Veteran Idaho Statesman Says 'World Has Gone Mad'

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
 WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—Sen. William E. Borah, R., Idaho, interrupted a momentous senate debate on foreign policy today to warn the administration against repetition of "the very things that brought on the World War."

The veteran Idahoan, former chairman of the foreign relations committee, pointed with concern to recent statements and events in both Great Britain and the United States which he said gave other nations the impression that there was a tacit alliance or understanding between the two countries.

"The world, he said, 'has gone mad' partly because of the impression given that these two nations are building up their naval armament as a result of joint consultation."

"These," Borah cried, "are the very things that brought on the World War."

John In Debate
 Borah, Sen. Hiram W. Johnson, R., Calif., Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev., of the senate foreign relations committee, and Sen. J. Hamilton Lewis, D., Ill., joined in the significant debate at the opening of today's session.

It followed the statement of Admiral William D. Leahy before a house committee that international conditions are more serious now than at any time since 1928. Leahy urged enactment of President Roosevelt's national defense expansion program and said that if Japan is building 43,000 ton battleships the United States probably will do the same.

Defends Foreign Policy
 Pittman defended the administration's foreign policy as one of "non-interference and non-intervention" in affairs of other nations.

Borah said that in view of the relation of Pittman as chairman of the foreign relations to the department of state, "I heard his statement with gratification."

He recalled that in the hope of common sense the British government was not to be treated with the United States but that there was an understanding and that the United States was not to be treated with the United States as a foreign policy.

"I regret that statement as most unfortunate," he said, "because it implied that the impression that the United States and Britain had an agreement and that it was of such nature that it could not be made public."

"These things inevitably cause other nations to understand that we have a particular relationship with Great Britain."

SMALLPOX CASES SPREAD AT BUHL
 Spread of smallpox at Buhl, where seven cases have been reported during the last two weeks, this afternoon caused Dr. Robert Stump, director of the district health unit, to urge citizens there to submit to vaccinations against the disease through doctors in the community.

"Seven new cases of the disease have been reported from Buhl in the last two weeks," Dr. Stump said. "The incidence is increasing and there have been widespread contacts and exposures both about the city and in the schools."

"Because of the large percentage of the population which has not been vaccinated at the present time the health unit urges that this precaution be taken at once. Citizens in Buhl are urged to have the vaccinations given by their private physicians."

PLAN STARTS TO AID SMALL U. S. BUSINESS FIRMS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (UP)—An administration plan to aid small business still in the preliminary study stage today—the day before a conference between commerce department officials and more than 500 "little" business men.

Hundreds of letters poured into the capital, officials said, appealing for financial assistance to "little" men in their fight against the economic recession.

Tomorrow and Thursday, between 500 and 750 little business men will outline their problems and make recommendations.

Administration officials generally were in agreement that some form of financial aid was vital but, the United Press learned, there was no unanimity of methods.

Small Loan Plan
 The suggestions which appeared to have attracted most attention in administration circles included creation of federal intermediate credit banks to advance small loans to little business men or a national mortgage corporation which would guarantee loans made by commercial banks.

Chairman Lee T. Crowley of the federal department of insurance corporation, head of the agency which has insured deposits in more than 14,000 banks, said he favored a plan.

AILSHIE DOUBTS PROBE LEGALITY
 BOISE, Ida., Feb. 1 (UP)—It was charged today by James P. Ailshie, Boise attorney, that the grand jury proceeding now under way in the state capital was "under grave doubt."

Ailshie, former assistant U. S. district attorney who admitted that he was retained by "persons interested in the grand jury," claimed that the indictment given the jury yesterday by Judge Charles Koelsch were "incorrect from the point of law involved."

At opening of the session, Ailshie attempted to have Judge Koelsch bar Attorney-General J. W. Taylor from appearing before the grand jury.

He claimed that such procedure was not permitted under Idaho law and requested the judge to exclude from his list to the jury the name of the attorney-general as one of those permitted to be called by the jury for aid or advice.

It was largely through the attorney-general's investigation of the state highway department and subsequently other departments of the state government that the grand jury was called to inquire into matters of government.

