U. S. Denounces Russian Grab of Baltic Nations

State Department Spokesman Says No Recognition of Absorption Into Soviet System

(By The Associated Press)

WASHINGTON, July 23 — The United States, roundly criticizing Soviet Russia for "annihilating" the political independence of three Baltic republics, made known today it would not recognize their absorption into the Soviet system.

Sumner Welles, acting secretary of state in the absence of Secretary Hull, spoke out at a press conference against "the devious processes" by which he said Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania were to be deprived of their freedom by "one of their more powerful neighbors."

New Parliaments Vote

The acting secretary did not mention Russia by name. Newly elected parliaments in the Baltic republics had voted in recent days, following Red army occupation of their countries and an intensive propaganda campaign to seek union with the Soviet.

"The people of the United States are opposed to predatory activities no matter whether they are carried on by the use of force or by the threat of force," Welles declared in the prepared statement he read to newsmen. "They are likewise opposed to any form of intervention on the part of one state, however powerful, in the domestic concerns of any other sovereign states, however weak."

Unanimous Resentment

In response to a question at his press conference, Welles also touched upon Spain's recent action in severing diplomatic relations with Chile. Permitting reporters to quote him directly, a rare procedure usually followed only when special emphasis is desired, the secretary declared:

"I think that the constitutional, Democratic and elected government of Chile, with which this government maintains the closest and most friendly relations, is amply capable of making such public statements in regard to this incident as may be necessary.

"I think, however, that I can add that any attempt on the part of any foreign government to interfere by direction or by indirection in the domestic concerns of any American republics will be unanimously resented by all of the American peoples."

Wallace Lacks For Precedent

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—Representative Ditter (R-Pa.) said tonight that Herbert Hoover had resigned as secretary of commerce before campaigning for the presidency and that a "precedent" cited by Secretary Wallace, who plans to remain in the cabinet while running for vice president was "mythical."

"Mr. Hoover submitted his resignation as secretary of commerce on July 7, 1928," said Ditter's statement through the Republican national committee. "On July 14, before leaving Washington for Palo Alto to deliver his acceptance speech, Mr. Hoover formally said farewell to his associates in the commerce department."

Mercury Soars to 111 in South Dakota; Showers Cool Some Sections

(By The Associated Press)

Scattered showers cooled some sections of the nation Tuesday but most residents of the broad swelter-belt between the Rockies and the Atlantic looked in vain for signs of relief.

Pennsylvania, New York and New England enjoyed a temperate interlude while the midwest suffered anew from nature's blitzkrieg.

Deaths attributed directly to the heat increased to 60 and the total of drownings rose to 166.

Fifty cases of exhaustion were reported in Washington, D. C., alone, in the midst of 90 degree weather. Nebraska recorded readings in three figures for the seventh day in a row. Crops there showed the withering effects of the siege.

The mercury hovered in the upper 90's in southern Idaho.

Some of the high temperatures were: [illegible] S. D., 111, Phoenix, 109, Chadron, Neb., San Bernardino, Calif., and Huron, S. D., 108. Rapid City, S. Rogers' fellow Cowboys, who had pulled slowly up from far behind after spotting the Bees to a six-run lead, punched across the tieing run in the ninth, marked time in the tenth, then won the game in the eleventh when Ernie Bishop drew a walk with the bases choked.

Altogether the winners nicked Mel Ristau and Alvin Tate of the Bee mound corps for 14 hits including a homer by John Americh. Tom Robello, Salt Lake City manager, cracked a similar blow for the losers in the second inning — when it

Senate Group Okehs Compulsory Training

Revised Bill Provides for Registration of 42,000,000 Men

(By The Associated Press).

WASHINGTON, July 23 — Compulsory military training moved a long step nearer reality today when the senate military committee approved a revised Burke-Wadsworth bill providing for registration of 42,000,000 men, of whom 1,500,000 would be drafted in the first year.

Details remain to be worked out, but in the main the measure calls for:

1. Registration of all males between 18 and 64.

2. Actual conscription of about 1,500,000 men between 21 and 30 during the first year, starting Oct. 1, 1940. There are an estimated 11,500,000 between these ages.

3. A training period of one year for those selected.

4. Base pay equal to that of the lower grades of the regular armed forces, starting at $21 a month.

5. Later draftees to be chosen from the 21 to 45 age groups.

Senator Sheppard (D-Tex), chairman of the committee, predicted the measure would be ready for senate consideration next week. Sheppard did not announce the committee vote, but said there were "few dissenting" voices.

In explaining the measure to reporters, Brig. Gen. W. E. Shedd, assistant chief of staff, said the men would be classified for exemptions by local boards, similar to the world war draft boards. Men with families, he said, or men employed in national defense work would be placed in deferred groups.

The war department contemplates that youths between 18 and 21 and men between 45 and 64 would be available for home defense service. Legislation providing this probably will be submitted to congress later.

The president would have authority under the measure to determine the age groups to be registered and the ages and numbers of men to be actually trained. After a year of training, a draftee would be assigned to a reserve unit for 10 years, or until he reached 45, and would be subject to additional training.

It was apparent that the legislation would encounter some opposi-

BOISE MAN NEW CHIEF OF WORKS

Governor Announces Appointment of James O. Newcomb

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Governor Bottolfsen today announced appointment of James O. Newcomb of Boise, Idaho resident 20 years, to the position of Idaho commissioner of public works.

Newcomb will succeed E. W. Sinclair of Jerome, who resigned July 15 after a half-year's service to conduct his campaign for the Republican nomination for United States senator. The appointment becomes effective tomorrow.

The new commissioner represented a large condensed milk manufacturing company in the northwest 14 years.

He served in the army in the Spanish-American war and later engaged in construction and operation of smelting and mining plants. Following service overseas during the World war as an athletic and personnel director, Newcomb returned to Idaho in 1919.

"I am greatly pleased to have the services of Mr. Newcomb as commissioner of public works," said Bottolfsen.

U. S. PROPOSES TRUSTEESHIP FOR COLONIES

American Republics Asked to Join in Mandate Over European Possessions In Western Hemisphere

(By The Associated Press)

HAVANA, July 23 — The United States proposed today that all American republics join in a mandate over European possessions in the western hemisphere to keep their sovereignty inviolable until Europe's war is over or eventually to give them independence.

At the same time, Bolivia was reported seeking a transcontinental South American railroad which would act in emergencies as an auxiliary to the Panama canal in moving troops and guns from coast to coast.

The joint trusteeship over European colonies in the new world was envisioned in a draft of a convention offered less than a day after the conference of American foreign ministers opened. Broadly, it proposed:

1. That the Americas act as trustees of the European possessions in this hemisphere.

2. That mandates over these possessions be temporary and that they may be returned to their original sovereigns as soon as possible, or granted their independence.

3. That the parent mandate commission to be set up make recommendations for any military and naval protection deemed necessary to protect the territories from an outside menace.

In a resolution designed to act as a stop-gap until the trusteeship is in operation, the United States foresaw the possibility that some one nation might have to act independently to offset a change in the sovereignty over the European colonies.

However, the resolution declared such action would be provisional only and the affected colony would be given to the mandate commission as soon as possible.

The proposed railroad line would run from the Brazilian coast on the Atlantic to the Pacific coast of Chile, and would be effected by filling in gaps between existing lines, it was said. The resolution points out that only about 4,000 kilometers (about 3,000 miles) need to be built for the projected road.

Secretary of State Cordell Hull of the United States was elected president of the peace commission. Leopold Melo, head of the Argentine delegation, was named president of the neutrality commission and Eduardo Suarez, Mexican finance minister, was elected chairman of the economics commission.

Britain Estimates Nazi Plane Losses

LONDON, July 24 (Wednesday) (AP)—Britain, trading aerial blows again today with Germany, estimated that Germany has lost at least 133 planes in the past five weeks of intensive raiding, and 4,000 to 5,000 since the war began.

It was believed, however, that the numerical strength of the Nazi air force still is greater than at the start of fighting—due to mass production methods.

Leaders' Shift to Willkie Sighted

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—Friends of Alfred E. Smith, John J. Raskob and Jouett Shouse, who met for a dinner conference, predicted the Democratic leaders of 1928 would shortly announce their active support of Willkie.

Reich Gathers Forces For Drive on England

Germany Emphasizes Threat to Britain

'Weapons Will Speak' Say High Nazis as Forces Prepare for Assault

(By The Associated Press)

BERLIN, July 23 — Britain must brace herself now against a made-in-Germany tornado of terror, high Nazi sources indicated tonight, adding that defiant rejection of Adolf Hitler's peace-or-destruction offer had "torn the lid off."

Henceforth, they emphasized, "weapons will speak." Emphasizing this threat, the Nazi airforce again raided Scotland and England.

With one accord the German press, radio and semi-official spokesmen hammered home the thought that Foreign Minister Lord Halifax's refusal to talk peace and the latest British air raids on Germany had definitely killed any prospect of settlement.

Exactly when the long-threatened furious wholesale air-pounding of England would begin remained a mystery. It was pointed out, however, that Germany as well as England is aware that only a few weeks more of good summer flying weather remain.

The high command announced that last night and early today Nazi bombers had raided the length and breadth of England and Scotland.

While preparing full-speed for the grand assault against Britain, Germany turned afresh toward the Balkans with the double aim of preventing inopportune disturbances there and of arranging the basis for a new European economy.

In line with this program, Rumania's premier and foreign minister will confer with Foreign Minister Ribbentrop at Salzburg Friday, while a week-end conference in Berlin will give Bulgaria's premier and foreign minister a chance to present their country's view of Balkan problems. (Bulgaria particularly desires return of the southern Dobruja, from Rumania.)

Nazi Troops Predict War's End in Month

German Soldiers Receive Conqueror's Welcome Home From Western Front

By HENRY C. CASSIDY

BERLIN, July 23 (AP)—Nazi troopers, fully confident that "England soon will be smashed," are receiving a conqueror's welcome home from the western front campaign which cracked France.

I just traveled with some of them on an army train from Paris to Berlin through France, Belgium and the Netherlands.

After a two-day ride through a deserted countryside they were greeted at the border by bands, hot food and cheers. Girls tucked flowers in their tunics, handkerchiefs fluttered from windows, and the swastika flew over public buildings.

The troops talked triumphantly of their conquests.

"Discipline and organization did it," a young cavalryman said.

"It was material and troop elation," another said.

"In one month the war will be finished," the cavalryman declared. "We will send over 2,000 planes and England will be smashed."

Judging from scenes along our route there won't be many battlefield tours after this war—so swiftly did the blitzkrieg pass.

Whole fields and forests were left intact, most towns were standing, and even in those where the allies offered resistance, only a few quarters were smashed.

Everywhere there were signs of quick reconstruction, and compared to the devastation of the World war trench fighting this war generally left only slight traces.

We left Paris at 6 a.m. Sunday.

Trundling over rebuilt tracks, the train took twelve hours to reach Brussels—a four hour trip by automobile.

BRITAIN BOOSTS TAXES FOR WAR

Government Notifies People of 42 1-2 Per Cent Income Levy

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, July 23 — The British people received summary notice today that the pounds, shillings and pence for the battle of Britain will be taken from their salaries, by compulsion, through a 42½ percent income tax and institution of a sales tax which will cost them one-third of the wholesale value of such "luxuries" as furniture and lipsticks.

These are the salient points in an emergency wartime budget presented to parliament under the dictatorial wartime powers of Winston Churchill's government.

(The 42½ per cent rate is a straight standard rate applying to all taxable net incomes. Surtaxes are applied in the higher brackets. Personal exemptions and deductions are more varied than in the United

Britain Waits With Confidence

(By The Associated Press)

LONDON, July 23 — Britain, barricaded behind a growing wall of preparedness, waited watchfully but confidently tonight for Adolf Hitler to start his blitzkrieg.

