WAGE AND HOUR LEGISLATION TO BE CONSIDERED

President Wants to Settle Maximum and Minimum Restrictions

SEEEKS CHILD LABOR LAW Asks Interstate Commerce Definition, Reenactment Of NRA

By LYLE C. WILSON (Copyright, 1937, United Press) WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—President Roosevelt today is considering new legislation dealing with minimum wages, maximum hours and relaxing restrictions upon business combinations, according to information obtained from usually reliable sources.

The President, it is understood, has discussed contemplated legislation with several unofficial advisers along lines which practically would revise the industrial and business standards imposed by NRA. The administration cannot be said to be committed to proposing such legislation to congress until Mr. Roosevelt or an official spokesman formally outlines the program, but some of the President's conferees believe he soon may advance such legislation.

One outline for legislation believed to have had Mr. Roosevelt's sympathetic consideration would provide Hour Regulation 1. Statutory definition by congress of interstate commerce... 2. Statutory establishment of somewhat flexible minimum wage and maximum hours regulation... 3. Prohibition of child labor... 4. Legalizing of business fair trade agreements which might include price-fixing and would certainly be designed to protect industry from "chislers".

ACCIDENTS' TOLL SETS NEW HIGH

Floods, Drouths, Increased Employment Add to Death List

CHICAGO, Jan. 29 (UP)—Floods, drouth, tornadoes, increased employment and highway traffic combined to send the 1936 accident toll to an all-time high, the national safety council announced today. A total of 111,000 persons died violently as a result of accidents, according to the council's annual summary. The previous record was 101,139 in 1934.

Europe Battles New Floods, Hurricanes

PARIS, Jan. 29 (UP)—Floods from three rivers descended on the Rhine valley today while Europe continued to be buffeted by hurricanes and blizzards. Three boat crews from the liner Europa battled raging seas for hours today in a vain effort to rescue the captain and 16 crew members of the German oil tanker Oliver which was being pounded to pieces on Normun reef in the North Sea near the Island of Bor-kum.

ONE OF FLOOD VICTIMS

Variations of this scene were being enacted minute by minute in the Louisville, Ky., area as rescuers in boats and high-wheeled trucks followed radio directions to relieve those marooned by flood waters. Here watersoaked rescuers carry T. B. Koegen, railroad conductor, from the central station in Louisville.

12 Planes Complete Trans-Pacific Flight

Naval Crafts Land At Pearl Harbor Oddities

PEARL HARBOR, HONOLULU, Jan. 29 (UP)—Twelve giant naval bombing planes circled over Honolulu today to complete the greatest mass flight ever attempted by the U. S. navy, a 2,500-mile non-stop trip from San Diego, Calif.

The roaring fleet arrived here at 8:20 a. m. (PST), less than 22 hours after taking off from California. The fliers were welcomed by a party consisting solely of the families of the naval aviators, who assembled near the Pearl harbor landing channel.

The water was calm and the air was unusually quiet when the planes roared in through the moonlight, circled over the harbor and then dropped in perfect formation... The planes first were sighted rounding Makapuu point, on the northeast corner of Oahu, at 5:30 a. m. (PST).

Driving rain and thunder showers forced the planes to shift from their course to escape the storm which earlier swept Oahu. Visibility became better closer to Honolulu and a brilliant moon flooded the ocean as the daring aviators winged their in a few miles... Six navy guide boats were stationed across the ocean at 300-mile intervals to aid the flyers.

COURT REFUSES MOONEY RE-TRIAL

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 29 (UP)—Tom Mooney, convicted with Warren K. Billings of the Preparedness day bombing in San Francisco in 1918, said today that if the California state supreme court refuses to grant him a new trial he would carry his battle for freedom to the U. S. supreme court.

Mooney made this announcement following a statement by State Supreme Court Referee Addison E. Shaw who after a habeas corpus hearing lasting more than a year recommended that the writ be denied. His findings concurred with a previous conclusion by the state attorney general, U. S. Webb.

Mooney was not present in court when Shaw submitted his findings, though he had been brought here from San Quentin prison during the habeas corpus hearings. Awakened in his cell in the county jail by the United Press today he smiled; rubbed his eyes, and declared that he was not surprised.

Death Summons Adam B. Barclay, District Judge

Prominent South Idaho Legal Figure Succumbs

Death early today closed the career of Judge Adam B. Barclay, 65, prominent Idaho jurist, judge of the eleventh judicial district and one of Jerome county's pioneers.

Judge Barclay succumbed early this morning at his Twin Falls residence after a brief illness. Death was caused by a heart ailment.

Friends and associates throughout southern Idaho mourned the jurist's passing and paid high tribute as funeral plans were arranged for 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Jerome Presbyterian church.

Judge Barclay was serving his second elective term on the bench of the eleventh judicial district at time of his death today. Previously he had been appointed in 1930 by Gov. C. Ben Ross to fill out several months of the unexpired term of Judge Hugh A. Baker, Burley, who had resigned.

He was elected in the fall of 1930 on the Republican ticket, and was re-elected in 1934. State judicial legal and county leaders will pay tribute in the funeral services at Jerome, and the body of Judge Barclay will lie in state at the White mortuary here from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m. Saturday for last honors from friends before removal to Jerome. Fame throughout the northwest and in newspapers of the entire country came to Judge Barclay in January, 1936, when he presided over the Douglas Van Vlack trial here.

Rites Arranged Rev. F. W. Wilk, Jerome Presbyterian pastor, will officiate at the funeral rites. Music will be by the Presbyterian choir, and the Jerome PEO Sisterhood will be in charge of floral offerings.

Typical of the tribute, paid here today by Judge Barclay's associates throughout the county and the judicial district was that by Judge William A. Babcock, his former colleague on the district bench.

In the death of Judge Adam B. Barclay, Judge Babcock said, "the county has lost one of its most valuable and distinguished citizens, a man of unflinching courage unswerving by popular sentiment or emotion while in performance of his judicial duties. He succeeded in discharging the duties of his office justly and uprightly. He was honored and respected by all who knew him."

TRADE BALANCE SHOWS DECREASE

U. S. Commerce Department Reports Lowest Figure Since 1893

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—The United States had a favorable trade balance in 1936 of $34,258,000, lowest since 1893, the commerce department reported today.

Exports totaled $2,453,487,000, an increase of $170,813,000 over 1935. Imports aggregated $2,419,229,000, an increase of $71,744,000.

Reasons Given The favorable trade balance this year decreased $201,131,000 from the 1935 total.

Among the major reasons given for the decline in the favorable trade balance was the pronounced increase in imports due to rapid expansion of industries actively requiring large supplies of raw materials. The maritime strike, the commerce department said, also resulted in reducing exports and holding down the net balance.

Press Correspondent Thrilled As Harlow NEARLY Kisses Him

By FREDERICK C. OTHMAN WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—I nearly got kissed by Jean Harlow today, Gosh! I still feel shivery. This blond siren of the screen smelling elegant with some $40 an ounce perfume, came to Washington with Robert Taylor, the new matinee idol, to help along the President's birthday ball tomorrow night. Taylor didn't smell, except of tooth paste and neither of them seemed to be suffering much from influenza despite earlier reports that Taylor should be in a hospital.

