NEW LEGISLATION URGED TO GRANT ICC MORE POWER

Supervision of "Accounts and Securities" of Railroads Is Requested

$150,000 FUND IS ASKED

Group Wants Investigation of Train Holdings for "the Public Interest"

By RUSSELL TURNER
WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—The senate railroad investigating committee today recommended new legislation to give the interstate commerce commission authority to supervise "accounts and securities" of railroad holding companies.

In a preliminary report submitted in behalf of its request for an additional $150,000 to continue its investigation of railroad financing practices, the committee declared further study was needed to determine whether such legislation would be sufficient "for the public interest," or whether railroad holding companies should be outlawed.

Spent $100,000
Created by the last congress on motion of Senator Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., the committee, under Wheeler's chairmanship, has spent $100,000 thus far in studying the $3,000,000 Van Sweringen rail and real estate empire.

Wheeler's resolution authorizing the additional $150,000 expected to be approved early this week. The report traced the manipulations of control of the Van Sweringen's 23,000-mile rail system through the numerous Van Sweringen-created holding companies, to the fall of 1935 when George A. Ball, Municipal, Ind., glass jar manufacturer, acquired control for $274,000.

Sold at Auction
The transaction occurred when a group of New York banks sold at auction put up by the Van Sweringens as collateral on a $300,000 loan in 1930. Ball bought the stock in the name of the Mid-America corporation, a holding corporation which he and G. A. Tomlinson, Cleveland financier, set up to purchase the securities.

The transaction followed an agreement between Ball and the late Van Sweringen brothers, O. P. and M. J., that the brothers would

LOYAL ASSAULT DEFEATS REBELS

Italian Troops Driven Back In Fighting; American Youth Killed

MADRID, March 15 (UP)—Italian troops guarding Brigueas, headquarters of their unified command on the Guadalajara-Madrid front, fell back after a renewed assault by Gen. Jose Miaja's loyalist military today, government dispatches reported.

Pushing a new counter attack from hastily consolidated positions at Trilqueque, a convent town on the Madrid-Soria highway which they recaptured Saturday, the loyalist militia, reinforced by tanks and aviation, swept northeast across the Monte de Encinas, took two more strategic positions, and turned on Brigueas from the rear.

Fighting continued throughout the week-end. Hundreds of dead and wounded of both sides were reported littering the battlefield.

Capture Artillery
Loyalists reported capturing one piece of heavy artillery, four anti-tank guns, 14 machine guns and several supply trucks.

The loyalist high command ordered 20 truckloads of the captured war material, allegedly of Italian

Slated for Post

Changes in U. S. diplomatic posts, hinted recently by President Roosevelt, will include appointment of Myron C. Taylor, U. S. Steel board chairman, as ambassador to England, according to unconfirmed reports. Early resignation of the present ambassador, Robert W. Blumhagen, was predicted. Reports that Taylor, shown above in a recent photo, would resign the steel corporation post through which he dealt with C. I. O. in the epochal contract negotiations, were denied.

COURT REFUSES NEW TEST CASES

Seven Attacks on Legality of Wagner Labor Relations Act Rejected

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—The supreme court today refused to consider seven attacks on constitutionality of the Wagner labor relations act which is under determination by the high court in other cases.

The action was of possible significance by virtue of the fact the court has under consideration five cases testing the act.

The group of cases refused consideration by the court today, however, presented a slightly different legal aspect than those on which argument has been conducted.

Each of the seven appeals rejected today was an effort to obtain an injunction to halt national labor relations board hearings as provided under the Wagner act.

One of the rejected cases was that of the Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corp., Ltd., involving its San Francisco works.

CITY SEEKS U. S. PAVING PROJECT

Efforts Renewed to See Blue Lakes Blvd. Improved as Result of Bridge Bill

Efforts today were being made to have the federal government act favorably on completion of the proposed project which would see Blue Lakes boulevard either paved with concrete or heavy duty oil, from the junction of Kimberly road, Minidoka avenue and Main street, to Heyburn avenue at the extreme north end of the city limits, Mayor Duncan McD. Johnston said.

The mayor asserted that the federal bureau of public roads at Ogden had already indicated this improvement would be made when the toll is lifted on the Twin Falls-Jerome bridge.

"Now that Governor Clark has signed a bill enabling the state of Idaho to have the right to purchase the bridge, we are asking the federal bureau and the governor to support us in bringing this matter to a satisfactory completion," Mayor Johnston said.

Heavily Travelled
The route, which directly connects U. S. highway number 93 with number 30, is one of the most heavily traveled arteries in Twin Falls, the mayor said. The project he points out, would be financed 100 per cent by the federal government.

Union Pacific Plans New Hotel In Form of European Village

Sun Valley Will Offer Summer Sport Program

SUN VALLEY, March 15 (Special)—Construction of another large hotel unit, Challenger inn—taking the form of a mountain village of Austrian-Swiss architecture—was announced this afternoon for Sun Valley by W. Averell Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad.

Contracts will soon be let for the new program designed to cater to those of moderate income, Mr. Harriman said. The buildings will be completed before next winter's sport season, the Union Pacific chairman declared.

Plan Summer Season
Program of summer sports keeping Sun Valley in active operation during July, August and September on the same plane as during the winter season was announced by Mr. Harriman simultaneously with news of the plans for the new hotel-village. The lodge will reopen in July after a shut-down next month with completion of the skiing season, and will offer the nation's sportsmen the full facilities of the Sawtooths and the Salmon river country for summer-back trips to primitive areas, hunting of mountain game and America's finest fishing in hundreds of lakes and streams offering trout and ocean-run salmon.

The new hotel project, as announced by Mr. Harriman, will offer a unique set-up. Around a village square, where a skating rink and open-air swimming pool will be located, the buildings will ramble informally, offering continental restaurants and cafes, a variety of shops, a motion picture theater, billiard rooms and bowling alleys.

200 Double Rooms
Challenger Inn is to have 200 double guest rooms, 100 with bath, the palatial simpler rooms. Bachelor skiers and college boys will have a separate building with their own sitting room.

Name of the new development, Mr. Harriman pointed out, is derived from the famed Union Pacific all-coach-tourist sleeping car train.

All of the program of extension in Sun Valley, it was declared today, is planned to appeal to ski and winter sports enthusiasts with modest purses.

Oddities

LUCK

CARLEISLE, Pa., March 15 (UP)—The Dickinson college freshman basketball players are the first sit-down strikers in the sports world.

Prior to defeating the Carlisle Y. M. C. A. quiet Saturday night, the "Red Devils" frosh sat down when told they would not get a "free lunch" after the game.

Spectators waited 20 minutes while Coach Dick Rabley celebrated his players onto the court.

PROBLEMS

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—Headmaster Frederick Winsor of Middlesex preparatory school, Concord, Mass., believes today's problem child is not the dull boy who can't learn his lessons but the smart lad who "shines."

Winsor proposed that there be classes "that don't teach the pupils a single fact, where they can just look at the 'why' of facts."

MASSIE MARRIED

CHEWELAH, Wash., Mar. 15 (UP)—Lieut. Thomas H. Massie, U. S. navy, former husband of Mrs. Thalia Fortescue Massie, the central figure in the sensational Honolulu attack case seven years ago, was married in Seattle a week ago, it was reported here today.

The marriage was announced by Miss Marie Storm, sister of the bride, Florence Storm. She said the ceremony was performed secretly to avoid publicity.

"I've Lived Long Enough," Says Man, Then Drops Dead

OHILLICOTHE, Ill., March 15 (UP)—The conversation between James Willard Shay and J. C. Quince after the evening meal turned to mysteries of life and death.

Shay leaned back and stretched. "Well," he said, "I have lived long enough. And if I were to die right now, I would be satisfied with my length of life."

CLARK HOLDS UP APPOINTMENT OF NEW STATE MEN

Naming of Commissioner of Public Works Awaits "Cloud Clearing"

BOISE, Idaho, March 15 (UP)—Gov. Barzilla W. Clark today indicated he would wait "until the highway department is pulled out from under a cloud" before appointing a commissioner of public works.

He said that J. H. Smith, Salmon City, whom he had considered for the post conferred with him today and was not interested in a state appointment. Smith is employed by the U. S. forest service as supervising engineer in construction of a road down the Salmon river.

The governor said he had about made up his mind not to make a change until an audit of the department for which $25,000 was appropriated by the legislature, can be completed, probably in four to six months.

Ouster proceedings brought by Attorney-General J. W. Taylor are pending in district court against Commissioner of Public Works G. E. McKelvey and Director of Highways Joe H. Stemmer.

In addition the officials are under fire in three other suits filed by the attorney-general seeking to recover funds spent for machinery purchased under so-called "rental" agreements.

Salaries of both Stemmer and McKelvey have been ordered stopped during progress of the ouster suits, basis for which was contention that the officials did not hold over in office following a change in state administrations Jan. 4.

STRIKERS MUST QUIT FACTORIES

Judge Grants Eviction Order Against Sit-Downs in Nine Plants

DETROIT, March 15 (UP)—Circuit Judge Allen Campbell today granted an injunction ordering 6,000 sit-down strikers to quit nine Chrysler plants within 48 hours as Gov. Frank Murphy sought new machinery for settling industrial disputes.

While several hundred members of the United Automobile Workers of America paraded before Wayne county courthouse and lined its corridors the judge determined that sit-down strikers were in unlawful possession of the closed plants.

"The defendants must be out of the plants by nine a. m. Wednesday," Judge Campbell ordered.

A similar order was issued at Flint in the General Motors strike but was not enforced after the first attempt to evict strikers resulted in a riot.

In its argument against granting of the petition, UAWA attorneys contended that Chrysler corporation, through its alleged acts of espionage and discrimination, did not come into court with "clean hands."

No Rights
"It seems to the court that these contentions may be disposed of without passing upon the constitutionality of the federal labor act," Judge Campbell said.

"If it is valid it can hardly be contended that failure by the plaintiff to abide by its terms gives the defendant the right to seize and appropriate $50,000,000 worth of property of the plaintiff and to prevent," (Continued on Page 2, Column 1)

Rescued From Storm-Tossed Lifeboat, Eight Americans Chat Gaily Over Experience

Flight Delayed

Amelia Earhart Putnam, world renowned aviator, delayed her take-off on the flight around the world today because of weather conditions over the Pacific ocean.

EARHART DELAYS PROPOSED FLIGHT

Low "Ceiling" Over Pacific Causes Postponement to Tuesday Afternoon

OAKLAND AIRPORT, Calif., March 15 (UP)—Amelia Earhart Putnam probably will delay her round-the-world flight until Tuesday afternoon, her husband, George P. Putnam, said today.

"At the moment it looks as if the flight may have to be postponed until Tuesday afternoon," Mrs. Earhart's husband-manager said after studying weather charts.

"A persistent low about 500 miles west of San Francisco is moving slowly. Under present conditions a start today might mean head winds 600 miles or more, and then beam winds for a similar distance west. We are analyzing the charts with the weather people and Pan-American officials and ascertaining whether the Pan-American Clipper will take off this afternoon in its delayed flight."

CASES COMBINED IN PARTNER SUIT

Twin Falls, Jerome Actions Consolidated in Battle Involving Lands

Involving considerable property in Twin Falls and Jerome counties, two legal battles to dissolve a partnership and to secure an accounting of partnership funds were consolidated today into one suit in district court here.

The cases, brought by J. S. Bussell against O. T. Johnson and other associates, involve the Snake river ranch in this county and property totalling over 200 acres on the north side. The plaintiff was seeking today to establish the existence of the partnership, to have it ordered dissolved, and to have the accounting decreed by the court.

Defendants denied that the partnership exists.

Judge T. Bailey Lee approved a motion this morning entering Bothwell and Povey as associate counsel for the defense attorney, O. C. Hall, Chapman and Chapman representing Bussell.

GOVERNOR SIGNS ACT SUPPRESSING CATTLE RUSTLING

New Bill Will Allow State's Officers to Inspect All Trucks

23 MEASURES GET O. K.

Minimum Death Benefit and Compensation Law Raised From $6 to $8

BOISE, Idaho, March 15 (UP)—Two bills which law enforcement officials expect to be a great aid in suppressing motorized cattle rustling were included in 23 bills signed by Governor Barzilla W. Clark today.

Peace officers may stop truck shipments of livestock for examination without a warrant under the first of the bills. Truckers would be required to prove ownership of the stock. The other new law provides for registration with the state of all brands.

Minimum Benefits
Minimum death benefits under the state workmen's compensation law were raised from $6 to $8. Two minimum measures provided for leasing of state or school land on which there may be gas or oil and gave the state right to lease mineral rights on beds of navigable streams and unsurveyed state land.

Seven appropriation bills provided for funds for the department of public welfare, fish and game, caravan tax administration, department of agriculture, bar commission and bureau of public health. For construction of improvements at Lava Hot Springs Sanitarium, $10,000 was approved.

Other Measures
Other measures provided for joint administration of community property; procedure by which delinquent out of state corporations may resume business or surrender license; control of Heyburn park improvements; authority for irrigation districts to issue bonds to retire outstanding warrants; regulation of sale of narcotics; licensing of embalmers; leasing of county owned land for a period of five instead of two years; authorize contracts for delivery of water by irrigation districts to municipalities; permit foreign motor vehicles to operate within the state for 60 days without re-registering.

FDR Works on Income Report

WARM SPRINGS, Ga., Mar. 15 (UP)—President Roosevelt resumed leisurely activities today after a Sunday spent puzzling over intricacies of his federal income tax return.

Mr. Roosevelt mapped a full, carefree day for himself including inspection of a nearby rural rehabilitation project and a CCC camp.

The President's income tax—its amount not made public—was in his own handwriting. It was sent off at the last minute by a special airplane to beat tonight's deadline.

He and Mrs. Roosevelt filed separate returns. His $75,000 official annual salary and income from personal investments were kept apart from her earnings from the radio, newspapers and magazines.

Mr. Roosevelt took the $2,500 marriage exemption along with deduction for operating losses on his 2,800-acre cotton and corn farm here and his Dutchess county, N. Y., estate. The bulk of Mrs. Roosevelt's money goes to charity.

Supreme Court's Change Will Get Labors' Backing

Wm. Green to Testify In Support of Program

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, will testify in support of President Roosevelt's supreme court reorganization program tomorrow when the senate judiciary committee resumes hearings, it was revealed today.

Chairman Henry F. Ashurst, D., Ariz., announced that Green and Justin Miller, president of the Federal Bar association, would be the chief witnesses under a revised schedule which postpones until next week the opening of opposition testimony.

Miller formerly was dean of law at Duke university and at the University of Southern California.

On Wednesday Edward J. Corwin, professor of constitutional law at Princeton university, and Dean Leon Green of the Northwestern university law school will testify.

Meanwhile, Sen. George W. Norris, Ind., Nob., acted to carry out his proposals for curbing the supreme court by introducing a bill requiring a 2 to 3 court vote to invalidate an act of congress and a resolution for a constitutional amendment limiting terms of all judges to nine years.

WALLACE BEHIND LEVY ON SUGAR

Secretary of Agriculture Says Tax Assures Equitable Income

WASHINGTON, March 15 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace today defended the administration's proposed three-quarters cent per pound tax on sugar as a necessary social-labor measure.

"In addition to its advantages as a revenue producing measure," Wallace said in a prepared statement, "an excise tax on sugar is also advantageous as a means of assuring domestic producers an equitable income, of preventing child labor, of protecting the right of adult laborers to reasonable wages and of facilitating the administration of the quota system."

Members of the house sugar bloc, meanwhile, prepared to begin hearings this week on a bill embodying the administration's proposals.

Wallace estimated the proposed excise tax would yield $100,000,000 annually without causing an increase in prices to consumers.

"It is believed," he said, "that the excess of the total income from the proposed tax, over the total conditional payments to be made to domestic sugar producers, would be approximately $45,000,000 per annum. This would constitute an appreciable item of relief of the burden borne by taxpayers at the present time."

CHICAGO MAN IS HELD IN KILLING

Hits Friend With Fist When Told of Intention to Wed Baby Daughter

CHICAGO, March 15 (UP)—Andrew Hoagland, 35, killed the man who said he was going to marry his nine-year-old daughter, and waited in jail today for police to decide what to do with him.

The victim was Edward Kraftheffer, 35, roomer at Hoagland's house. He died of a skull fracture after Hoagland struck him with his fist and knocked him against a wall.

Hoagland surrendered to police, was held without charge or bail.

Kraftheffer took a room in Hoagland's house more than a year ago. It was a convenient and ripening companionship for the two men Saturday night they went out together.

Early Morning
It was early in the morning, while they were drinking that Kraftheffer mentioned his friend's daughter, Caroline, 9.

"That Caroline, she's a nice girl," Kraftheffer said. "I love her. I'm going to marry her."

"Don't be silly," Hoagland protested. "She's only a girl. Let's go home."

Kraftheffer went to his room and to bed. Hoagland was restless, finally went to Caroline's room to question her.

Caroline told her father that Kraftheffer had bought her candy and ice cream. But did the same for her sister, and for other children in the neighborhood.

Kissed Her on Neck
Once he kissed her on the back of the neck, she said, "but he did that to sister, too."

Hoagland went to Kraftheffer's room, woke his friend, told him to leave the house. Kraftheffer protested but Hoagland showed him out through the back door.

A few minutes later Kraftheffer was in again—apparently by his own key. Hoagland sought to eject him a second time. Kraftheffer tried to ignore him. Hoagland struck Kraftheffer in the mouth. Kraftheffer fell against a wall and slumped to the floor. Hoagland and his wife tried to revive Kraftheffer, finally called a doctor who told him he was dead.

STREET REPAIR WORK UNDERWAY

Severe Winter Causes Much Damage to Roads in This Vicinity

Seepage water, freezing under local celled and paved streets, today was blamed for considerable damage resulting to road surfaces and city road crews were busy repairing the breaks wherever they are found, city officials announced today.

