Solon Says Navy Building Program Presages Foreign Policy Change

LAFOLLETTE HITS ADMINISTRATIVE SPENDING PLANS

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
WASHINGTON, Feb. 5 (Special)—Sen. Robert M. La Follette, Wis., generally a supporter of the New Deal, charged today that war scare tactics were being used to persuade congress to approve "a pig in a poke" a new and costlier foreign policy.

The administration's proposed $200,000,000 naval building program in reality involves a change in foreign policy but one which has not been disclosed to congress, La Follette said.

Calling for a clarification of hints that the United States and British foreign policy has been coordinated, the Wisconsin Progressive strongly condemned any plan that would turn the nation's energies and money from the unfinished task of national economic rehabilitation.

Naval Understanding
The question whether any naval understanding exists between Great Britain and this country was left unanswered as week-end parliament temporarily halted the arms program hearing of the house naval affairs committee. Admiral William D. Leahy, chief of naval operations, refused to answer such a question in a public hearing on the grounds that "it is absolutely secret and vital to the interests and defense of this country."

Three days ago, however, Chairman Key Pittman, D., Nev., of the senate's foreign relations committee, said that he was certain the United States remained free of any understanding or agreement to consult with Great Britain in international affairs.

War Threatened
Sen. William E. Borah, R., Idaho, who warned that indications of an agreement with Great Britain had threatened a situation similar to that preceding the World war, and Sen. Hiram Johnson, R., Calif., and Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., have been particularly active in the campaign to force the administration to reveal its foreign policy.

La Follette said he was "unalterably opposed" to any coordinated policy of action between the United States and Great Britain, a position hinted by the refusal of Leahy to discuss such questions.

"Every time we vote on an appropriation bill we are voting a policy," La Follette said. "In the case of proposed appropriations for a larger navy the only difference is that we don't know what policy we are voting for, or against."

"Pig in a Poke"
"We are buying a pig in a poke—and a very expensive one at that," he said. "We are buying ourselves out of all of the worst problems here at home—problems which are by no means solved—and to throw our energies and our money into an increase in armaments. Why?"

"Whenever that question is asked we get a war scare wavered in our faces," La Follette said that an attempt had been made during the house hearing to create a war scare out of the huge warships—45,000 tons as compared with the usual 35,000 tons—which Leahy said he understood Japan was building.

Can't Defend Both Sides
"Why should it suddenly become necessary that the United States increase its fleet 20 per cent?" La Follette asked, pointing out that Great Britain also was engaged in a building program and that it had been reported that United States Naval Captain Royal E. Ingersoll, head of the war planning board, had conferred in London with officials of the British admiralty.

"They are resigning to force the United States being attacked on both the east and west coast simultaneously and even if we were likely to be proposed naval increase is nowhere near enough to protect both coasts at once."

LINCOLN DISTRICT COURT CONVENES

SHOSHONE, Feb. 5 (Special)—District court was called Thursday morning with Judge Doran H. Sullivan on the bench. The docket was particularly heavy, and the criminal actions are at a minimum, with but three or four of lesser interest being on the calendar. The first of them, State vs. "Doc" L. E. Morton, involving an auto removal on an embezzlement charge was dismissed on motion of County Prosecutor George Haddock. The remaining cases will be set after arraignment or other disposal by attorneys interested in the action. The civil list is medium and Judge Gutphen stated that they will be set for trial within the next two or three days. The jury list will be called about Feb. 14, and naturalization matters will go over until March 3. Judge Gutphen returned Wednesday forenoon, where he presided aided for the judge of that district. The court expressed a desire that matters be speeded up as much as possible, owing to the fact that an early farming season appeared probable, and it was highly desirable to facilitate court business because of the fact in the selection of jurors and witnesses.

Whale, Trapped in 'Frisco' Bay, Menace to Navigation SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 5 (UP)—Lookouts took the towline in the bay. "The star blowhole" resounded across San Francisco bay today while a 60-foot whale splashed about the Golden Gate, a hazard to trans-bay navigation. The whale, described by mariners as very old but not so very fat, was trapped in the bay because it had lost the sense of direction accredited to its breed, and could not find its way back to the Golden Gate, the only outlet to the bay. "Crazy as a loon." "She" covered with barnacles and crazy as a loon," said Capt. Louis L. Lane, an old-time whaler and now pilot aboard a Norwegian liner. "Her place in a ferry or a tug that happened to foul her. They'll sometimes ram a ship when they're lost like that." The marine department of the chamber of commerce has been receiving reports of the whale for some time. Warnings to small craft were posted and lookouts on the crowded ferries that ply the bay were advised to be alert.

