Drug Addict and Auto Thief Wanted by Officers For Questioning

Dr. Mattson, still maintaining he has had no answers to the 150 classified advertisements inserted in the Seattle Times, attempting to contact the kidnapers, assertedly will demand absolute proof that his captive son is alive before the $28,000 ransom will be paid.

Hijacking Feared
He feared a crank or rival criminal might attempt to "hijack" the ransom demanded by the kidnapers. It was believed.

In seeking the drug-addicted carrier, police were following a report by the terrified children who witnessed the abduction that the kidnaper appeared to be under the influence of drugs or liquor.

The only discrepancy in the suspect's description was his age, police admitted. The bearded gunman who flung a ransom note signed "Tim" on the floor of the Mattson home was thought to be middle-aged. Later, however, Virginia Chaffler, 16, Seattle, a friend who was visiting the Mattson children, said the kidnaper was not as old as first reported.

Sailor Not Involved
Federal agents indicated Halbert Reynolds, 33, a sailor, picked up by police last night when he tried to pawn a ring, had no connection with the kidnaping.

Although Reynolds answered the general description of the kidnaper, there is presently no link between the case and Reynolds.

Olympia police held as possible clues a detective story magazine, some discarded boy's underclothing and a man's underwear found at the abandoned campsite. The Mattson boy wore no underclothing when he was abducted and had just finished a bath and had on only outer garments.

The underclothing was too large for a 10 year old boy, but police said they could not afford to overlook any possible clues.

Tacoma police, however, discounted a belief the kidnaper and the boy may have camped out in the dense woods. The past few nights have been bitterly cold and would have made camping out hazardous.

Many women and children were among the casualties. Crowds were fleeing with their non-day shopping, and were caught in the streets.

The planes dropped numerous small bombs chiefly over the center of the city, inflicting serious casualties although damage was not great.

PURCHASERS ALREADY SEEK TO BUY THOSE WILD HORSES

When the last of the foot-loose bands of Nevada and Idaho wild horses finally are snared by their newest enemy, the airplanes, they will go to widely scattered parts of the nation.

The aerial roundup planned by Twin Falls and Filer men has already attracted purchase orders for hundreds of the range-bred mustangs, the backers of the project said. One Des Moines, Ia., dealer mailed a newspaper clipping on the roundup and asked for 150 horses to be sold for farm work. A Wisconsin ranch asked for three carloads. One Montana concern seeks 25 head.

Girls Want Colt
Two girls in Denver, Colo., wrote and asked for a colt apiece.

Those will probably be just a start, because the backers of the roundup haven't even attempted to seek definite markets.

Return From Trip
L. G. Kirkman and Pilot Lamorne Stevens had returned to Twin Falls today after a scouting trip into Nevada to seek a spot of a new base camp. Heavy snow at Ely blocked the search, but weather reports from Nevada indicated the sagebrush plains further south on the Nevada desert have had little snow and may provide the new scene of operations when Kirkman and Stevens decide to go ahead, probably in a week or two.

Scout Near Ely
The scouting trip of the past several days was understood to have taken the party to the section around Ely, Nev.

Cash returns on the wild horses to be sold by the roundup company will probably be boosted, local stock experts said today, by the fact that valuable ranch stock has interested with the wilderness mustangs. One U-C stallion, estimated as worth $1,000, is roaming with the bands. It was understood. If captured, he will be returned as a branded animal, but any of his breed stock corralled by the aerial roundup will mean big dividends for the concern.

The company includes Kirkman and Stevens, both of Twin Falls, and Roy Lancaster and J. H. Lancaster, both of Filer.

SPECIAL SCOUTS' SHOW CANCELLED

The jamboree is to be held from June 30 to July 9 in Washington, D. C.

Dedication Held
Dedication of the Boy Scout winter camp at Blue Lakes ranch was held yesterday afternoon with four scouters, Harold Dunn, Clarence E. Joslyn, chairman of the Twin Falls Boy Scout district, and Amby Frederick, executive of the Snake River area, participating.

