CHEMIST'S PROBE SEEKS CAUSE OF STUDENT DEATHS

Organs of Two Albion Normal Youths Sent to Boise For Examination
PLAN FUNERAL SERVICES
Post Mortem Fails to Lift Cloak of Uncertainty in Campus Mystery

ALBION, Feb. 13 (Special)—W. V. Leonard, state chemist at Boise, today was expected to examine the stomachs and other organs of Claude Butler and James B. Roberts, Albion State Normal students who, under mysterious circumstances, were found dead in their trailer house bed near the normal school yesterday morning.

Double funeral services will be held Monday at 1 p. m., from the L. D. S. church at Arcadia with Bishop Albert Brewster in charge. The bodies may be viewed at the respective family homes Sunday morning and afternoon, and Monday night one and one-half hours before funeral time, when they will be taken to the church. Young Roberts will be buried in Logan, Utah, and Butler in Rupert.

Dr. Charles A. Terhune and Dr. G. G. Espe completed a post mortem held over the bodies of the youths late last night. There was no indication of foul play, Coroner Joseph P. Payne said. Dr. Espe indicated there was no sign of asphyxiation. He did not comment, however, on whether he thought death was caused from food, or some other form of poisoning.

School Trustees Vote for Expert Building Survey

The death of the two boys, Roberts being a first year and Butler a second year student, cast a feeling of gloom over the school, where the boys were well known and popular students.

The two young men had been living together for only three days, having formerly lived in two separate trailer houses. Neither of the boys attended school Thursday and were last seen alive by a forest ranger at 5 p. m. that afternoon.

The bodies were found by Hugh Roberts of Arcadia, father of one of the boys, as he arrived with food supplies at the Arcadia high school, in which lived their families' residence.

The father of young Roberts immediately summoned Dr. F. I. Snyder of Albion, President R. H. Snyder of the normal school, and C. E. Simonson, business of the school.

One Window Open
Everything was in order in the trailer house and President Snyder said one window was open when

BUSINESS "GOOD" IS 1937 OUTLOOK

Commerce Department Heads See Prosperity; Won't Guess Amount

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Business is good and getting better, floods and strikes notwithstanding, commerce department economists agreed today but they would talk only in terms of the outlook for "further recovery" rather than of future prosperity.

The outlook for 1937 was "good," they said, with every indication it will be better than 1936. But they wouldn't hazard even a guess as to when the nation's business activity will reach the peak levels of the "prosperity days" of 1928-29.

Recovery, primed by more than $13,000,000,000 of government spending in the last four years, is now moving along under its own impetus, they contend. However, they pointed out, the situation might reverse if there should be a change in economic conditions abroad.

Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper viewed 1936 from the standpoint of business activity as the best year since 1930. The domestic recovery movement during that year, he said, was reflected in the increase in national income from $53,587,000,000 in 1935 to $60,000,000,000 in 1936, highest since 1931 when it was $61,000,000,000.

Other commerce officials estimated national income in 1937 would reach $67,000,000,000 which would be the highest since 1930, when it was $72,000,000,000, and about $11,000,000,000 under the all-time high in 1929.

WORK CONTINUES ON FARM PLANS

Legislation Being Drafted For Presentation to Congress

By FRID O. BAILEY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 (AP)—Proposed legislation for enactment of the administration new long-range farm program is being drafted by department of agricultural affairs. It was learned today.

Bills embodying the ever-normal granary, crop insurance and farm tenant aid will be sent to congress soon in the form which Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace believes they should be enacted.

Wallace already has completed hearings on the proposed legislation and has prepared recommendations which Mr. Roosevelt will submit to congress, probably early next week.

Swift Action Planned
Chairman Marvin Jones of the house agriculture committee promised swift action on the administration farm tenant legislation. He said a bill he introduced earlier in the session would be revised on the basis of President Roosevelt's suggestions.

Although the committee declined to make public the text of its report, it is understood to embody the principles laid down by Wallace and expressed in public addresses. The report will be released by the White House when it is sent to congress.

Rejects Loan System
Wallace has rejected any large-scale federal loan system to aid tenants to purchase farms. He estimated it would take an appropriation of $100,000,000 per year merely to take care of the annual increase in the number of tenants if a $4,000 farm were purchased for each.

If some way were found to halt the increase of tenants, it would take an annual appropriation of $50,000,000 for 230 years to solve the problem, Wallace said. The solution lies, he believes, in the direction of aiding tenants in becoming self-sustaining and in improving their economic and educational status.

WORKERS RETURN TO G M C PLANTS

1,000 Men Start Readying Of Factories for Operations

FLINT, Mich., Feb. 13 (AP)—Preliminary production has resumed today in Fisher Body plant No. 1, with nearly 1,000 maintenance employees returning to work after the 44-day sit-down strike.

Survey of damage in the three G M C plants here revealed Fisher Body No. 1 had suffered the most and probably will not be back on full time production until the latter end of next week. Damage in plant No. 4 of the Chevrolet Motor company, and in Fisher Body No. 2 was negligible, company officials said.

Those returning to work today included painters, metal workers and mechanical "trouble shooters." Their jobs, they said, was to get in shape for work on Monday.

National guard troops began moving out of the city. The 106th cavalry and the 10th field artillery are the first of the 3,300 soldiers to leave.

Duke and Mrs. Simpson May Wed In May at Vienna or on Riviera

By MARY FENTRESS

CANNES, French Riviera, Feb. 13 (AP)—It was generally accepted today that the Duke of Windsor and Mrs. Wallis Simpson, American divorcee, will marry either on the Riviera or at Vienna the first half of May.

I found on my arrival here from Paris at the coast retreat to which Mrs. Simpson fled while her royal fiance last December abdicated the throne of the British empire for her love, that the marriage was considered definitely settled and only the date and place remained to be set.

Princess Is Guest
The English royal family's negotiations with the duke at his Austrian refuge in voluntary exile had nothing to do with his forthcoming marriage with the dashing American woman from Baltimore, Md., it was said here.

The princess royal, his sister, now at the Duke's castle outside Vienna—he is the guest of Baron Eugene de Rothschild, the banker—there had other things to discuss.

Mrs. Simpson was guest of honor last night at a dinner at the Hotel restaurant here given by Henry Claws, jr., New York. There were 22 guests including the Comtesse de la Salle. Other persons were turned away while the dinner was held.

Goes to Casino
Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Simpson went to the Casino at Monte Carlo with her close friend, Mrs. Reginald Fellowes of London. She did not enter the gaming rooms.

In Cannes, I found it generally believed that the princess and her brother were discussing whether Mrs. Simpson should take the title of duchess and royal highness after her expected wedding.

Another delicate question they were said to be trying to solve was where the duke's bride-to-be would rank in royal prestige.

As far as I could learn, that problem remains unworked by the princess royal's visit to Austria, but it was expected to be solved by further negotiations, among the royal brothers of Great Britain before the proposed marriage.

Martial Law Declared At Indiana City After Gunfire in Labor War

700 Union Men Head To Battle
5 Reported Hurt In Clash With Organizers

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 13 (UP)—National guard troops clamped martial law over Anderson today as officials sought to repel a mass invasion of 700 men reported on their way to take sides in a feud between union and non-union forces.