Reports in neutral sources of "greatly increased activities" in Dutch and Belgian dockyards and railways indicated her great test may not be long coming.

These reports, unconfirmed in British quarters, said the Germans apparently were concentrating military supplies in the western lowlands, a logical jumping off place for mass invasion.

Britain Lists Strength

Taking stock of her position against efforts of German warplanes and commerce raiders to create a starvation blockade, Britain found herself strong in ships, food, men and wealth.

Naval experts declared the island kingdom had more destroyers now than when the war started, despite the loss of 26.

Even if the Germans intensify their submarine campaign, Food Minister Lord Woolton declared, Britain will not starve because "we have stocks to stand a long siege."

Lord Woolton asked American newspapermen tonight to tell the United States there is no food shortage in Britain, "because people over there still want to send us parcels of food."

Starvation Business

He estimated the harvest in continental Europe would not be more than 70 per cent of normal this year and declared "this business of starving people out may work the other way around—we've still got a navy."

War Minister Anthony Eden declared Britain had 1,300,000 home guard troops ready and reported reorganization and re-equipment of French, Belgian, Czecho-Slovak, Norwegian and Polish soldiers now in Britain was making "good progress."

Warplanes roared both ways across the English channel.

Nazi planes, apparently picking British harbors as their principal targets, bombed ports from Scotland to the Thames Estuary and British fighters repeatedly raced out to sea, apparently to intercept aerial squadrons attacking convoys.

GERMANS DROP TONS OF BOMBS

Steadily Speeded Raids Leave Scars on England's Towns

(By The Associated Press)

England's tight-packed towns and rolling countryside, were scarred Tuesday night with the bomb craters and ruin of five weeks of daily air raids.

For three weeks of that time the steadily speeded cadence of the attacks has brought the big black bombers back by day as well as night.

They have poured down uncounted tons of screamers and fire bombs, high explosives and delayed time-explosives. Streets and buildings have been spattered with machine-gun bullets and the falling fragments of Britain's own anti-aircraft shells.

Only high officials back of the screen of censorship know the full toll. They have announced only that civilian dead in the first month of daily raids, from June 18 to July 18, totaled 336, with 476 injured seriously.

Before then, scouting flights over England grew first to aerial mine and torpedo-laying expeditions, then to attacks on British naval centers and shipyards, then to sporadic night bombing forays that extended finally to almost every section of England, Scotland and Wales.

Since June 18 only one day passed in which German flights over the embattled island did not bring heavy bombing. There were a few days when operations were limited by poor flying weather. But for the most part the favorable mid-summer weather and the long twilight has permitted raids limited only by the dogged British defense in the air and by fast-firing ground batteries.

At first the long-range bombers came unescorted, but since the conquest of the low countries and France permitted the Nazis to use nearby airdromes, the size of the flights increased to waves sometimes estimated as sweeping 150 or more enemy planes over England at one time.

Willkie Terms None Indispensable

CHEYENNE, Wyo., July 23 (AP)—Wendell L. Willkie told 700 Wyoming Republican leaders tonight that if he were elected president [illegible] in the back rooms writing melodious speeches."

Addressing a dinner of Republican party workers from every Wyoming county, the nominee asserted:

"I insist that the throttle hold of big government be removed from our legislatures, our courts and our business.

"I am determined that the leadership of the country shall not be resolved by corporate wealth or by political wealth in the form of political machines.

"This government belongs to the people, and we are going to return it to them."

Willkie's dinner talk, after a visit to Cheyenne's frontier days rodeo, finished a day in which the Republican candidate aimed his sharpest jabs at President Roosevelt and the new deal since coming west for a pre-campaign vacation.

Earlier, while watching the rodeo show, Willkie jovially had observed that President Roosevelt's comment on Democrats who have announced support for him showed "that the president is thinking of something besides the affairs of state."

Following through at Greeley, Colo., he told another station audience the United States would go "down the same road as the totalitarian states" if the people follow political "machines."

He mentioned specifically "the Kelly-Nash machine and the remnants of the Pendergast machine and the Guffeys."

In his box at the rodeo arena, Willkie, commenting on President Roosevelt's press conference remarks this afternoon on Democrats who have pledged to support him, told reporters:

"The president is going to make remarks about a lot of Democrats before this campaign is over. This shows that the president is thinking of something besides the affairs of state."

At Hyde Park, President Roosevelt said this afternoon that he understood the Democratic party had "bolted" from Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska and that his administration believed the minds of Lewis W. Douglas and John W. Hanes ran more to dollars than to humanity.

Burke, defeated for renomination; Douglas, the Roosevelt administration's first budget director; and Hanes, former undersecretary of the treasury, recently declared support for the Republican candidate.

At Brighton, Willkie said:

"I know it was a series of circumstances that caused me to be nominated for president.

"I know there are thousands of men qualified for my position, public or private.

"In this country there is no such thing as the indispensible man.

"The very essence of democracy is that it develops initiative and the energies of men."

In his talk at Greeley the Republican nominee observed:

"There are few places in the world where we can gather as we do here today—uncontrolled by anybody."

He said he thought the American way of life never could be preserved if people followed political machines.

"I ask you to send me to Washington as your uncommitted representative who will work only for the preservation of our democratic life."

Waving to the standing, cheering crowd, he rode into the arena in a horse-drawn carriage driven by a white-coated top hatted coachman and escorted by a band of cowboys on plunging mounts.

Mr. and Mrs. Willkie, sitting in an open box, were soaked by a sudden shower and retreated to new seats beneath the grandstand roof.

The crowd let loose a freshened outburst of applause when Tommy Smith of Dubois, Wyo., came out of the chutes on a Brahma steer called "Wendell Willkie."

The candidate stood up and, laughing, waved his hand.

Willkie was to address a dinner of Wyoming Republicans and then fly tonight to Salt Lake City for visits to rodeo shows at Salt Lake City and Ogden.

FRANCE DETAINS FORMER LEADERS

Petain Government Orders Daladier Confined to Marseille

VICHY, France, July 23 (AP) — Marshal Petain's government, launching a full investigation of Frenchmen allegedly responsible for France's entry into the war — and her defeat — tonight ordered ex-Premier Edouard Daladier and others confined to Marseille.

Daladier and several other parliamentarians who left France when ex-Premier Paul Reynaud's government fell to Petain's "armistice regime," arrived at Marseille today from French Morocco.

Vigorous action against those who left the country for reasons classed here as "not valid" was forecast in government circles where it was declared "punishment for those responsible for the war will come."

Those who left France without sufficient reason will lose their citizenship and property, and some may be accused of deserting the army. General Charles de Gaulle, head of the French national committee in London operating with the British in pursuing the war against Germany, has refused to recognize the Petain government.

Besides Daladier, under whose helm France entered the war, action was expected against Cesar Campinchi, ex-minister of marine, Georges Mandell, ex-colonial minister, and Yvon Delbos, ex-education minister and former minister of foreign affairs.

The demobilization of French non-commissioned officers between the ages of 35 and 41 will be started at once, it was announced.

Minister of Justice Albert said withdrawal of citizenship and property confiscation was aimed mainly against those Frenchmen who left France to live abroad.

Frenchmen who were in the armed forces at the time they quit France will be considered deserters, the minister of justice said.

Authorities are empowered to apply the disfranchisement and confiscation to the wife and family of an emigre, if the circumstances warrant.

States and there is a lower rate on the first £165—$660—of taxable income, less personal allowances. The lower rate on this part of the income was increased, Tuesday, to 5 shillings in the pound, or 25 per cent. The tax begins at £100—$400—for single persons and at £170—$680—for married persons. The allowance for each child is £50—$200).

The budget totals £3,467,000,000—$13,868,000,000 — for the current financial year, and of this, £239,000,000 ($956,000,000) is to be raised by new taxes. Direct military expenditures, going upward daily, are estimated for the year at £2,800,000,000 ($11,200,000,000). The government now is spending $228,000,000 weekly on the war.

The whole tenor of today's budget is continuation of Britain's basic wartime financial policy of restricting public spending and thinning down home consumption of goods so as to build up individual savings which can be lent to the state; also, to divert raw materials to the export trade and the production of armaments.

Government leaders stressed that the budget was an interim one, albeit the largest in history. The peak World war expenditures, in 1917-18, were £2,696,221,000. It was hinted another and bigger budget might be expected before the end of the fiscal year next March 31.

Youth Shaken in Bike-Car Mishap

Lloyd Boyd, 13, 352 Sixth avenue east, was apparently only shaken when the bicycle he was riding and a car driven by C. H. Thomas, 648 Blue Lakes boulevard, collided at Sixth avenue east and Fifth street east shortly before 9:30 p. m. yesterday, according to the report by Twin Falls police.

Slight damage to the bicycle resulted.

Also entering police records last night was the report on an accident involving cars driven by W. R. Crawford, Kimberly, and Harley Beer, 1410 Addison. The collision occurred at the Washington school five points at about 6 p. m. Minor damage to the cars resulted, and no one was injured.

Western Fiction Writer Passes

LOS ANGELES, July 23 (AP)—Bertha Muzzy Bower, 68, who as B. M. Bower wrote "Chip of the Flying U" and a half hundred other western novels of some five million words, died at the home of a daughter here today.

As the young mother of three growing children, Mrs. Bower began writing western fiction in 1904. Two years later "Chip" was published, to be followed by a flood of novels that met instant popularity.

Born in Cleveland, Minn., she was taken by her parents, Washington and Eunice Muzzy, to Montana as a small child. It was on the range of that state she acquired the experience she capitalized upon later in her western tales.

She has married three times, to Clayton J. Bower, Bertrand W. Sinclair and Robert Ellsworth Cowan. She had lived here for 20 years.

BACKMAN URGES PROJECT DRIVE

Chamber Leaders Asked to Aid in Campaign for Defense Projects

Twin Falls is asked by Gus P. Backman, energetic chairman of the Mountain State association at Salt Lake City, to lend its support to a campaign to obtain the western states' share of the many military projects planned under the army defense program, according to a letter received by the chamber of commerce here.

The communication urges that local leaders get in touch with Idaho's congressional delegation in an effort to obtain designation of new air bases, supply depots, new air squadrons and numerous other projects under the defense program.

Chairman Backman also advises vigilance against curtailment of forest appropriation funds and requests action toward inclusion of highway appropriations under the defense plan.

Duluth, Minn., had a top of 90, a record for the year.

Forecasters reported that temperatures generally were above normal throughout the country despite rains that mottled the weather map.

Downpours scaling up to 3.25 inches in southwest Missouri and even heavier falls in southeastern Kansas sent some small streams out of their banks. Thundershowers brought a brief respite to parts of Oklahoma but skies cleared and the 90 degree heat set in again later.

Temperatures dropped to the 70's and 80's in Pennsylvania. A similar range obtained in Massachusetts and Connecticut. Clouds shielded Virginia from an encore of Monday's 88 to 100 degree heat. New York City's 78 was offset by humidity. Thundershowers and warmer was the forecast there.

Sheep-Killing Dogs Must Die

Death penalties have been invoked against three sheep-killing dogs following investigation of inroads on flocks of the area east of Hansen by Deputy Sheriff Roy Fuller.

After four ewes had been killed by dogs, the marauders were tracked to two neighboring ranches where the owners were ordered to dispose of them. The sheep had been killed after the dogs cornered them on a canal bank and crowded them into the water where they attacked the helpless ewes.

Pallbearers were Sam Gamble, Newton Wonacott, Kenneth Lavins, Ray Agee, Mike Charveski and William Stauffer.

Sheriff Returns Check Suspect

Frank Hosley of Castleford, was returned from Boise last night by Sheriff L. W. Hawkins and lodged in the county jail to await arraignment on a charge involving issuing of checks without sufficient funds.

