SERVICES HONOR NEWTON D. BAKER

Former Secretary of War To Be Buried Tuesday In Cleveland

CLEVELAND, Dec. 27 (UP)—Newton D. Baker, wartime secretary of war, will be buried tomorrow in Lakewood cemetery following funeral services in Trinity Episcopal church.

The Wilson cabinet officer, who was 86, died at his home Christmas day of cerebral thrombosis. His wife and two of his three children, Mrs. John P. McLean and Newton D. Baker, II, were at his bedside.

The third child, Mrs. Fulton Wright, was in California with her parents.

Active pallbearers will be chosen from among Baker's 10 law partners. There will be no honorary pallbearers.

At the time of his death, Baker was directing from Cleveland the fight of 200 real estate companies challenging the constitutionality of the Tennessee Valley authority before a three-judge federal court in Chattanooga.

He was born Dec. 3, 1871, in Martinsburg, W. Va., received his education at Johns Hopkins and Washington and Lee universities, and began practicing here in 1897.

There was considerable criticism when President Woodrow Wilson appointed Baker secretary of war. Army officers regarded him a pacifist and gave him a doubtful reception when he entered the White House.

He entered the war, he handled the mobilization of men and war materials with such efficiency that Gen. James G. Harbord, a Republican, later called him "the greatest secretary of war, in war, that our history has yet produced."

Only one phase of the incident remained in disagreement and both

One of the bombs exploded, the spokesman said, and slightly wounded a Japanese soldier.

The regulations apply to all territory occupied by the Japanese, in other parts of China as well as in Shanghai, and the spokesman who announced them said that foreigners would be subject to them. The death penalty is provided for "offenses" under the regulations are deemed sufficiently serious.

Under the regulations, foreigners who go to homes or business in the Japanese-controlled areas will be arrested if they are found so far as offenses against the Japanese armed forces are concerned.

SPUD INSPECTION TASK UNDERWAY

Grading and Marking Starts In South Central Idaho On Diversion Plan

Inspection of potatoes for diversion to livestock feed began today in Twin Falls county and in the other counties of the south central area.

A staff of approximately 40 inspectors, working under G. C. Mager, inspection supervisor for this county, began the task in the local area. They checked up on grading of the spuds to be diverted and with aid of individual ranchers began marking the diversion potatoes with a hameless dye.

The inspectors are being made in the order in which such applications were received from farmers according to County Agent Harvey S. Hale. Applications are still being received, since well above 500 ranchers are participating in the diversion program in this county.

Authorizations for diversion have been mailed from the Pierceville office of the Idaho potato control committee, and ranchers are to receive 25 cents per hundredweight for stock feeding or sold as stock feed.

The potatoes must be No. 2 or better grade, and must be inspected by the licensed inspectors, and must be marked with the non-poisonous dye.

Farmers in Twin Falls county originally applied for diversion of 35,000,000 pounds of No. 2 spuds. Since the diversion program has been approved, applications have been received because the Idaho quota was not filled.

IDAHO BEAN MEN ASK HELP OF NATIONAL RETAIL GROUPS

CHAIRMAN SEEKS WIDE PLAINS FOR MOVING SURPLUS

State Joins With Others in Seeking United Drive to Sell Product

Idaho's 5,000 bean growers joined farmers of a dozen other states in the nation's bean belt this afternoon in an appeal to retailers for cooperation in a national campaign to dispose of a huge bean surplus and its threat of economic disaster for Idaho's $5,000,000 bean crop.

Heads of three national retailer organizations were urged by H. B. Lauterbach, chairman of the Idaho Bean Growers' Association, committee formed at a recent meeting here attended by 500 growers, to launch a nationwide sales and advertising campaign to move the surplus from the markets to the consumers' kitchens.

Letters Sent Out

The committee request was contained in letters to John A. Logan, Washington, D. C., executive vice president of the National Association of Food Chains; Theodore Christensen, Chicago, president of the National Association of Retail Grocers; W. L. McCachran, Spokane, president of the Western States Chain Grocers.

