LABOR LEADER CLAIMS CIO OFFICIALS ARE COMMUNISTS

FREY SAYS 400 MEMBERS RETAIN STATUS IN PARTY

By RUSSELL TURNER WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—John P. Frey, powerful American Federation of Labor leader, charged today that 400 officials of the rival John L. Lewis committee for Industrial organization were Communists or had Communist connections.

CIO Director John Brophy, Francis Gorman, international president of the United Textile Workers; Morris M. Foster, president of the United Furniture Workers; Joseph Curran, president of the National Maritime Workers Union; and the American Maritime Union of the Pacific and Michael J. Quill, president of the Transport Workers, were among those named by Frey.

The short, balding leader of the metal trades department argued in his testimony that Communism made no headway in the United States while the A. F. of L. was unrivaled as a labor organization, but that after Lewis formed the C. I. O. the Communists were able to get a foothold.

Frey placed in the record documents which, he asserted, proved membership in the United States Communist party. Among them were Curran and Bridges. He charged the latter was a member of the party under the name of "Harry Dorgan."

Replying to a question by Rep. Joseph P. Kamp, Frey said the evidence has been submitted to the labor department in connection with its recent investigation of Bridges.

He charged that William Gebert, a member of the central committee of the Communist party, had been active in the CIO's campaign to organize steel workers and that Gebert has office space in the office of Philip Murray, chairman of the CIO.

Frey assailed the Communist party's religious policies and added: "The party is active in the New York City in May, it was decided to increase the membership by enrollment of members of the Roman Catholic church, particularly those of the working class."

Frey asserted that the party also was making overtures to members of Protestant religions. He exhibited a group of posters which he said had come from Russia to prove his contention that the party was actually opposed to all religion. He quoted from numerous speeches of Communist leaders in Russia.

CARROLL GUILTY IN MAINE CASE

(From Page One) layed the news to his former colleague, Deputy Sheriff Robert Millett, who was guarding him. Barbara's romance with young Dwyer indirectly motivated the murder of Dr. Littlefield last Oct. 13. When "Buddy" suffered remorse for having seduced Barbara, he testified she told him that she had been seduced before by her own father. Dwyer passed on this confidence to Dr. Littlefield and the physician threatened to expose Carroll. Carroll in a rage bludgeoned and strangled him.

No Comment When she returned home from the show, Barbara handed reporters a scrawled statement.

"I have no comment other than to say that in view of the evidence submitted by the state, I couldn't see how the verdict could be other than not guilty."

Two Votes Place Boland on G. O. P. Justices' Vote

Because he received two votes on the Republican primary ticket, H. M. Boland was the second G. O. P. nominee today for justice of the peace in Twin Falls. Boland's two votes were exactly one more than Democrat Guy T. Swope received on the Republican ticket. Swope, however, was nominated on the Democratic ticket. Second on that side was Republican Mr. Holler.

BOSTON, Aug. 13 (Special)—Impressive last rites were conducted yesterday at the Methodist Episcopal church here by Rev. I. S. Motz, pastor of the Pler Methodist church.

Lots of Gears On This Bike

A bicycle with two gear shifts, one connected directly to the pedals and the other to the rear hub, two underdrives, two normal and one overdrive is making its appearance on the streets of Twin Falls and causing no little comment among cyclists.

The bicycle was constructed by "Smoot" Gloystein, operator of the Gloystein cycleery, and according to the owner, is especially suitable when the matter of changing hills is possible. Another feature of the wheel is the absence of pedal brakes. Rather, the brakes are operated from the handlebars. Both gear shifts are mounted on the frame of the bicycle.

"LEG ART" RETAINED AT SAN FRANCISCO'S FAIR

Seen Today

Small boy running down Main avenue and almost knocking elderly man's cane out from under him. "When are these all-over-the-house guests of ours leaving?" George Buhler in a child's high-chair (standing up) to avoid awing in front of his cafe. David Evans, Salt Lake, remarking about Amalgamated's new Nysa sugar factory: "There's nothing like it in the west." Ronald Graves showing the gold and silver swimming and diving medals for winners and runners-up in All-Idaho swim championships here next week-end. And motor cars parked down town with radiator shells blanketed by thousands of white bugs.

