Congress Opposition Threatens Wreckage Of Roosevelt Plans

Both Democrats and Republicans Start Hammering at Proposals

By JOE ALEX MORRIS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Congressional opposition today threatened to wreck a large part of President Roosevelt's plan for governmental reorganization.

Democrats as well as Republicans began hammering at the proposals for sweeping changes in the government executive machinery. Leaders freely predicted a long, bitter controversy.

Some well-informed Democrats privately forecast certain defeat for important parts of the program.

Faint praise greeted Mr. Roosevelt's message in both houses, but it soon gave way to indications of provisions likely to be shelved or changed. They included:

1. Abolition of the office of controller general, who passes on legality of expenditures before the money is spent, in favor of an auditor general, who would audit transactions after disbursements were made and report to congress.

2. Increase in salary for cabinet officers from $15,000 to $20,000 and raises for under-secretaries.

3. Elimination of the civil service committee and creation in its place of a civil service administrator and a non-salaried advisory board.

4. Consolidation of 95 bureaus and agencies under 12 department heads without specific elimination of overlapping functions.

One of the most formidable immediate obstacles arose in the house. Rep. John J. O'Connor, D., N. Y., of the rules committee, opposed the leadership's plan for a new house standing committee to draft the necessary legislation.

Special Committee

Sen. Harry F. Byrd, D., Va., recommended his special reorganization committee to meet tomorrow to start work on "supplemental" recommendations expected to demand far more drastic economies by eliminating overlapping bureaus, particularly federal lending agencies.

Byrd criticized failure of the President's committee to abolish overlapping agencies on the grounds that such action was probably a "now or never" proposition.

Congressional reaction was favorable toward:

1. Bringing agencies, bureaus and departments more closely under the President in the interest of government efficiency.

2. Creation of six executive assistants to the President.

New Cabinet Post

3. Creation of a new cabinet post to be known as the department of social welfare and another post less favorably received to be known as the department of public works.

There was a sharp disagreement over extension "upward, outward and downward" of the merit system, despite the fact that most members voiced approval of the theory.

Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, opposed the entire civil service proposal on the grounds the merit system had been failure.

TRACTOR PARTY STARTS RESCUE

Sheet Sign Says 'One Dead, Three Ill' In Snow Bound Shack

LAS VEGAS, Nev., Jan. 13 (AP)—A tractor-equipped rescue party proceeded today toward a desert mountain nine north of here where five persons trapped last week by a blizzard were believed to have taken refuge.

A crudely lettered sign on a bed sheet was seen from the air yesterday. It said:

"One dead. Three seriously ill. Bring medical help soon."

The sign was seen by Lee Pretzman, whose wife is with the party, lost after starting from the Primm mine for Las Vegas.

The missing group includes Mrs. Pretzman, her cook, Doris Dunn, Fred Miller and Mr. and Mrs. James Poe.

Their automobile was located by a snowdrift by an airplane search.

Pretzman said he believed the sign appealing for help had been put out since he passed over the deserted mine buildings Monday.

OFFICIALS SEEK DRUG ADDICT IN MATTSON CASE

Autopsy Reveals That Youth Had Attempted To Escape From Captor

NEW TIP CALLED HOTTEST

Federal Men Look for Man Who Frequented Vicinity Of Doctor's House

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 13 (AP)—A perverted drug addict, known to have accosted boys and girls near the residence from which 10-year-old Charles Mattson was kidnaped, was sought by police today after it was revealed the lad had been criminally attacked before he was slain.

Detectives admitted the man was the "hottest" of several suspects sought for questioning in connection with the fiendish crime.

Search for the slayer widened as plans for private funeral services for the boy were completed this afternoon.

By PHIL R. CURRAN

(Copyright, 1937, United Press)

TACOMA, Wash., Jan. 13 (AP)—Little Charles Mattson was first stabbed in the back and then bludgeoned to death by a perverted degenerate, the United Press learned today on unimpeachable authority.

These facts were revealed beneath the ward blue lights of a Tacoma morgue by a secret autopsy performed by Drs. S. M. Crosswell and Charles McCall, working under the direction of E. J. Connelly, second in command of federal bureau of investigation forces here.

The three men worked alone behind locked doors and their gruesome task revealed further evidence of the many tortures suffered by the 10-year-old school boy.

It was established that Charles did not die from the stabbing; his killer's knife missed the vital organs but that the slayer was forced to complete his job by battering in almost the entire rear portion of the boy's head.

The killer was a sexual pervert, the scientists decided.

Charles had been fed enough to sustain his tiny body, but his fiendish captor had not clothed him sufficiently to ward off aggression of the cold the boy suffered.

EIGHT WORKMEN KILLED BY TRAIN

Union Pacific Locomotive Runs Down Hand Car In California

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (AP)—Eight workmen were killed and their mangled bodies strewn along the right-of-way for 350 feet, when despite the fact that most members voiced approval of the theory.

Only one man was immediately identified. He was Verbal A. Anderson, 36, section foreman, father of five children. The bodies were in such condition identification was difficult, the railroad officials said.

A backing freight locomotive struck the motor section car near Kelso, a short distance west of the California-Nevada line, in the early morning darkness as the men were starting out to shovel snow from the tracks near Cima.

THIEVES RANSACK SERVICE STATION

Burglars Take Almost Entire Stock and Cash Register From Establishment

Police officers today were searching for a person or persons who sometime during the night burglarized the Depot Service station, practically cleaning out the entire stock.

Entrance, according to a police report, was gained by prying up a front window and removing the screens from the latch. The theft was noticed this morning at 6:20 o'clock.

Missing articles include: A large cash register, four partly filled boxes of cigars, one full six-carton cigar case, one candy rack with assorted candies, six cartons of cigarettes and the cigarette case, several cartons of candy bars, two cartons of candy mints and the rack, a quantity of cough drops, a quantity of canned tobacco, and one rotary gum rack.

Police are of the opinion that at least two men were involved in the job as the cash register was too heavy for one man to lift.

The register was open and contained no money, but in their excitement the thieves overlooked approximately $12 in pennies cached directly under the register in a cigar box.

Man Found Frozen to Death After Raining From Stage

FULTON, Mo., Jan. 13 (AP)—Authorities today checked clues concerning a man believed to be Thomas Bridges of Honesdale, Ind., who was found dead of exposure after he had fled screaming from a transcontinental bus at Kingdom City, Mo.

As a precautionary measure, police planned to make casts of the man's fingerprints and shoes and send them to Tacoma, Wash., to be compared with similar casts of the kidnaper-slayer of Charles Mattson.

Thatched Arrest

Glenn J. Halsey, driver of the bus, said he had threatened the man with arrest when a woman passenger protested he was molesting her and her four-year-old son. At Kingdom City, the man leaped from the bus and ran, knocking down a picket fence in his flight. Halsey and passengers searched for 15 minutes, then continued their trip.

The man's body, nude except for shoes and socks, was found yesterday on the surface of a frozen stream. His clothing was in a pile at the edge of the stream.

NEGRO ARRESTED FOR TUB MURDER

Police Take Major Green, 33, For Slaying of New York Bride

NEW YORK, Jan. 13 (AP)—Thirty-six hours after the battered body of beautiful college bred Mary Harriet Case was found in her bathtub, police today charged Major Green, 33, a Negro porter, with her murder.

Police announced that the stained trousers found in an incinerator in the Jackson Heights apartment house in which Mrs. Case had lived since her marriage a little more than a year ago had been identified as belonging to Green. They said that Green's fingerprints had been found on the bath room door of the apartment.

When arrested, Green was wearing a shirt which police said had belonged to Frank Case, youthful hotel executive who discovered his wife's body, clad in chemise and stockings, in the overflowing tub Monday night.

More than 200 police and detectives worked to break the case which bore an amazing similarity to the slaying of Mrs. Nancy Pittman in her apartment last Good Friday. Her murderer, John Florence, will die in the electric chair at Sing Sing next week.

District Attorney Sullivan of Queens county announced the arrest in this formal statement:

Fingerprints found on the handle of the door in the bathroom of the apartment occupied by the deceased have been identified as those of the defendant.

