions.

Now, under terms of a senate concurrent resolution sponsored by a Republican legislature another investigation of the bureau is to be undertaken.

The time inquisitors will determine grounds for allocation of accrued revenue for highway projects contracted in the closing days of the administration that left office January 2.

Allen C. Merritt of Salmon City, who retired January 2 as commissioner of public works, said in his biennial report:

"Public works is Idaho's largest department and its bureau of highways is the greatest utility operating within the state."

"It is natural," he argued, "therefore, that this department is constantly under close public scrutiny and that it is considered first when reductions are contemplated to relieve financial stress.

Under Pressure

"At the same time, it is this department that receives the greatest amount of pressure from local communities desiring the betterment of conditions in general within their borders."

He added:

"Development of Idaho depends probably more than any other factor upon its highways . . . we are now approaching an era in which the highways are to be the major means of transportation and communication everywhere. Higher type roads are being developed and standards of construction are being raised to meet principally, higher speed traffic and greater safety."

During the 15 years preceding October 31, 1938, the gasoline tax produced $30,600,950, or 51.95 per cent of the highway fund revenue. The tax has increased during the years to the present 5 cents a gallon, and in 1937 revenue from it amounted to $4,531,714, much of which was used to match federal funds.

Since the first automobile licenses were issued in the state 44n 1913, $31,659,912 has been collected from that source, but virtually all of it goes to the counties, which received $2,012,452 of the $2,303,210 collected in 1937.

The counties' shares go toward liquidating highway bonded indebtedness that totaled $6,165,731 January 1, 1938.

LAWMAKERS EYE ROADSIDE SIGNS

Billboard Regulation Proposed in One of Seven NEW Measures

BOISE, Jan. 23 (AP)—The state would regulate erection and location of billboards and signs outside city limits in Idaho under terms of one of seven bills introduced in the legislature today.

Sponsored by Representatives Allen D. Newman (D-Nez Perce) and Kenneth Allen (R-Blaine) was one of eight new measures thrown into the legislative mill during the day.

Advertising agencies which erect billboards and other signs would be required to pay a $50 yearly license as well as an annual $2 permit for all billboards and 50 cents for each sign. Revenue would go into the state general fund.

The state department of law enforcement would be empowered to administer the act, and no billboards could be erected without a permit from the commissioner and written approval of the property owner involved.

Obscuring Views

Signs obstructing views on curves, street or highway intersections, deemed as unsafe would be prohibited.

Allen said the act is designed for safety and to protect scenic beauty of the state.

Other new house bills were these:

By Representative Arnold Williams (D-Madison)—providing that 95 per cent of workers employed on state, county, municipal and school construction must be Idaho residents, with the least qualified preferred to meet principally, highway speed traffic and greater safety.

By the lands and banking committee—Providing that a cashier's check on any Idaho bank may be placed with the department of public works to insure performance of highway construction contracts. Only certified checks are now permissible.

By the banks and banking committee—Making it optional with bidders to submit either a cashier's or a certified check when bidding to furnish supplies for state department and institutions.

In Senate

The senate received these three new bills:

By Senator A. M. Derr (D-Bonner)—Amending Idaho statutes to exempt from taxation non-profit electrical companies operating outside the limits of incorporated municipalities and serving rural patrons only.

By state affairs committee—Extending time municipalities may accept federal aid grants for public works projects from Dec. 31, 1938, to Dec. 31, 1941.

By state affairs committee—Amending an act passed by the first legislature pertaining to state educational institutions to issue bonds, an act approved Jan. 12, 1937, repealed as of June 30, 1939.

FOR Children's SNIFFLES
SPARE your child much of the misery of sniffling, sneezing, and blowing time by following the doctor's simple plan. Place a little Mentholatum in his nostrils. This soothing ointment will check sniffling and sneezing, it will help open his nostrils, enabling him to breathe more freely.
Also rub Mentholatum on his chest, back and neck tonight. This will stimulate circulation. Meanwhile, the medicinal vapors will circulate through the breathing passages as a further aid in clearing up mucus and soothing irritated membranes. You'll be glad to see how much better he feels.

LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL

SMOKERS FIND THAT CAMEL'S COSTLIER TOBACCOS ARE SOOTHING TO THE NERVES

101 STORIES UP on the world's tallest building, Sidney Evert swings in the wind with only a frail scaffold between him and—well, it's 1100 feet to the street. His work is to repair windows in the tower of the Empire State Building. Nerve straining, you bet, but as Sid Evert says: "A fellow with jumpy nerves wouldn't last long on my job. So I ease the tension on my nerves whenever I can. I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels are soothing to the nerves." Smokers in a wide variety of nerve-nagging occupations, nerve-straining sports turn to Camels for the same reason. They find it pays to ease nerve tension often. So they let up—light up a Camel.

TRAPPED ON A BLAZING WRECK, Captain Hans Milton displayed courage and nerve-power that won him head-lines from coast to coast. He says: "On the schooner Pioneer, afire 400 miles out of Halifax, we had a little food and water and some Camels. Those Camels were a great comfort through the nerve strain of worry and danger. It's a relief with me, when ever I feel my nerves getting tense, keyed-up, to let up—light up a Camel."

"RUNNING A HOME is a full-time job," says Mrs. Frank E. Smith, housewife and hostess, "and every minute of it can be nerve straining. Cleaning up, planning meals, social affairs, would run me pretty ragged (and add years to my looks) if I didn't make sure to protect my nerves. My way of avoiding jumpy nerves is this: The minute I feel tense and 'edgy,' I pause—I let up—light up a Camel. I find Camels really soothing to the nerves."

(above) A GORDON SETTER is pleased here—a handsome, muscular dog to be proud of. It's a thrill to watch his flashing action. And it's a valuable lesson to observe that after strenuous activities, this dog suddenly halts . . . relaxes! Though his nervous system is high-strung like our own, the dog responds quickly to the instinctive urge to rest. We don't usually look after our nerves that well. Perhaps you have often willed yourself on . . . hour after hour . . . ignoring nerve strain. Try breaking that nerve strain occasionally—pause now and then—LET UP—LIGHT UP A CAMEL! Camels are a matchless blend of finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS . . . Turkish and Domestic.

VILLAGERS WITH HEARTS

Two women in a small English village decided to adopt two Jewish orphan refugees from Germany. Their plan became known and immediately many of the 400 inhabitants of the place offered to help with material contributions. Some workers with families give only a few cents a month because that is all they can spare from their small incomes.

It seems obvious that there will be other kindly acts as important for the development and happiness of the young refugees as material help.

Two orphans are not many out of all the thousands needing room and comfort but such an example is likely to spread. Judging from the past, when World War orphans and youthful survivors in Russia were "adopted" by many generous people, the world does not lack the good will and initiative to meet such problems in personal, humane ways. It is in the larger, international solutions that we fail.

RACIAL DIGNITY

Harry Newman, publisher and editor of Judge magazine, gives a new and invigorating slant on this matter of race-prejudice. Addressing a Hebrew audience, he says:

"I fail to see why as many entirely proud of being Irish I am constantly hungry to find a Jew who is proud of being a Jew. I am tired of hearing the Jew apologizing for being a Jew."

He goes on to express his amazement when he heard that 80 per cent of the objections filed against appointment of a great Hebrew lawyer as justice of the Supreme Court came from Jews, whereas only 2 per cent of the other 20 per cent opposing the appointment were protesting because the nominee was a Jew.

"It was not because these Jews really objected to Felix Frankfurter, of course. They merely felt that it was better, in the present racial crisis, not to put any Jew forward as a prominent mark for persecutors to assail.

"But that is probably a mistake, as Mr. Newman maintains. If the man the President named had been an Irishman," he says, "every Irishman from Boston Common to San Francisco Bay would be out telling the world that nobody but an Irishman was fit to be on the Supreme Court."

It is unnecessary to go so far as that, but surely the principle of the thing is sound. It may be no time for the Jews to boast, but surely it is a time for members of that race to hold up their heads in self-respect and dignity in the face of their detractors.

MOST STRENUOUS MAYOR

Mayor La Guardia is a public official who never rests. He has recently had installed in his official car a two-way radio telephone. With it he can keep in touch with the police department and hear all the police alarms. He can direct traffic at City Hall while he is on his way to it or away from it. He can keep in contact with the city radio station, where it is possible to arrange telephone conversations with anyone the Mayor wishes to reach. The city's fireboats in the harbor are also on the Mayor's line.

It sounds very energetic and efficient; and all that. Perhaps it is necessary for the Mayor to know all that is going on all the time at the City Hall, and in the police and fire departments. Yet we hope he doesn't use his magnificent opportunity at the time we hope he takes an occasional catnap or 2-hour jaunt from meeting to meeting of itself in the confusion and privacy of his car, he finds time and inclination now and then for uninterrupted thought and meditation. A ruler needs those aids occasionally, particularly the ruler of so complex a piece of modern civilization as a great city.

ECONOMICS

It seems as if Westbrook Pegler, former sports writer and now distinguished columnist, has added the word on current economic problems. We venture to reproduce a few lines of his elucidation of whatever it is.

He leads with his left, referring to Thurman Arnold's position, "a little to the left of totalitarian, wage levelism in the subnormal areas of intellectual orientation," and then follows with a right hook to the understanding this:

"I find myself in partial agreement up to the point where this theory defies the fundamental standpoint of economic tyranny in this intermittent cycles of politico-corporate finance. Nevertheless—

"They is no proved formula in all economic knowledge for the absolute implementation of compulsory expansion and social competition." Wherefore:

"Every attempt to violate this constant and immutable law of nature has produced a profound deterioration in the federal reserve, where there is always a wise tendency to discount industrial feudalism, if accompanied by democratic guarantees and a fair volume of electoral resources. None but a visionary theorist will argue against the demonstrated realities of a field of industrial solecism conditioned by the fiduciary habits of human dignity."

There is much more to the same general effect, but the samples quoted may suffice to teach most of us all we should ever know about this painful branch of human ignorance.

IF ITALIANS WENT BACK

There may be method, after all, in Mussolini's mad scheme to bring back expatriated Italians.

If millions of them came, in a wild burst of patriotism, sacrificing their foreign jobs and spending their savings to move back, of course it only would be swamped. The country cannot properly employ its present population plus one. But an American business writer observes that if one foreign-Italian-out-of-100 was crazy enough to sell his property, buy Italian exchange and return, and thus brought back $1,000, it would give Italy $100,000,000 in lire. And that much money, though a mere drop in the bucket here, would be more than the Duce has in his treasury now.