The theme girls, according to the publicity department posted and said they would demonstrate. Thereupon, they painted some signs which said: "This fair is unfair to the fair sex." "Exposition theme girls out on a limb. What a legacy." Conkik, the publicity department said, told the girls to come back to work today prepared to pose, legs and all, for press photographers. There will, the publicity department announced, be a resumption of theme girl pictures of the type to which the public and the press are accustomed.

U. S. MARINES ARREST JAPANESE IN SHANGHAI INCIDENT

3 MEN MENACE CHINESE PEOPLE IN SETTLEMENT

By Robert Bellhaye
 SHANGHAI, Aug. 13 (Special)—United States Marines today arrested and subdued three Japanese army special service operatives whom they found threatening Chinese civilians with pistols in the American marine sector of the international settlement.

Two of the Japanese officers were handed over to Japanese military authorities with a demand that they be punished. The third, released on parole, was arrested for the injuries he received in the incident, visited his parole and escaped.

The Japanese operatives in what approximates an army secret service, were demanding that Chinese civilians hand down Chinese flags, display them on their premises and the first anniversary of the start of the battle of Shanghai—the first mass defense that a Chinese army offered the Japanese in the war.

Arrest Three
 Municipal police arrested three Japanese operatives who were threatening Chinese civilians elsewhere in the settlement.

Later French police arrested six Japanese who were similarly threatening Chinese in the French concession, trying to force them to take down Chinese flags, and also were scattering anti-foreign leaflets.

It was believed the Japanese are handing out Japanese passports.

American, British and French authorities were so angry over the incident and the anti-foreign leaflets by Japanese airplanes and men in the streets, that they were understood to be drafting a statement asserting that, though they were doing all they could to preserve order in the international settlement, Japanese interference was jeopardizing their work.

Threaten Civilians
 The leaflet-bearers saw three armed Japanese in civilian clothes, threatening Chinese civilians in the Robinson road, Sergt. Milton C. Marvin approached to investigate. The Japanese ran to an automobile which bore a license plate identifying it as belonging to the municipal defense corps.

Marvin and his men took the three Japanese to a marine car and drove them to a police station. There, one of the Japanese refused to leave the car. There was what was described officially as a scuffle, and the Japanese, battered and bleeding, left the car and entered the station without further objection.

Severely Injured
 The marines, finding that the Japanese who had been involved in the "scuffle" was severely injured, permitted him to go to a hospital on parole. He gave his word to return, the marines said. Marine authorities began negotiations with the Japanese authorities to hand over their prisoners. But when the injured man failed to return, the negotiations were suspended.

This afternoon, the marines finally handed their two remaining prisoners over to the Japanese army after a Japanese army officer had signed a formal receipt identifying them as members of the army special service branch.

With their prisoners, the marines sent to the Japanese authorities charges charging the three special service officers with disturbing the peace and menacing United States marines with firearms.

They demanded that the three Japanese be punished and that the punishment be reported to marine authorities.

TOTAL OF $5,759 HOG POOL GROSS

INSURANCE MEET STARTS MONDAY

Twin Falls insurance men will meet to discuss the subject of the annual convention of the Idaho State Association of Insurance Agents, scheduled for Monday and Tuesday.

Among those who have indicated definite intention to attend the party are Stuart H. Taylor, A. J. Peavey, Paul R. Thayer, Cecil Jones, W. G. Swain and John B. Robertson. Other delegations will be on hand from both north and south side towns in the Magic Valley. Robertson, with Clark Heiss, Jerome, has handled arrangements for the Sun Valley gathering.

Many of the south Idaho insurance men will attend Sunday's final performance of the Sun Valley Fiddlers.

Walter Bennett, counsel for the National Association of Insurance Agents, will be featured speaker at the two-day convention. W. A. Hartman, Union Pacific board chairman, will welcome the insurance men. Robertson will respond to Hartman's welcome.

The annual convention banquet will be held Monday evening with Joel Priest, special representative for Union Pacific, as toastmaster. Attendance will probably include up to 75 Idaho insurance men, 20 from Utah and approximately 25 branch managers, special agents and company men.

Labor Pay Called 'Beet Check Must'
 Workers in production, cultivating or harvesting of the 1938 beet crop must be paid in full before harvesters receive their 1938 federal sugar beet payments, according to word from state AAA officials to Ray D. Lincoln, secretary of the Twin Falls County Agricultural Conservation association.