The site was inspected and plans for future development discussed. To demonstrate the sports facilities of the camp Nye, indulged briefly in swimming despite the frigid weather.

THEATERS

Orpheum Offering
Dramatic Picture
The genius of Cecil B. DeMille is turned to his native America in "The Plainsman," the first of Paramount's big Silver Jubilee attractions to be shown in Twin Falls. It is a tensely dramatic and inspiring epic of America in the making, which opened a four-day showing yesterday at the Orpheum theater.

"Winterset" Opens
Roxy Run Sunday
One of the theater's more intense dramas, "Winterset," from Maxwell Anderson's play comes to the Roxy theater Sunday as a notable screen presentation. It is this play for which New York dramatic critics award Anderson a plaque signaling his work as the best of the year.

Burgess Meredith, Margo and Eduardo Ciannelli, who won the unanimous praise of critics and public alike in the original Broadway cast, enact the same roles in the current production.

With the settings and atmosphere greatly enhanced by the flexibility of the motion picture camera, "Winterset" stirringly reveals romance arising out of the grip efforts of a young man to vindicate the victim of his father who died the night of a vicious gang plot, a cold-blooded judge and a jury influenced by mob hysteria.

Boy Returned To Industrial School

POT SHOTS

WITH

The Gentleman in the Third Row

THIS OUGHT TO END YOUR POST-HOLIDAY BLUES! Lissen, Fella!

Somebody else may have told you about this, but I doubt it because it took a lot of figuring before I got it whipped into shape. Next year Christmas and New Year's fall on Saturday, so we all get a two-day holiday; the year after they fall on Sunday and are observed usually on Monday, so we get a two-day holiday; the year after that they come on Monday and so we get a double holiday again.

SARCASTIC LAUNDRY! Dear Pot Shots: You really must hear about the cute little note the laundry at Palo Alto sent back to Bob Bacon, George Sandholtz and Bruce Johnson, please note. When Bob Johnson of our Stanford boys, opened his bundle, he found this: "We mend socks, not re-make them."

A LOT MORE COULD GO ON THAT LIST! Pot Shots: Following are a few dates of world tragedies: Saxophone invented—1846. World war—1914. Mae West born—1890. Jazz started—1915. Short skirts—1922. Radio crooning—1920.

BACK TO NORMAL! Pot Shots: Now that those post-season football games are over, a bowl is just something to put roses, sugar, cotton, oranges and whatnot in.

REWARD—BAH! We had a party New Year's eve as nice as nice could be. Everyone was quite sedate. Even including me.

We played some bridge an hour or so. And had a sober lunch. Then everyone went home to bed. A very stately bunch.

And New Year's day I woke to find My head had an awful ache. So that's what I got for wearing a halo: Patsy, it takes the cake!

WE DROPPED IN at one of the New Year's eve parties and a very nice-looking gal said to us: "I knew you were Pot Shots right away." So, since our disguise was penetrated, we'll fool her. We won't give out anything on that party. That'll prove something or other. (Note: It did look like a swell party, though).

THEY MOVED 'EM IN BY THE TRAINLOAD Pot Shots: Ag Sec Hank Wallace is worrying over that business of moving people out of the dust bowl. The promoters of the Rose bowl had just the opposite problem, so they couldn't help Hank.

STATUES ARE ABOUT THE ONLY ONES! Pot Shots: There actually is a fellow in our town who sees no evil, hears no evil and speaks no evil. He's a tiny statue in our public library.

COMMON OCCURRENCE! Pot Shots: This case the Eveltines mentioned, about the little girl who sleeps with her eyes wide open—that's nothing unusual. All the kids at our house do it around Christmas time.

THEY'D HAVE TO SWITCH TO TRACTORS! Pot Shots: They tell me some of the farmers up in North Idaho are installing radios on their farm equipment so to have music while they plow, cultivate and whatnot. Wouldn't they get fooled if there happened to be a revival of this "Whooa, Whooa, Whooa-de-Whooa" song?

AND HE CERTAINLY DOES SPREAD IT ON! Pot Shots: The only reason I can figure out for Mr. Hitler cutting down on the amount of butter allowed to each family over in Germany, is so Hitler can continue to spread it on thick.