The letter called attention to the outstanding success of recent producer-consumer campaigns in which a large portion of the surplus was marketed through mass distribution and efficient merchandising facilities of the retailers, with substantial benefits to the nation's growers of prunes, apples, tomatoes, walnuts, eggs, lamb and other agricultural commodities.

"We realize that beans are a staple commodity, but we feel that with personal and intensive sales effort a large portion of this surplus can be moved into consumption," Lauterbach wrote. "Beans are now selling below the cost of production and Idaho beans are a major Idaho crop and a large amount of the state's farm income is derived from them, the surplus is one that affects the economic welfare of the entire state."

Large Production

The letter informed executives of the retailer groups that Idaho's 1937 bean production was 1,610,000 bags with a carryover from 1936 of 312,000 bags. This compares with the 1936 crop of 1,248,000 bags and the 1935-32 average of 1,546,000 bags. Idaho's 1937 production was exceeded in the United States by California and Michigan only.

The committee's appeal, Lauterbach explained, makes similar requests to the three retail organizations from growers in California, Michigan and Illinois, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, Montana, and several other bean producing states. Decision to appeal to the retailers was reached at Idaho meeting of national growers in Chicago early this month, with Idaho's participation receiving approval of the growers at the recent Twin Falls meeting.

The committee assured the retailers of full cooperation of Idaho growers in the requested campaign which would bring 37,000 outlets of the food chains as well as thousands of independent merchants to their doors in one of the largest national sales efforts ever undertaken, Lauterbach said.

Comment on Baker's Death

By United Press
NEW YORK TIMES: The story of Newton Baker's life... is an enthralling illustration of what is still possible in our democracy; that superior ability has here its free course to glory and to glorification.

SCRIPPS-HOWARD NEWS-PAPERS: Mr. Baker raised the largest American army ever seen in the line that other such forces have ever created, and won the ungrudging respect of professional soldiers as well as the confidence of the chief and of the American people.

PHILADELPHIA INQUIRER: The death of Newton D. Baker is so obviously a real loss to the country that few will try to bicker at this time over secondary details of his official actions two decades ago... all in all, he was a brilliant, intelligent, and a broad-minded citizen—and far too few leaders of his type remain today.

KANSAS CITY TIMES: Woodrow Wilson once spoke of Newton D. Baker as the most remarkable mind he had ever known. In his light of the war secretary's immense achievements the nation came to understand the President's appreciation of the right-hand man of the cabinet.

CLEVELAND PLAIN DEALER: Cleveland loses her first citizen and America a statesman... Newton D. Baker was the most modest and unassuming of all men. He was a complete stranger to pompousness... his life won more goals of usefulness than most lives ever can hope to attain.

INCREASED COSTS SEEN FOR FARMS

Government Economists of State Expect Lowering Of Rancher Income

BOISE, Dec. 26 (UP)—Government economists of this state's agricultural extension division predicted today that Idaho farmers would receive less, would pay more, and would have less purchasing power during 1938 than they did during 1937.

The extension division, connected with the University of Idaho, said that the farmers would receive, on the average, less for their produce than they received during 1937.

Prices paid by the farmer for supplies and equipment, the extension division said, would probably rise. Farmers' purchasing power, which reached a high point during 1937, would sink in 1938, the division said.

The division predicted, however, that gains in prices received during the latter part of 1938 may cause the general price level to rise above the average set during the last part of this year.

The division said that short term credit needs of farmers would increase about 10 per cent in Idaho, but that the farmers would receive more interest rates would probably hold during 1938, in a year or two, these interest rates will go up, the division predicted.

Farm wages will advance substantially, the division said. The division said that costs of farm family living would be probably the same during 1938 as in 1937. "A large proportion of Idaho farm families will receive smaller incomes in 1938 than in 1937," the division said.

Should Consider Improvement. "In many instances, these smaller incomes can be largely offset with no reduction in the living standards of the family by making better use of products available on the farm and by producing a wider variety of products for home use. Many Idaho farm families should be considering these improvements now."

It was predicted that the present business and farm recession would be comparatively short. By the last part of 1938, it was said, business "may again be well underway."