The movie moguls invited me and a couple of dozen other newspaper men to meet this glamorous pair at a 10 o'clock breakfast at the Mayflower hotel. I told my bride when I got up this morning that she didn't need to fix me any oatmeal because I was having breakfast with a lady downtown. "What lady?" she asked. "Jean Harlow?" said I, exclaiming. The cinema experts were plying the press with whisky soups, when I walked Jean and Harlow. Oh my gosh, oh my gosh, they started walking around the dining room, kissing people!

Called By Death

Judge Adam B. Barclay, prominent jurist and outstanding Jerome county civic leader, died early today at his Twin Falls residence. He was judge of the 11th judicial district. Final tribute will be paid by civic and legal leaders at funeral services Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in Jerome.

Swollen Stream Menaces Levees In Five States

RAINS FORECAST IN FLOOD SECTION OVER WEEK-END

1,000,000 Reported Homeless, 280 Dead in Inundated Area; Workers Pile Sandbags On River Banks

By United Press The rising Mississippi today threatened the levee system which protects dozens of communities in the five-state region where the Ohio and other swollen rivers poured their floods into the glutted waterway.

Army engineers directed thousands of workers to danger areas as soon as they were reported, but the river gnawed constantly at new points.

Two thousand fresh men were dispatched to pack sandbags on the levee between Cairo, Ill., and Tiptonville, Tenn., when "water boils" developed in the barrier.

Redoubt Efforts Levee workers redoubled efforts throughout the Cairo region where weakened levees portended disaster for Hickman, Ky.; Tiptonville, New Madrid and Charleston, Mo.

Forecast of general rains over the week-end in the Ohio and Tennessee valleys gave rise to fear that the floods, which have taken at least 280 lives and made more than 1,000,000 persons homeless, would be prolonged.

W. J. Maxom of the weather bureau warned that the rains would "prolong the flood" and swell to some extent the waters pouring into the Mississippi from tributary valleys.

The forecast added significance to the admission of engineers in charge of the work to plug weak spots in the billion dollar levee system that they were fighting a treacherous enemy—the weather.

"The weather will decide it—if it doesn't rain," they had said. "We've got the river licked."

Maxom warned that engineers would have to keep up the fight for at least two months.

President Roosevelt appointed a committee of relief and reconstruction experts to survey the area from Memphis through the Ohio valley where floods have claimed at least 278 lives, expelled 1,000,000 persons from their homes and wrought destruction which mounted hourly toward half a billion dollars.

Completion of the Washington school flood relief drive was announced today and disclosed $67 had been subscribed by teachers, pupils, and the school janitor.

Room 10, of the fifth grade, contributed the greatest amount with $11 reported, and Miss Mildred Bowles, room teacher, was presented with a four pound box of chocolates by R. F. Mallon. This will be distributed to the pupils of the room.

Private Henry L. Nield was killed almost instantly when the plane crashed into a mountain ledge and burst into flames.

SOLONS ACCLAIM ABUNDANCE PLAN

"Step in Right Direction" Say Framers of Two Factions

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—Congressmen today acclaimed Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace's call for "abundant production" this year as a "step in the right direction" against the possibility of another drouth.

"I am very glad the administration has apparently adopted a policy of greater abundance," Sen. Charles L. McNary, Republican farm leader from Oregon, said. "It is in accord with my own views."

Sen. Lynn J. Frazier, R., N. D., co-author of the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium bill, said "the plan of abundance is much better than the system of crop reduction."

Congressional approval appeared general for an "ever-normal granary" program for storage of farm surpluses in government warehouses for distribution in years of short crops. Wallace urged this, apparently, with President Roosevelt's approval.

Wallace's expressed determination that the federal government set up a "ever normal granary" plan for storage of surplus crops includes storage of up to 200,000,000 bushels of wheat either through a crop insurance program or direct government purchases.

Barclay, in business in Kimberly; two brothers, Jesse Barclay and Lester Barclay, Muskingum county, Ohio, and two sisters, Mrs. Olive Huffman and Mrs. Happy Culver, also of Muskingum county.

Activities in the district court here, interrupted by Judge Barclay's illness earlier this week, will be at a standstill until Judge Lee can preside, court attaches indicated this afternoon.

Judge Barclay came to Idaho in 1908, and for a quarter of a century had been a lawyer and civil leader at Jerome and later on the bench in the 11th district. His colleagues on the bench was first Judge Babcock and then Judge Lee.

Born in Ohio

Judge Barclay was born near Zanesville, Muskingum county, Ohio, Feb. 13, 1871. His paternal grandfather, John Barclay, came to America from Ireland and settled in Ohio in 1838. His maternal grandfather, John King, was a native of Massachusetts, of Welsh ancestry, and had also moved to Ohio. Judge Barclay's father, Adam B. Barclay, sr., was born in Belfast, Ireland, in 1828 and was seven years of age when he went to Ohio. The judge's mother was born in Ohio in 1845, and died Jan. 1, 1928. Of their eight children, five are living.

Judge Barclay attended common schools in Morgan county, Ohio, and the McConnellsville high school. His own efforts were chiefly responsible for giving him a liberal education and bringing him to the threshold of a legal career. He attended the Ohio Normal university and taught school for seven years.

Studied in Office

He first studied law in the office of W. H. Phillips at Zanesville. In 1894 he went to Iowa and continued his law studies at Winter, and on Jan. 9, 1898, was admitted to the bar at Des Moines. He practiced 10 years in Sac county, Iowa, and in 1908 he came to Idaho. After a brief stay at Twin Falls he established his home in Jerome in September of the same year, and soon had built up a profitable law practice. While living in Iowa he served four years as county attorney of Sac county.

He served four years as prosecuting attorney of Jerome county, and in 1930 was appointed judge of the district court of the 11th judicial district. In the fall of that year he was elected to the bench as a candidate on the Republican ticket.

Bank Director

Judge Barclay was a director of the Jerome National bank. He was a past grand of the Independent Order of Odd Fellows, and a member of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Judge Barclay married in November, 1899, Miss Nellie May McKenna. She was born in Illinois, daughter of Edward McKenna, who moved with his family to a farm in Iowa in 1880.

LEWIS MAY LEAD MINES WALK-OUT

Coal Strike Considered By 25,000 Members of Organization

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—A threatened strike of approximately 25,000 coal miners led by John L. Lewis, head of the committee for industrial organization, today further complicated the increasingly critical labor problem harassing the administration.

As Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins searched for a new plan to bring peace in the General Motors controversy, a disagreement between the union and steel companies controlling "captive" mines appeared moving toward a possible walkout.

Leads to Trouble

Representatives of steel corporations and Lewis' United Mine Workers admitted that union insistence on applying the existing check-off system to additional assessments of U. M. W. members is "leading to trouble."

"The check-off consists of a deduction by operators from miners' salaries and is paid into union treasuries. It has been used by Lewis to build U. M. W. into a powerful organization."

The controversy, it was learned, exists at present only between Lewis and steel companies operating "captive" mines (Term used to denote a mine operated by an industry entirely for its own use—Ed) mines in which U. M. W. claims 25,000 members. Independent operators thus far have not protested the increased check-off.