State troopers threw blockades across all highways leading into the city.

Violence broke out early today in a long-standing quarrel resulting from attempts of United Automobile Workers to organize two General Motors subsidiary plants. Shotgun roared and at least five were injured, two seriously, in the outbreak.

Gov. Clifford Townsend declared martial law over all of Madison county (Anderson) after five persons were reported injured in clashes between the warring forces.

Two hundred and seventy-four troopers arrived in the city less than an hour after the governor issued his order. They went immediately to the intersection of highways 9 and 28 north of Anderson and set up machine guns across the road.

Roads Blocked
Cars were blocked for a half mile on either side of the intersection as guardsmen waited with fixed bayonets.

Authorities believed a caravan of about 50 automobiles from Flint and Lansing, Mich., would attempt to use that entrance into the city.

The troopers were stationed about 13 or 14 miles north of Anderson. State police, barred by state law from mixing in labor disputes, were expected to be withdrawn as soon as the full force of troopers arrived. State officials explained police were called in earlier to "preserve life and property."

The city was tense but quiet.

The Guide Lamp plant, General Motors subsidiary and apparent center of the dispute did not open at 7 a. m., and workers made no attempt to enter.

The plant, closed by a sit-down strike Dec. 31, reopened Feb. 1 on a part-time basis. Officials at the huge plant said approximately 2,000 men were at work yesterday.

Union officials, members of the United Automobile Workers of America, said the number was closer to 400.

Operations Resumed
Both the Guide Lamp plant and Delco Remy Auto Lamp resumed operations shortly after negotiators at Detroit agreed to withdraw strikers in General Motors plants.

Work continued on a part-time basis even as strikers at Flint continued to hold parties there.

Townsend informed Mayor Harry R. Baldwin that 1,000 troopers would be in Anderson within a few hours. He said mobilization had been ordered at Terre Haute, Bloomington, Greensburg, Franklin, Shelbyville, Indianapolis, Lebanon, Crawfordsville, Attica, Lafayette, Delphi, Wabash, and Darlington.

DETROIT, Feb. 13 (AP)—No official union delegation has left Detroit or Flint, Mich., for Anderson, Ind., Homer Martin, international president of the United Automobile Workers union, announced today.

$5 LICENSE FEE ASKED IN HOUSE

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 13 (AP)—A new bill providing $5 flat fees for automobile licenses was introduced today in the house of representatives by the house "reference committee" on behalf of W. C. Thornton, Gooding county.

The measure provides for a five dollar flat fee for passenger cars, a $10 rate for hearses and ambulances, and a graduated scale for trucks, trailers and buses.

Thornton's measure accompanied 12 new bills presented to the house this morning.

Among regulations proposed was one which would levy a one-half of one per cent license fee to be paid by contractors before they may enter contracts with the state. The fee would be computed on the amount of individual contracts.

Other measures which were placed in the house hopper included a bill to reduce the residence time for students at education units in the matter of payment of tuition, a bill providing for a state board of pharmacy, a $40,000 appropriation for payment of delinquent taxes by the farm mortgage fund, an appropriation of $1,176 for relief of Mrs. J. P. Kohler and A. M. Hennen, Kootenai county, for injuries received in a highway accident allegedly the result of negligence on the part of state highway department workers.

Establishment of a state phosphate commission for the purpose of developing Idaho's phosphate deposits, was asked in another house bill.

The house calendar was continued strong today with indication that night sessions would have to be held in the near future, possibly tonight.

Applies with letters spelling out "Twin Falls" were placed on display at the Sun Valley lodge tower. The fruit oddities were taken to the valley by the delegation.

It was understood here that patterned betting will be arranged for the crowds at the dog race.

EXTRA POLICE GUARD QUINTS

CALLANDER, Orl., Feb. 13 (AP)—Extra police today guarded the Dionne quintuplets after reported kidnapping threats caused fears for their safety.

The guard was increased from two to five although provincial police authorities were skeptical of reported plots to seize all five girls.

The wife of a former police chief of Etobicoke township in northern Toronto told Toronto authorities that she had received telephonic warnings last night from a man who refused to identify himself.

He told her, she said, that while riding on a bus in northern Ontario he heard two men talking of a kidnapping plan involving the quintuplets.

When the woman asked for further details, he hung up.

Provincial police at North Bay were notified immediately. Two guards and a special constable were sent to join the two constables regularly assigned to the Dafoe hospital where the babies live.

What's Doing at SUN VALLEY

(By Evening Times Special Correspondent)

MADLINE CARROLL BACK AT SUN VALLEY ON THIRD VISIT

SUN VALLEY, Feb. 13 (Special)—Whether it was premeditation or mere coincidence we don't know, but for some reason or other, the Union Pacific railroad sent as resident physician to Sun Valley Lodge this week, one Dr. J. Frost. And he is not, he holds the undisputed distinction of being the only man in the United States whose name is actually Jack Frost.

Regarding Paramount, one of the drivers, known to the brotherhood as back-hounds, slashed off the road into several feet of snow with one of their larger White trucks, one of those monstrosities with several sets of dual wheels in tandem. After an hour of tugging, a perfectly harmless looking Caterpillar tractor had the truck reinstated on the right-of-way. The whole procedure looked for all the world like Mickey Mouse leading Tom to safety.

Madeline Carroll is returning to Sun Valley for her third visit. Mrs. Astley, as Madeline is known on the records of wedlock, is to our notion one of the loveliest and most gracious of the stars, truly a shimmering satellite, and we are all agog in anticipation of her return for another week in this winter wonderland.

PLOWS OPEN UP BULK OF ROADS

All But 13 Miles Out of 123 Available to Traffic This Afternoon

All but 13 miles of the 123 miles of highways blocked in the Twin Falls highway district by the blizzard the first part of this week, were open to travel today, J. D. Simema, district director, said this afternoon. Since the plows started working Monday, 10 miles of road have been opened, he points out.

The only roads listed as closed today was that in the McMaster flats east of Hollister; two miles of road north of Kimberly, and about five miles east of Hansen.

During the night a snow plow truck and pusher succeeded in clearing one and one-half miles of road, and during Friday four miles were cleared. The snow removal, Simema says, is extremely difficult because rains have made the snow wet and heavy, and it is almost impossible for the plow to break through.

The state highway office at Shoshone today reported all state roads open, with but few exceptions.

Work at Fairfield
Plows are still working in their attempts to open the road into Fairfield. The Buhl-Clover road is closed and the Buhl-Castelford road, closed for several days, was expected to be open by tonight. The Burley-Oakley road is open.

Snow slides in the mountains skirting the highway from Ketchum to Horse creek, at the foot of Galena summit, have blocked the road above North Fork, officials said today. This road is seldom traveled in winter, they point out.

The Old Oregon trail is open its entire distance, but narrow stretches are reported west of Bliss. Caution is urged in traveling because of slippery conditions.

Urges Detour
Officials still urge motorists traveling through Wendell to Gooding on the north side highway, to go by way of Shoshone. The Wendell-Gooding stretch is extremely rough and rutted.