WORK UNDERWAY AT FAIR GROUNDS

WPA and Board Join Hands in Improvement Plans At Filer

Work was scheduled to start at Filer today on a $145,000 improvement project at the Twin Falls county fair grounds, according to Tom Parks, manager of the fair and secretary of the fair board.

The project will see 45,000 provided by the fair board for materials and the remainder supplied by WPA in form of labor. It will include a new cattle barn, a stock judging arena in front of the new barn, moving of the race horse barn and stalls to the northeast end of the grounds, new fences, road improvements, sewers, rest room, new drinking fountains and general expansion of the scenic features at the grounds.

Large Barn
The new cattle barn was approved by the fair board last week. It is scheduled to be erected 100 feet to the rear of the road in front of the race horse barn. The structure will be 72 feet wide, 54 feet long and 24 feet high. The two smaller barns for cattle will be erected 175 feet back and will be connected with the new building. The hay barn and sheep arena are also to be moved.

The new stock judging arena will be 100 feet square, and will be erected in front of the new barn. Seats will be provided in tiers, and entrance ways are planned for all stock barns.

New Restroom
Improved restroom, 32 by 20 feet, will be placed in front of the auto building.

The fair grounds winter work project, it is estimated by Mr. Parks, will furnish jobs to 24 Filer men. Mr. Parks and an assistant will oversee general details.

U. S. Sacrifices May Revive Japan

What makes up a nation, anyway? The government, the military forces, or the plain people who do the hard work and pay the bills?

The answer isn't as obvious as it may seem. And because it is so easy to get mixed up on it, what has happened in Japan since the sinking of the Panay is worth a little thought.

There can be no mistaking the fact that the ordinary people of Japan were deeply and profoundly shocked by the sinking of the American gunboat. The evidences of popular feeling have been too widespread and plain to be attributed to mere propaganda. Every cable from Tokyo has brought word of genuine national sorrow over the tragedy.

Ordinary Japanese have stopped Americans on the streets to tell them that the Japanese nation would undo the damage if it could. School children have contributed to funds for care of the American wounded—and Japanese school children are not exactly overburdened with pocket money. A Tokyo newspaper has urged the collection of money to buy a new gunboat and present it to the American people. Expressions of regret poured into the American embassy in an amazing flood.

Contrast all of that, now, with the official acts of Japanese statesmen and military men.

The bombing may have been a blunder, in the sense that the Tokyo government did not explicitly order it; but how can any man suppose that it was not done with the full approval of the men on the spot? Amply identified by its flags, the Panay was bombed by airplanes that could not conceivably have supposed it to be other than an American ship. It was machine-gunned by surface craft; its lifeboats were attacked after the sinking. A Japanese naval detachment boarded it before it went down.

On the heels of that came glib and facile apologies. The Japanese government was broadcasting apologies almost before the Panay was below the surface. The Japanese navy issued a formal, blanket apology. And all of these apologies sounded exactly like part of an act of the ring of silence.

All right, then—which is "Japan"? war-mad statesmen and military leaders, or honest, conciliatory rank-and-file back home?

The truth seems to be that Japan has been suffering from a case of split personality. To an extent that is hard for us to understand, government and armed forces do not reflect the will of the people. They have made the people reflect their will instead; until the Panay went down, there was not a hint that the people might prefer to go in another direction.

That is why these public expressions of regret at Tokyo are so important. They indicate that "Japan" may not, after all, be a bellicose and high-handed nation, but a friendly, well-intentioned folk with whom we could get along very well indeed.

And the ray of hope in the present situation is that the sinking of the Panay may be the means through which the Japanese masses may once again get control over their own country.

Japan Offers Regrets

The one consoling fact about the sinking of the gunboat Panay is the way the Japanese people themselves reacted to it.

The Japanese ambassador in Washington lost no time in calling on Secretary of State Hull to assure him that the event was a tragic accident which had no shadow of sanction in Tokyo. The Japanese premier gave similar assurances to U. S. Ambassador Grew. Public demonstrations of rejoicing over the fall of Nanking were canceled in Tokyo; it was very obvious that both government and people profoundly regretted the bombing and hoped anxiously that amends could be made.

All of that doesn't bring the Panay back to the surface, of course. But it does go to show that this bombing was the rash act of some military underling rather than a deliberately hostile act expressing the will of government and people; and for that distinction we can be very thankful.