The most damage to date, officials indicated, has resulted in the section of street on Second street, between Third and Fourth avenues west. It has been necessary to block off this section of paved road in order that it might be torn out and entirely replaced.

Another section where the extremely cold winter has left its mark and where extensive repairs will probably be necessary is found at the north end of Pierce street. Here the old surface has become soft and broken as ice underneath has expanded the road and traffic, as on Second street, has beaten it down until the surface has broken.

The condition this year is general throughout this section, officials indicate, and on many of the city streets, including either those paved, or of gravel, broken patches are appearing. These will be repaired as soon as possible.

Highways in this vicinity are also being broken up in spots from the resultant pressure of the ice and heavy traffic, motorists indicated. In some stretches traffic is possible only at a snail's pace.

SOLDIER HOUSING SURVEY STARTED

Utah Army Officer Confers With Mayor and Board Member Here

Captain S. W. Ackerman of Fort Douglas, Utah, today conferred with Mayor Duncan McD. Johnston and Claude H. Detweiler, member of the county fair board, relative to the housing of 1,200 troops who will travel through Twin Falls the latter part of April en route from the Utah fort to Lewi, Washington.

The troops will be quartered overnight at the county fair grounds, the only improved area in this district able to care for such a movement.

Today Capt. Ackerman made a survey of the grounds with Mr. Detweiler. The captain, accompanied by Master Sgt. Hart will be in Boise tonight. The trip, he said, is to survey the route of the troops and ascertain that all arrangements have been made.

A motor convoy of from 70 to 75 trucks will pass through Twin Falls April 16 en route from Washington to Utah and then, together with the Utah transportation, will move the troops to the coast.

If a voter has moved from the ward in which he voted two years ago, re-registration will be necessary. Voters were advised to check with the city clerk to be sure they can vote April 6.

LOCAL OFFICERS SEEKING GUNMAN

Businessman Chases Intruder After Invader Points at Wife With Pistol

Police today were searching for a gunman who is alleged to have pointed a pistol at Mrs. L. D. Greenwell, wife of the owner of Greenwell's Drive-In market, as she was preparing to retire early Sunday morning at the family home, 628 Second avenue east, and then fled as Mr. Greenwell gave chase.

The man, according to a police report today, walked onto the porch of the Greenwell home at about 1:40 a. m., and peered into the front door. As he was doing this he is said to have pointed a pistol at Mrs. Greenwell.

Mrs. Greenwell saw the man and gave chase as the gunman dashed from the porch after he discovered the couple had seen him. A meagre description of the individual was furnished police, who could give no motive for the incident.

NEW LEGISLATION SOUGHT FOR ICC

manage the properties and control a majority of the voting stock in Mid-America.

When both brothers died last year, however, Ball found himself in full control of the far-flung rail empire—although he admittedly knew nothing of railroad operations—which included the Chesapeake and Ohio, Erie, Pere Marquette, Missouri Pacific, Texas and Pacific, Chicago and Eastern Illinois, Wheeling and Lake Erie, and Nickel Plate railroads.

Reconsideration Needed
"These facts... suggest to the subcommittee the need for reconsideration of the existing law providing for ICC approval of the acquisition of control of railroad companies in common interest and for ICC supervision of the activities of those so acquiring control," the report said.

"The public interest is first directly involved in the problem of control; whether it is desirable for great systems held together by thin investments to be passed from one hand to another without commission jurisdiction.

Should Revise
"A second important problem is the desirability of permitting semi-public enterprises involving the investment of thousands of persons and the welfare of millions, to be managed by individuals who have themselves no appreciable financial interest in the properties they control."

"The committee believes that congress should revise section 5 of the interstate commerce act, in order to make unnecessary fine-spun argument concerning its meaning and should state a clearly defined policy with respect to the activities of super holding companies such as Mid-America Corporation."

LOYALISTS CLAIM CORDOBA TAKEN

Radio Announcer Says Troops Have Captured City Of 70,000

BIARRITZ, France, March 15 (UP)—The loyalist government radio at Valencia asserted today that government troops had captured Cordoba, capital of Cordoba province in southern Spain. There was no confirmation from any other source.

Two loyalist columns were reported in uncensored dispatches crossing the frontier to have subjected Pozoblanco, 32 miles north of Cordoba, to a terrific artillery bombardment Sunday night.

Strong Pressure
Other forces were exerting the strongest pressure on Villanueva de Cordoba, 20 miles east of Pozoblanco, in a coordinated attack.

It was thought possible the Valencia radio announcement was garbled, since the loyalist troops main activities seemed too far north to have passed on overnight to Cordoba.

On the other hand, Villanueva de Cordoba, about 28 miles north of Cordoba, has been under the strongest government pressure for several days and may have been the city meant by the Valencia announcer.

Intense Fighting
Fighting has been intense around Villanueva de Cordoba for the past 48 hours, with the nationalists troops reported as suffering the heaviest losses.

One column moved on Villanueva from Hinojosa del Duque, through Pozoblanco; another came by way of Alcala Cellos from the opposite direction. Their purpose was to surround Villanueva which uncensored reports said was garrisoned by three battalions of German troops, reinforced by artillery and Moorish cavalry.

Capture of Villanueva by the loyalist troops would consolidate their forces in south central Spain and pave the way for the capture of Cordoba, a city of 70,000.

Cordoba, on the Guadalquivir river, is 86 miles northeast of Seville and is an important railway junction city.

Heyburn Students Honor Graduates

HEYBURN, March 15 (Special)—The senior class of Heyburn played host to the graduating classes of several schools of the surrounding country Friday afternoon in the high school auditorium. The classes gathered for an hour and a half of informal entertainment to which each school contributed at least one number.

With Seth Corless of Heyburn acting as toastmaster, the program was opened by Jack Roper of Burley, who sang "The Armorer's Song." This was followed by a vocal solo, "Did I Remember" by Decio's William Novosel, "When the Moon Hangs Low" by Cliff Johnson of Rupert, and a "Reading with Gesture" by Phyllis Burke of Acquia.

The speaker for the afternoon was President Snyder of the Albion Normal school whose address was on culture. Heyburn's contribution consisted of a clarinet duet, "Lilacs- Traum" played by Seth Corless and Talbot Healy, a vocal solo, "Give a Man a Horse He Can Ride," sung by Alfred Thaxton, and the "Jubilee Medley" and "Climb Up Children," songs by the double quartet which includes Aubert Craven, Dick Whitaker, Beth Corless, Edward Hollenbeck, Alfred Thaxton and Mark Moncutt.

Fish Flouts Law; Probate Judge's Pole Disappears

At least one husky trout in Snake river has no respect for the law or the courts.

As a result, Probate Judge Guy L. Kinney, Twin Falls, was minus a fishing pole and line today.

Judge Kinney, on a fishing jaunt to the Thousand springs region Sunday, laid his pole down on the bank with the hook and line trailing in the river while he went over to the camp fire where Mrs. Kinney was making coffee.

Suddenly a lusty trout hit the hook. Off went the line and pole into the water before the judge could reach the scene. The fish broke water several times, enabling Judge and Mrs. Kinney to see that he was "a good-sized specimen."

And the judge's $12 pole was still somewhere in Snake river today while he wondered whether something couldn't be done about finding it.

ment and would be completed at no cost to the city of Twin Falls.

A survey of the route and the necessary blueprints are also made by the government at no cost to the city. PWA labor would be used on such a project, the mayor indicated.

The highway would be a 40-foot concrete or heavy duty oiled road, such as Addison avenue, and would be approximately one and one-half miles in length. Cost of construction would be approximately $50,000 a mile for concrete or $25,000 a mile for heavy duty oiled, the federal government standing the entire cost.

Letters Sent Out
Letters today were sent to Gov. Clark and also to the head of the highway bureau at Ogden, urging their support.

It is also indicated today that the proposed PWA project which called for a subway under the Union Pacific tracks at Shoshone street will not be carried out. This had not been approved.

The plans for the subway have been returned to the highway office and after going over them it was disclosed that they called for ramps to start back a considerable distance from the tracks, shutting off Mindosa avenue on the west to the warehouse district making it necessary to go down Sixth avenue in order to service that area.

It would also cause considerable inconvenience to all stations, coal yards, and lumber companies in the area and the amount of good the structure would do would not tend to compensate for the amount of damage, Mayor Johnston said. He indicated that the construction of the subway would practically mean confiscation of certain property, and therefore will not be carried out.

MAN AND WOMAN INJURED IN CRASH

Los Angeles Pair Hurt as Car Hits Abutment and Turns Over

A Los Angeles man and woman were in Twin Falls county general hospital today suffering from head injuries received when their motor car hurtled into a concrete irrigation abutment and then overturned several times on the edge of highway 30 about four miles west of Twin Falls Sunday morning.

The injured pair were Mr. and Mrs. Victor M. DuPuy. The man's condition was "fair" today, according to the attending physician, and the woman's condition was "good." Both suffered head injuries and cuts.

DuPuy, driving the car, apparently lost control of the machine, the sheriff's force said. The car swerved to the side of the road, struck the concrete abutment, and overturned. It smashed into a telephone pole and came to rest on its side at the edge of the highway.

Part of the baggage contents of the machine was thrown out and scattered in the small irrigation stream near the road, officers said. The car was almost totally demolished.

COST OF LIVING MAKES ADVANCE

Big Business Boom Predicted
In Next Two or Three Years by Demos

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Living costs were reported up again today with out any indication from President Roosevelt that prices generally are approaching the region where he would like to stabilize them.

A cheapening of the dollar or an increase of prices on all fronts has been a prime New Deal policy since March 4, 1933. It has been a continuing and effective policy as will be demonstrated by examination of any standard data comparing commodity and other prices today with those prevailing during the first Roosevelt administration.

Some New Deal insiders predict a lively business boom, which would involve still higher prices, in the next two or three years and they are wondering what will happen after business hits its peak.

Living Costs Rise
Living cost data released today by the national industrial conference board in New York reports moderate increases in all categories except food which was off .01 per cent in February compared with January of this year. The board said, however, that it took a wage earner .03 per cent more to live in February than in January.

If Mr. Roosevelt's desired price levels are to approximate those of 1929, the cost of living still has a long way to go. Although the upward trend has been consistent, the board reported living costs last month still 12.5 per cent below February 1929 but 21.6 per cent above the figure for April 1933, described as the low point of the depression.

Biggest Bulge
Under the Roosevelt price policies, the biggest bulge has been in stock and commodity markets.

The standard statistics index based on 410 stocks show that they have more than doubled in value in two years. The index for the week ended March 3, 1937 was 131.6 as compared with 65.0 for the week ended March 6, 1935. In that index 100 represents the normal which is the 1926 average.

Wheat, which fell below 50 cents a bushel at one time, was quoted in New York Saturday at $1.54 compared with $1.30 a bushel one year ago. Corn has passed the dollar mark in the past 12 months and Saturday's quotation was $1.24. Textile and metal prices are uniformly up. The only exception among usually listed metals is gold which remains pegged by government order at $35 an ounce.

One of the best barometers of Roosevelt policy is the farm dollar. Data now on file with the agriculture department shows that for the first time since the World War farm boom, the farm dollar is approximately at parity.

CCC TO ENROLL 100,000 YOUTHS

War Veterans and Younger Men to Be Enlisted in Organization

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—Director Robert C. Fechner announced today the civilian conservation corps will enroll 100,000 youths and war veterans during early April to fill vacancies which will exist after the fourth year of the CCC program is completed.

Fechner said plans for the final quarter of the temporary CCC organization provides for the operation of 2,002 camps and an enrollment of 350,000, exclusive of 8,000 Indians working on reservations and 4,500 enrollees assigned to territorial camps.

Fechner said the work program for the current summer provides that 1,435 camps be assigned to reforestation, soil erosion control, drainage control and wild life conservation projects under the supervision of the department of agriculture. Of the remainder, 494 camps will work on national and state parks, grazing control and reclamation projects under the supervision of the department of interior.

BLISS, March 15 (Special)—Harry Bell entertained with an oyster "stew" at the school house last week for the basketball players, the faculty and the bus drivers. The faculty and Mrs. Hamilton prepared the meal and served it to the group at 6:30. During the evening two boxing matches by members of the school were present. Vernon Ravenscroft and Bob Davis took part in the first one and Bhuri Hamilton and Junior Miller were the opponents in the second one. Dancing with music furnished by the faculty and Paul Hettler completed the entertainment.

LUMBER STRIKE SET FOR TODAY

SEATTLE, Wash., March 15 (AP)—A general lumber strike affecting approximately 65,000 workers in Washington and Oregon was scheduled today unless employers met union demands for wage increases of 10 cents per hour and preferential union hiring.

The employers offered a 7 1/2 cent raise but this has been refused. Employers said they were not contemplating any further offer. "It all depends on the unions now," a spokesman for the Seattle Sawmills association, employers' group, said. "We are sitting tight."

The union had set today as the deadline for negotiations.

INSECTS FOUGHT BY U. S. PLANES

Field Force and Air Fleet
Used in $10,000,000
Extermination

WASHINGTON, March 15 (AP)—The department of agriculture is marshalling a fleet of airplanes and a large field force for a $10,000,000 battle this year on insect pests.

While many insects are beneficial to farmers, the pests do annual damage estimated by department entomologists at more than a billion dollars. Damage has increased in recent years.

Pests which the department seeks to eradicate include boll-weevils, grasshoppers, gypsy and brown-tail moths, European corn borers, Japanese beetles, pink bollworms and fruit flies.

Drive To Be More Intensive

The campaign will be even more intensive than that which last year gave insect pests and plant diseases a setback of several years, according to Lee A. Strong, chief of the bureau of entomology and plant quarantine.

Using grants from federal emergency relief appropriations, the department took recruits from the unemployed, trained them and sent them out against forest and crop pests. At the peak of the season 25,574 men were scouting for an eradicating insects and plant diseases.

Aerial scouting for diseased trees proved so effective last year that an additional autogiro has been added to the air fleet for this year, Strong said. Flying observers, he said, can readily spot diseased trees or the host plants of destructive insect pests.

Airplanes have been used effectively by plant quarantine scouts in the southern citrus belt and in fighting bollworms and bollweevils in cotton fields. In the north, airplanes are used in scouting for the Dutch elm disease.

Grasshoppers Are Scourge
One of the most serious problems of entomologists is the battle against grasshoppers. Although 28,997 tons of poison bait was used, this pest caused damage estimated at more than $40,000,000 last year.

The battle this year will be on an even larger scale. Strong estimated 81,252 tons of poison bait would be scattered over infested fields. Present indications, he said, point to serious outbreaks in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Colorado.

Entomologists scouted through Africa, Asia and South America for the parasites and predatory enemies that prey on fruit flies abounding in tropical countries. These natural enemies of pests were shipped to Hawaii and Puerto Rico, where fruit flies have been especially destructive.

—Filer Feller.

