Workers Killed in Crash of Platform From Bay's Bridge

Two Dead, Two Missing After Part of Frisco Span Falls

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 17 (UP)—A ten-ton platform used in construction of the Golden Gate bridge collapsed today, throwing six workers into the water.

Two were rescued alive, two were removed from the water dead, and two men were reported missing.

The two men saved, identified as Oscar Osburg and E. C. Lambert, were badly hurt. Osburg, foreman of the crew, was the more seriously injured.

The men fell more than 150 feet into San Francisco bay at the Golden Gate when the heavy platform on which they were working collapsed.

The platform tore through the safety net erected below the bridge, and the men dropped through the opening into the water.

Search for the men was abandoned immediately after the rescue of the two survivors.

Coast Guard Aids The coast guard men picked up another man and after sending him ashore, cruised the area seeking the bodies of the missing men.

One of the three men rescued was pronounced dead after resuscitation efforts failed.

The accident was the most serious in the history of the construction of the $35,000,000 structure which spans the Golden Gate at the opening of San Francisco harbor, connecting the San Francisco and the Marin county shores. Previously

Immediately after the alarm, the shored at the bridge engine house sounded the alarm. Its blast brought all work on the structure, which will be completed about May 1, to a halt.

Calls for help were sent to the U. S. coast guard service and two boats were dispatched from the nearby Fort Point and the more distant Golden Gate stations.

A fishing boat, one of the picturesque fleet that puts forth from fishermen's wharves daily in search of wharf, reached two of the men and hauled them aboard. The survivors were taken to shore for emergency treatment and then to hospitals. Osburg was found to be suffering from a fractured femur and internal injuries.

Most debate in an afternoon session of the house, which once again completed less than half of a 50-bill calendar, centered on a bill to set an additional tax of $3.10 per barrel on beer imported from outside the state.

The "tariff" was passed on pleas that Idaho industry should be encouraged, despite warnings of Thornton, Gooding, that it would "throw up a wall around Idaho" and Whittle, Franklin, that "Idaho is dependent upon other states and could expect only retaliation from such a measure."

Raises for the adjutant-general from $200 to $250 a month and for the national guard disbursing officer from $1600 to $1800 a year were approved. The house passed a bill granting exemption from execution of $150 worth of poultry and another measure to make farm products not subject to liens for labor.

Two dairy bills passed would regulate the industry.

Think U. S. May Follow in Footsteps of England Navy Building

TOKYO, Feb. 17 (UP)—The official Domei News agency reported today that naval circles were concerned over Great Britain's rearmament program, believing that the United States might follow a similar program and compel Japan to enter into an armaments race.

LONDON, Feb. 17 (UP)—An investment in national defense which works out at $168.54 for each man, woman and child in Great Britain—$42.70 for a family of five—is to be asked of the public in the next five years, analysis of the government's rearmament program disclosed today.

Three battleships, seven cruisers and two aircraft carriers are planned for 1937 alone, on top of the two battleships and seven cruisers in the 1936 program.

The government estimate of not less than $1,500,000,000 ($7,500,000,000) for the five-year defense program for the navy, army and air force, confronted the public with the necessity of paying dearly for the security of the islands.

Now Mrs. John Smith of Boston, once the wife of Lord Francis Hope, heir to the dukedom of Newcastle and owner of the famous diamond which is frequently believed to cast a "curse" on all who wear it, Miss Hope was taken from a transcontinental bus early today at the request of Union Pacific stage line officials.

COPPER HITS PEAK NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (UP)—Export copper advanced to a new seven-year peak of 14.10 cents a pound today, rising 10 points above the domestic level which was set at 14 cents a pound yesterday after a full cent advance.

Russia Seeks New Naval Conference for Europe

LONDON, Feb. 17 (UP)—Russia has proposed to Great Britain the calling of a new, big naval conference intended to bring a number of European powers into a joint treaty for exchange of naval building information and limitation of size and armament of warships. It was learned today.

The treaty would be similar to that which the United States, Britain and France signed March 25, 1922, and it was understood that Russia suggested that the United States be invited to sit in at any conference that might be held.

The British government has assumed a negative attitude toward the Russian suggestion for a conference, it was said.

Near Minski Russian ambassador, offered the idea to Sir Robert Craigie, assistant secretary for foreign affairs who is the foreign office naval expert. The suggestion was made last month but not discussed.

Britain, Germany, Russia, Italy, Turkey, Poland, Finland, Denmark, Norway and Sweden would be invited, and perhaps a few others, under the Russian plan. The United States and France, too, might be invited if they wished and at least offer their aid in getting the continental countries into one treaty.

OFFICIALS PROBE ASSAULT STORY

HONOLULU, Feb. 17 (UP)—Police today continued their investigation into a story reported today by Mrs. Charlotte Copping, 24, wife of a navy officer, who, they said, related that she was criminally assaulted by a "huge white man."

Mrs. Copping made her report, police said, following a party, and said she was dragged more than 75 feet from the house to a garage where she was attacked.

Physicians after making a series of examinations, reported there were no indications the woman had been assaulted and police said they could find no evidence of a struggle in the garage.

Police Chief William Gabrielson, of Honolulu, said, however, that "the inquiry will continue until we know exactly what happened. Mrs. Copping still is busy regarding many details," he said, "and we do not have the slightest clue to the identity of the reported assailant."

TIE-UP KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 17 (UP)—Things were pretty dull for Willis Frohock and John Schussler, radio scout and patrolmen, until they received an order to investigate a nude woman who had caused a traffic tie-up. They just managed to beat seven other scout car squads to the scene. The woman, young and blonde, had such a case of hicoughs she couldn't give her name.

Italian Motorship Sinks in Columbia River After Crash

SEATTLE, Feb. 17 (UP)—The Italian motorship Felice sank in the Columbia river near Rainier, Ore., after a collision with the S. S. Edward Luckenbach, which went aground in a terrific storm early today, coast guard headquarters reported.

It was believed no lives were lost. The Felice, which sailed from Seattle for Trieste last Friday, carried a crew of about 25 men, it was thought. She was loaded with lumber and general cargo and being operated by the General Steamship corporation.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 17 (UP)—Completely recovered from a mild attack of influenza, and rested by a month's vacation in California, President Heber J. Grant returned to his home last night.

President Grant expressed gratification at work being done by church members on the canal. He was accompanied by Mrs. Grant and a daughter.

SENATE TO GET BILL ALLOWING SPAN PURCHASE

House Passes Measure That Would Enable Buying Jerome Bridge

CAVANAGH REVEALS PLAN Assessment of One and Half Mills Would Be Made On Oil Sales

BOISE, Ida., Feb. 17 (UP)—Whether the state will ultimately purchase and maintain the Twin Falls-Jerome inter-county bridge across the Snake river today was up to the Idaho senate.

The house late yesterday approved a bill to levy 1 1/2 mills per gallon tax on gasoline sales. First proceeds would be used to purchase toll bridges—of which the Twin Falls structure is the only one in the state.

Dan Cavanagh, Twin Falls, explained that the tax would hit large oil companies whose incomes are not now taxed by Idaho. The amount of the tax would be deducted from state income tax payments, protecting Idaho operators.

"Even though our bridge is the only one to fall under provisions of the act, it will be a worth-while addition to the state highway system and should be purchased and maintained by the state," he declared, answering objections that the bill was a "pet" measure.

Turk, Shoshone, wondered if it wouldn't be cheaper to build a new span with a good share of the cost to be paid by the federal government, rather than to buy a "bridge soon to be obsolete."

The additional gas tax was approved 40 to 16.

MEMORIAL ASKS BACKING OF FDR

Approval of President's Plan To Increase Court Urged By Idaho Solons

BOISE, Feb. 17 (UP)—Approval by the Idaho legislature of President Roosevelt's plans for liberalizing the U. S. supreme court was asked in a joint memorial introduced in the house of representatives today.

The measure, sponsored by the judiciary committee, would urge upon congress "prompt enactment of the President's proposed reorganization of the federal judiciary."

Among other bills appearing in the house was a request by the agriculture committee for a $200,000 appropriation for noxious weed control. The funds would cover only materials and administration with plans being for the WPA to furnish labor as has been done in past seasons.

Apparently another plank in the governor's power platform, a bill by the revenue and taxation committee proposed a tax of 20 cents per acre foot upon all storage of water in Idaho for development of power outside the state.

Four measures dealing with municipalities would authorize increased tax levies for airport purposes, cemeteries and street improvements, permit acquiring of land outside city limits for flood, fire or erosion control.

Other house proposals included appropriations for the department of public works and agriculture, authorization of the state land board to set aside lands for state forests and to accept gifts of land for park or forest purposes.

JUDGE CONSIDERS CASE OF HAINES

BOISE, Feb. 17 (UP)—District Judge Charles F. Koelsch took under advisement the question of whether completion of minimum sentences entitles a prisoner to automatic release from the penitentiary, following a habeas corpus hearing today.

Action was brought in behalf of Carl Haines, serving a 1 to 14 year sentence for forgery, to test the state's indeterminate sentence law. The court action was financed by contributions from among the approximately 300 prisoners, whose future method of release depends upon outcome of the case.

Customer Wrong

BUTTE, Mont., Feb. 17 (UP)—Evan Williams, a bartender, today wondered whether the customer is always right. Last night a man who had been a customer for nearly an hour suddenly walked behind the bar, held up Williams and fled with $53. Within five minutes after securing a meager description, Asst. Police Chief Jack Dugan arrested a man whose name was given as Jack Clayton. Police reported that $53 was taken from Clayton's pockets.

ROBBERY TRIAL NEARING FINISH

Jury Expected to Get Case Today; Woman Defendant Placed on Stand

Jury members were expected to start deliberations late this afternoon on the fate of one woman and two men on trial in district court on charges of robbery.

The defense rested its case this morning on behalf of Marjorie Bess, 20, William Rector, 26, and Oscar Bradley, 30. The state immediately began on rebuttal testimony, which continued when court resumed after the mid-day recess.