FAMOUS LAST LINE "And I did NOT make any resolutions!"

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

The HOLIDAY MYSTERY

By IDA R. GLEASON
© 1936, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
The gaiety of the Christmas party at the De Forest hotel, "THUNDER BURN," has a tragic ending when PEARL JOHN, SAM DE FOREST, (oldest of three brothers, is found dead beneath the Christmas tree with a knife in his throat. There are many strange things about "Thunder Burn," beside the fact that each of the three brothers had the first name "Pearl." PEARL JOHN is the youngest, PEARL PIERRE next. Others at the house are: TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WELCH, her companion; HARRY VANDERBILT and ANGELIQUE ABRETTA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR SHAW, geologist; and BOB BROWN, a young man who stopped at the hotel when his car broke down.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX
AFTERWARD Bob remembered looking out the chapel window at the column of smoke rising from the distant edge of the mesa where the Christmas greens were being burned. The smoke, against the leaden sky, made a suitable backdrop for the weird drama being enacted in the chapel, as Pearl Pierre, frowning coldly, faced the group in the room.

"You can all see, I suppose, that the body is gone," he was saying, his thin lips biting off the words significantly. The penetrating glance included everyone. Angelique sobbed hysterically, and Ramon put an arm about her. Old Tante Josephine rapped her cane sharply on the tiled floor.

"Tut, tut, Pearl Pierre! You herd us in here to pray over Pearl Sam, who would laugh if he could know about it, and now he's gone. Why don't you tell us what you've done with him?" Her black eyes glared at her nephew; then, after a minute, his manner became less belligerent and he ran a hand across his forehead with a weary gesture.

"I beg your pardon, Tante Josephine," he said. "The events of the last few hours have rather unnerved me. And now, with the officers coming to see about a murder and no body to show them—" He strode out of the chapel, without looking to right or left.

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the Nation's Capital By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator. (Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

1936 CHIMES
The figures show the country has reached, as the New Year starts, a state of what could be called prosperity, yet it is not out of the depression. "Lo!" at the accompanying chart of progress made since 1929, especially at the last 10 months of this year. Factories are humming almost at 1929 boom time. Employment is only nine notes under the high-pitched 1929 key. But everything else is more or less in harmony. Payrolls are 18 points lower, but off 39, sales off 20, prices off 12 and building drops a sour bass 61 points below 1929.

It means that, in ringing out the old and ringing in the new, some economic bells sounded much louder and more cheerful than others. The whole makes a somewhat uneven chorus.

CHART
The chart is made up of official government figures, except December, which has been privately estimated. All figures, except payrolls, and prices, are adjusted for seasonal variations and therefore represent the percentage of normal existing for the period stated. Normal (100) is the average level for the years 1923, 1924 and 1925, at the turn of the year generally except for the price index, which is based on 1926.

Year	Factory Employment	Payrolls	Production	Prices	Building	Wholesale
1930 Average	96	91	89	92	102	92
1931 Average	81	77	67	75	92	63
1932 Average	64	66	47	56	69	28
1933 Average	76	72	49	58	67	27
1934 Average	79	82	43	62	75	32
1935 Average	90	86	71	63	79	37
1936 January	97	89	74	70	81	61
February	94	87	74	70	83	52
March	93	88	77	66	84	47
April	100	89	79	69	84	48
May	101	90	81	70	87	46
June	104	90	81	70	87	52
July	108	93	80	73	91	59
August	108	93	83	70	86	62
September	109	94	72	88	59	61
October	109	94	89	73	90	58
November	114	95.8	90	80	93	55
December	113	95	91	76	91	56

Note: The employment figure is about 5 points above the figure formerly used by the government. The payroll figure is about 2 points higher. This is because the bureau of labor statistics has changed the basis of its reckoning. It has readjusted its computations in accordance with the 1933 census. In other words, the government figures on employment and wages all during the depression, and before, are now conceded to have exaggerated the deficiencies in both lines by anywhere from 4 to 9 per cent.