Free Shaves Given Readers of Bible

JAPANESE SEEK CABINET LEADER

Emperor Calls for Aid When First Choice Fails To Organize

TOKYO, Saturday, Jan. 30 (UP)—Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, former minister of war, early today accepted an imperial command from Emperor Hirohito to form a new cabinet in Japan.

TOKYO, Jan. 29 (UP)—Emperor Hirohito tonight summoned Gen. Senjuro Hayashi, former minister of war, presumably to command him to form a cabinet.

The summons to Hayashi followed admission by Gen. Kazushige Ugaki that his efforts to form a ministry were futile, despite the customarily omnipotent imperial sanction and command. The emperor's second choice apparently was Gen. Hayashi.

Both Retired

Earlier in the day Gen. Ugaki was understood to have sent a message of appeal for aid in his cabinet-forming task to colleagues through Gen. Hayashi, a close friend. Both are on the retired list, after a lifetime in the military development of Japan as a westernized nation in modern times.

PLOWS CONTINUE TO CLEAR ROADS

Many Side Routes Opened for Initial Time During 10-Day Period

Practically all roads in the Twin Falls flood district were open today after district plows had worked late last night and continued early this morning.

Clear by Tonight

All east and west roads south of Twin Falls will be cleared by this evening, J. D. Sinema, director, said and also two miles of road at the municipal airport which has been blocked for the past ten days. Melting snow and warm weather is making it easier to clear the long blocked roads, Sinema said.

Snow, which fell during the night, did not present any difficulties to road crews, he said.

In Twin Falls moderate temperatures continued with a low of 12 above being recorded here this morning by the bureau of entomology. The mercury went over the freezing mark yesterday when 33 above was recorded. Low for the same period was listed at 20 above. Precipitation amounted to .02 of an inch. The forecast for tonight and Saturday calls for unsettled weather, with snow in the south tonight and southeast Saturday.

Civil Service for Postmasters Asked

WASHINGTON, Jan. 29 (UP)—Administration leaders, aided by a 10-minute capitol power failure, today sent to the senate hearing house approval the Ranspelt bill placing 14,000 postmasters under civil service.

Senate endorsement of the measure requested by President Roosevelt was considered virtually certain. Senators long have taken the attitude that any time house members—who at present handle postmaster patronage—passed the bill, they would concur.

Too Much Legislation

"Too much legislation" was scored in debate on a measure to make a person walking on the right side of a highway guilty of a misdemeanor. "It's carrying legislation too far when we make law breakers of persons who walk on the highways," declared F. M. Bistline, Bannock. The measure was lost.

The house disposed of two other bills previously passed in the senate. Regulation of scales to require posting of rates would act to close up many semi-public weighing stations necessary for convenience, the house decided. A minor change in probate procedure, requiring notice to be posted on the front door of the courtroom in settlement of estates was turned down.

The house in fast order passed measures to require reciprocal insurance companies to come under state regulation and the three per cent premium tax; compel boards of county commissioners to hold their regular monthly meeting on the first Monday of the month.

PRESIDENT SEEKS NEW LEGISLATION

Roosevelt Wants to Settle Maximum and Minimum Restrictions

(Continued from Page One) in the scope of his suggested legislation. Some advisers are convinced that unless minimum wages and maximum hours can be imposed on retail business there will not be the expansion of employment desired by the administration.

The trend of discussion reported by Mr. Roosevelt's conferees indicates that the President is almost ready now to raise before the courts again the whole issue of federal regulation over business which was reviewed in litigation, leading up to invalidation of N.R.A.

Re-Enact N.R.A.

The plans explored so far evidently would re-enact the statute of N.R.A., establish by standards and hours regulations similar to those of the President's re-employment agreements under which Blue Eagles were issued before industries and business could be individually codified at the outset of the New Deal, and place squarely before the courts the question whether congress has the right to define interstate commerce.

There is no dispute over congress' authority to regulate interstate commerce. The argument is where to draw the line.

If legislation is proposed it probably will be in the form of two or more bills. Mr. Roosevelt recently said he thought one of N.R.A.'s most serious faults was its all-embracing character—an attempt to deal with all labor and industrial and business problems in one act and through one authority.

MILLION DANCERS TO ATTEND BALL

Estimated $1,000,000 Will Be Raised at 6,000 Balls For President

NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (UP)—More than one million dancers tomorrow night will attend 6,000 President Roosevelt birthday balls to aid infantile paralysis sufferers, officials of the movement predicted today.

It was estimated that upwards of $1,000,000 would be raised for paralysis sufferers in the parties to be given in all parts of the nation except where flood conditions prevail. Officials of the birthday ball movement believe the flood will materially decrease the number of balls and the amount of money raised.

Admissions Vary

The parties will range from the white-tie events in New York, Washington and other major cities, to piano-and-fiddle barn dances in rural communities. Lowest admission price at any ball, 25 cents; highest, $250 for a box for eight in New York.

The President will address the merry-makers by radio at 11:25 p. m. EST. He is not expected to attend any of the Washington balls, but Mrs. Roosevelt probably will. Mrs. James Roosevelt, mother of the President, will be at the Waldorf.

President's Ball for Burley Slated Feb. 1

BURLEY, Jan. 29 (Special)—The annual President's Birthday ball will be held in the Elks' hall here Monday night, and the committee reports that the ticket sales show good response.

D. E. Johnson, who has been chairman of the local ball since the inception, had to resign from the position Monday because of ill health. William Roper succeeds him as head of the committee.

Other members of the committee are J. T. Peterson, J. P. Hackney, W. L. Bedford, F. L. Hobson, Jack Davis, Bill Williams and G. O. Paulson.

The first ticket to the ball was auctioned off at the Rotary meeting Tuesday evening and was sold for $6 to Sam Richardson.

HARLOW THRILLS WASHINGTON MEN

Press Correspondent Nearly Kissed By Famous Blond Star

(Continued from Page One) Jean did the kissing. Robert merely shook hands with the men and I amed on the ladies. "Smack—it's delightful to see you again," said the honey-haired Miss Harlow, time after time as she walked around the room greeting old friends.

Not Old Friend

"I wasn't an old friend, but I thought maybe she might make a mistake."

"Jumping jeebers!" said I to myself, as she approached me. "She is about to kiss me. Whee!!"

"So the movie men said 'Mr. Othman, Miss Harlow.'" It was a thrilling moment. Miss Harlow's perfume enveloped me. Her red fox fur tickled my nose as she came close and gave me a soulful look with her big, blue eyes.

But, shucks, she just said "how do you do" and walked on. "Smack" I heard her kiss the woman on my left. Broken hearted, I didn't even look to see.

Feeding Program Aids Game Birds

Farmers Help Sportsmen in Distributing Grains

Approximately two tons of grain and cracked beans are being fed ducks, pheasants and quail in this section each day in order to aid the birds as their food supply is shut off by cold weather and snow, members of the Southern Idaho Fish and Game association migratory water fowl committee, disclosed last evening at a special meeting.

The group said it was imperative that the feeding program, which started last Monday, should be continued and further donations of funds or grain are asked. To date over $40 has been donated for the purchase of grain, and numerous farmers have donated wheat and beans to be used in the feeding operations.