Low temperature in Twin Falls was 17 above, the official report of the bureau of entomology reveals. High temperature Friday was 41 above and 27 above. Precipitation Friday totaled .01 of an inch.

Today in TWIN FALLS snow continued to melt and in some sections water covered the streets. Forecast calls for occasional rain or snow Sunday.

CITY DRAWS UP AIRPORT PRINTS

Additional blueprints on the Twin Falls airport project were being drawn up today by the city. Mayor Duncan McD Johnston said.

The added plans, made necessary because federal engineers found that leveled strips will be needed to supplement the 150-foot runways originally marked out, were being prepared by C. Wynn Dierig, engineer. They will be forwarded to Boise headquarters of WPA.

Release of funds on the project awaits final federal approval of adequate specifications for the air field.

More than 100 towns and cities in the United States have names containing the name of the national bird, the eagle.

3-WAY ACCIDENT INVOLVES AUTOS

First Machine Skids Into 2nd Vehicle, Forcing It to Strike Another

A three-way automobile accident early yesterday evening in the vicinity of Main north and Fourth street north, caused considerable damage to the cars involved but no personal injuries, police reports showed today.

The cars involved were driven by Russ Rayburn, Miss Ruby Huff and George Baird, all of Twin Falls.

According to the report, the car driven by Rayburn, traveling up Main street, skidded 90 feet on the slippery pavement striking the rear of the machine being driven by Miss Huff. The Rayburn machine then skidded sideways, striking the left side of the Baird machine, which was traveling in the opposite direction.

The radiator on the Rayburn machine was broken, and the two front fenders and left front wheel bent. The left rear spring of the Huff machine was broken as was the rear bumper, while the Baird machine had the left rear wheel broken and fender damaged.

BOARD VOTES TO SECURE PLANNER

School Trustees Will Have Educational Expert Map Building Needs

The planner, selection of the committee to pick the educational expert, and on choice of architects.
Presents Request
Divided opinion flared at the start of the session when Mrs. Ralph B. Smith presented the request for expert planning before the board proceeded with plans for building expenditures.
"As I stated at a former meeting," Mrs. Smith said, "my position is that we should first employ an expert in school planning, have him survey our educational requirements, both present and future, and submit his report for our consideration."
"I do not feel that this board, any member of it, nor our superintendent is so qualified to plan a development for our future educational needs. We cannot expect support in the voting of this board issue unless our foundation plans are better formed than they are at present," Mrs. Smith informed the board.

"I do not intend to vote on the building program without this expert advice on our needs," she offered a motion for employing of a competent school planner to make such a survey and to report to the board and Stpt. W. B. Smith.
"We are not capable of visualizing future needs," Mrs. Smith said.
"Do you think anyone is that qualified?" asked E. F. Stettler.
"I believe an expert is better qualified than we. The public is entitled to his services. My point is not to railroad this thing through."

"I don't see how any expert could be fortunate teller enough to inform us of our needs for the next 15 or 20 years," Mr. Stettler observed.
"But it would be his A B C's to him," Mrs. Smith answered promptly.
Sees Correlation
Mr. Stettler asserted belief that the present school system is "ideally located," and Mrs. McCoy entered the exchange of views by saying an expert could "correlate and sift our opinions. If he knows his business, he will be able to map a middle-of-the-road plan acceptable to all."

S. H. Graves then told his colleagues: "This proposition doesn't seem to me to be so complicated. On our map of the recent census of school population, we couldn't spot three grade schools to serve the public any better than they do now. It boils down to this—our purpose is to educate the children, to work out a plan to house them comfortably, efficiently and safely. When we do that we are fulfilling our duties to the taxpayers."
L. J. Tenchincin asserted that "I don't believe we are ready for an auditorium without such a survey, but I do feel we need the grade schools now."

Mr. Stettler pointed out that the auditorium, together two years would cost approximately $25,000 more than present estimates because of rising bond costs, construction expenses and similar increases.
Outvoted
The two women were outvoted on the viva voce balloting. Chairman George J. Ward voting to defeat the survey measure in its first test, 4 to 2.
The vote on elimination of the auditorium brought another disagreement. Introduced by Mr. Graves, the resolution carried the first time until wiped out later by the action removing the proceeding from the record.
Chairman Ward's vote tied the ballot at 3-3, with the women and Mr. Stettler voting no. The chairman's additional vote provided by statute in case of a deadlock carried the elimination measure. 4-3 Members balloting in favor of the auditorium indicated some opposition to the location suggested on the junior high playground but favored the auditorium idea as such.
After hearing Mr. Morse and J. A. Pennell briefly, the board then opened the architects' bids providing the five per cent fee on the total of construction finally decided on.
Mr. Graves' motion for balloting to name the architect brought the third disagreement of the session. Mrs. Smith and Mrs. McCoy refrained from balloting as a result of defeat of the proposal for expert survey before going ahead, and the resolution to select the architect carried 4-0.

Choice Varied
On the first attempt, Mr. Morse secured one vote for the entire construction project and one for a split contract. Tourtellotte and Hummel and Ernest H. Graves received two for the entire job and one for a split assignment.
Seeking unanimity, Mr. Tenchincin said: "We need the buildings and we've got to get together and do something."
Mrs. Smith informed him that she saw no reason for not holding to her plan for the survey, and received added backing from Mrs. McCoy's statement:
"There's no question but that I was put on this board for the very reason of backing up Mrs. Smith, and that's exactly what I am doing."
The others, agreeing that if the expert survey could be procured speedily it would not hold up the program too long and would give authoritative program suggestions, then reversed their previous stand and acceded to Mrs. Smith's resolution.

Previous Moves Killed
Mr. Stettler moved that previous proceedings of the meeting be eliminated and stricken from the records, and "that steps be taken to employ an educational director, to make a survey of our educational building requirements."
The resolution passed unanimously, thereby striking out the previous actions on elimination of the auditorium and in originally voting down the survey suggestion.
Mrs. McCoy moved that Mrs. Smith, Mr. Graves and Stpt. Smith be named as a committee to select the educational director for the survey. The group is to report its choice to the board at a special short meeting. The proposal carried all votes.
Contingent on Bonds
Then came the final balloting on the architect, and Mr. Morse's bid, in association with Mr. Lash and Mr. McQuaker, was accepted. It was made dependent on approval of the bond issue, and the architects are to confer with the educational planner at no charge to the board. When final approval is given by the trustees to the definite building plan decided on, Mr. Morse and his associates will draw up estimates for the proposition which will be submitted to the voters by the board. If the proposals carry, they will immediately draft detailed plans for the buildings.