The Countess Chooses

Countess Barbara von Haugwitz-Revontlow, who as Barbara Hutton attracted much attention when she inherited a $45,000,000 fortune, has renounced her American citizenship. Dispatches from New York say that having married a Dane, she is becoming a Danish citizen; and her erstwhile fellow-countrymen, who created her fortune by their purchases in the five-and-ten-cent stores, presumably will see and hear of her no more.

All of this seems to come under the general heading of news that the nation can bear. We pay too much attention anyway, probably, to those lucky ladies who have inherited enormous fortunes that they did not earn; and will flow as smoothly if this one transfers her allegiance to foreign soil. It is too bad, probably, but it is a fact.

Dear Pot Shots: I hear that Officer Bob Winterholer is taking a little test practice on the side these days.

It seems that he and Officer Charles Larsen were called to dispose of a dog in the rear of the residence of Officer "Brock" Zimmerman.

The dog was watching the proceedings from a window as Winterholer "stalked" the dog for the fatal shot. Finally all seemed to be done with Winterholer, the dog and Zimmerman "all in line."

The gun roared, the dog ran and Zimmerman ducked.

"I don't mind thinking the dog," Winterholer was overheard to have said, "but missing Zimmerman, too, is what gets me."

At lunch the next day Old Miranda was seized with a violent chill, and other symptoms complicated by the quantities of sandwiches she had consumed the night before. She was put to bed, fuming with impatience, and gasping out protests which made her grandson grin appreciatively—for the Duchess had a notable grasp of profane technique.

"I'm afraid my better wait till I get back to tell her," Barry said soberly as he and Linda faced each other outside Mrs. Terry's door. "The poor old Duchess has had about all she ought to take for one day."

"I'd rather," Linda said. "I'd like it that way."

At the bottom of the stairway where they had sat for so long that day—was it only yesterday?—Barry turned, his eyes burning down at her.

"Listen, Tiana," he said softly. "You haven't forgotten what I asked you—right here—the other day, have you? I said, 'I want you on when she did not answer, 'Suppose you knew that I had to go away—almost at once; and might not come back for a long time. Would you marry me then—or would you still feel that we must wait until we knew each other better?'"

"And you knew then," accused Linda, fighting down tears. "All this time you've known."

"But not sure; but there was a chance, didn't it?"

"I wish, Barry, this isn't too long a time. It mustn't be."

"Of course not," Barry agreed smoothly. "But anyhow, what was it you said?"

When she did not answer, he prompted, "You said, 'I would marry you if it were the last thing I did.'"

WASHINGTON—The record-breaking volume of Christmas break-downs here is a no "economic misery" in the United States and that pessimistic predictions for a business reaction after the holidays have not found support. The department of commerce said today.

Preliminary estimates of business this Christmas indicate that all previous records have been broken, the department said. Economic conditions as reflected by the holiday business are fundamentally sound.

The department sees the continuation of good conditions for the new year.

27 YEARS AGO

Dec. 27, 1905

Engineer Hill in charge of the Salmon river project, was in Boise last week spending a few days, and while there made the statement that the work was practically completed. The dam will be finished in every detail by Jan. 1.

The roadways over the top of the dam were ready for use by that time. Also, this dam is of concrete, has a height of 230 feet, and is 145 feet in length on top. The roadway across the top will be six feet wide with a parapet on each side.

This will be one of the unique features on the road from Twin Falls to Jarbridge and will be the only roadway of this character in the United States.

Phone Used in Darning Creates Odd Mystery

NORTH BAY OJ.—New uses for the telephone are being discovered every day.

Recently subscribers on a rural line near here complained of a "phone" that always in use. The mystery was the ticking of a clock which was heard by everyone on the line.

The police investigated and traced a subscriber on the circuit. He finally entered the home of an elderly lady who was living alone.

The "phone" was solved. The woman was using the telephone receiver as the "darning egg" for socks.

A good home. The children are just fine. There is really nothing to worry about. And then she said: "I don't know what I'm doing."