FORMER RESIDENT INJURED IN WRECK

Friends here have learned that George W. McGinnis, 49, former resident of Twin Falls, is recovering from a brain concussion, body bruises and five dislocated ribs following a recent automobile accident near Canon City, Colo.

Also injured were Edward Owings, 55, his wife, Mrs. Lucy Owings, 65, both of Canon City; Miss Owings, 68, Miss Stef Owings, 65, both of LeRoy, Kan.

AWARDED BUIH PRIZE
BUHL, Jan. 2 (Special)—Roy Falt won the first prize for the home lighting contest sponsored by the Buhl Chamber of Commerce. Harold Dial won the second prize and Iven Wright received the third. The contest was conducted only within the city limits and all the lighting and decorations had to be visible from the street. A committee chosen from the Castleford Everywoman's club judged displays.

ROMANCE SKIDS A HIT

Loves young dream, contrary to what you might expect, doesn't seem to fare as well when economic times are looking up as it did in depression times.

One indication of that is the fact that marriage licenses issued in Twin Falls county for the year just ended totalled 309, considerably below the 344 issued in 1935. And back further than that, as the county clerk's office points out, people seemed to marry even more than they do lately.

It seems difficult to explain, especially since the sociological experts of great repute used to be moan during depression that the worst aspect of the slump was that younger America was being forced to postpone its weddings. It appears, however, that younger America isn't doing very well by the pronouncements of sociologists.

It probably all boils down to the old theory that when you can't do something, you promptly want to do it. Now that young lovers have jobs and money in their pockets they know marriage is possible at any time, provided the lady says yes. So they put it off for a little while longer of good times in bachelorhood. And you can use the same reasoning on the side of the ladies.

At any rate, Cupid in Twin Falls county had better step out in 1937 and recoup his losses.

And then there's the case of the gentleman who got hold of several dozen packets of paper matches from Sun Valley lodge—and now is pondering selling them as souvenirs.

One Twin Falls man reports that he stays awake until his wife goes to sleep, and then gets in the last word.

HEALTHY SIGN

In an Oklahoma courtroom, recently, a high-salaried oil company executive sat with 11 other jurors, at $3 a day, to hear a chicken-stealing case. And a court official pointed out that such attention to a civic duty is becoming less unusual.

"A few years ago," he reveals, "many of large affairs avoided jury service, but in recent months we have had a number of prominent men on juries."

If this trend is noticeable in other cities, also, it would be interesting to learn just what is responsible. It is possible that in hectic boom days these men subordinated their duties as citizens to the pursuit of profits; and that common struggle through hard times revived their sense of responsibility to their fellow citizens.

In any event, the trend is, as the official pointed out, "a healthy sign of revived interest in government, and an excellent example for the community."

A symposium on "The Future of Art in America" was offered in New York. A more interesting one would have been "The Future of Edward in Europe."

The bolt found in the Christmas cake of the Grand Rapids, Mich., woman must have been put in by mistake with the nuts.

LOUD SOUNDS

Among the sounds that betoken a joyous Christmas—the gleeful cries of children, the jovial greetings of adults, the beautiful carols, and the inspiring hymns—there arose a discordant note.

It was the voice of Clarence Darrow crying in the wilderness. Read some of the Shavian utterances of this eminent lawyer:

"Christmas? I think it is a humbug. . . . When I was a boy, I didn't like to see Christmas come. . . . Nobody knows why we celebrate Christmas—to keep up the old bunk, I suppose. . . . All told, Christmas is mainly a public nuisance."

The Fourth of July "has it beat a mile," contends this killjoy. "On the Fourth I used to get up right after midnight to shoot off anvils. It was a lot of fun. It made a loud sound."

The Iberian towns terrorized by men in leopard skins will gain sympathy from American college towns raided after games by youths in raccoon-pelts.

It's an ill wind—"The King Edward coronation souvenirs, which frantic English merchants feared would be a total loss, now are selling for a higher price as abdication keepsakes."

When James Hammond became warden of Kentucky's state prison some time ago, he found a big problem on his hands. Enforced idleness had led to a series of disturbances at the institution.