HONORS PAID DR. C.A. WETHERBEE

A. F. & A. M. Conducts Rites At Graveside in Local Cemetery

Dr. Charles A. Wetherbee was paid final tribute at impressive rites held yesterday afternoon at the Twin Falls mortuary chapel where associates in his profession, members of the Masonic lodge, with which he was actively associated, friends and neighbors gathered for the services. Dr. Wetherbee succumbed to a sudden heart attack on Tuesday after living here and at Buhl since 1908.
Rev. E. L. White, Methodist minister, who officiated, described Dr. Wetherbee as one who was always unassuming and was devoid of anything like duplicity and could be trusted with any confidence.
Music included two of Dr. Wetherbee's favorite songs, "I Need Thee Every Hour" and "The Holy City," sung by Miss Juliet Hayden, accompanied by Mrs. Carl Benson.
Graveside rites were conducted by Twin Falls Masonic lodge of which Dr. Wetherbee had served as master. Pallbearers were members of the lodge, W. A. L. Stowe, Herbert Clendon, Ralph Morse, Dr. R. A. Sutcliffe, Charles Kingsbury and W. O. Smith. Honorary pallbearers were Dr. J. N. Davis, Dr. D. L. Alexander, Dr. Charles F. Beymer, Dr. C. A. Emes, Dr. W. F. Passer, Dr. George C. Halley, Homer Saxon, Emmett F. Asbury, James Tröllinger, Asher Getchell, A. A. Timm and E. A. Landon.
Interment was in Twin Falls cemetery.

Promenades

LONDON (AP)—One of the most popular features of the new Empire flying-boats are the spacious promenade cabins, a survey reveals. Reports showed that passengers spend much of the time while in flight in walking up and down the promenades, watching the scenery passing below.
There are 330 parishes with 600 clergymen ministering to more than 2,500,000 persons under the Bishop of Southwark, England.

NO TIME TO LOOK BACKWARD

The greatest hope for labor, for industry, and for the American people generally lies in a vision of a standard of living and an industrial level far above that achieved in 1929.

For a time, in the depths of the depression, it became the fashion to look back to 1929. "Our job," we said, "is to get production and wages back to the 1929 level."

Increasingly, we begin to see now that it is no such thing. We have seen production and wages rise in many industries, such as the auto business, to around that level. And it is not enough. We know now that the unemployment problem, and our other besetting problems, will not be solved by any such thinking.

One by one, leaders have been expressing this point of view, this vision of a level of production and living far beyond the limping prosperity of 1929, which meant millions unemployed even then, and a scale of prices which largely nullified the high wages that then prevailed.

Latest of these prophets of plenty is Dr. W. E. Wickenden, president of Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, O. In a recent speech to industrial and civic leaders there, Dr. Wickenden observed that industry needs "a first-class prophet who can dramatize and idealize the great task of serving more people, giving them more and better goods at less cost, and creating more, better, and higher-paid jobs."

The unemployed, Dr. Wickenden emphasizes, can never get jobs in merely satisfying our old needs. Their jobs lie ahead in "satisfying wants we have yet scarcely discovered, in industries not yet created, using processes not yet invented, and employing facts of nature we have not yet even discovered."

Spreading our present income more equitably, through the higher wages the present strikes are aimed at getting, is not enough. "High wages benefit a few," Dr. Wickenden notes, "and their effect is temporary. But lower costs benefit everybody, and their effect is lasting." The exhaustive Brookings reports on the economic situation have already suggested such a solution.

Research, effective management, enterprise, and vision, those are the things which are going to lead us forward to a higher scale of living than ever before.

You need not be a philanthropist, or a sentimentalist who wishes more people to have more things because it is nice for them. All you need to be is one who looks facts in the face and sees the direction in which our high-gear industrial machine is headed.

That machine is not a stationary engine. It moves, and to run at all, it must move in the direction of greater plenty for more and more Americans.

SIXTY-SIX YEARS

An old, old lady died the other day in an Ohio country town.

She was 97 years old. You immediately conjure up a picture of a life full and overflowing with productive years and ripe, useful living.

But that doesn't happen to be the picture. It happens that this old lady had been living for the last 66 years in a county poorhouse.

That means that when she was 31 years old she entered this refuge, and lived by public support, until she died at 97.

Leaving aside the fact of public support, which would have been necessary just the same under the coming old age pensions, is this the best use we can make of 66 years of a woman's life? Just letting her sit, day after day and year after year? Society has lost more here than just the cost of supporting the Ohio lady.

The pension systems now going into effect are part of an effort to do better than this in the future. They are part of an effort to face the problem, not merely to forget it as the old Ohio lady was forgotten for 66 long years.

Discovered, the Basenjis! They are tiny dogs that wash themselves, can't bark and don't smell doggy. Now if the fanciers will breed them so they won't get sick to their stomachs or have sore eyes we've got something.

Ginger Rogers sold one kiss for $400 to aid in flood relief. There's an idea for putting over the Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce drive for funds. How about inviting several of the movie celebrities at Sun Valley down here for a day or so?

An actor refuses to gaze at himself on the screen for fear of becoming sick of himself. And making it unanimous.

A government bureau urges that citizens repair their homes. Ohio valley residents might begin scraping off the barnacles.

POT SHOTS

WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row

CENTRAL GOT BACK AT HIM THERE!

Pot Shots: Consider the case of Harry O'Halloran and the thoughtful telephone operator.

Harry has been in the habit of phoning central at 7:30 a. m. each morning and asking for the correct time. But Friday morning Harry had a chance to get some extra sleep, so when 7:30 came he was still pounding off the snoozes.

But central rang his phone and informed him sweetly: "It's 7:30."

SAD CASE OF THE MIXUP

Dear Pot Shots: Russ McFarland says that since the Times carried the fact that the McFarland baby was one sex and the News said it was another, he's now so mixed up that he doesn't know himself what kind of an infant he has.

(P. S.—It's a boy.)

OLD-FASHIONED BALLOTS

Mr. Pot Shots: Old fashioned or modern? Hmm! Well, there's plenty to be said for both sides.

Just cause I'm old-fashioned—which seems to me the only logical way to be—I don't misdo the menfolk like their modern girls just as well. Howsoever the old fashioned kind seem to last them longer! After all is said and done, most of the "men critters" like to eat, rest, and sleep in peace and comfort, seems like.

And apparently they rest better when you're crooning "Husha Bye Baby," and go in to see how the pies are coming along, than when you paint your finger and toe nails, light a cigarette, and phone about a date you've made. Now, I think I'll go bake apple dumplings for supper. Pa likes them.

—Katie the Cook

Mr. Pot Shots:

I'll take the old-fashioned kind, like my Katie. I come home and find a hot supper ready, every day. On time, too! My socks are darned, buttons sewed on, and she even warms my underwear and house slippers by the fire for me, these cold mornings! Your modern gals do that? And hash ain't all she cooks. Ever try fresh churned butter on good old cornbread, or hot biscuits or buns, fresh from the oven? And chill with red beans? Boy, she cooks 'em in a dishpan, kettles don't hold enough!

And she warms my cold feet when I come back to bed after building the fire of mornings! If you know a modern gal that does all that, don't tell me, for I wouldn't believe it, anyway.

—Pa

P. S.—And I ain't out a dime a year for cigarettes for her.

WE'VE DISCOVERED

that Pot Shots has another enthusiastic fan. She's a little girl who will be four years old Sunday. That makes two fans we're sure of. The other is a five-year-old boy. Maybe we should switch our talents to bed-time stories for the youngsters. Anyway, our latest sure-fire fan demands the paper every night and clips out the picture of the gent with the telescope. Her mother finds said pictures strewn all over the house. As a birthday present we've sent the little girl the nickel we found on Second street yesterday. When we get rich we'll give out dimes like John D. Rockefeller, sr.