The present warmer weather is said to be aiding the birds and, under the constant feeding and efforts of the sportsmen and volunteers, they are said to be gaining needed strength.

In addition to the sportsmen's efforts farmers in the vicinity have aided by distributing grain on their fields and among game resting places.

An added duck population in this section was reported at the meeting, the birds evidently "moving in" from other localities.

Ducks are reported to be taking to the bean rations especially in sections where the beans can be spread along a waterway.

The next meeting of the group, for further discussion and preparing a report on operations, will be held the first of next week.

End common constipation by eating Kellogg's ALL-BRAN regularly. This cereal supplies the "bulk" your system needs for normal, natural action. It also gives vitamin B to tone up the intestines — and iron for the blood.

Constitution May Lead to Colds

In the body, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN absorbs twice its weight in water. It forms a soft mass, which gently exercises and sponges out the intestines. Eat two tablespoonfuls a day, either as a cereal with milk or fruits, or in cooked dishes.

POT SHOTS WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row THIS CALIFORNIAN SEEMS TO HATE MOVIE FOLK! Rosedale, Calif. Jan. 27 Greetings, Mr. Poot-Shootz: God's gift to movie stars . . . Sun Valley lodge! We put down your worthy paper from the home town and muse a bit. How did Idaho-folks manage before this Sun Valley business? We feel a crying job coming on us as we dream of a Sawtooth, lonely and unexploited. We are clothed in goose flesh to recall that not long ago those splendid mountains knew not one parlor athlete, not one steam heated mama of the gelatine joys! And some of the local citizenry actually SAW, up there among the dignified pines and remote stars, a waffle-fanny director take a poke at an eastern mug-wump! Isn't that just marvellous! Mr. Pootz, we have to practically push our eyes back into their sockets with the wonder of it! California, of course, has quite a lunatic fringe of cinemanacs who would lie down and roll over just to say they had been within sizzling distance of Wae Mest, the famous suicide blond, or any other big Squawk of the Squeakies, but we gave Idaho folks the credit for possessing a sense of humor. We suggest that those local Star Gazers there organize into a "I Saw Them" club and hang out around Sun Valley and Hollywood. Imagine the results Mr. Pootz! "I saw Glark Cable blow his nose with his fingers!" "I saw Ganet Joyce eat pig's feet!" "Why one of 'em might even catch Garbo in the act of going home!" THAT would be the look of the month! Well, it all means more than mere scenery. After all you can't cash in much on the silent beauty of mere snow creaming white along the bosom of a mountain, whiter than bones on the ridges. There are no dollars in the great silences washed with cold, or the whirr of darkness coming down over lonely pines. Yours for bigger and better Goops gap at the Stars. —Zeni Yorme SUCH HATS DRIVE A MAN TO DRINK! Pot Shots: When a man feels blue, he takes a drink. When a woman feels blue, she buys a hat. Whereupon the man takes another drink. —Professor Pill POT SHOTS FEELS very flattered indeed. A feminine instructor at the high school informed us with considerable asperity that she doesn't like the column. In fact, she observed very determinedly that she detests Pot Shots. All of which warms the cockles of our heart, so to speak. We want you to like us or despise us, but when you're just indifferent, that failure. YOU WANT COMFORT PLUS! Pottery Shots. If I was a legislator, first I'd get a bill thru to raise our salaries. Then I'd get 'em to put in free buffet service, with lady barbers and manicure and cigarette girls to attend us at our desks which need lights and various gadgets for convenience, and a couch or chaise-louche at each place. Then I was going to get the time shortened for the session, but ahucks, I don't want the earth, and if they take care of all this in good shape, I believe I'd just as soon stay for the winter, anyway! But maybe, Potts, you'd better send me the 50 cents just in case. —I'me Knot Elected FROM OVER BUHL way, Vern Prost has an interesting bit in his "Frost Nips" that we pass on to you: He says that Actor Paul Lukas claims not one person in 100,000 can pronounce these 11 words correctly: Data, grubs, culinary, coraine, gondola, version, ampious, chie, inquiry, acclimate and respite. Try 'em, and then hunt the dictionary. We missed two, although we'd have bet cash money we knew them all. GUNBOATS? THOSE ARE BATTLESHIPS! Pot Shots: A big pair of feet seems to have the army stopped. Sergeant Cook here tells about a 19-year-old chap back in Missouri who was turned down for enlistment because he was 6 feet 8 1/2 inches tall and had a foot measuring 12 inches from toe to heel. It seems the army won't sure this guy had stopped growing, and didn't feel it could buy shoes like that indefinitely. They probably figured that buying "gunboats" like those belonged to the navy department. —Gusto FAMOUS LAST LINEYeh, he ate in a restaurant—and got a hat and a pair of tubular! THE GENTLEMAN IN THE THIRD ROW

END POVERTY AND BOOM U. S. If the republic should decide to take seriously Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural plea for abolition of poverty, it going to have an interesting time of it during the next generation or so.

It may not make much money out of it, but it will keep awfully busy. For abolishing poverty is not a matter of getting money into pockets so much as of putting shoes on feet, coats on backs, houses on vacant lots, and good food in pinched stomachs. And we just naturally have not, as of today, enough of these things to do the job. All of which simply means that if we are going to go ahead and abolish poverty—which is just another way of saying that we would equip everyone in America with all the necessities and a fair smattering of the luxuries—we are going to have a boom such as we never dreamed of before.

Between the desire and its accomplishment there is, of course, a huge gap. How a program of this kind can be made to pay is a wide-open question. But the interesting thing, at this moment, is the contemplation of the stupendous jump in production which will take place if we do go ahead and make abundance available to everyone.

Mr. Roosevelt remarked, for instance, that some millions of our citizens live in homes that are sadly below standard. A nation out to abolish poverty would have to begin by replacing all those homes with new ones. There is enough work there to keep the vast building industry busy for many decades. It is easy enough to see what would follow. Furniture factories, makers of boots and shoes and clothing, manufacturers of all kinds of household appliances and gadgets, producers of electricity, farmers, stock raisers, cotton growers, shepherds—all these people would find an unprecedented demand for their output.

It makes a pretty picture, and it isn't spoiled by the cynical question about who is going to pay for it all. For the important fact is that this tremendous market does exist, potentially—and so does the productive capacity to meet it.

Since those things are true, it is inevitable that we shall eventually find a way of hooking demand to capacity. For there is where our industrial future really lies. Not in overseas markets, not below the equator, or on the far side of the Pacific—but right at home, where the richest nation in the world has a dazzling chance to treble its riches by distributing them.

DANGEROUS AGE In a midwestern city, a survey has been made of its first 16 traffic deaths in 1937, and some odd facts were discovered. None of these victims was killed by a drunken driver; none died as a result of excessive speed; and none was a child.

However, study of these cases uncovered the significant fact that 12 of the 16 unfortunates were pedestrians, and that the average age of these 12 was 61. The survey, of course, covered but a half month's fatalities; but the results emphasize that aged pedestrians are "marked for death" unless they use extra caution in crossing streets.

Whether it is defective vision; inability to judge auto speeds, or the inclination to save steps by jaywalking, that is responsible for this high mortality among the aged, is hard to determine. Whatever the cause, nieces, nephews, sons, and daughters may save some loved ones if they will assume the task of educating their elders to street dangers.