The fact seems to be that the Italian dictatorship, like the German dictatorship, is nearly bankrupt.

Other Points of View

SHALL WE BE FORCED INTO WAR BY RECKLESS REPORTERS?

We will have to admit that we have harrowing problems of our own, and we should attend to our own business and leave the affairs of other nations strictly alone. But what can we do to stop the hare-brained officials of this country from publishing their malicious

Some of our officials are not unlike Hitler in their colossal self-esteem. They doubtless have an idea that they could efficiently manage the entire world, notwithstanding convincing evidence that they have made a ghastly failure of managing this government.

Now, we are far away from the war-making nations, and until the last few months we have studiously refrained from commenting on their mad preparations for war. And why should we try to compel any nation, through taunting criticism or through moral suasion, especially Germany, to adhere to our particular creed?

We are entirely justified in expressing our abhorrence of the conduct of the German government. It has been brutal, shockingly inhuman. And we have a perfect right to express our opinions so publicly as we may desire—as private citizens—but the officials of this country have no right to express sarcastic and offensive personal opinions of other nations. They are the paid servants of the American people. They are in an official utterance, it becomes the voice of the people of this country, and it is accepted abroad as the attitude of our national government. And even defensive remarks by the officials of other nations are no excuse for a similar offense by our officials.

We certainly want to keep out of war. We do not want to hate Germany, or any other country, because of failure to observe international courtesy. We are facing grave governmental emergencies. God knows they are serious enough to take the entire time and attention of our officials—and then—some.

We have no reason to be proud of our national status at this time. We have more people on relief than the combined total of all the European nations, and the dictators of the totalitarian nations only laugh at us when they make goldfish eyes. And they have good reason.

However, the people of this country are determined to pull out of our troubles in spite of the powerful official handicap. We are facing—and we shall probably be soon. We have had entirely too much encouragement of class hatred by the officials of the present administration. Employers have been busy setting groups against groups, labor against capital.

And now we have the attack on the German nation by Secretary Ickes, whom Representative Dies refers to as a "crackpot." If he is a crackpot he will enjoy the share of the limelight that has come to him throughout the world. But he has seriously offended every well tempered American who wants to keep out of war.

We have many fine citizens of German origin in this country, and the majority undoubtedly regret more than words can express the brutal treatment of the Jews by the Hitler government. But our officials are certainly going outside of their domain when they represent this government in provocative criticisms of Germany's national affairs.

We have heard much about "fifth column" in Washington. It has been rumored that the mountain of debt the present administration has incurred will certainly bring the wrecking that come with national collapse. But it has been analized that the only way to save the face of the present administration, and if our country is to be plunged into a bloody conflict for such a reason, our national affairs are in the hands of malicious, heartless politicians.

The calamity we may fear through bankruptcy is indeed sufficient to shake the nerves of millions, perhaps millions, of our young men may lose their lives for reasons that are trivial and unnecessary, what might fairly be termed a "HELLISH SITUATION."—Benjamin Mortadden in Liberty.

LIBRARY DEMOCRACY

At the midwinter conference of the American Library association at Chicago, it was reported that several hundred persons on public libraries received book purchases in 1938 reflecting the influence throughout the length and breadth of the country, in violating the spirit of the bill of rights.

The dispatch said that "with the attempt to restrict freedom being curtailed on many fronts, trustees of libraries are pondering the demands of some pressure groups which, they say, the volume of mail received by officials in Washington indicates are being directed from Washington into library offices to refuse meeting places in libraries for various organizations and to limit book purchases to those volumes which in the opinion of this or that particular group "are good for people to read."

The book, taken from books which their patronize because of simple and direct. Have we or have we trained in Jesus, Confucius and other great teachers, the ability to determine the books which "are good for people to read?" Or should we just let them read? Let the latter the American way?—Lewiston Tribune.

THE UMBRELLA

Washington had his little hatchet; Lincoln had his rail-splitting ax; we have the umbrella.

Chamberlain took his umbrella with him to Munich. And had to raise it to keep the storm off. He had it with him in Rome, and it was down; things were better. Chamberlain's umbrella is the bulwark of British state mindship. You can tell the international weather by it.

If it continues to help keep the peace of the world, it will become one of the most loved symbols of all time. Some people will even worship it, or at least accordingly. The umbrella is mightier than the sword. The Gore tales refuge under the umbrella.

This fair Mr. Chamberlain has experimented, of late, at bay with his umbrella.

However, we recommend one of the new transparencies, so everyone can see where he's going!—Los Angeles Times.

News Behind The News

By Ray Tucker

WASHINGTON

UNDATED. Confidential advices from commercial attaches here and abroad have convinced Washington's private New Dealers that the days of Hitler and Mussolini will soon forces serious economic crisis.

With cheap and overcheap labor, the dictators have attempted to maintain his "high-speed-no-stop" economic system up to now, but he has piled up almost all the salved Austrian gold, and his Jewish loot is reported to be producing much less capital than he expected. So far he has obtained little material by confiscation—another reason, along with other motives, for conversion of uncommercial projects made the Shepherd line, the war we are claim, above many other indications, threatens to exhaust imported raw materials, leaving a shortage in the munitions and gasoline he needs to sustain his program of barter. The balance of trade is running heavily against him. Mussolini's coffers are empty, he lately made a pay dirt either in Ethiopia or Spain.

The Germans and Italians are not suffering acutely from food shortages, but they are enduring a great deal or their daily diet. Nevertheless, P. D. R.'s scouts report a growing attitude within both countries that they are weary of the glory stuff, and of living permanently on the brink of a volcano. They want to settle down. Otherwise, they argue, the dictators will be the smartest "diplomat dares" to predict the date.

TRADE. The only flaw in this secret scenario of dictators, this hoped is the new British policy of "appeasement" initiated at Munich and further in operation. Can Washington can afford to view prospective collapse of the totalitarian system with equanimity, London-made complex immediate consequences, including displacement of existing regimes with communism.

The balance of power which Chamberlain aims to retain is economic as well as political. On the political side he has gone to the limit in Munich and away from it, but he has not yet let loose "up" the appearance of friendship with the men in Berlin on the economic side the solid, conservative Britons hitherto prefers to deal with the dictators rather than come less experienced Stalin. For if Hitlerism swept central and southern Europe and Stalin on the east, or a Hitler-Mussolini crackup it would also invade France.

Mr. Chamberlain, therefore, is trying to "appease" Hitler economically. He probably lend money to Germany and Italy, and purchase their goods. Washington officials believed that British trade with Russia has increased since Munich, continuing Washington's understanding that British bankers, investments — or credits — were included.

Off hand, the secretary did not know of any local firms that would use the polling names on people who distribution system.

"If you have seen the motion picture, 'The Daily Paper' you can see through all the highlights and again by dropping into the Gazette real-estate office."

You must take a seat in the "Persons" who have seen the picture, try to associate the sequence that with what action is simultaneously taking place.

For, like Chinese checkers, there is a Twin Falls man who is very, very friendly with the wife of Adolph Hitler.

Sunday he very delicately put himself on record in the matter. "Why, I don't know why he doesn't rub him out. If I chopid magazinate Hitler, I'm sure he wouldn't forfeit his heaven to heaven."

MISCUE. Ambassador Joseph P. Kennedy will make no more extracurricular telephone calls direct to the White House when — and if — he returns to London. For on his previous message of this sort — Mr. Hull never did like this unorthodox method of diplomacy — calls tribute to the "official chiselling" which enveloped him on his return home.

During the height of the Czechoslovakian crisis Mr. Kennedy reported on prospects to Mr. Hull in writing, but gave the lowdown to the president by trans-Atlantic telephone. Unfortunately, the facts which he furnished to the White House presented his entirely different picture from the information he shipped to the secretary of state.

When Mr. Hull outlined the situation to Mr. Roosevelt, the latter questioned the statement, explaining that he (Mr. Roosevelt) had more correct data. The president was referring to the telephonic message.

Mr. Hull begged to differ, explaining that his understanding had been confirmed by Ambassador Kennedy. Parts "three or five" were interpretively for Mr. Kennedy — it is rumored that what he had written, the state department was thrilled stuff, while his "special" to the White House turned out to be a wrong steer. The ambassador unfortunately thought he was relaying new and more accurate dope. But you can't sell that idea to some of Mr. Hull's friends at Washington.

BANGOVER. The Public Contracts board's new scale of wages for steel companies doing business with the government, should it come into John L. Lewis' until the next time — perhaps monthly he resentment over prospective withdrawal of Donald Wakefield Cadillin's renomination to the N. L. R. B.

The new rates were aimed, confidently, at Bethlehem Steel, which has repelled C. I. O. efforts to organize its employes. The new standard requires payment of 62½ cents an hour in the northern areas (Bethlehem, 62 cents in Lackawanna and Buffalo) and lower for two other zones. Bethlehem now pays about 50 cents an hour for unskilled labor. The original scheme, which Mr. Perkins favored, provided for only two scales — 62½ cents for the north and 45 for the rest of the country. But her experts insisted that such a system would be successively discriminatory against northern steel-makers, and was therefore abandoned in favor of the 4-zone plan after 10 days of backstage argument.

Numerous small companies in the north process utterly that the differential penalizes them as well as Bethlehem, placing them at a disadvantage in competition with the smaller Bethlehem's competitors. But Mr. Perkins is favorite at Washington, while Bethlehem's Eugene Grace is not. Administration bigwigs are still sweating the big bonuses disclosed revealed in S. E. C. corporation listings.

QUESTION. Another behind-the-scenes row over a major appointment agitates the various New Deal cliques, and again the ubiquitous Tommie Corcoran figures in the thick of it. In some respects the battle is more furious than the infighting over the Hopkins, Murphy and Frankfurter appointments.

Tommie has advanced a young protege for the extremely important post of general counsel of the treasury, now vacant, as a result of the death of Herman Oliphant—author of the undistributed profits tax. The brain trust's candidate is Edward Foley, formerly W. P. A. counsel, but later shifted to the same position in the treasury procurement division. Despite his youth, he is phenomenally able, and few objections have been registered on that score. What scares conservatives is that Corcoran may have a finger on determination of policies involving taxes, internal revenue matters, customs and liquor problems. So far he has kept out of that field.