NOW FOR THE NEXT STEP
Now that the governor has signed the bill which makes it possible for the state to purchase the inter-county toll bridge north of Twin Falls, those in this vicinity will eagerly await developments.
It must not be forgotten that the bridge company is now in the process of reorganization and that no better opportunity presents itself than the present for starting negotiations.
The fact that a companion bill, designed to pay for the bridge through a distributors' tax on gasoline, was defeated during the last session of the legislature need not lead anyone to believe that there is no way to purchase the span.
The state highway department already has spent millions of dollars on bridge construction in various parts of the state, and chances are the toll bridge could now be bought cheaper than building a new one.
Another interesting fact is that Twin Falls county is paying approximately 10 per cent of the total state gasoline tax annually, and records show that this county in turn has been shown little consideration in the way of state highway department improvements and expenditures.
If the state highway department wants to buy this bridge at the present time it can do so, and it remains to be seen just what it will be done in helping not only this section of the state, but Idaho generally, in taking advantage of a golden opportunity.
Let's take whatever steps are necessary to determine the value of the bridge. That alone has always been a disputed question. Once a valuation is established, then the details of a purchase can be worked out.
If U. S. 93 is to become the highway it should be in Idaho we must have federal aid. So long as the toll remains on this bridge federal aid and necessary improvements are impossible.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
DAPHNE BRETT, good-looking, successful young New York advertising executive, rents the Connecticut estate her father left her when he died to LARRY SMITH, attractive architect, and promptly becomes interested in him. Daphne has one sister, JENNIFER, six years younger, who is just out of college and has come to New York to live with her.
Jennifer's coming proves quite a test to Daphne because Jennifer is a chic, vivacious little modern who promptly proceeds to date Daphne's old beau, TUCK ALINGBY, her first night in New York. Daphne feels concerned because she feels it her duty to direct Jennifer. She also sees Jennifer for a challenge to herself—a challenge to get a bit more from life than a career.
But Daphne is under the impression that Larry Smith is married. Returning to her apartment one night, Jennifer breaks the news to Daphne. Smith had called, visited, and had invited her to Brett Hall. Daphne protests that Jennifer can't do that since Larry is married, whereupon Jennifer reveals that he is not married.
NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER VII
LARRY SMITH wasn't married! He lived at Brett Hall with his mother and his aunt.
Daphne said, "Let's have frog's legs for dinner and something gale for a sweet."
"Not for me. My figure means too much," Jennifer answered promptly and stretched her lithe form full-length on the lounge. "Why the sudden celebration?"
Daphne couldn't tell her that she was suddenly light and gay inside her—lighter and gayer than she had been these last two months. She couldn't say that it made her happy to know that Larry Smith wasn't married. She took her happiness into the kitchen and rattled her pans and plates noisily.
Not that she was in love with Larry Smith—
She dismissed the thought instantly as being ridiculous. And admitted that he was the first man in her life that she had wanted to know, wanted to make her friend. The first man to whom she had been instantly attracted. The first man she had ever known so briefly and never been able to forget. Even Anne had sensed that.
"How was the job today?" she said to Jennifer when they were seated at the candle-lit table. Usually she avoided the subject since Jennifer could be so explosively unhappy about it. Tonight her sense of well-being spread to tolerance even of that unpleasantness.
"Lousy," Jennifer said concisely.
"Darling, why don't you could have it from a different point of view? You wanted to work in Wall Street and you're working there. There must be something good about it. I know that you're not used to being cooped up but that's what goes with a job like that. When you get to like it, it doesn't seem confining. What, exactly, is the trouble?"
"Men," Jennifer said. "The wrong ones. There are some awfully attractive boys in the outfit but I never even get a chance to meet them. Then old Harrison asked me to lunch and today he wanted to know if he could have a date with me on Friday night. You can imagine what I said!"
"I can," replied Daphne. "Of course, Harrison is 35, and that isn't the doddering age. And he does have social position. You might as well learn now as later, Jennifer, that the attractive boys you meet this way have girls in their own set."
"I'd like to know if you mean that I'm not good enough for them? The Bretts aren't exactly poor white trash."
"I know," Daphne went on patiently, "but we can't go around with a marked page 'B' of the social register pinned on our frocks. And we can't talk about it. New York is a hard town, Jennifer. The working girl here is labeled the working girl here the same as anywhere else even if she does appear to have more chances. She has to work for them. You can't use a job as a social wedge. Not your kind of a job?"
"Why not?" Jennifer disagreed. "If I get a chance to meet the kind of men I want to meet, why can't I take advantage of the opportunity? If a chorus girl—"
"You're not a chorus girl, Jennifer."
"Not yet," Jennifer said, and seeing the shadow darken her sister's face, she got up, came around the table and kissed Daphne on the top of her head.
"You're like a naughty child," Daphne said, "and you'll have to be punished for frightening me. You can wash the dishes and I'll wipe them."
Jennifer splashed water merrily on her smart frock. "Don't bother about it, I can send it to the cleaners."
Daphne wanted to protest that every dollar—
"Why didn't you tell me how attractive the Brett tenant is?" Jennifer demanded and Daphne had no answer. She didn't—or hadn't seen much point in extolling the attractions of a married man to her young sister.
"I thought he was very attractive the one time I saw him," she said, concentrating on the glass she was drying.
"THE trouble with you, Daphne, is that you don't know how to make the best of your opportunities," Daphne raised a quizzical eyebrow. Jennifer went on: "I do! The one time you saw him, indeed! I saw him once and made up my mind I was going to see him again."
"There's a 9 o'clock train. You might run out and ask him if the water pipes are working," Daphne said dryly.
"No need for that. I'm subtle. I'll do it my way—the subtle way."
"It's a great help to be subtle," Daphne agreed pleasantly.
"It's three, Daphne. Aren't you going to get dressed?"
Jennifer looked at the little wrist watch under her tweed sleeve.
"What are you going to do?" Daphne asked lazily.
"Tuck is coming around in his roadster. We thought we'd drive in the country."
The country, Daphne knew, meant Brett Hall.
"That must be Tuck now," she said when an imperious rap sounded at the door.
It was Tuck.
"Hello, kids. What's this? The demon worker Daphne in pajamas at this time of day?"
Daphne managed a look of appealing sweetness.
"Don't scold, Tuck. I'm feeling lazy and fuzzy and dreading going to a smoky party with a lot of old fogies."
Jennifer gave her a sharp glance.
"Then why go?" Tuck said at once as Daphne had intended he should. "Get into your clothes and come with us."
"Where are you going?" she asked innocently.
"Thought you knew. No place special. Jen wanted to drive up to Brett Hall to see the foliage."
"Well," Daphne answered over her shoulder as she disappeared into her bedroom, "since you're going on place special, I'd like to see the foliage myself. I'll be ready in a jiff."
Jennifer's angry eyes missed hers.

An Exclusive Evening Times Daily Report on the Fast-moving Events in the Nation's Capital By an Expert Interpreter and Commentator. (Copyright, 1935, By Paul Mallon)

SPLITTING
WASHINGTON, March 15—The thing which President Roosevelt and Attorney General Cummings have been trying to prove is that 5 to 4 supreme court decisions are undesirable.
Mr. Roosevelt based much of his fireside radio case on that point. He thrashed the court for the 5 to 4 decision (in his favor) and for the New York minimum wage decision (neglecting to mention that he lost the NRA 9 to 0 and the AAA 8 to 3).
The built-up climax of Cummings' speech to the senate judiciary committee was similarly an attack on split decisions. He said he felt so hot on the subject he did not trust himself to speak, but quoted from the late Albert J. Beveridge, whose words seemed to be still warm enough to substitute.
The unstated fact of that matter seems to be that the Roosevelt court program does not propose to do anything about split decisions, except possibly to make them worse. If all the six new judges are appointed, the new split still could be 5 to 7. But if only 1, 3 or 5 new justices are named, the split may be exactly even, 7-7, 6-6 or 5-5.
The effect would be to let the lower court decision stand and thus have decided the constitutional question.
Note—It was a group of dispassionate British economists who wrote that Mr. Roosevelt is the only modern President who has raised all the right questions, but they doubted that he has given all the right answers.
STRINGING
The senate judiciary committee handled Mr. Cummings as if it did not want to hurt his feelings. This was not entirely due to the fact that it was lectured by Senator Dietrich of Illinois against lengthy constitutional questioning. Dietrich's lecture was not taken seriously, as members assumed he was enjoying a day of great elation. Mr. Roosevelt and Cummings had just named the Dietrich candidate to a vacant Illinois judgeship the day before.
The difficulty of questioning the attorney general was the same as with the whole court debate. All he said was true, but somewhat obscured the only point at issue, namely, whether Mr. Roosevelt should seize control of the supreme court so that he can force through a new NRA and farm price control act.
In fact, most of the debaters on both sides here seem to prefer to talk about such issues as split decisions, the ability of men past 70, proctors, crowded dockets, etc., which are only inconsequential strings hung loosely upon the main proposition.
Note—The trend of the debate is illustrated perhaps best by Mr. Roosevelt's repeated assertions that he wants to revise the court because one-third of the nation is ill-clad, ill-nourished and ill-housed. The fact seems to be that the government has no statistics on clothing and nourishment, and merely some estimates on housing. At least economists hereabouts have never heard of such figures, and know of no such survey that has been made by the government.
BEST EVIDENCE
A man about Washington town, dining out with his wife, found that she was to be the dinner partner of a supreme court justice. He warned her not to say anything about the court, or to ask embarrassing questions. She was so frightened she raised no questions whatever with her judicial dinner partner, but to her astonishment, he opened up the question of the hour, and talked rather freely about it.
AIRSHIP LINE
HONOLULU (AP)—With the success of the heavier-than-air Pacific Clippers, Hawaii remains more convinced that eventually a regular dirigible service will be established between the United States and the Islands. Authorities are keeping in perfect shape here the dirigible landing ground that was constructed 13 years ago for the ill-fated Shenandoah.
"After all, being a policeman is just like being in business," Dougherty said. "A business man has to sell himself to his patrons to be a success. The police officer must do likewise if he wishes to receive full co-operation from citizens."
"Police and the knack of proper conversation will bring about a better understanding between the officer and the persons with whom he is brought in contact."
The real reason why a policeman gets mad when bawling you out, is because he is unable to express himself adequately, Dougherty said.

ORATORY URGED TO HELP POLICE

Officers of Future Will Be Accomplished Speakers. Says Kansas Chief
KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP)—The perfect policeman of the future will be an accomplished public speaker, able and willing to harangue an audience on any subject, if Capt. Hugh M. Dougherty of Kansas City's finest has anything to do about it.
The trouble with most of the city's police force is that they stammer and splutter and become embarrassed when called upon to deliver an impromptu lecture to a refractory motorist, Dougherty believes.
Moreover, untutored in the use of oratory, they often are unnecessarily blunt and rude in addressing persons who break the law, sometimes provoking a heated argument which results in bad feelings all around.
To remedy this, Dougherty has organized classes in public speaking and oratory for policemen and he is confident much of the ill feeling between the public and the police department will disappear speedily.
"After all, being a policeman is just like being in business," Dougherty said. "A business man has to sell himself to his patrons to be a success. The police officer must do likewise if he wishes to receive full co-operation from citizens."
"Police and the knack of proper conversation will bring about a better understanding between the officer and the persons with whom he is brought in contact."
The real reason why a policeman gets mad when bawling you out, is because he is unable to express himself adequately, Dougherty said.

POMP AND CIRCUMSTANCE USEFUL
Having lived through the love affair of a king, the British empire ought to have little trouble surviving the coronation of his successor. But the current argument over who shall be the residuary legatee to the royal nightshirt, or pajamas, does seem to be one of those minor crises that would rattle the rafters of a less sturdy nation.
The American, brought up in a land where no tradition goes back much more than a century, has a hard time understanding the survival of these trappings of medievalism. He is unable to figure out whether his cousins over the sea are playing a game or taking it seriously; so, in the end, he lapses into that spirit of exasperated admiration with which he is accustomed to observe the doings of the English.
Lord Ancester, joint hereditary lord great chamberlain of England, for instance, renders divers services to the king before the coronation, and is entitled to a rake-off. By tradition, he may have 40 yards of velvet to wear at the coronation. He may lodge at the king's court. He may lay claim to the royal bed and bedding, and he can carry off the royal pajamas.
All these claims the noble lord has just reviewed, in all solemnity, before a royal court of claims. And a crass and crude Yankee may be pardoned, perhaps, for asking just what this is all about, anyway.
Somehow the British find all of this flummery worth paying for. It serves some useful purpose, or they would not go on doing it. The question is, what purpose?
Probably its chief value lies in the fact that this pageantry is a symbol of solidity. When the empire takes time out to stage a comedy like this, you can rest assured that nothing very serious is wrong. People don't occupy their minds with games when they are worrying about tomorrow's disasters.
Along with that goes the reminder of age and the stability which age brings. No one can smile at the pompous arguments over King George's bedding without at the same time reflecting that king, government, and people do share in a society which goes back in an unbroken line for many centuries. The implication is that it will continue for many more.
Now that is the sort of thing we in America lack utterly. We get along well enough without it, for we still have that youthful cockiness which keeps us looking ahead and prevents us from caring very much about the backward glance. We would not dream of robbing Jim Farley, for instance, in 40 yards of crimson velvet for a presidential inauguration, or of asking the supreme court to say whether he might take Mr. Roosevelt's nightie home with him afterward.
But we ought to be able to see why the English find it worth while to do just that. It isn't all a game. Beneath its comic surface this horseplay has a very real and solid use.
This seems an era when an upstanding worker is a scab.

THE FAMILY DOCTOR
By DR. MORRIS FISHER
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine
A cataract is a clouding of the lens of the eye, somewhat resembling frosting on a glass. It prevents the suitable passage of distinct images. Thus, the complete development of a cataract results in blindness.
There are many classifications of cataracts, depending on their progress, and on their possible causes.
A person may have a cataract in one eye or in both, although it is rather common to have cataracts in both eyes, developing either at the same time or separately.
If you happen to be troubled with red eyelids, defective vision, or unexplainable headaches which develop during the day, or with drowsiness from reading or close work, consult a specialist in diseases of the eye as soon as possible. A cataract is not a growth or a tumor.
Most cases of cataract occur in people between 50 and 60 years of age, but occasionally in young people who may have been born with cataract.
Because of the psychological factors associated with vision, it has been possible for all sorts of quacks to offer surgical treatments that do not involve surgical operation for cataract.
The desire to see better is so great that the person is willing to admit he sees better following any sort of medical treatment.
Don't believe these charlatans! There are no drugs, no drops of any kind, no exercises or treatments which are successful in stopping the slow development of a cataract.
There are, however, operations which are successful in most cases, and which now can be performed by competent men throughout the United States.
Along the roadways in India, trained operators remove cataracts from aged Hindus. The methods used there are duplicated by surgeons in this country under much safer conditions and with the aid of modern anesthetics.
When a cataract is removed, the effect is the same as the defrosting of a window or the letting up of a shade. Light again comes into the eye, and the patient can see. The operation does not injure the eye in any way, and the eye pupil is preserved.
After a cataract is removed, the patient wears what are known as cataract glasses, made so that they will help to fix the image properly on the retina.
The person who has been unable to see, play golf, or get about for some time because of a cataract, and who then recovers his sight by a simple operation which any specialist in eye diseases can perform, is usually immensely thankful for the benefits of medical science. Good vision follows 97 per cent of cataract operations.

TESTS MAY HELP IN BIOLOGY WORK
Student Research Man Plans Immunization for Animals Against "Snuffles"
TROY, N. Y., (AP)—A student in biology has started researches to immunize animals used by scientists for experiments against "snuffles"—a disease which causes rapid and rattling breathing and frequent sneezing.
He is William Diefendorf, of Glens Falls, N. Y., student at Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute.
Scientists in biological research laboratories are confronted with the problems of "snuffles" among rats, guinea pigs, rabbits, cats and dogs that scientists use in experiments to benefit mankind.
Laboratory workers estimate from 10 to 25 per cent of laboratory animals suffer from "snuffles" causing loss of time, effort and money in laboratories as well as irritation among scientists conducting experiments.
For example, in the midst of some test, which perhaps is extending over a period of weeks or months, the whole plan may be upset or destroyed through the illness or death of animals stricken with the diseases.
Diefendorf says that "manufacturers of hormones, cod liver oil and vitamins keep" thousands of animals in their laboratories to test the efficiency of their products.
"If the animals could be immunized against 'snuffles' and thus prevented from becoming unfit for experimental purposes, the financial saving and scientific importance would be large," said Diefendorf.
Diefendorf is using white rats for his experiments in the Rensselaer laboratories. His findings and remedy, if he is able to establish one, may apply only to rats, but he hopes they will apply to other animals, too.
He believes "snuffles" is caused by one organism, present in great numbers, which he describes as "a long filamentous bacteria." This he is isolating from pus pockets in the lungs of afflicted rats, and from which he makes cultures for injection into healthy rats. He notes whether symptoms of the diseases are reproduced in the animals that have received the injections.
He also takes X-ray pictures of the rats' lungs.
"This," said Diefendorf, "my first step, if possible, is to isolate and identify the germs responsible for the disease. Then I've got to prepare a vaccine, if possible, which can be injected into healthy animals to prevent them from catching the disease."
The taxable value of the county of London, England, has been estimated at $308,000,000.

MARCH 15, 1922
SAN FRANCISCO—Several weeks ago, when seismographs throughout the world recorded an earthquake of terrible proportions somewhere beneath the bed of the Pacific ocean, a European scientist startled the public by announcing the earthquake had been caused by the earth shifting its axis.
If anyone feels any deep concern over the earth's ailment, however, he can perhaps be reassured by the statement of Dr. W. W. Campbell, director of Lick Observatory, Mount Hamilton, Calif.
Dr. Campbell declares that the earth undoubtedly did shift its axis but that there is no cause for concern, in as much as the axis is habitually shifting in this manner. The earth, declared Dr. Campbell, is very seldom "on center."

COUNTY BUILDING DEED EXAMINED

Purchase of Structure Nears As Babcock Scans Papers On Property

Purchase of a building for centralization of county relief, welfare and health agencies neared today as County Attorney Edward Babcock scanned the abstract on property at the corner of Second street and Third avenue east, site of the former Evans and Johnson funeral home across from Legion hall.

Approval of the deed by Babcock will be the signal for the county board of commissioners to go ahead with the $7,000 purchase. The abstract was turned over to Babcock this morning.

The present building, now occupied by the Idaho cooperative relief agency, will be remodeled and will house the agency, the county health unit, the county commissary, WPA canteen kitchen, the sewing project and similar activities.

The commissioners have $10,000 budgeted for the purchase and for remodeling.

Star Dartmouth Rider Takes First in Slalom and Downhill Races

SUN VALLEY, March 15 (Special) — Dick Durrance, Dartmouth's star ski runner, captured the national amateur crown and the Sun Valley international open titles here yesterday, making a clean sweep of the downhill and slalom events to score 484 points. Second place in the open went to Walter Prager, 513, Dartmouth instructor, and teacher of Durrance, Pierre Francoli, 520, Switzerland, took third.

Svere Kolterud, Norway, was fourth with 527 and Robert Livermore, Hochschule, Austria, fifth with 547.

In the national amateur event, Durrance took first, Francoli second, Kolterud third and Livermore fourth.

Staged on the hills surrounding the famed Sun Valley lodge, Durrance made spectacular runs to take both major events before a large crowd of spectators from over the intermountain region. A prophesy of rain the day before the races, and "mucky" weather over the entire district, kept the attendance down, unofficial estimates for the two days of the races being put at 4,500 with 3,500 being on hand on Sunday.

Slalom on Dollars

A long string of spectators gathered on Dollar mountain yesterday as the slalom events were run off adjacent to the ski lift. Durrance moved into the number one position of a fine run in the morning, while his instructor, Prager, was right behind. Both riders retained their positions in the final trials.

Forty-four entrants were in the races, over 25 taking part.

Hans Hauser, Sun Valley ski instructor, and former Austrian champion, fared badly in the two-day meet. Drawing the No. 1 position for the downhill race on Boulder mountain, he was forced to break the snow for the other skiers and his time was thus slow. In the slalom events he took spills both trials on the tricky course and finished 17th in the field.

Celebrities Present

Four newsmen camera trucks were on hand for the events, along with many celebrities in the country. Invited among those present were John E. P. Morgan of the Boston Morgans, an official of the meet; Mackensie Smith, great-granddaughter of the founder of the Mormon church; Miss Jane Mellon, a relative of the former secretary of the treasury; S. S. Eccles and Willard Eccles of Salt Lake City; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Harriman, the former chairman of the board of the Union Pacific and chief instigator of Sun Valley lodge; the ever present J. Lindsay Dexter of Boston; and Dr. and Mrs. Clark Rich of Salt Lake City.