UNPLEASANT NEWS The news that Sanford Bates has resigned his post as director of federal prisons is far from pleasant. Mr. Bates has made an excellent record as a wise administrator who knew where to draw the line between undue severity, on the one hand, and sentimental coddling, on the other.

It is reported in Washington that one reason for his resignation was a clash between him and J. Edgar Hoover over parole policies. One hopes these reports are exaggerated. Mr. Hoover has made an excellent record in the matter of catching crooks. Mr. Bates has made an equally excellent one in the matter of handling crooks after they have been caught and convicted. Mr. Hoover will be diminishing his own great usefulness if he steps out of his proper sphere and tries to draw cards in someone else's game.

Cornelius Van Dongen, Dutch painter, says New York is like Holland. Offhand, we'd say any midwestern town, in the flood area, was more so. Just before the inauguration, the United States had three Presidents in 20 minutes, experts claim. Let's see Mexico or Cuba beat that.

King without a country by Robert Bruce. PAUL I. King of Northumbria, brother of King PAUL FERRION who he succeeds to the throne to marry AIDATHI (HIBONDI), Canadian-born actress. Paul's younger brother, JOSEPH, succeeds to the kingship. But Paul and Aidath, after a few weeks, do not and the freedom they seek; the COUNTESS DI MARCO, REGGIE VAN TWYNE and his gay crowd of the West St. Francis prove pretty vicious. So Paul takes the advice of his old tutor, DR. MONDRIAN, famed archeologist, and leaves his villa. He and Aidath tour Europe, and in Paris Paul, resenting the advice, a French colonelist about Aidath, knocks the writer down. Stain No. 1 on the ex-king's life. The papers refer to the "run-away king"; fear his villa companions. Paul becomes restless, fed up with the life he leads. He does something, anything useful. He proposes buying a ranch in Canada or Argentina or in the United States. Paul's restlessness stirs doubts in Aidath's heart. In Paul bored with her, he brings on all this? Paul denies this in so they kiss, agree they need each other, he crosses the border, the writer somehow the shadow of the lost throne. NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII THE winter sun was warm and the breeze that drifted in from the bay was mild. The long quay at the waterfront of the little seaport of San Lorenzo was almost deserted. Paul perched on a metal bollard, raised at the edge of the quay to receive the mooring lines of the fishermen's boats, and filled his pipe. He puffed at his pipe and looked along the peaceful waterfront. A small sailboat lay moored 50 yards down the quay; a trim craft with white hull and mahogany trim, its bright-work gleaming in the sunlight. Its sails neatly stowed in a shipshape harbor furl. Someone's pleasure boat, clearly, not a fishing craft. He would stroll along presently and have a look at her; in fact, come to think of it, he would sail all along right now. As he walked nearer, he saw someone on the boat; a lean, sandy chap in paint-stained duck trousers and a ragged jersey, who was engaged just then in hanging a hand-lettered sign on the starboard rigging, facing the quay. This man looked up as Paul came to the edge of the quay. He was apparently a man of 30, or thereabouts, tanned a rich brown by the sun and the salt winds. He smoked a cornob pipe and he had friendly blue eyes. The sign he was hanging said, "For sale," and as he caught Paul's eye he grinned and asked, unexpectedly, "Want to buy a boat?" Paul took his pipe out of his mouth and gaped at him. Buy a boat? Well, why hadn't he done that months ago? He had been an ardent yachtsman, back in Northumbria, proud of his ability to get as much out of a small craft like this as any man in the Royal Yacht Club. A boat, now—a trim, seaworthy little thing like this one—why, that would give some point to his existence here. It would restore to his daily life that lost savor. He put the pipe back in his mouth and sent back an answering grin. "Say, you know, I really might," he said. "Swell," said the man. "Come aboard and have a look." Paul climbed the low iron rail at the edge of the concrete quay and lowered himself to the boat's deck. The man took his hand in a sinewy grip. "My name's Coffin," he said. "Jonas Coffin. The boat's named La Sylphide. I didn't name her." "Well," said Paul, who was beginning to like this strange sailor, "if she was your boat why didn't you change her name?" "Didn't get around to it. You see—oh, well, it's a long story. Let's take a look around her and then I'll tell you about it." La Sylphide proved to be a snop, 37 feet over-all, gar-top-sail rigged and equipped with an auxiliary gas engine which was housed in a casing sunk in the floor of the cockpit. She drew five and one-half feet of water, said Coffin, was sturdy enough for deep-sea cruising, handled uncommonly well when beating to windward, and could be trusted to keep within two points of her course with a lashed tiller. BELOW the aloop possessed a cozy cabin with a built-in berth on each side, a galley, ample cupboard and locker space, and a lavatory. She was, inslated as sound as a dollar—he offered statistics about white oak knees, cedar planking, copper sheathing and the like—and one man, all alone, might sail her clear to Australia if he felt like it. They emerged from the cabin and sat down in the cockpit. From a locker under the seat, Coffin broke out a bottle of the thin, sourish wine of the country, and two aluminum cups. "There's no special bite to it," he said, as he poured the drinks, "but it's all there is aboard. Well, here's mud to you." Paul drained his glass to this quaint toast. Then he said, "Now tell me how it is that you didn't change this name which you dislike so greatly." Jonas Coffin filled his cornob pipe. "Well," he said, "it's like this. You see, I come from the state of Maine—that's in America. Another fellow and I, we came over here for six months to paint. Well, that was three months ago. In these three months I found out I'm never going to be a painter." He grinned. "To be honest, I'd suspected it before. I guess I came over mostly for the fun of it. Anyhow, in these three months I learned it for sure. The other fellow's still at it, up in Paris. Me, I came down here to have fun. I saw this boat and bought her off a Frenchman and figured I'd take a Mediterranean cruise for myself. Spent two weeks getting her fixed up, overhauling the rigging, and so on. Before I got around to changing her name I got word from home: money's all gone, or 'most all. So I go back and get into harness, and someone else—yow, maybe—gets La Sylphide." "Maybe I do," said Paul reflectively. "When you go back home and get into harness, what do you do?" "The old man's got a couple of boats up at Camden, Maine. Little power boats, I mean. We take summer folks around, haul package freight up and down the bay, and so on." "He smoked for a minute in silence." "I was a fool to sink all my dough in this baby," he said. "But she sure is a sweetheart. How about it; you want her?" "Yes. How much do you want for her?" "Three thousand dollars would be just right," said Paul—thereby giving Jonas Coffin, who had expected half an hour of haggling, the surprise of his life. "Can I take possession at once—today?" "You sure can," said the American, tearing himself away from the diverting speculation about what might have happened if he had asked for five thousand. "The American sighed." "A man could still make money with windjammers," he said dreamily. "Barkentines, now, with little auxiliary oil engines. . . ." He sat up abruptly. "Well," he said, "let's get up to the city hall and sign those papers." Two hours later Paul returned to the quay alone. And then a sobering thought came to him. He had given up a throne for his freedom—and now, less than a year later, he had to buy a sailboat in order to keep that hard-bought freedom from boring him to distraction! (To Be Continued)

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the Nation's Capital By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator. (Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

WASHINGTON — Confidential information in the hands of impartial sources here indicates the current Moscow Trial by fury is about half founded on fact. The well informed here have reason to suspect there was a rather indefinite plot to overthrow the Stalin regime, from within, and that there still is one, indirectly involving Germany, Japan and anti-Stalinists. Likewise, there is a broad suspicion in high places here that Editor Radek, for one, was probably mixed up in it. The feeling exists also that the Stalin regime is still very shaky, that the trial spectacle may serve to delay, but probably not prevent, consummation of the original idea eventually.