The president's decision will also answer the No. 1 question among top flight Democrats on Capitol Hill—namely, whether the loudest roster for the purge and the court packing plan still stands at the Roosevelt knee.

MISSIP, P. W. A. bosses have completed their file for weeks in a limit for an application for funds to build an addition to Father Flanagan's boys' home in Nebraska—better known to the movie-going public as "Boys Town."

Father Flanagan has many warm friends among the New Dealers and Capitol Hill solons, but he is realistic; it sawing the highwrigh into action. But deadline day came, and the delivery no paper.

Debarking, they discovered that Assistant Attorney General Joseph P. Keenan, on a visit to the home, had promised to handle the matter, then forgot it until the deadline was exhausted. Had the application been filed through the usual channels, it would have been granted without question.—Copyright—McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Nevada Hits at Ban on Lottery

CARSON CITY, Nev., Jan. 23 (AP)—The state senate of Nevada today approved a resolution calling for repeal of a section of the state constitution which prohibits the operation of lotteries. The vote was 12 to 6 on the resolution, three against, with one absent.

The measure must now be acted upon by the assembly and if approved there, it will be submitted to the people for final action at the next general election.

New York Counts on Fair To Boost Census Figures

NEW YORK WHIRLIGIG

By Richard Waldo

CENSUS—Much consideration has been given to Dr. Luther Halsey Gulick's recent prediction that by 1950 there will be 300,000 fewer children in New York City schools than were enrolled for 1934—the peak year.

Each school year since has showed a decline, and Dr. Gulick pointed out certain factors cannot be expected to the contribution factors to alter. In rebuttal, Mayor LaGuardia asked testily how the educator could be so positive that conditions would not be changed. The oratorical question was not answered.

The steady drop in total number of passengers carried by all city lines—rapport—lines, elevated, surface, bus and subways—bears out the belief of particularly well-informed people that New York is virtually in the irreversible declension. Great hopes are staked on the World's Fair public the figures up to that the 1940 federal-municipal-state-make-a-showing which would have far-reaching repercussion of an unhappy kind, is a lively topic of talk in City Hall. It is freely predicted by authorities that the court will include all visitors who are not of the most transient variety. The many financial institutions, for example, control a very large part of the city's improved real estate are closely concerned with the outcome of the drive.

OFFSET. If District Attorney Dewey's claim that the Eighth avenue municipal subway has been robbed of 3,000,000 fare paying employes during the past two years is borne out as against Chairman DeLaney's claim that not more than 300,000 have been lost, if the proved missing, attention will be further centered on the effect this newest transportation line of the municipals has had on its older competitors.

In its early days, the city's subway provided a special attraction to the irregular riders who tried it. It was not unusual for a passenger to have sole occupancy of a car over considerable distances in all but the rush hours. Nowadays, the arrival at heavy travel times is excessive, and throughout the day availability of seats is doubtful. Subway riders have come to expect as normal the this city. Better cars, faster service, and connections which permit of change without waiting between local and express trains have proved magnets to the crowds.

Mr. Dewey's bright young publicity men are playing the opportunity strongly. The query: "What's Dewey doing in the Hines case?" is sufficiently general to make another issue celebre particularly welcome at this time.

His sixteen years' experience in seeing that expenditures were kept within the laws as Congress passed them gave him an unequaled fund of knowledge on the operations of our government. The light he generously makes that knowledge invaluable.

Authors of many schemes who in their zeal for the cause, hands down, putting their ideas into operation will tell you that Mr. McCarl is a crab. Men who have been in Senate or House committees know he requires the authority of experience and is not a very great public servant. His

INTERFERING TEACHERS.

A teacher, especially a teacher of the beginner's class, is likely to become deeply interested in the progress of the children. She takes over a personal responsibility for the welfare of each pupil. That is right of course, and quite what it should be. But sometimes a good-hearted teacher who needs to be reminded to "Do nothing too much."

Once a class is promoted to another teacher the former teacher should cease to show any personal interest in the pupils unless invited to do so by the present teacher. Professional etiquette demands this, and common sense insists upon it. Children are troubled by a divided loyalty. They want to like and follow their new teacher, but if the old teacher comes into the classroom, to visit, greet each one with a "hello" and a fine, very special smile and ask the children if they know a

Novel Circus Theme Chosen For Tea Honoring Faculty

A delightful circus motif has been chosen as a novel theme for an important event of this week, the tea at which members of the Twin Falls high school faculty and their wives will be complimented. Hostesses will be members of the cabinet of the senior unit of the Girls league and senior students in home economics.

The event is stated for Thursday, between four and six o'clock. Approximately sixty will probably attend, gathering in the dining room of the high school.

Honored guests will be Homer M. Davis, superintendent of schools, and Mrs. Davis, and Edward Rogel, high school principal, and Mrs. Rogel. Miss Dorothy Margaret Smith and Miss Ritz Mae Salmon, members of the senior class who hold student body offices, will be special guests. Invitations were sent yesterday. The cover is adapted circus pictures, and inside were tiny pink elephants and appropriate verses.

Sponsors Present

The theme will be used in table decorations. Sponsors, Mrs. Hopper, Minter and Miss Thelma Tolleson, senior class sponsors, will preside at the tea table.

Miss Mary E. Wright, president of the unit, is general director of plans. Committees assisting her are Mrs. Beverly Hopper, Miss Loretta Belle Lopp, and Miss Lucille Harding, invitations; Miss Margaret Bacon, Miss Jean Pierce, and Miss Virginia Ann Chase, program.

Miss Esther Rosenfeld and the home economics students, refreshments; and Miss Marjorie Shack, Miss Joyce Pierce, Miss Anna Perkins and Miss Virginia Taber, decorations. Miss Jean McGavin is also assisting.

Background music will be provided by Miss Marilyn Brizee, Miss Irene Davidson, and Miss Arleen Tenckinck.

Miss Sutcliff Directs

They are Miss Evelyn Worland, Miss Mary Jane Wright, Miss Ruth Parkinson, Miss Alice Murphy, Miss Perry Magoffin, Miss Mary Kawai, Miss Norma Griffith, Miss Faith Jean Shumake, Miss Janice Faye Gibson, Miss Evelyn Hilk, Miss Nell Kirkman, Miss Grace Schiffman, Miss Virginia Greene, Miss Irene Hall, Miss Margie Salisbury, Miss Clarice Zabel, Miss Beth Bankhead, Miss Betty Jean Bafer, Miss Miriam Hershey, Miss Hazel Huddleson, and Miss Dorothy Worland.

MUSICAL EVENT IS GIVEN

Honoring Martin Smith, who will re-enter Northwest Nazarene college soon, and parents of the performers, each club members arranged a musicale last evening at the studio of Mrs. Effie Rhead Hinton. Miss Loreen Fuller discussed "Faust," and Miss Marjorie Lash and Donald Jacobson played a two-piano number.

Presenting solos were Miss Marilyn Brizee, Miss Barbara Sutcliff, Miss Lallie Holman, Miss Arleen Tenckinck, and Martin Smith of the march club and Eleanor Neale Parker and Betty Crosenbleiger of the Beethoven club. Selections were from Rachmaninoff, Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, Schumann and Cadman.

ANNIVERSARY DINNER IS ARRANGED

The forty-ninth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Bernard was celebrated Sunday afternoon when Mr. and Mrs. Claude Bernard entertained at a charmingly appointed dinner in their honor. The host is the son of the honorees.

The glow of pink princess tapers provided illumination for the dinner table, and the wedding cake was topped with a miniature bride and bridegroom. The afternoon was spent socially.

Other guests were Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Bernard and family of Hazelton and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Beer and family of Kimberly.

SHAW PLAY IS READ

"Pygmalion," a play by George Bernard Shaw, was read by members of the Delphian society yesterday afternoon when they met at the home of Mrs. Ronald Graves. Approximately ten were present.

Reading the drama were Mrs. Charles Bymer, Mrs. H. A. Ball, Mrs. O. M. Tucker, Mrs. Claude Brown, Mrs. H. L. Stowe, and Mrs. Joseph Marshall.

The hostess served refreshments.

PROGRAM PLANS ARE MADE

Plans for activities of the year occupied L.N.T. club members at a meeting last week-end at the home of Mrs. Gilmore Muir. Miss Jessie Selaya, president, conducted the session, and Miss Millie and Miss Florence Barnard were named on a decoration committee.

Miss Evelyn Cockrell was elected a new member. Mrs. Verna Simms will entertain the club February second.

PYTHIAN SISTERS

Pythian Sisters regular temple meeting will be held Thursday at 8 p. m. in the American Legion Memorial hall Auxiliary room. Officers will be installed.

O.A.O. Invites Charter Group To Novel Dance

Charter members of the O. A. O. club who are not now associated with the group have been especially invited to the dance Friday evening, according to Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Chapman, chairmen of the host committee.

The organization was formed about eight years ago by a group headed by Mrs. Walter Heller, now a resident of Boise. Charter members not affiliated are Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Seavey, Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Birkenkemper, Mr. and Mrs. John Calhoun, and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Corander.

An unusual feature of the dance this week will be that it is a "gay nineties" event. "Third times," or "gay nineties" themes will predominate in the dress of the evening, and attics and trunks are already being ransacked for bloomers, old-fashioned clothing or typical Mauve Decade attire.

The dance, which will begin at eight thirty o'clock, was advanced from February tenth because of a conflict with the Perry Granger Concert.

The event will take place in the Elks ballroom.

An appropriate floor show will be an added feature.

NEIGHBORING STATES ARE STUDIED

The granting of statehood to Idaho's neighboring states was the subject of the lesson presented seventy-day afternoon to Mary Lois camp of the Daughters of the Utah Pioneers at a meeting at the home of Mrs. Mary Richards, four hundred ten Maple avenue.

Mrs. Rose Bagley led the lesson, assisted by Mrs. Edith Wilfley and Mrs. Nettie Montgomery.

A brief business session was held. Mrs. Sophronia Larsen announced the pioneer costume ball which will be an event of next month. Mrs. Emma Lake, camp president, read her family history.

Mrs. Ruth Johnson presented a reading, "Rest Cure." Mrs. Lake played "The Rosary" as a piano solo.

Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Lake discussed the hostess during the refreshment hour, during which a delicious Valentine's day theme prevailed.

The next meeting has been announced for February thirteenth at the home of Mrs. Bagley, four hundred fifty-four Fifth avenue east.