Judge Koelsch summarily overruled Ailshie's objection to inclusion of the attorney-general and refused to entertain argument upon the matter.

Koelsch had read the following instruction to the jury:
 "You are entitled at all times to ask and to receive the advice of this grand jury."

Auditors Work To End Report By Late Today

Indictment Hits Boise Man for Check Altering

BOISE, Ida., Feb. 1 (UP)—Ada county's grand jury, investigating state government, was expected to be ready tomorrow for its inquiry into penitentiary affairs—first step in the actual investigation of Idaho's administrative picture.

Auditors in the state bureau of public accounts were working hastily to complete their report upon the financial condition of the prison, which would be ready probably late tonight.

There was information to the effect that the grand jury would call for the first part of the prison audit late today but as the group continued working with minor county and city cases, it appeared the request for prison evidence and testimony would not come until later.

First indictment issued by the grand jury was made public today, and it charged a Boise man with alleged forgery on the part of Lee O. Penman of Boise. The true bill stated that Penman had raised a $100 check by altering the figure one to two.

Other Indictments
 Other indictments concerning persons held in city and county jails against which information has not previously been filed will be forthcoming throughout the day.

Comment on the charge by James Ailshie, Boise attorney, that the grand jury had been improperly instructed by Judge Charles Koelsch in that the attorney general was to be permitted to appear and give advice was generally to the effect that Ailshie's allegation was not serious.

Judge Koelsch said he had prepared thoroughly before the grand jury and that should there be any question through the office of the attorney general, he would be prepared to answer in subsequent court proceedings.

Courthouse 'Deserted'
 The courthouse was virtually deserted by onlookers today. Sightseers generally met with cold reception on the part of the militia stationed outside the grand jury room.

Beginning of the prison investigation will probably be followed by inspection of the bureau of public works and interlocked departments. It was said, investigation of the prison is a duty automatically imposed by law.

JUDGE'S VERDICT HITS DEMURRERS
 Demurrers filed by defendants in seven civil abatement cases seeking injunctions for one-year closing of establishments accused of liquor traffic were denied and overruled, District Judge T. Bailey Lee, Burley, informed County Attorney Edward Backstrom in a memorandum today.

Council for the defendants had filed general and special demurrers and motions to strike. Next step will be a hearing on the demurrers, although time allotted for that move was indefinite today until arrival of Judge Lee's order.

The senior justice of the 11th district still is considering the demurrers filed by four defendants in as many criminal cases, also instituted as a result of the liquor charges.

WRIGHT UNFOLDS STORY OF 'RAGE'
 LOS ANGELES, Feb. 1 (UP)—Paul A. Wright, 29-year-old aviation executive, today told a jury of nine men and three women how he went into a "white flame of rage" and shot his wife, Evelyn, 25, and his best friend, John Kimball, 25, when he found them in a compromising situation in the Wright home last Nov. 9.

He appeared extremely haggard as Defense Attorney Jerry O'Neil began questioning him.

Wright's first questions dealt with Wright's service as an aviator sergeant in the World War. Wright said he was gassed and his experiences during three months at the front caused him to be highly nervous and emotionally upset when he returned from France.

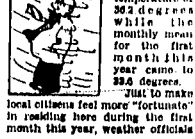

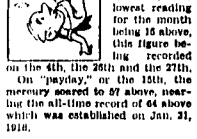

"I would walk in my sleep and I always thought that the nervousness was a weakness to be covered up," Wright pleaded not guilty and not guilty by reason of insanity to the double murder charge.

If he is convicted as a result of the present trial, the judge may hear the insanity plea.

Solon Suggests "Line of Defense" All Around South America

AMENDMENT TO PENDING NAVAL BILL CONSIDERED

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1 (Special)—A suggestion that the United States naval "line of defense" be extended all the way around South America originated today in the house naval affairs committee.

Rep. Frank C. Kniffin, D., Ohio, said that he was considering an amendment to this effect which he might seek to incorporate in the pending bill by Chairman Carl Vinson, D., Ga. The Vinson bill is designed to carry out President Roosevelt's recommendation for a navy 20 per cent greater than the limit allowed under the discarded 8-3 naval ratio treaties.