Hosley, who is claimed to have committed the offense at Castleford, was arrested earlier this year on a forgery count, but was released by district court order when he demurred on the ground that the offense constituted issuance of checks without sufficient funds, rather than forgery.

Democrats Vote Against Opinion

WASHINGTON, July 23 (AP)—Three Democratic senators opposed to the third term principle said they nevertheless would vote for President Roosevelt. They were Senators Van Nuys of Indiana, Adams of Colorado, and Wheeler of Montana. Senators McCarran (D-Nev.) and George (D-Ga.), who also oppose a third term, said they had no statement at this time.

New passenger car registrations for the first 15 days of June, 1940, show sales in that period are down about 7½ per cent for the same period of May, 1940.

LEADERS NAMED AT BOYS' STATE

Twin Falls Lads Figure in Nominations for Officials

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Emulating their elders in this election year, 55 delegates to the first annual American Legion boys' state in Idaho nominated candidates for state office today and backed them through a hot primary campaign.

John Day of Twin Falls won the American party nomination for governor over Bob Blandford, also of Twin Falls. Tommie Uberuaga of Emmett triumphed over Darwin Craner of Emmett and Milo Hansen of Pocatello as the national party executive choice.

Others of the tickets included:

National — Darwin Craner of Emmett, lieutenant governor; Harold Hulbert of Lewiston, secretary of state; Victor Hansen of Pocatello, attorney general; Jack Nelson of Buhl, auditor; Lowell Brough of Salmon, treasurer; Blaine Evans of St. Anthony, superintendent of public instruction; Charles Strong, of Payette, mine inspector; Patrick Day of Twin Falls, John Hart and Robert Watson of Pocatello, and John Runbert of Potlatch, supreme court justices.

American — James Watson of Gooding, lieutenant governor; George Howard of Buhl, attorney general; Bill Harris of Weiser, treasurer; Dale Calan of Preston, auditor; Ted Allen of Grace, secretary of state; Wayne Smith of Mackay, mining inspector; Jack Baird of Payette, George Ioset, Paul Taber and Bob Blandford, all of Twin Falls, and Jim Evans of Boise (last three tied) for supreme court justices.

Nominations also were made for city and county offices. For four hours Saturday, last day of the state, the successful candidates are to "take over" all city, county and state offices as a final examination in boys state, designed as a training school in practical government.

Secretary of State George H. Curtis is to explain duties of legislative state officials tomorrow.

NAZIS TALK OF BRITISH DEFEAT

Not until we reached Flanders was there any real evidence of war. Cambrai was partly leveled and nearby fields were pitted by bomb craters.

Doors to the pill boxes gaped. Gun openings were wired over.

Inside Belgium, border towns were more heavily hit. The Albert canal's bed was still dry but laborers were working there and refugees were returning to fields and towns.

The station at Brussels was crowded with people searching for homecoming refugees, but they turned away disappointed, for only four civilians were on that train—myself, two Japanese newspapermen and a Yugoslav naval officer.

Our train left Brussels at 1 p.m. Monday, rumbled through Louvain where factories were in ruins, and turned north through the Netherlands. There rich fields were being harvested and barges dotted the canals.

A new bridge over the Maas carried us through Roermond to the German border and Dalheim.

WAR AID SEWING BRINGS RESPONSE

Red Cross Program Moves Ahead as Women Lend Assistance

Excellent response has been accorded the Red Cross appeal for assistance in making civilian war relief supplies, according to Mrs. Arthur Hill, chairman of the production unit of the Twin Falls chapter.

Several clubs are sewing on layettes, and many women have taken garments home for completion. Sewing may be done every morning this week, from 9 o'clock until noon, in the Presbyterian church, where an electric machine is available.

A display of garments being made will be shown soon in a down-town store window.

Woolen material is being used for women's dresses, and attractive colored flannel for girls' dresses.

Included in each layette, each garment having a few dainty pink and blue stitches of embroidery, are a cap, a washcloth, a sack, two dresses, two bands, two shirts, two blankets, two pair of stockings, two nightgowns, a dozen diapers, and a dozen safety pins. Each garment is marked with a Red Cross label to insure its being used for civilian relief.

Yarn for the sweaters has arrived, and persons wishing to knit should call Mrs. F. F. Bracken, who is in charge. More than 20 persons already have volunteered for this service.

Twin Falls' quota includes sweaters for 10 men, 10 women and 20 children. Other garments to be made in the area are 10 children's dresses, 10 women's dresses, and 20 layettes.

A number of dress patterns have been donated.

Relief supplies are being distributed in Great Britain, the unoccupied portion of France and in Poland. Only funds specifically given for that purpose are used in German-occupied sections, according to officials.

STATE EXECUTIVE REPLIES TO ROSS

Bottolfsen Looks Askance at Conditional Pledge of Support

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Governor Bottolfsen, asked what comment he had to make on a statement by C. Ben Ross that Bottolfsen was "the poorest governor the state ever had," said today, "some will say his judgment is poor."

Ross, former three-term Democratic governor, made the statement yesterday at Caldwell, also adding that if Attorney General J. W. Taylor won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination he nevertheless would split from his party and support Bottolfsen.

Ross favors Mayor Chase A. Clark of Idaho Falls, a Democrat, for governor, once declaring he was the only one of the present field who "knows how to be governor."

In 1938 Bottolfsen, a Republican, defeated Ross for his present position.

"There is one nice thing about being a defeated candidate for governor," the present executive said in a prepared statement.

"A man who has guessed wrong about his ability to be elected to that office and to the United States senate (Ross ran against late William E. Borah for the senate in 1936) may be forgiven for making other errors in judgment.

"For example, if he feels that the incumbent is not the best governor the state has ever had or could have had, there will be those who will insist that he is prejudiced.

"Some will say his judgment is poor.

"Others will say it really doesn't matter what he thinks.

"Still others will feel that he should really stick to plowing and improving his farm (Ross owns farms near Parma).

"Personally, I should regret losing an individual's friendship over it, and the most important task I have right now is that of preserving the dignity of the office of governor and furnishing the best possible administration for the state of Idaho."

Visitors' Day at McClusky Camp Set for July 28

BUHL, July 23—Fourth weighing of children at the McClusky Memorial health camp was conducted last Friday with a satisfactory gain recorded. Total gain was 90 pounds.

Older girls contributed 45 pounds, the younger girls, 22 pounds and the boys, 23 pounds. Highest individual gain was four pounds, made by a girl. Six girls gained three pounds each and five, two pounds each. Highest gain for boys was two and one-half pounds.

No Visiting

There will be no visiting day for parents until Sunday, July 28, from 3 until 5 o'clock. At this time there will be a flag ceremony and dedication of a flag and flag pole, under auspices of the V. F. W. post of Rupert with Louis W. Dspain in charge.

The flag is a gift from the Rupert and Burley V. F. W. posts. The exercises will be open to the public, but no children under 15 years of age will be admitted to the camp grounds.

Friday is birthday day at the camp. All those having a birthday during the week are given a "happy birthday" song and one cake with candles is placed on the table.

Two children, Earl Storm of Kimberly and Robert Hutcheson of Twin Falls, attended the children's clinic at Twin Falls early in the week.

Mrs. Ruby Moyer of Buhl visited with Miss Scott on Friday. The two women will teach together at Bruneau the coming year.

First Party

The first party for the camp children, which is a reward for afternoon naps and early sleepers in the evening, was earned by the little boys, who call themselves the Health Brownies. A marshmallow roast was enjoyed at the fire place in the park followed by attending the first half of the band concert in the park. They were accompanied by their matron, Mrs. Gordon and teacher, Miss Prestidge.

Mrs. C. C. Voeller visited the camp Friday morning bringing lovely flowers from her own garden for the dining room and girls' dormitory.

Sunday services for Sunday, July 24, will be conducted by teachers from the Methodist church.

LET'S KEEP OUR CITY CLEAN

Another step toward beautification of Twin Falls was accomplished Monday evening when the city council adopted an ordinance prohibiting the sweeping of dust, ashes, dirt, papers or refuse into sidewalks or from sidewalks into the streets.

For years it has been a practice in downtown Twin Falls to sweep such trash into the gutters with the result that the business district has been unnecessarily dirty, particularly on windy days.

Sometime ago the Twin Falls Rotary club was instrumental in having trash containers placed at downtown intersections. Through public cooperation, these containers have served to reduce the amount of litter that was formerly tossed into the streets.

At that time the movement also was started to discourage the practice of sweeping rubbish from stores and sidewalks into the streets. Many business houses immediately volunteered their support, and the general unsightliness was further reduced.

Now, with an ordinance adopted to bolster the beautification program, it remains to be seen just how much we can improve our city from the standpoint of cleanliness.

It's an undertaking in which everyone can help, an objective well worth while and quite in keeping with our nickname, the Magic City.

MAYBE BEN DOESN'T LIKE J. W.

Simple deduction sometimes brings out a thought at least from all the political tripe that is fed the people during election campaigns.

For instance, C. Ben Ross, former governor who was elected to that office three times on the Democratic ticket, has made a significant appraisal of at least two candidates running for chief executive.

He says that "as bad a governor as Bott is—and in my opinion he is the worst the state has ever had—I will back him if Taylor gets the Democratic nomination."

That is fairly specific so far as his opinion of Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen is concerned, but it still leaves some doubt as to just how low Attorney General J. W. Taylor must be in Ben's estimation. Anyway, it's an effective way of "intimating" what he thinks of a fellow Democrat.

RISING EARNINGS

Financial reports for the first half of 1940 show that earnings of railroads, glass companies, shipping and iron ore distributors, steel and chemical manufacturers are sharply higher than those of a year ago. In some of these groups the third quarter is normally the most active, so that earnings for the second half year are expected to be near record proportion.

The country can stand a good deal of such news based on liveliness in a wide line of industries. It would be better if none of it was attributable to war, but it is reassuring that some of the prospering lines are not directly connected with either war orders from abroad or our own preparedness measures.

IMPORTANT CONVENTION

The democratic convention meeting in Havana may be even more important than the one in Chicago. It will represent, in a time of great and menacing world events, nearly all of the democracies of this present world except those of the British Empire. The spirit shown and the action taken at Havana may set the course of this hemisphere for a hundred years.

The American ambassador to Cuba may have put the matter mildly when he said, in a recent address: "There is reason for believing that at no time in the history of the Americas has any conference been held in which the sovereign American states of the Western Hemisphere have participated, which is of more transcendent importance to each and every one of them."

All the Fascist states, Mr. Messersmith remarked, are eager to grab this wealth of ours.

It is for Americans—North, Central and South, to hold and develop it, by democratic processes, keeping at least our New World free. The "first four acts" of the world drama are now really past, and we may soon be in the midst of the last great act.

THE HEART OF DEMOCRACY

For some years now professional politicians have been placing our government in competition with private American industry. This is outside its normal functions of governing and managing the affairs of state. Contrasted with this socialistic policy, the Stanley News and Press of Albemarle, North Carolina, reports an incident which shows how democracy for the people works when the government is used to govern, instead of competing with its citizens.

The Albemarle Telephone company found it necessary to raise its rates. It presented the facts to the Chamber of Commerce so that local people could be advised of the situation and the company's program for improvements. As a result, when application was made to the State Utilities Commission for permission to increase rates, it was not opposed. The paper said editorially:

"A telephone company, although a public utility, still is a private enterprise, and cannot operate for long unless it is showing a profit. This is the way it ought to be in a democratic country under a capitalistic economy. It is to be hoped that public utilities and citizens here will continue to show the same spirit of willingness to reason out mutual problems and see the other man's viewpoint."

That is sound logic for any community. It shows good faith toward private industry which pays its way. May democracy by the people continue to be reasonable, because individual opportunity and private industry cannot survive without each other.