USE OF CENTER JUMP IS OUSTED

Big Ten Officials Agree to Discontinue Old Style For One Year

CHICAGO, March 15 (U.P.)—Elimination of the basketball center jump by the big ten—second major college conference to adopt new, high speed rules—indicated today the national rules committee may abolish the jump in colleges and high schools all over the nation.

The proposal will be considered today by the National Basketball Coaches association and likely will be presented to the rules committee Tuesday or Wednesday.

Every coach in the Big Ten voted to drop the jump for one year before passing definite legislation. Following the example set by the Pacific coast conference two years ago, Big Ten teams will use the jump only to start each half, open the overtime period and after technical and double fouls.

Won't Return

After each field goal or free throw, the ball will be put into play out of bounds under the basket of the team scored upon and in possession of that team. This rule, applied to free throws only, has been used in the western conference for two seasons.

Harold G. Olsen, Ohio State's basketball coach, was convinced the conference never would return to the "old style game."

"It makes basketball more of a spectators' game than ever," Olsen said. "There's a lot more action in every contest. Even the players like it."

Olsen, Dave McMillan, coach of Minnesota's Big Ten co-champions, and Chicago's Nels Norgren were the three chief backers of the proposal.

Wears Out Spectators

Opponents of the no-jump game insisted it will wear out both the spectators and players before the contest is finished. Such a rule also will prevent spectacular rallies by the trailing team since it must give up possession of the ball each time it scores, they said.

More than 600 coaches, a record attendance, attended the first open meeting of the National Coaches' association today.

Back Where He Began

Mac Awaits Telegram Urging Return To Training Camp of St. Louis Team

By HENRY MOLEMORE
NEW YORK, March 15 (U.P.)—It's been 10 days since I quit the camp of the St. Louis Cardinals in Daytona Beach and began my holdout for more money. As all the world knows they offered me $12,500 and 750 free bus rides a year, and I am holding out for $750 and 182 1/2 rides. All I want to do is switch the rides and the money, and it seems fair enough to me because the way I figure it won't cost the Cards anything.

So far I haven't heard a word from Manager Frankie Frisch or owner Sam Breadon since I left to come up here and be swallowed up in the maw of the great city, as the saying goes. I'm not worried about not hearing, you understand, but I know they haven't tried to reach me because I have been calling at the postoffice and the telephone companies five and six times a day, just as a sort of check. My postman, who is a great baseball fan and almost sick at the thought of me getting my big chance, has been helping me, too. Every day after he gets through with his route he goes back to the postoffice and roots through the left-over mail to be sure a postcard, or something like that, for me hasn't been overlooked.

Not Worried
As I say, I'm not worried because I know Frisch and Breadon are just bluffing. I know too that some of the St. Louis fans are making it pretty hot for them, because a fellow down in Daytona has sent me letters Frisch has received from the fans. I'll let you read a few.

"Ten days and not a word about Rookie McEldore! Is he on the team? Is he playing under the name of Terry Moore? We fans demand to know. Forget about the glass-armed Dizzy Dean and sign McEldore." This one was signed "St. Louis woman with diamond ring."

Another one even hotter, and signed "St. Louis man who is laid around by the apron strings," reads:

"Another Hans Wagner 'You chiselers, you! You Bums! Another Hans Wagner comes along and just because he can't field or hit you won't meet his demands. You oughta give that club of yours back to the Indians — if Slapnicka would have it!'"

Still another one, signed by Lord and Taylor, starts out: "For the past seven months we have been dunning you for the bill you ran up three years ago. No, that's wrong. That's one I got just forgot it."

I don't think it will be long before Frisch and Breadon yield to this tremendous outside pressure and agree to my terms. I see by the dispatches that the Cards lost a game to the Giants in Havana yesterday, so I guess they'll soon start burning up the wires beseeching me to come and bolster the team. That defeat will bring them to their senses if anything will, because when a

KUNKEL WINS IN LOCAL MAT CARD

Takes Two Out of Three From Vic Hill in Saturday Night Bout

Del Kunkel retained his tiger-weight championship here Saturday night as he defeated Vic Hill, 215, Hollywood adonis, in two out of three falls. Kunkel weighed in at 195. In preliminary bouts Floyd Hansen, Pueblo, Colo., 190, took the straight falls from Tex Hager, 170, Fort Worth, Texas, and Kenneth Mayne, Pueblo, Colo., 175, dethroned Clarence Call, Idaho Falls, 165.

Hill took the first fall from Kunkel in 18 minutes, 32 seconds with an "Indian dead" lock. But Kunkel came right back to score a fall with the step-over toe-hold in two minutes and 18 seconds. In losing the fall Hill had the right knee injured and was limping as he returned to the ring for the final round. Kunkel took seven minutes and 15 seconds to take the third and deciding fall with the same hold.

Floyd Hansen, the crowd-baiter, de-luxe, took his first fall from Tex Hager in 18 minutes, with a body slam. He got the second in six minutes and 27 seconds with a whip wrist-lock. The fans took a liking to the work of the Texan and Hansen went berserk, knocked down the referee with a punch to the jaw and then jumped on the fallen Hager. The official didn't call any fouls, although he had been warning Hansen for kicking with his knee.

Ken Mayne took 18 minutes of hard labor to toss Clarence Call. The Idaho Falls wrestler had some good holds on the Coloradoan but had a weakness of being ticklish, with which Mayne seemed well acquainted.

Another full house greeted the bouts, which were staged by the American Legion building committee, under the direction of J. Edward Warner.

COACHES' CLINIC SET FOR MOSCOW

University of Idaho Mentor to Hold Sessions During State Tourney

MOSCOW, March 15—A basketball clinic for all coaches attending the Idaho state high school basketball tournament at the University of Idaho, March 18, 19, and 20, will be conducted by Forrest F. Two-good, basketball coach at Idaho. The clinic will take place on Saturday afternoon before the final game of the tournament which starts at 8 p. m.

The eight coaches whose teams have won the right to compete in the tournament will be invited to give a short talk on some phase of basketball and the Idaho varsity basketball team will be in uniform to execute the maneuvers if the speaker desires.

"The clinic is open to any coach in the state," Two-good said, "and I would like to make it clear that the clinic is not for only those coaches whose teams are competing."

The clinic is new to Idaho and Two-good hopes to bring the coaches together for a general discussion of basketball which will bring new ideas into the game from an inter-scholastic standpoint and at the same time acquaint coaches with the styles of play in Idaho. The rapidly advancing style of play with out the "tip-off" is one of the topics to be discussed by the Idaho coach. Different styles of northern division basketball will also be demonstrated by the Idaho varsity as well as several offensive and defensive maneuvers.

The meeting will start at 2 p. m. on the basketball court in the Memorial gymnasium and will conclude with a dinner at the Blue Bucket Inn at 5 o'clock.

TWIN FALLS BOY WINS RING TITLE

POCATELLO, March 15 (U.P.)—Chance to golden gloves tournament at Salt Lake City this week was won here Saturday night by Chace (Ch) Anderson, Twin Falls high school boxer, who won the 175-pound championship at the Elks' invitational tournament.

"Chace" Slater, also of Twin Falls, was narrowly edged out in the finals of the 160-pound division by Wayne Selbert, Pocatello. The decision for Selbert, given after an extra round was fought, was highly unpopular with the fans.

Fortunes Drawn in 20th Irish Hospital Stakes

By H. L. PERCY
DUBLIN, March 15 (U.P.)—Fortunes for people in all parts of the world were drawn by pretty Dublin nurses today from a great drum in an annex of the Lord Mayor's residence, in the 20th Irish hospitals sweepstakes.

Names of horses entered in Friday's centenary Grand National, the classic steeplechase run at Aintree in England, were drawn first from a small glass drum, and counter-foils bearing the names of holders of the millions of tickets sold on the sweepstakes, were drawn to correspond to them.

Decorative Motif
This year the decorative motif for the annex was "that drawn the favorite" feeling. A man and woman were portrayed in herold size, standing on the magic carpet of a winning check and surveying a huge globe whirling at their feet. The stage was a "castle of dreams" with the big counter-foils drum as the golden gateway. The girl attendants were costumed as dreams that the sweepstakes might materialize—weddings, travel, banquets.

It was announced that the total receipts were £2,788,432 (£13,932,160) which meant that 5,872,864 tickets had been sold.

Second Round of A.A.U. Meet Will Start Today

DENVER, Colo., March 15 (U.P.)—The battle for the 1937 National A. A. U. basketball championship proceeded today with a ten game schedule, featured by the opening of the second round in which four of the seeded entries will make their debuts.

Seeded teams scheduled on the evening program were Wartburg, Mo., Teachers, Long Island university, Safeway Stores of Denver and Laemmle state of Hollywood.

Tonight's program will be the official opening of the meet. The opening round yesterday was featured by close games. Only two of eight games developed into routs. Major casualties were the two Indiana entries—Club Star of Gary and Bendix Braves of South Bend—and Southern Oregon Normal of Ashland.

Bendix Braves, rated as one of the stronger seeded teams in the meet, bowed to a fast breaking American Beauty five of Denver, 43 to 34.

Eckers Wins
Club Star dropped a 37-to-35 decision to Eckers of Salt Lake City. The Gary five held a 19-to-8 lead at the half, but the Salt Lake City's rushing attack in the second half eked out a victory in the closing minutes.

Southern Oregon Normal was eliminated by Stephen F. Austin Teachers of Texas in a torrid scoring duel.

Mohawk Mills of Amsterdam, N. Y., and Slaton, Texas, Ollers barely escaped elimination in two stirring battles.

The Slaton Ollers, champions of the southwest A. A. U. tourney, regarded as one of the dark horse threats, barely remained for the second round of play with a 51-to-48 victory over Denver Furniture.

Idaho Southern Plays
A field goal in the last 30 seconds of play gave Mohawk Mills a narrow 34-to-33 decision over Cowley, Wyoming A. A. U. champion, in an overtime period.

Other first round results were: West Texas Teachers 82, Adams State Normal of Alamogordo, Colo., 24; Oberlin, Kas., 44, Elks of Rapid City, S. D., 34; and Lincoln, Neb., Woodmen 48, Colorado Springs Grocers 31.

Today's schedule includes: 1:30 p. m.—Idaho Southern Branch vs. Oklahoma City university.

Twin Falls Five Noses Out Burley Chapter to Take District Meet

BURLEY, March 15 (Special)—District F. F. A. Basketball laurels rested today with the Twin Falls chapter, which nosed out Burley, 25 to 23, to win the title here Saturday night.

The Twin Falls five trailed in the first quarter but swept into a lead at half-time. Burley swung into high gear to climb out in front at the end of the third stanza. Twin Falls, however, managed to overcome that disadvantage by the narrow margin of one field goal.

Maurice Capps led Twin Falls with 10 points and Cathro collected nine.

Buhl Girls Retain Hoop Title

WEST END TEAM DEFEATS JEROME

It's Getting to Be a Habit As Indian Maidens Take Fourth in Row

BUHL, March 16 (Special)—The Buhl high school team song, so far as the girls are concerned, had been changed today to read "It's Getting to Be a Habit With Us," as evidenced by the fact they won the district girls' hoop championship for the fourth consecutive year by downing the classy north-side misses from Jerome by the wide margin of 32 to 17, Saturday night.

Leading all the way, the inspired Buhl quintet was never headed, leading 8 to 2 at the end of the first quarter, 13 to 6 at halftime, and 26 to 13 at the end of the third.

Wanda Skinner, Buhl forward, led all scorers with a total of 16 points chalked up to her credit. Second high scoring honors went to Maxine Askew, also a Buhl forward, with 11 points. High for Jerome was Burks with 10 counters.

A capacity crowd witnessed the contest which marked the close of one of the best attended and best played tournaments ever to be staged on the local floor.

But the victors did not get all the spoils, as statistics reveal that Jean Parsons, Hagerman, ace forward who only played in two games, tallied an even 60 points to lead the field. Close behind, however, was Maxine Askew with 56, Wanda Skinner with 48, L. Winn of Paul with 38, and Doris Summer of Jerome with 37 points.

After the final game H. Malne Shoun, Jerome superintendent of schools, presented the championship trophy to Buhl maidens while M. M. Van Patten, Buhl superintendent, awarded runner-up honor trophy to Jerome.

Lineups and summary (championship game):

Buhl (32): Askew (11), and Skinner (16), forwards; Mercer and Glodowski (6), centers; Tucker and Walling, guards. Substitutions: Halford, Stichter, Taylor, Samuels, and Leth.

Jerome (17): Burks (10), and Summer (7), forwards; Soule and Miller, centers; Handy and A. Flechiner, guards. Substitutions: St. John, L. Flechiner, Daniels, McCabe and York.

Just Picture the Co-ed's Embarrassment!

You can lead a Broadway chorine to college, but you can't keep her out of the public eye. It became apparent with the publication by College Humor of a series of pictures starring Heloise Martin, graduate of a New York floor show, in "A Day in the Life of a Co-ed." And has she caused a furor among students and faculty at Drake University, Des Moines, Ia. One of the pictures (left) reveals pajamaed Heloise getting up. In an abbreviated costume (center) she practices dancing. And (right) Footballer Ernest Bergmann gets a very realistic kiss in a third. But the picture of her in a shower bath angered even the former chorine. Heloise is a junior, member of Delta Gamma sorority and the student council—all-in-all a full-fledged co-ed, which she became on Rudy Vallee's advice that she go to college.

During this week various store windows are to be decorated by Camp Fire girls to show some of the things they are doing and the contrast between modern Camp Fire girls and those 35 years ago. The council fire is to be held in the Presbyterian church parlors and anyone interested is asked to attend by those in charge.

What's Doing at
SUN VALLEY

(By Evening Times Special Correspondent)

CLAUDETTE COLBERT LEAVES
PLEASANT MEMORIES BEHIND

SUN VALLEY, March 15 (Special) — Seventy-five members of the Paramount troupe have checked out and their going resembled the general evacuation of Europe after the war.

Claudette Colbert left, and we must admit that our opinion and estimation of her has risen immeasurably since almost two months of daily contact with her, over the time when to us she was just a glamorous figure on the screen. Robert Young and Melvyn Douglas have gone, two real he-men if we ever knew any.

Captain D'Arcy Rutherford, formerly of the Royal Scots Guards, formerly sports manager at St. Moritz, Aix les Bains, and Junn les Pins respectively, engaged with Paramount as technical advisor, also departed. Captain Rutherford was the man who originally conceived the sport now so popular on the Continent, namely water-skiing, a unique combination of winter and summer past-time.

Wes Ruggles also took the train, and thereby relieved Sun Valley Lodge of another top-notch gentleman and sportsman. Fading into the night along with the rest of the company was that rousing good fellow Claude Binyon, the citizen who, when he donned his white woolen ear-warmer, looked like nothing else than a counterpart of Nero, though he maintained that if Rome ever burst into conflagration during his hectic career, he would fiddle a piano-acordion in preference to a fiddle. We think he has something there, though we are not quite sure just what. Like Captain Rutherford, Claude is the deviser of new methods of sport, and was the originator of the Binyon stem turn, adequately described photographically in the current issue of Life magazine. The secret of the Binyon turn is that it is made while in a stationary position, and results in the immediate precipitation of the participant to the terra firma. However we are certain that no one will ever be able to duplicate this feat with the elean of the agile 300 pound Claude. Only Harry Ray and a picked handful of his fellow conspirators are left behind to clean up a few "pick-up" shots of the initial spectacle of the Dreamers Productions Ink.

Not for a long time have all and sundry been so uniquely impressed as when all the race entries from Switzerland, Austria, Denmark, et al, while preparing their skills with wax and irons for the coming fray, spontaneously burst into a series of German skiing and drinking songs to the accompaniment of a con-

NET GAIN MADE IN WHEAT PRICE

CHICAGO—Strength in foreign markets reflecting an active demand for wheat by European importers combined with unfavorable weather conditions in the southwest advanced wheat prices sharply here today. Net gains of two to three cents a bushel were recorded.

At the close wheat was 2 1/2 cents higher, new corn 1/4 to 1 1/2 cents higher, old corn 1/4 cent lower to 1 1/4 cents higher, and oats 1 to 1 1/2 cents higher.

Liverpool wheat futures, which were due 4 cent lower to 1/2 cent higher in American funds, influenced by a drop in world shipments and demand for wheat by importers. Winnipeg also showed strength, coming within a fraction of the season's top.

Corn reflected the trend in wheat, but the net gains were restricted by the small volume of trading.

Motor shares sagged fractionally. Non-ferrous metals were mixed with a majority lower. Aviations were firm with Douglas Aircraft and Boeing up a point or more.

U. S. Steel touched 120 1/2, off 2 1/2, and Bethlehem got below 100. Inland lost more than 7 points. Republic was off more than a point. Allegheny Steel, an exception, made a new high at 45 1/2, up 1 1/2.

Dow-Jones preliminary closing average showed: Industrial 189 41, off 1 1/2; railroad 62.03, off 0.03; utility 32.85, off 0.03.

Transactions approximated 1,770,000 shares compared with 2,290,000 Friday. Curb transactions approximated 406,000 shares compared with 557,000 Friday.

Local Markets

At present the 40-hour week is applicable in the mining fields, although permission has been granted allowing owners to arrive at the new working day by stages. Until the end of February mines worked 44 hours, after which they dropped to the 40-hour level. The experience of the last months, however, has convinced producers that production will not fall off as a result — one of the greatest fears they expressed when opposing the June strikes.

Production was highest in the Brierley and Mosell districts, where it topped 14,000,000 tons. Longway and Normandie, the next highest producing areas, were far behind, with slightly more than 1,500,000 tons each. France's iron centers, therefore, remain in the north, uncomfortably close to the German border.

JOBLESS MINERS MAY GET FARMS

200 Acres of Land Purchased By Quaker Group to Aid Former Diggers

BROWNVILLE, Pa. (U.P.—The miner who no longer can make a living in the black coal fields may get a chance to rehabilitate himself on farmlands.