Placed on the stand today by the defense, Miss Bess testified that the assault and robbery of G. A. McDowell, Twin Falls, was carried out by a group of three or four men whom she said she was unable to identify. She declared that she and Mr. McDowell walked from the rear of the Stockmen's club toward the Blue Front cafe, and that she fled back to the former establishment when the group of men attacked McDowell.

Other defense witnesses included Rufus O. Short, Earl G. Alworth, Mrs. Artie Priest, Frank Hamrick, Alma Conkling and Andrew T. Flynn.

Senator Moves For Amendment To Constitution

Solon Presents Measure Setting Justices' Ages

Burke Wants Voluntary Retirement Set at 70, Compulsory at 75

WASHINGTON, Feb. 17 (UP)—Sen. Edward R. Burke, D., Neb., foe of President Roosevelt's judiciary program, today introduced a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment providing that supreme court justices may retire at 70 and must retire at 75 on full pay.

Burke's constitutional amendment proposal was the second introduced in the senate today by critics of Mr. Roosevelt's plans which would call only for legislative action.

The other constitutional proposal was submitted by Sens. Burton K. Wheeler, D., Mont., and Homer T. Bone, D., Wash. They proposed in a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment that congress be given power to override any supreme court decision which invalidates an act of congress.

Continues Opposition Wheeler, who has long favored an amendment of the constitution to clarify congressional legislative powers or curb the supreme court, emphasized that he was continuing his opposition to Mr. Roosevelt's program.

His amendment proposal, he said, was not intended as a substitute for the President's plan, but should be enacted no matter what congress decides to do with Mr. Roosevelt's program.

The Burke plan would accomplish some substantial features of Mr. Roosevelt's plan—but would substitute the constitutional amendment process for simpler enactment of legislative judicial changes by congress.

The Burke amendment would bring about retirement of five present justices of the supreme court. Three are older than 75, and two will reach 75 during March and April.

The senate session opened today with a flurry over the judicial dispute. Resolution introduced by Sen. McCarran, D., Nev., introduced a resolution calling for all government departments to provide congress with reports of injunctions and court actions which have invalidated or delayed operation of acts of congress.

The resolution called for a statement of each case showing its effect upon the government departments or agencies such as the TVA, the labor relations board, the interstate commerce commission, etc.

Sen. Carl A. Hafler, D., N. M., read into the record a resolution passed by the Maine legislature immediately after the supreme court Dred Scott decision. He asked that it be inserted in the Congressional Record immediately after the resolution.

RED CROSS DRIVE ENDS SATURDAY

Flood Relief Campaign Will Halt Here; Total Now At $2,548.74

Drive to raise funds to assist those persons left homeless and in need by the recent floodwaters which swept the middle west, will end in Twin Falls Saturday, it was announced here today by Mrs. D. L. Alexander, Red Cross chapter chairman, and by Mayor Duncan McD Johnston, chairman of the disaster committee.

Today a total amount of $2,548.74 has been raised for relief purposes. A Wilson Peck, treasurer said. The quota listed for Twin Falls was $1,500, contributions received reaching far over the mark asked.

Children Helped A highlight of the drive for aid was the line marker in which the children, through the schools, churches and other organizations, and groups contributed. Mayor Johnston said today, "The general response received by our call for help is one for which the citizens of Twin Falls, Kimberly, Pler and other towns in this area might well be proud."

Mr. Peck, who compiled records on the success of the drive, said today he was "pleased with the way the contributions were given and people of this section were most generous in their donations toward these unfortunate people."

Will Send Balance Contributions will still be taken up to and including Saturday, Mayor Johnston points out. At that time the balance of the money which has not already been sent in will be dispatched for use of the Red Cross.

Guard Chief in Anderson, Ind., Overrules Order Of Judge

ANDERSON, Ind., Feb. 17 (UP)—Military and civil law clashed today in this industrial town, scene of a feud between union and non-union automobile workers. "Provisions of the federal constitution mean nothing under martial law," said national guard Colonel Albert H. Whitcomb. Circuit Judge Charles E. Smith, whose order Whitcomb overruled, convened his court to determine what he could do about it.

The clash grew out of an order issued by Smith that attorneys for the United Automobile Workers were to be permitted to see the 17 union men who have been held in custody by civil authorities since Saturday at the request of the military. Colonel Whitcomb, commanding national guardsmen enforcing martial law here, ordered the authorities not to obey the order.

Judge Smith will hold a hearing this afternoon on an application for a writ of habeas corpus that would free the men if granted. Whitcomb, by declaring the constitution non-operative, intimated that he would disregard a habeas corpus.

Whitcomb said he was responsible only to Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, his commander-in-chief.

At noon of Feb. 5, 1937, President Roosevelt sent to congress a historic message. It strongly suggested that congress enact new laws in order that the judiciary "may function in accord with modern necessities."

The message was accompanied by a letter from Attorney-General Cummings backing up the suggestions made, and a draft of a bill drawn in the department of justice to make the plan effective.

The message recommended several reforms in judicial procedure and in the conduct of the federal courts. Chief among them were plans for "a constant and systematic addition of younger blood," to "vitalize the courts."

Attention immediately centered on the proposals which applied to the U. S. supreme court, foundation (Continued on Page 3, Column 1)

SUN VALLEY BUS SKIDS OFF ROAD

Resort Passengers Get Thrill As Blizzard Strikes in Shoshone Area

Passengers in a Sun Valley bus traveling from Shoshone to the resort yesterday afternoon were given a thrill when the machine left the highway during a sudden, blinding blizzard and had to be released by one of the state snowplows. Officials of the state highway office at Shoshone revealed today.

No one in the bus was injured and it did not turn over, officials said today.

Visibility Zero

The blizzard struck that area about the same time as snow and a high wind visited Twin Falls. After a brief snowfall, officials point out, a sudden wind blinded motorists to such an extent that travel was impossible in the Shoshone district. At one time parked in the vicinity of the Ice Caves service station, 16 miles north of Shoshone, awaiting the storm letup. The high wind continued until sunset.

In Twin Falls the miniature blizzard struck almost without warning, but lasted only a few minutes and caused little trouble.

Roads Slippery

Today roads on the north side, adjacent to the north side highway, were slippery as ice failed to melt, highway officials said. All main state roads were open with the exception of the highway to Fairfield, which has been closed since last Saturday, the day crews succeeded in opening it briefly after six days of blockades.

In Twin Falls low temperature this morning was 11 above, with a low yesterday of seven above and a high of 39 above. A trace of precipitation was recorded, according to records of the bureau of entomology.

A forecast of cloudy weather, with light snows tonight and possibly Thursday, was made today.

OLD CATACOMBS STIR HAWAIIANS

Discoveries Reveal Honolulu Can Rival Rome, Paris Mysteries

HONOLULU (AP)—Discoveries just made by Fred J. Oht, superintendent of the Honolulu water bureau, and C. W. Wentworth, geologist, reveal that Honolulu can rival Rome and Paris for its catacombs, with pools of water in which eyeless fish grope, and the skeletons and relics of former generations can be found.

The discovery of the vast system of tunnels and caves underlying the entire city and extending as far out as Diamond Head was made when efforts were undertaken to find new sources of water supply for the city. It previously had been known that a few caves existed under the city, but it was only the recent investigations that developed the fact that the ground underneath the entire city is completely honeycombed with them and that they extend out as far as Diamond Head, three miles away.

Once River Beds

Unlike the catacombs of Paris and Rome, most of those underneath the entire city is completely honeycombed with them, and the skeletons and relics of former generations can be found.

The discovery of the vast system of tunnels and caves underlying the entire city and extending as far out as Diamond Head was made when efforts were undertaken to find new sources of water supply for the city. It previously had been known that a few caves existed under the city, but it was only the recent investigations that developed the fact that the ground underneath the entire city is completely honeycombed with them and that they extend out as far as Diamond Head, three miles away.

However, ample evidence has been found that since then, during long periods, the catacombs were used for human habitation the same as were those of Rome when they were occupied by Christians seeking refuge from martyrdom inflicted by Roman emperors.

In nearly all of the catacombs pools of water and even flowing streams are found filled with eyeless fish. Ample evidence exists in the catacombs of the fact that they had been inhabited in the distant past. A few skeletons have been found and also primitive household articles, and piles of charred shells of kukui nuts. The nuts were used both for light and oil.

Haveen for Fugitives

Various explanations have been put forward as to why the native population hundreds of years ago should have taken to these underground chambers. The most likely seem to be that in tribal warfare they offered a safe retreat. Another is that there were in the past various taboos, consisting of strict religious and civic customs, for whose violation death was the penalty and the catacombs offered a means of escape for fugitives.

It has been impossible to ascertain whether the skeletons found in the catacombs are those of persons who died there or whether they are the bones of those taken there for burial. It is known that one of the ancient customs of the old Hawaiians was preserving the bones of those of high rank and it is considered possible that the catacombs were regarded as the best place for safe keeping.

From a geological point of view, Wentworth said, the catacombs probably were formed 20,000 years ago by the slow trickling of water.

tion of the present Maine legislation denouncing the President's reorganization plan.

Maine Resolution

The Maine resolution on the Dred Scott decision referred to the supreme courts action as "extra-judicial" and in conformity with the "ambitions" of a few thousand slave holders.

It resolved that the Dred Scott decision should not be considered binding on the nation.

Rep. Maury Maverick, D. Texas, conferred with President Roosevelt today and told him that he would win his "fight for judiciary reorganization because the people are strong for it."

Maverick said the mail he is receiving after two nation-wide broadcasts supporting the plan, is "running two to one for the President."

At first, Maverick said, his mail was three to one against the program.

Donated Clothes Campaign Helps Church Turn-Out

Increased church attendance in Twin Falls today was revealed as one of the direct benefits to the community through clothes being distributed through Associated Charities, with headquarters in the old offices of the Evening Times.

"Last Sunday," said O. D. Lyda, who with Ed Hampton supervises the clothing distribution at the headquarters, "more people attended church services at the Rock Creek community church than at any other time since the church was established."

Associated Charities' Efforts Prove Boon in Many Ways

Not Ashamed Now

"The reason was that people who before had been ashamed to go to church because of lack of adequate clothing, last Sunday were distributed through the Associated Charities and attended."