CARDS PLAYED AT PARTY

An evening of cards was a compliment yesterday by the homemaker bridge women of Twin Falls, with members of the Business and Professional Women's club as hostesses. Approximately forty guests were present, gathering in the Park hotel banquet room.

Chinese checkers were also offered during the gay evening, at the close of which refreshments were served. A seasonal motif was used.

Miss B. Marie Aukerman, president, received the guests.

In charge were Mrs. Genevieve Dwight, Mrs. C. O. Dunn, Mrs. Flo Harrington, Mrs. Lora Doss, Mrs. Crystal Van Austen, and Miss Fannie Amey.

FAREWELL PARTY IS GIVEN

A farewell event for Miss Jean McGavin was smartly appointed dinner last evening at the home of Miss Virginia Ann Chase. Members of the Quill and Scroll club, high school honorary journalism society, arranged the event. The honoree will leave today to make her home in Montana.

Covers were laid at a single table centered with nasturtiums. Later Chinese checkers were the diversions.

Mrs. Mercedes Paul and Miss Josephine Throckmorton were special guests, about twelve were present.

Says Susanne

People are still talking about the beauty of that lovely morning last week-end, when the white frost outlined every blade of grass, every twig of a plant, every tuft of moss. The willow trees particularly were lovely, and every growing thing might have been cut out and pasted on a yet lovelier card for a valentine.

Some people looked out across the fields and saw the vague white shapes and insisted that a flock of sheep was there. . . .

If anyone would make such delicate, hazy backgrounds for a stage setting, no one would believe that it resembled anyone's else's reality. Stage crew, however, could ever take the time and patience to do the delicate work on a single plant which nature lavishly echoed on a million trees and on countless blades of grass.

But No Snow

Even though this season has been singularly devoid of snow, the cute little high school girlies have not let that keep them from wearing snow boots. Not to be confused with snow shoes, this type of footwear is the boot of which you have seen so much, a creation running from the height of your ankle to that of three-quarter length half socks. (Something wrong there?)

Light tan and white are the most popular colors for the boots, and they usually have bright socks peeping over the top. They sound warm, and no doubt are as comfortable as that old pair of bedroom slippers you would wear if you hadn't read too much Marjorie Hills.

Another Point for the Boots

Overshoes are not worn over them, and in these sure-legged days that at least spares the onlooker the sight of naked limbs showing over the tops of galoshes!

A Lovely Book

You can't expect a mother to knock her own business, or to think that her customers have any but the most superior intelligence and charm.

Sharon Brandt, 9, has simply love "Tales of a Wayward Inn." by Frank Case of the Algonquin hotel in New York City. Anecdotes of all the contemporary famous folk are there in profusion, along with delightful sketches by all your favorites of the lighter artists. Humor and charm are the keynotes of the volume—it's in the library, and, being non-fiction, not on the pay-shelf—and you ought to eat it up if you have any taste at all either for celebrities or amusing stories.

You'll feel you know all his famous guests intimately, and so, for the author himself, he's really sweet. He can quip and charm with the best of them.

Change of Subject: Did you hear the all-Tschaikowsky concert Sunday over the radio? It was brilliant.

CLUB GIVES DINNER

Important on the Salmon Social club calendar was the annual potluck dinner given last week-end by the Community club. Club members, their families, and guests were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Perle Belleville gave a dialogue, and Mrs. Edith Thietten presented a reading. Games were played afterwards.

GAMES DIVERSION AT CLASS PARTY

Pinochle and Chinese checkers were the diversions of a delightful evening Saturday when members of the Fidelity class of the Methodist church gathered for a party at the H. H. Crow home. Six tables were at play.

Each member brought a school lunch, featured during the refreshment hour. A white elephant auction concluded.

Mrs. Fred Beer was elected president of the class and Mrs. Earl Walker secretary-treasurer. The social secretary will be appointed later.

JEROME

BIRTHDAY EVENT

A group of friends of Mrs. Max Stanley of Falls City surprised her with a shower on her birthday Friday afternoon.

WOODMEN ENTERTAIN

Friday evening Woodmen of the World of the Jerome lodge entertained at ten tables of pinochle. More than fifty were present including a large delegation from the Twin Falls lodge.

DOUBLE SHOWER

A double shower was given in honor of Mrs. Darrell Domke and Mrs. James Stanley last week at the home of Mrs. John Miller. Mrs. Edel Miller was co-hostess. Eighteen guests were present.

GUEST COMPLIMENTED

Mrs. Harold Harley of American Falls was honored guest at a three table contract bridge party given at the home of her mother, Mrs. William N. Hartwell, Friday afternoon. Following a 1:30 luncheon three tables were in play with honors going to Mrs. L. W. Sanberg and Mrs. Eugene Wittman.

Pretty Wedding For Burley Pair

BURLEY, Jan. 24—Outstanding among the social events of the week was the wedding of Miss Belle Anderson, daughter of Mrs. Mattie Anderson, and Frank J. Anderson, both of Burley, and Reed Boyd Lyons, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tom Lyons, at 1 p. m. at the home of the bride's mother. Probate Judge Hunt officiated.

The bride was lovely in an attractive ensemble of black and brown georgette and accessories of sardet. Preceding the wedding march from Lohengrin, the couple took their places before a mass of cathedral candles, in the presence of the immediate families. Miss Helene Wilson, Beth Maxwell and Mr. and Mrs. Wendell Fisher were present. Twin Falls, Pocatello, Boise and Salt Lake City were represented.

Refreshments were served from a table centered with tens, palms, and calla lilies.

A two-course luncheon followed, with the table centerpiece consisting of daffodils and yellow candles. A two-tiered wedding cake was served by the bride.

Following a short wedding trip, the couple will make their home in the Clover apartments. Both Mr. and Mrs. Lyons are graduates of Burley high school. Mr. Lyons is employed at the Sport Shop, and Mrs. Lyons will continue her work.

THE CHARACTERS

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.

Allan Collings, the man she loves.

David Norris, the man she is going to marry.

Yesterday: Noel insists on playing in spite of a cold. She loses her voice.

Chapter 7

HORRIBLE THOUGHTS

"Oh—compliment! Please—not in Heaton's! Clarabelle, let me—have that—cough!"

Noel wrung her hands hysterically, as the croaking whispered words came from her throat. Douglas Swanstrom looked at her helplessly for a moment and then he told her quietly.

"You can't go on, Noel—that's out—of the question!" He turned to the maid. "You'd better take Miss Marchand—some—and telephone for the doctor." He was out of the room in a flash. Noel knew he was summoning Rita, her understudy.

Harsh sobs broke from Noel's throat. She permitted Clarabelle to take off the white gown and help her on with her street dress. "I'm too ill to move—she protested—and the maid said, "You'd better get the doctor here, then." She called out of the stage panels gave the message to be telephoned. Outside Noel's door, several of the troupe had gathered. Already the news of the leading lady's collapse had spread backstage.

"I'm sorry," Gerald said dashing in for a moment and patting her hand sympathetically.

Swanstrom was holding the curtain a few minutes while Rita got ready. The audience, meanwhile, buzzing, excited, passed by Noel's door as Foster went out. She hesitated a moment.

"I'm sorry you're ill, Miss Marchand," then went into the wings to take Noel's place. You're not sorry—Noel thought—how could you be? This is the chance you've been waiting for. She couldn't blame her understudy—one had to fight for one's self in this game.

"You've got to get me fixed up for tonight," Noel pleaded with Dr. Heaton when he arrived. The physician shook his head emphatically. "You're going home to bed and stay there—until I tell you to come back," he insisted. "You've got a bad case of laryngitis and it's nothing to fool with."

Clarabelle took Noel to her hotel in a cab.

"Dr. Heaton—how long will it take?" Noel wanted to know after he painted her throat and directed Clarabelle with the handaging.

"That depends entirely on you, Miss Marchand — we'll know more tomorrow."

The very thought of being away from the evening performance brought beads of agonized perspiration on Noel's forehead. She lay there impatiently, berating her bad luck just when the play was going so well. She tried to relax, to do what the doctor had told her, but it was difficult.

David insisted on a nurse when he—came—and—telephoned—Dr. Heaton to have one sent right over. He was worried—and helpless—feeling Noel's forehead, murmuring endearing words.

"Darling, don't worry—"

"That's—what—everyone—says," Noel interrupted—angrily. "How can I help it?" Then she remembered she mustn't talk much and lay—silent—fuming.

Lying on the bed, Noel was thinking—supposing she never got her voice back again — supposing she were a—dumb—thing? But she mustn't believe that, she had to get well quickly. She tried to put the horrible thoughts away but they persisted, like a dreaded nightmare that took in her whole future.

"Not Far Off"

The Sunday papers carried a paragraph about Noel's illness and her temporary absence from the play. Anita Swanstrom came to see her and the living-room was filled with flowers, some from people she scarcely knew.

Mrs. Marchand came into New York as soon as she heard about Noel. She was more comforting than all the others — she wouldn't let Noel talk, just sat by the bed and held her hand, made her drink the fruit—juice. Dr. Heaton had ordered and treated her like a sick little baby.

Noel loved this kind friend for herself, she knew, though, Mrs. Marchand was even dearer to her because—she reminded—Allan's mother.

Waking hours alone, however, were long and passed slowly. They gave Noel time to think of the future in a different way than ever before.

"What would happen to me if there were no more stage roles?" she asked herself several times.

It had happened to other, better known actresses than she. David loomed more importantly than ever.

"I could learn to love him—he's so kind and good," she said over and over, knowing full well that Allan had taken her love back to Chile. He didn't know it, thank God. And she couldn't have Allan.

By Tuesday the Tuesday hazeliness had gone out of her voice. Dr. Heaton allowed her to sit up in the living-room for the afternoon, but vehemently put his foot down when she suggested going to the theater for the evening performance.

On Wednesday night, she went back to her role. Rita's brief elevation was over with the matinee show. The cast greeted Noel as though she'd been away for years and the audience applauded her first entrance as though she were a favorite.

Noel loved it—being Susan again for the three thrilling hours. Acting that night took more out of her than she cared to admit. David was waiting when the performance was over.

It wasn't only the physical weakness that made Noel cling to David, but the fear, born in those hours of sickness, that persisted even through her recovery.

"Darling, take care of yourself!" His voice was adoring. They were alone in the living-room for a moment. The nurse who had accompanied her to the theater was busying herself in the bedroom.

Noel looked long at David. He is the man, she thought, another I need, went through her mind quickly. In a rare affectionate mood, she kissed David.