"TOBACCO SMOKE IN MALE EYES"

Pot Shots: It would be as difficult to convince a modern flapper that she is wrong, as it was to keep an old fashioned girl from fainting when any part of her anatomy became exposed.

It was not the 19th amendment that made the modern Jane unaffectionate, but it was the abuse of woman's suffrage. She successfully appealed for the added right to tread upon the toes of the doctor, the lawyer and the statesman, and so she naturally killed the gallant spirit in the heels of the descendants of Adam and blew his eyes full of tobacco smoke.

WELL, WELL—A VOTE FOR THE MODERN GIRL!

Dear Pot Shots: I've never written to you before but I'm interested in "Modern Girl vs. Old Fashioned Girl."

I'll take the modern girl. "Old fashioned" faints all over the place at the drop of a hat. You couldn't smoke, near her, dear no! She was far too delicate to stand the strain. The modern girl helps you smoke them.

You can swear around "Miss Modern" without her having heart-failure. Maybe she can even fetch you some new words herself! I'm waiting to see if this lands in the waste basket.

—Sherry

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

By Dennis Wheatley © 1937, NEA Service, Inc. William Morrow & Co.

BEGIN HERE TODAY

BOLITHO BLANE, British financier, disappears from yacht owned by his principal competitor, CARLTON ROCKSAVAGE, on Miami. A note found in Blane's cabin, addressed to his secretary, NICHOLAS STODART, indicates suicide since he faced bankruptcy. A memo written by Stodart shows Blane's company stock, ARGUS BUDS, closing at a new low that day.

Other passengers aboard the yacht GOLDEN GULL are MISS FERRY ROCKSAVAGE, Rockavage's daughter; LADY WELTER; REGINALD JOCKLYN, Mrs. JOCKLYN, Lady Welter's daughter and son-in-law; the BISHOP OF BUDE; COLONEL LIKIE POSODINI, and INOSUKE HAYASHI.

Detective Officer KETTERING, boarding yacht at Miami, finds strange marks on Blane's cabin, and blood on curtain. Upon examination, Rockavage admits inviting Blane aboard to effect amalgamation of their companies. Mr. and Mrs. Jocklyn reveal Lady Welter is heavily interested in Rockavage stocks.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER VII

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAMES'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S EXAMINATION OF LADY WELTER.

K: Good morning, Lady Welter. Take a chair, please.

L. W.: Thank you, I prefer to stand.

K: Just as you wish, lady. L. W.: What is it you wish to see me about?

K: Isn't that rather obvious? You know that I'm the officer in charge of the investigation of Mr. Bolitho Blane's death.

L. W.: And what has that to do with me?

K: Nothing—nothing, as far as I know, Lady Welter, but this is just a matter of routine and you won't mind answering a few questions, I'm sure.

L. W.: That all depends on the questions, young man.

K: Well, they're quite simple. It's just a matter of routine checking up, and I'd like you to tell me just what your movements were between the time of the yacht sailing from Miami and your going in to dinner last night.

L. W.: Are you accusing me... K: Now, now, have a heart, please. I'm not accusing anyone of anything, but it's my duty to get all these details which may seem stupid to you. Where were you when the ship sailed?

L. W.: I was on deck talking to the Bishop of Bude.

K: You saw the tender come off, then?

L. W.: I did and the bishop said to me, "That's Mr. Bolitho Blane," as the two men came up the gangway in to the middle of the ship.

K: The bishop knew Blane by sight, then?

L. W.: I don't know. I suppose so.

K: Right, what happened after that?

L. W.: The bishop and I went down to our cabins. When I came up to the lounge I found Mr. Rockavage with Mr. Blane's secretary and the bishop. The secretary was introduced to me and we sat there until Mr. Rockavage left.

K: What time was that?

L. W.: I really haven't the faintest idea. What has all this to do with me?

K: Patience, please. What happened after Mr. Rockavage left the lounge?

L. W.: If you must know, the Japanese gentleman came in and then my daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jocklyn. After the dinner bugle sounded Mr. Rockavage came in, too, but he went downstairs almost at once and some message came up that Mr. Blane was ill, so that we were to go in to dinner without waiting any longer.

K: Am I right in believing that you hold a large block of shares in the Rockavage companies?

L. W.: That, young man, is nothing whatsoever to do with you.

K: Did you come on this trip for pleasure?

L. W.: For my own reasons. This discussion is quite pointless.

K: All right, all right. I won't trouble you any more now, Lady Welter, but maybe we'll have one of these jolly little discussions together again, a little later on.

DETECTIVE OFFICER NEAMES'S SHORTHAND NOTES OF DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING'S EXAMINATION OF THE VERY REV. DR. STAPLETON THOMAS, D. D., THE LORD BISHOP OF BUDE.

K: Good morning Bishop.

B: Good morning—good morning. This is a very distressing affair—very distressing.

K: It certainly is, and I am sure you will forgive me bothering you just a few questions, so that I can check up on events last night. Now, perhaps you'll tell me what you were doing between the time of the ship sailing and going in to dinner last night.

B: I was standing by the after-rail on the starboard side of the ship, with Lady Welter, when we left Miami.

K: You saw Blane and his secretary come aboard, then?

B: Yes.

K: You are quite certain that it was Blane?

B: Oh, yes. I remarked to Lady Welter at the time how very much older he was looking.

K: You knew him before then?

B: I would hardly say that I knew him, but we met once about seven years ago. He was staying in an English country house where I also chanced to be a guest.

K: What happened after that?

B: Lady Welter and I went below shortly after the ship sailed. I changed for dinner and came up to the lounge at 8 o'clock.

K: Thanks, Bishop. That's all nice and clear. Now, what can you tell me about the objects of this party?

B: Well, it's just a pleasure trip, you know. I had hoped that it would be a most pleasant relaxation from my arduous duties. I have a large flock you know—a large flock.

K: But you didn't actually know that this trip was cover for a big business deal in which Rockavage, Bolitho Blane and Lady Welter were concerned?

B: No. I was not actually aware of that.

(AT THIS POINT STODART, WHOM WE HAD SENT FOR EARLIER FOR THE PURPOSE OF GETTING A FLASH PHOTOGRAPH OF HIM, CAME INTO THE CABIN. I SNAPPED HIM AS HE ENTERED. WE THEN SAW THAT THE BISHOP HAD COLLAPSED IN HIS CHAIR. AFTER A MOMENT HE CAME ROUND OUT OF HIS FAINT, APOLOGIZED AND MENTIONED THAT HE HAD HAD NO BREAKFAST. ALSO THAT HE SUFFERED FROM HIS HEART. DETECTIVE OFFICER KETTERING, HAVING CONCLUDED HIS EXAMINATION, HE ALLOWED THE BISHOP TO WITHDRAW IN STODART'S COMPANY.)