Other Points of View

WE MUST LEARN TO SACRIFICE

What can this nation learn, if it is not too smug, too soft, too weakened with comparative luxury? Yes, luxury. It may sound false to the sharecropper and some of the unemployed, and it is a disgrace to our country that it should. But the American standard of living is luxury compared to the standard in France, in England, in Germany. Thousands of WPA and direct-relief families in the United States live on higher standards than steadily employed workers in Germany or France.

America must go to work. It must sacrifice, it must stop whining; it must believe that it has a way of life worth struggling for—not just with arms (that, too, if war should be forced upon us), but struggling for a preparedness that may make war unnecessary.

The Germans, a poor people, have sacrificed for their present victories for the last seven years. Is it too much to ask that the United States (all of us) give up some luxuries for a few years to protect and preserve the richest nation and highest standard of living the world has ever seen?

If we Americans cannot do this, we do not deserve the continent we now possess.—Milwaukee Journal.

THE CALL ON THE GUARD

The president's plan to mobilize four divisions of the national guard on active duty for a year period if congress will provide the enabling legislation would constitute an innovation in American history. Closest analogy can be found in 1916 when many units of the guard were concentrated on the Mexican border while Pershing was pursuing Villa in Mexico, service and training that proved invaluable a year later when the United States joined the allies in war on the central power. The Mexican emergency after Villa's raid on Columbus and in view of our strained relations with the neighbor to the south was real enough but technically we were at peace. Technically we are at peace now but virtually at war.

With the majority of members of the guard a definite period of service is preferable to an indefinite summons to the colors. Most of the enlisted personnel are young men who are willing to quit civil life posts if certain of a fixed status for a year period. On some certainly there will be hardship and every effort should be made to exempt these and replace them with men willing and able to accept service.

Obviously the four-division plan is adopted in deference to economy and constitutes an experiment. It will put some 40,000 men into service as against the 400,000 estimated for an expanded national guard. The men are already equipped and partially trained and their complete equipment can be accomplished gradually during the year. On a mobilization status, the strength or the weakness of the guard can be established, unfit and inept personnel eliminated and the units concerned made as effective as peace training will permit.—Dallas News.

CONQUEST

The conquest of France by the Germans is expressed in the change of three words: "Liberty, equality, fraternity," which are to be changed by the new fascist government into "labor, family, country." This change of emphasis marks a revolution deeper than that of the eighteenth century when liberty, equality and fraternity rose to shock and enlighten the world.

"Liberty, equality and fraternity" are qualities that make men happy. They release the individual from the chains of caste. They give him a sense of solidarity among his fellows and equals and most important of all these words the word equality fans the smoldering fires of his self-respect into that individualism which has made the nineteenth century. The right to social and legal equality has meant individualism as against socialism and has made the first 30 years of the twentieth century a glorious epoch in human history.

And now, from a thousand, thousand walls in France, "liberty, equality and fraternity" are to be erased. The spiritual uplift that they gave every man or woman who saw them is dashed to the ground, and instead, "work, family and country" are substituted.

It can't be possible that the new world will march under this banner, that the individual with all his self-respect, with all his institutions of brotherhood that make for progress through pity and human kindness will submerge into the state. For the individual who creates the state as his servant, under fascism will pass into the individual who sinks himself into a nation, who works for the sake of work, and who would build even his family life into a greedy nation which shall be his master.

What a revolution! What a turning back of the clock! The difference between the state of Louis XIV, which ground the individual into dust, and the state of these new fascists is so slight and immaterial that it seems as though we had turned the block back 200 years.

So "liberty, equality, fraternity," which came to the western world like the call of trumpets 150 years ago, finds its echo dying in the modern world which exalts the nation and gives the individual only the right to directed work in a channeled and regimented home.—Emporia Gazette.

NO MORE BLUEBIRDS

Maybe there isn't room for poetry any more, or perhaps customs officials are that way. But the experience of the latest refugees of distinction to reach these American shores deserves something in the elegiac manner.

Maurice Maeterlinck is still alive, a fugitive from his native Belgium. To many persons his very survival may come as a surprise. Before those of the current generation were born, Maeterlinck was hailed as the Belgian Shakespeare. Now, having lost everything in the Nazi invasion, he has arrived in Hoboken, a broken, aged man.

He was not alone, however. With him was his pretty wife, many, many years younger than he. And two bluebirds. In a cage. Remembering Maeterlinck's famous masterpiece, "The Blue Bird," the heart of the most obdurate customs officer presumably should have been touched by the sight of this symbol of happiness saved from a ruined World. But no: Regulations are regulations, and the United States does not permit the importation of members of the feathered species. Just how the circuses and the zoos manage to get by is not explained, but the Belgian poet and dramatist found no poetry in the souls of the uniformed gentlemen at the dock.

Back went the bluebirds aboard ship, to continue their travels, whither can only be guessed. But perhaps Maeterlinck is lucky at that. They let him keep his wife.—Lewiston Tribune.

THE HARD PART

At the conclusion of a nature lesson the teacher asked her pupils: "And don't you think it is wonderful, children, how the little chickens get out of their shells?"

"What beats me, miss, is how they get in," said one girl.

News Behind The News

WASHINGTON
By Ray Tucker

CHICAGO — BACKLOG. Both Democrats and Republicans have turned their eyes toward the farm states of the west as the battleground where the 1940 presidential election will be decided. The general belief among politicians and delegates at Philadelphia and here was that November's contest will most closely resemble the 1916 battle, when Woodrow Wilson was re-elected over Charles Evans Hughes by the mountain, prairie and coastal states.

The Democrats don't concede anything—though, for once, James A. Farley is making no predictions—but they entertain the suspicion that Wendell Willkie, the Republican nominee, may sweep the northeastern, Atlantic seaboard and middle western industrial sections — with the possible exception of New York. Thus, if the Roosevelt-Wallace forces can hold the south, win out in the border states and hang onto the normally Republican west, they figure they can achieve the required 266 electoral votes.

With the political sharps placing such emphasis on the west, the debate centers upon the comparative appeal in this region of Senator Charles L. McNary, the G. O. P. No. 2 man, and Secretary Wallace. And on this point there is sharp disagreement even among impartial newspaper and political observers. The Republicans fathered the McNary-Haugen bill, it is true, but the movement which led to enactment of this measure was sponsored by Mr. Wallace's father, who was secretary of agriculture in the Harding administration. Democrats also note that it was twice vetoed by President Coolidge upon the advice of former President Herbert Hoover.

Senator McNary has voted for almost every law favorable to the farmers, but it is Mr. Wallace who distributed the financial benefits authorized by the legislation. Moreover, the AAA local committees total more than 90,000 people close to the soil and the tillers thereof. That is an extremely powerful political organization if it can be brought and kept in line.

An aftermath checkup discloses that the revolt against Mr. Wallace on the convention floor was not directed against him, personally. It was simply a protest against what the delegates regarded as the dictatorial methods adopted by the White House in putting him over. And a great deal of the booing is supposed to have emanated from gallery sections occupied by Hoosier friends who swept into Chicago to boost Paul V. McNutt.

FRAGRANT. Democratic leaders were amused—but also deeply disturbed—by the editorial behaviour of Col. Frank Knox's Chicago Daily News during the convention. Although Publisher Knox has accepted a place in the cabinet, his newspaper pulled no punches. Though Mayor Ed Kelly of Chicago acted as host to the third-term mechanics—though he has promised to deliver Illinois through his czaristic control of this city—Col. Knox's editorial page ended a review of the Kelly-Nash administration with these words:

"It is the old, old story of a ruthless, debased and corrupt political machine, drunk with spoils and power, in league with crooked gamblers, jail birds, brothel keepers, gangsters and politically minded contractors, to loot and lay waste a great city. . . The scent of the sewer clings to it still."

The Kelly-Nash domination of the convention goings-on left a bad taste in the mouths of the delegates. And Roosevelt Cabinet Member Knox did nothing to wash it away.

SPORT. Before quitting Chicago, Jim Farley dashed around to thank Senator Carter Glass for his stirring talk placing the national chairman in nomination.

"Listen, Senator," said Jim, "I may be going with the Yankees soon, and I am on the hunt for a snappy shortstop. So I may be looking you up to sign a contract one of these days."

"Sorry, Jim," grunted the 82-year-old senator in boyish delight at the prospective offer. "I'm not a shortstop. I play third base, where they come down fast and hot."

"Okay, then," replied the national chairman. "You play third, and I'll be over on first handling the high ones you shoot at me."

A great baseball fan, the senator's favorite team has always been the Philadelphia Athletics. But out of love for Jim he may shift allegiance to the Yankees.

NEW FRONTIERS OF 1940

Road maps are their compasses, they travel in motor cars instead of covered wagons and new sights instead of homes are their objectives; but, like the pioneers, they are constantly in search of new frontiers. They are the tourists who form a constantly shifting population during the summer months.

When a somewhat dusty, medium-priced car stopped along Main avenue yesterday in Twin Falls, Night Editor observed that the occupants were also somewhat dusty, but tanned and happy, and decided that there was a typical group of tourists whose travels should be significant because of being so typical.

"I've wanted to see the west for the last 10 years. Last year we toured the east, but this year we got a new car and decided to come west," observed Harry Leitzell, looking from behind dark glasses and fingering a well worn road map booklet. While his wife and son visited a cold drink emporium with "a friend of the wife," who is traveling with them, Night Editor and Tourist Leitzell talked of the trip. The 6,000-mile journey carries them from Cicero, Ill., where Mr. Leitzell is "maintenance man" for a large mail-order house, on U. S. 14 and 20 through Yellowstone park, thence to Pocatello. There they hit U. S. 30, which brought them to Twin Falls. From here they go to Reno, Nev., San Francisco, Los Angeles and Santa Barbara, Calif., then to Boulder dam, from where they will travel homeward on U. S. 66.

They have a two weeks' vacation period to make the trip, were especially impressed by "Old Faithful" in Yellowstone park, the Snake River canyon and the Black Hills in Dakota. The desert was hot, but they're free and on the move and like it. The boy is collecting state emblems in each state they visit. They are the tourists of 1940.

DEEPER AND DEEPER

When E. F. Roberge of the Twin Falls navy recruiting station purchased a bicycle for his wife as an anniversary gift, he said, "I bet you guy's will put that in the paper."

It was.

When Mrs. Roberge said that she had taken a trip to Yellowstone park as a gift for Mr. Roberge, that was also recorded.

Yesterday, Mr. Roberge said to Night Editor, "I'm teaching the wife semaphore (system of signaling with hands used by navy) so that we can talk when you guys are around."

Just to keep the record up to date, Night Editor relates this development to show that a man before the public, such as a navy recruiter, cannot dodge the watchful eye of the press.

MORE HARM THAN GOOD

If sentiment of certain sportsmen were crystallized, the merganser diving bird, usually known as "fish duck" would not be protected by law. Several have expressed the desire for a survey to determine the extent to which these birds, which are common on the Wood and Snake rivers, the Salmon-War Magic dam backwater and Roseworth reservoir, are destroying fingerling trout. One sportsmen indicated that estimates place the number of fingerlings devoured in a day by one of the birds at 20. This, multiplied by the number of "fish ducks," could account for a lot of the planted trout that are disappearing, they point out.

DEFINITE

Police Commissioner Carl Ritchey is a man of few words, but he is also outspoken, to-wit: When an issue was raised during this week's city council meeting, Carl leaned forward and said, "Do you want my reaction?"

"Yes," said another.

"No!" said Carl, with emphasis.

As the echoes died away, Councilman Lionel A. Dean cupped an ear in his hand, pointed it toward Commissioner Ritchey and said, "I couldn't quite catch what you meant."

Anglo-German Negotiations Preceded Hitler's Speech

NEW YORK WHIRLIGIG
By Richard Waldo

CLOSED. Here is the authentic background story of Hitler's speech to the reichstag. Since the capitulation of France—about a month ago—Anglo-German peace negotiations definitely have taken place, as reported in this space on several occasions. This has been confirmed, moreover, by the British ministry of information.

