POT SHOTS

WITH The Gentleman in the Third Row

Right to Look Ridiculous

The proofreader is a noble person with whom, unfortunately, people who have nothing to do with writing and printing never get acquainted.

In ordinary newspaper offices, a proofreader is a preternaturally wise, scholarly sort of gentleman who sits all day long in a little cubbyhole and devotes himself to the melancholy task of ferreting out errors of grammar, spelling, fact, punctuation or typography in the works of the hired hands.

The brash young gentlemen of the press have a way of speaking of him as "the comma hound." As creative souls, they get irritable when their mistakes in the matter of names, addresses and historical facts are called to their attention; but at bottom they know that the proofreader saves them from looking ridiculous, full many a time and oft.

All of which is by way of introduction to the fact that Uncle Sam has a set of proofreaders on his payroll. They go over the matter which is printed in the Congressional Record—can one imagine a more soul-killing task!—and the most recent complaint about them centers about the fact that they do their job too well.

Congressman Maury Maverick of Texas makes the complaint. In a letter to the Government Printing Office, he protests that the federal comma hounds make congressmen look wiser and more learned than they really are. He ought to know, for he admits that they recently performed that favor for him.

Speaking from the floor of the house, Mr. Maverick referred the other day to David and his coat of many colors—an error which, if spread on the records, would have branded him forever either as a man with a poor memory or as a distressingly inept student of the Bible. But the proofreaders saved him; when the speech got printed, it spoke of Joseph, not of David.

A little before that, continues Mr. Maverick, a congressman spoke of Lieutenant Hobson's feat of sinking the Merrimack in Manila Bay—an error of fact to the extent of some 10,000 miles. But the proofreaders came to the rescue, and in the Congressional Record the Merrimack was sunk where it belonged, in Santiago Bay.

This sort of thing, says Mr. Maverick, is common. Congressmen are saved daily from all manner of ridiculous errors by these G-men of the proof press. The Texan says he once knew a congressman whose grammar was exceptionally, ludicrously bad; but in the record he always sounded like a college professor, so alert and canny were the proofreaders.

Which seems to us to be too bad. Our vaunted freedom ought to include the liberty of a congressman to make a spectacle of himself whenever nature so moves him. There never has been any tradition that our congressmen were models of erudition and classical English; the tradition, indeed, goes the other way. (Consult, for instance, the legendary "Change the Name of Arkansas?" speech).

Proofreaders are all right in their place, but the Congressional Record isn't it. Can't we read our congressional speeches in all their glowing, pristine, unretouched inaccuracy?

One for the Book

Quite the most fantastic and E. Phillips Oppenheim of recent mysteries is the one involving "Mr. and Mrs. Donald Robinson" and their disappearance in Moscow.

It looked at first as if these were two bona fide American travelers who had come to grief somehow in the Russian capital. Knowing the little ways of the Oppu, the American state department launched strong protests.

Then it came out that "Mr. and Mrs. Robinson" were traveling on phoney passports under assumed names. Whence they came from, who they were and why they went to Russia became as mysterious as their disappearance. So far, nothing in the case makes any sense at all. If Mr. Oppenheim didn't invent these people, he should have.

RELATIVES

My name is Maggie the mouse. I live in One of the best houses in town. This was my first Christmas. My father and mother. The tree glowed and everybody seemed kind and good. On Christmas eve. They gave each other many gifts. On Christmas morning. And all was well. But now Christmas has passed. And they took the tree down. The gifts are all put away.

The family snaps at each other. Just like the dog. They used to do. I squint from my hole in the wall. And wonder. If the mouse isn't worse than the fun. I don't like to do. Have Christmas among mice.

BILL CERTAINLY PICKED OUT THE MOGUELS, NO?

And not only what I won't they had to say about Bill D. slipping the $5 to the Yodelers to get the Yodelers to Governor Clark up to the Sun Valley, but I also understand that no less a gent than W. Averell Harriman, the Chairman of the Board of the Union Pacific, was plainly indignant.

REGULATIONS FOR THAT BOARD AT BOISE!

Potter Sproler for our 1938 resolutions. I wish to give you suggested resolutions for the Messrs. Clark, Taylor and Masters:

Descriptive of the garden nobody for nothing at no time and no for reason.

Resolved, not to be so quick on the trigger when appointing prize wardens; whereas and wherefore, said trio won't be left out on a limb when the appointee doesn't hop joyfully to the job.

TIME FOR THAT GIFT THE BUSINESS AGAIN!

Put better start a classified advertising section for the after-Christmas period.