The American Friends Service committee, a Quaker group, has purchased 200 acres of land four miles from Brownville to inaugurate a program that eventually may rehabilitate thousands of Pennsylvania coal miners now unemployed.

Construction work will begin soon on 50 new homes for the first 50 Fayette County coal miners' families who will be the first to benefit from the large-scale rehabilitation program.

Through subsistence farming, education in new trades and the introduction of new industries, it is hoped that these miners will enjoy a more abundant life.

The homes are to be sold to deserving families under long-term loans made by the American Friends Service committee. The soft coal industry was selected for the experiment, as the committee carried on work commenced in 1931-32, which the Quakers started at the request of President Hoover.

Private industry, organized labor, government officials and philanthropic foundations have endorsed the project. Among them are Andrew W. Mellon, former secretary of the treasury; Myron C. Taylor, chairman of the U. S. Steel Corporation; Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war; Ernest T. Weir, of National Steel Corporation; Gov. George H. Earle, of Pennsylvania; and John L. Lewis, chairman of the Committee for Industrial Organization.

Federal Manager to Aid David W. Day, former manager of the federal resettlement home-stead at Westmoreland, Pa., will manage the project.

Homer L. Morris, director of the program, said that the idea is to "work out techniques of what to do when large numbers of men are thrown out of work through industrial catastrophe.

"No one knows what to do when a community dependent upon one industry — coal, lumber, cotton, textiles, for example — is plunged into wholesale depression by a sudden shift in the demands for its products or by the rise of competition.

FRANCE'S STEEL INDUSTRY GAINS

Huge German Exports Made For Use in Building Armaments

PARIS (U.P.—Vast rearmament programs throughout Europe gave French iron mines a new lease on life last year, bringing production figures to a new high. The largest single rise was the export to Nazi Germany, whose new armaments program is causing profound worry throughout France, both in government and popular circles.

Although Belgium and Luxembourg, European steel and armament centers, still top the list of consumers of French iron ore with a total of 10,110,000 tons, the rise in Germany's consumption was the most marked. In 1936 Germany imported 2,688,000 tons of iron and fell as low as 712,000 tons in the depression year of 1932. In 1936 there was a phenomenal rise from 5,682,000 tons the year before to 7,793,000 tons.

Britain Short of Steel Another country whose consumption has taken a big jump is England. With the new British armaments program getting into stride, the former iron producer of the world already has noted a shocking shortage of steel. Production is still below demand, and stocks have been reduced to a minimum. The result is that imports from France rose from the low figure of 92,000 tons to 236,000 tons in the last year.

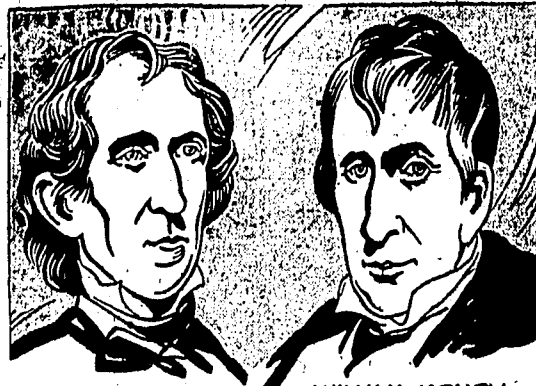

Although production in French iron mines rose almost 2,000,000 tons above last year's total, it still was below the peak year of 1929. The old high was 50,731,000 tons and production last year reached only 33,208,000 tons, which, however, was a post-depression high.

Part of the deficiency in the last year's production was the result of social conditions, the strike period having brought the mines virtually to a stop. It rose swiftly after the close of the successful strikes. In the last three months of the year production was higher than the first five months of the year, before the June strikes.

MIAMI PRINTERS SEEK PAY RAISE

Head of Typographical Union
Arrives in City for Conferences

MIAMI, Fla., March 15 (U.P.)—Charles F. Howard, president of the International Typographical union, will arrive in Miami tomorrow to conduct conferences on demands and wage increases made by printers employed on Miami papers, officials of the local union said today.

A strike of printers of the Miami Daily News prevented publication by that paper Friday. The Miami Herald missed all except two editions of its Saturday morning issue while printers discussed a possible strike and decided against it. Printers of the Miami Tribune won a 33 weekly increase Thursday night. The strike of the News' printers did not have sanction of Howard.

The printers have asked for a wage increase of approximately $10 a week.

Operetta Poster Winners Chosen

Junior High's Production on Program This Week

Winners of the poster contest for use in advertising the junior high school operetta, "Windmills of Holland," had been announced today by Mrs. Vera C. O'Leary, junior high school principal.

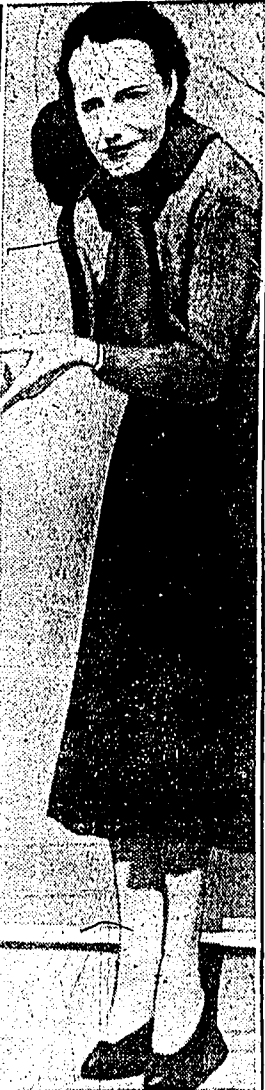

The contest was conducted as part of the regular art work in the department under the direction of Mrs. Florence Benson.

First prize was awarded to Violet Grennmett, second to Mary Fewins, and third went to Verna Sinema. Honorable mention was accorded William Randall, Walter Bolyard and Betty Jean Hennifer. The posters have been placed in downtown store windows to advertise the operetta.

Judges making the awards were Mrs. O'Leary, Miss Laura Robinson and Miss Rebecca Curtin.

"Windmills of Holland" will be produced at a dress rehearsal Wednesday afternoon for grade school pupils, Thursday afternoon for junior high students, and Friday evening for the general public.

Elusive Quarry

Mrs. Helen K. Harper (seen above in a snapshot pose), 33-year-old mother of New York City, has been an elusive quarry for detectives who traced her to Palm Springs, Calif., where the trail vanished. Under indictment in the embezzlement of funds from a lumber firm, she is alleged to have obtained $40,000 by issuing excessive checks for payment of company bills.

DYKSTRA NAMED WISCONSIN HEAD

City Manager of Cincinnati
Named to Succeed Dr.
Glenn Frank

CHICAGO, March 15 (U.P.)—Clarence Addison Dykstra, 54, prepared today to give up $10,000 annual income and his job as city manager of Cincinnati so he could become president of the University of Wisconsin.

The presidency was offered Dykstra yesterday by the executive committee of the university's regents. He said he would accept. Committee members announced the offer and acceptance would be presented to a full meeting of the regents at Madison, Wis., for confirmation March 18.

Dykstra will succeed Dr. Glenn Frank, whose 11-year tenure was terminated by the regents Jan. 7 on charges of mismanagement. It appeared uncertain when Dykstra would take office.

Housing Unit to Maintain Bureau

Information Desk Will Be Set Up at City Hall

For the purpose of assisting those wishing to join the American Citizens Protective association, a group recently formed locally for the purpose of assisting those of the low wage brackets in securing and building their own homes as well as furthering educational interest, an information bureau will be set up in City hall Tuesday, officials of the new unit said today.

Al Hacker, chief of research for Twin Falls county, will be in charge of the bureau and will be available from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. Tuesday through Friday. The service will not be available Sunday and Monday of each week but will be maintained each Saturday from 9 a. m. to 12 noon.

The first house to be constructed under the new plan is expected to be started this week, through the cooperation of local businessmen and interested persons.

CONTEST FEATURES SPRING OPENING EVENT IN TWIN FALLS

Window Errors Provide Theme Of Competition

Latest 1937 Merchandise Will Be Shown in Shops

Novel in more ways than one, Twin Falls' 1937 spring opening is expected to draw crowds to the city Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday to take part in a new contest and to learn the newest style notes in apparel and many other lines.

Chief novelty of the event is the "window mistake" contest giving every resident of Twin Falls empire an opportunity to win one of 15 cash prizes.

This year's opening also will be out of the ordinary because it will extend for three days instead of one. As a result of this greater emphasis, merchants throughout the downtown area were planning today to display their latest merchandise on an extensive scale with the stress on women's apparel. Other lines, however, will be prominently displayed in 1937 motif, ranging from men's clothing to radios, refrigerators, hardware and dozens of others.

The "window mistake" contest is sponsored by the merchant's bureau of the Chamber of Commerce, and will be staged only by those business firms which are members of the chamber, according to W. A. Van Engelen, chairman of the bureau.

Offers Entertainment "This particular contest," Mr. Van Engelen said, "has been used successfully in several towns throughout the United States and Europe. It provides a great deal of entertainment for the crowds competing, and emphasizes ingenuity in discovering mistakes displayed in each window.

Eligible to compete, he said, are all residents of the south central region who are over 18 or older. Youths under that age will not be allowed to submit official entries although these may try the contest for amusement.

Plan of the competition was outlined by the bureau chairman as follows: Each store participating in the contest will place one mistake in just one of its display windows. This mistake will either be in decorating, in the display of merchandise or in the working or figures of price tags or window cards. In all display windows of the competing stores will be placed large placards on which will be listed the names of the participating firms in alphabetical order.

On these placards, Mr. Van Engelen pointed out, will be included the simple rules of the contest and the amount of the prizes offered.

15 Cash Prizes The awards for which the spring openings crowds will compete include five $10 first prizes; five $5 second prizes and five $2.50 third prizes.

The prizes will be awarded to the 15 persons listing the largest number of mistakes in alphabetical order.

The contest opens Tuesday, March 16, at 8 a. m. and extends until Thursday, March 18, at 8 p. m.

Contest judges hope to be able to sort the avalanche of entries and announce the prize winners by Friday afternoon.

Making the competition "airtight" as far as advance knowledge of the window mistakes is concerned, only those store workers decorating the windows will be informed of the error. This move was made as a precaution of fairness to all participants.

Merchants arranging mistake windows, according to Mr. Van Engelen, will insert a suitable card or arrow in their contest windows after close of the contest to permit crowds to make the rounds Friday to check-up on what the errors actually were.

Jaunt Around Clock With Young Actress

Although she is one of Hollywood's most recent arrivals, glamorous Dorothy Lamour has already won for herself a high place among the best dressed women of the film capital.

The beautiful brunette, who appears with Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray in "Swing High, Swing Low," a romance with music coming to the Orpheum next Sunday, has one of the most elaborate wardrobes of any actress and a trip around the clock with her is a complete course in what the well-dressed woman will wear.

Three-Piece Sport Outfit Miss Lamour starts out at 9 a. m. in the three-piece outfit which appears there at right. It's designated particularly for bicycling and walking, two sports of which she is very fond. This outfit consists of a gaily printed blouse of crepe de chine, with a tied neckline and short sleeves; a short, flaring skirt of powder blue flannel with an all-around attached, pleated skirt and a matching bolero of the flannel lined and bordered in the print which fashions the blouse. A dull leather belt of navy adds a smart accent at the waistline.

By 11 o'clock Miss Lamour is in white linen sport frocks, accented by touches of bright color. She is seen in one of these in the top of the accompanying illustration. It is a youthful affair of white linen with brilliant blue trimmings and has a laced bodice. Her shoes are of matching blue and white.

More Formal Note For the more formal luncheon hour Miss Lamour likes the tailored suit of mannish fabric shown at 12 o'clock. This is of Oxford gray with a white pin stripe. A tailored silk blouse of bright blue matches the twisted band on her black felt hat and a pair of silver fox skins serve excellently as a scarf. Black accessories complete this outfit.

For early afternoon, Miss Lamour prefers the next ensemble. This is a gay printed frock of navy blue, light blue and white, topped by an interesting coat of rough blue lightweight wool. The neckline of the dress ties in a scarf which slips through slits in the neckline of the coat and the bodice of the coat resembles a bolero. In black a series of tucks add important detail and fullness and the skirt of the coat buttons around a smooth hipline but leaves the skirt of the dress visible. The hat is blue bangkok and other accessories are in black.

On chiller days Miss Lamour wears the coat shown in the next picture. This has a coachman's silhouette with an interesting fullness swung toward the back, and boldly cut lapels over a three-button treatment in front.

A more feminine note is struck in the print seen in the next illustration. Miss Lamour likes this one for late afternoon occasions. Blue and white flowers are scattered over the dark blue ground. The broad-brimmed lacquered Milan hat has a cluster of tiny white daisies placed at a provocative point under the brim. For formal evening wear Miss Lamour dons the beautiful black gown especially designed for her to wear in "Swing High, Swing Low" by Travis Banton, Hollywood fashion expert. It is black satin under sheer black net with large embroidered dots. The fitted lines of the satin and the one-shoulder treatment with a large bow of the net accentuating the effect, stress the sophistication of the gown.

Here's Dorothy Lamour, one of Hollywood's rising young actresses whose day-long wardrobe described in the accompanying article will give you a few ideas of your own for fashionable apparel.

FAIRFIELD

Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Gill have returned to Fairfield after spending the winter in Boise.

Tom Sanford has returned to his home here after spending three weeks in the Gooding hospital for appendicitis. He is recovering slowly. James Leek is at the Gooding hospital where he is recovering from an appendectomy.

LINENS FEATURE YEAR'S CLOTHES

Everything from Beach Suits To Evening Dresses Made For Summer Wear

PARIS (AP)—Moynagh Irish linens are being shown in all the big coutoure houses for the spring and summer collections. Everything from beach clothes to evening gowns is made in linen this year. The weaves vary from a very sheer linen voile to a coarse, bumpy weave that looks exactly like homespun or tweed.

Ardane uses linen voile in a pale orchid pink for a girlish evening gown made with short, puffed sleeves and a very bouffant full skirt. The same couturiere used a natural linen up a heavier weave for a yachting dress that is worn with a bright blue blazer.

Shantel—a linen which is woven to look like Shantung—is used in several costumes at Helm. One in navy has tiny cap sleeves trimmed with two rows of white braid. The short, full jacket, which has three-quarter length sleeves likewise is trimmed with double rows of white braid which run along the neck and jacket opening, as well as banding the hem.

Fabrics modeled after the genuine Scotch tartans are shown in linen everywhere. Most of these have blue or mauve tones outstanding. These are made in a light weight, compact weave. Marcel Rochas uses one based on the MacKenzie tartan in dark blue, light blue, green and yellow striped by narrow double bands of bright red. The skirt is pleated all the way around and worn with a blouse of natural linen voile while the tailored jacket is in navy linen.

MOCKING BIRD INCREASE

BERKELEY, Cal. (AP)—The University of California has established that while almost every other species of wild bird in the state is diminishing, the mockingbird is increasing. Two reasons are given, that the mockingbird is not a game bird and the increase in tree plantings has given it additional rendezvous.

WHITE PIQUE IS SPRING FEATURE

Starched Cotton Used to Trim Light Weight Ensembles This Year

By MARY FENTRESS

PARIS (AP)—Trimming of starched white pique is used on the light-weight wooped ensembles at Lanvin.

Pointed collars of pique, that has been starched so stiffly that the points can be curled up, go with trim pointed cuffs. Navy blue replaces the traditional Parisian black in this collection and a great deal of green is used as well.

One of the costumes consists of a high-necked, long-sleeved dress of green tweed trimmed with the usual pique collar. The long top coat is of green and red plaid and is lined with plain green tweed. Another in navy blue wool has a high-necked bodice that is starched in front. A scarf of starched white pique is worn about the neck with the ends of the scarf pulled through the two slashes on the front bodice. The belt of the dress is of red blue and silver kid.

These sports costumes are accompanied by small matching hats which have a crease down the center and, therefore, can be folded up conveniently in the hand. The hats are of woolen material to match the dress or coat and are made with rather shallow crowns that fit on the back of the head. They, too, are trimmed with starched white pique—sometimes the crown is of pique and sometimes a shallow brim of stiffly starched pique.

Braiding of all varieties is used as trimming for dressier costumes. One dress in navy wool is worn with a wide green belt. The bolero jacket is edged all the way around the neck and front opening with green braiding.

FASHION TIP

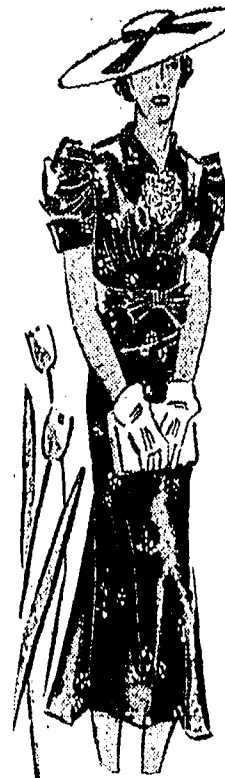

White pique, stiffly starched, is used for trimming on navy woolen sports dresses for spring.

Linen voile is used for many new summer evening gowns.

New Styles for Women and Men Are Stressed for Spring Opening

LATEST IN MALE APPAREL SHOWN BY STORES HERE

Up-to-the-Minute Wear for Well-Dressed Man Told By Experts

The preferred and most popular shirt for sport wear this summer will probably be the polo or beach type variety. Some will be designed to be worn with a tie but the general favorite is the over-the-head neck and is worn open.

Sport shirts will be worn as a general and accepted style this summer with and without ties. To prove this point Twin Falls store authorities suggest the reader look back a little ways and remember what happened to sport shirts and sport suits; they were really not popular until they appeared on our city streets and were worn for practically every occasion, including business wear.

New Ideas
There are many interesting and new ideas in cut silk neckwear but nothing quite so popular as the modernistic trend. One of the newer ideas to be seen extensively in Twin Falls this spring and summer is a figured stripe, which is unusual in silk of this weight and type. Chalks are also good and here again you will find the bolder type preferred this summer.