"One man told me today that last Sunday was the first time he and his family had been to church since he came here over six months ago. Me and the family were so in need of clothes that we were actually ashamed to go and so we stayed home," the man told me," Lyda said.

Lyda also reports an instance where a 12-year-old girl walked into headquarters with very few clothes on, no stockings, and her feet actually touching the sidewalk through her worn shoes. She said her mother was home ill and asked aid.

Happy Child

The girl was outfitted and Lyda said today: "I never saw a more happy child in my life. That one case was worth all the trouble we have in distributing clothing."

A call was issued today for additional women's coats, house dresses and infants' wear. Women's and infants' shoes are also needed, Mr. Hampton said.

Many families, it was revealed, took more than they needed from the supplies on hand and, in a few days, would bring that which they couldn't use back so it could be given to someone else.

Last week a total of 3,300 articles of clothing, including almost everything a person could wear, were distributed, Hampton said.

SANDWICH

The "nicest man" in the world lives right here in Twin Falls, it was revealed today.

A yellow, snappy dog, apparently needing much nourishment, sniffed at the heels of this man and was amply rewarded.

Into the nearest lunch counter walked the individual and, within a few minutes the dog was eating a specially prepared beef sandwich—bread, meat, gravy and all.

WORKERS KILLED IN BRIDGE CRASH

Two Dead, Two Missing After Platform Gives Way on Frisco Span

only one man had lost his life on the construction work on the span. Osburg and his crew were engaged in removing forms from the concrete paving laid on the bridge for automobiles.

Platform Gave Way

They were working on the ten-ton stripping platform underneath the pavement when the platform gave way.

Several of the men clung to the torn safety net, which previously had saved at least 10 workmen from death, before they had to let go and drop into the water.

Lambert, one of the survivors, said he managed to grab the torn net as he fell. He rode it downwards toward the water until he could not hang on any longer. When he let go he was only 60 feet from the water, and the break in his fall saved his life.

He was in the water about 20 minutes before he was picked up by the rescuers.

The falling platform ripped out about 2100 feet of the $100,000 safety net erected to safeguard the lives of the workers.

Workmen Dismounted

Workmen on the bridge, standing around while the boats grappled for the bodies of the missing, seemed dumfounded that the net, on which they had placed so much dependence, had failed them.

More than a dozen times since structural steel workers began pushing the bridge framework across the gate, men have fallen into the net and have escaped with relatively minor injuries.

Today's accident occurred about 3,100 feet from the San Francisco shore and about 2,100 feet from the fort point tower of the span.

Records of the state industrial accident commission showed that there had been only one fatality in construction work on the span previous to today.

Body Shipped for Funeral Services

Body of Marion B. Overman, 59, was shipped to Mansfield, Mo., this afternoon by the White mortuary for services and burial. Mr. Overman died yesterday afternoon at the hospital after being ill during most of his three months of residence here.

He was born Nov. 10, 1877, in Illinois. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Malvina Overman, and several sons.

It requires only about one and one-third seconds for the light of the moon to reach the earth.

1930. She was born at American Fork, Utah, on Nov. 12, 1860.

Seven of her nine children survive. Three daughters surviving include Mrs. Joseph A. Brunt of Idaho Falls; Mrs. J. Arnold Kirkman of Salt Lake City; and Mrs. Dewey Lowe of Long Beach, Calif. Four sons surviving are Irel of Burley; Ray of California; Scott and Dr. C. R. Gudmundsen, both of Salt Lake City.

She is also survived by 21 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

Dog Was Right

His dog playing a hero's role, Robert P. Johnson, top photo, 36, was brought out alive from the Flemington, W. Va., mine in which he was trapped eight days and nine nights. When Johnson, who dug coal in the abandoned shaft for sale to neighbors, disappeared, his dog, lower photo, led searchers to a subterranean pool. Guided by this tip, rescuers drained the pool and found Johnson trapped behind a slate fall on the other side.

One School Area Still Uncertain

All but one of five independent school districts in which teachers had not been formally certified had filed certifications by this afternoon, it was announced by Mrs. Doris Stradley, county superintendent of schools.

Apportionments for independent districts of the county had been held up pending compliance by the five school areas involved, although the money has already gone forward to common and rural high districts. Distribution of the remaining cash will be made as soon as Mrs. Stradley certifies the orders to the county auditor.

COURT IS CHECK TO GOVERNMENT

NEA Writer Explains Work Of Supreme Judicial Branch

(Continued From Page One) stone of the judiciary, one of the three co-ordinate branches of U. S. government, legislative, executive and judiciary. These proposals were immediately recognized as the most far-reaching effort in many years to alter the U. S. supreme court.

In considering President Roosevelt's proposal regarding the U. S. supreme court, it is best to start at the beginning. What is the supreme court?

The United States is governed under a written constitution. That is our basic and fundamental law, adopted by the people 150 years ago when the present government began. Everything congress does, everything the president does, everything executive officials do, comes as a result of powers given them or denied them by the people in adopting this constitution.

Arbiter Necessary
None may act counter to this written and basic law. But, as always in the case of written words, people differ sometimes on exactly what the constitution means. When there is a difference, somebody must decide who is right.

The constitution provides for establishment of a supreme court. It has become generally recognized during the last 150 years that this court shall be the final arbiter in disputes over what the constitution means, as well as a final place of appeal of citizens who believe that guaranteed rights have been taken away from them.

How Plan Operates
The constitution doesn't say how many members of the supreme court there shall be. But it seems to indicate that members of the supreme court are to be some degree independent of politics and immediate pressure, for the constitution provides that they shall hold office during good behavior, and that their pay shall not be cut while they are on the job.

Profoundly affecting this powerful court, President Roosevelt now proposes that whenever one of its justices, 10 years on the bench, reaches 70 years of age and does not retire within six months, another justice may be appointed to the court, up to a total of 15 members.

Six members of the present court of nine are eligible to retire under provisions of the proposed law. If the law as proposed is passed, all six might so retire. In that case, the president would appoint six new members in their places, and the court would have nine members, as today. If none of them retired, however, the president would have to appoint six new members anyway, making 15. Thus, under the proposed law, the court might number anywhere between nine and 15.

The powers would remain exactly as at present.

Copyright, 1937, NEA Service, Inc.

TOMORROW: Robert H. Jackson, assistant United States attorney general, will present arguments favoring President Roosevelt's proposal. On the following day, Frederick H. Stinchfield, president of the American Bar Association, will present arguments against the plan.

Request for reopening of a divorce action in which his former wife has already secured a decree was filed in district court here today by Eugene Pann.

Under terms of the divorce granted Mrs. Bernice Pann, community property and custody of the couple's one child was granted to her. Mr. Pann's petitions asserts that his former attorney neglected to appear and plead, and says that the divorce was granted by default. He outlines a proposed defense against Mrs. Pann's action if Judge J. W. Porter approves reopening of the case.

COURT RULINGS ON NEW DEAL

CASE	VOTE	RULING
HOT OIL	Against 8-1	Delegation by congress of power to the President to forbid shipment of "hot oil" in interstate commerce is illegal.
GOLD CASE	5-4 For	Government has no power to abrogate its own contracts for gold payment of obligations, but holder of such obligations may not enforce payment in gold without proving actual loss due to devaluation, which they failed to do.
RAILROAD PENSIONS	5-4 Against	Outlawed on ground that they take money from one group of employes for the benefit of others. Social welfare of workers "obviously outside the orbit of congressional power."
NRA	9-0 Against	Federal government has no power to regulate mining, manufacturing or agriculture, as these are production, not commerce; local, not interstate.
PARM MORTGAGE MORATORIUM	Against 9-0	Federal law granting moratorium on farm mortgages deprives holders of the mortgages of their property without due process of law.
AAA	6-3 Against	Federal government has no power to regulate agriculture, even by taxing "for the general welfare."
GUFFEY COAL ACT	6-3 Against	Federal government may not regulate hours and wages in coal mining because this is a local industry under state control, not related directly to interstate commerce.
N. Y. MINIMUM WAGE LAW	5-4 Against	State governments may not set minimum wages for women and children because such action violates their freedom of contract.

PIN BALL LAW IN HANDS OF CLARK

First Veto of Session Seen as Solons Vote Against Governor's Will

(Continued From Page One) ulate and set sanitary standards for creameries and raise minimum standards for butter, eggs and ice cream.

Set Fertilizer Standards
Other house measures approved would set fertilizer standards; reduce interest on delinquent water assessments from ten to eight per cent; make certain changes in the method and time of applying for exemptions from taxation.

During its late afternoon session, the house of representatives passed seven bills, killed five others, but still little more than crossed the halfway mark on a 50-measure calendar.

The lower house completed legislative action on a memorial to congress which had originated in the senate, for an appropriation by the federal government of $150,000 for development of the state's phosphate resources through a new "organo-phosphate" process. Killed was another memorial which objected to proposals of Secretary of the Interior Harold L. Ickes to install a new lease arrangement for handling mining claims.

Little Support

Finding little support were proposals to levy a 10-cent a pint additional liquor tax to be paid by purchasers of liquor from the state stores and to limit individual purchases at the dispensaries to one case of liquor per day.

The latter measure had originally suggested a one-quart limitation, but a "joker" amendment had boosted the proposed maximum 12 times. The house declined to prohibit child marriages by killing a bill which would have prevented issuance of a marriage license, under any circumstances, to any person under 16 years of age.

Other house bills approved provided holding of railroads responsible for maintenance of fences along their rights of way and making them liable for damages for livestock killed on the tracks. Making it a misdemeanor to deface or destroy roadside landscaping or other improvements. Requiring licensing of truck buyers of farm products.

BUHL PREPARING TO OIL STREETS

BUHL, Feb. 17 (Special)—Horace N. Parker, field representative for J. L. Hood, state administrator of WPA, announces that 25 men are to start work on an oiling and curbing project as soon as weather is favorable.

The project calls for a federal expenditure of $16,855 to be added to $20,652 furnished by Buhl property owners for a total of $37,507. There are to be 72 blocks of street work with 20,500 lineal feet of curbing.

The Buhl city council has passed an ordinance authorizing a $17,000 local improvement district bond issue to cover the city's part of the cost.