Put THE TRADING—his peckles, beautiful colors, out-rainbows the rainbow, for box of cigars or what have you.

THEY DIDN'T STRIKE HARD ENOUGH!

Hon. Mr. Pot:

It gave me a long laugh. I mean that article about the "reported" strike of masons at the local hospital, and the way the official blindly said they hadn't heard of any such strike.

SHIRT-TAIL SAVIOR

Hilar may yet be known as the shirt-tail savior of Germany.

Latest decree of his economic ministry is a plan to shorten all German shirt-tails two inches. Each German, instead of wearing a shirt 37.4 inches long in front and 39.4 inches long behind, will wear one 35.4 inches long in front and 37.4 inches behind. The idea is to save cloth.

THINKING OF THE WIFE

I hereby resolve for 1938:

1. To kiss my wife at least once a week.

2. To forget the kid at such times as I can't disguise my breath after being out with the boys.

3. To stay within my budget. (Government, please note.)

4. To take a pillow with me to movie shows so I can see over the boy in front.

5. To be polite to all my in-laws.

6. To limit coarse words to six an hour while playing contract bridge. (Government, please note.)

7. To be polite to all my in-laws.

CAST OF CHARACTERS

LINDA BENTON—Hostess. CAPT. HARRINGTON—Trent's aide. MRS. BENTON—Linda's mother. MRS. A. TRANT—Barry's mother. "The Gentleman in the Third Row"—Barry.

Yesterday, Barry, leaving Linda and Trent, starts on his trip, another womanly voice takes the air to greet his will.

CHAPTER IX

THE voice that spoke next was unmistakably familiar. It was the voice of Rita Blanchard.

"There isn't much one can say, is there?" Rita began. "When you see someone whom you have—been very fond of—Barry Trent and I played together as children—sitting off alone in the dark on such an errand? . . . But I do want to say to Barry, if he is listening, 'God-speed' and 'come back soon!'"

"Children together, my foot!" snorted the Duchess when she could get her breath. "Rita Blanchard was plucking her eyebrows when Barry was playing with blocks. . . . What some people will do for a little publicity!"

"They went to bed then. . . . That is, they went to their bedrooms. Linda, climbing the stairs, it seemed for the first time since Barry's coming had brought the old house to life. The door of the dead and gone Trents lining the stairway peered down at her with secret, silent hostility.

Next morning life went on much as usual except that there were no bursts of song at the breakfast table, no soft fainting the stairs two at a time, no fragrance of pipe tobacco floating through the rooms—and that, from time to time, Linda sniffed suspiciously a small golden cinder that hung on a ribbon under her dress, close against the white hollow of her throat.

The early edition of the afternoon paper carried a last-minute item to the effect that Captain Trent had been killed in the first leg of his slight in record time, would rest and re-fuel before continuing south.

Linda thought of asking if the judge had left a paper for her, but if Judge Baldwin had been stricken almost as soon as she and Barry had left him and Mr. Chadwick, she would not have been able to find the record of their marriage. In fact, he could not even have finished filling it out. Not that she thought she could be depended to later. Anyhow, she had kept her promise to Barry.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dabner

RE WAYS "FIRST COAST"

Ordinarily it would be safe to predict that Roosevelt, who consistently has thrown his weight toward the left when neutrally everyone articulates his views, would not direct by the guiding hand of the White House.

There is a fairly good chance of seeing that it can be said that the President is considering an attack on private capitalism and its unwilling support, the New Deal program. Such an attack would be coupled with some heavy interferences as to the inability of congress to legislate when not directed by the guiding hand of the White House.

FIGHTING PRESIDENT?

On the other hand, Roosevelt may decide during the holidays to assume again the role of a "fighting President," and seek to rally his supporters to a fight against the domestic front, perhaps ardently trying to force congress to pass economic and political measures at home. Some of those men who were closest to him in the past are betting on this.

SOUTHERN SCHOOLS NEGOTIATE FOR KIPKE

Ex-Michigan Coach Will Stay in Game

By GEORGE KIRKSEY

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 29 (UP)—Harry Kipke, who coached the New Orleans Southern team for nine years and was unexpectedly dismissed a month ago, announced today in a speech before the New Orleans Rotary club that he intended to remain in the coaching game.

"In the last three weeks I've had quite a number of offers to go into coaching," Kipke said. "Some of them are very tempting, but the thrill and lure of this coaching profession are deeply rooted. When fall comes around I hope I'm out there with the boys."