(To Be Continued)

Save this installment as evidence to help you solve the crime.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

The mind of a mother differs greatly from that of her husband. Emotionally speaking, that is. If more parents tried to take this into account, and could read the picture of each other's makeup, there would be calmer days, as a rule, than there are today in married life.

Women are usually one or two jumps ahead of the moment they are living in. Men live almost entirely on facts.

Mrs. Smith, for instance, this morning goes about her routine housework. Baby is taking his mid-morning siesta upstairs and Teddy is at school. John is in town at the office earning his thirty a week with his ledger almost entirely occupying his attention.

She's Free to Imagine Things

But Mrs. Smith can think of a dozen things as she makes beds and dusts the mantles, while John's conscious mind is engrossed with figures and reports. Under the green light, however, John is not entirely a machine. He hasn't forgotten what he is working for, or whom.

Out on the pike there is his little house and in it three people depending on him. They are well, he feels fit as a fiddle. The rent and grocer are paid and although there are things they all must do without now and then, there's the future still ahead. He sees the big picture, and it isn't half bad.

At home the bell has rung twice. Once it was a man taking orders for makeover rugs. The other was selling electric sewing machines at so much a month.

Mrs. Smith had money for neither and a desire for both.

The sun goes behind a cloud as she stops humming. At every turn now she sees the old filmy rug that has lost its color. And the old treadle machine at which she sits to mend a torn sheet makes her back ache, whereas it had never acted before.

HISTORY of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO—

Feb. 13, 1922 School will remain in session on Washington's birthday this year, according to a decision reached at the regular meeting of the board last evening which coupled with the decision the recommendation that the school observe the day with exercises of an appropriate nature.

Questions of economies for the next year were informally discussed looking toward the possibility of lowering the tax rate. On the basis of the fact that the cost for instructional service is the principal item of expense the subject of teachers' salaries for the coming year was introduced.

27 YEARS AGO—

Feb. 13, 1910 E. J. Ostrander, manager and principal stockholder in the Ostrander lumber company, Ltd., was in the city for a short time last week looking after the final details for the new yard and the buildings which were prepared by architect Burton E. Morse.

Behind The Scenes in Washington

TEST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13 — No doubt exists in the congressional lobby that Mr. R. has a definite type of man in mind for those dozens of new judgeships to be created under his patented judicial repacking process.

The new test of judicial capacity which is to be established is being described best by a new midwestern senator. He has indicated he would deny the story if it is published so it must be related only as apocryphal. But—

The senator has a candidate for a federal judgeship back home. To promote his chances, the senator took the train in to see the President. The three of them chatted a few moments, whereupon the judicial candidate was invited to withdraw while the senator took up another matter with the President.

Immediately after the judicial candidate withdrew, the President is pictured as turning to the senator and asking, in substance:

"Say, how is your candidate? Liberal on things?"

Note—The justice department is supposed to have an extensive private file on judges eligible for promotion, analyzing all the decisions they ever made in their lives on the basis of whether they are "liberal on things."

DISTRUST

The current situation, in which professed liberals, like Senators Norris, LaFollette et al., are growling about the President's liberal packing proposal, may seem to outsiders to be a strange contradiction.

The fact is he took them by surprise. They had been organizing for several weeks to take over his judicial show and drive for a different method of handling it by a constitutional amendment. A national rally had been called for next month.

However, surprise is not the real explanation of their dissatisfaction. Frankly, they do not trust all the judicial candidates who call themselves "liberals." Experience has taught them that, once a man gets a life job as a federal judge, he is likely to become independent of his formerly expressed political viewpoints.

Apparently they do not appreciate that President Roosevelt can move to increase the court to 20, 25 or 30, in case his newly proposed court of 15 fails to render the right kind of judgment.

WANDERLUST

A leading liberal, the rural electricifier, Morris L. Cooke, walked out on the new order the other day. He joined the "dear —" club of departing government officials who raved letters from the President, affectionately expressing his appreciation of their services. This time the "dear —" correspondence disclosed that the only reason Mr. Cooke was leaving was because he had long wanted to take a trip.

This definitely puts him in the category of 126,000,000 other people in the United States who read the steamship ads, but it is rather generally understood that Mr. Cooke did not get his idea from a travel ad.

Insiders recount he was dissatisfied with his job. He had a reputation in the new order of being a cracker-jack engineer, but a somewhat jacker-crack administrator. He suffered from Tugwellian administrative pains. In addition, he may have felt that he was jockeyed once or twice by superior authority of the new order into taking a milder view of the power issue than he would have liked to have taken.

Unhappiness rather than wanderlust, is, therefore, the accepted explanation. Apparently it has no wider significance.

MIEN

The supreme court justices managed to conceal rather well whatever effect Mr. Roosevelt's recommendation had upon them.

Inquiring newsmen were able to get in to see only Justice Sutherland. Asked for comment, he smiled, said: "No, of course not." Justice Roberts happened to be in Sutherland's office. He merely smiled and shook his head. The other justices, reached through their secretaries, asked to be "recused" (VanDeVanter) or flatly said: "No." (Stone).

The presidential message was passed along the bench during the argument of a case. Justice Butler was seen to lean over and say something to Roberts, but the other justices glanced over the message in stony silence.

Some justices may have suspected what was coming. A presidential adviser got in touch with one justice privately during preparation of the proposal.

Note—It is not generally known, but at the last session of congress, the court sent word privately to the house judiciary committee dealing comment on any bill affecting justices personally.

CLUBBY

Supreme Court Justice McReynolds continued to drive his own car after he passed 70 years of age. It is an open roadster. He has not been using it much lately.

Justices Butler and Van DeVanter usually ride to work in Butler's car. Butler, VanDeVanter, Sutherland and McReynolds usually ride home in Sutherland's car. They also are usually found voting together.

INGENUITY

A survey of judicial discussion during the last 110 years shows that every change now being suggested has been debated before, except the one suggested by the President.

Fear, Tragedy Stalk Flood's Exile Army at Memphis "Hotel" for Searching Refugees

Direct from the scene of the flood disaster sweeping down the Mississippi comes this eye-witness story by Mr. Fraser, newspaper and magazine writer. He tells of that vast army, who, with homes lost and families broken, find haven in hurriedly organized refugee camps.

By HUGH RUSSELL FRASER (NEA Service)

MEMPHIS, Tenn.—They come with babies in their arms—with little tots, half-clad, haggard, barely able to walk; they come in private cars, well-dressed, cheerful, thinking of a week or two in the big city with friends; they come in old trucks, sagging Fords, old worn-out rickety wagons; they come from prosperous little neighboring towns, talking of cotton and wheat.

They come in one vast exodus from the lowlands—all kinds and sorts of people, fleeing from the cold, relentless fury of Old Man River. Thousands of homes are filled overflowing with friends and relatives. Hotels are crowded. And in the refugee camps there is enacted day and night a strange drama. It is a drama of fear, bewilderment and above all, worry.

The uncertainty of the present is piled upon apprehension of the morrow. There is tragedy in a thousand faces, and much stolid indifference. Everybody is tagged with a number. The same number is given every member of the family, and to their dogs and cats and even chickens.