Barely swim trunks cannot become more abbreviated than they are today and still be swimming trunks. The most popular styles are knitted in solid colors, some all elastic, others with elastic tops. A new idea this year is a cut-and-sewn gaberdine designed exactly like a knitted trunk with an elastic waistband.

Contrasting colored belts and piping will feature the swim trunks adornments. Some of the belts will be fastened with a sailor's hook instead of a tongue and buckle. Solid white, pale blue and canary are popular for the younger men. The legs of the trunks are somewhat smaller than heretofore.

Light Weight Sweaters
Sweaters will be light weight sleeveless pullovers that look and feel like Cashmere and will be worn more or less on the colder days will be featured. As for the conventional type of long-sleeved sweater, they will be short and to the waist. Established leaders in sweater fashions are solid colors; some cable stitched models will be seen.

As for miscellaneous items colored web belts in solid colors and two color braids will be important. Bush shirts will be featured. It is also possible that quarter length wool hose will be found on the leg of the male golfer.

As for night, the dinner clothes will be worn as informally as possible with soft collar-attached shirts of silk or mercerized broadcloth in high favor. Double breasted dinner coats in midnight blue and black will be more popular than all other colors combined — even (maybe) more popular than white.

Three Button Coats
And again, back into the day, light, three buttoned coats, both plain and belted will be liked by the better dressed crowd, and seen in all types of cloth.

As for shoes, local men about town will probably wear conventional types with white ones featured on most occasions. Brown will also be popular as will the old standby black.

It took 20 years or more to get men from wearing pants with such small bottoms that they couldn't get their feet out without taking off their shoes, and it will probably take another 20 years to make them wear some of the "flashing" attire the eastern stylists want them to wear now-a-days, but nevertheless Twin Falls men will be right in step if they wear the latest available at local stores.

So far as pants are concerned this spring and summer, at least those of the slacks will be well represented. Medium to dark shades of grey flannel are the best liked tones in trousers with the better dressed man and are worn with jackets of all colors.

Pleated Trousers
Local style experts indicate it will be difficult to find anything else but pleated trousers anywhere. In the east and south shorts will feature the golf courses, but in Idaho—full line pants will still be much in demand.

All in all the western man will be as well dressed as probably any other living in some other locality, but they will not go for the more "gaudy" colors as their southern brothers. Maybe someday but not this summer.

By lack of "gaudy" colors the local style experts do not mean that Twin Falls men will travel as if in solemn mourning. They will be "flashy" but not "gaudy" and they will wear such clothes that will give them free movement and will be comfortable. Local men like to dress well but they don't like to look like a walking billboard.

And the ladies who will be seen with the men—well that is up to the ladies—what they will wear.

KIMBERLY

Mrs. Frank Henry has been taken to the county hospital where she will undergo an operation.

L. A. Thomas and Louis Denton attended the Golden Gloves tournament at Pocatello last week.

Mrs. W. M. Arnold who was operated on last week in Salt Lake City, is convalescing at the home of friends there.

Mrs. W. Wilson has returned from Missouri where she spent the winter.

Success Form

It took a lot of ogling and debate by the judges to pick "Miss Florida 1937" in the contest at the Miami Biltmore county club pool, but they finally bestowed the laurels on fair Bonnie Edwards (above), of Miami. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Edwards, former Chicagoans, is a brown-eyed brunette, 5 feet 5 and weighs 115 pounds.

FAMED PARISIAN CHOOSES SHADES

Dusty Pink, Hydrangea Blue Picked This Year by Jean Patou

PARIS (U.P.)—Every season the house of Jean Patou selects two new shades which are exploited throughout the collection, are copied by shops and department stores and soon become the most popular shades everywhere.

This time, Patou uses a dusty pink and a hydrangea blue which he combines in many spring ensembles as well as trimming for navy blue costumes. Veering from the usual Parisian black with touches of white, Patou makes many street and afternoon costumes in navy blue crepe trimmed with the pale dusty pink.

One of the most successful hats in the collection is in navy straw with a straight, stiff brim and a peaked pagoda crown. Two chiffon streamers in hydrangea pink and blue are wound about the crown, then pulled through a slit in the back brim where they form a choux. These same colors are used together or separately for evening. The general silhouette for evening is a slim, fitted one, with skirt fullness coming from below the knees. The bodices usually are topped by a halter neck which leaves the back and shoulders bare. The bodices are tight and the hip line is very fitted. The waists usually are encircled with a girdele of the dress material while enormous artificial flowers are thrust in at one side or are used to trim the top of the bodice. Sometimes the skirts are caught under at the hem in the effect of Turkish pantaloons.

Long shoulder scarves often fall in streamers to the floor—orchid streamer scarves are suspended from each shoulder of a pale green gown and are caught up under the hem of the skirt.

Big, Bad Wolves' Pelts Make Furs For U. S. Women

MONTREAL, Que., March 15 (Special)—Furs with an estimated value of $400,000,000 were sold by the retail trade in the United States last year. Of the total about 11 per cent of the raw furs came from Canada, according to the industrial department of the Canadian National Railways. This proportion was augmented by other imports through the London fur auction to which Canada is a heavy contributor of pelts, the fur industry being worth about $85,000,000 per year to Canada. Among the furs for which there is a popular demand in the New York market is wolf. A good skin brings around $14.00. After treatment they adorn the ladies as a species of fox.

SHOPS' WINDOWS OFFER ALLURING FEMININE MODES

New Spring Fashions Shown for Milady—But Others Aren't Forgotten

Twin Falls shop windows, on the event of spring opening, were presenting today an alluring sight to the feminine shoppers of all of south central Idaho.

The latest modes on exhibition, according to questioning of shoppers picked at random, carry paramount interest both to the women who will be viewing the displays primarily to find the last word in styles now in order to guide purchases later, and for the women who know exactly what they want already and intend to waste no time in getting it.

With many shop windows devoted largely to emphasizing the 1937 spring motif in Milady's apparel, the needs of the entire family have not been forgotten. Merchants of Twin Falls have trimmed windows this spring with a wide appeal in mind, and although some of the offerings may startle you at first they are in deplorable mot, and you will be using them, too, before long.

Color Outstanding
Color is one of the outstanding notes shown in the window decorations with some all in blue, others showing only black accentuated by brilliant trimming. Some windows are featuring shades of gray and bright colored accessories or pastels that can be worn now or all through the summer.

Coats, hats, shoes, gloves, bags, dresses, suits, hose, lingerie, blouses, sweaters as well as costume jewelry and other accessories are all displayed for the benefit of the shopper in every women's store and the latest Fifth avenue and Bond street modes are shown in men's stores and departments.

What's what for 1937 in suits, topcoats, hats, shirts, ties, shoes and all other items of male apparel for man and boy may be seen by the interested shopper.

First Queen

Like the first crocus and the first robin, there is always a first queen of spring, and dark-eyed Janet Foster, above, makes an early bid for the honor. The chosen high school student was chosen to reign over the Wenatchee, Wash., apple blossom festival.

And that's not all. Besides the variegated and colorful displays of the latest in clothing, you'll find the newest "streamline" designs for spring of 1937 on exhibit in a dozen additional lines of merchandise. There's something new for 1937 in almost any business you can name, and it will be on parade during the spring opening and the "window mistake" contest.

IN COLLEGE HONORARY
BUHL, March 15 (Special)—Norman Boring, Buhl, student at the College of Idaho, is one of six new members recently initiated into the Eta east of Alpha Psi Omega, honorary dramatic fraternity.

DOUBLE POWER IN NEWEST BULB

100-Watt Mercury Lamp Gives as Much Light as 200-Watt Globe

CLEVELAND, O.P. — Engineers have developed a 100-watt mercury lamp which is said to give as much light as the standard filament 200-watt bulb.

Still in its experimental stage, the new lamp is a small tubular bulb-within-a-bulb, the outer bulb, 1 1/4 inches in diameter, being a protecting envelope for the inner bulb of extra-hard, heat-resisting glass. Within the inner bulb is a small amount of mercury and enough argon gas to start the lamp. An arc strikes when the lamp is turned on. After five minutes, the first feeble glow is built up into a brilliant stream of light.

Secret of success with the lamp in early experiments, engineers say, lies in the precise design and placement of the two electrodes, one at each end of the inner bulb.

Unlike present 250 and 400-watt mercury lamps, the new bulb operates from either a 110-115 or 120-volt line, without requiring a voltage step-up for starting. It operates at about two atmospheric pressures.

The dairy cow is accredited with leading all other animals in making the most efficient use of food it consumes, according to the bureau of animal industry.

What's Doing at SUN VALLEY

(By Evening Times Special Correspondent)

ACCIDENT EARNs MONEY FOR SUN VALLEY SKATING EXPERT

SUN VALLEY, March 15 (Special)—Graham Hobbs, creator of thrilling maneuvers with the aid of steel runners and a goodly square of ice, received an unexpected thrill himself the other night, when down at the local gambling den, he was standing at the end of the roulette table with about five silver dollars in his hand after having lost some 10 pesos upon the pastime.

Somewhat disconcerted with his ill luck, he unconsciously let a cart-wheel drop from his hand and it rolled on number 34 on the end of the table without his ever noticing it. Imagine his surprise when that number paid 35 ruples for the one he had unintentionally spilled upon the green bias. Just for luck he left the dollar ride, and his joy was increased a thousand fold when that number repeated, leaving him some 60 odd iron men net profit. That worthy youth evidently lives correctly.

Bill Pitts of the Sun Valley staff was called home by death in the family of his widowed mother, and will not return this season. Our sincere condolences accompany him to York, Neb., for he is a friend of long standing and a genuine gentleman. Practically all of the Paramount people have now departed from the lodge. Among the first contingent to head back to Hollywood were some very likable characters, individuals with whom parting, left a void. There was that big ape-man, Jack Shea, clumsy as an ox, big-hearted as the day is long, and with a boyish personality that enervates every one who happens within range. And Lorie Lane, the beautiful but dumb looking blond, who was really a graduate of the convent schools of New Orleans, and quite a polished lady. And Eleanor Prentice who talked incessantly, and gave the impression of badly scattered brains, but upon closer acquaintance, was nobody's fool, and actually was far ahead of the score with most citizens contacting her. And George Davis departed too, the gent who is as comical accidentally as most professionals are in character, without being at all obnoxious or obnoxious; a man who has for many years made his living by ridiculous falls, that would land the ordinary person in a wheel-chair for the rest of their earthly span, but left him unscathed. And then there was the countless, who came as an extra, and whose name is at her request, always deleted, for quite obvious reasons. Claim to her title is made both by heritage of birth and marriage. Incidentally, she ventured upon the matrimonial seas upon four different occasions. Well up in years, and quite plump, her eternal good nature and courage in the face of fate's rebuffs are a living lesson to any who will profit thereby. She has arisen to great heights, including weighty operatic roles under the direction of the immortal Toscanini, but now is happy that she is fortunate to have "extra" work. Among her many accomplishments, was a career of notable duration as an international figure skater, and it was because of her proficiency in this art, despite her 50 summers that she was employed upon the present Paramount project. And her prowess on the legitimate stage has also been recognized by the great of other days. One connection of her existence of which she is quite proud is the fact that the uncle of her mother is still at the present date, following a career that he started very early in his youth, that of making fine skins in Oslo, Norway. She herself learned as a girl to ski, with great finesse upon Blavie slopes. We humbly consider ourselves greatly enriched by her acquaintance. In fact, we feel a definite void with all the Paramount attaches gone.

Look What Paris Turns Out for Spring This Year!

Erik Continues to Create 'Mad' Modes to Top Styles

Flowers ordinarily do not grow out of the bottom of the pot, but Erik, Paris' "mad hatter," makes them do it in this new creation for spring. The upside down flower pot is of black silk, surmounted by black and white flowers. The net veil drapes over both shoulders.

ABOVE: Black felt trimmed with white pique makes Violette Marsan's version of the Breton sailor hat a true harbinger of spring. New are the crown sloping at back and the felt bow that flutters in milady's wake

LEFT: Quite as ga-ga as the extremes modes of winter is Erik's mad creation in black felt with shell-like dot veil. It can be worn equally well with the shovel "crown" in back. Note that the "crown" is edged in gleaming grosgrain

Pique Trimming Is Sure Sign of Milder Weather

Violette Marsan depends on pique to pique the interest of smart Parisiennes in her pre-spring creation of heavy black grosgrain. It is meant to be worn with a fur coat, hence the high crown; but the touch of white gives a between-seasons air.

LACK OF IODINE CAUSE OF GOITER

Mountain, Great Lakes Areas Called Seat of Disease in America

BOSTON (AP)—Women are ten times more susceptible to goiter than men, according to Dr. Robert C. Cochrane, chief of goiter service at City hospital here.

He said many children, usually girls, show signs of having goiter when quite young, but in a large majority of these cases the slight enlargements in the neck disappear when the girls reach the age of 10 or 20.

If men are stricken with over-activity of the thyroid gland the case almost always is a severe one, he says.

The cause of the disease is due to extreme stimulation of the thyroid gland and a deficiency of iodine. Two-tenths of one per cent is the normal iodine content in the gland, the physician said.

The Great Lakes and mountain sections of the United States are known among the medical profession as the "Goiter Belt," Dr. Cochrane says.

"The prevalence of goiter in these sections is due to the lack of iodine in the water, and can usually be combated by placing iodine content in the drinking water supply of the community."

The disease is comparatively rare in communities along the seacoast, Dr. Cochrane says. Eating seafoods aids in maintaining the correct iodine content in the thyroid gland.

Why women should be more susceptible to goiter than men has not yet been learned, Dr. Cochrane said.

DAIRY CONGRESS
WATERLOO, Ia. (AP)—Waterloo's annual dairy congress, one of the middle west's great livestock events, will be held Sept. 27 to Oct. 3, inclusive. It has been announced by E. S. Estel, secretary of the exhibition.

Buhl Girl Enjoys Riding in Capital

Lulu Shank, Private Secretary to Cong. Clark, Becomes Expert Horsewoman

By RALPH W. OLMSTEAD

WASHINGTON, March 15 (Special)—In addition to becoming an aviator, Lulu Shank, of Buhl, secretary to Congressman Clark, is becoming an exponent of the finer intricacies of horsemanship. We must report that she has developed considerable skill. Soon she expects to appear in horse shows. She takes her horse over jumps with the greatest of ease—and uses an English (sissy) saddle. If there is any sort of a gadget to ride with less to hang on to than an English saddle, we don't know what it is.

In fact, shortly after Verda Barnes of Idaho Falls, T. A. Walter's secretary, arrived in Washington she saw a Washington socialite sauntering along the bridge path in Rock Creek park—aboard a horse; said she, "Look at that fool riding bare-back."

Betty Hoover of Boise, one-time student at the University of Idaho, is making a good record in Washington. After leaving the university in 1931 she went to Boston where she was employed for some time by an attorney. She is now employed in the legal division of the department of justice. It must have taken an attorney general with a good sense of humor to put a legal division in that department.

ENTERTAINMENT PLANNED
FAIRFIELD, March 15 (Special)—Harry Geisler Farms, Inc., plans a day of entertainment on Wednesday, day celebrating the building of the first John Deere plow 100 years ago. Four talking pictures will be presented and lunch will be served. Every farmer and his friends are invited, it is announced.

Elephants do not drink through their trunks. The trunk merely sucks up water and squirts it into the mouth.

WARDROBE ENSEMBLE HELPS BUDGET BUYING FOR SPRING

With cape ensembles in fashion, and typical tailored ensembles with their mannish topcoats, or the more casual or feminine styles in dress and coat combinations, the woman who buys a wardrobe ensemble finds herself equipped with the basic garment for a complete spring wardrobe.

Three-Piece Suits Best
If the smart woman is buying with this careful plan in mind, she will choose the three-piece suit with a topcoat that may be used also as a separate coat. The new lengths reach just above the knee, and give a youthful swing to the skirt. Many are styled to reach just below the knee and are quite practical extra coats.

New nubby tweeds, softly woven diagonal effects, basket weaves in which a long-hair surface gives beauty to the fabric—these are some of the materials shown by the stores. Fleece and long-haired or very soft looking wools are also shown, and are both lovely to look at and to wear. Real camels' hair is smart again in coats, and may be chosen to go with the typical suit costume, making a three-piece combination.

The very young look of the box coat, in fingertip length usually, gives this coat popular appeal. It is often combined with a frock, and when an extra print frock is chosen to go with the ensemble, the basis for a real wardrobe is formed. These box coats may button up to the neck, or flare open in tuxedo line. Typical swagger styles are also adapted to these chic little coats, with swing at the back, and full loose sleeves.

Sweater or knit ensembles having the boxcoat or jacket are also the beginning of a spring wardrobe. Many of the new wools are knitted, or have a lay knit look that combines well with other knit costumes. The woman who likes the casual smartness of knitwear will certainly choose one of these.

Cape Ensembles Hi-Fashion

For the woman who can afford more than one suit this spring, the cape ensemble may well be recommended. It is very wearable. Long or short cape may be chosen, with the youthful flare, or the straight almost military simplicity in other models may be preferred.

The new wools are especially nice in cape treatment, for they hang loosely and swing gracefully, due to their loose weave and soft combination of yarns. Fox collars and white wolf or even flat fur give added luxuriousness to capes.

Choose Correct Accessories

More than one set of accessories with the three-piece ensemble will develop the spring wardrobe in the tailored or feminine styles, both equally smart this year. Gay peasant scarfs, frilly neckwear, tailored shirts or blouses, plaid Ascots—and either feminine or tailored handbags, hats, and gloves, will do wonders to change the aspect of the ensemble costume.

"Double-date" costumes are popular this year, for many women must plan to be appropriately dressed for both luncheon and tea-time engagements. It is with this in mind that Fashion offers separate jackets, which may be substituted for the suit jacket and make an entirely new-looking costume of the ensemble. A bit of the British is proper in many of these separate jackets, with their plaids or checks or mannish looking tweeds. Then, too, they give an opportunity to change from the simple link or single-breasted closing of the typical suit this year, to the more sporty effect of double-breasted jackets.