Country Needs Moral Before Economic Recovery—Landon CHICAGO, Feb. 5 (UP)—Mr. Landon, former Kansas governor and Republican presidential candidate in 1928, said today that the nation must have moral recovery before there can be an economic recovery. "No church or its colleges or hospitals should lay down on paying honest debts," Landon said. "We have already suffered seriously from our failure in financial matters. "Furthermore, how can we expect our ministers to furnish the right kind of leadership when we under-pay them." He suggested the consolidation of churches in communities where there are too many churches or where they are too close together, duplicating each other's efforts. "You remember," he said, "that there is a subject that rises above our most serious economic and social questions and that is the fundamental character of the people which in a democracy is the cornerstone upon which everything else rests."

POPLARS ARE THE FASTEST GROWING AND THE SHORTEST LIVED OF ALL TREES, WITH AN AVERAGE SPAN OF ONLY 10 TO 15 YEARS!

The SEQUOIAS HAVE THE LONGEST LIFE EXPECTANCY.

Poplars, in their prime, grow six to seven feet in a single season, but they have only a few seasons to live. Many of the big trees of California are known to be several thousand years old, and, under the protection they now receive, it is possible that some of them will reach an age of 10,000 years.

NO PAPER TODAY

Here's what would happen if your newspaper ceased publication

On Saturday, January 22, all Portland newspapers suspended publication because of conditions over which the publishers had no control. For five days Portland was without a newspaper . . . 325,000 residents were starved for news . . . business slumped through the lost stimulation of advertising . . . the forceful buying power of the families of over 8,700 printers and allied tradesmen was lost because of an enforced idleness.

Every community is like the city of Portland in such a situation. A city without a newspaper is stunned definitely by its absence. The lifeblood of the community would stagnate in the idle melting pots of the publishing firms. Its population could not conduct its various businesses without the aid of daily newspapers.

And in such an emergency, no other mediums proved they could rise to the occasion. No other organization was capable of gathering and disseminating news . . . no other organization was prepared or capable of handling the mass of advertising merchants found necessary to their business. In short, any city, without a newspaper would be destined to the same fate as Portland: a lifeless mass of humanity, buildings and businesses.

The moral of Portland's experience is that we often take for granted the advantages offered by the big, widespread organization of newspapers. A peep into the possibilities reveals that your business, without a newspaper, would suffer . . . as would progress, public intelligence and enterprise. It proves that it is wise to read, use and appreciate your newspaper, and realize that your newspaper brings you a satisfaction and return for every dollar spent in your pursuit of happiness and success in business. Your newspaper deserves your support!

Imagine yourself a resident of a community in which all newspaper publication had been suspended. No paper to greet you, you would go to your business or about your housework without the satisfaction of knowing the happenings of the hour. You'd be isolated from knowledge of world events.

In Portland thousands of husbands grouched through their early meals because they missed the companionable company of their newspaper. They missed their favorite news . . . outcomes of fights . . . what the market was doing . . . what political leaders were thinking. Local events went unheralded with only skimpy crowds in attendance . . . community enterprise came to a standstill because of the lack of usual publicity.

And, in the evening, those husbands returned from businesses which had been dull, to a home that was paperless. Evenings were spent without usual perusal of the day's happenings. All that any member of the household could learn was the distorted facts which rampant gossip brought them . . . via the backyard fence route . . . or street corner conversation. Portland was, for the moment, a bewildered city.

Youngsters and oldsters, alike, bemoaned their missing companions of the "funnies." No "Boots" . . . no "Amly Gump" . . . no "Alley Oop" . . . these personable members of the daily newspapers' families were lost for five long dreary days. Every member of the thousands of Portland families felt this loss, for unknowingly all had begun to count these characters a part of their daily life.

And finally business suffered untold losses as bargain events for the first of 1938 failed miserably to draw due to a lack of advertising. Purchasing fell to a new low as housewives refused to venture into downtown stores without advisement of the various values being offered. No other medium would serve the purpose of newspapers for advertising . . . and merchants learned they needed newspaper advertising as much as a front door to their store.