"You love me very much, don't you?" she asked wonderingly.

His rather, was convincing. He seemed too moved to say it with words.

"Long ago—far off," thought Noel's voice seemed far away. As she said it she put something out of her life forever.

In a week, she was completely recovered, though she took precautions against a recurrence of the throat ailment. All social engagements were cancelled. Her walking hours were occupied with her work. And, if sometimes, in her dreams, the image of Allan persisted, she turned from it in the dawn and deliberately thought about David.

"Worried About You"

"He will take time—to forget," that's what she said to herself when, one morning, she saw a letter from Allan among her mail.

"Noel dear," he wrote, "I just learned of your illness from mother. I worried so about you after I got her letter. I hope you are completely recovered when you receive this note. But do take care of yourself."

He wrote of his pleasure at hearing of the play's success. "I know how important your work is to you and that this must give you satisfaction and happiness."

And not the one he mentioned. "I'll be seeing you in a couple of months—some matters down here are taking longer than expected."

"Allan!" Noel said the name softly, her heart in her whisper. A tear fell on his letter. What will it matter, when you come back? she wondered. But knew she'd be happy to see him, if just for a moment.

In fact, during the weeks that followed she found herself calling the time against his returning. "Don't be a fool!" she said to herself more than once.

March went out meekly. It was April with the first hint of spring in the air. David, ever devoted, took her riding late afternoon. They had tea at country inns and David spoke often of June.

"Would you consider leaving the play when we're married?" he asked humbly one evening as they were riding to the theater. Something caught at Noel's heart. No more theater? Nothing but being married to David?

"I'll not give half measure," she whispered fiercely to herself. She turned to David:

"If that would make you happy, David, I'll think about it."

Noel knew, though, she'd do it for David. No need to think about it. But—June was two months away!

Another note came from Allan, in answer to the reply she'd written him. "I'll be sailing in two weeks," he announced. She could read his eager anticipation in the conservatively penned message. "And I'm looking forward so much to seeing you in the play."

One night, she'd come out on the stage—but life from there would be different. Allan would be sitting there—terror clutched at her—as she thought about it.

Noel spent a Sunday with Mrs. Marchand in Claiborne, came back to New York in time for Monday night's performance. She walked through the week where Allan had kissed her—stood in the spot where she'd first known she loved him. The air was balmy with springtime—she felt like bleak, cold November.

"I'm marrying David in June," Noel told Mrs. Marchand while they sat in the living-room Sunday night.

"I hope—you'll be happy," Noel's Mrs. Marchand's words came slowly. "He's a fine man—and loves you so much." Reluctance did either of them suggest that Noel loved him.

Mrs. Marchand mentioned her son's letters and cables from him. Noel knew—as the months—went—on—that if Allan, aren't you dear?" the older woman asked simply. Noel knew then she hadn't kept her own letters from Allan, mother. There was no need for her answer.

It was a few days later Noel read the society item—and hope vanished.

Under Treatment—Esther Thompson, four-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Thompson of 201 Maple street, is in the Rupert general hospital for medical treatment.

Leaves Hospital—Mrs. Amos Bills of Rupert was dismissed in the medical hospital Thursday.

Officials Chosen By Beet Growers

JEROME, Jan. 23—A reorganization of the board of directors of the Jerome-Gooding-Lincoln county beet growers association took place in the court rooms Saturday evening with all directors present.

E. S. Stockton was re-elected president, succeeding Harry S. Miller, and Sam Eakins of Jerome was re-elected secretary-treasurer. E. J. Oliver, Hagerman, was named to represent the Hunt and Hagerman district growers.

A discussion followed of the labor situation which was held at Salt Lake Monday. Those who represented the league of this association were: H. S. Stockton, Jerome; Harry Miller, Gooding; Sam Eakins and E. Nelson, Jerome.

Frankfurters Continue On Court's Bill of Fare

WASHINGTON, Jan. 23 (AP)—The supreme court cafeteria has settled a delicate dietary situation. Its bill of fare will continue to include frankfurters.

The day after President Roosevelt nominated Prof. Felix Frankfurter to the bench, friend the cafeteria contained frankfurters and sauerkraut.

It caused an avalanche of comments. Nearly—everyone—noted—aloud as if he were the first to discover the coincidence.

Counter girls, cashiers and busboys—everyone—became—willing listeners to home-made jokes. It became tiresome, but the cash register rang with sales.

Frankfurters never were more popular.

The menu, of course, was planned before the White House nomination was made public. Nothing could be done about that, but what about the sauerkraut?

Of all public places in the capital, the $10,000,000 supreme court building is surrounded by the most ceremony and quiet dignity.

Lawyers are expected to wear morning clothes . . . Women keep on hats. Conversation is hushed. Any talking among the spectators, and children are forbidden to roller skate on the sidewalks outside.

The justices generally eat lunch in their own dining room, but sometimes—when there's something they especially like on the menu—they send to the cafeteria for an order.

What might happen if this crescendo rang out above the clinking cutlery.

"A dish of frankfurters for Mr. Justice Frankfurter!"

Suppose the wisecracks kept up? Cafeteria chieftains held a quiet conference, studied the new justice's menu, and decided he wouldn't mind.

RENAMING STREETS

LONDON, Jan. 23—Of 3,300 London streets on the list for new names, 1,000 remain. In July 1937 streets will be given new names.

Attempt to Designate Biblical Beast Decried

Editor, The News:—I have been very much interested in reading the various letters dealing with the prophetic beast of Revelation 13. I would like to submit a few facts about this power.

Satan is dragon personified, and represents Satan, in this case John, in Revelation 12; he presentes pagan Rome as it stood before the nation, the true church, to deliver the man-child, Christ Jesus. After the breaking up of pagan Rome, in 476 A. D., into ten divisions, typified by the ten horns of the beast—this power was to appear.

The beast-power is not only civil, but also religious. The accusation of blasphemy (Rev. 13:1, 5, 6) and worship (vs. 4, 8) indicates this.

It continues "forty and two" prophetic months, 1260 prophetic years, following the accepted principle of applying a year to a prophetic day.

In this period of time it makes "war with" persecute. She saints, and rules the whole world.

If receives a wound which, at the time, seems to be deadly, but recovers so fully that most of the "whole world" (Rev. 13:8) worship it.

It has a "mark" against which God strongly warns. (Rev. 14:9-11) a mark which can be received in the forehead or in the hand. (This hand is to be with the "sanctuary." God's children will be victorious over this mark (Rev. 15:2).

This beast-power will have 666 as the number of his name. (Rev. 13:17, 18) The number 666 will be expressed by his name in some well understood method of computation. Dr. Albert Barnes, on Rev. 13:18:

Therefore, it seems to us that none of the individuals or powers prominent to light by previous writers fit into the prophetic picture. We shall not attempt to name the power here described, but believe that a study of Revelation 12, 13, 14, and history will reveal the beast-power.

Respectfully yours,

'I'll Just Tie Joe Up,' John Henry Lewis Predicts

Confident

By DREW MIDDLETON

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—To the great astonishment of all concerned, the Joe Louis-John Henry Lewis battle is selling tickets like nobody's business. As the result there will be a crowd of about 18,000 and $100,000 or more in the till when the two Negroes square off Wednesday night in the red-roped ring at Madison Square Garden.

When the match was made there were loud predictions it wouldn't draw flies. It is the first heavyweight championship fight between Negroes since Jack Johnson-Frank Battling Jim Johnson in Paris in 1913.

Then too, the experts put Louis so far ahead of the field, it didn't seem likely the customers would pay to see him against Lewis, the clever but non-violent, light heavyweight champion.

Customers Line Up

The last week has changed that. Each day hundred customers have lined up outside the ticket windows. Ticket brokers all over town have reported a satisfying demand for all classes of seats, from the $10.50 top down.

All this is a tribute to Louis' drawing power. He has not fought since he annihilated Max Schmeling last June. The crowd will expect a similar massacre, but in the cauliflower industry opinion is sharply divided. No one thinks Louis will lose, except a few rabid Lewis fans, but the manner of his winning was in dispute as the fighters went through their last ring workouts today.

Challenger Confident

There is no pessimism in the Lewis camp.

"I'll just tie Joe up, outbox him and outfox him," said John Henry, an affable fellow with great confidence in his own powers.

"This fight'll be over just as soon as I can fix it," said Joe.

Louis will weigh around 202, Lewis about 187. The challenger will fight along more or less careful lines, stressing body-punching, infighting and an earnest desire to fade away from the N.Y.A. the champion carries in both fists.

No K's appear on his record book, says hopeful John Henry Lewis (above), as he completes training for 15-round encounter with Champion Joe Louis, Wednesday night. Says Joe Louis: 'Ah'll win.'

Norby Stars as Burley Triumphs

Elks Score 44-31 Victory Over Gooding Team in League Contest

BURLEY, Jan. 23—Martin Norby, center for the Burley Elks, dunked the ball through the nets for 21 points here tonight as his team won its 14-31 basketball game from the Gooding Independents.

It was a Snake Valley Outlaw league contest.

Webb, Gooding forward, sustained a broken nose when knocked to the floor during a scramble for the ball early in the second half.

Burley Elks piled up an 18-14 lead at the half.

The lineups: Burley Elks—Cranner, f, 6; Detmers, f, 4; M. Norby, c, 21; Judevine, g, 8; Hoggan, g, 3; Parris, f.

Gooding—Independents—Painter, f, 0; Webb, f, 8; Prince, c, 3; Judevine, c, 5; Benrose, g, 7; Andrews, f, 2; Lyon, f; Hulbert, g; Strickland, g.

Burley to Stage Outlaw Tourney

Chairman of Elks Athletic Committee Expects Big Entry List

BURLEY, Jan. 23—At least 20 top-flight, independent basketball teams from southern Idaho and northern Utah are expected to enter the third annual Elks Outlaw basketball tournament here February 16, 17 and 18, J. E. Salmon, chairman of the Elks athletic committee, announced today.

A total of $200 in cash prizes will be distributed to the three ranking quintets at the close of the tournament, Salmon said.

Team winning first place will receive $100, second-place quintet $65 and third place $35. A sportsmanship cup and all-star individual awards will be presented.

Games will be played in the Burley high school gymnasium, the gymnasium seats 2,000 people comfortably.