Choose at least one jacket with plenty of pockets—for they are smart! They are placed at high points on each side, and often four pockets on one jacket give it dash. Amusing shapes and slants to the new pockets make them look 1937, while of course a colorful kerchief tucked in the pocket gives a dashing effect.

First Lady

"My own dress was heavy stiff satin with shirred tulle in the neck and long sleeves," wrote Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in her autobiography, "This Is My Story." Here is a picture taken of the President's wife in that costume on that wedding day, March 17, 1905. Her Uncle Theodore, then President, gave the bride away.

Say on Spring Winds

NEW LONDON, Conn. (U.P.) — The usual prevalence of southerly winds has had much to do with the springlike winter, but as for the reason for the prevalence of the winds—"that's something else again," said Ernest O. Daboll, publisher of the New England Almanac and Farmers' Friend, formerly Daboll's Almanac, without a copy of which no real Connecticut Yankee would either keep house or put out to sea.

The famous old almanac first was published by "Nathan Daboll, Philomath," in the 13th year of the reign of King George III. This 1773 edition was calculated for the meridian of New London, and an original copy of it is held by P. Leroy Harwood, vice-president and treasurer of the Mariners' Savings Bank, and may be seen in the bank's free whaling museum. It has been published by Daboll's ever since, Nathan having been the great-grandfather of the present compiler.

Daboll recalled other winters of this sort, particularly the season of 1899-1900, when farmers were plowing in winter as far north as Maine. He admitted predicting the weather was a matter of going back to the records of other winters, that weather seemed to repeat in cycles. He would not talk specifically about this season's weather.

"I'd prefer not to have anything to say about the reason for the mildness of the winter of 1936-1937," he said at first. "Government men have remarked at length concerning this." He did, however, casually mention the southern winds.

AUSTRIA EXPECTS RETURN OF OTTO

Invitation Due at Early Date, Chancellor Indicates In Speech

VIENNA, (AP)—The wandering boy of the eternal Hapsburgs, Otto, is packing his grips in his exile in Belgium ready to come back to the old home town and install himself in the palace of his fathers. He has been told by everyone who should know, including Austria's Chancellor, former artillery officer and jurist, Dr. Kurt von Schuschnigg, that his place is being prepared for him. He is due to be invited back any time now—and this time there is no joker attached. Otto and his mother, the former Empress Zita, have had their hopes raised and dashed many times. This is especially true of Zita who saw her husband make two unsuccessful coups to regain his lost crown—those of Austria and Hungary—only to go back in virtual chains to exile and death.

Austria Aids Zita Zita's hopes crystallized upon her 24-year-old son and she has worked unceasingly for him. She has found time working with her and today the Austrian government itself is one of its allies.

If they can find the way—and they believe they can—the boy emperor will be back to rule the state from the Hofburg palace, in the heart of old Vienna or from the faded magnificence of the palace off Schonbrunn.

Schuschnigg said: "To summon the Austrian nation to decide on the monarchy's return is solely an affair for the state and the Fatherland Front, (the sole political party allowed in this country.)"

"The form of government will be solely and exclusively decided by the Austrian people on the basis of the existing constitution." Behind these words, typical from the lips of the highly-cultured and rather evasive Chancellor of Austria, is hidden the determination of the present cabinet to do its utmost to realize Otto's dream.

They consider that the monarchy is Austria's best bet. All or most of the nations which formerly feared the Hapsburgs' return, notably France and Italy and, farther away, Britain have removed their objections.

Called Safely Move

They have listened and been convinced by the Austrian legitimists' arguments that with Otto on the throne the safety of Austria is secured—no danger of Germany imposing a Nazi regime on this country will be possible any longer.

So Otto is packing his bags and looking up train schedules, unless he finds the call to return so urgent that he may need a special airplane.

If he does return, many questions will have to be settled. A queen must be found for him. An Italian princess has been spoken of, the youngest daughter of the King and Queen of Italy, Princess Maria, but Austrians favor a bride who does not come from their old enemy of the war time days. They prefer a Nordic queen.

When Otto gets back home, he will find his palaces and castles all dismantled and shelling, as witness the remark of another royal young prince, the Duke of Windsor, when during his sister through Schonbrunn palace. The Duke himself an exile now, remarked with admiration: "This is so much better than any old place in London!"

Spicy March Weather Calls For Steaming Hot Ski-Balls

By MRS. GAYNOR MADDOX

Let March come in like a lion, offer him a drink of spiced tea, and he'll beg for another with a "pretty please."

Spiced tea, or as the ski clubs over this ski-mad land now call it, "ski-ball," is a new hot beverage made with tea that's strong and clear, spiced, and poured into specially designed glasses which can withstand the aromatic heat.

Ski-Ball
(1 serving)
One slice lemon studded with whole cloves, 1 teaspoon granulated sugar, 1 stick cinnamon and strong, clear hot tea.

Place the sugar and clove studded lemon slice in special ski-ball glass. Pour in hot tea. Use a cinnamon stick as a muddler. Quite a lot of fun to it.

Snow sports and the March winds combine to make other hot beverages popular. Try this somewhat similar drink when you've stood your skis in the corner and unwound your woolen muffler.

Russian Tea
One and one-quarter teaspoon clove, 1 cup boiling water, 1 whole clove, 1/2 slice orange, 1 silver of preserved ginger and a small piece of stick cinnamon.

Make tea Pour into hot tea cup containing all the other ingredients. You may prefer to pass the condiments on a tray. If you serve other things with the tea, better not make them very sweet.

Spanish Chocolate
(12 servings)
Four ounces (4 squares) unsweetened chocolate, 2 cups water, 1/2 teaspoon salt, 5 tablespoons sugar, 6 cups milk, 1 shake nutmeg, 1 shake cinnamon, 1/2 teaspoon vanilla extract.

Cut chocolate into pieces. Place in double boiler with water over hot water. When melted, add sugar, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg. Place over direct heat, stirring constantly and boil five minutes. Return to double boiler and continue to cook the chocolate as long as you can. The longer the better. Slowly add milk, a little at a time, stirring constantly. When the chocolate becomes completely heated, beat it vigorously with a rotary beater. Add vanilla. A foam and froth will rise and give it lightness. Then serve—and there will be many calls for "seconds." Don't serve heavy sweet cakes or frosted cookies with it. Plain salted biscuits or plain sandwiches are better.

The long cooking of the chocolate, the spices and the beating are important. Another ski-club idea? No just an old Spanish custom.

ANKLETS BARRED FROM COURT

PARIS (AP)—The president of the Paris bar has issued an order banning women lawyers who wear bracelets around their ankles from pleading at the bar. No reason for the order was given.

The ski-ball (that's spiced tea with lemon slices) served in specially designed glasses, is a treat even when the weather has a touch of spring to it. Naturally it's a potable "foot-warmer" for the winter sportsman.

Hansen Group Gives Program of Stunts

HANSEN, March 15 (Special)—Orchid group of the Women's Community council sponsored a stunt night held Wednesday evening at the school auditorium. The program opened with a piano duet played by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hultz. Two tenor solos, were given by Stanley Henshal, accompanied by Miss Maude Laycock. Two violin solos, were given by Mrs. J. Roy Durk, accompanied by her daughter, Miss Virginia Durk.

The "Old Family Album" was presented by Mrs. Fay Frahm and Donald Dietz, picture parts were played by Mr. Ralph Teague, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Sampson, Robert Norton, Mary Anna Goodwin, Mr. and Mrs. K. H. Blevins and Mrs. Harvey Fornwalt, Mrs. Charles Wiseman.

Otis Sampson, M. P. Kenworthy, C. C. Clarke, Irvin Kevan, Donald Garrett and Dorothea Wafel.

The program was concluded by a minstrel show with Fay Sheesley taking part of Interlocutor and Miss Priebe, Miss Harris, Mrs. Talbot, Mrs. R. T. Nyblad, Mrs. Harold Hultz, Miss Lindgren, Mrs. Ralph Teague, Miss Jansen, Miss Mewhiter, Miss Rawls, Miss Goodman and Mrs. Fred Browns taking part of Negro mamboes. Special numbers were a tap dance by Miss Eleanor Jansen with little Miss Shirley Webb playing the part of her shadow, a piano solo by Miss Lois Rawls, a saxophone solo, by Lewis Jennings who played the part of a colored boy, Sambo, and a solo by Fay Sheesley.

Mrs. Donald Dietz had charge of the Family Album, Mrs. M. P. Kenworthy directed the minstrel show and Mrs. Romig had charge to special music between numbers.

The Pony Express service lasted only 16 months, and its founders lost $100,000 in the venture.

CURB AND GUTTER PROJECT STARTS

Property Owners Benefit by Resumption of Program On City Streets

Under city supervision and with WPA labor, the city wide curb-gutter and driveway project carried on last summer is expected to get underway again tomorrow following a winter letdown. It was announced today by Ronald Graves of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which organization is sponsoring the project.

Under present arrangements property owners are able to have curb and gutter, as well as driveway improvements made at a cost of material only. In addition to the supervision on the jobs, the city administration furnishes trucks, cement mixers and other equipment needed to carry on the work, all free of charge.

Last season a total of 13,580 lineal feet of curbing was installed, as well as 634 lineal feet of sidewalk. A total of 58 driveways was installed by the workmen.

The project this year will start first on Walnut street, officials indicated.

Prices Listed

For the purpose of showing the small cost to owners in having the improvements put in, a complete price list has been compiled under the direction of J. N. Molyneux, city street superintendent.

Curbing on streets, for a 50 foot inside lot, and including the curbing only, will cost $17.50, the price list indicates. A 50 foot inside lot including curb and curbed driveway for automobiles will cost $29.95. Of this amount, $19.95 is for 57 lineal feet of curbing and $10 for 76 and one-half square feet of slab.

Corner lots will run a little higher, the list indicates, because of the additional lineal feet necessary in the curb.

A corresponding cost is found on designated avenues, and is slightly higher because of the additional lineal feet needed. Deductions for curbing already in place may be made only upon the approval of the superintendent of the street department.

Local citizens are welcome to avail themselves of this opportunity to make improvements at such nominal costs and the entire program will be explained by street officials at city hall, or by contacting members of the Junior Chamber committee in charge of the project.

Many spring suits are trimmed with applied designs in kid or patent leather.

Conclave Held by Burley Grangers

BURLEY, March 15 (Special)—About 23 members of the Burley Grange attended the meeting held at the Grange hall Tuesday. Grange Master James Tilley appointed H. O. Christofferson, Willard Dredge and Jess Anderson on a legislative committee.

The program consisted of a discussion by the officers on the subject, "What Thing Most Undermines the Efficiency of the Grange." Refreshments were served.

The next meeting will be held March 23 at the Grange Hall at which time the dramatic class from the high school will present a play. The curtain will rise at 8 p. m., before the Grange meeting proper, and will be open to the public.

A six-inch pine log, cut by Freeman Wilson, of Denver, Colo., contained two pine cones, grown into the center of the trunk.

UTAH U TO FETE FOUNDING DATE

School Claims to be Oldest University West of Mississippi

SALT LAKE CITY, U.S.—Claiming title as the "oldest university west of the Mississippi," the University of Utah celebrates its 87th year of existence in 1937.

On February 28, 1850, the Utah territorial legislature, with territorial Gov. Brigham Young presiding, created the University of Deseret.

A board of 12 regents selected by the legislature met March 13, 1850, and selected a site for the future school a 60-acre plot on what was then Federal government property—a part of the Fort Douglas military reservation overlooking the city from the east.

However, since the location was Federal property and needed congressional action before it could be deeded to the territory, classes opened in an abandoned mansion in the city proper.

School Forced To Close
After a year, faced with increasing demands for wider educational scope and unable to raise necessary funds, the school lapsed, and remained closed until 1867, when it was reorganized by Dr. John R. Park.

While classes remained comparatively small, thrifty educators utilized first the old L. D. S. (Mormon) Church council house, and later the community Knitting Mills as classrooms, until, in 1864, classes became large enough to warrant school buildings.

On the present site of a city high school, near Mormon Temple grounds, first university buildings rose, and were used until in 1892 a congressional grant gave the school 60 acres of the Fort Douglas land.

In the same year, the school's name was changed from University of Deseret to University of Utah, and the institution received the right to grant degrees to its graduates.

Courses Gradually Expanded
Five years later classes began in newly-completed buildings on the university's present site. As it grew and began to draw students from surrounding states, the school added specialized courses to its general curriculum. In 1891 engineering became a regular school subject and in 1905 medical science began. Other courses followed rapidly.

Now 87 years old, the school boasts a teaching staff of more than 200, an enrollment approaching 4,000, a law library containing over 110,000 volumes; courses in modern subjects including anthropology, economics, anatomy, political science, and others; a half-million dollar general library, and other requisites of a modern institution.

Non-Zero Weather Means $1,308 to Canadian Better
TORONTO, Ont., U.S.—There is one man here who is pulling hard for the winter season to pass without the temperature going below zero. It means $1,308 to him if it does not.

About Christmas-time he started betting with friends that the temperature during the winter would not go below zero. He got 10-1 odds for a while, but now the odds are down to 2-1 with few takers. He has bet $218 so far, at average odds of 5-1.

Weather-Proof Hats Now Made of Paper
LONDON, U.S.—Paper hats, which can be worn in any weather and are adaptable to the latest fashions in color and design, were displayed at an exhibition of Scottish papermaking held at the British Industries House here.

The material, which is the invention of an engineer employed in a Scottish paper mill, can also be used to make shoes, belts, handbags, cushion covers and curtains.

OAKLEY
A pep rally was held last week in honor of Oakley's basketball team which won the class A tournament and district title.

March 18 the Oakley first ward relief society is entertaining all married couples in commemoration of the founding of the relief society. Miss Louise Clark, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Clark, and Lawrence Elliott, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Elliott, were married at Twin Falls on March 1. Both members of the couples are graduates of the Oakley high school.

A farewell party was held last week in the third ward chapel for Miss Helen Adams who left on a two year mission in the central states. William McBride has bought the Eden Mecham barber shop at Burley.

Marian G. Romney, Salt Lake City, visited her sister, Mrs. Charles A. Clark, last week.

During the meeting of the Oakley elementary school board last week plans for the consolidation of the rural schools here, with district school number two were discussed. Mrs. Florence D. Haight, county superintendent attended the meetings.

HAWAIIAN PALACE RESTORED
HONOLULU, U.S.—WPA workers have just been given the task by Frank Lacey, WPA administrator for Hawaii, of repainting the walls and ceilings of historic Iolani palace in precisely the same manner as when they were occupied by Hawaiian royalty. The palace now is used as the territorial capitol, housing the governor's office and the legislature.

Curled or Rolled Coiffures Are Most Flattering to Easter Hats

By ALICE HART
(NEA Service)

Off the face, upward from sides and nape of the neck, rolls and more rolls in halo effect, rolls or curls in neat clusters to give fullness behind ears and below your hat at the back—new spring coiffures set off your Easter bonnet as well as your best features.

You should, in fact, go direct from modiste to hairdresser and have him arrange a coiffure which does something for your hat. Time was when the procedure was reversed, but nowadays, milliners turn out new hats so fast and furiously that hairdressers can barely keep up, let alone ahead.

Therefore, if you have not changed your hairstyle in a year, wait a few days longer until you have bought a hat. Keep in mind that fullness just behind the ears (in the form of curls or ends of a roll) softens the otherwise hard line of the average jawbone. Also, that fullness below the line of your hair at the back makes head and hat prettier.

Special Haircuts Needed
Long bobs, either straight or waved, are out. The clean cut, smooth neckline and brushed upward effects are Spring 1937.

You don't get a haircut simply to shorten your locks either. The process is the first step toward any kind of hairdo. Rolls won't stay rolled or swirls swirled unless your hair was cut with these specifically in mind.

For evening, birds and feathers and exotic gossams are gone with the wind, too. You'll see flowers, fresh and artificial, in formal coiffures all summer, but they will be small and in impeccable taste. Frothy, billowing dance dresses of femininely sheer fabrics eschew jeweled tiaras or spectacular pieces of brilliants. Wrap them in cotton until next winter when you blossom forth in rich velvets, heavy silks and brocades again.

Bushiness Frowned On
Strive for a neat crisp look. Bushy tops or masses of helter-skelter ringlets are as frowned upon by elegantes as struggling ends or light, unreal looking waves.

Don't slide out from under the drier until your waves and curls are 100 per cent dry. Don't leave the shop until they have been brushed (literally) and combed to remove all traces of wave-set lotion. If a new wave won't stand combing and brushing, it just isn't worth a nickel. Remember, too, that nightly brushing, done correctly with brush held loosely in the hand and worked upward (never down) from scalp to ends, enhances the beauty of a good fingerwave or marcel.

ACEQUIA
"Chasing Society," a three act comedy was presented Friday evening in the high school gymnasium by the dramatics classes under the direction of Mrs. W. C. Mitchell.

Due to the serious condition of their son Horace, who had his arm amputated last Wednesday as a result of broken bones received in a car accident two weeks ago, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Bennett were called to the cottage hospital at Burley.

Mrs. J. F. Winniford is confined to her home because of a broken ankle caused by a fall on the ice.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Schultz held a stock and household sale early last week to dispose of their goods as they are leaving here to make their home in Lodi, Calif.

A new road grader has been purchased by the Acequia highway company.

Approximately 40 guests gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McAllister, last week to honor Mr. and Mrs. Carl Cannon, newlyweds, with a shower. Mrs. Cannon is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. McAllister.

PLANTS SEEN AS ENERGY YIELDERS

Yale Engineer Visions Time
When Man Will Harness
Foliage

NEW HAVEN, Conn., U.S.—An inexhaustible source of power which would be derived from plants to offset depletion of oil and coal supplies was forecast today by Dr. Clifford C. Furnas, associate professor of chemical engineering at Yale university.