Because of a law preventing commercial use of prison-made goods, Mr. Hammond could not put his 2,900 convicts at work, to keep them out of mischief. So he tried another idea. He started drilling his prisoners, on a competitive basis, the various squads vying for the distinction of being the best drilled in the prison. The plan has worked with remarkable success.

This interesting story seems to be analogous to one from abroad. When Hitler became Der Fuehrer, conditions in Germany were turbulent. He, too, began to put his people on a military basis and, by drumming into them the theory that they were a chosen race, strengthened their competitive instinct. And thus far Hitler, too, has been successful.

But there the analogy ends: The principle of Hammond's plan, it seems, is to keep the peace.

THIS OUGHT TO END YOUR POST-HOLIDAY BLUES!

Someone else may have told you about this, but I doubt it because I got it whipped into shape. Next year Christmas and New Year's fall on Saturday, so we all get a two-day holiday; the year after they fall on Sunday and are observed usually on Monday, so we get a two-day holiday; the year after that they come on Monday and so we get a double holiday again.

Gosh, I can hardly wait for all that to start.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The gaiety of the Christmas party at the de Forest hacienda, "Number Mean" has a tragic ending when PEARL JOHN, BOB FOREST, oldest of three brothers, is found dead beneath the Christmas tree with a knife in his throat. There are many strange things about "Thunder Mean" besides the fact that each of the three brothers has the first name "Pearl": PEARL JOHN is the youngest, PEARL PIERRE next, others at the house are TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WELCH, her companion; HARMON VAUGHN and ANGELIQUE ABHYLA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR ABRAHAM, archeologist; and BOB GIAHAN, the salesman who stopped at the hacienda when his car broke down. Pearl Pierre, now head of the family, has had a bad cold, later he sends word that everyone is to go there for a funeral service. They arrive—but the body has disappeared. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER IX

AFTERWARD Bob remembered looking out the chapel window at the column of smoke rising from the distant edge of the mesa where the Christmas greens were being burned. The smoke against the leaden sky, made a suitable backdrop for the weird drama being enacted in the chapel, as Pearl Pierre, frowning coldly, faked the group in the room.

"You can all see, I suppose, that the body is gone," he was saying, his thin lips biting off, the words significantly.

His penetrating glance included everyone. Angelique sobbed hysterically, and Ramon put an arm about her. Old Tante Josephine stepped her cane sharply on the tiled floor.

"Tut, tut, Pearl Pierre! You led us in here to pray over Pearl Sam, who would laugh if he could know about it, and now he's gone. Why don't you tell us what you've done with him?"

Her black eyes glared at her nephew; then, after a minute, his manner became less belligerent and he ran a hand across his forehead with a weary gesture.

"I beg your pardon, Tante Josephine," he said. "The events of the last few hours have rather unnerved me. And now, with the officers coming to see about a murder and no body to show them—" He strode out of the chapel, without looking to right or left.

The others followed more slowly, old Tante Josephine chuckling over her triumph and telling Betty, "He didn't get very far, trying to lay that on us, did he? Pearl Pierre was always a great one to crawl out of things by putting the blame on the next fellow! But I'm not afraid of him. No, sir! Tante Josephine never was afraid of any of the de Forests! They—"

"There, there. You mustn't excite yourself so much." Betty drew the little old woman away toward her own rooms.

"Well, what do you think of that?" Ramon asked Bob as Tante Josephine's cackling laughter faded away down the corridor. Pearl John had gone ahead into the living room with Angelique and they could see him seating her and tucking cushions behind her head. Then he went to get her something to drink.

"I think she may have come nearer the truth than she expected," Bob answered.

PEARL JOHN joined them then and in a minute Ramon went to see how Angelique was feeling. Bob looked at the youngest de Forest curiously.

Bob felt a twinge of sympathy for Pearl John, who, in spite of everything, seemed to be a real fellow.

"If there's anything I could do—" he began, putting a hand on Pearl John's arm.

"There is," Pearl John told him. "I'm going to make a thorough search of the house to see if I can find out something, and I'd like you to come with me."