DRAMATIZATION Knowing authorities laughed outright at the first propaganda farce staged before the microphones in Moscow last August. The spectacle of ex-high Reditee bleating the most abject confessions of their infamies over the radio for peasant consumption was a little too obvious. Everyone knew the defendants would be killed anyway and realize they had probably made a deal with the Stalin government to offer any fairly tame confessions desired, in order to save their wives and children. Since the world choked on the first one, the Stalinists have had an opportunity to perfect their technique. They cut down on the fantasy in this current production, and are trying to play it as a more or less straight drama. Allowing for this, it is nevertheless true that the plot evidence developed this time checks and double-checks with certain unpublished facts in the possession of authorities here. They are willing to believe Radek may have had a minor hand in it because he had enough personal ambition for a dozen plotters. They suspect, however, that his own co-plotters, whom he named as co-plotters, were merely mentioned by him to settle a personal score.

SEA-DOG FIGHT There is trouble on the bridge in the navy. President Roosevelt is taking the wheel. A reorganization is not improbable. What started it was a report of the navy general board, recommending a readjustment of the promotion system. This report has not been made public, but it was presented to Secretary Swanson some weeks ago. He passed it along to one of the junior admirals in charge of a bureau, who proceeded to tear it apart. The junior admiral sent back a counter report which is said to have defended the selective promotion system with sixteen-inch words. As the story goes, Secretary Swanson signed this report and passed it along for publication. However, a junior officer read it over, and decided to inform the navy secretary that publication would publicly blow the whole row wide open. Mr. Swanson reconsidered, kicked both reports into a back drawer of his desk, and tried to lock the problem up with it. The news has reached Mr. Roosevelt, however, and it appears the trouble has just begun.

POWER Mr. Roosevelt knows a little about the navy from the inside, himself. In fact, he testified 19 years ago as assistant navy secretary before a congressional committee on the very point involved in this scrap. He said the bureau system of the navy was then "antiquated" which means it was not to be 10 years over-antiquated. What will come out of it will probably be a reorganization of the existing bureaus of navigation, yards and docks, etc. It is quite possible the power of the general board will be re-established or a general staff created to dominate the navy as the general staff in the army. The board is made up of the older admirals, like Reeves and Upham, who are within a year or so of retirement, and they rate authority. As matters now stand, their recommendations are generally wabstebasketed by the junior admirals in charge of the bureaus, as in this case. The chief of operations is top. The secretary of navy has no real authority, and it is doubtful whether he will ever get any. The admiral will see to it that the cabinet post remains only a tea-pouring job. TRIPLE SELL-OUT What happened in the kidnaping of Chiang Kai-Shek by Chang Hsueh-Liang may never be fathomed officially, but authorities here finally have an explanation which sounds reasonable. They are willing to make apologies to Japan for suspecting she entered the original coup. They believe now that the ex-optimum smoker kidnaped Chiang Kai-Shek because his own army was about one-half to two-thirds Communist. He seems to have made a trade with his Communists to capture Chiang Kai-Shek, not for the purpose of fighting Japan, as he announced, but to promote the Communist cause against the nationalist Chiang Kai-Shek government. After capturing Chiang, he found the whole country going against him. He saw that pursuit of his objective would lead to a great slaughter than he anticipated, and he knew he could not win. Therefore, he deserted his army and joined his kidnapers for a promise of immunity, thus selling out for the third consecutive time, and to his original purchaser. (Chiang Kai-Shek had originally hired him to chase Communists). Some money may have changed hands. Palm greasing is an old Chinese custom, even with rats who are cornered. The result was a draw between the nationalists and the Communists. Incidentally, there are supposed to be 500,000 Communists under arms in China and 125,000 to 175,000 in Chang Hsueh-Liang's former army.

The Family Doctor By DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine. When a person is injured in a fall, the first step is to find out how serious the injury is, so that the correct treatment may be applied. It is necessary to know whether bones have been broken. For this purpose, an X-ray picture is the most certain method of getting definite information. Any bruising or bleeding must be properly treated and controlled. If the skin has been damaged, it must have cleanliness and protection. A doctor diagnoses the presence of a broken bone by the amount of hemorrhage that takes place, the swelling, the pain, the immovability of the fragments or loose ends of the broken bones, and many other well known symptoms. Then he arranges to get the parts back into proper relationship with each other, and to keep them in the correct position until healing occurs. Before the doctor comes, it is wise to place the injured part completely at rest, and to hold it still with a suitable splint. There are, of course, ready-made and adjustable splints with which every doctor is familiar. A home-made splint is sometimes made by folding a large magazine or newspaper many times about the injured limb, and then holding it in place with handkerchiefs tied at various levels. If, however, the person who is applying the first aid measure is not absolutely certain of what to do, he or she should make the patient rest and keep him absolutely quiet until the doctor comes. Whenever a person is struck with sufficient force, the tissues of his body are bruised. The first symptom of a bruise is pain. This is usually followed by redness and swelling. Later, the blood that has escaped from the blood vessels into the skin becomes coagulated, and the tissues turn black and blue. Gradually the blood clot is absorbed. During the process of absorption the solid blood material changes into fluid. At the same time the bruised area changes from brown to yellow and gradually disappears. For most ordinary bruises little immediate treatment is necessary. Small towels folded to make suitably thick pads may be soaked in ice water and applied directly over the bruises. This will lessen the pain. An icebag filled with ice cubes, or fairly large pieces of ice, will supply cold to the bruised areas for a long time without much attention by those who are doing the nursing.

HEYBURN School opened Tuesday after an absence of a week and a day. Bad roads and broken pumps made the closing necessary. Several attempts were made last week to hold classes but there were so few students able to attend that all efforts were useless. There was an attendance of about 85 percent Tuesday. The basketball game which was scheduled for Jan. 10, at Acquia, had to be postponed until a later date because of bad roads. Acquia was defeated at Heyburn Jan. 20. Roosevelt Ball Will Serve To Carry Fight Against Paralysis

By MORRIS FISHBIN, M. D., Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The fourth of the annual Roosevelt Birthday balls, in which a nation will join Jan. 30, will serve to carry still farther the fight against deadly infantile paralysis.

These entertainments not only honor the President's birthday, but aid in a nation-wide movement to help the victims of poliomyelitis, medical term for infantile paralysis. The money from the birthday balls held in 1934, 1935, and 1936 has already been applied to considerable advantage in many places. Many children have been provided with braces, with treatment by competent orthopedic surgeons, and with special attention in the educational field to help them to earn a living even though handicapped by this crippling disease.