This power would be obtained throughout the apparently simple, but as yet inexplicable process of photosynthesis in plants. It is through this process that plants take water obtained through the roots and carbon dioxide breathed in by the leaves and in the presence of the sun's energy and chlorophyll, the green pigment, make the chemical compound formaldehyde and release oxygen.

Furnas said it is "theoretically" possible to take this material, formaldehyde and the oxygen of the air and cause them to give back the water and carbon monoxide gas plus "electrical energy." None has accomplished this so far, but Furnas points out that if the physicist and chemist can bring about both these reactions on a wholesale scale, they will have stored solar energy in a chemical compound which can be used as needed.

Furnas said: "The best that has been done is to convert the formaldehyde in alkaline solution into formal acid with the production of minute amounts of electrical energy. Whoever makes the complete oxidation process possible will point the way toward the direct utilization of sunlight to give electricity and the ultimate solution of the power problem for all time to come."

Stored Like Coal
The formaldehyde (or any other compound) made during sunny hours would be stored just like coal for use in the primary electric cells in periods of darkness. The power of the sun for millions of years will be positively limitless. All we have to do is harness it directly.

Furnas feels that despite the fact we still have four trillions tons of coal in this country "it might be worth while even at the present time to start on a program of research to harness the sun's rays directly so the necessary information will be available by the time we need the process." This means a considerable amount of research and as yet no one has started in that direction.

Dynamite Replaces Axe, Woodchopper Injured
WESTERVILLE, Vt., U.S.—Ray Gallant, 43-year-old quarry worker, won't substitute dynamite for an axe the next time he wants firewood.

Gallant was experimenting with dynamite, believing it would be easier to blast the wood to bits than to chop it with an axe.

Carefully Planned Shopping Scheme Results in Smart Easter Wardrobe

By MARIAN YOUNG
(NEA Service)

NEW YORK—For daytime hours, an Easter suit, a redingote, consisting of a wool coat and print frock, an extra dress that can be worn under the coat, and two sets of accessories comprise an almost complete wardrobe, that's ultra-smart, too.

Any woman who gets such a wardrobe now simply will not have clothes problems until midsummer, when a cotton dress or a washable silk or two seem in order.

The trick, of course, is to decide on a color scheme, then stick to it. The girl who always says, "I haven't a thing to wear," proclaims to all the world that she mixes her color schemes, doesn't plan ahead—in other words, shops unwisely.

Envision Future Purchases

For example, suppose you decide to have a gray or beige suit for Easter, and a navy redingote a week or two later. If you get navy accessories to wear with the suit, they'll be lovely with the redingote, too.

Be on the lookout always for amusing belts, an unusual scarf, a tricky clip or some other piece of costume jewelry. Make a hobby of collecting smart accessories—it's important. Keep a supply on hand—be sure that they blend with the main accessories, hat, shoes, bag and gloves—constantly change them, and you will find that one good dress and suit will make a season's wardrobe.

One interesting redingote, designed by Janet Hollander, consists of an unlined navy coat over one of the famous Hollander garden prints. This particular dress is a pom-pom print—blue and white pom-poms with green leaves on a navy background. The sleeves are puffed and very short. The only trimming is a navy patent leather belt two inches wide, and a white lingerie jabot that is worn outside the coat.

Changes of Accessories

To wear under the same coat, there is a charming navy sheer frock with skirt stitched to resemble accordion pleating. It has the new wide, low neckline with lace collar and cuffs, and a high belted waistline.

The navy sheer is a fine chance to use different changes of neckwear. For instance, a georgette collar of Colonial influence is lovely, or a dainty gilet with a waistcoat belt. Flowers are good, too. A single flower or a tiny cluster is chic and attractive worn at the neck or shoulder. Wooden jewelry in floral or modernistic designs adds a certain something to a dress.

With an eye to careful and wise shopping, then, and an enthusiastic interest in accessories, there is no reason why any woman can't get along with a suit, a dress and a redingote for spring.

Under a law passed in 1930, new plants may now be patented.

When elements of a wardrobe are planned for wear together, like this Janet Hollander redingote and frock, the effect of an extensive wardrobe can be economically obtained. The unlined navy coat (left) is worn over a garden print frock in blue, white and green. The white lingerie jabot is worn outside the coat. The charming navy sheer frock (right) is stitched to resemble accordion pleating and can be worn with a variety of accessories.

LEATHER TRIMS FOR NEW SUITS

Short, Fitted Jackets Have Deep Front Openings With Scrolls

PARIS (U.P.)—Many of the new spring suits are trimmed with bands of matching or contrasting leather or with braid embroidery.

Tailored, two-piece suits at Schiaparelli with short, fitted jackets have deep front openings flanked by broad revers, which are trimmed in scrolls of flat leather in baroque application. The baroque leather applications are sometimes in kid, sometimes in patent leather and sometimes in silver and gold.

Schiaparelli shows chiefly black for street wear and makes many of these leather-trimmed tailored suits. One in black is trimmed with black patent leather and another with white leather. Sometimes the flat bands of leather in curly designs run all the way down the front opening of high-necked suits and town coats.

Lanvin uses bands of leather or kid applications in designs on many of the clothes in her new collection. Almost all daytime clothes are bordered by either leather or a complicated braiding made from the same material as the coat or dress. The leather or braid trimming usually starts at the high collar and continues down the front opening to edge the entire garment.

Silver or gold kid is used over and over again for evening at Lanvin where flowing robes are trimmed with oriental applications of leather. At the same house are separate jackets entirely of stitched kid which is so soft and fine that it looks like lacquered satin.

Some Easter Recipes

By MARJORIE GLASS

WHY THE EASTER EGG

Just as the kiddies delight in the coming of Santa at Christmas, so they do anticipate the bunny and brightly colored eggs symbols of Easter. And as with the origin of the Christmas tree custom, the bunny and colored eggs as Easter traditions are supposed to have originated in the Teutonic countries.

But that well known succulent morsel, the hen's egg, is not only marvelously good to eat, whether it be in the form of Mare Poulard's Bretonne omelette, soufflé, or just boiled egg. The humble egg, if you please was one of the most treasured of religious symbols dating from the earliest days.

The Persians thought that the world had originally been hatched from an egg at the vernal equinox or spring of the year. The ancients regarded the egg as a symbol of creation and new birth. The breaking of the egg was supposed to denote the beginning of a new season, a resurrection and awakening of life. Consequently in church lore the Paschal egg has become a symbol of the resurrection of Christ. The word "Paschal" stems from the Hebrew, "Passover," a holiday commemorating the exodus of the Jews from Egypt and their crossing of the Red Sea.

Besides its popularity as a symbol of Easter, there is another important reason why the housewife should serve more eggs at this time of year. The egg is the equivalent in nutrition of meat, and yet at this season is about half as expensive. So, ladies, dress up the egg with some tasty sauce and remove it from the breakfast menu to the lunch or dinner table. You will find that wines, either the refreshingly tart dry or rich sweet wines, will blend equally well with the bland tasting egg, as in these easy-to-make and quick one-dish meals:

Shirred Eggs With Tomato Wine Sauce

Bake eggs in a buttered dish or individual dishes topped with buttered bread crumbs. Serve with this sauce:

- 3 tbs. butter slightly browned and blended with 3 tbs. flour
- 1 cup Maderia
- 1 cup tomato juice
- 1/4 cup soup stock
- Seasoning 1/4 tsp. mixed spices
- 1 slice lemon
- Add tomato juice and soup stock to flour paste. Season with spices and onions. Cook until sauce boils, stirring constantly. Then add Maderia. Bring to a boil, strain and serve.

Egg And Ham King

- 3 tbs. butter
- 1 tsp. minced onion
- 2 tbs. minced green pepper
- 3 tbs. flour
- 1 pimento sliced
- 1 tbs. Sherry
- 2 cups milk
- 1/4 cup diced cooked ham
- 4 hard cooked eggs sliced
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- dash of cayenne
- 4 slices toast

Saute minced onion and pepper in butter in a double boiler for 5 minutes, stirring the while. Add flour and stir until smooth. Add the milk. Now reduce the heat and stir until smooth and thickened. Add diced cooked ham and sliced eggs. Taste and add the amount of salt and cayenne liked, with the pimento. Now let heat well and season with Sherry. Serve on toast points.

Velvet ribbon is used as trimming for printed organza evening gowns.

SCENIC HIGHWAY OPEN IN AUGUST

Rock Creek Road to Connect
With Oakley and Rogerson
Traffic

With approximately seven miles of road left to construct, motorists of this area will soon be able to travel from Twin Falls through Hansen to the Rock Creek CCC camp, up the rugged Rock Creek canyon and join the Oakley-Rogerson highway on the other side of the divide, C. H. Ramage, project superintendent of the Minidoka forest service, said today.

The road is being constructed by CCC enrollees and it is expected it will be ready for travel probably in August, opening recreational areas which before were inaccessible excepting on foot or horseback.

Three Bridges
Aside from the balance of the road left to be constructed, three bridges will be built along its course.

In addition to this new construction a summer program, announced today, calls for maintenance of 100 miles of road throughout the Minidoka forest; maintenance of 30 miles of telephone line; construction of eight miles of drift fence; installation of 100 camp ground signs; construction of a large equipment shed, and oil house at Oakley "Spike" camp and also sidewalks and improving in that area; 6,000 telephone and fence posts to be creosoted.

Aside from these projects in which CCC enrollees will aid, it is also planned to construct a ranger dwelling and double garage where the new highway through Rock Creek will intersect with the Oakley-Rogerson road.

Picnic Grounds
One traveling cook and bunk house has already been finished for forest service and another will be placed under immediate construction, Ramage said.

An extensive program which will see hundreds of picnic grounds established up and down the canyon is also contemplated and actual work will get underway Monday, Carl Arentson, forest supervisor announces today.

Each camp will be named, Arentson explains, and a sign erected at its site. It is the most extensive campbuilding program undertaken in the Minidoka forest.

Simplicity Important as Children Imitate Adults

Princess frocks and princess coats are not confined to grown-ups this year, for even little tots will parade in these smart miniature copies of adult fashions this Easter.

Tailored simplicity or flirty femininity is the dual expression of the mode in little fashions, exactly as in their mother's clothes, too. And from the wide assortment of children's togs in local stores, no mother will be at a loss to dress up her "little princesses."

Simplicity First Fashion
The usual simplicity in styling for children's clothes is still considered good taste, the stores tell us. But relief from this is noted in the bits of lace and delicate embroideries that are used in collars and sleeves and yokes. Girls of 7 to 14 age groups will wear these lingerie touches on dark or gay colored frocks, much like their mothers. Little girls, in 3 to 6 year ages, will wear them to smarten up their togs, for rich colors are to be seen in every age group this year.

"Bright pastels" or high colors will also be worn. But these are often preferred in prints. And the variety of design ranges from amusing dancing doliars of Dalmatian of Tyrolean villages, to the quaintest of old-fashioned flower bouquets. Modern-looking fruits and flowers, and neat all-over geometrics are also seen. But for a real bit of gayety, try one of the animated flower or animal designs, with their motifs capering about the fabric in real spring style.

Juniors Sophisticated
High little waists, puffy sleeves, high necklines and other details borrowed from adult fashions give dash and sophistication very much preferred by the smart younger set these days. Dark prints with gay patterns, and light prints with widely spaced patterns, are quite young enough, without being "kiddish," they say.

Flaring skirt lines are seen in most of these, although the new suits and two-piece frocks are also seen with the narrower skirtline and concealed pleats. Wearing a casually tailored suit is new for the junior miss, but she finds it practical and her mother will find it inexpensive too, for with extra sweaters and blouses the tailored suit makes a complete spring wardrobe for this young miss.

Three-piece suits, with practical swaggers or topcoats to match, are also an excellent buy for the junior miss, and form the basis for a whole wardrobe. These come in soft tweeds and basket-weave woolsens, in light or dusky pastels. Darker tones are also seen, and may be chosen with white or light accents in blouse gloves, etc. And the junior miss adores scarfs, or peasant kerchiefs tucked into the neckline of her coat or suit.

"Little Girl Swaggers"
For the girl who is just budding out, nothing is smarter than the short swaggers or "box" coat, with its straight or flaring lines that swing out from her figure. Girls of this age, like the softly designed dresses, too, with little belts or sashes, because they give better figure lines than the more sophisticated types.

Sweaters and skirts are ideal for a change, with this swaggar coat. And the revived "jumper" frock with peasant blouse or feminine puff-sleeve gumpie is back. Girls like the new pleated skirts, we are told, for they have a youthful swing to them. And they like the flared or gored skirts for the very same reasons. Bright colored prints are, of course the ideal choice for the girl of 6 to 12 years. These are lovely in the crisp new cottons, and in rayons they have the dress-up look of more expensive silks. Bright dark shades with white lingerie collars or trimmings are lovely and new looking—and practical.

Tots Swaggar, Too!
Little girls go in big for the princess coats, but the very smart little miss of 4 or 5 years will like the "princess Elizabeth" coat with its simple tailored styling and double-breasted closing. It's awfully easy to get into alone, and goes so well with gaily printed frocks such as she will wear for Easter.

Plain color silk or rayon frocks are nice, with their Irish crochet lace trims. But nothing is daintier than the new volles and crisp cottons for this little miss. She will want at least one princess frock, and perhaps a gay peasant print with flared lines and puff sleeves. Then she will like the dresses that hang in graceful gathers from dainty embroidered yokes.

FRENCH INSTALL MONEY TESTERS

Mint Hopes to Curb Passing
Of Bogus Cash by Use
Of New Machines

PARIS (U.P.)—The increasingly large quantity of forged 5, 10 and 20 franc pieces circulating in France has led mint authorities to place several coin-testing machines in various public places.

Although some of the fake currency in some cases is a perfect imitation at sight, the forgers have not succeeded in making a perfect copy, for on examination either the weight is inaccurate or the coin does not ring true.

As the two methods are usually the only practical means of testing and as most people do not have their ears attuned to the right "ring" and of course, cannot tell the weight, special testing machines have been built, which the authorities say are fool-proof.

There are actually two types of testing machines in use. One of them, which is run by electric current, resembles a small round saucepan. A true coin, when placed on the bottom of the apparatus, will cause it to vibrate, whereas if the coin is a fake, it will remain inert.

Although this instrument is reputedly fool-proof, it has the disadvantage of costing a considerable amount and its installation is intricate.

The other type of tester used, and which is cheaper, is the simple scale. The scales, resting on a center point, has a fixed weight on one side and three slots on the other. These slots have been placed in such a way that by placing either a 5, 10 or 20 franc piece in their respective slots, the scales come to a horizontal position if the coin is authentic. Contrarily, if the coin is a fake, the scales will not balance.

MONDAY DANGEROUS DAY
TORONTO, Ont. (U.P.)—The time to be most careful is Monday between 10 and 11 o'clock, and that is true of every Monday in the year. The Toronto Industrial Accident statisticians have discovered Monday, between the hours mentioned, to be the most dangerous for the average human.

WOOL STRUCTURE AID TO GROWERS

Huge New Storage Edifice
at Ogden Seen as Big Help in Sales

South central Idaho wool growers will share in the facilities offered by one of the largest and most modern wool storage and marketing buildings in the United States, leading sheepmen said here today after announcement of plans for a new structure at Ogden.

The building will serve Idaho, Utah, Montana and Nevada wool producers, according to Col. E. O. Walter, Filer, widely-known auctioneer who handles the Merriam and Wilkins big annual sale at Ogden. The structure is being erected by the Merriam and Wilkins Sheep and Wool Commission company.

Australian Plan
The long-range plan, Col. Walter indicated, aims at eventual attainment of the Australian plan by which 90 per cent of the wool is sold at auction.

The new wool storage and marketing edifice, heralds the establishment of an important industry in the intermountain country, according to E. J. Flested, secretary of the Ogden Chamber of Commerce. The structure will be erected on Wall avenue between 31st and 32nd streets in Ogden.

"It will provide facilities for the grading, storing and marketing of wool, under what is known as the auction sales plan, initiated by Merriam and Wilkins at Ogden in 1934," Mr. Flested said. "It is to be known as the Wool Exchange building and will be one of the finest additions to the industrial and agricultural development of the intermountain section made in recent years."

Huge Capacity
"The building will have storage capacity for 8,000,000 pounds of wool on one floor and at the same time provide space for a grading room and display section of ample size to handle that volume conveniently. Its dimensions are 180 feet by 360 feet, making a floor area of 64,800 square feet or approximately an acre and a half under one roof. The only obstructions in the space will be eleven steel pillars, 30 feet apart, running through the center of the building upon which will rest one end of the 90 foot steel trusses in the two sections of the roof."

Mr. Flested said that the bringing of the wool market to the producing territory is only a repetition of what has taken place in the marketing of livestock and other agricultural products. He pointed out that Ogden, during 1936, ranked third among all the public markets in the United States in the number of sheep and lamb receipts with Denver, another western market, ranking first to lead Chicago, which for years has been the leading sheep market of the country.

New In-U-S.
"The system of marketing wool which was inaugurated in Ogden by Merriam and Wilkins three years ago is now in this country and offers Idaho growers, as well as all others in the intermountain country, advantages not accruing to the growers by means of the speculation system."

"The latter system, now most prevalent, forces the major portion of the wool, produced in the west, to move to Boston to be sold."

WOOL OUTPUT IS UNDER '35 MARK

BOISE, March 15 (Special).—The total production of wool in the United States in 1936 was estimated by the bureau of agricultural economics to be 428,527,000 pounds, of which 350,327,000 pounds were shorn wool and 68,200,000 pounds were pulled wool. This compares with a production of 430,663,000 pounds in 1935 and 428,741,000 pounds for the 5-year (1930-34) average.

The estimated number of sheep shorn in 1936 was 45,663,000 head compared with 45,497,000 shorn in 1935.