As retiring president of the American Football Coaches Association, Kipke is holding its annual meeting here. Kipke was invited to speak before the club to help it decide on the best man to hold the job of a football coach and wished his successor every "break."

They ask Michigan support

"I can't keep Michigan down for long," Kipke said. "I have been a coach and I know what it takes to win."

Several other coaches here are in the same boat with Kipke. It is reported that six Mississippi coaches, including Coach Harry Maltz, who resigned after 12 years with the University of Georgia, is going to the University of South Carolina; and "Shorty" Papp, fired by Northwestern university, is going to coach at the University of Tennessee.

Warner asks Rule Changes

Other coaches whose jobs are safe are willing to talk about the rules. Glenn S. Owen, Warner, says that last season, advocated some of the rules used by professional football players. Owen says that the professional football players are playing soccer style. "I want to see some rules changed," Owen said. "The defense has cut down on offense, and it is in fact of a change to help the offense."

Bowl Teams in 'Last Mile'

PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 29 (UP)—The football representatives of California and Alabama started today on the last mile of the path to the Rose Bowl.

To date, the public has regarded the New Year's day classic with little of the usual interest. The lapse in enthusiasm was attributed to the fact that this contest will be played for the almost exclusive edification of the rival alumni and their families and retainers who get the tickets.

Today a few impressed fans came out with predictions and it appeared that the public, with appropriate conscientiousness, has gone from the Chicago Bowl.

In view of the seasonal records, California held an advantage on paper. The Bear athletics were considered the best in the nation. The Bears weren't soled up against the results of the variety of Howard or Syracuse. But California has won only one of three, and Alabama was undefeated in four attempts. Further, the Bears have won six of their last seven games in the record books were first high players.

SIX BASEBALL SIDELIGHTS AT SANTA ANITA AS HORSE RUNS LAST

By HENRY McLEMORE (Copyright, 1937, United Press.) ARCADIA, Calif., Dec. 29 (UP)—Having definitely made up my mind as to the winner of the Rose Bowl (my choice will be announced after 3 p. m. on Friday so as not to disturb Wall Street or the Bourne) I came down to the Santa Anita track to try and help improve the breed of the race horse.

If one is to judge by the grade of horses I attempted to improve in the first six races, I barely got there in time. One more day and they would have been part of the aid of the Mayo Brothers, even, or Ben Hut with a buggy whip in each hand.

Another such day as I had yesterday will come mightily close to convincing me that the race horse is a thoroughly backward animal that doesn't want to be improved, and that we race track social workers would be wise to switch our attentions to the goat, the two horned dilemma, the ring-tailed water buffalo, or some other animal that does not want to be bettered.

Can Switch Game

If a man has to lose at a horse race—and experience has taught me that he does—Santa Anita affords almost painless extractions. When your steed develops chicken pox in the backfield and drops so far below the line that he can't get into the race, you can switch your eyes on the flowers and something that, right at that moment, seems equally shaded map of green is being born, and that Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Snop Dragon, who have wanted a "snop, Jr." for years, are delightedly happy.

The movie stars are there to help you forget your woes. Too by time of the second race the "Turk club at Santa Anita" has become the Hollywood studio. In the course of a day's racing about the

President Rushes Plans for National Defense

ROOSEVELT WILL ASK ADDITIONAL U. S. WARSHIPS

Chief Executive Expected to Request One Billion For Army and Navy

By ROBERT C. MONTEZ
WASHINGTON, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt rushed plans today for increased national defense on land, sea and in the air.

Requies for the war and navy departments revealed that the President, alarmed by world-wide unrest and particularly by the threatening international situation resulting from the armaments race and the spread of Nazi propaganda, has given orders to press armament plans for the American fighting forces at all possible speed, regard being had to budgetary requirements and other domestic political considerations.

The inquiries revealed that Mr. Roosevelt expects to ask congress to appropriate well over $1,000,000,000 for national defense during the 1939 fiscal year which begins July 1.

Special Appropriation

The navy supply bill is expected to call for about $200,000,000 in addition to special appropriations required for such extra warship construction as the President has requested. The navy supply bill probably will total $415,000,000. In addition to both of these bills several deficiency supply bills are anticipated which will cover the construction of some additional warships, over and above those provided in the regular naval appropriation bill.

The regular bill provides for starting construction during this fiscal year on two additional battleships of the Iowa class, two light cruisers, eight destroyers and six submarines. These are all authorized by the War Relocation Authority for a special bill providing for a special appropriation.

The "extra" ships which the President has in mind, it was believed, would include two additional cruisers and at least one more aircraft carrier.