The bloody trousers recovered from the incinerator in the apartment house building, have been identified as the property of the defendant.

Green had not confessed.

No definite motive for the slaying had been determined. Police believe it might have been petty thievery Mrs. Case was not criminally attacked.

The forest office is located at Coeur d'Alene. The new forester was employed by the U. S. forest service for 11 years before he became secretary of state in 1933.

MARTIN JOHNSON, FAMOUS EXPLORER, DIES OF INJURIES AFTER BIG AIRLINER CRASH

CANAL MEETING PRAISES CLARK, DEBATES POWER

Resolution Lauds Governor In Natural Resources Fight; Argument Flares

Resolution commending Governor Clark on his efforts toward development of Idaho's natural resources for the public benefit, and calling for legislation to permit the formation of power districts and the utilization of revenue bonds in connection with such districts, was passed late yesterday afternoon by stockholders of the Twin Falls Canal company, meeting in annual session in Twin Falls.

Introduced from the floor by Luke V. Sonner of Buhl, member of the Public Ownership league, it took the assembly by surprise and was passed viva voce after more than an hour's debate. It had previously been given to the members of the resolution committee, of which E. N. Pettygrove of Nampa was chairman.

Termed Meddling

"We did not consider introducing this resolution at this time because we felt we had no business meddling in the matter," Mr. Pettygrove said.

Following its introduction from the floor the resolution became the center for heated debate with Harvey S. Hale, Twin Falls county agent; E. M. Tompkins, former mayor of Buhl; and T. S. Nicholson of Eler, speaking for its adoption.

Opposition was led by Mr. Pettygrove with J. H. Seaver, one-time manager of the Great Shoshone and Twin Falls Water Power company which was later purchased by the state.

Killed in Crash

Martin Johnson, famed explorer, died this morning from injuries sustained in the crash of the Western Air liner in California yesterday.

Death Toll Two; Eleven Are Hurt

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (UP)—Martin Johnson, the famous African explorer, died today, the second fatality in the crash of a Western Air Express transport that plowed into a mountain ridge with 13 aboard in a storm yesterday.

Martin's face nearly torn away, and suffering from other injuries, died shortly before 7 a. m. (PST) in Good Samaritan hospital where his equally famous wife, Osa, is in a semi-conscious condition. She is expected to live.

The famous explorer and big game hunters were en route here to lecture when the airliner crashed into a ridge 25 miles north of Los Angeles, killing one passenger instantly and injuring all others. James Braden, Cleveland, was the other victim. His neck was broken.

Three of the 11 survivors, brought down by wagon and truck from the snow-covered ridge after lying in the wrecked plane as long as 10 hours, are in serious condition.

Fear for Spencer

Worst fears were expressed for E. E. Spencer, Chicago, president of the Stromberg Electric Co., who lay in the Pasadena hospital with fractures of both legs, one shoulder and his skull. He was unconscious.

Pilot W. W. Lewis and Co-pilot C. T. Owens also were seriously injured.

Physicians feared victims might contract pneumonia from lying in the cold for hours in the crashed ship. The plane, coming from Salt Lake City and the east, struck shortly after 11 a. m. Rescuers were unable to bring out the last victims until nearly midnight.

Snowstorm Rages

From cabin windows of the crashed ship the injured passengers could look down and see Union Air terminal, and the safety they missed, in the San Fernando valley below. A snowstorm raged around the ship. The cabin remained intact, providing a fortunate shelter.

They huddled, wrapped in blankets, until a tractor and big truck, hitched tandem-fashion, broke a (Continued on Page 2, Column 3)

AIRLINER CRASH SPURS PROGRAM

Federal Officials Concentrate On Increasing Safety Devices

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Chairman Royal S. Copeland of the senate commerce committee announced today his air safety sub-committee would recommend shortly expenditure of probably $10,000,000 to improve airplane weather reporting facilities.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—Latest of a series of airline disasters which have taken more than a score of lives within a month today spurred federal officials to concentrate on immediate steps toward increasing air safety pending development of a long-range program.

Death of two of the 13 persons aboard the Western air liner which crashed near Newhall, Cal., yesterday increased to 69 the number of fatalities on the nation's airlines since last January 14, worst year on record in 1936 with 87 deaths not including fatalities on non-scheduled flights.

First Step

First emergency step expected is establishment by the department of commerce of new regulations, including a mandatory provision that all airlines equip their planes with de-icing devices for wings, tail surfaces, radio antenna and carburetors.

The commerce department intends to summon a conference of representatives of airline operators, the army, navy, coast guard and national advisory committee for aeronautics, to study records of recent crashes and decide on means of reducing accidents. The conference will be held in February.

The long range program will get under way in the 1938 fiscal year beginning July 1, 1937. The budget submitted by President Roosevelt provides $2,150,780 for the first year of a three-year program to modernize existing bureau of commerce airways aids and to establish additional aids.

Use Radio Beam

Federal officials already have given considerable attention to improvement of navigational equipment. Virtually all major airlines depend to a great extent in their navigation on the 22,000 miles of radio beam reported by the bureau of aeronautics.

Few accidents have been traced to improper operation of the beam, but air commerce officials admit the system has a number of faults, most of which are being corrected.

ROOSEVELT ASKS LIMIT OF HOURS

President Understands Needs Of Labor-Says Green After Conference

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (AP)—The Roosevelt administration moved further today toward increasing regulation of industry and limitation of working hours to 40 a week.

That was the interpretation placed upon President Roosevelt's complaint to congress that some industries and some employers had increased unreasonably the workweek since NRA was invalidated.

President William Green of the American Federation of Labor after a visit at the White House reported Mr. Roosevelt "in pretty thorough understanding" with labor's desires for labor legislation.

The President, in a letter to speaker of the house, William B. Bankhead, asked for a $790,000, 000 relief appropriation for the remainder of this fiscal year and criticized long hours but did not propose any maximum work week.

The general objective of NRA was a 40-hour week but the President has consistently opposed congressional effort to enact a 30-hour work-week bill. The American Federation of Labor which endorsed the President's re-election candidacy supports a flexible 30-hour program.

The administration, however, is committed to a shorter work-week of about 40 hours, with certain exceptions, as were extended under NRA. Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins pledged the 40-hour week to labor last November in an address before the Tampa convention of the American Federation of Labor.

Clark Appoints Financial Head

George Wedgewood Named To Succeed Diefendorf As Commissioner

BOISE, Jan. 13 (AP)—Governor Barzilla W. Clark today announced appointment of George Wedgewood, S. Maries, as commissioner of finance, replacing Ben Diefendorf.

Wedgewood, formerly a resident of Gooding, has for the past two years been liquidating assets for the Lumbermen's Bank and Trust Co. of St. Maries, prior to which he was director of the blue sky bureau.

Diefendorf served as commissioner six years, throughout the Ross administration. Wedgewood's appointment to the finance post was somewhat of a surprise since Clark had mentioned him as a possibility for commissioner of public works.

The governor also announced reappointment of Adjutant-General M. G. McCannell, who has served in that capacity for 12 years, under three former governors.

Following appointment of Thornton, a farmer, as chairman of the committee on medicine, surgery and pharmacy, Cavanaugh started calling him "Doc."

Thornton, tipping off a number of members in advance, got approval of the house to a resolution transferring his chairmanship to Cavanaugh, whom he termed "much better suited to the job." Cavanaugh is a contractor.

OFFICIALS LOOK FOR DRUG ADDICT

Seek Man Who Was Known To Frequent Mattson Vicinity

When he was snatched from the living room of his father's home.

The autopsy gave one vitally significant clue. Bits of flesh and a few strands of hair were found beneath Charles' fingernails, along with a peculiar bluish clay.

Kidnaper Scratched

This indicated the kidnapers were Charles as he had been scratched with a knife. The criminal carries possible tell-tale scars on his hands, arms or face.

Officials were puzzled by the fine film of sandy loam found on parts of the mutilated body. This, with other evidence indicated that possibly Charles was first buried in a shallow grave, later exhumed, and dumped in the snow just off a lonely country road near Everett, Wash.