Under the 1937 farm set-up, Lincoln said, it was possible because of "unusual circumstances" to deduct the unpaid 1937 wages from the federal benefit check going to the farmer.

The exception made last year, the secretary explained, was caused by the fact that the sugar act was late in passage and regulations as to wage requirements did not reach producers until many of the workers had drifted away.

Job's Bethel Has Ice Cream Social

Jerome, Aug. 13 (Special)—The Job's Daughters Bethel entertained at an ice cream social at the home of Mrs. Barbara Peterson Thursday evening. Feature of the event was the curb service, which proved to be very popular with a large majority of those attending.

The program during the social was instrumental duct, by Mrs. James Hartsborn and G. G. Flechtner; piano solo, Miss Beverly Rice; dance, Mrs. Elizabeth Smith; puppet show, Elaine Smith, Teresa Thorpe, Fred Burkhalter, Walter Burdick, Marjorie McVey, Viva Lee Nance and June Meyers.

The puppet show was directed by Miss Peggy Pyle. Miss Molly McMahon gave a dance followed by a duet sung by Margaret Wallington and Margaret Harbert with accompaniment by Miss Janice Freeman; Miss Dorothy Carlson played a piano solo.

The camp craft class is endeavoring to learn the principles of how to exist in a primitive environment. Handcraft classes are using the fundamental designs of nature objects in constructing practical and decorative articles for later use.

DENIED

The scheduled verbal fireworks that supposedly had "divided" Castleford into two "camps" failed to materialize at a board of commissioners hearing yesterday, and the board denied application of Alfred C. Tomlita for permit to run a dance hall and skating rink in the west end community.

The hearing had been set after supporters and objectors had registered their views with the commissioners.

Shortly after the board rejected the application, a financial backer of Tomlita arrived to request withdrawal of the dance hall application.

No one showed up for the hearing.

HAYWIRE HOUSE

BY EDWIN RUTT

The Gentleman in the Third Row

CHAPTER I
Kentworthy & Kentworthy,
Attorneys-at-Law,
Winstock, Connecticut,
Aug. 8, 1938.

Mr. Kinkaid Parker,
The Yale Club,
Vanderbilt Avenue & 44th St.,
New York City.

Dear Sir:

This letter will notify you that under the terms of the last will and testament of the late Mrs. Martha Preston of Winstock, Connecticut, you have been named joint residuary legatee of her estate to share a one-half interest.

At this time I think I may safely say that the residuary estate of all expenses and specific bequests have been paid, will consist of your late aunt's home in Winstock.

Kindly communicate with this office at your earliest convenience. Very truly yours,
Caleb King Kentworthy,
Esquire.

For a moment Mr. Kinkaid Parker started wondering at the letter. Then he emitted a feeble bleat, tottered to a chair and sank into it. And the world began to go around like a pinwheel.

From the welter of confusion that up until two minutes ago had been Kinkaid Parker's mind two facts stood out as clear as day. His maternal aunt, Mrs. Martha Preston, was dead and (b) she had left him a half-interest in her property.

For the second part of the double phenomenon was even more baffling. For 10 years Kinkaid had not seen Mrs. Martha Preston and had seldom heard her name. He did not know the reason for that. Mrs. Preston had never approved of Sylvester Kinkaid Parker, Kinkaid's late father. Sylvester Parker had been fast motor cars and an unquenchable ability to get rid of money. During the lifetime of Kinkaid's mother, Mrs. Preston, she had hated Sylvester Parker as an unavoidable evil. But when Mrs. Parker died in Kinkaid's early adolescence, the breach became complete. And when Sylvester had taken carless leave of this world two years ago, while exercising his penchant for fast motoring on a wet Long Island road, it never occurred to Kinkaid to look up his aunt. Wherefore the fact that she had mentioned him in her will seemed little short of a miracle.

MIRACLE was right, thought Kinkaid. He was remembering that he had been out of a job for over seven months. He had been the securities house for which he'd worked since leaving college had quietly folded a week before last. He had never occurred to Kinkaid to look up his aunt. Wherefore the fact that she had mentioned him in her will seemed little short of a miracle.

He had been the securities house for which he'd worked since leaving college had quietly folded a week before last. He had never occurred to Kinkaid to look up his aunt. Wherefore the fact that she had mentioned him in her will seemed little short of a miracle.