Up to 'Dressy' Limits

The United States is now built up to "dressy" limits on heavy cruisers and light cruisers, and needs only two light cruisers to reach treaty limits, according to the navy department. The navy department is providing for the regular supply bill for the coming fiscal year.

The budget figures were made public in a letter to the President signed by Mr. Clegg, chief of the budget office, and Mr. Clegg, chief of the budget office, and Mr. Clegg, chief of the budget office.

The President then informed that he had approved the estimates for the coming year, and that he would submit them to congress.

New Walt Disney Full-Length Show, 'Snow White and Seven Dwarfs,' Ready

Tense drama and some of the comedy in "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" are portrayed in these preview frames from the animated feature. At top left, Snow White makes a heart-rendering appeal for help; the Seven Dwarfs, too right, are happy (you wouldn't believe it looking at Grumpy) over the way things are ending, while the Witch, lower left, groins in perditional villainy. The Queen, lower right, is another life-like character in the Walt Disney film.

By PAUL HARRISON (NEA Service)

HOLLYWOOD—Night and day, day and night, color cameras at the Disney Studio ground away at "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs."

Perhaps "ground" isn't quite the word. These cameras merely click and slowly. A photographer adjusts a painted background under the lights and the lens. From a great sheet of celluloid sheets he takes those on which are painted all the players in a scene and places them over the background. Then he pushes a button and the camera clicks once, recording a split instant of suspended animation.

To make the picture move there must be 24 of these carefully arranged shots for every second that "Snow White" runs on the screen. That will mean for this first full-length animated feature, about 100,000 frames of film and at least 100,000 more to be let in the editing, cutting and retakes.

After four years, the job is finished now.

of the work, discoveries were made which prompted idealist Disney to go back and virtually begin again. One development is an impressive contraption called the multiplex camera, which gives an impression of depth.

Until now, all animated cartoons were photographed "as if from a single sheet of paper, with the characters moving flat against the background. The multiplex process causes the characters to stand out as though on a miniature stage. Disney spent 60,000 perfecting this idea, and a lot more to applying it.

"To meet the voice problem, Disney established a casting department which held thousands of auditions. The job was to look at the character while listening to the voice and decide whether the two went together contentedly.

The dwarfs—Sneezy, Bashful, Dopey, Sleepy, Doc, Grumpy and Happy—have quite different personalities. The queen is cold, the witch a horrid hag. Snow White required the voice of a young girl, not a child. And she had to sing.

A Lovely Headache

Snow White was by all odds the most difficult part of the entire production. She is not a caricature, but a human being. Also, being the heroine she had to be beautiful.

It would have been no trick at all, Disney explained, for his artists to produce almost photographic likenesses of some lovely model complete with all the lines and coloring and detail of a human face. Nor would he have begrudged the extra expense and labor entailed.

But it was photographically impossible to employ such minute detail because in animation Snow White's face would have become hazy.

So they finally worked out a simplified design for a pretty girl, who probably is as real a person as the animated screen is likely to see. Her movement and gestures also caused a thousand headaches among her creators, who for the first time were obliged to show motion as graceful and natural instead of comic.

Now the job is done. Total cost was $1,500,000.

LINCOLN BRIGADE DENIES KILLINGS

Message Sent to United Press Refuting Slaughter of American Soldiers

(Editor's note: The following wireless message, addressed to the United Press, was received in New York, signed the heads of the Lincoln Brigade (15th brigade), fighting with the Loyalists in Spain. The brigade is composed largely of Americans.)

The signers are Gen. Chupech, brigade commander; Substantivo, Doran, head of the New York Young Communist league, political commissar; and Robert Merzins, instructor of economics at the University of California, chief of staff.

ALCANIZ, Aragon, Spain, Spain, Dec. 28 (UP)—In his radio speech to the General Quarters of Alcaniz, he falsely announced the destruction of three battalions of our 15th brigade. This lie has the purpose of weakening American public opinion and the morale of our fighters. In our brigade and the general struggle of the Spanish people against fascism.

We consider it our duty to inform the American public that since our operation in Aragon, in which the 15th brigade played a brilliant role took more than 1,500 fascist prisoners, our brigade has not lost a single man.

We hope that American public will receive with joy the news that the morale and fighting ability of our brigade is very high and that the brigade, especially after the great success of the Spanish Republican army in the taking of Teruel, is ready, together with the Spanish people's army, to continue the struggle until the final destruction of fascism.

(Signed) Brigade Commander Chupech; Political Commissar Dave Doran; Chief of Staff Robert Merzins.