Kniffin led in the questioning of Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, as to what constitutes the navy's "line of defense." Leahy scheduled a return for further questioning on the amendment program, described it as running from the Aleutian islands southwest through Hawaii to Samoa, eastward to the Panama canal and thence to the Giron islands and the Maine coast.

Leahy, however, explained that in speaking of a "line of defense" he had in mind a line the way of the United States to let an enemy cross. What the line of defense would be in wartime he refused to predict, asserting that "the navy would operate wherever the enemy's fleet was."

"At our own doors nothing stands in the way of the possible exploitation or seizure of the republics of Central and South America except the Monroe Doctrine, backed by such naval forces as the United States may have and the use of that force if the necessity should arise," Leahy told the committee.

Kniffin suggested that the navy should be prepared to meet a possible attack in mid-Atlantic or mid-Pacific, extending the "line" clear around South America rather than through the canal.

He explained that his amendment would automatically mean withdrawal of U. S. warships from China waters.

Physical Investment

"I heard today," Kniffin said, "that one building in New York is worth more than all the physical investment we have in China."

Vinson questioned Leahy as to the possibility of using a larger navy for aggression, recalling the charge made in the house floor that such was the purpose of increasing the fleet.

Leahy said that to wage aggressive warfare against a foreign navy would require increases "at least three times" the size of the proposed program of 47 additional combat ships, including 12 battleships, 22 cruisers, 1,000 airplanes and 20,000 more men.

"The proposed increase is not sufficient to guard against attack on both shores at the same time," he said.

Hard to Amend Now

Norris, now almost recovered from recent illness and entering his 35th year in congress with undiminished eagerness, believes his proposed amendment would clear clogged channels of democracy.

"The course of the child labor amendment shows well the difficulty of amending the constitution at present," says Norris. "It has been pending for 15 or 20 years. Even now if enough states should ratify it to make three-fourths, there is no guarantee that it would not be contested on the ground that some of the ratifications took place too long ago to be effective."

"That is not good. These things should be settled for good, one way or another. If my amendment is adopted, any amendment then proposed to the people by congress would be on the ballot at the next general election, unless less than 60 days intervened. Thus it would never be more

Stepfather of Our Constitution

Sen. Norris Writes Still Another Measure, Designed to Bring Government Closer to the People of U. S.

By WILLIS THORNTON (NEA Service)

WASHINGTON—The fathers of the constitution are all dead these 150 years, but the constitution has a sort of stepfather who is very much alive.

He is Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska, the only living man who has left a definite personal impress on the constitution.

Differing from other recent amendments—which were usually the joint work of many individuals working through large associations—the lame duck amendment, No. 20, ratified in 1933, is Senator Norris' own child.

It cuts down the time between an election and the day when the newly elected congressmen take their seats, and eliminates sessions conducted by congressmen who already have been repudiated at the polls.

For More Direct Power

All this is part of the plans of the western senator from Nebraska to make government more closely responsive to the will of the people. But now he is taking another step in the same direction, one of a series which would further increase the direct power of the people in their government.

In his proposed amendment now up before a subcommittee of the senate judiciary committee, this amendment is probably the most far-reaching to be proposed for a long time.

It provides that instead of the carrying proposed amendments before state legislatures or special conventions, the proposed amendments shall be voted on by the whole people directly at the next general election.

Hard to Amend Now

Norris, now almost recovered from recent illness and entering his 35th year in congress with undiminished eagerness, believes his proposed amendment would clear clogged channels of democracy.

"The course of the child labor amendment shows well the difficulty of amending the constitution at present," says Norris. "It has been pending for 15 or 20 years. Even now if enough states should ratify it to make three-fourths, there is no guarantee that it would not be contested on the ground that some of the ratifications took place too long ago to be effective."

"That is not good. These things should be settled for good, one way or another. If my amendment is adopted, any amendment then proposed to the people by congress would be on the ballot at the next general election, unless less than 60 days intervened. Thus it would never be more than two years before the fate of any proposed amendment would be known."

In this composite picture Senator George Norris may be seeing, through the cloud of smoke which comes from his cigar, his vision of a constitution which is "closer" to the people.