He had one foot in the kitchen and was about to place the other beside it when there came a surprised cry.

his hat languished. Two hours later Mr. Kinkaid Parker impinged himself upon the village of Winstock, Connecticut.

Winstock, Connecticut, appeared to have been asleep. It layed in dreamy ambleness under the sun of the noonday. There was a cluster of stores, a cluster of houses, a three-story movie theater and a filling station. Even as he walked the short distance from the train to the main street, Kinkaid sighted his goal. A faded sign just over the drugstore read:

Kentworthy & Kentworthy
Attorneys-at-Law

Kinkaid crossed the main street arousing only a passing interest from a group of local buttermilk men at the corner. Perceiving a door which obviously led to Kentworthy & Kentworthy he entered the building and went up a flight of stairs. At the head of them he found the attorney's office. The door was locked.

He knocked, discreetly at first, then with vigor. Nothing happened. He took off his hat, banged it on the door and knocked again. Still no one answered. Baffled, Kinkaid returned to the street.

A nondescript gentleman was leaning against the drugstore occasionally moaning the curb with tobacco juice.

"Can you tell me," Kinkaid inquired, "where I can find Mr. Caleb Kentworthy?" His office seems to be closed."

"Caleb Kentworthy?" he said. "Always goes home for a bite to eat about this time. He lives in the back of the house. He'll be back?" Kinkaid asked.

The nondescript individual coughed, profoundly.

"But three o'clock, I expect," he decided finally. Cate always lays down for a nap after his dinner."

Kinkaid had a sudden brainwave. "How do you get to Mrs. Martha Preston's place?" he asked the tobacco-chewing orator.

THE directions were simple. Kinkaid walked half a mile out

Behind the Scenes In Washington

By RODNEY DUCHER
Evening Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13—Every Washington correspondent expects everyone he meets to ask—or tell him—their standpoints on Roosevelt will seek a third term. He expects this because, for some weeks, no one has failed to do so.

Each of these (this writer) sayeth as follows:

1. Roosevelt may have said something about it to Mrs. Roosevelt. The other person in whom he might have confided, Louis Howe, is dead. Frequently he has indicated he prefers to quit after two terms. He has discussed a third term with any living person—from the standpoint of running again—"under certain circumstances." He has indicated he is ailed. And this is a surprising low-opped town.

2. Republicans, anti-Roosevelt Democrats and staunch New Dealers—including F. D. R.'s intimate entourage—believe the President probably will be a third term candidate. It is significant and important. It is and will be in the background of many major moves and public utterances.

3. Each of these three groups is sure the best strategy is to bully-ho the likelihood of a Roosevelt candidacy. F. O. P. Chairman Joseph P. Kamp, anti-New Deal Senator Ed Burke of Nebraska and Governor New Deal senators and governor—keep bringing it up.

4. Republicans, anti-Roosevelt Democrats and staunch New Dealers term believe this will incite antagonism to Roosevelt.

5. Anti-administration Democrats talk third term in order to solidify intra-party opposition to Roosevelt—or a hand-picked successor—pending the 1940 Democratic national convention.

6. Top flight New Dealers want everybody to discuss third term. hoping what they call "sensational headlines" will be dispipated by 1940. After a period of whooping and shouting, they hope, the issue will be considered from a "cold practical" standpoint and those for Roosevelt now—and they see a majority—will want Roosevelt again.

TRACING CONVERSION
The last viewpoint is especially interesting because it is that of Roosevelt's own close buddies. Conversion of this group is interesting. Its members are for a third term, not because they want Roosevelt or anyone else to serve a third term, but because "they see no other way out" if New Deal policies are to be carried on. As they see it, no other New Dealer has a real shot at the presidency.

Contributing to their "conversion" was the gradually demonstrated weakness of Senator Alben Barkley, a worthy Roosevelt successor, but resurgent conservatism in the Democratic party indicated "no other way out," briefly, a fair-haired boy with the White House inner circle in the search for a 1940 nomination, showed no strength as a senate leader, preferred compromise to battle the hard troops) and had to be bailed out by Roosevelt in his Kentucky campaign against the more popular "Happy" Chandler.