Knowledge Sought
 In various places, investigators have been carrying on important studies in advancing our knowledge of infantile paralysis. It has been determined that the disease probably enters the body in most cases by way of the nose, passing then to the nervous system, and affecting the spinal cord.

Further studies are being made on animals and on human beings as to the possibility of developing vaccines, mixtures of killed or live material from those suffering with infantile paralysis, which, when injected into those who are well, may create in them resistance to the disease. New studies have been made on the value of various vitamins in controlling resistance to disease and appearance of the symptoms.

These are some of the main aims of modern research in relationship to infantile paralysis, and the money that becomes available will be used to extend and hasten this research.

Polio—the crippling disease—is no respecter of persons. It attacks rich and poor alike. It appears under good and under poor sanitary conditions. Ninety-five per cent of those attacked are children. That is what arouses our sympathy and our pity. All of us want to help.

Summer Dangerous
 In laboratories throughout the world investigators are trying to trace the path of the disease into the body and to develop means for preventing its spread. Typhoid fever has been driven out, yellow fever and malaria have been eliminated, and diphtheria can be controlled in any community willing to spend the necessary money. But we must know more of infantile paralysis before we can be equally successful with it.

Doctors have learned to recognize the earliest symptoms. The disease usually begins to appear in June, increases during July and August, diminishes in October and disappears by November. When it starts, it resembles many other infectious diseases—a slight fever, headache with vomiting, drowsiness and irritability when disturbed, flushing and congestion of the throat—just the ordinary symptoms of the beginning of any infectious disease.

But when infantile paralysis is prevalent in any community, these symptoms must be viewed with special suspicion. Stiffness of the back and neck demands most careful investigation. Pain in the muscles, tenderness of the skin and pain on movement of the joints are the symptoms which cause the doctor to suspect infantile paralysis.

Then he makes laboratory tests which show whether the disease is polio or some other infection. He examines the spinal fluid. The appearance of this fluid, the number of cells that it contains, the nature of the cells, and the chemical changes, tell the story in many instances.

Early Treatment
 Suppose the child has infantile paralysis. Discovery at the earliest possible moment is most important. The early treatment may make the difference as to whether there is permanent paralysis or not. Don't try home remedies! Don't let any one rub the child with liniments or lotions! Don't permit any manipulation or vibration of the tissues in these early stages, because they are bound to be harmful! Immobilize the child and rest in every sense of the word is the treatment of first importance. Then when the acute inflammation has passed from six to eight weeks may be necessary for the damaged nerve cells to recover. During this period a competent specialist in disease of the bones and joints will see to it that the limbs are kept in such positions as to give the child the utmost possible activity when the time for motion begins. And then still later, he will give muscle training and massage. You have heard much about the growth of the Georgia Warm Springs Foundation. The spirit of this foundation has given aid to thousands of sufferers. And the work done at Warm Springs is now being duplicated in many places. No one knows where infantile paralysis will strike next, but wherever it strikes, earnest workers and investigators and competent physicians will be available to help bring the epidemic under control as soon as possible and to study its manifestations so they may approach each new battle better armed than they were in the previous one. Some day the dread polio will be eliminated but until that time comes, all of us must do the most we can to encourage research and aid investigation. Power used to operate a giant radio tube in a Pittsburgh broad casting station could push two street cars up a steep grade.

Crippled by infantile paralysis, this little fellow smiles none the less as he talks things over with a toy Donald Duck. The Warm Springs Foundation at Warm Springs, Ga., knows all there is to know about treatment of the dread disease, including means of keeping up the patient's spirits.

Malleable Iron & Riveted Joints were considered of FIRST importance in selecting a range?

Maybe it was before YOUR day, but there was a time when people who wanted a quality range wouldn't think of buying anything but a "Malleable".

TODAY, modern design and porcelain enamel have supplanted riveted construction as the things you think of first when looking at ranges... but does that mean that YOU would accept Beauty as a "SUBSTITUTE" for quality construction?

Surely NOT! You want "look" but you want quality as well... and the way to get

ODDS 5-1 AGAINST PASTOR WINNING LOUIS FIGHT TONIGHT

BOUT IMPORTANT IF NEGRO LOSES

Collegian Given Little Chance Of Victory in Madison Garden Bout

By LESLIE AVERY
NEW YORK, Jan. 29 (U.P.)—Collegiate Bob Pastor staked flinty fame today on a stout heart and a roundhouse right, but the bettors were offering 5-1 those factors were not sufficient to overcome Joe Louis tonight in Madison Square Garden.

The fight is important only in case of a Pastor victory. If Louis wins, the N.Y.U. graduate will merely be another of his victims. But, should Pastor triumph it would clarify the heavyweight situation beyond belief. It would give the Garden control of both the champion and the outstanding American challenger which, in view of the anti-Nazi boycott of Max Schmeling, would make a perfect setup for James Joy Johnston. Pastor is managed by Johnston's son, Jimmy, Jr., which explains the Garden promoter's interest in the collegian's success.

Basis of Hope
Pastor forces base all hope on Louis' one weakness—the one uncovered by Schmeling—that Louis can be reached and hurt by a right. That is the only basis of a prediction that Pastor has a chance. Pastor's record does not indicate possession of as lethal a weapon as Schmeling's overhand right, nor the ring craft to stand Louis off until he gets a chance to use it.

His most impressive victory in 22 engagements was the knockout over the awkward giant Ray Impellitteri in his last bout, and that operation required seven rounds. He is of unquestionable gameness, however. He got off the floor six times to earn a draw with Eddie Simms of Cleveland—the man Louis kayoed with a first round punch.

Pastor Outweighed
Pastor will be outweighed anywhere from 15 to 20 pounds at the boxing commission office this noon. The New York boy will hardly go over 137, while Louis may weigh 205.

Tickets from $2.50 to $16.50 are scaled to bring in $120,000 if the Garden is sold out.

Razzing Of Pitcher Is Waste Of Energy, Says Cincinnati Pitcher

By HENRY McEMORE
SARASOTA, Fla. Jan. 29 (U.P.)—With a merciless disregard for the pet illusion of millions of American citizens, Paul Derriinger told me that baseball pitchers never hear even so much as one decibel of the noisy clatter set up by the fans in the hope of distracting the opposing flinger when the home team starts a rally.

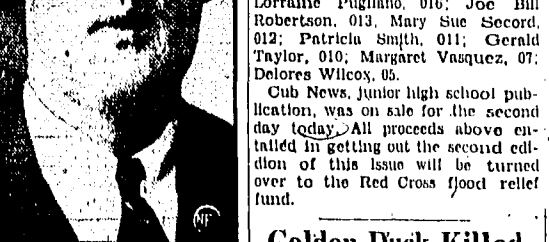

The Cincinnati Reds' great pitcher said that in all of his six years in the major leagues he couldn't remember hearing a single hand clap, foot-stomp, cat-call, whistle, or hoot. And that he was totally deaf to cowbells, firecrackers, yells, yowls and howls.

Sickening Feeling
"You mean to tell me," I asked with a sickening feeling in my heart, "that when you walk a couple of players in a close game and the customers start giving you the razz, that you don't hear them? That their screeches and bleats and insults don't beat against your ears, shaking you mightily and threatening to get your treasured goat?"