Bob nodded assent and followed down the corridor. So Pearl John was afraid of something! He was so afraid that he was willing to ask help from a stranger. Pearl John opened several closed doors and, together, they peered into empty rooms, closets, storerooms, and bedrooms—all of which had windows opening on a courtyard, Bob noticed.

"You passed a door there on the left," he told Pearl John. "Did you intend to?"

"Yes. There's nothing there. It's locked," his host replied.

But Bob had the distinct feeling that Pearl John was none too well pleased that the door had been mentioned. For that reason Bob turned and looked back at it curiously. It had an antique brass knocker, carved in the shape of a lion's head that seemed to glare at him with baleful, sinister eyes.

The servants' quarters hummed with activity, very much in contrast to the empty silence of the rest of the house. Soft-voiced Mexican women padded to and fro, and several dark-skinned children played quietly near the big cook stoves.

"Where are Agapito and Jesus?" asked Pearl John of the woman who was the head cook.

AS the door closed behind them, Bob heard the conversation resume immediately, and imagined he detected a new note of suppressed excitement in it, but since Pearl John did not seem to notice, he said nothing about it.

"The family sleeping quarters are on that side, so we'll cross the patio here," remarked Pearl John, opening a heavy door.

In a minute they were outside on the snowy veranda, and Bob shivered as the cold struck him. They passed several lighted windows where the curtains were tightly drawn, and made directly for another door on the opposite side of the yard. Suddenly, Pearl John grasped Bob's sleeve and drew him into the shelter of a huge pillar of the porch.

Tante Josephine's high-pitched voice came to them plainly and Bob could see that one of the windows was open. The Indian who had guarded the trail down the canyon was standing on the porch outside.

"Promise me you'll do it, Broken Shield!" Tante Josephine was saying, her voice showing more than her usual excitement.

The two young men strained forward and heard him reply, "Si, Senora, I promise." The widow slammed shut then and the Indian hurried away.

"I'm going to Tante Josephine's room. You can come," Pearl John said with sudden decision. He was walking to the window and knocked.

The old lady's wizened face appeared almost at once, but when she saw her nephew she turned pale.

"What did that cursed Indian of yours promise to do, Tante Josephine?" Pearl John asked sternly. "What do you know about the things that are happening here?"

The old lady shook her trembling fist and her voice rose to a shriek. "Listen to the boy! Listen to him! You will dare threaten your old aunt, will you? Oh, why must I live on in this den of cut-throats and liars!"

Note: The employment figure is about 5 points above the figure formerly used by the government. The payroll figure is about 2 points higher. This is because the bureau of labor statistics has changed the basis of its reckoning. It has readjusted its computations in accordance with the 1933 census. In other words, the government figures on employment and wages all during the depression, and before, are now considered to have exaggerated the deficiencies in both lines by anywhere from 4 to 9 per cent.

HISTORY of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO—

JAN. 2, 1922

The very great diversity of the program of the University of Idaho Glee club entertainment this season has caused the most hearty reception of any year in the towns of Idaho already visited by the club.

Among the 20 university players have been secured instrumental orchestras, soloists, vocal and instrumental, a few excellent readers and a starting musical playlet.

The whole program is brimful of college life and humor and will make the old grad get young once more and children see hearts of the younger people as well as furnish a night of the highest class and type of musical entertainment.

27 YEARS AGO—

JAN. 2, 1910

After considerable delay the local B. P. O. E. will finally be organized and instituted on Jan. 13. The delay in getting the charter and in perfecting the arrangements have been very trying to members here and they are now planning to make the event one worth while.

The work of initiation will be put on by the Pacatello team, which will come in a special train with some 200 of the antlered herd from the Gate City to see that Twin Falls is properly started.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Memory is particularly strange in children. One never can tell what will be forgotten, or rather, not retained at all.

The younger the child, the more odd are the examples of experiences retained. A baby may retain impressions or haunting visions of people once known, but the outline never stays very clear, unless some extreme event brings certain pictures to the surface in later years. As the child gets a little older, say three or four, memory is confused with imagination, in many cases. He is so engrossed with new life and new happenings by the minute, that what has gone before is held by a mere thread. If something occurs to segregate the picture of the event, then, there it is, as clear as daylight.