Roosevelt told his lieutenants to promote Robert H. Jackson, now solicitor general, for New York's Democratic gubernatorial nomination. But when nearly all New York Democratic machine politicians—including Jim Farley, talked Roosevelt into endorsing the support for Jackson. Whether he could have forced New York Democracy to nominate Jackson for nomination is debatable. # The Family Doctor

By DR. MORRIS FISBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Chicago, the Health Magazine

The human being is normally slightly alkaline in his reaction. The secretions of his stomach are rarely normally acid. When they are, it is called indigestion, or, if severe, diabetes, Bright's disease, or poisoning of one kind or another, and that he is really in a serious condition.

The normal man's digestive secretions are seldom highly acid. However, there are instances in which the secretions of the stomach associated with digestion are more acid than usual.

The stomach secretes hydrochloric acid and pepsin for digesting proteins. When the amount of free hydrochloric acid in the stomach is higher than normal, the condition is called hyperacidity.

Even in normal persons there are great differences in the amount of free hydrochloric acid that is poured into the stomach. It is said that about 4 per cent of people do not have any hydrochloric acid in their gastric juice, and that as many as 10 per cent of people have less than the average.

Therefore, while an excess or a slightly diminished amount of hydrochloric acid in the gastric juice may be considered as of interest, it is not necessarily a symptom that something very serious is wrong and that something ought to be done about it.

Usually excess acid in the stomach is associated with excessive food, excessive worry, imperfect choice of food, overindulgence in tobacco or alcohol, in spices or other unusual foods. It is also associated sometimes with the presence of ulcers of the stomach, or other serious conditions. Cereals and vitamin A are called "reflex acids" because they stimulate the flow of gastric juice. In relationship to such stimulation there may be at first excessive acid in the stomach, but later the acid is exhausted or a complete absence.

Sometimes there is a change in the acid content of the gastric juice in the course of the day, due to its fluctuations of the gall bladder. These are called reflex effects.

Before doing anything, however, about excess acid in the stomach, it is well to consult a doctor to find out the extent of the excess and whether or not anything ought to be done about it.

If it is well established that people with such conditions may be improved by lessening the amount of acid salt in their diets, since the hydrochloric acid is developed from mineral found in table salt. It is also well in such cases to exclude from the diet all powerful stimulants to excessive secretion of hydrochloric acid.

In any disturbance of the gastrics it is urged that the patient use bland and non-irritating food substances.

Need for Teamwork

One of the tough things about our modern world is the fact that it is getting to be so hard to tell good news from bad.

The U. S. weather bureau, for instance, reports the long period of drought seems to be over—for the time being, anyway—and that for several years to come we ought to have plenty of moisture.

The weather seems to run in long-range cycles. There was a bad drought period extending through the first half of the '90s. After that the country as a whole had decent weather until 1909, when there was another drought. Then there was another good spell until about 1930; then six abnormally dry years—we began to hear about the dust bowl, and people started wondering if some of our western grain areas hadn't better be turned back to buffalo grass permanently.

Now we are told this last bad dry spell was just a dry spell, after all, and not a permanent climate change. Possibly we won't have to evacuate large areas, with the tragedy of ruined farms and homeless families.

That ought to be classified as good news, certainly. But before we get too jubilant we might as well note that this good news will bring bad news in its train.

Plenty of moisture will mean bumper crops. Bumper crops will mean bigger and bigger export surpluses—which, in turn, will mean lower prices for farm produce. And if all of this works out as it did before, we may very well get into another era of declining agricultural purchasing power, which would eventually bring us another industrial slump, which—

Well, we may finally acquire enough wisdom to break up that vicious circle and make abundance a blessing rather than a problem.

But there is no very dependable sign that we have that wisdom now, and the way the department of agriculture is continuing to worry about substitutes for the old AAA crop-restriction programs makes it look as if we may be a long time in getting it.

Which, in turn, means that what ought to be a bit of very good news may yet prove to be an extremely mixed blessing.

The farm problem certainly ought to be simpler when nature smiles than when nature scowls. If it isn't the fault can't be one's or our own. Now that nature seems prepared to do her part again, it's time that we learned how to do ours.

ELECTION RESULTS DEPT.

The J. Homer Beupulp returns are coming in slowly but surely from the primary election.

Our Pol. State vote canvassers dug around a little and discovered: J. Homer Beupulp, in addition to the 150 per cent New Deal, for governor, collected two votes in the Twin Falls No. 2 precinct. Those Beupulp votes were (a) For congress, and (b) for the county superintendent.

Also, we're glad to report, discrediting the winner of "Cag" Bringer, who says he is considering a partnership with Beupulp Bringer's votes this time were in support of the county superintendent.