This theory was supported by indication that the body started to decompose, that this process was halted, and had started again just before the corpse was discovered. It was explained that if first buried in the ground, the body would begin to decay; that, when exhumed and exposed to freezing air decomposition would stop temporarily.

Four Inch Wound

The wound in Charles' back was made with a keen blade and pierced the flesh about four inches. Charles had been dead from four to six days when found.

From laboratory technique the following reconstruction was made of the crime:

The abductor sped to some remote hideaway with Charles. This place was on the banks of, or near, a river or lake.

While the kidnaper negotiated with desperate Dr. William Whitlock Mattson, Charles was bound about the wrists, ankles, and part of the time about his neck with a medium-sized rope, either a clothes line or something similar.

Thus bound, Charles was kept in an earthen cellar, or in a floorless shack.

When unbound the youngster was compelled to submit to the ravages of a pervert.

Attempted Escape

Little more than a week after his capture Charles apparently attempted to flee. He had been fed less than three or four hours before. He was suffering from badly inflamed lungs.

His abductor chased and caught the squirming child. The youngster kicked and scratched the kidnaper.

Enraged, and as they groveled on the earth, the fiend plunged a knife into Charles' back.

The blow did not kill. It missed heart and lungs.

Then his abductor grasped a crude weapon—either a carpenter's hammer, or a hatchet with a square head—and smashed in the rear of the little captive's head.

Killed Fled

Frightened by his own brutality, the killer fled and stayed away long enough to allow blood from the wounds to coagulate.

The slayer returned and apparently buried Charles beneath sandy loam. Meanwhile he continued to try to ransom his hostage, now dead.

Despairing of collecting the $28,000, the snatch-slayer for some warped reason returned to the grave, dug up the mutilated body and carried it to the spot where it was found.

He was treated for a compound fracture of the right leg, which required major surgery and a possible fracture of the left knee cap. An examination also disclosed serious head injuries, it was said.

COUGHLIN TALKS AT HEALTH MEET

Twin Falls Doctor Outlines Varied Forms and Urges Early Treatment

Dr. John L. Coughlin of Twin Falls discussed syphilis at the third regular monthly meeting of the Twin Falls Health and Welfare council held last evening at the Chamber of Commerce rooms.

W. B. Smith, superintendent of schools, presided.

During his talk Dr. Coughlin dealt with methods of prevention of the disease carried on during the World War. He told of the various forms of the disease and advocated early treatment. He said that during the various stages of the disease it could be very easily be mistaken for some other ailment and that it has none of the so called "typical evidences" but rather takes various forms.

Tells of Facilities

Dr. J. W. Hawkins, director of the county health unit, told of facilities for both diagnostic procedures and treatment available at the unit. He stated the unit would furnish the necessary material for the treatment of the disease free of charge if the patient is unable to pay for it. Treatment can be made either at the health unit or through the family physician with the donated material, he said. Dr. Hawkins also urged that every person submit to a blood test.

Free clinics for immunization treatments of various diseases, skin tests and blood tests are held at the unit office in the nurse's home of the county general hospital each Saturday from 9 to 11 a. m., the doctor announced.

It was reported, but without confirmation, that authorities intended to continue to arrest, try and execute dealers in the drug, disregarding the addicts.

Passenger Tells Story Of Newest Air Disaster

Editor's note: The following account of the Western Air Express plane crash was given to the United Press by Arthur S. Robinson of Rochester, N. Y., after he struggled to Olive View sanitarium to summon aid.

By ARTHUR S. ROBINSON (Copyright, 1937, United Press) LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13 (UP)—It happened in a flash.

We were flying in fog so thick we couldn't see and then there was a crash and it sudden silence.

I guess I was the only one who wasn't hurt much.

Martin Johnson and his wife were unconscious. They were propped up in their seats and made no move.

I thought that the co-pilot, at-wardness and I were the only one who were able to move at all. I noticed the Johnsons especially because all along the flight it had been the Johnsons in whom people were interested. Everyone had wanted to see them because they had read their travel articles, or had seen their jungle pictures.

I worked my way from the Johnsons to the pilot's cockpit.

The passengers seemingly were jammed forward by the impact. I found somebody—one of the men—who was lying across the stewardess' legs. She moaned that she was hurt. There was no movement from the Johnsons.

Other passengers were moaning. Otherwise the cabin was quiet and orderly—it just seemed as if somebody had pushed all the seats up forward a little bit. The plane was intact although one motor tore off and rolled down a hill.

In the cockpit I found Co-Pilot Owens working at the radio. He seemed half out of his head.

Owens' face was horribly mashed. He couldn't speak. All he could do was to make motions with his hands. I offered to broadcast a radio call for help, but he motioned that the radio was broken.

Then the co-pilot came into the rear part of the cabin and together we smashed our way through a window.

Some of the passengers were delirious, and we did what we could to make them comfortable. Then I started out.

On a muddy trail I saw a sign telling that Olive View sanitarium was 4 1/2 miles away, and started toward it, stumbling through the mud. I was pretty tired when I finally got here.

I live in Rochester, N. Y., and was flying out to see my mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Robinson of Inglewood.

They were to meet me at the airport.

Sportsmen Lash Killing Of Deer Over One-Limit

Unanimous disapproval of the practice of allowing a few "lucky" Idaho hunters to shoot several deer each year, when the license calls for only one deer each, had been voiced today by the Southern Idaho Fish and Game association.

Larry Basset, in another report, related 50 ring neck pheasants were released during 1936 in this section, and 60 around Kimberly.

In the form of a resolution voted at the annual meeting last night at the Rogerson hotel, the members approved special hunts held from time to time in sections of Idaho but went on record as saying "that hunters be allowed one deer only in season and, that if that deer is taken in special hunts, the hunter cannot kill another deer in Idaho during the same year."

"It is against all reason that some hunters should shoot several deer when their license calls only for one each year," Earl O. Haven, who introduced the resolution commented. "It is time something was done about this condition as it exists in the state today."

At the meeting, which over 50 persons attended, the association member re-elected I. A. Appell, Larry Basset and Bob Whitzel to the board of directors for three-year terms. A reorganized directors' meeting is planned next Tuesday night at the city hall.

Members of the board, whose terms did not expire this year, include N. H. White, president; S. Claud Stewart, secretary; W. R. Priebe, Harry Severin, Lee Logan and Pat Daly.

HOUSE APPROVES COMMITTEE LIST

Work Will Be Started On 3,500 New Bills Introduced In Session

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (UP)—A House Democratic caucus approved today a list of new party committee assignments, thus permitting committees to start work on 3,500 new bills introduced already in this session.

The caucus decided not to limit down the Republican proportion on committees despite the decrease in minority house strength as a result of the November election.

Vacancies in Democratic committee ranks due to resignations, deaths, election and primary defections were filled all along the line.

New Democrats named to the vital appropriations committee included Charles H. Leavy, Washington.

Democrats, Progressives and Farmer-Laborites, elected to new committees, include: James F. O'Connor, Mont.; Nan W. Honeyman, Ore.; John R. Murdock, Ariz.; Harry R. Sheppard, Calif.; Interstate and foreign commerce: Jerry J. O'Connell, Mont.; Irrigation and reclamation: John R. Murdock, Ariz.; James F. O'Connor, Mont.; Nan W. Honeyman, Ore.; Judiciary: Abe Murdock, Utah; John T. Tolson, Calif.; Public lands: John R. Murdock, Ariz.; James F. O'Connor, Mont.

Reject Salmon Ban

"By an overwhelming vote, a resolution passed previously by the board of directors asking that the spearfishing and shagging of salmon be prohibited in Idaho, was rejected by the members. The resolution was advocated by Roy Painter.

A resolution, introduced by W. R. Priebe, calling for a three-man board to regulate the opening and closing of game seasons in Idaho, was also passed by the members. It calls for the secretary of state, the attorney general and the state game warden to serve on the board and for five members of the sportsmen's associations in Idaho to serve as an advisory committee.

"At the present time the whole setup is regulated by the legislature which meets every two years," Mr. Priebe said. "This new setup would permit the sportsmen an even break."