Teams who have been invited, many already having entered, include Murtaugh Savages, defending champions; Bliss Lone Redskins, Caldwell Pirates, Jerome Jaycees, McCall Loggers, Emmett Red-Devils, Stone Transportation company of Pocatello; Northwestern Nazarene college; Range Transportation company of Pocatello; Gooding American Legion, Thousand Springs Rupert Boosters, Oakley Grace, two Idaho Falls teams, Blackfoot, Logan Collegians and other Utah quintets.

Fred Judevine and LaMont Parrish are other Elks committee members. Advance expenses are paid proceeds will go to charity, the Elks committee announced.

Bliss Takes Two Basketball Games

Girls and Boys Chalk Up Victories in Doubleheader at Richfield

RICHFIELD, Jan. 23—Bliss high school cagers won a basketball doubleheader from Richfield here tonight, the invading girls winning 31-8 and the Bliss boys copping a close 18-16 decision.

The lead alternated several times in the boys game, Bliss leading 5-3 at the quarter, Richfield knotting the count at 7-all at the half and moving to a 12-10 edge at the end of three periods.

Miller, Bliss forward, made seven points, but scoring honors for the game went to Johnson, Richfield guard, with eight.

Rosé, forward for the winning Bliss girls, made 17 points.

Babe Ruth Looms as Pilot if Walker Makes Deal

By LOUIS M. SCHNEIDER

NEW YORK, Jan. 23—As an outcome of the death of Col. Jacob Ruppert, Edward G. Barrow was elected president of the American league baseball club of New York. George E. Ruppert — brother of the late Col. Ruppert — will continue as vice president. George M. Weiss was elected secretary.

Despite this setup, the operation and management of the New York Yankees will rest in the hands of Ed Barrow. He is the only one of the group who knows anything about running a baseball organization from a great office.

While George E. Ruppert has long been vice president, he understands little about baseball club management. George M. Weiss was Col. Ruppert's personal secretary, but he doesn't know nearly as much as does Barrow.

Anxious to Retire

Thus, Col. Ruppert's will orders that the club shall be perpetuated. But no one in the organization wants it so. For years Ed Barrow has been anxious to retire from the game. He's no youngster, and wants to get out. He may get the chance.

Your correspondent is reliably informed that James J. Walker, former mayor, is making inquiries of Ed Barrow and Frederick E. Grant — for many years attorney for Col. Ruppert — as to whether the Yankees club could be sold under the Ruppert will. Legal minds say it can be done.

Given Preference

If the transaction can be arranged, jaunty Jimmy Walker will attain a lifetime ambition of becoming a club owner. He has been assured that if the courts allow a sale of the property, he will be given preference.

It was while Jimmy Walker was mayor of New York that Babe Ruth was most popular. To Walker, the Babe is still the biggest in the game. It isn't unlikely—say the wise boys—that if Walker does head a syndicate buying the organization, Babe Ruth will return to baseball as manager of the Yankees.

Cagers of Second Ward Beat Buhl

Twin Falls ward M-men basketball team defeated Buhl ward M-men 23-12 in a game played on the high school floor last night. Twin Falls led 14-10 at the half.

Jackson of the winning second ward made eight points at guard for scoring honors, with Chidester, Buhl guard, counting six points to top his club.

Manager Clifford Barrow announced that the Second ward would play a preliminary game tonight with the Gooding Independents there. It will precede the House of David-Pinley Woods Collegiate tilt.

The Second ward will meet the Murtaugh M-men at Murtaugh Wednesday night as a preliminary to the Murtaugh Savages-All-America Redheads game.

Bob and Ray Mills Receive Gridiron Recognition at Portland University

Bob and Ray Mills, former Twin Falls high school football players, have been named among University of Portland freshman letterers to win numerals for play during the 1930 season, it was announced yesterday.

Bob was a tackle and Ray a guard on Twin Falls high school football teams several years ago when the Bruins were in the running for the state gridiron title.

After matriculating at the University of Idaho, they went to Portland university with R. L. (Matty) Matthews, former Vandal mentor.

Both men are outstanding varsity prospects. With only six lost by graduation and strong candidates coming up from frosh ranks, the Portland university Pilots are anticipating an excellent 1933 season.

Portland varsity won five and dropped three of an eight game schedule in 1932.

Long of Detweiler's rolled a 220 single game and 597 for three to win top City league honors.

Metz Captures Second Tourney

Chicagoan Wins Oakland and San Francisco Events Within Week

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Jan. 23—Coming from behind in a thrilling uphill battle, Dick Metz of Chicago defeated Horton Smith, Oak Park, Ill., 1 up Sunday in a match play golf tournament.

The victory was worth $1000 to Metz and was his second major tournament win within a week. Last Monday he won the $5500 Oakland 72-hole open in an 18-hole playoff with Ed Harrison of Oak Park, Ill., at Oakland, Calif.

For 23 holes Sunday, Metz trailed Smith, who received $500. Twice he was three down, at the fourth and thirteenth holes. At the ninth the two were down 300 at the eighteenth, two down.

After fighting all with rugged determination, at the twenty-fourth hole he halved the match, while a gallery of some 3000 spectators gave him a rousing cheer. He took the next two holes with birdies, but lost the twenty-seventh to Smith's birdie 3 to one up as they passed the three-quarter mark.

He had turned the third nine in 33, two under par for the Lakeside course and appeared on his way to a certain win. The fortune changed twice, however, Smith earned matters on the twenty-eighth, yielded two more holes to Metz, then squared finish at the thirty-fourth.

The turning point of the match came on the next hole. Metz hit a five-foot putt into the cup to go one up. The last was halved. Metz consted out.

Redskins Defeat Touring Quintet

Shoshone Basketeers Conquer Piney Woods College Team, 56-49

SHOSHONE, Jan. 23—Shoshone Redskins and the colored Piney Woods Collegians tangled in a sizzling, high scoring basketball game here tonight, the local Redskins 56-49 from the Mississippi quintet.

Only a fair crowd gathered at the high school gymnasium for the tilt which featured some basket tossing and clever passing for both quintets.

Shoshone led 16-13 at the quarter, 28-21 at the half and 43-38 at the end of three quarters. Game was divided in 40 minutes quartered in stints of 20-minute halves.

Atkins, Negro center, scored 25 points for scoring honors, while Haddock, Shoshone forward, tallied 24.

Shoshone—Haddpck, f, 24; L. Beltia, f, 15; Bercelche, c, 11; T. Beltia, g, 4; Stewart, g, 2; Crothers, c, 0; Cox, f.

Piney Woods Collegians—Holmes, f, 12; Williams, f, 5; Atkins, c, 25; Kent, g, 3; Ford, g, 4.

Orders for Players Exceed Supply of Talent

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Jan. 23—It's going to cost hundreds of Americans' youngsters thousands of dollars this spring to learn they aren't budding Babe Ruths, Joe DiMaggios or Bill Lees.

From all over the land these boys, who visualize profitable careers in baseball, are arriving to attend sixteen baseball schools, for professional training.

Many will have enough natural talent so that, with a few weeks of polishing and instruction, they can grab jobs in the lower class minor leagues this summer.

Baseball—as an old entrer, celebrating its 100th anniversary this year, baseball schools are relatively new.

The wide expansion of baseball's minor league system in the last half-dozen years has opened a bonanza field for boys who must start at the bottom. Our school says it has more orders for players than ever before and "can use 50 pitchers alone."

No Big-League Alumni

These schools haven't turned out any major league aces as yet but the instructors, generally ballplayers with years of experience, have taught the finer points of the game to many boys who were enabled to catch on with leagues ranging from the "cinderpatch" variety up to the top, Class B.

Some of these schools teach every phase of the game—position play, batting, umpiring, managing and business management. The tuition ranges from $30 to $50 although some offer home-study correspondence courses for $10.

Three big-league umpires teach their profession. George Barr of the National league has a school at Hot Springs, Ark. He boasts a four-year record of placing 76 graduates in 31 different leagues. Bill McGowan of the American league conducts classes in Washington and Baltimore and also offers a mail course. Emmet (Red) Ormsby of the American league is one of the instructors at Ray Dean's "Original All-Star" baseball school at Jackson, Miss.

Dean says he's placed approximately 500 boys in organized baseball. Cubby Stone, Burleigh Grimes and Dick Kerr are among those on his faculty.

Scouts Visit Classes

Rogers Hornsby also has classes at Hot Springs. The Rajah advertises his spring session as a baseball "college" with the others not content to be listed as schools. Bill Dickey, Lon Warneke, Buddy Myer and Gerald Walker are among his professors.

There also are the U.S.A. baseball school in Miami's Orange Bowl, the Washington Farm Clubs training school at St. Augustine, Fla., the International at St. Petersburg, Fla., the National at Los Angeles, and Joe Stripp's school at Orlando, Fla.

Each assures potential students that big-league scouts will visit the campus and select qualified players. Many of the kids will get jobs and, the others will have a good time, anyway.

Colorado Ski Team Captures Jeffers Cup

SUN VALLEY, Idaho, Jan. 23 (AP)—Despite the individual supremacy of Idaho's All-Engen-Colorado's six-man ski team won the Jeffers cup ski tournament Sunday.

Captured by Frank Ashley, who led the way home Saturday in the downhill race and was followed by two of his teammates, the well balanced Colorado team piled up a total of 1074.58 points.

Idaho was second with 1057.95 points, amassed mainly because of Engen's spectacular all-around performance, including his victories in the slalom and jumping events Sunday.

California was third in the meet with 1011.51, followed in order by Nevada, 915.80; Utah, defending champion, 893.76; Montana, 874.97, and Wyoming, 587.27.

The University of Nevada's winter sports queen, Yvonne Blossom, skiing under California colors because of her California residence, dominated the women's competition with first place in the combined downhill and slalom, tied for first in the downhill with Second in the slalom to Helen Fogerty of Utah.

Sets New Record

It was Ashley's work in Saturday's downhill race, which he set a new course record of 1:38, followed by Barney McLean and Gordon Wren, that gave Colorado its team lead which Engen's individual work could not overcome. The Coloradans continued to pick up needed points throughout the two-day meet.