DUCK-FEED PLAN BROUGHT TO END

Project in This Area Halted As Fields Open Up Under Break in Weather

Feeding of ducks in this area has been halted and, at the present time, feeding is only being carried on for pheasants on the north side, a spokesman for the Southern Idaho Fish and Game association said today, after a meeting of the board of directors of the organization held last night.

It was reported fields were opening up, permitting the ducks to "rustle" for themselves, and that their condition appeared to be better now than at any time during the past few weeks of extensive feeding operations, through cooperation of members of the association, the state game department, volunteer farmers and others.

"There is no doubt that the feeding operations were started at the right time," the spokesman said today, "and as a direct result the lives of thousands of ducks in the region were saved."

The warmer spell of weather which came after the second cold snap was credited with aiding feeding operations, and the birds' routine business was discussed at the meeting last night.

POPE USES ARM CHAIR AT MASS

Church Head Smiles as He Walks Across Room From Wheel Chair

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 17 (UP)—Pope Pius planned to attend mass today seated in an arm chair, instead of in the special wheel chair he has used during his illness, when he was unable to leave bed at all. A Vatican spokesman said that the pope spent a very restful night and looked mentally and physically fit.

For the first time in his long illness, the pope yesterday sat in an ordinary chair. He was in the sun-flooded loggia of his apartment with Prof. Amintore Milani, the Vatican physician, and others of the household. He rose slowly from his wheel chair and walked slowly across the room to an arm chair. Then he bent his knees and sat down, and, smiling happily, looked up at Prof. Milani and pointed to his knees.

Now, it was said, the pope is looking forward to discarding completely the wheel chair made for him. He is said to loathe it as a symbol of his illness.

Ranch Test Shows Value of Fertilizer

GOODING, Feb. 17 (Special)—

County agent C. L. Mink reports that an experiment plot on a farm owned by George Cook and situated two miles east of Wendell showed that barnyard fertilizer is still one of the best kinds of fertilizer. What was the crop used to test the fertilizers on.

In the report on the plot Mink states that barnyard manure plus acid superphosphate increased the yield of wheat from 32.3 bushels on the check plot to 44.6 bushels per acre, or about 74 per cent. Phosphorus alone only increased the yield to 32.6 bushels and phosphorus plus potash, a balanced fertilizer, brought the yield to 40.6 bushels per acre.

THREE ADDRESS BURLEY SESSION

Annual Leadership Assembly Hears Minister, Liquor Head, Radio Man

BURLEY, Feb. 17 (Special)—Three speakers, Rev. Leroy Walker of the Burley Methodist church, Hugh B. Brown, Utah state liquor administrator, and Earl J. Glade, manager of KSL, Salt Lake City, occupied the rostrum at general assemblies of the annual southern Idaho Leadership sessions here yesterday.

Mr. Walker's subject was "The Indispensable Spirit for a Changing World." Such a spirit, necessary for real living in a world of change, is the spirit of Christian love as described by Paul, Mr. Walker said.

Music Presented
In the afternoon meeting, the male glee club from the high school, under the direction of Reed T. Hyde, instructor, furnished musical selections preceding the discussion by Hugh B. Brown concerning "Banishing Superstitions."

"We have today more than ever before a need for clear, reverent thinking," Mr. Brown declared, "and we are handicapped by the things that we know which are not so. The greatest foe to truth is the tenacity with which people cling to old beliefs."

Agreeing with other distinguished speakers who have appeared during these meetings, Mr. Brown declared that there is no need to change the fundamentals of the world but that there is often a need to change the human interpretation made of these fundamentals.

Challenges Youth

The speaker issued a challenge to the young people of the audience to submit their religion to honest doubt and questioning, for he declared that it would withstand the search, and would be able to go forward because such a search for truth by the young would help rid it of superstitions that are killing it. The same is also true of our politics and economics, he said.

Speaking of the seeming conflict between religion and science, Mr. Brown said: "Truth does not conflict with truth. If you want to know facts, concerning science go to the scientific masters of the world, and if you want to know facts concerning religion go to God who is the Master in that field."

At the public lecture in the evening, Earl J. Glade took as his subject "The Personality of Personality." He said: "The most important thing in life is to gain personal control of your own personality. He said that he had been in the state of mind where he became a personality interest."

Class Work Held

The second day of the annual meeting and all-day sessions of general sessions, which were held at the Burley high school, were held in the afternoon in the gymnasium at 9 a. m. in the morning, with Mrs. M. J. Thompson as the manager of the Anti-Tuberculosis association in charge.

The evening subjects were: "The Geographical and Temple Work Through Personal Contact in the Home," by Elder A. William, a member of the board of directors of the Geographical society of Utah, and "Temple Rites," also by Elder Lund.

The morning scouting meeting was under the direction of Ambly F. Erickson, executive of the Snake River area council, Twin Falls, on the subject, "Problem Discussion," and the afternoon meeting on the subject, "Scouting's Place in the Community," was directed by Mrs. G. G. Roseberry, pastor of the Methodist church, Rupert.

Agriculture Sessions

Both agriculture meetings were on the subject, "Farm Records, Inventories, and Value of Agricultural Reports," with Karl Hobson, assistant extension economist, Boise, in charge.

The Relief society group considered the subjects, "Religion and the Home Today," and "The Place of the Home in Health, Education and Religion," with Julia A. F. Lund, general secretary, Salt Lake City, directing the discussions.

Music for the public lecture hour in the evening was furnished by the Albion State Normal school male glee club under the direction of Clifford Mullikin.

THEATERS

Norma Shearer as "Juliet"

Modjeska . . . Ellen Terry . . . Julia Marlowe . . . Katharine Cornell . . . these are the names which have brought to life on the stage, "Juliet," Shakespeare's most beloved heroine. Now comes the long-looked-for film of "Romeo and Juliet," with the first lady of the screen, Norma Shearer, eclipsing any and every role she has attempted before. "Romeo and Juliet" will be shown as a road show engagement at the Orpheum tomorrow, one day only, with two performances and all seats reserved.

"Black Legion"

Bruce Cabot, together with Marguerite Churchill and a splendid supporting cast tear a thrilling story right out of today's headlines in "The Legion of Terror," at Uncle Joe-K's Roxy today and Thursday.

'Zane Grey's Story Returns to Idaho

Zane Grey, who, without a peer as a story-teller of the West in its unbridled days, was "Duff" Grey, which Paramount has produced and which opens today at the Idaho Theater as their regular mid-week return hit. The colorful western picture dramatizes the conflict between the law and the outlawed cowboy, when all had no common purpose. The program is completed with a Popeye cartoon, a Vincent Lopez and his orchestra musical, "Clarin' Chica" concert, and news.

Coming Friday to the Idaho Theater is "The Girl in the Orange," with Henrietta Crossman, Leif Erickson and Elizabeth Russell.

Indoor Shooting Range Proposed To Aid Officers

Sheriff's Force and Members Of City Police Will Brush Up Aim

Lawbreakers who may figure on dodging officers' bullets will have another guess coming in the near future.

Plans for a pistol target range in the basement of the county court house were being mapped today by Sheriff E. F. Prater for use of his own force and Chief Howard Gillette's Twin Falls police.

More Effective Gunnery
Although marksmanship on both forces is asserted to be already on a high level, the target range will permit frequent practice and should make peace officers heretofore highly effective with small arms, the sheriff indicated.

LET'S KEEP OUR EYES OPEN

Defeat of the proposal to establish a so-called non-partisan fish and game commission in Idaho may or may not meet with the approval of sportsmen generally, but much was accomplished nevertheless by having the issue thoroughly discussed during this session of the legislature.

Idaho has a rich heritage from the sportsman's standpoint. It is one of the few remaining states that can boast of virgin expanses yet unexplored. Its fishing streams are among the finest in the world, and perhaps nowhere could any nimrod find a greater variety of wild game. For lovers of the great outdoors it is truly a paradise.

How long all this will last, however, is an entirely different story. And the sportsmen of Idaho, whether they realize it or not, are confronted with a serious problem if they have any hope of preserving their playground.

In this connection it is interesting to look to the middle western states of Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan—long famous for their "thousands of lakes and sky blue waters." Even yet these states are spending hundreds of thousands of dollars annually in advertising their "paradise for hunters, fishermen and vacationists." And with the steadily increasing influx of pleasure seekers have come the abuses that challenge true sportsmanship.

But a few years ago a group of selfish individuals who called themselves sportsmen were successful in getting through the Michigan state legislature a law disguised as an "anti-trespass" act. Not until this measure was enacted did sportsmen generally become aware of its ramifications. Private hunting clubs promoted by these same selfish interests sprang up. Thousands of acres of choice hunting and fishing territory were leased and posted. Club game wardens were employed, and the "anti-trespass" law provided the "teeth" necessary to put this whole vicious set-up into operation. Arrests were made, fines imposed, and the average hunter with his $2 state license found himself out on a limb. Those who couldn't afford to join the private clubs, who weren't acceptable, or who wouldn't be identified with them because of sportsmanlike principles, discovered that their rights had been "sold out."

Not only that. These private clubs were actually permitted to start shooting upland game birds five days ahead of the general open season!

These are the things Idaho sportsmen and the state legislature should be thinking about. The private game reserves, the exclusive gun clubs along the Illinois and Mississippi rivers, the political corruption that winks at game laws... all these we'll find in Idaho sooner or later unless we are on the alert to stop such inroads.

You don't think anything like that will ever happen in Idaho?

Perhaps you are not aware that an airplane load of Detroit sportsmen swoops down into one of the Sawtooth Mountain valleys every fall to hunt deer. Only a month or so ago it became known that Wallace Beery of movie fame had purchased a tract of choice hunting land near McCall after he "became perturbed over regulations" of some sort or other.

There is nothing illegal in these two instances, but they are surely significant. And sooner or later there will be proposed legislation to favor the few—the same kind of legislation that already is ruining sportsmanship elsewhere.

It's only good business to advertise our state, its streams and mountains, but in so doing let's keep our eyes open!

P. Q. IMPORTANT, TOO

Employers examining applicants for jobs often like to find out what an applicant's I. Q. is before reaching a decision. The I. Q., or intelligence quotient, is supposed to be a fairly accurate measure of a person's intellectual ability.