And then he remembered something very nice. Whatever it was, palace or hotel, he had only a half interest in it.

Heir to an estate? Visions of grandeur swept into Kinkaid's mind. And since he knew nothing of his Aunt Martha's affairs, he was able to entertain them royally.

Don't Be Frightened

Sometimes it's really not worth while at all to try to look closely at the future—even the immediate future, when that appears to be clear as crystal. The risk you run of becoming desperate is too high, and as often as not what appears to be clear as crystal isn't so at all.

Particularly is this so in the matter of women's styles. What seems to be the logical conclusion of a trend almost never pans out that way. And many wise people who don't take stock in crystal-gazing are banking on that habit secretly just now.

For that trend toward the evening gown in night-dresses and that trend toward the nightdress in evening gowns appear to be holding its own, according to word from the fashion previews, and on top of it come the pajamas that look, not like pajamas, but like evening gowns that look like nightdresses.

From here it looks as if the next step would be to have evening gowns that look exactly like pajamas, and that don't look at all like evening gowns, and that would be the final step to plunging the slow-witted male into a confusion from which he might never emerge. The social blunders inherent in such a situation are too appalling to think about.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

By William Ferguson

WITHOUT THE MOON, MANY OF THE WORLD'S GREAT HARBORS WOULD BE USELESS, SINCE THERE WOULD BE NO TIDES OF IMPORTANCE.

BABY KANGAROOS HAVE LONGER FORELEGS AND SHORTER HIND LEGS. THE UNITED STATES, IT IS ESTIMATED, WILL REACH ITS POPULATION PEAK IN 1950, WITH 150,000,000 PERSONS.

ANSWER: Right. A kangaroo's forelegs are longest at birth. Many important harbors of the world depend upon the tide to give them enough water to float the larger ships... and the moon, aided a bit by the sun, causes the tides.

FTR Sets Radio Address on 3rd Anniversary of Social Security Act

PRESIDENT WILL TALK MONDAY ON WIDE NETWORKS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 13 (AP)—President Roosevelt is expected to give a radio address in observance of the third anniversary of the social security act.

He will speak for 15 minutes over a nationwide network Monday night at 9:30 p. m. (EST). Although the subject of the address was not announced, great significance was attached to the fact that it will follow by four days his "purge" of two southern anti-New Deal Democratic senators.

It was indicated privately, however, that his remarks would be non-political, that he probably would speak in connection with the objectives of the social security act—keynote of his reform program and elaborate his views on spreading the wealth to all at the bottom of the economic ladder and on providing more security for those unable to care for themselves.

"No Accident"

Asked if the new transatlantic streamer record built up by his ship, the Queen Mary, was planned or accidental, Commodore Robert H. Irving, pictured above with his victory smile, said: "We never do anything by accident." The Queen's record for the westward crossing of 4,208 2/3 hours and 48 minutes clipped an hour and fourteen minutes off the record previously held by her rival, the French liner Normandie.

VACATION CAMPS LURE FOR 2,461

Enrollment in the five vacation camps held thus far for Idaho farm and city women in 1938 has reached 2,461, Miss Margaret Hill, home demonstration leader, announced here today as final details were completed for the fourth central camp opening Monday.

Five camps have been held to date. Largest enrollment was 600 at the Idaho Springs where 2,000 eastern Idaho women attended a three-day outing.

The fourth central camp at Eastley last week Aug. 15-17 will be last in the 1938 series. None of the camps has been under 200 in registration, and the fourth central camp is expected to draw between 200 and 300. Approximately 175 were on hand last year.

Women who wish to attend, and who have not yet signed up, may do so at the camp itself Monday, Miss Hill said.

The camp program of talks by prominent speakers, outdoor entertainment, swimming and other sports, will be both inspirational and recreational.

MEXICAN TRAINS COLLIDE HEAD-ON

QUERETARO, Mexico, Aug. 13 (AP)—The American International "Sunshine Special" train collided head-on with an early today with the Mexican section of the same division. A number of Americans escaped serious injury.

Three peasants walking along the tracks were crushed to death. Many foreign travelers were aboard the southbound train but they escaped injury when all Mexican cars remained on the tracks. Among them were delegates to the city planning convention which opens in Mexico City on Sunday.

The accident occurred shortly after both trains had passed their sidings. First, unofficial reports said that there had been a mix-up in dispatchers' instructions.