Obviously she is just as ill as if she had a physical disorder. The treatment may be even more difficult than that of a physical disorder.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Outcher

(Evening Times Washington Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—The session of the minimum wage maximum hour bill in the house was a harder job to the New Deal than the session of the President's which means that it's the worst of the Roosevelt administration has received to date.

This time a fundamental economic issue was involved and the New Deal met its defeat in the house of representatives, where traditionally the administration is expected to have control. The defeat is all the worse because it does it in a manner that is not only a political success as closely as it does.

As a result of Roosevelt's bold attempt to enlarge the supreme court, the justices are now in a state of panic. Roosevelt was ready to send a message to the house on the day he asserted that there was any doubt as to the outcome of the recommitment fight. He was told the "message" and the administration (Copyright 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

A DISCONCERTING SHOCK

The great political question of the hour is whether Roosevelt will receive the support of congress which a combination of conservative Democrats and northern Republicans have wrested away from him. It is not clear whether he will win. For the time being one can only be sure that Mr. Roosevelt has received a disconcerting shock.

The President will be urged by some advisers and congressional supporters to veto any farm legislation which congress passes, and to insist that he will not more huge appropriations for farmers until representatives of the cotton south and the grain belt have shown their willingness to aid the poorest parts in industry.

Such a course would require more obstinate than President had shown for a long time.

HAD MOST TO WIN

The question of the final wage-hour debacle was the fact that contributory parts in it were played by President William Green for the American Federation of Labor, Secretary of Labor Francis Perkins and Mr. Roosevelt himself, who was responsible for the bill and had most to win or lose.

The A. F. of L. lost much prestige and power through its peculiar tactics. Congressmen who voted against defeated A. F. of L. multi-pled they were willing to continue following William Green's orders and to vote by voting to recommit the bill backed by the administration. Nevertheless there were a few such men and their votes were not enough to carry the bill, though there were fewer than 10—the number of votes which, if switched, would have carried the bill.

Although Secretary Perkins may have lobbied directly to put administration of the wage-hour measure under her department, one of her feminine minions was conspicuous in lining up support for and causing Chairman Mary Norton of the house labor committee to make the proposal for a labor department administration.

The positions of certain labor leaders were falsified in the course of this lobbying. Members favorable to the original plan for a five-man board administration estimate that somewhere between 5 and 20 southern members deserted the bill and the feeling that a board at least would allow southern representation. Although Roosevelt took no active part in the fight his combination of floor leadership and liaison man worked feverishly. The administration "maneuvered" both weak and unable to estimate its strength. Roosevelt was ready to send a message to the house on the day he asserted that there was any doubt as to the outcome of the recommitment fight. He was told the "message" and the administration (Copyright 1937, NEA Service, Inc.)

Firemen Save Woman.

Not in Fire, 4th Time

CLEVELAND OJ.—Mrs. Grace Gallagher, 47, has called firemen four times for virtually everything but putting out a fire.

Each time however, the firefighters saved her life.

On the first two occasions, they administered oxygen through an inhalator to revive her after heart attacks. Their third visit stopped a hiccoughing attack. On their last call they broke a string of 27,000 needles.

When, in 1909, Christian Gottlieb Graupner beached his face, strangled a baby, and sang the "Gay Negro Boy" in a Boston theater he started something that lived with the embryo republic from its days as a small Atlantic seaboard union until the present day with its position as one of the world's greatest powers—Graupner was the first minstrel man.

"With the tradition of the minstrel show came Stephen Foster who wrote some of the greatest songs.

"We might have had a Schubert of our own, had this uncultured, Pittsburgh, boy advanced technically and been helped by his last years," Wernersath said.

Wernersath rated Deems Taylor as "chief white poet of contemporary American music."

Shoshone Man Has Old Coins

SHOSHONE, Dec. 27 (Special)—Collecting of coins is something which all people are more or less interested in, but the accumulation of old time coins, foreign pieces, rare minted bits, coins with freak inscriptions or dates seldom encountered provides considerable entertainment, and occasional excitement to those inclined to delve into the lore of numismatics. The collection that has recently come to light in various parts of the state include coins of all shapes, sizes and metals.