Remembering Delayed

One example of this is that of the little boy who saw his father strike down his mother. She died, and the police questioned the boy for hours. One day, four months later, the nurse in the Children's home was bathing him. In the meantime, he had gone on quite happily with his play and new companions, seemingly erasing from his mind all the tragedy of that fatal day.

Suddenly he said, "He stabbed her, I saw him. And she didn't get up." "Why?" asked the startled nurse. "My mother. My daddy did it. I saw him." And this four-year-old babe continued with the whole story. He had actually forgotten, or blurred the day's events, in the excitement of living, in spite of the close but kindly questioning. They thought he knew nothing about it. One lonely day, some lingering thought of his home and mother brought facts to the top of his memory. And so it is with all small children.

I would not relate this sad tale now, but sometimes an extreme story puts over a point. If parents are too sure that the tiny children are not going to retain impressions of home and events in it, they are mistaken. Sometimes, memory will confront them. Not long ago one of the little children in our family stated a fact that amazed us all. It happened when he was three. He had it verbatim, yet in the meantime he had not mentioned it.

Save Child Unhappiness

I do not think it altogether a good idea for parents to keep all their own problems to themselves, because families should understand and share certain portions of the struggle and cooperate as much as possible. But early childhood, not ready for such things, should be spared uneasy memories that will arise sometime to cast unhappiness over life.

It is best and wisest to save the little folk their happiness, and let them grow gradually into the re-

MARKET ON SEED SHOWS STRENGTH

Heavy Loss in Drouth Areas Boosts Prices With 1937 Climb Indicated

By P. V. KELLY
Kelly-Western Company
SALT LAKE CITY (Special)—Markets on practically all field seeds showed continued strength throughout the fall harvesting period. Growers and dealers in the western states are particularly interested in the production of alfalfa, red clover and alsike seed, and sweet clover. Earlier estimates of a heavy loss of crops from drouth, with much lower yields per acre than in any recent year except 1934, have been confirmed by the survey of harvested crops just completed and released by the reporting board of the United States department of agriculture. The report indicates the total red and alsike clover seed crop this year as being 76,680,000 lbs., which is a little higher than last year's production, but very much less than the five-year average production of 91,320,000 lbs. Drouth conditions and grasshopper damage in most states reflected by yields per acre as compared with both last year and the ten-year average.

Phosphate Good
Farmers in Idaho and Utah have demonstrated to their own satisfaction that red clover seed yields can be materially increased by the proper application of phosphate to the acreage they anticipate saving for seed production. Every red clover grower should consult his county agent or his state experiment station, and make definite plans to apply phosphate to his clover acreage. Known factors indicate that the demand for red clover seed for the next few years is likely to be very good, which should be reflected in prices offered for the seed.

The drouth which caused a material reduction in acreage harvested for seed in some sections, made for increased production in some states east of the Missouri river, which usually produce almost no alfalfa seed, but in which the harvesting of alfalfa seed became quite general this year. Even so, the total alfalfa seed production in this country for 1936 is estimated by the crop reporting board as only 51,600,000 pounds as compared to a production last year of 60,720,000 pounds.

No Carry-Over
Because of the heavy planting of alfalfa last summer and early fall, there was practically no carry-over of alfalfa seed into the new crop, and the early harvested seed was in much demand. That, together with this year's decreased production, would indicate that alfalfa prices are very likely to advance as the season progresses.

The production of sweet clover seed is likewise somewhat less this year than last, and very much less than the five-year average. The yield per acre was greatly reduced by drouth and grasshopper damage, and prices are so comparatively high, that it is thought that most farmers will use red clover or alfalfa in preference.

Farm Income Gains
Regardless of pests, drouth, soil erosion, etc., the new indications of farm incomes are very favorable, according to the crop reporting board, showing an increase of approximately 13 per cent over 1935, or a gross income of farmers from 1936 operations of $9,530,000, compared with $8,508,000,000 in 1935, and $7,276,000,000 in 1934.