"Hell no," he answered. "And the same goes for all the other pitchers. Any time a pitcher starts hearing that junk he might just as well pack his suitcase and wire the folks at home he'll be with 'em soon. Because to hear that noise would mean only one thing—your concentration is gone. And unless you can concentrate out there on the hill you'll get your ears knocked off every time you get out there."

Answer Hurts
Paul's blunt answer hurt me deeply. And I imagine it will hurt the feelings of millions of other baseball fans. Because if there is one thing a baseball fan is proud of, it's his ability to upset an enemy pitcher in a tight spot. And if Derriinger is right, baseball fans have been living in a fool's paradise for years. They haven't bothered anybody, and all the games they took credit for winning with John Norby was top scorer for both outfits, collecting 11 points. Smith had 12 to lead Rupert.

Lineups and scoring:

STRIKES TO SPARE

WITH FRED STONE

Dell's took the odd game from Studebaker by the very narrow margin of three points.

Rolly Jones again led the victors, but with nothing to brag about. His 501 was high for his team. Maybe he was saving his good games for Sunday's special match.

Cap Bruenger, with two doubles his first game, got a 206 score, good for high single for both teams. After that Cap was washed up.

Bill McDonald never did get started. Bill and the No. 5 pin had quite a battle, the No. 5 pin getting the best of Bill.

N. O. Johnson got a turkey his first game, and doubled out his last one, but 10 splits in between ruined score, disposition and what have you.

Charley Bruuggemann struck out to win the first game for Dell's. He also got a double his second game, which he certainly needed as he had four splits that game.

Fargo, at lead for Studebaker, started off with four strikes in a row for an even 300. Not so good next two games.

Art Boone got doubles in both his second and third games. He also got seven splits.

Bob McCracken had a nice first and second game, getting two doubles in his second. He couldn't knock 'em all down his last game.

Ted Emerick got one double his first, two in his second, and hardly anything in his last game. Ted had plenty of trouble with his spare ball.

Brown, at anchor for Studebaker boys, got the high three game total for both teams with 531. Doubles in both his first and second games helped, and how. Only two errors for all night.

For the special match Sunday, the Idaho Mutual team lines up as follows: Rolly Jones, Fred Stone, Art Woods, N. O. Johnson and Charley Bruuggemann.

The opposition John Ford, Graf, Self, Walt Ruggert, Gail Fargo, Ted Emerick.

Match is set for Sunday at 2:30 p. m.

LOCAL MAN PLANS PATENTS FOR NOVEL NEW "SKI SLED"

Revolutionary Two-In-Line Device May Change Coasting Sport

A hobby of youth is today leading toward a patent by a Twin Falls man of what is probably the most novel, two-in-line "ski sled" yet developed in history.

The idea for such a sled came to L. Frank McCleary of 700 Jefferson, when he was a youth of 14 in the North Dakota hills, and today he is looking forward to production of the "new coaster," as he prefers to call it, and its marketing in all winter sports sections.

It Takes Skill
Skill is needed to maintain balance on the coaster as the only support is two runners, tandem fashion, made from luckywood wood by Mr. McCleary. The runners are re-enforced with stainless steel and the framework of the sled is made of structural tubing. It is approximately eight feet in length and can easily seat three persons on its webbed rope top. Less resistance can be gained by one man lying down on the top and steering by means of stunted handlebars which turn the front runner. The rear runner is stationary, excepting it can move up or down to absorb shocks.

Three times the sled has been taken to Sun Valley, but lack of snow prohibited the maker from giving it a good tryout.

He has been asked to demonstrate his invention before movie reel cameras at the resort in the near future.

Well Braced
Structure of the coaster is thorough, and it is braced throughout. Mr. McCleary estimates the speed will be greater than is obtainable on skis at the present time, and after a little practice, the rider will be able to maneuver it as well as an expert skiman is able to maneuver. It can also be jumped by an expert. Mr. McCleary claims.

All work on the coaster was done by Mr. McCleary with the exception of the welding, he said.

Really to appreciate the new invention the reader must see it and Mr. McCleary will be glad to show the sled at anytime.

Test Soon
With more snow now at Sun Valley he expects to give it a thorough test in the near future.

At the lodge, Austrian ski experts are said to have been most impressed with the coaster and say, if it is marketed, it will revolutionize winter coasting in resorts over the world.

DISEASE BATTLE TOLD TO P.-T. A.

Health Director Urges Home Cooperation; Legalized Gambling Rapped

Using as his subject the school nursing program and prevention of disease in the school, Dr. J. W. Hawkins, director of the county health unit, was principal speaker at the regular meeting of the junior-senior high school Parent-Teacher association last night at the high school building.

Hawkins stressed the fact that public health procedure cannot be carried out entirely by the doctor or nurse, but also requires the cooperation of the parents in the home. This, he said, has been done in Twin Falls and he thanked the parents for their "fine support."

Against Gambling

During the meeting the association went on record in opposition to legislation which would legalize gambling in Idaho. The association also voted to support the library extension bill which is now pending in the legislature. MUSICAL BELLS FOR BOVINE HERD

Dairymen Equips His Cows With Specially-Tuned Swiss Tinklers

CANTON, O.—John Stotzer's dairy farm near here has become the Swiss who are attracted by the melodious tinkling emanating from a group of bovine pygmy dunes equipped with specially tuned Swiss bells.

Stotzer imported the bells from Switzerland, where he lived as a youth, and where it is the custom for cows to be equipped with resonant bells made by experts.

Not Common Bells
The bells are not the common brass bells which American farmers buy for their practical purpose of helping them find their cows when they wander into the woods. They are cast from a silver alloy by expert Bell makers who look upon them as musical instruments and exercise great care to acquire proper tone and resonance.

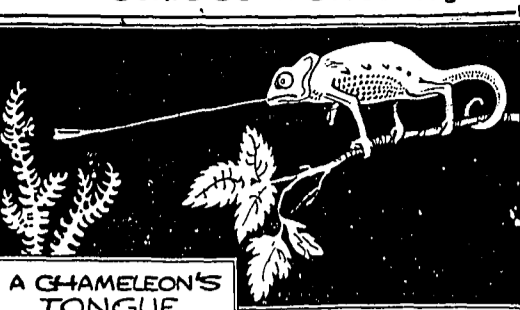

Price ensemble of the bovine orchestra is a group of 13 cows equipped with a matched set of bells which were imported from Switzerland. These bells are perfectly harmonious and all the other bells hanging from the necks of his herd of 40 Holstein cows had been selected to accord with them. They range in size from little bells weighing less than a pound to two weighing 10 pounds each.

Quieting Effect
Stotzer said the Swiss use bells principally because they make a pleasant sound although there are many cattlemen who think the sound of the bells have a quieting and comforting influence on "bossy."

MAY BE QUEEN

LONDON, Jan. 29 (AP)—Mrs. Wallis Warfield Simpson may be a queen after all. If she marries the duke of Windsor.

The weekly publication Cavalcade recalled today that when the duke, formerly King Edward VIII, was prince of Wales he was named king of the Manillatu tribe of Maoris in the South Pacific.

Edward's abdication, it was argued, would not affect his South Pacific title, so that if he married Mrs. Simpson she would be queen, at least, of the tribe.