Engen, the Sun Valley Ski club's ace skier and jumper, jumped twice, each time 445 meters, to win the jumping event with a point total of 230.5. Second was Casper Olmoen of Montana with leaps of 44.5 and 48—for a point total of 225.6. Following in order were Kaare Engen, Idaho, 43, 43, total 223.4; Roy Mikkelson, California, 42, 42.5, total points 219.6; Gordon Wren, Colorado, 42, 42, 219; Ivan Hudspeth, Colorado, 37, 39.5, 209.9; Carl Bechdolff, 39, 39, 209.7; Barney McLean, Colorado, 39.5, 40, 207.9; Jack Shiefer, 38.5, 39, 200.6; Warren Brown, Idaho, 37.5, 37.5, 197.5.

It was Engen, too, who came from behind to win the slalom from Frank Ashley of California, who won the first heat Saturday. Engen placed fourth in Saturday's downhill race.

Engen, with a top flight power, fun under perfect control on the fast Rund mountain course, won Sunday's heat in the fast time of 1:40 and the event with a combined time of 3:26.2, against Bellin's 3:27.3.

Colorado placed its Barney McLean in third place, however, just 10 seconds behind Bellin.

Wins Women's Slalom

Helen Fogerty Count, Utah, again came from behind to win first place in the women's slalom with a sparkling run in the final heat. She exhibited marvelous control on the tricky Rund mountain course negotiated all the gates without a fall. First in the final heat in 1:21.2 and second in Saturday's downhill race, her total time of 3.23 won the event over Miss Yvonne Blossom of California, whose time was 3:28.3.

Celey Baum of Ashton, Idaho, drove seven sturdy Irish setters to win the third annual $500 Sun Valley dog derby in 7:27.2, with Lloyd Vance Smith of Ashton second in 7:29.1. It was a near photo finish between Baum and Van Sickle, with Baum's team coming from behind on the turn into the home stretch to win. First place paid $150, with $100 for second. Tom Fernandez of Idaho Falls, third in 7:51.3, won $50 and the remainder was split between Bill Zink of Sun Valley, George Cutler of Hailey, Everett Heeman of Ketchum and L. B. Williams of Jackson Hole, Wyo.

Three Turf Stars In $50,000 Race

Meeting of Stagehand, War Admiral and Lawrin Virtually Assured

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 23 (AP)—A meeting of Stagehand, War Admiral and Lawrin in the $50,000 Hialeah park was virtually assured tonight as nominations were filed for the March 4 classic.

Of the 78 nominees, 41 were weeded out, leaving a field of 37 for the additional $100 subscription fee.

Among these was Charles S. Howard's Seabiscuit, now in California.

Stagehand, leading money winner of 1932 trained by Earl Sande and owned by Maxwell Howard, is expected to be brought here shortly from Columbia, S. C. Herbert M. Woolf's Lawrin, the Kentucky Derby winner in 1927 and the winner last year, already are here.

Jerome Hoopmen Trounce Boosters

RUPERT, Jan. 23—Winning ways of the Jerome Jaycees continued tonight as they took a 50-29 basketball game from the Rupert Boosters. It was a scrambled Snake Valley Outlaw league tilt.

Rupert Boosters, apparently getting into the swing of the league after a late start this season, made it a tough game until Jerome finally cotted out with a high scoring rally as the tilts neared the end.

John Norby, Jerome center, was high scorer of the game with 12 points.

The lineup: Jerome Jaycees—Tomlinson, f, 2; Baker, f, 2; Norby, c, 12; Williams, c, 9; Shawver, g, 8; Kaltimer, f, 7; Beall, f, 8; Holbrook, g, 2; Crum, g.

Rupert Boosters—Allen, f, 1; Rich, f, 4; Uhl, c, 6; Addison, g, 4; Kimball, g, 3; Caldwell, g, 1; Williams, f, 10; Dickson, f.

More than 1,000,000 passengers were carried safely by air lines in 1932.

31 Pirates Now Under Contract

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 23 (AP)—Signing of two Pittsburgh Pirate players during the week-end brought to 31 the number under contract for the 1933 campaign.

President W. E. Benwanger announced receipt of signed contracts from infielder Jack Rellich and outfielder Fred Lee Spitz.

First members of the Pirate crew—pitchers, catchers and team leaders—will leave for training quarters at San Bernardino, Calif., February 15.

BY FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Stock market prices, trumpeted forecasts Wall street suffered a new attack of nerves reliding, primarily, from the counter foreign outlook.

Steels and motors fell rapidly at the start and other groups were quick to follow. Leaders closed with losses ranging from a point upward. Around the lows of the day. A few score off 8 to 10 on relatively small turnover.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dropped 2.1 points to 46.8, the widest break in this composite since Sept. 19, last.

Dealings were fast in the forenoon as large blocks of recent favorites changed hands on the downside. The pace slowed later, but transfers totaled 1,880,130, the largest volume for any session since Dec. 29.

Inspiring heavy offerings, brokers said, was the thought of international complications that might come in the wake of an imminent insurrectionist victory in the Spanish war. In addition, the news Prime Minister Chamberlain would broadcast a strong defense speech later in the day was seen as a warning of a possible European explosion.

Prominent losers in the domestic list included Ingersoll-Rand at 105, off 10 points; Allied Chemical 173, off 8; Bethlehem Steel 63¼, off 6½; J. I. Case 86½, off 6½; U. S. Steel 59, off 4¾; Johns-Manville 63¾, off 6; Du Pont 142½, off 6½; Chrysler 71½, off 3½; Montgomery Ward 44¾, off 3¼ and Santa Fe 33¾, off 2¼.

Most commodities were lower and U. S. cut the tariff on copper, price aroused thoughts of a likely readjustment in the domestic rate of the red metal.

Wheat at Chicago was off ¼ to ¾ at a cent a bushel. Corn yielded ⅛ to ¾ and cotton was down 40 to 80 cents a bale.

SUGAR

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—The sugar futures market held its head above the commodities today.

In the domestic market Cuba sugar for March and subsequ. operations showed March liquidation and final prices were unchanged, to 1 point lower on sales of 6050 tons.

The world raw sugar market declined in sympathy with a steady London market and closed 1 to 2 points lower on sales of 20,000 tons.

Sales totaled 3000 tons: May 1.11c; May 1.16½; July 1.15; September 1.16, nominal; March 1.21; May 1.21.

Cuban raw sugars were quoted nominally at 2.65 cents on a duty-paid basis. Refined continued quiet and 0.25 to 0.50c

Donations Swell Education Fund

Exactly $2,777,693.71 in contributions and pledges from all parts of the country have been reported by workers active in the $10,000,000 Sesquicentennial fund for Christian education of the Presbyterian church, according to word received here.

The sum represents the assistance offered since October by persons interested in the movement for Christian education. A report was made at a meeting of representatives of 53 Presbyterian colleges in Louisville, Ky.

"Our country needs colleges and universities which will develop in them students the highest standards of character and citizenship which will return those students to their homes and churches better prepared to resume their places, and which will provide the highest type of leadership for both church and state," said Dr. Lewis S. Mudge, acting general secretary of the board of Christian education.

Another speaker gave an optimistic view for the future of the privately endowed college, declaring that the men and women of America would always provide ample funds to aid those private colleges which are anxious to serve youth and are willing to work intelligently and with singleness of devotion to their high calling."

STAGE LEADS TO SUDDEN RICHES

Ex-Chorus Girl, Usher and Ballet Dancer Receive Unexpected Fortunes

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK, Jan. 23 (AP)—Sudden riches, like the traditional angel visiting the proverbial sleeper, behind Broadway footlights, always seeking, sometimes fall into the laps of the fortunate in a climax as thrilling as any of the fictional ones they enact on the stage.

It has happened before and now it happens again to Winthrope Wayne, a Broadway chorus girl, who inherited one-third of the huge estate of the late Col. Jacob Ruppert, millionaire brewer and owner of the New York Yankees.

This chestnut-haired dancing girl who supported George M. Cohan in "The Merry Malones" and the late Will Hearn in "Three Cheers" will get $200,000 outright and proceeds of the income from his estate, the entire of which is estimated up to $70,000,000.

Miss Wayne, her real name is Helen Wayne Hayes, met Col. Ruppert when she was a girl of 13 in Springfield, Mass., and she became one of his closest friends when she came on to Broadway for a musical career, in 1920.

She isn't the first beauty who found the stage door an open portal to unexpected fortune.

Two Receive Fortune

One ballet dancer, a middle-aged lady of 50 years, a grandmotherly sort who clung to the fashions of the roaring decade, died in New York and her will was one that would have been cherished by the Horatio Alger stories three-need-long ago.

She was Mrs. Elma Elliot and one of her pet diversions in the last years of her life was to go every week to one of the luxurious Broadway movie palaces to see the scores of young men and girls dance in the long chorus lines on the big stage.

There was an usher, William J. Potter, who always saw that she got a front row seat. There was also a young ballet dancer, Rosalie Kuhkern, who would come out between show shows and chat with her in the lobbies lounge. Neither one ever saw her outside the theater nor knew where she was except that she was a friendly old lady.

Reilly lost his job as usher in 1932 and he never saw her again. But the little old lady didn't forget him. Her will forced the young ballet dancer, When she died she left the two of them her entire fortune of $1,500,000.

Rich But Unhappy

There are in the Broadway ledger many other instances where sudden riches do not always bring happiness.

There was a middle chorus girl, not so pretty and so nimble of feet she danced her way to stardom in the Ziegfeld entertainments of the Roaring Twenties. She was Ada May Weeks who so impressed the late Col. Theodore Roosevelt when she danced, as a young girl at Oyster Bay, L. I., that he helped her begin her stage career.

Ada May, who died only her first two names on the stage, at the height of her stardom married William Potter of the wealthy and socially prominent Potters of Philadelphia. But about five years ago Ada May left her home, her life and divorced Potter. She didn't come back to the theater, and there was no need for she is now wealthy.

Sometimes such sudden wealth is the key that opens the door to those with theatrical ambitions who could make no such progress when they were without money.

Frances "Peaches" Browning was very ambitious to be an actress but she was without success until she inherited her share of the $600,000 estate of her aged husband, Edward E. "Daddy" Browning. She then had some night club and vaudeville engagements but her sudden riches never was her stardom.

Great Salt Lake Depth Increases

OGDEN, Jan. 23 (AP)—Great Salt lake is a full five inches higher now than it was one year ago, as a result of a rise in the lake during the first half of January, according to the Southern Pacific's engineering department.

Readings at Midlake on the Lucin cutoff reveal that the bring waters have advanced a total of eight inches since last October.

Jerry Deans, this gradual rise is the result of increased precipitation the past three years over the area which drains into the lake. This area includes Utah and parts of Nevada, Idaho and Wyoming.