Fishing Resolution

A resolution, calling for all waters being closed to fishing from Oct. 31 to May 30 in Idaho, "with the exception of the Snake river as far up as Ashton and the lower part of the Salmon river," was passed by the group.

Another resolution, which was approved, "moved the organization go on record as opposed to over-grazing of the national forests in Idaho." The motion was introduced by R. F. Mallon.

Elmer C. Ross, forest ranger, spoke briefly during the meeting and told of conditions in the national forests relative to game and livestock.

Grover Davis, Filer, game warden of the district, told of efforts being carried out to exterminate the magpie. Other reports were given by I. A. Appell, treasurer, and Harry Severin. Judge Stewart told of legislative activity during the year and that planned for the present session.

CANAL MEETING PRAISES CLARK

chased by the Idaho Power company, backing him.

Securing permission from the chair and the stockholders, Mr. Hale, a non-member of the canal company, told of his findings during a recent trip to the Modesto farming district in California where public ownership of power is practiced.

Hale referred to an estimate that Twin Falls county's power bill is approximately $1,000,000 a year and quoted Governor Clark as authority for the statement that "80 per cent of the power company's revenue is profit."

Seaver took exception to this statement and declared "common sense" will show that it is untrue.

Tells of Idaho Falls

At this point Mr. Nicholson told of his investigations of the power situation for the past 20 years in Idaho and other states. He said municipal ownership in Idaho Falls has proved highly satisfactory.

Departing from the usual practice yesterday of having the chairman of the meeting appoint members of the resolutions committee, members were elected from the floor. They will serve one year and include: E. N. Pettygrove of Hansen; Ols Sampson of Hansen; Fred Reichert of Filer; George R. Johnson of Filer; George C. Leth of Buhl; C. M. Scott of Buhl; and E. U. McIntyre of Kimberly.

Sharp Wins Easily

In the board election held during the day, N. V. Sharp of Filer, a veteran of the directors' body for 13 years, piled up a huge vote over P. J. Kalbfleisch, of Filer, in the only contested election. Re-elected were three other members of the board—Peter Link of Hansen, J. P. Corpes of Twin Falls and W. E. Hatfield of Buhl—and a new member, E. W. Kinyon of Castleford, who was not a candidate for re-election.

Taxidermy Hobby Handy Asset For Instructor Here

It's a hobby with M. R. Throckmorton—but it keeps him busy.

The junior high school instructor does taxidermy on the side as an avocation, and the hobby comes in handy for Miss Fannie Arney in junior high nature study classes. Mr. Throckmorton mounts all the birds turned in by students, and the specimens are then used by Miss Arney in the instruction of future classes.

Taxidermy offers the instructor plenty of entertainment in his spare moments, he says. Last fall he experimented with the head of a Canadian goose by mounting it much as larger game heads are arranged.

It makes a very attractive ornament, in his opinion, and it's hanging in his room right now over his wife's objections.

A TECHNICALITY ONLY

Request by Ada County Prosecutor Willis C. Moffatt that criminal action be dropped against Ben Diefendorf, commissioner of finance, is eminently sound and is the finale that most fair-minded observers had predicted.

Diefendorf admittedly had infringed a technicality of the law in personally dealing in securities held by his department. It was a simple business deal that Diefendorf made without looking into the ramifications of the statute. The state received the same full value for the securities that it would have gotten from a private purchaser. The incident will serve as a reminder that the law's technicalities should be watched more closely.

A biologist says that men are about to exterminate themselves. Oh, come, come—that New Year's morning feeling isn't permanent.

TOO MUCH ENTHUSIASM

Perhaps another congressman is beginning to realize that neophyte Solons, like children, should be seen and not heard.

Because his speeches during the late campaign were interpreted as giving aid and comfort to the opposition, Senator Rush Holt of West Virginia earned the ill-feeling of many of his colleagues and was deprived of the patronage that would have been his had he not been obstreperous.

And because his lone objection delayed passage on a resolution which might have halted shipment of a cargo of war materials to Spain, Representative John Toussaint Bernard, new Farmer-laborite congressman from Duluth, Minn., may be the target of his colleagues' resentment.

The enthusiasm of freshmen congressmen is commendable, but it is apt to get them into difficulties.

FOR FUTURE NEWSPAPERMEN

You hear it said often that the hard-boiled city editor doesn't give a hang for a cub reporter who says "I'm a graduate of a school of journalism."

But that needn't discourage the south Idaho high school youngsters who are taking what journalism is available in high schools and who plan on going ahead with it in college.

Many city editors, it's true, don't like to have a young squirt wander in and inform them that a journalist hereby tenders his services. Most newspapermen, in fact, detest the word "journalist." But if the hopeful aspirant goes after the job on his ability, and not on the fact that he graduated from a school of journalism, he will probably land it.

And that's where the journalism school helps. The young graduate is equipped to do a lot of things that ordinarily take long experience. He'll be awkward about it but in most cases he will know how to go capably about a "leg job" or desk work. A couple of weeks should coordinate his school knowledge with actualities.

No, if you're an aspiring young newspaper man or woman, go to the best university school of journalism you can reach, keep your mouth shut about it after you've finished, and apply the things you've learned without flaunting that B. S. degree in an inate editor's face.

"The close-up is a great boon to film actors." And just the opposite to gambling joints!

TEST FOR DEMOCRACY

It isn't always easy to recognize a historic process when you are in the middle of it. For that reason we have been slow to see the tremendous importance of our current struggle to regain prosperity, and iron out the bumps in our economic life.

President Roosevelt touched on this point in his message to congress. The economic breakdown, he remarked, had led many Americans to doubt "the successful adaptation of our historic traditions to the complex modern world." This, he added, was in itself a challenge to our form of government.

All our troubles of the last six or seven years simply add up to a great, crucial test of democracy and freedom.

In some countries overseas, where democracy was of recent and uncertain growth, that test came out disastrously. In this era of dictatorships there has been a return to an outward idea of human society—the idea that the common man exists for the state, rather than that the state exists for the common man.

Under this idea the state is not required to remove troubles from the common man's path; the common man is required to accept those troubles—to take it and like it, as they say—for the sake of the state.

It was up to the United States to prove that sort of thing was unnecessary and a mistake.

To date that job has been well done. This may have been due to the wisdom of the government, or it may have been due to natural forces operating independently of the government.

For the moment it makes little difference. The point is that democracy has been justified. The world has been shown that it is not necessary to sacrifice liberty for security.

Now we may get a car with its engine at the rear, even though many drivers already are troubled with hunches from the back seat.

POT SHOTS

WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row

IT SEEMS TO US YOU TOOK A HARD WAY!

Pot Shots: He was going to pop the question that night. I could feel it coming, and it hurt my kind heart to turn him down cold. So brother Willie, age 10, volunteered to do his bit with a bean shooter. For 50 cents pay, I should add.

So when this marriage-bent boy-friend started in, the scene was this: "Darling," he said, "Your eyes are like stars. There's a question I want to ask you. I want to say—OUCH!"

Willie's first bean hit the mark. He started again, rubbing the spot tenderly. "Sweetheart, will you be my—WOW!"

The second shot from Willie's bean shooter hit the mark. The boy friend gave it up in disgust. I didn't have to say no; he hasn't come back; Willie got his 50 cents; and feminine readers of Pot Shots now have a new way out of a difficult situation.

COMFORT

The sit-down strike is spreading fast. And labor's getting wise at last.

Why stand out in the snow and sleet when you can use employers' heat?

Now I, if I should be a striker, I'd not be just an average piker: I'd work in a feather-bed plant, you see.

And demand a lie-down strike for me!

WE WONDERED ABOUT IT! Pot Shooter: Say, just how does this fellow "Gadzooks" know so much about Burley married ladies appropriating their husbands' long underwear during the zero weather?

Call out Detective No. 1, Mr. Pot Shots. There's skulduggery afoot.

LEATHER-LUNGED CITIZEN GETS CHALLENGE! Citizen Pot Shots: I understand your column is not a matter of sports but once in a while a citizen of my high standing in the community ought to be able to write about sports for all the joes and Josephines which you claim reads Pot Shots.