A tall, gaunt man is pushing through the crowd, hugging a violin case. He is William Chaezel of Luxor, Ark., who is "the best fiddler in the state."

A 50-year-old mother, who had been living in a tent with her children in the lowlands, arrives. She is cold and hungry. A miracle happens. She is given a second-hand fur coat, one of the few the Red Cross has on hand. Her face lights up with delight. For a moment she forgets her troubles.

A blind man comes through the crowd. He stops and chats. He says he has put into the safe care of a friend the only possession he has—a cow.

A Negro boy surrenders a flea-bitten dog. Pets are kept and tagged in a separate wing of the camp. A Negro sharecropper hands over his shotgun for safekeeping.

Far off in one corner, an aged woman and her daughter are resting on a pile of blankets. They point to another pile of bed-clothing. They look worried. They explain haltingly:

"Pa passed out on us. Friends gave him some whiskey just before we started to Memphis, and he got too much. We hope he's all right." Suddenly a man passes through the crowd singing. He has a booming voice. He is a mission pastor, and everybody stops to listen.

"Why should I feel discouraged? His eyes are on the sparrow. I know He cares for me." Tears fill the eyes of many refugees, but most of them just stare.

A woman nearby is recounting her troubles. She hated to leave her home, she says, "but the water was getting higher." There is a strained, anxious look in her face.

"My husband and I haven't slept for three nights," she says. "Last summer we didn't do much good with our little plot of land, and we were afraid if we left our little home we wouldn't find anything to feed the children."

"At least we had a slab of fat meat, some dry peas and a little meal on the rafters. But the water was an inch above the floor when we left."

Doctors everywhere are hastily inoculating babies, children, everybody. A child nearby screams with

No name—just a tag. Somewhere, perhaps, her parents are searching frantically for her. Meanwhile she waits and waits, and her eyes just will not stay open. Who is she? She does not know herself.

Seat 13 in the theater of flood tragedy—and this man missed it by one. Patiently he holds his youngster while they keep the long vigil waiting for the river to spend its fury. Both are tagged for identification.

That big sandwich tastes good to a hungry, tired little boy at the refugee camp. It is piled with food and bundled in warm clothes, but no one there can tell him just when he will be sent back to the home he knew.

pain as the needle goes into its arm, but soon is composed again. Nearby a Negro sharecropper is telling how he named his two-day-old son, "Highwater."

Along comes a man with a long white beard. He is Frank Murphy, the hermit of Wolf river. He tells how narrowly he escaped death and how, eyes open wide as he tells it, "Nobody believes him but a few newsmen who know him."

He had been living in an old, abandoned concrete boiler foundation. It was circular, with a little door at one end. He kept pet mice in there. The mice saved his life one night by their screeching. They set up a canon when the water had reached the mattress. "There was still time to get out the little door. He says he knows he missed death only by an hour."

Odd little things are always happening in a refugee camp. One little girl was tucked safely in bed by a Red Cross volunteer nurse. They look worried. They explain haltingly:

"Pa passed out on us. Friends gave him some whiskey just before we started to Memphis, and he got too much. We hope he's all right." Suddenly a man passes through the crowd singing. He has a booming voice. He is a mission pastor, and everybody stops to listen.

A casualty in the skirmish with Old Man River, this veteran recuperates in a hastily arranged ward in the refugee camp. He may still look forward to returning to the home he fled—if it is still there.

Louisiana Groups Puzzled As Fighter Admits to Fictitious Name

The man who said his name was Willis said his conscience bothered him when he found he was supposed to "take a dive" in a scheduled fight with Torrance Wednesday night.

KEEPER TAKES BEES TO DIXIE EVERY WINTER

Pembroke, N. Y. O.P. John A. DeMuth, 55-year-old "bee man," has migrated south with his hive of bees, again for the eighth consecutive winter. DeMuth and his son, Jordan, are in Lake County, Fla., enjoying the southern sun while their colonies of bees busy themselves gathering nectar from blossoms in the spring, the two men expect to travel home with at least 1,000 colonies of bees and several 60-gallon drums of honey, most of it orange honey, which DeMuth says is "the best that can be made."

Every year when the weather gets cold DeMuth packs up his bees and heads south, where the bees creatures can continue their task of gathering honey.

"The important thing is to keep moving," he said before heading south. "We make the trip from Pembroke to southern Florida non-stop in 36 hours with three drivers on the truck."

"The reason" it is just this while you are moving the wind blowing through the hives and the vibration of the truck keeps the bees quiet. As soon as you stop they start jumping up against the screens, and if you left the truck standing for half an hour all the bees would be crushed to death."

Because the hives usually increase about three fold during a Florida season, DeMuth expects to make four of the 36-hour non-stop trips to bring home his bees next spring.

JEROME SCOUTS STAGE PROGRAM

Anniversary Celebrated With Rally Addressed by Area Executive

JEROME, Feb. 13 (Special)—Scout anniversary was celebrated with a rally of scouts, scouters and patrons here Wednesday night in the L. D. S. amusement hall. Amby Frederick, Twin Falls, scout executive for the Snake river area council, gave a brief informal talk, and Charles H. Weiteroth, chairman introduced officers of the district.

Frederick Speaks
Frederick commented on the activities of the scouts here and on the fact that scouts' demonstrations, signs and signals were made meaningful by the scouts' achievements. A large assemblage of parents, scouts and scouters witnessed the demonstrations, contests and skit, and heard the music.

Scout assemblies called by Bob Zeller and Harold Canada, buglers, opened and closed the program. All scouts gave the scout oath and pledge of allegiance, and both troops participated in the inspection. The troops divided for a tug of war.

Demonstrations of first aid measures by troop 38 and the pack rack by troop 40 were given.

Skit Presented
"What is a Boy Worth?" a skit, was presented by the following members of both troops: Leland Talking, Boyd Freeman, Seth Taylor, Jesse Robinson, Hall Bingham, Dee Russell, Grant Bingham, George Cox, Cole Reed, Leo Pyne, Ralph Peters, Jack Weiteroth, Glenn Owens.

Gustav Flechtner's German band played several numbers. Frederick led the scouts' vesper song. The troop procession was led by Scoutmaster Ralph King, and troop 40 by Scoutmaster Sam Hatmaker, and Walter Snodgrass served as pianist.

Il Duce and Hitler
Editor, Evening Times:
In a certain editorial in the issue of Feb. 8 of the Evening Times you said something about bluffing in a poker game.

If a poker player has a good hand, then he has a solid foundation whereon to build his procedure, and he does not have to resort to bluffing.

Der Fuehrer and Il Duce are now and have for some time been in the same situation. Their diplomatic procedure is based on the same foundation as France and England have been basing theirs on for a century or more. In other words, any time they felt as though they were able to grab a piece of territory anywhere they went right after it in a very direct manner without asking anybody's permission. Why blame the leaders of Italy and Germany for doing the same thing?

Not that I have any special love for these two hard boiled hooligans, but from the standpoint of diplomatic reasoning they are entirely in the right. They must have room for their growing populations. Although Germany is not now pressing her demand for colonies, Der Fuehrer has that question very deeply imbedded in his mind, and sooner or later it must be settled. If, at the close of the World war, the Allies had let Germany keep her colonies, then the question of German colonial expansion would not be in existence now.