News reports from many sections indicate that farmers have more money to spend than at any time in the past five years. If such be the case, and with most supplies of field seeds on the short side, it is reasonable to assume that there will be an active demand for most all of the field seeds, which would be reflected in higher prices. There have been some rather heavy importations of both alfalfa and red clover so that in order to be sure of having an adequate supply of domestic seeds adaptable to local conditions, it might be well for farmers to anticipate their needs and place their orders for field seeds early, either for later delivery or to take the seed home and put it in a good safe place until ready for use.

Your Baby's Health

By DR. MORRIS FINHEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine

Children occasionally pick up drugs in the house and, not understanding the danger, swallow materials which menace health and life.

The first thing to do under these circumstances is to call the doctor at once, telling him, if possible, what you suspect is the nature of the poison the child has taken. This is important, since most poisons have special antidotes, and the doctor, then can bring with him the one especially suited to the case.

In the meantime, the child may be caused to vomit, if you are quite certain that he has swallowed poison. For this purpose a strong solution of salt water taken warm in fairly large quantities, is about as good as anything else.

Everybody knows that putting the finger into the back of the throat induces vomiting. When the child gags, it does not require much encouragement to cause him to vomit.

One advantage of large quantities of salt water is that it will weaken the mixture of the poison, even if the child does not vomit.

If the child has swallowed caustic substances, such as acids or things that burn, olive oil in water, or egg white in water, is a useful first aid remedy.

Always try to find out the nature of the poison. An empty bottle in the vicinity, or presence of some of the poison in a cup, in a utensil, on the tablecloth, floor, or clothing may be a valuable sign.

An unusual odor on the breath may indicate the substance that has been swallowed. Burns on the lips, tongue, and cheeks are evidences of the presence of caustic poisons.

Taking of poison is frequently followed by shock. This must be treated like other cases of fainting, dizziness, or shock. The child should be put to bed immediately and should be kept warm and recumbent. If the child happens to have taken a strong narcotic drug, he should be made to vomit. Then strong black coffee may be given him.

At the same time, it is necessary to do everything possible to keep the patient awake. Sometimes it is necessary to shake him lightly or to have him walk about to keep the tissues of the body active. If the child poisoned with a narcotic is permitted to sleep, breathing may stop.

It is especially important to make certain that a child has not taken some common laxative and cathartic tablets which may be chocolate coated and contain strychnine. Strychnine is one of the most dangerous poisons we know, and the dose for a child is far smaller than that for an adult.

Immediate attention of a doctor is important to save the life of a child who has taken strychnine.

Children sometimes are affected by inhaling powders containing zinc stearate. Babies should not be allowed to play with a can of powder, because they may inhale the powder and in that way set up inflammation in the lungs.

Nowadays, most of the powder for babies comes in cans which are self-closing, so that the baby cannot get into his mouth and nose any considerable quantity of the powder.

In any event, all drugs, medicines, and similar materials should be kept in an orderly manner, in a cupboard that is kept locked, and is sufficiently high to prevent easy access by the child.

"ARMY" WARS ON FOREST BEETLES

Spread of Parasites Checked By Vigorous Offensive In Three Campaigns

A veritable army made war on the mountain pine beetle in the Mindoka forest south of Twin Falls during the past year and a half and in three short campaigns has checked the spread of the insects destroying thousands of trees, the annual report of forest work by Elmer C. Ross indicates. Control work started in the fall of 1935 but was unable to get in effective work. Last April the spring offensive began and in the fall of 1936 was continued. Work was discontinued during the summer months because of the fire hazard. Trained crews inspected nearly every tree in the district. When a tree was found containing live insects it was sprayed with fuel oil, fired, and re-oiled until heat became great enough to kill the insects. The trees would have died anyway, the report states. More than two tank car loads of fuel oil was used. At one time six trucks, two wagons, 40 pack horses and one diesel "cat" were used to move the supplies into the four to eight camps maintained. The camps contained approximately 20 men each, the report shows.