Now, however, comes Mrs. Beatrice Hunter Cahill, of Boston university department of student counseling, to remark that a good P. Q. can be much more important than a good I. Q. The P. Q., as she explains it, is the personality quotient; and what she is driving at is the fact that a smart man can be a flat failure in this world unless he has the sort of personality that his chosen calling requires.

Probably it is a subconscious recognition of this fact that makes so many employers disregard the I. Q. entirely. Brains are important, but the package in which they are delivered can be awfully important, too.

For questioning in the Mattson case, police are seeking a woman who had red hair when last seen.

The screen lover will help his grandfather financially. It is no burden, as the actor is not yet supporting a retinue of ex-wives.

NOTES ON HOW TO GET INTO THE ARMY!

Pot Shots: Did you ever hear Dunc Johnston tell how not wearing a hat got him into the army back before the Mexican border campaign days?

He was just a young squirt then, and decided to join the army. But he wasn't old enough. He went in to enlist—AND WORE A HAT. The recruiting officer muttered: "Too young!"

So Dunc went out discouraged. Then, when some of his pals went over to enlist, Dunc went back with 'em. This time, however, he LEFT HIS HAT OFF.

And, since his hair wasn't much more luxuriant than that now, the officer figured Dunc was old enough. So he got into the army.

—Paley Walsley

POTS SHOTS HAS his sanctum right, alongside the Evertimes editor's desk, and we're turning green with envy at the editor's mail these days on that supreme court hullabaloo. There seem to be so many organizations getting out pamphlets and mimeographed stuff against the Roosevelt idea that we expect any day to hear of a prosperity boom among paper manufacturers, mimeograph makers, the post office and whatnot. Personally, Pot Shots takes no sides in politics but to get a mail bag like that, we're thinking of stringing up some issue like campaigning for a dictator for Idaho. If you think of anything along that line, let us know.

NEW IDEA IN WEDDING ANNOUNCEMENTS

Pot Shots: A local bachelor about town, not yet hooked on the matrimonial shoals, has devised himself a wedding announcement when, as and if.

After the formal announcement of the forthcoming wedding (if it ever materializes), he has this form for guests:

REQUESTS

1. Beds.
 2. Sheets.
 3. Stove.
 4. Washing machine.
 5. Food.
 6. Clothing.
 7. Cash.
 8. Real estate.
 9. Sympathy (appreciated.)
 10. Sundry articles.
- And at the bottom is "Sign here if you wish to contribute (Note: Sterling preferred)." Since this bachelor won't be using his idea for some time to come, those Pot Shots readers about to be married might pirate the thing for their own use.

YES—AND NOT ONLY SUN VALLEY!

Pot Shots: Remember how Sun Valley was praying for snow earlier this winter?

They must know how to pray up there, because their prayers have certainly been over-answered.

NEVER HEARD OF 'EM!

Third Row Gentry: Those "weiner" pigs again (ad in Evertimes!) Ready to be cased up and warm the hearts of the citizenry I suppose.

Or did they mean "weanlings"? I'm going to get out a spelling and pronouncing supplement to the Times, the pronouncing gazetteer with special reference to our worthy radio newscasters, so they can learn that Berger rhymes with hamburger, and Molyneux and Tourletotte both rhyme with one. Kind of a rhyming dictionary, no?

YOU'RE BACK AGAIN, EH?

Pot Shots: This is so good it's excruciating. I know you'll howl. A boy in Jackson, Mich., a city in which I've visited several times (and NOT in the prison there either), swallowed some glass. He is now suffering pains.

CONFIDENTIAL REPORT

CRIME FILE ON BOLITHO BLANE

BEGIN HERE TODAY

Boarding CARLTON ROCKSAVAGE, 422 N. GOLDEN GULL, of Miami, to investigate the disappearance of BOLITHO BLANE, British seaman, and Rocksave's chief competitor in the soap trade. Detective Officer KETTERING finds strange marks on Blane's cabin carpet and blood on the curtain.

Kettering examines all passengers including NICHOLAS STU DANT, Blane's secretary; Rocksave and his daughter FRILLI (LILY) WELTER; EDWIN and MISS JOCELYN, Lady Welter's daughter and son-in-law; the BISHOP OF BUDE; JOHN POSSODINI and ISOSUKE HAYASHI.

Kettering finds a strange note in Blane's cabin. He estimates that Blane was in the lounge during the period of crime. Note Kettering finds a strange note in Blane's cabin. He estimates that Blane was in the lounge during the period of crime.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER X

INOSUKE HAYASHI's postcard to Bolitho Blane follows:

S. Y. GOLDEN GULL.

Dear Mr. Blane:

Needless to say I was very shocked to receive your letter while I was in New York. You have certainly overlooked some considerations which are from your point of view extremely important, and quite apart from my own interests in the matter I consider it highly desirable that you should know the consequences to you of the action you contemplate before conferring with Rocksave.

I shall be in my room until eight o'clock, but would prefer to discuss the matter in your room. Please, therefore, let me know at what time I may visit you.

Yours truly,
INOSUKE HAYASHI.

With the assistance of Detective Officer Neame I then searched the cabins of all parties concerned. The contents of the wastepaper baskets in each cabin, which had not been cleared since the previous morning, were removed and as a matter of routine, their contents are being catalogued.

The search revealed items of interest in two cases only: COUNT POSSODINI—among the count's belongings were found eight packs of specially prepared cards, two sets of loaded dice and an automatic Mauser .22 pistol with a silencer attached, one spare clip and 44 rounds of ammunition.

THE BISHOP OF BUDE—In a square black portable writing case belonging to the bishop I found a letter which was evidently written and dispatched by Bolitho Blane from New York and received by the bishop in the post delivered to the yacht on her arrival off Miami yesterday. Letter herewith.

HOTEL ADLON-CLARIDGE

New York
5th January, 1937

My Dear Bishop:

I have only just learned that you are to make one of the party which Carlton Rocksave is assembling on his yacht for a little holiday among the islands. It is, of course, many years since we met but I shall look forward so much to renewing my acquaintance with you.

You will, I am sure, recall those wonderfully interesting conversations which we held when we were together for a little time during the war. We established then a wonderful and, I feel, never to be forgotten friendship.

I have an idea that some very strange and unusual things are likely to take place upon Rocksave's yacht once we put out to sea and, however strange these occurrences may be, I feel sure that you will bear in mind what very good friends we are. I value your friendship more than I can say and from your past expressions of esteem it makes me happy to think that you value mine equally highly.

Yours very much,
Bolitho Blane.

I then examined the ship's officers, Dr. Ackland, Mr. Rocksave's personal physician, who messes with the officers, and all members of the crew. I am satisfied none of them could have had any connection with the crime and take it you will not require detailed reasons for my conclusions.

PAUL MALLON'S NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the Nation's Capital By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator.
(Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12—The inner processes by which President Roosevelt arrived at his decision to grasp at control of the Supreme Court by repacking it are now said on most credible authority to be these:

He first reached the conclusion some time during the last campaign that he could not effect his farm purposes without a constitutional amendment. The things being tried and planned by agriculture Secretary Wallace were makeshifts unsatisfactory to him, too weak, too uncertain.

Earlier he had also concluded that anything like a new era would also be ineffective from his personal standpoint without a change in the constitution.

These two considerations induced him first to analyze the possibilities of getting a constitutional amendment. He finally arrived then, before election, at the conclusion he could not accomplish his purpose in that way.

When he saw those 27,000,000 votes rolled up in his favor, he made his tentative choice of a course. The day he returned from Hyde Park after election, he instructed his attorney general to start accumulating data on how to repack the court.

There are still good reasons for believing the President did not intend to use his repacking program unless and until the Wagner Labor decision went against him in the Supreme Court.

In his message to Congress, he held out another course. He invited the court to open the way for the legislation he wanted. He publicly discarded the program of a constitutional amendment.

The decision to drive through with his hidden purpose at this time must have been made hurriedly, although his spokesmen deny it. They say the only reason he decided to break it without waiting for the Wagner decision was because he was afraid it would leak and he wanted to preserve the element of surprise which he considered essential to its presentation.

There are indications it was already leaking in some minor degree to congressmen like Senator Borah who began to talk about tyrants usurping the powers of the courts.

At any rate, it was ready for submission; he decided not to take a chance on holding it up; and this, they say, was the only consideration in announcing it when he did.

MOTIVE
His decision against trying to seek constitutional amendment was based on these grounds:

The history of constitutional amendments convinced him it is the process of a lifetime. The Child Labor question has been in the process for 20 years and is yet unfinished. The prohibition amendment and repeal were, in his estimation, the results of years of campaigning. The only constitutional amendment adopted with celebrity was the Norris lame-duck amendment, and his reasoning on that was that it was not opposed by any strongly organized group of people.

Likewise, his information was that the state legislatures are largely composed of lawyers, likely to be diligent against constitutional change. Presidential friends here say the Texas Senate which went against him is 80 per cent lawyers. Also his estimation of the integrity of legislatures apparently is not high.

He seems to lean to the view of many a lobbyist that legislatures can be "handled" more easily by lobbyists than can congress.

At any rate, this explains why he is now consistently resolute against

NO COMPROMISE

The talk about compromise comes from the mere fact that certain presidential callers are walking out of the White House and saying the President will accept this or that.

The truth is there can be no compromise. The issue is not the age of justices, the volume of their work or whether he shall pack the court with six new justices or only three. The one simple insoluble question is whether the President shall control the Supreme Court. Either he gets the control or he does not.

DEFICIENCY

The main inner defect in the President's fight is that he has no Liberty League or Al Smith to poke at. Administrative propagandists are trying to revive the old whipping posts which were so effective in the campaign, but are not getting very far. They cannot get around the fact that leadership of the opposition is coming from such stalwart liberals as Senators Hiram Johnson and Borah, and that both the Liberty League and Al are buried in the sand at Palm Beach or thereabouts.

Another weakness likely to prove highly important is the lack of debating strength on the President's side in the Senate. When Borah and Johnson speak, they get national attention, but when Senators Minion and Schwellenbach shout, their voices rarely penetrate the outer walls of the Senate chamber.