(Theoretically, the "Sunshine Special" is owned by the Missouri Pacific railroad within Mexico, but now it is operated by the labor-managed National Railways—ENR.)

The engineer of the northbound train saw his brakes and jumped. His leg was broken. The engineer of the southbound train, remained at his post and suffered severe burns. Two baggage cars were smashed when they plunged over a steep embankment. Many federal troops in the coaches suffered cuts from broken glass.

IDAHO SPONSORS DAIRYING COURSE

MOSCOW, Aug. 13 (Special)—The special five months' course in practical commercial dairying sponsored by the Idaho dairy department of the University of Idaho for students interested in intensive training in the field of dairy management will open on October 17 and continue to March 10, announces Dr. D. R. Theophilus, head of the department.

The course is of non-college, vocational character. Students must be 17 years of age or over and preferably should have had eighth grade education. No tuition is charged. Certificates are granted to students who have successfully completed all of the work of the course and have been satisfactorily employed in dairy manufacturing plant for at least six months. The dairy department can accommodate 20 to 25 each year in this special course.

Phases of dairy manufacture included in the course are butter-making, cheese-making, dairy bacteriology, dairy calculations, dairy mechanics, dairy problems, refrigeration, factory tests, farm dairying, ice cream making, modern milk, milk production, solving dairy products, and subjects in the poultry industry.

Dr. Theophilus reports that of 100 graduates from this commercial dairying course in recent years, 80 have gone on in the dairy manufacturing field, while six entered the dairy production field, and four continued their work in the regular college course in dairy husbandry in the college of agriculture.

The dairy husbandry department has a publication describing in detail the work of the department which will be sent upon application.

FBI HUNTS PAIR OF DESPERADOES

WILTON, Ark., Aug. 13 (AP)—The federal bureau of investigation today marked Floyd Hamilton and Fred Walters, the latest of the long list of southwestern desperadoes, as the most sought criminals in the United States. Last night Hamilton and Walters boldly entered the Wilton Coca Cola plant, took $100 and fled in a stolen automobile.

Dwight Brantley, FBI agent in Kansas City, sent out a blunderbuss warning to officers, instructing them to kill likelihood the outlaw would surrender without a gun battle. From Washington came word from J. Edgar Hoover, chief of the bureau, to "get Hamilton and Walters."

Pair Exchanges Vows During Home Rites

WENDELL, Aug. 13 (Special)—Miss Mary Edwina and her husband, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Elderly of Teton Springs, and Leonard Lett, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Lett of Teton, were united in marriage in a pretty ceremony at the home of Mrs. Elderly yesterday afternoon, Aug. 12, with the Rev. J. H. Jones, pastor of the Methodist church, officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Charles M. Jones, pastor of the Methodist church, officiated at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Alice M. Harrison, making restoration of disputed premises and judgment for $400. The action is based on a lease for a house and lot in the Snyder tract, R. M. Angel, Fairfield, is counsel for the complainant.

WHEELER LASHES U. S. FARM CREDIT

BUTTE, Mont., Aug. 13 (AP)—Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, D. Mont., today pressed a protest to the federal farm credit bureau against the collection policy of the crop and feed loan bill.

The Montana senator also attacked, in an interview, the agricultural adjustment administration crop control policy and the farm act passed by the last congress as theoretically unsound and practically unworkable.

Urges Immediate Loans

The Montana farmer, in spite of bountiful crops, is not getting the cost of production, Wheeler said. He urged immediate wheat loans to farmers of the state and asserted that a permanent farm prosperity was impossible until the farm program is solved.

His telegram to farm credit bureau officials in Washington, D. C., read in substance:

"They inform me that the crop loan office is demanding immediate sale of wheat so that loan indebtedness can be satisfied. This prevents the farmer from waiting for a more beneficial market and causes him to sell wheat at once on the existing low market.

"I am sure that the farmer would prefer to hold his crop for higher prices. The crop and feed loan policy seems to be working at cross purposes with the agriculture department."

Wheeler said that although he voted for the farm act, he did not approve of it now that it is in practice. He looked with disfavor on the entire crop program. He favors allowing the farmer to grow what crops he wishes, as he wishes, and protection of the home markets by enforcement of tariff laws "now on the statute books."