According to unimpeachable sources, the negotiations failed. The Germans offered a mild version of peace for immediate acceptance and indicated what the terms would be after a successful invasion of the Isles. The British maintained that their stronghold is invincible, particularly since about 2,000 airplanes had been destroyed by them or their allies since the Nazis took to the field in September 1939.

The Germans, our informants say, obligingly submitted figures indicating that 2,200 of their own aircraft had come to grief, but that they had 36,000 ships in readiness at the time, backed by an efficient air personnel of 600,000 men. These figures were checked through competent Swedish and Italian sources and apparently are accurate and above doubt or suspicion. But among the British there was still open boasting that their troops were not defeated in Flanders, not in France—nowhere. In the opinion of independent observers this is leading to a great deal of overconfidence in high places, coupled with an underestimation of the enemy which has been a significant—and possibly deliberate—part of British policy since the war's outbreak. The kindest word which military men find for it is "unrealistic". At any rate, the British negotiators rejected any and all overtures.

The Nazis talked about a new order in Europe and the British about a return to the status quo. After the failure of these pourparlers became evident, Hitler decided to call the reichstag, make a speech and go on record in the usual vague terms he always employs publicly. To the well informed, the chances for peace are now definitely gone, unless something startling happens before this appears in print.

CONFIDENCE. One aspect of the Nazi post-invasion terms—always provided they succeed in what the British claim can't be done—is highly significant for us. Officially, German propaganda authorities are expounding the theory of doing future business with the United States based on what they call the "work-dollar," representing a unit of our currency producing a certain unit of work or wealth. This they say will be necessary because they possess no gold.

The truth of the matter is, however, that with the help of strong South African elements they hope to establish a politically independent Union of South Africa under leadership of the Boers, benevolently supported by Berlin. In return, the Nazi government would be given gold mining privileges and thus be in a position to compete in world trade without exclusive employment of the barter principle as heretofore.

Our scouts report that negotiations with the South Africans have reached an advanced stage and that the British know about them. The Churchill government, however, still proclaims complete confidence that they can, with the help of the U.S.A., turn the clock back to September 1939.

WAR. Now that the Democratic convention is out of the way, New York opinion is crystallizing. It boils down to four words—"It did happen here." Use of a slightly camouflaged Hitler-Goebbels technique in putting across the Roosevelt-Wallace ticket has given thoughtful people of both parties a sense of grim realities ahead.

This is heightened by study of the President's acceptance speech. Brilliant in form and seductive in statements, it is a masterpiece of half truths and untruth. These will doubtless be dealt with in the course of the campaign. A single instance in this space will point up the opportunity offered to Wendell Willkie to blow up his opponent with White House-made explosives.

The claim that every effort has been made to keep us out of war is a challenge to the nation's intelligence. Presently we shall understand that the embargo on our ships was primarily of advantage to the British and only to a limited extent wise for us. We shall also have full knowledge, in due course, that two mobilization days have been set, and cancelled for political reasons. Now the third date — September 1 — is within the ken of regular Army Reserve and national guard authorities, with the British hanging on desperately in anticipation of that date and its following developments. Rehearsals for censorship of news by press, radio and the mails are already so far advanced that an order to put control into force can be made effective overnight. The statement of high military men that we have been in the war "up to our necks" for months past will then be borne out by open acts of war against Germany which will not be reported to our people through any of the channels on which they can now depend.

Our Children
by Angelo Patri

ADOLESCENTS SHOULD NOT SMOKE

"My mother makes a terrible fuss about my smoking. I am just sixteen. All my girl friends smoke. I can't be the odd one. I'm not crazy about smoking, but if I don't go along with the crowd in all the little things they do they won't want to have me around in the bigger ones. I hate to go against my mother's wishes, but I'd hate to be left out of things, too."

Well, my children, you may as well know today as tomorrow that you cannot hunt with the hounds and run with the hare. You choose your course and abide by the consequences. Mothers are not given to making a great fuss about little things that concern their children's good times. They have all been girls, you know. They have all enjoyed good times in their youth, and they all made mistakes and suffered for them. The one thing they want to do, for their daughter is to save them from making mistakes.

Cigarette Adds No Beauty

Smoking is no sin. It has its place, but that place is not in the mouths and noses of young girls. Nicotine is a drug used to quiet strained, fatigued nerves. What have young schoolgirls to do with strained, fatigued nerves? Aren't their eyes shining, their skins glowing, their steps springing with vitality and health and beauty?

There is nothing in this world as lovely as a young girl. She is the adoration of her family, friends, and all the boys in town. She needs only the grace of a lovely spirit to endear her to all who know her. Nature has endowed her with charms beyond the power of artifice to counterfeit. A cigarette in her mouth can add nothing of charm or beauty but it can take away both.

Health is the foundation of youth's beauty and power. Fortunately, it is at its maximum in youth and can stand a great deal of misuse and abuse before departing, never to return. Because this state of perfect poise has always been youth's portion, they are unconscious of its importance to their lives and take all sorts of liberties with it. Young school-girls who smoke are taking an extreme liberty with health, beauty and charm.

Undermines the Health

The girl who says to herself, Unless I smoke the boys won't like me and I'll be a wallflower," is making a mistake. Boys can follow cigarette smoke anywhere, anytime, without the slightest difficulty. It is not cigarette smoke that calls them to a girl. It is the girl's inherent sex charm that does that; and cigarettes have nothing to do with the matter. But health has all to do with it.

Health puts the light into the eyes, the color into the cheeks, the spring into the step, the laughter into the spirit. Sex charm is a mixture of powers all of which are based on health. Lose that health and sex charm and all charm and all vitality fades like snow in summer.

Miss Sixteen, let the cigarettes go to the worn and weary, the sick and the ailing, the aged and depressed. Youth, having all that age has lost, ca. spare the smoke. Cut it out.

Many children behave badly because they are not properly fed. Be sure that your own little boy or girl forms correct eating habits. Send for Angelo Patri's booklet "Eating," enclosing ten cents in coin. Address Angelo Patri, care of Twin Falls News, P. O. Box 75, Station O, New York, N. Y.

Women Are Head of the Family In Alaska, Speaker Tells Group

A woman who wants to be "head of the house" in every sense of the word should have been born an Alaskan native, for in that territory, women are the head of the house, according to Miss Anna Cordes who recently enjoyed a trip to Alaska with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Cordes. Miss Cordes was guest speaker at the meeting of division No. 2 of the Methodist Ladies' Aid society yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Roy J. Evans.

"Because woman is the head of the family in Alaska, her family insignia is carved at the top of the totem pole," Miss Cordes explained, "and beneath that is carved the insignia of her husband's family or tribe."

She explained that the Alaskan Indian can read a totem pole just as we read our newspapers.

An interesting thing she noted was that many of the totem poles are being repaired by C.C.C. boys, under the direction of the Indians.

Inland Route

Miss Cordes said that she and her parents left Seattle July 2 and traveled the Inland Waterway route, remarking that the boat did not stop at Victoria, B. C., because of the war.

"Although we weren't actually on the ocean, the effect was the same," she remembered.

The party arrived at Ketchikan on July 4, just in time to witness the patriotic parade, she said, adding that the beautiful floats, built with large, vivid colored native flowers, were especially outstanding.

The group visited at the salmon cannery at Rungo and other points, where natives did most of the work. Between Juneau and Skagway, they saw icebergs, she said, remembering that they saw a whale while en route from Seattle to Ketchikan.

At Skagway, the starting point of the old Yukon gold rush trail, the party took a side trip up the trail to Lake Bennett. Their next stop was at Sitka, where the famous Russian church is situated. Miss Cordes said that a famous Russian prince was buried in the churchyard.

"The entire trip was very cool and pleasant," she said, "and those who remembered to take their fur coats were lucky, especially aboard ship.

Midnight Sun

Asked about the famous midnight sun, she said that north of Skagway it was light enough to read at midnight.

A short business meeting was held at the opening of the session with Mrs. Roy Black leading devotionals and the group singing "God Bless America."

Guests of the group included Mrs. Bert Sebring of Grand Falls, Minn., who is visiting at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Boyd; Mrs. Louis Blinn of Ventura, Calif., who is visiting at the home of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Albee.

Mrs. Dale Reese, Mrs. Ted Williams, Mrs. Louis Satterlee, jr., Miss Ellen Seavey and Miss Cordes.

Light refreshments were served by the hostess at the conclusion of Miss Cordes' interesting address.

State Master at Kimberly Grange

State Grange master, E. T. Taylor, was a special guest at the meeting of the Kimberly Grange Monday evening at the Grange hall in Kimberly, and gave an interesting address during the evening's program. Also special guests were members of the Lucerne Grange.

Mrs. Hejtmanek, lecturer of the Lucerne Grange, was in charge of the evening's program, which opened with two vocal duets, "Sweetest Story Ever Told" and "Sail Along Silver Moon," by Mrs. Miracle and Miss Tilly. Miss Rangdon accompanied the first number at the piano and the second selection was accompanied by a guitar.

Miss Rangen gave a reading, "Don't Like Gas," followed by two piano solos by Miss Rangdon. Mrs. Neil gave a talk on Idaho lore, followed by a violin selection, "Norwegian Cradle Song," by Miss Hejtmanek, accompanied by Mrs. Pizok.

The group sang "God Bless America," followed by a skit, "Womanless Wedding," featuring the marriage of Cutie and Abbie. All parts were taken by men.

Following Mr. Taylor's address, John Troendly of Jerome, Mr. Ewing, master of the Pleasant Valley Grange and Mr. Suonsara, master of the Lucerne Grange, gave short talks.

Members of the Kimberly Grange voted to meet Sunday, Aug. 4, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Durk to tie sheaves for the county fair. A pot-luck dinner will be served.

Refreshments were served by the Kimberly Grange.

Mrs. Jensen was formerly Miss Miriam Ballantyne.

Guests were intimate friends of the honoree during her life in Twin Falls.

A large table, centered with an arrangement of pink sweet peas in a crystal bowl on a mirrored base, was arranged for the luncheon.

Following the luncheon, the group spent the afternoon in pleasant reminiscence.

Coast Visitors Feted at Picnic

Complimenting a quartet of California guests, members of the Melton family of Twin Falls and the Klous families of Kimberly entertained at a gala picnic reunion Sunday at the City park in Twin Falls.

Approximately twenty-five persons were in attendance to enjoy the picnic dinner, afternoon of renewing old friendships and later, the motor trip to scenic points of interest in southern Idaho and Twin Falls.

Besides members of the Melton and Klous families, guests of honor were Mrs. Elfrieda Williamson and her son, Kay, of Oakland, Calif., who are visiting Mrs. Williamson's mother, Mrs. Rose Fix; and William Laughlin and Bud Perkins, also of Oakland.

Mr. Laughlin is a brother of Mrs. James Melton. He and Mr. Perkins have left for their home in California. They were en route to their home from a trip to Colorado.

Complimenting their house guests, Mr. and Mrs. Guy C. Ryan of Los Angeles, former Twin Falls residents, Mr. and Mrs. Earl S. Johnson entertained informally Saturday evening at their home.

Scene of festivities was the recreation room, where ping-pong was the diversion of the evening.

Friends of the Ryans during their residence here were invited to renew acquaintances.

An out-of-town guest was Mrs. Elfrieda Williamson of Oakland, Calif. She and her son, Kay, are guests of her mother, Mrs. Rose Fix.

A buffet supper was served to climax the evening. Garden flowers figured in the decorations.

The California guests plan to leave Thursday to return to their home.