JACK FROST

Editor, Evening Times:
Without desiring to take any issue with your versatile correspondent who writes "Sun Valley Happenings," I must say that the Dr. Jack Frost, who is reported to be the ONLY man by the name of Jack Frost in the country, is a little extravagant in the amount of territory he includes.

In my limited travels I have met and known quite well two men by this name and I am sure neither one was the good doctor. One of these men I had the pleasure of insuring for life insurance and have the insurance record to substantiate my statement. I am quite sure he is still alive.

I trust this will in no way detract from the popular doctor's prestige, socially or professionally. Yours very truly,
KENT TATLOCK

WATER COST? CITY MORE PITTSBURGH.

(UP) — It took more than 2,000,000 pounds of soda ash to neutralize the sulphuric acid content of the Allegheny river for Pittsburgh's water supply last year. The city water department paid 11 cents a pound for the soda ash or a total of $223,796, more than double the expense in 1935.

The Family Doctor

By DR. MORRIS FISHBEN

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

Gas from a blast furnace, 24 to 30 per cent is carbon monoxide. Smoke from a coal fire contains varying amounts of carbon monoxide, depending on the rate of combustion. The more the combustion of the gas is checked, the higher is the percentage of carbon monoxide.

Flue gas from boilers and household heaters sometimes causes carbon monoxide poisoning, due to leaks in the heating apparatus.

The exhaust gas from internal combustion engines contains from 1 to 7 per cent or even more carbon monoxide. An automobile may produce 28 quarts of carbon monoxide a minute for each 20 horsepower. This is enough to cause the air in a single car garage to become deadly within five minutes after the engine has begun running if the garage is closed.

Daily exposure to illuminating gas, of which 60 to 30 per cent is carbon monoxide, is also significant as a cause of illness. Recent investigations have shown definitely that daily exposure to small amounts of carbon monoxide gas is harmful to health.

Because of the extensive occurrence of carbon monoxide poisoning in industry, warnings should be posted wherever such danger exists. These warnings apply to workers in the gas industry, garages or service stations, steel mills, celluloid manufacturing plants, acetylene welding factories, brass foundries, and various chemical industries.

The following suggestions are so simple that every workman should become familiar with them:

1. If the flame in your machine is yellow report this fact at once. There should be a blue flame at all times. A yellow flame gives off carbon monoxide.

2. Never use a gas heated appliance which is connected by means of a flexible rubber or metal tubing. This is not safe. The only flexible tubing which does not leak is an approved cloth-covered tubing.

3. It is difficult to find all leaks in your tubing by running a lighted match along it, since only the gas from the large leaks will be ignited. There may be many small leaks which make it dangerous to work at your machine, and which are hard to detect.

4. When you are working over an open flame, do not put on the fire any utensil so large that it completely covers the flame. This keeps the air out, and increases the amount of carbon monoxide gas produced.

5. Do not try to patch leak or make any adjustments your self. Shut off the gas until the repairman comes.

6. If the gas pressure changes, report the fact at once. If there is too great pressure, the gas will not burn properly and will give off considerable carbon monoxide.

7. If there is too little pressure, some of the porches in your appliance may not light. This will happen particularly if they are dirty, and filled with soot from the porches which do not light leaks a certain amount of gas, which may injure your health.

As has already been stated, the fact that you do not smell any gas is no indication that there is no leak.

7. If you find that you get a headache at your work, carbon monoxide may be present in the air. Look for leaks and poor connections. Report your headaches to your employer and the plant doctor, so that they can find out if your headaches are caused by carbon monoxide gas.

8. If you are not feeling well, see a doctor right away. If you get headaches at work due to gas, try some other kind of work. It does not pay to remain where you are and permanently injure your health.

HISTORY of Twin Falls City & County

As Cleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO—
FEB. 17, 1922

Initiation, a smoker, a wrestling match and an address by Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler C. L. Stewart, Boise, were features of the 54th anniversary of the founding of the Elks lodge which was celebrated here last evening.

"The new Elks home of Lodge No. 1183, B. P. O. E., in this city is a credit to Twin Falls and to the state of Idaho," said Mr. Stewart. After discussing the conditions here as he found them, Mr. Stewart gave a history of the formation of the first Elks lodge and told how the name originated.

Music was furnished by the Elks' quartet and orchestra. Talks were made by M. H. Pape, who has been a member for 30 years, and by P. H. Smith, the father of the Twin Falls lodge and its first exalted ruler.

TRIBUTE PAID TO BUCKING BRONCO

Epitaph Hails "Midnight," as Most Famous Horse Of West

JOHNSTON, Colo. (U.P.)—Final tribute was paid to Midnight, the most famous horse ever to come out of a bucking chute at a rodeo, when a group of cowboys erected a marker over a lonely grave on the Colorado plains, inscribed with their own home-made epitaph.

Gowhans on the McCarthy and Elliott ranch showed the dynamic little black horse during his career collaborated in writing the epitaph. It reads:

"Under this sod lies a great bucking horse.

"There never lived a cowboy he couldn't toss.

"His name was Midnight; his coat black as coal.

"If there is a horse-heaven, please God, rest his soul."

Midnight was the arch-enemy of the top "waddies" who ride the nation's rodeo circuit to earn their living "working broncos." He was ridden only once in 14 years in which he came bucking out of the chutes from his coast to the other. The time he failed to toss his rider was after he became old.

The epitaph and new headstones were decided upon by ranch hands during their talks on long evenings about the "buckingest horse of them all." They recalled that Midnight was a really great show horse without a trace of viciousness. He never trampled a rider after throwing him, but would nose his victim into the tank and trot back to the chutes.

The Glory Road

SUCCESS STORY OF A GLAMOUR MERCHANT

Adolph Zukor and Jesse L. Lasky when they combined forces as Paramount Pictures, seeking new horizons.

(Twenty-five years ago Adolph Zukor, successful Chicago fur merchant came to the startling conclusion that glamour was a marketable commodity. He has been a dominant figure in a dominant industry ever since. The motion picture world is celebrating a Silver Jubilee in his honor. Chairman of the board and active head of production of Paramount Pictures, he was 64 on Jan. 7. Will Irwin, noted biographer and novelist, sketches his fabulous career. Following is part four of a series of six.)

CHAPTER IV
War With The Distributors

The "long film" telling a story with leisure, designed as an evening's entertainment by itself instead of a brief, five-cent show or a turn-in vaudeville, got its start in 1912 when Adolph Zukor exhibited in New York Sarah Bernhardt's Queen Elizabeth and formed his own Famous Players Company to produce on a large scale this improved commodity. He could not patent the idea. Now that this explorer had shown the way across uncharted seas, others rushed to mine the gold on the strange

Hungary to Revive Bear Hunting Sport

BUDAPEST (U.P.)—The ancient sport of bear hunting is to be revived in Hungary under government supervision. For centuries the bear chase was the favorite sport of noblemen, especially in the vast forests of Transylvania.

Since the World War, bears virtually have disappeared. To restore the historic sport, the forestry department of the ministry of agriculture will import bears, turning them loose in the royal forest of Szini, where they will be allowed to breed under strict government protection.

shores. He had expected that; his only advantage lay in a lead of some six months.

Most able among his early competitors was Jesse Lasky, a Californian by birth, he had been a newsboy, a reporter, a Klondike musher, a professional cornet player and a vaudeville agent in New York, when, at a moment of low fortune, he bought the film rights to Royce's successful play The Squaw Man and formed, with Samuel Goldwyn and Cecile DeMille, the Lasky Film company. Needing a Western location, he rented for a song an unsuccessful orange farm at a suburb of Los Angeles called Hollywood. His finished film, first presented at an invitational showing in New York, was technically an advance on any of its predecessors.

The war of 1914 had killed the European industry. The American film first flowed into this vacuum, then overflowed it and ran round the world. Mary Pickford's salary is one measure. When, in 1912, Zukor offered her $20,000 a year she had to control an impulse to faint. The next year it was $1,000 a week, then $2,000, $4,000 and $10,000. And in 1916, she was drawing down $1,200,000 a year.

Distribution, however, lagged behind production. Adolph Zukor in this period, wanted above all things a regular outlet. He planned eventually to put forth two feature films each week. Famous Players would not do that as yet. But there were Lasky, producing, in Zukor's opinion, better films than his own, and a small, new concern in California called Bosworth, which had been doing astonishing things. The three firms combined, loosely, on a "Famous-Lasky-Bosworth Program" furnishing 104 films a year.

Hollywood had already become the producing center. With a regular product assured, the new combination felt it all the more necessary to find some well-organized and efficient channel between artist and exhibitor. Casting their eye over the field, they marked W. W.

Louis Meets Nattie Brown in Kansas City Ring Tonight

JOE EXPECTS TO SCORE KNOCKOUT

Bomber's Manager Says Jew Will Not Last Over Two Rounds

By JOSEPH F. HEARST
KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 17 (AP)—Joe Louis, the Negro heavyweight, came to town today to clear up the record on Nattie Brown, the Jewish heavyweight who stayed 10 rounds with Louis two years ago when the Negro was fresh out of the amateur ranks. The fight tonight is set for 10 rounds but it is expected three or four will be enough.

The recent Louis affair with "Bob Pastor in New York is believed the impelling motive to have tonight's fight over with dispatch. A snappy knockout will do something to revive Louis' reputation as a killer, where another 20 minute footrace might have adverse results at the box office in the future.

Louis, sending word ahead, promised to put Brown away, and John Roxborough, one of the Louis managers already here, said he thought two rounds would suffice for Louis to catch the Washington, D. C. veteran.

"Brown was on his feet all right when he fought Joe two years ago, Roxborough admitted, "but Joe was a pretty crude fighter then. He knocked Brown down in the first, but couldn't put him away because Brown stalled and hung on. I'll be different tonight."

"That don't mean Nattie is going to do a bicycle act," Bill McCorney, his manager, added hastily. "Nattie is a good boxer and will hold his own."

The fighters will weigh in at 11 a. m. today before Garret Smalley, chairman of the state boxing commission. Louis is expected to go about 202 pounds with Brown at 200, or 13 more than he carried in the first meeting with Louis.