Dispelling the Fog

By CHARLES MICHELSON
Director of Publicity, Democratic National Committee

A little while ago the anti-administration newspapers were telling their readers that the Barkley-Chandler administration in Kentucky marked the crisis in the battle for or against the New Deal.

Some of them were satisfied that Governor Chandler had all the best of it until President Roosevelt came into the state and they gravely announced that Barkley himself would doubt whether the advent of the President would be helpful or harmful to his candidacy. There were many wise dissertations as to whether or not the New Deal would be a smashing repudiation of the President. A few days later the inquirer put it this way: "While it was a personal victory for the President, it was not an expression of the views of Kentucky for or against the New Deal since that issue was not raised."

Victory Only "Tactical"?

The New York Herald-Tribune, while admitting that "the President has escaped what would have been an abject defeat in the administration," goes on to say that "these advantages are all tactical; and though the President had a great deal to do with handling the situation in a way that would lead to a victory so far as the basic strategy of the situation is involved."

This theory—that if the New Deal candidate loses the administration has been dealt a staggering blow and if the New Deal candidate wins there is no significance to the victory—permeates the whole reaction to the primaries.

For instance, Senator Holt of West Virginia, one of the conspicuous "yes-but" senators, announced the congressional primaries in West Virginia "did not constitute a test of administration strength because the New Deal was not an issue." The same newspapers that carried the interview with the youthful senator also carried an Associated Press story, beginning "West Virginia's six New Deal congressmen won renomination."

Idaho Printer, Now Past 80, Viewed as Possible 'Champion'

Idaho might have an old-time printer who can win the national "championship" and the $1,000 that goes with handling the old-time paper for the Sacramento centennial in 1939, one Twin Falls man is quoted today.

Charles Jones of Idaho City, now well over 80 years of age, might be the man to capture the $1,000. In the opinion of James Fisher, Twin Falls, who knew Jones many years ago.

The aged printer formerly published the Idaho World at Idaho City, but now issues only pamphlets and smaller material. His two aged sisters can also set type.

The $1,000 is being offered for America's oldest old-time printer who sets type by hand. The winner will operate the Sacramento centennial newspaper.

LOYAL TROOPERS SUFFER SETBACK

HENDAYE, French-Spanish Frontier, Aug. 13 (AP)—Nationalists asserted today that two loyalist divisions which crossed the Segre River in northeastern Spain into insurgent-held territory had been driven back with tremendous losses.

They said they made a surprise counter-offensive which pushed the loyalists back across the Segre but that scores of them were drowned.

The new nationalist offensive coincided with loyalist reports that government troops, taking advantage of weakened nationalist lines in south-central Spain, started an attack against the insurgents between Castellon and Sagunto, on the eastern coast. Republican commanders were "satisfied with the developments" and were confident that France's offensive against Sagunto and Valencia could not get under way again at least until spring.

Returns to Wars

Repeating the ruse by which he became Chinese hero of the 1921 Manchurian war — obtaining arms, huge funds from the Japanese and then turning upon them — Gen. Ma Chuan-shan, above, is reported to have resumed war on the Japanese in Szechuan province near the Mongolian frontier. General Ma commands several divisions, besides 4,000 Manchukuo and Yonagot troops.

FHA EXECUTIVE IS FOUND DEAD

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13 (AP)—Walter C. Vibert, executive assistant director of the federal housing authority for northern California, was found dead on the floor of his hotel room early today. Police said there was evidence that a struggle had gone on in the room shortly before they were called by a hotel clerk.

The police said they were seeking a blond young woman who was seen to leave the hotel about the time a woman guest telephoned the clerk and said there was a struggle going on in a room above here.

A woman's purse was found on a table in the room. There were blood stains on the rug, the walls and leading to the door, the police reported.

Deputy Coroner Ray Brooks said Vibert may have died of a heart attack during a struggle.

A woman's purse contained a letter, the police said, which indicated the owner had recently been employed as a clerk-typist in the FHA.

LAMB SHIPMENT GETS $6.17 NET

Four carloads of lambs shipped out of Rogerson two weeks ago brought $6.17 net per hundredweight on full weight at point of shipment, County Agent Harvey S. Hale said today. Market slump, plus hot weather that caused high shrinkage, lowered the price.

Shipping cost was listed at $1.23 per hundredweight. Shrink was 3.2 per cent.

On full weight at Rogerson ewes netted $2.12.