Likewise with Italy. If that nation had been given a part of the territorial spoils of war instead of France and Britain hogging it all, then Il Duce would not have had to resort to his seemingly unjustified conquest of ancient Abyssinia.

In conclusion, let me reiterate a statement emanating from the mouth of no less a person than David Lloyd George: when the World war questions were settled there were at the same time new questions created.

Sincerely yours,
JOE SCHORZMAN

A NEAR-STARVING FAMILY
I have followed with considerable interest the discussion, pro and con, concerning "birds and babies" and I agree with some that there really isn't any connection between the two. If there is a fund for the starving children they will receive it, and the same goes for the birds. But this doesn't stop people with empty stomachs and half-eaten heads from raising a protest upon hearing about the enormous sum mentioned for the birds.

There have been howls from the sportsmen and women and howls from the kind-hearted sympathizers of the needy. I howled too. Here's why:
My children, although born in the state of Idaho, a state famous for its Idaho "spuds," look upon that vegetable as a delicacy. Yeah, even a luxury! They have fewer "spuds" than most children have cake and ice cream. They have a bit of cereal each morning with a half pint of milk and a spoonful of sugar. The only other meal they "enjoy" each day consists of water gravy and dry bread. Maybe a little cocoa, raisins or cooked carrots occasionally. And I said OCCASIONALLY!

Now coming to the day we read that $10,000 for starving birds' headline. We had been without bread or gravy for five days; our meal in the morning consisting of the usual cereal, (God bless the

ENSEMBLE IDEA CARRIED OUT IN NEW KITCHEN APPLIANCES

(NEA Service)

NEW YORK—Fashion really steps into the kitchen at the Housewares Exhibit here and makes it as attractive and interesting in its way as any room in the house.

The most significant trend among the myriad appliances shown is the "ensemble" theme. Co-operation of designers and manufacturers has developed uniform color tones so that, for instance, the blue of one appliance will match the blue of another. It is now possible for a woman to select any color, no matter how unusual, and have it dominate all of her household accessories. Items as unrelated as a mop and a toaster, can be co-ordinated by color. This idea makes for a charming, well-balanced kitchen.

Blue Latest Color
Delphinium blue is the new color fashion. Combined with white, it is found on all kitchen utensils in either a solid color, or dainty floral designs. Soft, subtle pastel shades are being substituted for the solid, vivid red and greens.

Streamlining has made another conquest in the field of housewares. Pots, kettles and saucepans are more useful than ever, because their streamlined guises enable them to utilize every available heating surface. Their covers fit more closely, too, to retain all food flavor.

Glass is growing enormously important for cooking utensils. Frying pans, baking dishes, skillets, double boilers—all feature glassware for beauty and convenience. The handles are heat-resistant. Colored wood is still popular for handles on aluminum and chromium ware. Glass knobs give a new perk to kitchen wares.

Foremost among the new gadgets is the super toaster that toasts three pieces of bread on both sides at one time. More than that, when the bread is toasted, it can be put in the toaster, which has automatic heat control, until the toast is ready to be served. There is a removable crumb tray at the bottom.

Another new convenience is a vegetable steamer, which stands in a pan of water. Broccoli can be placed upright in the steamer which stands in the bottom of the steamer so that a fork can be inserted for testing. When done, the flower is in perfect form instead of broken up.

Cleaning is made easy with a knee-action carpet sweeper. It is self-adjusting, and can be used on the thickest rug or barest floor. Small, light, and low, this sweeper has every advantage of easy operation and sanitary cleaning.

Damp-Proof Shaker
A bullet-shaped vacuum cleaner is an interesting cleaning device. Extremely small and light it is carried around in the hand, and has all kinds of appliances. The cleaner and gadgets come packed in a light-weight portable case.

Salt shakers have gone bullet-shaped, also. One pair has a patented cap and valve that keep the salt perfectly dry under all conditions. It is molded from plastic material, comes in all colors, and is especially easy to clean.

Even opening cans has become a pleasure. Just a lazy flip of the finger, and off goes a can cover—all achieved by a modest little gadget that sits gracefully on the wall.

Stove protectors to put over the top of the stove when cooking is finished, are an asset to any kitchen. Asbestos lined, these are done in all colors to match any decorations.

Foremost among the new gadgets is the super toaster that toasts

At left: New appliances that will modernize any kitchen include the all-glass double boiler (left), with heat-resistant handles, and chromium brocoli steamer behind it; two compartment breadbox (lower shelf), and canister set in white, trimmed with red; and on the top shelf, the aluminum double boiler, white pot with delphinium blue trim, and three-slice electric toaster.

Below: This tricky jar-opening device is a man of all work. Automatically controlled, it holds the cap of any size bottle or jar. Clamps hold the cap tightly while the jar is twisted loose. Appliances for squeezing fruit and opening cans, come with it.

Applications For NYA Assignment Open on Tuesday

Applications for new assignment in the National Youth administration will be made at the local offices starting next Tuesday, Feb. 16. Harold A. Salisbury, area supervisor, announces today.

In making the announcement Salisbury stressed the fact that applicants must come from families now receiving some form of governmental aid.

The applications will be taken to provide help in projects which it is planned to open just as soon as the weather moderates sufficiently.

Varied Work
NYA boys will probably assist in airport construction next spring, as well as at the city park fish hatchery and other places. The policy of the administration is that NYA labor is not to be used when WPA labor can be used, or when heads of families would be deprived of employment.

Girls will assist in office work, and at the hospital, but they too will not be allowed to conflict with other wage earners. Salisbury points out.

Several classifications and salary scales are noted in the administration. Common labor is paid $14 a month. General office work, such as file clerks and typists, are given $17 monthly, while stenographers and other skilled classes are paid $20. For higher skilled labor, such as laboratory technicians or teachers, $23 a month is given.

All classes are paid on the basis of 42 hours a month. The NYA encourages youth to supplement this work with as much outside employment as possible, and if outside jobs are found by the supervisor or which can be filled by someone on NYA rolls, that person is recommended for the position, Salisbury said.

With all his skill, the white man has been unable to improve upon the design of the Indian canoe. The birch-bark covering has been replaced by canvas, but the lines and model are the same.

CCC Members Keep Main Highway Clear Despite Two Blizzards

All roads in the Rock creek highway district are open to travel with the exception of a few scattered stretches. Edward McCarty, supervisor, reported today.

Many of the credit in keeping the roads open Mr. McCarty said, goes to the Rock Creek CCC camp, members of which kept the main road from Rock Creek to Hansen open at all times during the two recent blizzards.

CCC Enrollees Assist Minidoka Snowplows

RUPERT, Feb. 13 (Special)—With snowplows of the local highway district having considerable difficulty in keeping Minidoka county roads free of drifting snow, CCC boys from Camp Minidoka are furnishing no little amount of man power to supplement the efforts of heavy machinery.

Especially in farming districts near the camp the enrollees have made a big showing, keeping lanes and section roads accessible.