EASTERN STAR CHAPTER HONORED BY PAPER

In the vacation edition, 1940, of the Eastern Star of the West, official publication of the western states Eastern Star order, published in Portland, Ore., officers of Twin Falls chapter, Order of the Eastern Star, are pictured.

A news story, written by Mrs. Catherine Potter, correspondence secretary, accompanied the three-column picture of the officers.

School Pen Pals Meet First Time

Pen pals for two and a half years, Gene Hull of Twin Falls and Bob Payne of Oelwein, Ia., met for the first time yesterday. The correspondence friendship was the result of a letter writing project in English.

Gene, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Hull, had expected the arrival of Bob, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Payne of Oelwein, yesterday; but, not at the early hour at which the telephone rang—for Bob pulled into town on the morning train about 6 o'clock, instead of a later one.

However, the Hulls just advanced their enthusiastic welcome a few hours and made him feel perfectly at home.

"Everybody's heard about Sun Valley, and of course, I want to see it too, so Gene and a friend of his, Earl Hayes, are taking me to the mountains next Sunday," Bob said. He has never been west before, and he's looking forward to the "lark" of hitch-hiking with Gene to Boise Thursday to see the sights of the Gem state's capitol.

Mrs. Hull is planning a dinner party this evening in honor of Bob; and, Bob and Gene also want to make a call on Mrs. Glen Trail, who was Gene's English teacher at the time the correspondence started.

Both boys have a sister, a brother, like to read, play tennis and swim.

A total of 44,517,137 automobiles are now in operation in the world. This figure represents a new all-time record.

Anderson-Smith Vows Exchanged At Rupert Rites

RUPERT, July 23 — In the presence of a large number of relatives and friends, Miss Constance Alice Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. T. Smith of Rupert, became the bride of Floyd S. Anderson of Boise, son of Mrs. Emma Anderson of Los Angeles, at a ceremony performed at 7:30 o'clock Sunday evening at the Rupert Methodist church.

Preceding the ceremony, Miss Margaret Moser played an organ solo and Miss Bette French sang "I Love You Truly."

Mendelssohn's wedding march was played while Rev. Albert B. Parrett entered from the front of the church and took his place before a candle-lighted floral altar. From the rear of the auditorium came the bridal party, led by little Miss Patricia Mae Parrett, gowned in a long, high-waisted pink chiffon dress over taffeta of the same shade and carrying a basket of dainty flowers.

The bridegroom's attendant was Merlyn Paine of Boise.

The bride, on the arm of her father, was attended by Miss Cleo Madden of Boise. The double ring ceremony was read by Rev. Parrett.

The bride was lovely in a floor length white shadow lace gown, over white taffeta, with a finger tip veil held in place by small delicate blue flowers. She carried an arm bouquet of pastel shades of asters and fern.

The bridesmaid was gowned in a floor length crepe gown of shell pink, with an arm bouquet of gladiolus.

Reception at Home

HIGH TIDE

By Frances Hanna

YESTERDAY: Jan's new life is gay and fairly profitable, but finally the spell wears off and she decides to go home. She finds that Rose and Johnny have eloped and that Derek has sold her kitten sketches for $1,000.

Chapter 31
HOPE FOR LANCE

Jan kept the check for two days, just to look at, before putting it in the bank. "It makes me feel so rich and expensive and arrived," she explained to Norma, laughing; serious, too.

The check brought about new enthusiasm for work, new faith in herself. A few days after she arrived home she visited a pet shop in Santa Monica and wheedled the proprietor into renting her three fluffy, orange Persian kitnes for a short while. She put them in a wicker basket and carried them up on the roof where she spent the afternoon sketching their antics. She found, employing her talent for something besides portraits, that her facility and technique had improved enormously during her period of trial on Olvera street. A confidence and sureness had come to her slender fingers.

By the end of the week the sketches were finished and signed and sent off by mail to New York City and Neptune was again feline ruler of the house.

With all of her heart Jan wished to write and thank Derek for helping her, but she had no idea where a letter could find him. It hurt to know he had not cared enough to write her, to tell her what he was doing, where he was, even though she had told herself all along that he would leave some day, and it would be the end.

The ocean, at high tide, had brought her strange salvage which she had kept for a little time—a pitifully little time.

And now, excitement dying down, work for the moment at a standstill, she felt her own high tide of emotion ebbing. After the summer's gay and carefree experiences, Sea Tide, after blissful rest, seemed dull and unexciting. Before Derek had come she had been content with her house and her painting and her boat, but now they weren't enough. Everything was strangely flat and empty and routine. Lance was now accustomed to Norma's care, so Jan let it stand that way.

Angus wrote, beseeching her to come back to the only true artistic existence and she found herself laughing, knowing that, at least for her, it was not by any matter of means the true existence. "I guess I'm not a real bohemian," she thought, "whatever that is."

She dropped Angus a note assuring him impishly, that she was far too old-fashioned to enjoy the sharing of his crust in an atmosphere of "mutual understanding."

However, she had made one real friend in the city. Ruth Cronin did drive her little coupe down for a week-end and Frank brought in cold meats and ale and all of them made a gala event of it in the cool living room. On Sunday afternoon Jan persuaded her into the sailboat after Frank promised to keep an eye on them and come to the rescue if anything happened.

Dr. Murray

As Norma helped Jan prepare Sunday night supper Ruth came into the kitchen and closed the door behind her.

"I know I'm poking my nose into your private affairs," she apologized with a wry grimace, "but I'm the sort of person who has to have her say, regardless."

"I want you to," Jan assured her warmly.

"It's about your brother, Lance. I've been talking with Frank about the nature of his injury," she said. "I heard of a case similar to his just a short time ago. The boy happens to be the son of our store manager, Mr. Sobol. He was in a bad automobile crack-up. They were determined to leave no stone unturned to help him and of course they have money. The mother took the boy to a famed surgeon in Edinburgh. A Doctor Frederick Murray. He operated on the knees and in a short time the young man was able to be about on crutches with every indication of final recovery."

"But Edinburgh!" Jan wailed. "We haven't enough money, Ruth."

"I know, that's why I'm telling you this. Doctor Murray is now visiting in New York, doing a few special surgeries, I believe. I thought if you could manage to take Lance to New York, I'd get Mr. Sobol to use his influence in helping you see Doctor Murray."

"We must do it, Jan." Norma cried, her eyes brilliant with sudden, shining hope. "Lance must have this chance. He must!"

Jan, catching her excitement, tried to be reasonable and matter-of-fact. "The aircraft people here had the best specialists in the country look at Lance two years ago, Norma. You know that; Ruth doesn't. They said not only were the knee caps completely shattered, but the tendons and ligaments were torn and pulled beyond mending."

"Still—" Norma insisted.

"What I fear most of all," Jan went on doggedly, "is arousing Lance's hopes for no reasons. He's resigned himself to a great extent and it would be pretty terrible if he had to go all through that particular agony again. I'm almost afraid to chance it, Norma. Besides, I have only a little over a thousand dollars and no definite insurance my latest sketches will sell and this Doctor Murray will probably ask a fabulous sum if he should decide to operate."

Ruth looked from one girl to the other and said nothing. Norma remained silent a moment, then said quietly, "I think, Jan, we should put the whole case before Lance and let him decide. As to money, we'll use what I have in addition to yours. I've saved a little over two thousand and I want Lance to have it. He musn't know, of course. No matter what it means, he must have this chance." She broke off, her hands clasping and unclasping, and Jan divined her pathetic thought. She's been going to say: "No matter what it means to me," thinking that Lance, whole again, walking, flying once more perhaps, might seek the pleasures he had had to forego so long and that those pleasures might include gay, lovely women who, attracted by the glamour of his vocation, would seek him out.

"Norma, do you remember the picture 'Test Pilot?' Do you realize if Lance can ever pilot a plane again he'll probably be a test pilot?"

"Yes, Jan. But it's life to him."

"And maybe death?" Jan reminded soberly.

Norma's lips set into a firm line. "He should have his chance."

"Then it is settled," Jan smiled. "Let's tell him after supper."

During the meal, Lance, observing Norma's perturbed face and Jan's obvious nervousness, demanded: "What's got into you women, anyhow? You both look as if you were hiding a guilty secret. Did you break the company dishes or burn the potatoes? Frank, are you in on this? Your sister looks worried worried enough?"

"Don't know a thing," Frank shrugged. "No telling what sort of plot these three gals have hatched up."

Jan said, "You may as well tell him, Norma." For a moment, before the other girl put her words in speaking order, she looked long into her brother's somber, beautiful face, not so bleak as it once had been, yet still reflecting the hopelessness, the sense of futility, which even his rare smile never quite erased. Her reluctance to concur with Norma's plan was predicated on the thought that Lance, his hopes raised once more, would be plunged only deeper into melancholy if he were disappointed.

But it appeared she was wrong. Apprised of their scheme, Lance said soberly: I'd like to have him look me over, of course. I don't need to go into that, you all know too well how I feel. Nevertheless, I'm not hoisting the flag of hope just yet. I promise you I won't go to pieces if he agrees with the others that mine is a hopeless case."

By the time Ruth left for town it was decided that Jan would go in to meet the next day for a supervised shopping tour. Ruth, experienced as a buyer of women's wear, would select a small but becoming fall wardrobe for Jan.

"Then you can go in the day following, Norma," Jan said, taking it for granted Norma would accompany them to New York.

Rose and Johnny dropped in during last-minute preparations, finding Jan "up to her ears packing," as she phrased it, with little time to wonder if her ex-roomers were happy. Yet she was unduly disturbed when Johnny came upon her alone while she draped sheets over cabinets and furniture in the living room, and said with preamble:

"I'll bet you were plenty surprised about me marrying Rose, weren't you?"

"Yes," she admitted. "I was. Still, she's the type of girl you always admired so, Johnny."

"Sure," he agreed, fussing with the coat button of his white sack suit; "but it was you I really wanted all along, only you'd never listen to me or try to fix yourself up or anything."

"It was never me," she protested, smiling, "It was the idea of creating a butterfly out of a moth that appealed to you. If you'd really cared about me, Johnny, you'd have liked me the way I was—or maybe I'm wrong, or maybe I read too much romantic faction." She straightened up a moment to take a kink out of her back and pushed her hair back from her tired face.

The Literary Guidepost

By JOHN SELBY

"The Bedside Book of Famous British Stories," edited by Bennett A. Cerf and Henry C. Moriarty; (Random; $3).

A gentleman who normally inhabits the Harvard "coop" suffered a long illness not long ago. While recovering he spent a lot of time extracting from a mass of British writing a number of short stories by comparative unknowns. At the same time a certain active New York publisher was looking about for another such book as "The Bedside Book of Famous American Stories," which had brought honor and money to his house. The publisher, whose name is Bennett A. Cerf, heard of the Harvard man, whose name is Henry C. Moriarty, and the result is a book published this week as "The Bedside Book of Famous British Stories." It is one of the most successful anthologies of recent seasons, a selection from the famous as well as Mr. Moriarty's unknowns."

As Bliss Perry remarks in his excellent and sane introduction, there never will be any unanimity as to the proper choice of stories for such books. It is not only that tastes differ, Mr. Perry offers, but that every book is a different book to each reader, and also a different story to the same reader in different moods and at different times of life. Roland Pertwee's "Fish Are Such Liars" would probably appeal more to a fisherman on a cold winter night than at the end of a long day with a rod in June, for example.

In the case of the new anthology, these considerations matter less than they might, however, because it is a very long book and its sponsors are obviously gentlemen of catholic taste. There are 80 stories in their list, from Chaucer to Ralph Bates, and few writers are represented by more than one story. Robert Louis Stevenson is one of these, by the way, and the two chosen are "Sire de Maletroit's Door," and "A Lodging for the Night."