Now concerning this game between Jerome and Twin Falls, I do not have anything to say concerning the ability of those Jerome basketball citizens, which spoke for themselves. But I do not like that Jerome citizen which sat behind me and kept remarking in a loud voice "Pour it on!"

Other Jerome citizens also made unkind remarks, but that party which poured it on all night left me deaf for three hours in one ear. I will not offer to bluff him on the beeper as I understand some citizens from the north side are very tough but I will offer to duel him with rubber bands and spitballs at 10 paces. This will show him he cannot flout the honor of Twin Falls.

If this citizen will send his second to me, we will arrange this battle.

VERY OCCUPATIONAL AND VERY HAZARDOUS! Pot Shots: With all this Social Security stuff going around, you hear a lot about occupational hazards. Now my idea on that may be vague, but here's what I consider an occupational hazard: the presidency of Mexico or any South American country where taking a shot at the leader is a favorite outdoor amusement.

Is that an occupational hazard or ain't it?

VOCABULARIES ARE MORE LURID THESE DAYS! Pot Shots: I am a farmer quite a spell past 60 years old, and this is the first time I ever sat down to write anything to your column. But I got to thinking about this matter one day after jumping out from under Twin Falls traffic at the corner by I. D. Penney, Anderson and Hood places.

The automobile has done a lot to make people's vocabulary bigger. I do not think that word is spelled right. Anyway, 30 years ago when horses and buggies was on the streets people did not know half so many words as now. You should hear what people say now and didn't used to say. I mean for instance when a car just mashes taking off their coat tails. You should hear the new words an old fellow like me is developing.

FAMOUS LAST LINE "Cold? Why, say, back in the winter of '03—"

THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

The HOLIDAY MYSTERY

By IDA R. GLEASON © 1936, NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

The safety of the Christmas party at "Spander Men," the fashionable hacienda in New Mexico, has a tragic ending when PEARL, HAN, BOB, JOSEPH, and three brothers, is found dead with an ancient knife in his throat.

Each of the de Forest brothers has the first name "Pearl." PEARL JOHN is the youngest, PEARL PIERRE next. Others at the house were: TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WELSH, her young companion; RAMON VAQUER, and ANGELIQUE ARROYA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR SHAW, archeologist; and BOB GREATHAM, the salesman stopping at the hacienda while his car is being repaired.

The body of Pearl Juan, placed in the house chapel, had disappeared later. Tante Josephine learns that it has been buried. Pearl Pierre announces that officers have been sent for. Next morning Pearl Pierre falls to appear. He is found, lifeless, below a rock. TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WELSH, her young companion; RAMON VAQUER, and ANGELIQUE ARROYA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR SHAW, archeologist; and BOB GREATHAM, the salesman stopping at the hacienda while his car is being repaired.

THE BODY OF PEARL Juan, placed in the house chapel, had disappeared later. Tante Josephine learns that it has been buried. Pearl Pierre announces that officers have been sent for. Next morning Pearl Pierre falls to appear. He is found, lifeless, below a rock. TANTE JOSEPHINE, old and an invalid; BETTY WELSH, her young companion; RAMON VAQUER, and ANGELIQUE ARROYA, guests at the party; PROFESSOR SHAW, archeologist; and BOB GREATHAM, the salesman stopping at the hacienda while his car is being repaired.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XVIII STUNNED by the news of Tante Josephine's death, and fully aroused now to the tragedy about them, the household at Thunder Mesa assembled. Outside the blizzard swept across the windy space, holding dead and alive, alike, prisoners in its icy clutch.

Had Tante Josephine's rage burned out her life or was there some other reason for her death? This thought was foremost in the minds of all.

About 10 o'clock the two men who had started down the canyon the day before came staggering back to the hacienda, half-frozen and saying that the road was impassable. They had been unable to get through. All night they had fought the storm and were glad to have escaped with their lives.

"The Indian," Pearl John remarked, "did not bring any report on the road."

"The Indian was not at his post at the top of the trail," the men told him. "He does not know."

This proved to be the case, when an investigation was made. Broken Shield had vanished as completely as had his tribal ancestors.

AFTER lunch Professor Shaw announced that he was going to do some studying, and, since his host did not offer any objection, he went to his room and closed the door. Methodically he unlocked a desk and took out a small black notebook. This he put into his pocket, along with a tape measure rolled into a round metal holder. After waiting a moment he walked to the door.

The corridor outside was empty, and a low hum of conversation came from the living room. The professor stepped out into the corridor and shut the door soundlessly behind him. Then he made his way down the hall until he was opposite the door with the lion's head knocker.

Looking carefully about, he took a key from his pocket and slipped it into the lock. In a minute the door opened and he was standing at the top of a long flight of adobe steps. He closed the door carefully and, turning on a small pocket flashlight, went slowly down into the darkness below.

At last he stood in what appeared to be an ordinary storage room. A great many boxes and barrels were arranged in neat piles around three sides, leaving one wall clear.

The professor eyed this vacant space with some interest, but there seemed to be nothing unusual about it. He ran his hand over the surface and got a painful splinter in one finger for his curiosity.

HE had traced the entire structure so that he could reconstruct it in his notebook, much as it must have stood out against the skyline atop the mesa. An imposing and well-built communal house it must have been, he had decided, for the adobe was of fine quality, evidently the work of master builders.

But Professor Shaw did not have time to stand mooning over bygone days. The cellar had further significance for him and the hours were all too short in which to prove this thing of which he had been so sure. Once more he went over as much of the room as he could without moving anything, examining every inch of the walls and floor. The search was unrewarded.

He paused before that blank space and looked at it thoughtfully. Was there any reason why three sides of the room should be filled and nothing placed against that particular wall? Throwing the yellow beam of his light against its edge, he peered at it wall closely, but so far as he could see, the parts fitted together so closely it was apparent that it had never been moved. Carefully he tapped the wall, listening intently for evidence of a hollow beyond. Just as he was about to give up he detected a difference in the sound, and eagerly he compared its location with the notes in his book. He was right then, after all. There was a hollow space behind that wall—a space he could almost outline, now that he knew it was there.

ALL the pueblos had their kivas or places for religious ceremonies below the level of the living quarters. Fortunately, the present-day Pueblo Indians still cling to their ancient customs of building so that it was not difficult to reconstruct the life of their ancestors.

The professor had found evidence that they still made concessions to the old religion, in case the white man's God failed them—as in time of drought, for instance.

It was almost certain, therefore, that the old kiva was beneath the spot where he now stood, and more than probable that the de Forest family knew about this, too. He was nearing the end of his quest. Perhaps within his hands would lie the solution of all the strange happenings on the mesa.

Just how he would use this knowledge, if he did get it, the professor had not decided. Of one thing he was certain. He would make young de Forest swallow every one of the insinuations he had cast at him. Already he could picture the other man's feelings when he, the despised professor of archeology, took things into his own hands and became the one to dictate.

So engrossed was he in this investigation that he did not hear a slight movement behind him, nor was he conscious that other eyes than his were watching his toepine, the metal-tipped end of which slithered across the floor with a faint rasping sound.

At last, satisfied by the results, the professor made rapid calculations in his notebook, then flipped the electric torch on the floor, so that its beam of light fell directly on the space in the wall where he had been working. He was pressing against the wall with his shoulder when someone leaped upon him from behind. A great fist struck his head, blotting out consciousness. The last thing the professor remembered was the tightening of a tape line around his bare throat.

HISTORY of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO—

Jan. 13, 1922

Demanding economy in a very definite way, passing unanimously a resolution favoring the immediate signing of the contract between the reclamation service and the Idaho Power company, which would mean the pushing of the American Falls project and sending a vigorous protest on freight rate situation to the Interstate commerce commission, the congressional delegation, the Twin Falls Canal company meeting adjourned yesterday afternoon to await count of ballots which was announced between 8 and 9 o'clock last night.

There are two changes on the board. J. H. Barker, Buhl, voluntarily resigned and his place was taken by William Cunningham, who was high man. Carl J. Miller beat Claud Brown of Castletown.