The fight, starting at 9:50 p. m. (CST), will be broadcast over the blue network of the National Broadcasting chain.

There is virtually no betting here.

Battles Louis

Nattie Brown lacks Joe Louis in a 10-round contest in Kansas City tonight. He stayed the limit in Detroit two years ago.

APOSTOLI FIGHTS KRIEGER TONIGHT

Second Round of Mid-Weight Muddle to Be Staged in New York

NEW YORK, Feb. 17 (AP)—The second act of the middleweight fight drama is scheduled for the New York Hippodrome tonight when Fred Apostoli of San Francisco and Solly Krieger of Brooklyn clash for 10 rounds—or less.

Boxing fans expected a vast improvement over the sparring in Paris Monday night when Marco, the International Boxing Union champion of the division, won his second straight decision on a foul over the U. S. challenger, Lou Brouillard.

Climax of the play will be staged in Madison Square Garden Friday night when Freddie Steele of Tacoma, Wash., risks his American title claim in a 15-rounder against Babe Risko, the Syracuse sailor boy.

Krieger is a 6-5 favorite in New York, but the odds are about even on the west coast where Apostoli is a great favorite. Krieger's main claim to fame is his kayo over New York's betting brakeman, Harry Balsamo.

SPokane, Wash., Feb. 17 (AP)—Jack McDonald, of Seattle, won on two out of three falls over Charley Carr, of Louisiana State university in the feature event at the wrestling matches here last night.

Mac Says He'll Believe Anything—Except That Baer is in Training

By HENRY McLEMORE
DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 17 (AP)—Surrounded by a double layer of fog (San Francisco's and his own) Max Baer recently gave off a broadcast in which he asked the people of America to believe him when he said he was in serious training and expected to defeat Bob Pastor, Joe Louis, and Jim Braddock in the order named.

Now, I'll believe almost anything, as my record shows. I had been voting three years before I suspected the authenticity of the Santa that is Claus, and it was not until long after I had my first pin-cue that I abandoned the rosebud and stork theory of life's beginning. So you see I'm not what you could call a skeptic. But I don't believe Max Baer, I would sooner believe that two can live as cheaply as one or that all those who endorse cigarettes really smoke them, than that the butcher boy button is leading the life rigorous.

Lost Faith
I lost faith in Max and his word in the speck-ribbed dressing room of Yankee stadium, one night in June. And I believe a square guy named Dempsey did, too, for it was Dempsey that Max gave his pledge and it was before Dempsey's unbelieving eyes that he shamelessly broke it a few minutes later.

"When they ring that bell," Baer told Dempsey as he sat on the rubbing table, hands taped to brick hardness, "I'll wade out of that corner and belt him. To hell with boxing I just wanta bust that Louk."

You know how he actually did come out of his corner. As timidly as an old man crossing a crowded street, as meekly as a prisoner advancing before the bar. I'll never forget the look on Dempsey's face as the big 200-pounder crept from the corner.

Fighting Days Ended
I'll always maintain that Baer's days as a fighting man came to a definite conclusion late in the first round of the Louis fight when, with a courage of fear, he spraddled his legs in a corner and made an effort to slug it out with the Negro. A flurry of punches and then he quit. And I don't think all the road work, all the bag punching, or all the calisthenics in the world, will regain for him the something he lost in the ring that night.

Baer now says that the training he did before the Bulldog fight was a farce. How are we to know that what he's doing now isn't the same thing? Certainly he maintained before the bout with Jim that he never was in finer condition, never was tougher, and never more afraid.

Today, Baer says, his hands are so tough that he would not hesitate to bang them through a wooden door. Great! Let him find a big, nice door somewhere out there in California and go to it. And for as long as he wants. But I advise him not to choose a swinging door. He might get hurt.

PLANS COMPLETE FOR 'M' TOURNEY

Six Teams to Participate in Annual L. D. S. Meet Staged Here

Preparations were completed today for the annual M-Men's basketball tournament, sponsored by the L. D. S. church, to determine the championship of the Idaho-Oregon section, according to Luther Bice, manager.

At least six teams, and possibly seven, will participate in the meet, which opens at 3:15 on Friday afternoon at the Twin Falls high school gym. Teams entered to date are: Declo, Oakley, Malila, Holbrook, LaGrande and Twin Falls. An entry may arrive from Boise to make the seventh team. Yesterday Rupert and Jerome teams dropped from the meet.

Winner of the tourney last year was the Twin Falls team, which made the journey to the international meet at Salt Lake City, only to be eliminated in the first game by an Ogden quint that drove on to the championship. Twin Falls then reached the finals in the consolation event before being downed by the Santa Ana, Calif. entry.

Vines Downs Perry Before Home Crowd

HOLLYWOOD, Feb. 17 (AP)—Ellsworth Vines realized his ambition of beating Fred Perry before a home town audience last night when he subdued the former world's amateur champion, 6-3, 6-4, in a professional tennis match.

The lanky former University of Southern California netter was at the top of his game and beat Perry before a top-hat crowd, liberally sprinkled with Hollywood notables. It was the 11th victory for Vines in the 19 matches of their cross-country tour.

BOOSTERS WITHDRAWN

Rupert Boosters, winners of the Outlaw tourney held last week-end at Burley, were slated for the tournament but withdrew Monday. The Rupert team was being rated as the top power for the meet up until the time of their withdrawal. Burley Flks also rated as one of the strong contenders, withdrew at the last moment.

Army hoopers of Fort Douglas, Utah, who had planned to enter the meet, notified Coach Clem Parberry of Gooding college, who is in charge of the tourney, early this week that a change in plans would prevent their coming. Two Oregon teams that were asked to enter were deterred from coming by weather conditions.

Outside of the two teams from the Boise district, the Frosties and the Y. M. D. five, the Jerome Moose, third-rankers in the Burley meet, are favored for winning the Outlaw. Shoshone and Gooding college are placed next in line after Jerome and are rated as nearly equal.

Little is known as to the power of the Boise teams as they have not battled any of the fives entered in the meet, but judging from rank in their home range they are strong contenders.

OAKLEY

Miss Helen Adams, who has been working in Burley the past 16 months, has returned to Oakley to spend a few weeks with relatives before leaving to serve as L. D. S. missionary with headquarters in Missouri.

Mr. and Mrs. Saul Clark, who have been visiting their daughter, Rae, who is attending school in Logan, were expected to return Sunday but have been delayed by snow-blocked roads.

EQUALIZING BILL IS TURNED DOWN

Idaho Legislature Reaches 45th Day of 1937 Session

BOISE, Feb. 17 (AP)—Idaho's 24th legislature today reached the three-quarter mark, the 45th day of its 90-day session, with a "major" piece of legislation yet to find its way through both houses.

A house bill asking a $3,000,000 "equalization fund" for common school purposes joined the ranks of its brothers in the senate chamber, defeated after three hours of debate late yesterday, 25 to 19.

The measure, object of a long-range battle by educational forces, fell mainly upon the rocks of economy, with additional objections made to "excessive lobbying," and alleged "robbing of small counties to support larger ones."

Intent of the measure was to further equalize county levies for certain purposes by guaranteeing to each, fixed sum of money per classroom for each school in the state.

Lobbyist Assailed George Donart, Washington, assailed "the biggest lobby ever assembled in the state of Idaho, reaching almost the dimensions of a racket."

Discussion was started by R. S. Erb, Nez Perce, who explained the purpose of the bill as financing the public school fund from a lump sum general fund appropriation rather than through earmarking of a number of excise taxes.

James B. Newport, Canyon, carried the requested appropriation "carrying a good thing too far," pointing out that $2,000,000 is now available for equalizing purposes. The president pro tem warned of heavy requests yet to come—$5,000,000 for general state expenses and $3,000,000 for relief.

Would Distribute Benefits Tom Heath, Franklin, said that the bill would distribute benefits now accruing to only a few counties having railroads or large mills located within their boundaries.

It isn't reasonable to expect trustees of school districts to be economical with money which is just handed to them," declared Donart. "The idea is economically unsound."

R. B. Wilson, Gem, believed in putting the burden of taxation on property owners as he said would be accomplished by the bill under discussion. "Wealth wherever it may be, should be charged with the expense of maintaining schools, wherever they may be," was the view of A. M. Derr, Boundary.

"If we pass this bill, we might as well start right now to decide what form of sales tax, transactions tax or gross income tax we are going to pass, because we'll have to pass one," warned Gene Anderson, Elmore Republican.

He held that the legal limit of mills property tax for state purposes should not be made to include the $3,000,000 educational fund.

SOLONS REFUSE 'COCKTAIL' BILL

Legislature Indefinitely Ends Chances for Passage of Liquor Proposal

BOISE, Feb. 17 (AP)—The Idaho legislature today left no doubt of its liquor stand.

Acting contrary to recommendations of Governor Barzilla Clark, the house of representatives late yesterday quietly dealt death to the so-called "cocktail" bill, which would have permitted sale of liquor by the glass in certain better-class hotels and restaurants.

There was no record vote. Death came by indefinite postponement. Although reversion is technically possible, a two-thirds vote would be required, seldom obtainable.

After a night session—first of the current legislature in either house—the senate today was nearly even with its calendar. In the house, however, approximately fifty bills were on the third reading calendar, half held over from yesterday—uniform procedure of the last several days with the lower house steadfastly steering clear of night work.

"Fair Trade" Act Another "fair trade" act, sponsored by retail merchants organizations to prevent rebates and price discriminations was killed in the senate last night. Denman, Bonneville, and Coo, Kootenai, both objected to so many "regulator" measures appearing on the senate calendar.

Provisions of this bill are amplified covered by present state anti-trust laws, and now we're asked to lay one law on top of another," declared Denman.

The upper house approved a measure to permit state banks to make loans on real estate up to 50 per cent of the appraised valuation in line with regulations governing national banks.

Clark Gets Bills Passed and sent to the governor were two house bills to provide that public money shall not be required to be deposited to draw interest. It was explained that beginning in August, federal reserve banks will be prevented from paying interest on public accounts.