Wodehouse is there ("Jeeves" and the Song of Songs"), and Maugham and Conrad, Mansfield and Wilde, Yeats and Bennett, Scott and Hardy. But so are Mary Edginton and Shiela Kaye-Smith, Elizabeth C. Gaskell and E. Bulwer-Lytton, Stacy Aumonier and Weston Martyr. Even Anonymous has contributed, in this case a delightful yarn called "The Betting Scotchman."

It is impossible to go farther with such a list without developing a catalogue in the manner of Walt Whitman (though without his poetic content!). But the book is 1,233 pages of pleasure.

Teacher Finds College Youth Conservative About Marriage

BLACKSBURG, Va., July 23 (AP)—Three years of teaching courtship and marriage to Virginia Tech seniors and graduate students, has convinced Mrs. Mildred Tate, professor of home economics, that modern youth is conservative in its attitude toward marriage.

Generally speaking, most of those in the classes are opposed to divorce, hope to have three or four children, and realize that adjustment of personalities is one of the fundamental requirements of a successful marriage.

Boys and girls in the classes think alike on many questions but the girls are more likely to favor wives working outside the home if necessary. In estimating the income required to begin married life, the boys' figures are almost invariably higher than the girls'.

One of the advantages of the course is the opportunity of students to discuss preconceived ideas about marriage. Some young people, Mrs. Tate believes, are influenced by older people to over-emphasis of the sexual basis of marriage. Others are led by popular literature to stress the romance they expect.

The classes do not use a textbook, but do wide collateral reading and discuss their findings and beliefs. The course deals with the courtship period in one term and marriage in the second. Mrs. Tate also counsels the students individually, and sometimes is asked to advise former students.

BROOKLYN, July 23 (AP) — The brash Brooklyn Dodgers got into another brawl and temporarily out of the National league pennant picture in one long, turbulent scene today, dropping a double-header to the Cincinnati Reds, 4 to 3 in 11 innings, and 9 to 2 in nine.

Cincinnati's conquests in front of a noisy, capacity crowd of 40,000 at Ebbetts field increased the margin separating the two clubs to seven full games.

The first fracas was as wild and furious as any adventure story, climaxed by a fight between Lonnie Frey of the Reds and Pete Coscarart of the Dodgers in the eighth inning.

The Reds were trailing 3 to 2 at the time, and had Bill Werber on third and Frey on first as the result of a single, a sacrifice and an error. Then Frank McCormick grounded to Peewee Reese at short, who threw to Coscarart as Frey came sliding into second high and hard to forestall a double play.

As soon as Coscarart got his throw away he and Frey dived at each other and the players of both teams rushed into the melee.

Pitcher Gene Thompson of the Reds was spiked on his right ankle and two stitches were necessary to close the gash. Coscarart also was spiked on the left ankle in the scuffle, but not seriously.

When order was restored, the score was tied, Werber having tallied on the critical play.

Cowboys Capture Series from League-Leading Bees

TWIN FALLS SCORES 9-8 VICTORY IN 11 INNINGS

appeared they were bound to win.

Salt Lake made four runs in the first on three hits and two errors. Two walks issued by Stu Holdhusen, Twin Falls' starting chucker, preceded Robello's round-tripper in the second. That was where Carpenter took over hurling duties. The Bees chalked up a lone counter in the third, the result of two singles and a stolen base, but that ended their run-making for the evening, Carpenter pitching shutout ball until replaced by Rogers in the eighth.

A single by Arnerich, a free-trip to first for Bishop and a roaring three-bagger by Ernie Endress gave the Cowboys a pair of runs in the initial frame. Bishop doubled in the third, Randall was safe on an error and Pete Hughes singled smartly to bring in his mates. Twin Falls added another tally in the fifth on Bill Randall's two-ply blow, a walk and an error in handling Verne Reynolds' fly.

Arnerich homered in the sixth after Carpenter had reached first with a single. The ball traveled over the left field fence.

The Cowboys threw the contest into extra innings in the ninth when Hughes hit for two bases and scored on Endress' single.

The Bees threatened in their half of the eleventh, but with two on base and two down, Steele filed out.

Reynolds fly ball landed in a glove as the last of the eleventh got under way. Then Al March cracked out a two-bagger to the left field fence and Al March cracked out a two-bagger to the left field fence and O'Bannion received four balls. Rogers struck out. A base-filling walk to Arnerich set the scene for the walk to Bishop that sent Marchi home with the ninth run and the ball game.

Tourney Favorites Decision SCI All-Stars in 12 Innings

PRESTON, Idaho, July 23 (AP)—Preston, host city to the annual Idaho state semi-pro baseball tournament, saw both its entries move unscathed into second round play today as the Preston Cubs, junior nine, walloped Hailey's Triumph Miners, 12 to 3.

The Indians, Preston's senior club, defeated the Idaho Falls Tigers, 7-5, in the tournament opener last night.

Also on the still undefeated list after their first test were the Desmet Indians from Benewah county. This tourney championship, labored 12 team, generally favored for the innings today to put away the South Central Idaho league all-stars, 6-5. Indians in fact as well as name, with five full-blooded tribesmen in the lineup, the panhandle crew rode to victory on the pitching of P. Lyden.

B. Seamons and Mockly, who divided pitching chores, shared credit for the Preston Cubs' win over the Hailey Miners.

The first round losers meet in tomorrow's single afternoon game, with both hoping to return to the running, as is possible under the tournament's double elimination system. The daylight contest matches the Idaho Falls Tigers against the South Central all-stars.

The Preston and Desmet Indians match talents tomorrow night.

Pocatello Beats Boise in Tenth

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—A rip-roaring comeback that tied the score in the eighth and brought victory in the tenth by a 7-6 margin tonight gave the Pocatello Cardinals the deciding game in their three-tilt Pioneer league series with the Boise Pilots here.

Andrade and Kakoliris were the players who won the engagement for pitcher Gil Archuleta after the big right hander had spotted Boise to four runs in the first inning.

Both singled in the eighth and those blows combined with Ray Bauer's error brought the tieing run across the plate.

In the tenth—their next time up—they repeated, Andrade cracking out a booming triple and Kakoliris bringing his teammate home with a one-base hit.

Pocatello first went ahead in the second inning on the strength of home runs by Steve Patras and Archuleta, the two blows together producing five runs and wiping out Boise's initial advantage.

The Pilots, however, came back with a pair of tallies in the fourth and appeared in a fair way to edge out the victory until Andrade and Kakoliris went to work.

Junior Cowboys Swamp Burley

Burley surrendered to the Twin Falls Junior Cowboys after six innings of a Junior Pioneer league game here yesterday. When the end came the Junior Cowboys were way out in front, 24 to 1.

Tom Robello, manager of the Salt Lake City Bees, served as one of the three umpires during the lopsided contest. Joslin and Meincke were the other arbiters.

Wallace Brown limited Burley to five scattered hits while the Junior Cowboys were pounding Lake for 20 blows. Twin Falls scored in every frame, reaching a high point in the third with 10 runs.

Leading hitters for the winners were Don Meincke who got three for four, and B. Croft, the latter batting out a double and three singles in six trips. C. Huston made two appearances at the plate and rapped out singles on both occasions for the Burley club.

Friday afternoon's schedule calls for a game with Jerome here and on Sunday the Junior Cowboys will entertain the Rupert nine at Jayceee park.

Kimberly was scheduled to meet Jerome yesterday but the game was forfeited when the Northsiders failed to show up at the Kimberly field.

'Satchel' Paige Hurls In Exhibition Here

Monarchs and House of David Team Meet in Twin Falls

Leroy (Satchel) Paige, described by some of the most celebrated hitters in the major leagues as baseball's greatest pitcher, will be on the mound for the Kansas City Monarchs when the colored club meets the famed House of David all-star array in Twin Falls Aug. 12.

Booking of the exhibition game at Jaycee park was announced yesterday by Hugh Pace, business manager of the Twin Falls Cowboys.

Favorite and most thrilling experiences in Paige's baseball career, the "Black Matty" admits, have been airtight pitching triumphs over picked teams of the majors. Joe DiMaggio and other stars who tried to hit his offerings have voiced high praise for his wizardry with a baseball. He is the subject of an article appearing in this week's Saturday Evening Post.

The lineup announced the House of David for this year's exhibition tour includes outstanding talent as well as a number of noted veterans with the be-whiskered club. J. L. (Doc) Tally is still a leading member after 27 years of pitching for the Davids. John R. Tucker, manager and member of the "pepper game" trio, is widely known for his antics around first base. This is his seventeenth year with the organization.

Kendall Chase Hurls Solons to 6-3 Victory Over Detroit Tigers

DETROIT, July 23 (AP)—The league-leading Detroit Tigers dropped a 6 to 3 decision today to the Washington Senators who were sparked by the seven-hit pitching of southpaw Kendall Chase.

Although Dick Bartell and Rudy York both nicked Chase for four-baggers, the big left-hander kept the Tiger blows well scattered. Only in the ninth, when Detroit counted its third run, could the league leaders put together two hits in an inning.

A ten-hit Washington barrage, which included four doubles, and a triple by Cecil Travis, drove Johnny Gorsica to the showers with the score 5 to 1 at the end of the sixth. Thomas Seats pitched a scoreless seventh but gave way to a pinch-hitter. Paul (Dizzy) Trout worked the last two.

The Tigers' most promising tally was nipped in the seventh. With one run in, one out and two men on base pinch-hitter Ralph Kress hit into the only double play of the game.

Ogden Reds Solve Zar for 15 Hits

IDAHO FALLS, July 23 (AP)—Big red-headed Johnny Zar, Idaho Falls' ace hurler, furnished no serious problem to Ogden tonight as the visiting Reds fell upon his offerings for 15 hits and a 7-4 series-deciding Pioneer league victory.

The Reds concentrated their assault in two innings, the first and eighth, shoving across a trio of runs in each frame. Their seventh run was manufactured in the fifth.

Until that outburst the game was a tossup, as Idaho Falls had driven Vernon Stone from the box in the first with a pair of tallies and collected another two off Clayton Lambert in the third and fourth.

Lambert was invincible thereafter, blanking the host Russets from the fifth inning on and striking out ten batters.

Gordie Duff and Dale Laybourne were the big guns in the Ogden onslaught, fashioning three hits apiece and driving in two counters each.

Tom Canavan hit a brace of two-baggers but had a poor evening at first base where he committed three misplays.

Mike Reser contributed two safeties to the losing cause, one of them a triple.

Golfers of Buhl Plan Tournament And Trout Feast

BUHL, July 23—Buhl golf fans are looking forward to the mixed two-ball foursome tournament to be held at the Clear Lakes Country club Sunday morning at 9 o'clock. Manager Walt Lyon is working out a unique plan for partners for the foursomes.

Following the tournament, a fish fry is being planned by Jess O. Eastman and Mrs. Murray. A sumptuous trout dinner will be served in the grove between 3 and 4 p. m., which is in the nature of a benefit affair to reimburse the club for building of a large platform, completed Monday evening. The platform, extending from the clubhouse, over the stream which runs in front of the clubhouse, and overlooking No. 1 tee, is large enough to accommodate a number of tables for cards, or spectators who wish to sit in the shade to watch the golfing from that point.

Public Links Players Post New Scoring Marks

By DALL STAFFORD

DETROIT, July 22 (AP)—All scoring records for United States Golf association amateur competition were obliterated today with a mighty conquest of par by the nation's crack public links players.

Striding the fairways in sultry heat, two of the 190 contestants in the national championship—Worth Stimits, jr., of Colorado Springs, and Edward J. Furgol of Utica, N. Y.—smashed the 19 year old qualifying record of 139 by a stroke and the 64 players who survived the qualifying test shot 149 or better, the lowest qualifying mark in the history of this or any other U.S.G.A. event. Eddie Harper of Pocatello, Idaho, carded 147.

Stimits, a senior of Colorado college and champion of the Rocky Mountain conference, added another 69 to his two under par score of yesterday.