27 YEARS AGO—

Jan. 13, 1910

Agent D. E. Sullivan received word the first of the week from the Western Union Telegraph company that an operator and a complete outfit would be immediately shipped into Twin Falls and as soon as received the company would open an up-town office. The office will be located in the Perrine hotel and will be open during the business hours to accommodate the public who are now obliged to walk a mile to send any telegrams.

You May Not Know That—

By NAOMI H. MARTIN

An interesting petroglyph, an example of the many prehistoric picture writings to be found in Idaho, can be seen in a cave on the east bluff of Snake river, between Hagerman and the mouth of the Malad river, on what is known as the old John Bell ranch. It is said to be the story of an ancient Arapaho Indian battle.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

Talking to a little boy the other day, I noticed that he was using "Wo" instead of "I." He would say, "We went to movie." "We got new shoes." "We have a new dog."

It was so marked that I became curious. It was something to get away from the eternal "I," which is always admirable. But for a child of nine never to speak of his own affairs in the first, singular, or tell about his own acts and thoughts was something else.

So I spoke to his aunt about it. She gave me a long look and pressed her lips tight.

"Well," she said, "I don't want to criticize Mabel, but she drives me crazy with the way she lumps that family. She treats the three boys as though they were a bunch of asparagus."

"Both mother and I try sometimes to get one of the boys away at a time, to stay for dinner, but when we ask Jim or Harry without the others, she gets offended. And once when I baked a cake for Ted, because he loves spice cake, she told the boys I had baked it all of them."

"I see her point," I interrupted. "It makes for brotherhood, too rare these days."

No Chance to Be Individuals "I could tell you from now till dark, about the way Mabel treats the children together. It's a wonder she doesn't insist on them being in the same room at school. She does make them have the same friends outside, however. Of course, I believe in the group idea, as well as anybody, but it has got so now that not one of those lads has a chance to be himself."

"I don't know why she does it. If they were my youngsters, I'd take them, one by one to see things. For instance, Harry is crazy about airplanes, and Ted about birds and bees and things like that. But no she wouldn't pick up one and take him off by himself to see something he is interested in. They can't even have hobbies to themselves. She's got all bills to themselves, model planes now, three building model planes now, instead of just letting 'Hal get a little kick to himself."

"And she brags about them, never having spent a night or a day away from each other. Sometime they'll get wild and branch out for themselves. And they'll keep their affairs a dark secret from her too, because she will be fussing about them not confiding in her. I suppose she will want them to marry triplets on the same day."

Husband Hounded in, Too "Another thing, she and Joe haven't spent a second apart since they were married. He has to call her every day at eleven, and if he's too busy, she calls him, or drives down to the office. Really, mother and I never see him any more. Once in a while you like to talk to your father, or son, by himself. But we hardly ever see him or the boys alone. It is a closed corporation with a vengeance. Why, the other day Ted and Hal were invited to a party, and Mabel phoned that if there was room that Jim would like to go along. Jim felt dreadful, and said he wouldn't go a step."

I remarked that it was a very unusual case, but I had known mothers who used the same tactics on a lesser scale. While I usually accent the ideas of brotherhood, still it can be carried to an extreme. Children need individual lives, and the exhilaration of separate accomplishment. They need their own friends in great measure. Even bees can select their own flowers and go and come at will.

OFFICIALS STUDY NEW SHIP PLANS

Navy Department Heads Look At Sketches of British Dreadnaught

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (UP)—Navy department officials today studied plans for the two new superdreadnaughts to be built by Great Britain before approving final plans for the two new U. S. battleships.

Navy officials are keenly interested in the advanced plans of other nations in battleship construction, since the three major naval powers—the United States, Great Britain and Japan—have built no warship of this category since the Washington conference in 1921.

The new battleships are likely to appear very much like the last ships of this category built in the early 1920's. They probably will be somewhat more streamlined, perhaps a little more squat. Improvements are mostly internal. One of the major improvements will be in their speed. All battleships under construction today are equipped for a top speed of about 35 knots an hour, and a cruising speed of close to 30 knots. This was approximately the top speeds of fleet destroyers and light cruisers at the time of the holiday in battleship construction.

Official quarters in Washington are denying that the New Deal is offering to sell Maine and Vermont to Canada.—Pitt (Mich.) Journal.

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the Nation's Capital By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator. (Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

SPENDING

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10—The news behind President Roosevelt's budget is not how far off balance it is, or how much he will be able to cut relief. Only vague guesses can be made on these points now.

The one sure thing is that the strongly expanded federal government activities he has set up in the past four years generally are to be continued, and even further expanded in many lines. It is not an economy budget. It is a strong central government budget. The appropriations sought for the regular government departments represent further small increases over this year and very substantial boosts above last year.

Its accurate tone may be found in a comparison of proposed expenditures. This year, the government is spending about $7,000,000,000 (the budget calls it $8,500,000,000, but includes about $600,000,000 for the bonus. Estimates for next year are $6,100,000,000 plus no more than $1,500,000,000 (he hopes) for relief, or a total of $7,600,000,000. Net savings would be $300,000,000, which is less than what he expects to save on relief alone.

In other words, Mr. Roosevelt is not balancing the budget. He is budgeting the balance. He is saving a little on relief, but not arbitrarily cutting it, and, outside of relief, he seems to be establishing a permanent seven billion dollar federal government.

Note—White House friends capable of explaining Mr. Roosevelt's theories say he is not really deeply interested in economy or a strictly balanced budget, but likes the idea of continued strong taxation to finance a big central government of approximately present proportions on a more or less permanent basis. He can safely pursue this purpose because the increased taxes are rolling money into the treasury faster than Mr. Morgenthau can count it.

EXPANSION

The growth of government contemplated by the new budget may be measured by funds allowed the various departments.

The largest increase is for national defense. Last year, the budget gave $764,000,000 for the army and navy; this year $888,000,000; next year $981,000,000. The net increase is $217,000,000, or roughly, one-third more than last year.

The department of agriculture is up about 65 per cent in the same three-year period; interior 20 per cent; commerce 60 per cent; justice, labor and state about 5 per cent; treasury 12 per cent.

The increases represent all phases of varied government work: new bureaus, more money for old bureaus, transfer of some emergency bureaus to the regular departments, increased salaries, etc.

EXPERIENCE

Three years ago, Mr. Roosevelt submitted a budget saying, "We should plan to have a definitely balanced budget for the third year of recovery." That would have been this year.

Two years ago, Mr. Roosevelt offered a budget "which balanced except for expenditures to give work to the unemployed." The deficit, which resulted was $4,763,841,642.48.

A year ago, Mr. Roosevelt said, "Without the item of relief the budget is in balance." The deficit is now being estimated at $2,652,653,774.

This year, Mr. Roosevelt says he will have a surplus of $1,135,000,000 without relief or debt retirement. If history repeats, the deficit should be about a million.

Washington newsmen suffered acutely from budget befuddlement. At one place in his message, Mr. Roosevelt said flatly the budget was balanced; later on, he admitted it was unbalanced; and if you added up his figures, the indicated deficit was around $400,000,000. No one knew what to call it. No flat statement could be made unless preceded with an "if."

Apparently, this is the main purpose of budgets these days, not only in the United States but in foreign nations. The era of serious budget making seems to have passed. Times are too uncertain to permit accurate total estimates of expenditures or income so far in advance and few authorities take them very seriously.

Evidence of the hazard lies in the trouble which Mr. Roosevelt has had with his budget estimates of the last few years. He was fairly good on receipts, overestimating about $300,000,000 for 1936 and underestimating $200,000,000 for 1937. But his original 1936 expenditure estimates was $1,200,000,000 too low and $1,800,000,000 off for 1937. Congress is always passing bonuses or something.

BOOM-VIEW

The treasury seems to differ with the federal reserve board about boom expectations. Mr. Morgenthau's estimates do not believe there is going to be any. Their estimates on business for the year beginning next July 1 could be called extremely "conservative" by comparison and they claim to know more about it than anyone.