Other bills approved included a house measure to permit an amortization plan for school district bonds; and senate bills to approve advertising of bids by municipalities for only one type of paving instead of three varieties as required by statute; creating new classifications for counties.

Killed were two measures to regulate the warehousing business, and one to provide for recall of directors of irrigation districts.

LEGISLETTERS

By NEWTON STEARNS United Press Correspondent

BOISE, Feb. 16 (AP)—There was very little letup in the number of bills introduced daily in both houses of Idaho's 24th legislature last week despite the fact that no bill could make the hopper without committee sponsorship.

Deadlines for all bills except appropriations were to be set for this week. The senate announced a deadline for Monday—the 43rd legislative day. The house will set a deadline as soon as possible.

During the 43 days passed, a flood of bills that at times threatened to swamp calendars and force night sessions made the harassed solons cut down debate which at times was limited to 20 or 30 words of explanation. Bills were passed right and left in the house, several times no debate was held at all before Clerk George Ridd called the roll.

Nothing but appropriation bills are now allowed on the first reading calendar. There are some bills now awaiting action—and on only one-fourth of the session left.

Better treatment of Governor Clark's power program than has been accorded other of his legislative proposals was foreseen in overwhelming house approval of the first of a series of bills to encourage public ownership of utilities. A proposed constitutional amendment to permit cities or power districts to purchase, condemn or construct plants and distributing systems was passed 50 to 7. It still must face the senate and, finally, a vote of the people.

Other points in the executive's kit, at various stages in the legislative machinery, include provisions for formation of public utility districts, to limit filings for power sites in the state of Idaho, persons and corporations, to prevent private companies from holding power sites for speculative purposes.

One bill, which senators believe "went entirely too far" was discreetly withdrawn for "correction." It proposed giving the public utilities commission broad powers to investigate utility valuations and rate structures, requiring the company under scrutiny to pay all costs. Doubt was expressed that the measure could withstand a constitutional test.

Appropriation bills are coming to the floor of the house approximately as recommended by Governor Clark—20 per cent higher than for the last biennium. First skirmishes indicate that most will get by the house but departments and institutions are, as usual, holding their collective breath awaiting senate action.

Probably the most popular interest in any act of the legislature thus far centered on the proposal—killed by being indefinitely postponed in the house last week—to reduce automobile license fees to $5.

Meaning several dollars each to the large number of lightweights who own motor vehicles, the bill would have put the legislators on a spot had it ever come to a record vote. The postponement means nearly as effective a death as if the house measure had been debated in the regular order of business, without the necessity of the legislators declaring themselves for or against.

Once indefinitely postponed or laid on the table a two-thirds vote is necessary to bring it back on the floor. A revival is rarely attempted, less often succeeds, but was accomplished once last week.

During one of its "birds days" the house tabled a senate bill to raise from 18 to 20 the maximum age at which a person may purchase beer. Later in the same day the measure was resurrected and passed, 42 to 11.

Many "regulatory" proposals were included in last week's batch of bills. Among other things the legislators desired to set standards for fertilizer, ice cream, poultry products, contraceptives, insurance agents, embalmers.

Although Governor Clark favors President Roosevelt's proposed "packing" of the U. S. supreme court, he proposed a different form of attack to make the Idaho's court more liberal.

Clark has the court's personnel classified as three conservatives and two liberals. He intimated that if we were left up to him, two of the conservatives would go, leaving the balance 2 to 1 on the liberal side.

It didn't appear in just that way but the house refused to make into an Idaho law the old biblical provision of the Sabbath as the day of rest. It killed a bill to require employers to give their workers one full day of rest in every seven. The measure had no teeth anyway, would have permitted seven days' successive work by agreement.

Police Boy Suggests Ringing Fire Alarm BURLINGAME, Calif. (AP)—This city has a Freddie Bartholomew of its own, at least when it comes to screen politeness. The only trouble is that his name isn't known.

Knocking at the door of Mrs. Elizabeth Turner, he said: "Excuse me, madam, but could I make a suggestion?"

"Why certainly," replied Mrs. Turner.

"Well, the roof of your house is on fire. I suggest you call the fire department," the boy volunteered.

The department got there in time to limit the damage to a depth of 12,720 feet in the earth.

HEADS DISAGREE ON CROP FIGURES

Acres Estimates Vary by 15 to 60 Millions, U. S. Reveals

WASHINGTON (AP)—"How much should we produce in future years?" a group of farmers asked A. G. Black, chief of the bureau of agricultural economics.

Black called together commodity specialists and economists in the bureau of agricultural economics who were experts on soil conservation, on demand for farm products, foreign trade, and other subjects. He found each of the groups used a different yardstick and got a different answer to the question. Black tells about it in an agriculture department report.

Farm economists, using the yardstick of farm income and the AAA goal of 1910-14 parity between farm income and non-farm income per capita, said farmers should reduce harvested crop acreage by as much as 45,000,000 to 55,000,000 acres below the 1928-32 average of 365,000,000 acres.

Cut Held Too Drastic "It was extremely doubtful that it would bring farmers parity income for a short time. High prices would result from such a reduction might cause consumers to reduce their purchasing of farm products. And in the long run farmers might be worse off than before."

Commodity specialists, using domestic consumption as a yardstick, figured that between 1920 and 1922 the nation used slightly more than two acres per person for food and fiber.

Taking the average population of the country as 130,000,000 during the next few years, they estimated the nation needed 265,000,000 acres to feed and clothe the people, plus 40,000,000 acres to feed horses and mules.

Thus, commodity experts figured 305,000,000 acres of domestic consumption. This would call for a reduction of 60,000,000 acres from the 1928-32 average.

Foreign Trade Rise Seen But foreign trade experts argued, the nation must add enough acreage to supply an export market. These specialists predicted a return of foreign trade to the 1930-34 level and estimated the country will need 40,000,000 to 45,000,000 acres above domestic needs for export.

A compilation of domestic and foreign trade consumption opinion, thus, would call for an annual harvested acreage of about 350,000,000 acres from the 1928-32 average.

Soil conservation experts, taking into consideration maintenance of the farm plant, arrived at a fourth figure. They said more than two-thirds of the land area of the United States has been affected by erosion.

Land Less Fertile About 50,000,000 acres have been destroyed for tillage. Heavy cropping has sapped the fertility of much more of the farm acreage, soil experts said. Plainly, they said, the fertility of the land has been decreasing.

Altogether, they said, a shift of from 20,000,000 to 30,000,000 acres of soil-depleting crops seems desirable if soil conservation is the only yardstick. A shift of 30,000,000 to 40,000,000 acres would be possible, estimated.

Summing up these four answers, Black said:

"This measuring future farm production by these yardsticks, we need to reduce our acreage of harvested crops somewhere between a minimum of 50,000,000 acres below the 1928-32 average. Variations in domestic and consumer demand would affect the adjustment needed in any given year."

Cat Prefers Oranges
 BREMEN, Ga. (U.P.)—The cat of the Rev. and Mrs. W. L. Bruckman would like to move to Florida or California. The cat's favorite food is oranges, which it eats as greedily as most cats do fish.

The curious actions of the prawn in creeping to the positive pole, when placed in an electrically charged tank, are caused by the arrangement of their nerve fibers. The creature can no more help crawling towards the pole than a piece of steel can resist a magnet.

It is general practice for government employees to patent their discoveries as "public patents" for the free use of everyone.

In 1931, U. S. government inspectors condemned and destroyed enough tubercular cattle to fill 10 trains of 50 cars each.

Dr. Eke points out that when the purchasing power is valued at 100 per cent for the year 1929, the 1936 buying power shows a value of about 90 per cent. This figure may be a few points too low however, since much of last year's crop yet remains to be sold and there has been some rise in prices since the first of the year.

Other reasons, Dr. Eke explains, why this 90 per cent may be too low are the relatively low farm wages and contract labor charges paid in 1936, and the rather rapid decrease since 1933 in both real estate taxes and interest below the 1929 level.

Income Equal
 For the five years before 1935, total farm income exceeded the total value of crops from 30 to 30 per cent. Income from crops in Idaho has just about equaled the income from livestock during recent years. So it must be understood that many of the crops valued in the table below became income only when fed and sold as livestock or livestock products.

In comparing the purchasing power of Idaho farmers for the year 1936 with the pre-depression prosperity peak year of 1929 it is noted that last year's buying power was but about 10 per cent under the peak power in 1929.

Buying Power Less
 Dr. Eke points out that when the purchasing power is valued at 100 per cent for the year 1929, the 1936 buying power shows a value of about 90 per cent. This figure may be a few points too low however, since much of last year's crop yet remains to be sold and there has been some rise in prices since the first of the year.

Other reasons, Dr. Eke explains, why this 90 per cent may be too low are the relatively low farm wages and contract labor charges paid in 1936, and the rather rapid decrease since 1933 in both real estate taxes and interest below the 1929 level.

WHEAT ADVANCES IN BUYING SURGE

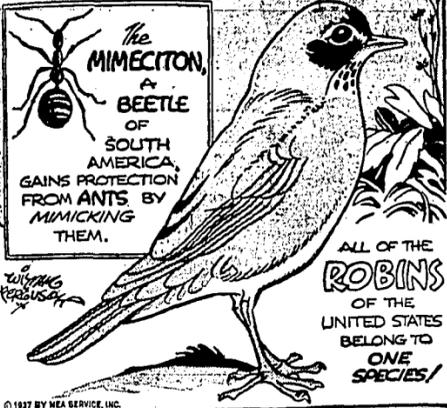

CHICAGO—Fresh buying in the wheat pit today on reports of dust storms in the southwest, rallied prices late in the session, advancing the new crop months for net gains of a cent a bushel or more. The May delivery, leader in any early reaction, showed fractional gains in the final hour.
 The market opened with moderate net gains on overnight short-covering induced by unexpected strength in Liverpool but ran into liquidation by local longs that erased practically all of the advance. Outside support was lacking until speculators digested numerous complaints of crop damage due to high winds. Buying picked up then and prices rallied sharply.
 Wheat is being blown out of the soil in the southwest, a local expert reported today. It is feared that 5,250,000 acres from western Nebraska southward to the Texas panhandle is in such condition that soil will blow badly without abnormally high winds.