Shoshone Collection
One of interest is possessed by A. E. Vredenburg of Shoshone, and consists of 580 foreign coins, many of them larger than the American silver dollar, and some of crude octagonal design, representing most of the European countries.

Three of the coins are of the Elizabethan period, Aug.-Fr., bearing the likeness of Queen Elizabeth on one side and the fleur-de-lis of France and lion of Britain on the other with the dates 1558, 1560 and 1563. Another bronze coin about the size of a half dollar is of the 1600 period and bears the stamp Sigismund III d'ici. (del gracia) Rex P. O. A somewhat similar coin is embossed Croesus Rex. Folio 96 and of the same period. There is an English penny of the era of Charles II, 1660.

Other Rare Coins
A piece slightly larger than a quarter is inscribed Guillemina Tertius 1697; another is Guillemina (Georgius Rex 1722; one Britania (Georgius III Rex 1776; one Georginus II 1742; a provincial coin of Georgia 1606; a Danube 1871; a coin of the Louis Napoleon period of 1792, though hard to decipher, and may be indefinite.

Many Mexican and Oriental coins are shown. The other day Mr. Vredenburg had a large brown Turkish coin of very old date stolen from the collection, but figures it may be recovered. The theft was admitted by the culprit.

After the ceremony the couple left for Oregon to visit at the home of Mr. Brock's parents. On their return they will make their home here. Mr. Brock is employed at the Golden Rule store and Mrs. Brock, a graduate of the local high school, has been employed at Schramm-Johnson's drug store.

RELIGIOUS THEME GIVEN IN DRAMA

Work of Local Instructor Is Staged By Presbyterian Young People

A religious revival following a "modern miracle" was the theme of "The Power and the Glory," a two-act play written by Miss Florence Rees, high school instructor, presented Friday evening in the Presbyterian church before a large audience.

The cast was composed of members of the Christian Endeavor society who portrayed the wave of religious enthusiasm which followed hearing the Christmas story on every radio in the world on Christmas eve. The basis for the "miracle" was invention of a scientist in the Salmon river country but the three persons who knew of it pledged themselves to secrecy rather than destroy the new-found faith of the world.

Those taking part in the play were Lillian Roberts, Jane Wylie, Paul Henson, Bill Warner, Bert Tolbert, Betty Colbert, Theora Belle Burns, Richard Rasmussen, John Haasum, Nathan Tolbert and Harley Barnhart.

Members of the production staff were Bill Warner, Bill Pomeroy, Robert McBride, Jean Harvey, Patricia Smith and Jean McGowan. Direction was by Miss Dorothy Call and Gerald Wallace, sponsors. Mrs. J. A. Dyregt played organ selections before and after the production.

LEA STILES HURT; RECOVERS HERE

Former Twin Falls Man Is Recuperating After Car Wreck

Injured about the head when his car was struck head-on by a California machine four miles west of Mountain Home on Christmas eve, Lea R. Stiles, Nampa, former mechanical foreman for the Twin Falls News for 10 years and employe of the News for more than 20 years, was recovering satisfactorily here today.

Mr. and Mrs. Stiles are visiting at the Roy Osakiki home. They were en route to Twin Falls from Nampa, where Mr. Stiles is now associated with the Idaho Free Press. Fred Allen, Nampa, was driving the Stiles machine at the time of the accident. Mr. Stiles was thrown against the instrument panel by the crash, and was unconscious for several minutes. Allen and Mrs. Stiles were uninjured.

The party left the wrecked car at Mountain Home and continued on to Twin Falls to visit the Gaskills and Mr. Stiles' sister, Miss Doris Stradley, county superintendent of schools.

The California driver was held temporarily at Mountain Home while officers probed the accident. The Stiles car will be taken back to Boise for repairs. READ THE TIMES WANT ADS.

TOYS BEFORE CHRISTMAS?

Editor: Evening Times:

I sent the following article to Pot Shots over a week ago and have been informed since that it belongs in your public forum column. I am sending it as it was only I would have sounded much different a week ago, so here goes:

Who was the well dressed kindergarten teacher who was seen coming from the fire station loaded down with the best assortment of toys? It would seem as though Santa has already started to distribute his toys, only he has been mistaken that the toys were for the under-privileged children and not for those whose parents can afford to send them to the kindergarten.