Their budget estimate indicated they expect only about 11 per cent more activity in the stock market in the coming fiscal year. They say they anticipate about 9 per cent increase in issues of securities, bond transfers and deeds of conveyance.

Their gasoline tax estimate is up only 4.7 per cent; autos 4.1 per cent, telephones, telegraph and radio 6 per cent.

Their general estimates average out to about a 5 per cent increase in business over this fiscal year, which will certainly surprise many.

NO "JOURNALISTS" (Caldwell News-Tribune) "New York Journalist Here." says a headline in The News-Tribune, speaking of Nancy Randall, New York Daily News reporter, now Mrs. J. Addison Robb, nee Inez Callaway.

Our only hope is that she didn't see it. Calling a newspaper man or woman a "journalist" is just about the same as calling a politician a pirate and certainly much less apt. Funny about newspaper folks. They are almost anything except "journalists." Cynical but human; skeptical but inquiring; proud of their vocation but common as an old shoe; reporters are not "journalists." Not while they draw breath to resent it.

VINES BLASTING PROVES USELESS

English Star Upsets Dope And Experts Expect Him To Continue

By HARRY GRAYSON (NEA Service)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Fred Perry and Ellsworth Vines are just starting, but have gone far enough to convince the professionals that the Englishman is a better tennis player than they suspected.

Vines has been handicapped by a touch of gripe and nervous indigestion, which probably had something to do with Perry obtaining the jump on him. But trained observers have an idea that the dynamic Briton will continue to get the ball back when the Pasadena poplar fully recuperates.

Same Shots

Ernest Ellsworth is making the same kind of shots against Flying Fred that blasted the aged Bill Tilden, Les Stouffer, and others from the court. The difference is that Perry keeps the ball in play.

Vines has made innumerable forehand shots into Perry's backhand corner that would have beaten Tilden, Stouffer, and others, only to have the four-time Davis cup hero flick the ball right back.

Instead of Vines' shots to Perry's forehand corner pulling Perry out of position, the British luminary returns pull the southern Californian out of his proper place.

To the surprise of many school-grad spectators, Vines' game, perhaps too formidable for any other player in the world, appears made to order for Perry.

The Englishman thrives on Vines' speed and Perry gets most of his own return speed off the professional titleholder's shots.

Perry's Game Pattern

Perry's is the top tennis game of the future. It is the soundest, and is executed with a minimum of wasted energy. It should be the pattern for every youngster. Its principal strength lies in short cross-court angle shots which run rivals ragged. Henri Cochet excelled at this.

Perry's master at playing the rising ball in the face of Vines' machine-gun fire throws the American off balance. Oldsters will tell you that they never saw a player who followed the ball as well as the Wimbledon wonder. His remarkable eye and concentration account for his deadly running drive shot.

Flying Fred is the very antithesis of Ernest Ellsworth. Perry is cheerful of life at all times. Vines appears sluggish when not in the heat of battle.

Vines relies on consistent speed and tries to win on outright placements and service aces to the lines. When Ellsworth is not, rallies are short lived. Bang! Bang! Just like that.

Perry's shots are softer and much slower, but he gets the ball back more than Vines. Perry will make only half as many outright placements or services aces as Vines, but tennis is played as well as you are allowed to play it, and the Casey Briton keeps the ball going until the Pasadena beats himself.

Dream Book Given To Mac, But He Still Can't Pick Winners

By HENRY McLEMORE (United Press Staff)

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Jan. 16 (AP)—Two weeks ago a small package arrived for me, and noticing by the return address in the upper left hand corner that it was from George Loti, I immediately filled the bath tub and opened it under water.

To my surprise—for I had expected an infernal machine or a set of matching cobras, with hoods—the content was a paper back volume entitled "The lucky dream book," and a reading of its foreword revealed that its purpose was an interpretation of all the events brewed up by the subconscious mind during sleep.

Help Selection

In a letter which accompanied the book Loti, who, in case you have forgotten, is the international tennis star who plays with his shirt tail out, said he believed the book would help me in the selection of winners during the year 1937.

"Certainly it can't hurt you, pal," he wrote. "Nothing could. Everything else having failed you, why not try dreams? Who knows but what you might actually make a correct decision between now and next New Year's."

Loti undoubtedly sent the book as a joke—a none too sly dig at my inability to name a winner in advance. But I didn't see it as a joke. I saw the idea of dreaming winners in much the same light that a drowning man sees a straw. So I went to work on the book. In arrangement it is very much like a dictionary, with hundreds of dream subjects arranged alphabetically.

From "Q" Selection

Quicklime: Quill pens; quills, quilts.

And from the "R's": Race horses; rage; raft; rags; ragstone, and raisins.

There is a complete explanation of each subject. For example, the book says "for a young woman to dream of quill pens is a sign that she will either marry a clerk, bookkeeper, or a reporter on a weekly newspaper."

To dream of eating raisins "is a very fashionable omen; expect to thrive in everything you undertake, if they should taste bitter, then expect heavy losses in trade and the death of your sweethearts."

Thousands Listed

There must be five thousand subjects listed, ranging from angels, animals, ankle, ants, apoplexy, and air mattress in the "A" section, to yoke, yule log, zinx, zebra, zoological gardens, and zouave in the closing pages.

So far, however, the book has done me little good. True, I was able to tell a friend who confessed to a dream involving oat-tail soup that he soon would be called upon to attend the inquest of a relative who died in a sudden and mysterious manner, but there has been little benefit to me personally. I can't seem to dream about the right thing. For example, there is no interpretation in the book for a dream which whisks though my noggin at least once a week.

It's so regular that I damn near can set my watch by it. Every Thursday night (and I have set the time at about five in the morning) a gentleman in a red flak, and carrying a No. 6 golf iron in his hand, visits me in my sleep and whacks me over the head. I have seen him so often that I know these things about him:

Detailed Description

He weighs about 175 pounds, wears arch supporter shoes, uses an interlocking grip on the club, and has a very close stance. His swing is so good that he never once has missed my head.

Now what does that mean? I wish the book had an explanation, for I have suspicion that the true interpretation would give me this year's winner in the national open golf championship.

I have another pet dream, too, which, if I could find its meaning undoubtedly would tip me off on the winner of this year's Kentucky derby. In this dream I always find myself walking down a Minneapolis street beginning with "B," and wearing nothing but a pair of high button shoes, a raccoon coat and a mechanical device which enables me to wiggle my ears.

Derly Wimer

Nothing much happens in this dream save a lot of aimless walking until the grand finale when I invariably am run over and stunned by a pair of beer truck horses. I am sure that one of those horses is the 1937 derby winner.

Any of my readers who are dream authorities could do me a great service, either by sending in the proper explanation or getting the fellow who owns the horses to deliver his beer on a bicycle.

BRUINS LOSE TO JEROME, 31 TO 24

Local Squad Drops Tilt After Staging Brilliant Last Quarter Rally

A fast breaking, fast passing Jerome quintet came to town last night and rang up an impressive 24-31 victory over R. V. Jones' Bruins. But only after they cut short a rally that netted the Twin Falls team 10 points in the last four minutes of play.

The two teams battled on even terms during the first quarter, each counting five points, but Jerome forged ahead in the second period to hold an 8-12 lead at the half time.

Led by the shifty Ellis, the Norby coached crew wasted little time after the intermission in getting down to work and at the end of the third period were out in front 21 to 12. The Tigers didn't slow down in the first four minutes of the last period either, and their lead mounted to 29-14 with only four minutes of play left. Here the Bruins braced, and with Hartuff leading the way, went on a scoring spree of their own that ran the count up to 24-29. But Jerome ended the scoring with a basket in the last minute of play.

Hartuff Leads Bruins

Hartuff was the big gun in the Bruin attack, ringing up five field goals and a gift shot for a total of 11. Besides playing an outstanding floor game, Ellis led the Jerome engers with four baskets and a free shot. McJunkin, Jerome guard, counted six free throws and a basket for eight points, while Andrews and Tranner each scored five points for Twin Falls.

In a preliminary game between soph-fresh teams of the two schools, the Twin Falls Cubs scored a 35-18 win over Jerome. Jerome led at the quarter, 4-2, and the count was 9-7 at the half for Twin. Croyder led the Cub scoring with 10 points, while Johnson was high for Jerome with nine.