He Trusts People

"Little opposition has thus far cropped up, and approval by the judiciary committee of the senate is considered likely. Such opposition as has been heard is usually based on the fear of rash and hasty action by the electorate in changing the fundamental law of the country."

"That doesn't worry Norris. There is no reason why an amendment proposed today should not be submitted to the same authority for final decision which originally adopted the whole document—the people themselves," says Norris. "The practice in the states is almost invariably to lead by previously-elected bodies just don't trust the people, that's all. It happens that I do."

The Norris procedure starts just as done today. It would take a two-thirds vote of both houses of Congress to submit an amendment. But Norris would have ratification follow a majority popular vote in favor of it in two-thirds of the states. Today it takes adoption by the legislatures or by conventions in three-fourths of the states.

Norris has further projects for streamlining the constitution. He has proposed amendments in many that would eliminate the outworn and meaningless machinery of the electoral college, and which would limit the terms of federal judges to nine years instead of life.

Of all the nearly 100 proposed amendments to the constitution now on file with the judiciary committee of house and senate, those of Norris seem most likely to receive attention. Should one or more of them actually run the long political gauntlet leading to a permanent place in the constitution, Norris will more than have earned his title of a modern "stepfather" of the constitution.

LEGION DRIVE IS TERMED SUCCESS

Termed by W. W. Frantz, chairman, as a "decided success," the annual membership drive of the Twin Falls post of the American Legion had ended today, boasting to 301 those belonging to the organization at the present time.

The last meeting of the membership group which served in the drive was held last night with Mr. Frantz presiding.

Grieg's Music Heard At Luncheon Session

Presentation of the "Peer Gynt Suite" by Grieg featured the program of today's Twentieth Century club luncheon meeting at the Park hotel. The program was arranged by Mrs. Effie Riherd Hinton to carry out the theme, "The Clubwoman as a Musician."

Nearly a hundred members of the organization were present for the luncheon and program.

As an introduction to the suite Mrs. Hinton outlined the life story of Grieg and compared the Norwegian composer with Chopin, emphasizing their similarities and differences due to their national backgrounds. A piano quartet including Mrs. Ralph Bacon, Miss Barbara Bulliff, Miss Betty Lynde and Miss Louella Tucker, played Hevelin's "In the Procession." Mrs. Ralph Bacon played Chopin's "Waltz in E Flat Major" as a comparison with Grieg's music which followed.

The four movements of the original "Peer Gynt Suite" used as a background for the luncheon play by the same name, were presented by the students of Mrs. Hinton and were: Hall of the Mountain King, Begone with thee, Mazurka, and Morning Mood.

The Valentine motif was carried out in the luncheon table decorations making the long tables especially attractive with red carnations and hearts.

Those serving on the decoration committee were Mrs. Ted Davis, chairman; Mrs. H. A. Brizeo, Mrs. L. C. Cogwell and Miss Alberta Simonds.

BUHL
 Reverend and Mrs. Leroy Walker left Buhl Sunday afternoon for Salt Lake City

THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson

NOTIME AT ALL ELAPSES ON OUR EARTH BETWEEN FEBRUARY FIRST AND FEBRUARY THIRD! SINCE A DAY ON EARTH LASTS MORE THAN 48 HOURS, FEB. 1ST IS JUST ENDING AT ONE POINT OF THE GLOBE AS FEB. 3RD IS COMMENCING AT ANOTHER.

EVERY 1000 POUNDS OF SEA WATER CARRIES ABOUT TWENTY-SEVEN POUNDS OF COMMON SALT IN SOLUTION.

RENO, NEVADA, "DIVORCE CAPITAL OF THE WORLD" HAS MORE DIVORCES THAN DIVORCES.

It takes approximately 24 hours for a new day to dawn completely around the earth. Another 24 hours are required for the completion of that day at the last time zone. At the very moment the day dies there, the third day dawns in the first zone. Therefore, the end of Feb. 1 and the beginning of Feb. 3 coincide.

SIDE GLANCES By George Clark

"I wish the train would pull out. I'm tired of standing here grinning at them."