Furgol, 22-year-old metal polisher who had been playing golf only four years, scored 68 today to go with his 70 of yesterday. He had a great chance to take the undisputed lead when he came to the last hole four under par but an approach into the rough wrecked his hopes.

Two other 68's, lowest score of the tournament, were fired today.

Charles Lind, of Denver, scored one of them to go with his 71 of yesterday, tying the former qualifying record and taking third place. Walter Gilliam, of San Mateo, Calif., was the other 68 shooter and his 140 total deadlocked him with Adrian French, of Huntington Park, Calif., for fourth position.

CLEVELAND, July 23 (AP)—Al Milnar pitched his 13th victory of the season tonight as the Cleveland Indians edged the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 0, to draw within a half game of the league leading Detroit Tigers. Roy Weatherly singled home the deciding run in the hurling duel between Johnny Babich and Milnar, each giving up six hits.

Both flingers fanned four, but Milnar got in some tight spots through issuing five walks.

The winning run came in the fifth on Rollie Hemsley's single, Milnar's sacrifice and one of Weatherly's three singles.

More Gas From Pratt!

Well, Ladies and Gentlemens, here's another picture of the Resolute gasoline truck. It holds 4,250 gallon, and that much gasoline is only lasting Claud Pratt six days. We don't deliver any gasoline, and yet they're coming after it in barrels, and right while I'm putting this ad in, there's three automobiles being served at once.

It seems to be the general remark of all the satisfied customers that this is the best gasoline they've ever used. One farmer said that the first fill in his tractor convinced him. He said that instead of having fouled spark plugs, it actually cleaned them. You don't need to use a blowtorch to get this gasoline to burn. One of the farmers that just filled his car with Resolute forgot to sign his check. Now he's signing it on the hood of his car, but he didn't get his name entirely on the check because the hood was too hot. So he walks into the desk with a smile from ear to ear.

We expect another carload of Arkansas motor oil in the latter part of this week. That'll make two carloads in two weeks time. Farmer after farmer have told us about the remarkable results of this most remarkable motor oil. Glen Wright is working for us now—he used to work at Barnard's. He's not only a grease monkey, but he's a most pleasant salesman. I've got one man down here that's part Cherokee Indian. He flits around among the trade just like he was hunting game. We have George Ritchie who's been with us 9 years now, except one year. He's 65 years old. He can stand on his head or walk with his feet turned backwards. He used to be a clown in a circus. Our bookkeeper isn't much bigger than a pint cup, but she can click off letters just like an old goose pickin' up corn.

Then we have Shelley here that moves slow and sits hard. And Clifford is married now, that's why he looks so serious. And our Bobby Boy—we don't like any longer, because he's long enough. The barber has installed an air conditioning outfit. It looks like the Hawaiian Islands, but it's as cool as being under a shade tree in Alaska.

McBride is busy filling orders with groceries. W. C. Harbour is still packing out paint and wallpaper—and he sure packs a bunch of it out of here just like a pack rat. When you want a good paper hanger, just call for the rat.

Well, I just phoned this ad in at random like I always do. I let the fellow on the other end do the writing.

Clip this ad out and bring it in next Saturday with you and get a 25 pound bucket of pressure gun grease for just $1.69—or get as many as you want at that price for Saturday only. I just want to see how many reads the tail-end of this ad. And if you've got a membership card, you still get the extra 5 per cent off for Saturday only. We ought to move about 5 ton of grease Saturday. If the wife happens to read this ad, she'd better tell her husband.

By FREDERICK GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—The stock market continued to work under war blankets today and leaders generally followed diverse trails.

A few aircrafts, motors, chemicals and specialties managed to post modest recoveries but small fractional declines were well distributed at the close.

For the second day in a row the Associated Press average of 60 issues was unchanged at 41.4. Transfers amounted to 251,460 shares.

An assortment of second quarter and six months' earnings statements disclosing sharp improvement over the comparable periods of 1939, especially for the airplane makers, provided mild encouragement.

Fears remained that the British defy to Hitler's "peace or destruction" threat might mean an imminent smash at England with consequent market unsettlement.

Gains of fractions to a point or so were retained by Douglas Aircraft, United Aircraft, Sperry, Glenn Martin, General Motors, Chrysler, Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, Loft, Chesapeake and Ohio, Pennsylvania, Alleghany Corp. preferreds and Texas Corp.

On the offside were U. S. Steel, Youngstown Sheet, American Telephone, Anaconda, Kennecott, Western Union, Johns-Manville, Du Pont, Woolworth, Consolidated Edison, Eastman Kodak, Standard Oil of New Jersey and General Electric.

CHICAGO WHEAT TRADE NERVOUS

Market Unsettled on Last Day of Dealing in July Contracts

By GILES FINDLEY

CHICAGO, July 23 (AP)—The final day of trading in July grain contracts plus continuation of the heat wave served to unsettle the grain market today.

Prices of all grain dipped nervously with July deliveries of wheat, oats and soy beans affected adversely and the July rye delivery bounding upward.

The July delivery of wheat was erased from trading with a huge total of contracts unfilled. At the start today there were 4,400,000 bushels in open contracts — that is contracts bought or sold calling for delivery of that quantity of wheat this month. With trading in July wheat at a fairly normal pace, this would leave a huge quantity of wheat to be delivered to fill these open contracts. The exact figure will be announced tomorrow.

Wheat closed unchanged to ½ cent higher than yesterday's finish after hanging lower most of the session, September 73¼-⅝, December 74⅝-¾, and corn was ½ cent lower to ⅜ higher, September 60⅜-¾, December 56¾-¼; oats ⅜-⅝ off, rye unchanged to 2⅝ up, soy beans 6⅝-7½ cents lower, and lard 10-13 cents off.

NEW YORK, July 23 (AP)—The world sugar contract pointed higher today while the domestic list held to a mixed range.

At the close domestic prices were 2 points higher to 2 down, spot July accounting for the gain. Cuban buying was a steadying factor although prices softened a little near the close. Switching made up nearly two-thirds of the total sales of 154 lots.

Short covering by trade and speculative interests dominated the trend in the world contract. Sales totaled 123 lots.

Business in raws was small. The trade heard that an operator bought 1000 tons of Philippines due Aug. 5 at 2.63 cents.

A fair demand was reported for refined sugar. Fine granulated held at 4.35 to 4.35.

Early Potatoes Move to Market

BOISE, July 23 (AP)—Early Idaho potatoes have been moving to market in fair volume but yields are reported only fair, largely because some fields were dug before size was attained, Richard C. Ross, federal agricultural statistician, said today.

Quality of early potatoes was better than expected and they were said to be arriving at markets in much better condition than at the same time last year.

Condition of green peas on July 15 varied considerably.

Hot weather, with considerable thrip damage, was said to have lowered onion prospects materially, particularly in the southwest.

BOARD NAMED IN DISTRICT MERGER

County Superintendent Appoints Trustees for Consolidated Area

Acting under orders of the Twin Falls county commissioners, Mrs. Doris Stradley, county superintendent of public instruction, yesterday afternoon announced appointment of a new board of trustees to conduct affairs of the newly-consolidated school district No. 23.

The district consists of common school districts No. 5, Rock Creek; No. 62, Seedrow; and No. 23, Excelsior. Consolidation was sanctioned by elections in all three districts.

With one member selected from each of the three formerly separate boards, the new board will consist of Roy Scott, Excelsior; S. A. Walton, Rock Creek; and O. D. Tilley, Seedrow.

Although present boards are to complete all unfinished business and conduct current affairs, the new board will begin operation after the second Monday in September.

Canvass of recent voting on the consolidation issue in the districts shows that it was favored by the following margins: Rock Creek, 5 to 1; Seedrow, 6 to 0; and Excelsior, 13 to 9.

TWO APPOINTED TO 20-30 POSTS

Dick Heppler Secretary, Frank Giese Treasurer of New Unit

Announcement of those who will assume duties of two appointive positions in the newly-organized Twin Falls 20-30 club came before last night's weekly dinner meeting of the service organization at the Rogerson hotel. Remainder of the session was devoted to an educational program.

Selection of Dick Heppler to serve as secretary and Frank Giese as treasurer was announced by the board of directors. The directors have also named four permanent committees to serve for six months.

Speakers during the educational phase of the program were Ray McFarland on history of the local club and upon national organization; Gene Shirley, officers and their duties; Fred Drake, purposes and benefits of the 20-30 club; and Frank Giese, finances.

Charter night is tentatively set for Saturday, Sept. 14, when a dinner meeting will be held at the Rogerson hotel and George Southworth, national trustee in charge of central intermountain districts from Reno, Nev., will appear to officiate at the charter presentation.

Night Crawler Searchers Get 'Move on' Sign

From residents of the block between Shoshone street and Second street north and Ninth and Tenth avenues north has come an ultimatum forbidding hunting of night crawlers on their property in the future.

Disturbance at night created by fishermen who come to gather the worms for use as bait, coupled with property damage, were given as the reasons for the action by irate citizens by a representative of the property owners.

Registrars Slate Conference Here

An all-day conference of registrars of vital statistics from throughout southern Idaho will be held in the Idaho Power auditorium in Twin Falls, Saturday, Aug. 3, according to J. O. Pumphrey, county registrar and temporary chairman on arrangements.

A luncheon for the 15 registrars expected to attend will be held at noon, and featured speakers of the day will be Mae O. Atwood, Boise, director of the Idaho vital statistics bureau and Clyde A. Bridger, Boise, federal statistician.

Official Advises Fifth Spray Use

Application of the fifth cover spray in the codlin moth control program should come before July 27, according to G. C. Mayers, state department of agriculture horticultural inspector.

Continued heavy flight of the moth necessitates the fifth spray, he advised, pointing out that use of three pounds of arsenate of lead for each 100 gallons of water with suitable spreader is recommended. Fruit should be thoroughly covered.

Odd Malady Hits Deer Population

Because a six-point buck stricken in the Rock Creek hills section displayed symptoms similar to brain fever and because several other deer in that section have been affected by a strange malady, a post mortem was performed on the buck and specimens of internal organs sent to Boise for examination, officials disclosed last night.

Discovery of the buck was by Conservation Officer Grover Davis, and the animal was kept under observation for 24 hours before death. During that time it acted in a peculiar manner, standing still for long periods and then moving toward a tree and circling it a number of times. The post mortem was performed by Dr. E. R. Price, city meat and dairy inspector. Specimens were then sent to Boise for examination.

Blooms, Southern Style

THE BLOOMS are cotton, the smiling gentleman is Navy Recruiter M. D. Davis and the place is somewhere in Magic Valley — more specifically Twin Falls. Although the list of commodities which Magic Valley irrigated soil and abundant sunlight will grow is already long, cotton may now be added, and this picture is the proof. Mr. Davis, who is officer in charge of the recruiting unit in Twin Falls, brought the cotton seeds to Idaho from Georgia, where he visited on general service with the navy in 1936. He planted them last spring in this container, kept in a window, at the post office building, and the plant has yielded two fluffy bunches of cotton. (News Photo and Engraving).

APPROVAL GIVEN SKI RUN PROJECT

Clearing of Course on 'New Hill' in Rock Creek Area Will Start Soon

Following authorization of the program by forest service officials, CCC crews will start clearing operations to prepare four new ski runs in the Rock Creek section, according to Sherman Osgood, president of the Twin Falls Ski club. The runs are being marked off in advance of clearing operations.

Approval of the plan followed a survey of the new site on the west side of the creek at the Rogerson-Hansen road fork by an official party, including Curtis E. Price, forest supervisor, Burley; Alf Engen, noted ski expert and forest service employe; C. H. Ramage, CCC projects supervisor; and Recreation Planner Oswald of Ogden, with Mrs. Osgood, John Weaver and Bud Klines of the ski club.