The lineups and summary:

Jerome: Ellis (8) and Claycomb (8), forwards; Arnold (1), center; Hollnagel (5) and McJunkin (8), guards. Substitutions: Burkholder (1) and Claypool.

Twin Falls: Andrews (5) and Alquist, forwards; Hartuff (11), center; Carpenter (2) and Turner (6), guards. Substitutions: Wiles, Niewoguer and Tranner (8).

Twin Falls Frosh-Soph: Driscoll (4) and Evans (3), forwards; Larsen (2), center; Stokes and Hampton (6), guards. Substitutions: Wells, Goodnight (4), Croyder (10), Brown and Davidson (6).

Jerome Frosh-Soph: Davis and Beddall (5), forwards; Beckley (2), center; Johnson (9) and Freeman (2), guards. Substitutions: Pratt and Eljon.

RALLY BY FILER DOWNS WENDELL

Wildcats Spurt To Overcome Trojan Lead; Girls Play To 31-31 Deadlock

FILER, Jan. 13 (Special)—Coach Jim O'Brien's Wildcats of Filer held a 23-18 verdict today over Wendell's Trojans, but it took a swift rally in the last half to turn the trick last night.

The Wildcats, trailing by 7-12 midway in the game, got underway in the third period to take the lead and hold it. Harshbarger, with nine points, led the winning attack. Barrett scored 12 as Wendell's big gun.

Girls' teams from the two schools played to a hectic 31-31 tie in the opener. Filer led at the half, 19-10, but Wendell swung into action in the last two periods to annex a 31-30 lead as the final whistle sounded. A foul shot, sunk by Nellie Rich after the whistle, deadlocked the game. Miss Rich and Williams of Wendell scored 18 each.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

THE UNITED STATES WILL SEE SIX MORE TOTAL SOLAR ECLIPSES DURING THE TWENTIETH CENTURY

THE FEMALE MARSH HAWK SOMETIMES "REFUELS" IN MID-AIR! THE MALE, FLYING ABOVE HER, DROPS FOOD, WHICH, BY TURNING ON HER BACK, SHE CATCHES IN HER TALONS.

IN AMERICA... ABOUT 17 TONS OF MEAT ARE CONSUMED EVERY MINUTE!

The next total eclipse of the sun, visible in the United States, will occur on July 9, 1945, and the path of total eclipse will cut across Idaho, Montana and North Dakota. This phenomenon will take place at, or near, sunrise, and will be of little scientific value.

POPE IN LINE TO HEAD COMMITTEE

Idaho Senator Has Prospects Of Powerful Reclamation Chairmanship

By RALPH W. OLMSTEAD
WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 (Special)—The chairman of the irrigation and reclamation committee of the senate, the Hon. Alva B. Adams, has gone to another committee. The senator next in line for chairman is Bankhead of Alabama and following him is Sen. James P. Pope of Idaho. Alabama has no reclamation whatever and if Bankhead accepts the chairmanship of the reclamation committee now it is almost certain that he will leave it as soon as he gets a chance at some other committee.

Prospects, therefore, are bright for the Idahoan to obtain the chairmanship of the committee within the next year or two. Furthermore, Pope is, at present, in the position of being vice chairman of the committee and, being a close personal friend of Bankhead's, will virtually have a chairman's responsibility and influence in reclamation affairs this year. Prospects for water development in Idaho are looking up. This is partly the basis for our previous prediction that "dirt will fly" on a supplemental water project for Boise valley within two years.

People accustomed to complain about the spoils system will be pleased to know that it has, for all practical purposes, been abolished. It really is difficult to have a "spoils system" with no spoils. Government jobs filled by deserving Democrats during the last administration will show little or no turnover this administration. Getting patronage appointments, at the present time, is almost as difficult as subscriptions for the Liberty league.

Newly installed as head of the Washington, D. C. Associated Press bureau is Mr. Milo Thompson, formerly of Boise, Idaho. Mr. Thompson, one-time editor of the Idaho Statesman, left it for greater journalistic endeavors with A. P. He now has the top assignment in the organization. Recognized as an author, Thompson has forged ahead steadily since leaving Boise. Another native son of whom the state can be proud.

Today we heard of another native Idahoan who is making good in a big way. He is Mr. Francis Findlay, who is supervisor of the school music department in the New England conservatory at Boston. Rapidly, we are told, he is becoming a famous conductor. In Massachusetts, he organized and conducted a chorus and orchestra composed of W. P. A. enrollees which won renown throughout New England. Lovers of music in the nation's capital are endeavoring to get Hans Kindler to invite Findlay as guest conductor at one of next spring's open-air concerts at the Lincoln Memorial.

Congressmen from every state are searching for a means to curb the supreme court—even some of those who were "savings" the court last year.

IN CHARGE OF SCHOOL.
GOODING, Jan. 13 (Special)—John W. Condie, state superintendent of public instruction, is acting superintendent of the Idaho state school for the deaf and blind here until a superintendent for Gooding county during 1936 totalled 76, and divorces granted totalled 22. In 1934, 94 marriage licenses were issued and 15 divorces granted.

Ketchum's Snow Seven Inches For Last Week Period

Nearly seven inches of snow fell last week at Ketchum and Sun Valley lodge, according to the latest report from F. S. Moore, forest supervisor for the Sawtooth national forest. The week's fall Oct. 1 to 21.57 inches, a below normal.

Over four inches fell at Haily during the past week, raising the total since Oct. 1 to 17.35 inches, Moore reported. The average at Haily for this date is 39.81 inches and a year ago 65.75 inches had fallen.

Depth of the snow at Grahams ranch is 14 inches and is 14 inches at Galena. At Mascot mine there are 11 inches and at Old Baldy 12 inches have been measured. Rocky Bar records 18 inches and at Williams ranch a depth of 11.5 inches is reported.

DIVORCES INCREASE

Jan. 13 (Special)—An increase in divorces granted and a decrease in the number of marriage licenses issued for 1936 in comparison with the year previous are shown by the record in the county clerk's office. Marriage licenses issued in Gooding county during 1936 totalled 76, and divorces granted totalled 22. In 1934, 94 marriage licenses were issued and 15 divorces granted.

POLICE AT BOISE TAKE SUSPECTS

Two Men Picked Up in Capital Reported Wanted In Pennsylvania

BOISE, Ida., Jan. 13 (Special)—Boise police today had in custody two men reported wanted in Pennsylvania for two bank robberies at Volant, Pa., a kidnaping at Sharon, Pa., and "many other crimes."

Chief of Police J. Emer Harris said the men, Harold Brent, 27, and Harry Logan, 27, confessed they were wanted by the department of justice and Pennsylvania police on those and a number of other charges. "There's enough on us to keep us behind bars the rest of our lives," Harris reported the men as saying.

Wanted for Kidnaping

A gray automobile bearing an Ohio license which was in their possession when arrested contained $3,000 in currency and two loaded guns.

A telephone call to Sharon police brought the information that the two were wanted for kidnaping Sam Kee, an engineer, in Sharon last July. It was also reported that during one of the bank robberies of which they are suspected, two police officers were shot.

Captain Jasper Orlendahl of the Pennsylvania state police wired that extradition proceedings to return the men to Pennsylvania would be begun immediately.

CLUTCH DOWN FIRST, FOLKS

SPECIAL WINTER BLEND CONOCO BRONZE GASOLINE

Your left foot should get to work sooner than your right toe or fingers. Shove down the clutch pedal before you touch the starter, ignition, or choke. In that way your engine turns independently of your transmission, taking a needless cold weather load off your starter and battery.

Keep the clutch down of course, till your engine is running steadily. That's always next to no time, using special Winter Blend Conoco Bronze gasoline. Quickly you'll hear the steady deep-throated signal of power... Not a lot of half-way "starts," kicking back at your starter with a clank... No endless "pumping" of the choke, wasting your gas and thinning your oil. You discover you are one of the experts, starting up in any cold at the first drop of the hat... on the first droplets of Conoco Bronze.