CASTLEFORD

Mission Topic — Rev. Motz of Buhl, formerly a missionary in the Malay Peninsula, gave a talk on missions in the Far East at a meeting of the Methodist Episcopal Ladies' Aid Thursday. Hostesses were Mrs. M. W. Cook, Mrs. B. Olmstead and Mrs. L. M. Bailey.

In Salt Lake—Mr. and Mrs. Ed Conrad and Earl Conrad left for Salt Lake City, Utah, over the week-end on a business trip.

Moving—Mr. and Mrs. Hiram Roosevelt have moved to the Frank place and are moving there while the Elderly brothers and families of Nebraska are moving on the old Robb farm vacated by the Roosevelts.

To Blines—Eddie Clement left Saturday for Bowman, Nev., to work in the mines. Mrs. Clement is still visiting her parents in Yakima, Washington.

From Nevada—Mrs. T. R. Sydnes of Beowawe, Nevada, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Les Olin Conrad and her mother, Mrs. Minnie McBride.

From Parma—Mr. and Mrs. William Sample of Parma are visiting their daughter, Mrs. Fritz Sybes. The Samples plan to locate at Castleford.

Acquittal Voted In Misdemeanor

JEROME, Jan. 23—E. E. Williams, Bellevue sheepman, was found not guilty of a misdemeanor charge by a six-man jury, after five minute deliberations, Friday afternoon.

The charge was brought against Williams by Fred Sievers, of Bellevue, after a misunderstanding had arisen between the two men over a deal for hay which Sievers contended was to have been purchased by Williams. It was asserted that Williams, instead, had come to Jerome and bought hay. An argument arose at Jerome between the men and Williams assertedly displayed a gun.

Witnesses for the state were W. O. Harman, Fred Sievers, John Sievers, Floyd Sievers, Paul Smith and F. A. Campbell.

Witnesses for the defense were E. E. Williams, Frank Martin, Roscoe Carter, Lee Dorman, Gilbert White and Ellis Branch.

The case was tried before Probate Judge Heber N. Folkman, and jurors were John Nims, Charles Kleinau, Mike Jones, George Lawshe, Ben Crouch and W. S. Bailey.

GOODING'S BEET YIELD INCREASES

Total Production of County Gains Despite Smaller Acreage

GOODING, Jan. 23—With a total of 678,28 tons of beets planted during 1938 (land 1937, Gooding sugar beet growers made the remarkable record of harvesting 44.90 tons more beets during the past year than in 1937, according to Melvin Beck of Twin Falls, field man for the Amalgamated Sugar company. This event an increase of 5.37 tons to the acre for this year's crops. Credit for the large increase went to the fact that most of the growers planted beets the past year in land better adapted to the growing of beets.

For the 1938 season, the Amalgamated sugar company contracted for 1,134 acres of beets. A total of 1,128.66 acres was planted in the Gooding district with 1,127.12 acres harvested. For a total of 18,401.25 tons. This meant an average of 14.96 tons to the acre.

The total yield of the Twin Falls district was 266,004.38 tons. Gooding's 18,401.29 tons equalled approximately seven and one-half per cent of the district yield. Three hundred fifty-seven carloads were shipped from the Gooding track.

Interesting note is that F. C. Lindley, who lives two miles north and one-half mile east of Gooding, had the highest average tonnage per acre for both 1937 and 1938. In 1937 he averaged 23.4 tons per acre, and the past year his 101.73 acres yielded 23.51 tons per acre.

FILER

Club Entertained—Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Fox entertained Friday evening in honor of Mrs. Fox's birthday at a party for members of the Marion bridge club and their husbands.

Week-End Guests—Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wilson returned Friday from a visit at Boise and Nampa. Their son Sydney Wilson and Paul Brown, who are students at Link's Business college at Boise, spent week-end with them for the week-end.

Shower for Bride—Fourteen members of "The Old Faithful" Sunday school class and their teacher, Mrs. Edgar D. Vincent entertained Wednesday at the E. A. Beem home, with a party and miscellaneous shower for Miss Lilla Johnson and Robert Reichert, members of the class whose marriage will take place January 28. Games were enjoyed and the history of Miss Anthony's life was read.

Club Hostess—Mrs. C. C. Davis was hostess to her contract bridge club at a one-o'clock dessert luncheon. Scores were related for the past eight meetings with Mrs. D. H. Showers receiving high score.

Club Meeting—The Four Square club met Friday afternoon with Mrs. Bert Chasleen with ten members and one guest attending. Mrs. Homer Bean conducted an "old fashioned spelling bee," and round table discussion.

C. OF C. STUDIES PACKING PROJECT

Directors and Committee Investigate Proposed Meat Plant

Before making any recommendations about the proposed meat packing plant of the Associated Meat Producers, inc., directors and members of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce will make a more detailed study of the proposal, it was announced last night.

Decision of the Chamber of Commerce will be made known after another meeting Wednesday afternoon at the chamber rooms, it was announced.

The meat producers have sought the endorsement of the Chamber of Commerce on purchasing the Idaho Packing plant and forming a cooperative processing and distributing plant in Twin Falls.

Among those at last night's session were T. A. Stancel, president of the producers; John Troendly, jerome, secretary-manager, both spokesmen for the Associated Meat Producers, and O. N. Kostel, chairman of the agricultural committee of the Chamber of Commerce, and H. P. Paton, president of the Chamber of Commerce.

After the session Troendly said that "the Chamber of Commerce is beyond a doubt friendly to our cause and the Associated Meat Producers consider tonight's discussion worthwhile."

He said that the organization had passed the 500 mark in membership yesterday.

Masonic Services For Cafe Owner

Final rites were conducted yesterday morning at the chapel of the Drake and Reynolds funeral parlors for pioneer Minck Johnson, 46, Twin Falls cafe operator who died of a heart attack last Friday.

Many friends and relatives gathered at the chapel for services and offered beautiful figral displays as tokens of respect.

PRESIDENT DANCE TICKETS ON SALE

Twin Falls Stages Benefit Ball; Community Chairmen Appointed

Tickets have been placed on sale for a big President's birthday ball in Twin Falls Saturday night, and plans were being completed for celebrations in other communities of Twin Falls county as part of a campaign to aid crippled children.

Half of the funds raised will remain in the county for the benefit of crippled children, and half will go to the national "Fight Infantile Paralysis" fund.

M. A. Stronk, Twin Falls county chairman of the benefit drive, who is being assisted by Mrs. Frankie E. Alworth, yesterday announced the following community chairmen: L. P. Bunyon, Buhl; Albert G. Smith, Filer; Clyde Urban, Kimberly; Fenn McFadyen, Murtaugh; R. W. Gazer, Castleford; W. E. Hubbard, Hansen; Willy Iliff, Hollister.

The Twin Falls dance will be held at Radoland, starting at 9 p. m. Benefit events in other parts of the county are scheduled for about the same hour.

Each dance ticket, selling at 85 cents, admits a couple.

Because of objection to turning over entire proceeds of benefit affairs last year to the national infantile paralysis foundation, the county did not participate in the nationwide program. Joining a benefit dance instead for the McClusky health camp at Buhl.

A wide variety of entertainment, including basketball and other sports events will be staged this year in all parts of the United States in the fight against infantile paralysis. Most of the benefit entertainments are slated for Monday, President Roosevelt's birthday.

Play Starts in School League

Play in the class A division of the Do-Nut league, a high school intramural basketball activity, began last night with the Basketeers winning 13-7 from the Sloppy Five, while the Feather Merchants trounced the Scarlet Sentinels 39-6.

Jolsie, forward, was high scorer for the Basketeers with five points. Price, forward, made nine points, and Sloan, forward, scored 10 as the Feather Merchants handily won their tilt.

Castleford Men Talk Flax Crop

CASTLEFORD, Jan. 23 — More than fifty Castleford farmers attended a meeting of the Castleford Men's club Tuesday evening.

J. A. Jackson, a representative of the flax development project of Portland, Oregon, gave an address on flax outlook, marketing, and prevailing prices.

Joe W. Lewis of the Union Pacific railroad, also talked on flax. Mr. Reed of Omaha, Nebraska, of the U. P. railroad agriculture department, spoke on potato freight rates on seed potatoes and said emergency rates were asked for and probably would be granted on dry land seed potatoes from Ashton to Twin Falls and Buhl. The rate would possibly be 23c per hundred.

A vote of confidence was given Harry Hale, county agent.

The club also voted to ask favorable action by the Twin Falls congressional delegation on the two housing bills to come before the state legislature soon.

The committee in charge of this meeting was Mel Bihart, Mel Cook and Steve Drabb.

Banquet Program For Burley Lions

BURLEY, Jan. 23—Charter Night celebration of the newly organized Lions club of Burley will be held Wednesday evening at the I. O. O. F. hall, with Craig Coleman in charge. Robert H. Hinkley is president, and club members from several southern Idaho towns will attend. A banquet and program will be features of the evening.

Students Transport Bard To Sun Valley Setting

Shakespeare as it is enjoyed by many in the original form will not be spoiled in the modernized presentation by the Twin Falls high school junior class next month, but will appeal to a larger group, it is announced. "As You Like It" at Sun Valley" is the name which has been given to the production.

"Why do we present Shakespeare? Because the plays offer entertaining plots, varied characterizations, and a constructive philosophy of life," according to the director. "They're modern enough in tone to hold their own in the 20th century, and very largely all most good Shakespearean play is presented in every civilized nation of the world.

"We are eliminating only the archaic speech, exaggerated situations, and flowery artificiality of the 16th century. We are retaining the most famous quotations in their original or only slightly abridged form, all the characters, although they are modernized, and essentially the same story, against a new American background."

Although the play was written in 1599, it is still entertaining and humorous because it tells of a fundamental experience and is a good love story, she explains. It is also full of surprises, including the floor show which ends the third act.

John Driskill as Orlando and Helen Pettygrove and Arlene Smith, protraying Rosiland in the double feminine cast, have the leading roles. Gene Herrickson as Sam Touchstone portrays the leading comedy role.

Other characters and their roles for the play, planned for February 16 and 17, are Joe Wise, Silvius; James Adams, Oliver; John Mills, Oliver; Billie McBride, Denis; Clifford Pratt, Charles; Jo Billy Morehouse, Celia; Larry Amsa, Frederick Duke; Duane Toler, Maurice Lebeau; Allen Parsons, Jaques Grandee.