Now I'm not saying anything against a kindergarten because I have sent all my children to such an institution and I think it is very good.

Perhaps some of the club members who sponsored the collection of the toys might put some enlightenment on the subject.

Sincerely,
LUTHER ETTAMMAN,

COO COMMANDER WILL LEAVE POST

Lieut. Eugene M. Winters Will Go East; Herbison Takes Charge

Lieut. Eugene M. Winters, commanding officer of the Rock Creek COO camp, has received word that his request to be relieved from duty in the west has been granted, it was announced here this afternoon.

Lieut. Robert Herbison, formerly in command of the previous company at the camp, has been assigned to take over command of Company 1246.

After the turnover of property and funds, Lieut. Winters will leave on a 30-day furlough for the east to visit his family, whom he has not seen in three years.

Lieut. Winters assumed command of Company 1246 at Livingstonville, N. Y., a small village about 30 miles southeast of Albany, the capital of the empire state. The company was ordered west and entrained on Oct. 10 in the midst of a snowstorm. After traveling for almost four days, the company reached Hansen for the first night of the west by most of the 19th men. The company was soon organized, and the camp was placed at the place grouped up after the buildings had been abandoned for a time.

During his short stay in the west, Lieut. Winters has made scores of new friends, and is extremely well liked by the men of his command. He is tendered a farewell party before he leaves for his home in New Jersey.

He is an attorney in civilian life, having graduated from Syracuse university and Columbia law school. Before coming into the service, he practiced law in New Jersey.

Here's Type of Promotion Commission Planned for Advertising Idaho Spuds

Advertisement for Idaho Russet potatoes featuring a woman and a child. Text: 'COME AND GET IT - IT'S IDAHO'S TREAT!' 'BOIL/BAKED IDAHO POTATOES AND SIZZLING HAMBURGERS - DO I GO FOR THEM!' 'WALDORF-ASTORIA'S CHIEF LUGOT SAYS: "We use Idaho potatoes exclusively for baking because of their unusual quality for the purpose; also find them excellent for souffe and other fancy forms."'

WATCH YOUR FAMILY SMACK THEM UP OVER THEM! Idaho Russet baked to a crisp, hot oven (450 degrees F.) until soft when sliced. (If cooler oven is desired, after 15 minutes reduce heat to 375 degrees F.) Then to make them really fluffy and light, combine with soft butter, egg whites and salt. Boil water, season and insert pot of butter.

IDAHO RUSSET potatoes are grown in rich volcanic soil, watered by glacial streams. They're famous as bakers—equally good cooked other ways. And according to the U. S. Home Economics Bureau, potatoes are non-fatening. An average size potato contains only 100 calories—no more than an apple or an orange. Ask for Idaho Russets if you want the world's finest potatoes. They're plentiful this year and very reasonably priced.

Idaho Russet POTATOES logo and promotional text.

"Come and get it—It's Idaho's treat!" So reads the headline of the accompanying advertisement for Idaho potatoes and onions. This is one of a series of advertisements which was scheduled to appear in daily newspapers throughout 17 states. The advertisement was prepared for the Idaho fruit and vegetable advertising commission in the interest of the potato and onion growers of Idaho, under the advertising act passed by the last legislature. According to original plans, this advertisement would have appeared last week in 54 daily newspapers. The schedule was cancelled when funds of the commission were tied up by a suit brought by a group of growers in Canyon county. Used for Baking According to an investigation made by the commission and its agents, however, the suit was cancelled in the interest of the potato and onion growers of Idaho. One interesting feature of the copy is the testimonial from Gabriel Lugot, chief of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel of New York City. Similar testimonials have been received from famous chefs throughout America. While the commission has made every effort to carry out its work provided by the last legislature, it has repeatedly met with reverses due to legal questions regarding the constitutionality of the advertising law. Judge Koelsch, in an opinion handed down last month, held that the law was constitutional. The commission then proceeded with preparation of a series of advertisements like the one shown here. However, before any of the ads had actually appeared in newspapers another suit was instituted which made it necessary for the commission to again cancel its plans.
