KING GEORGE LAUDS ROOSEVELT PART IN EUROPE PEACE

BRITISH MONARCH PRAISES LEADER OF U. S. IN TALK

LONDON, Nov. 4 (AP)—King George, in a message to parliament today, praised President Roosevelt's action in the Czechoslovak crisis as a powerful aid to the cause of peace and expressed hope that with the passing of the crisis a new era might have been opened in Europe.

The message, in which the king proffered or ended the present season of parliament in favor of the new session which starts next Tuesday, was read in the house of lords by the lord high chancellor, Lord Maugham, at a joint session.

The king traced the solution of the Czechoslovak crisis and in paying tribute to President Roosevelt for the messages he sent to Adolf Hitler and Benito Mussolini urging a peaceful solution said:

"The cause of peace was powerfully aided by the timely action of the President of the United States of America.

"The desire of all peoples not to be drawn into war with one another is manifest and significant, and everywhere men and women share with me, I am convinced, a feeling of deep thankfulness that the imminent peril was thus averted."

He said that with the passing of this peril a new era may have opened in Europe.

The king mentioned the airplane flights of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain to Berneseesees and with Hitler "in view of the increasing gravity of the crisis." Of the Godesberg visit September 22, he said:

"At this stage the prospect of peaceful settlement seemed almost to have vanished but at the last moment the prime minister made a proposal to the German chancellor for a four power conference.

"Signor Mussolini gave valuable support to the suggestion."

Then, speaking of the settlement which was reached at Munich, the king said:

General Czech Admiration

"The settlement thus arrived at was accepted with a dignity that has earned general admiration by the government and people of Czechoslovakia."

The king referred to the government's decision to make effective the British-Italian friendship agreement, as a prerequisite of which Great Britain will recognize Italy's conquest of Ethiopia. He expressed the cabinet's confidence that this action would further strengthen "the good relations already existing between Italy and this country."

Non-Intervention Policy

Regarding Spain, the king said that the government had maintained its efforts to make the non-intervention policy more effective. He welcomed the decision of the Spanish loyalist government to repatriate those foreigners who had been fighting for it and the decision of the nationalists "to dispense with a proportion of those on the other side."

Continuing, the king said: "I regret that hostilities between China and Japan still continue, with great loss of life to both combatants, and with considerable damage to the rights and interests of third parties. I earnestly hope that this conflict will be brought to an early termination."

Strictly Idaho Beet Quotas Higher Than 5-Year Average

MOSCOO, Nov. 4 (Special)—Based on acreage for strictly Idaho districts, the tentative beet acreage allotments for 1939 are actually 14 per cent higher than the average five-year planted acreage for 1934-38, it was emphasized today by H. L. Stafford, state executive officer of the AAA.

Data announced by Stafford offers a new angle on the matter of acreage allotments.

Causal observers are accustomed to the proposed tentative 1939 acreage figures for the Nysa, Ore. district with the proposed figures for the strictly Idaho districts. This prompts many Idaho sugar beet producers to believe that their 1939 sugar beet acreage is going to be substantially reduced.

Nysa is a special Under the sugar act, the Nysa district, where acreage in on the increase, presents a special problem which is now up for consideration by the Department of Agriculture. The Idaho growers who market beets in the Nysa district represent less than 10 per cent of the sugar beet acreage of Idaho. The Nysa problem is not the problem of the strictly Idaho sugar beet districts.

Here are the facts on acreage for the strictly Idaho districts: 1. For the strictly Idaho districts the tentative acreage allotments for 1939 are 14 per cent higher than the average five-year planted acreage for 1934-38. This five-year average planted acreage is 56,191 acres. For 1939, the proposed acreage is 64,104 acres.

About Same as 1938 2. For the strictly Idaho districts the proposed 1939 acreage allotments are practically the same as for 1938. For 1938 the figures is 64,104 acres, and for 1938 the figure was 66,972.

DOROTHY CALL Twin Falls, Nov. 3. Tribute to Jared A. Mercer I have been asked to take your time for a moment to think with me as I tribute to one of our finest educators and public servants ever to serve the south central Idaho district.

He served for 16 years as head of the Oakley high school, five years as a member of the village board, five years as mayor, and 16 years as pastor of his church. His life was completely dominated by the ideal of public service. Few, indeed, are there with a better record in this regard. We honor the memory of Jared Mercer most sincerely for his devotion to the welfare of others and the higher principles of Christian living.

Japan to Set Policy on Chinese Nine-Power Treaty

SPOKESMAN WILL COMMENT NOV. 10 ON FUTURE PLAN

TOKYO, Nov. 4 (Special)—Foreign Minister Hachijo Arita intends to make a statement of world importance Nov. 10 on the nine-power treaty which is supposed to guarantee China's political and territorial sovereignty, a foreign office spokesman disclosed today.

Coincidentally, the spokesman said, Japan expects to reply to a United States government note protesting arbitrary and illegal Japanese tactics affecting American interests in China.

In making his statement regarding the government's plan, the spokesman took occasion to comment that Japan considers the nine-power treaty obsolete.

He pointed out that Japan was considering a three-power substitute—including Japan, Manchukuo and China—because, as he put it, guarantee of China's integrity (by the nine powers) was inconsistent with China's independence.

General Situation

The foreign office spokesman's statement seemed to indicate that the declaration which Arita expects to make and the reply to the United States note would be complementary to each other and that they would also form part of the general situation presented by a government declaration of China policy and an official Japanese statement on this declaration by Prince Fumimaro Kono, the premier.

Japanese and foreign news indicated an early Japanese denunciation of the nine-power treaty which was negotiated during the Washington naval limitation conference of 1922.

There was nothing new in the comment of the foreign office spokesman today. He merely considers the nine-power treaty obsolete. The view is further advanced that Japan considers that various provisions of the treaty have rendered the treaty ineffective. The foreign office spokesman, in pointing out that Japanese view today, pointed out that when he was asked regarding the extent to which Japan's own violations of Chinese integrity had contributed to the decline of the treaty.

Validity Reasserted

The disclosure of the foreign office spokesman that Foreign Minister Arita expected to make a statement on the treaty Nov. 10 and at the same time reply to the American note came a few hours after the state department at Washington by means of a report from Special Ambassador Norman H. Davis regarding the Brussels nine-power treaty conference in November, 1927, reasserted the validity of the pact.

There was no indication whether Arita would discuss the treaty in the statement he expects to make Nov. 10, or repudiate the treaty in his reply to the United States note.

SHAKESPEARE DOUBTERS OPEN UP WRONG CASKET

LONDON, Nov. 4 (Special)—They opened the wrong grave in the poet's corner of Westminster Abbey—and so the historic Shakespeare literary mystery remains unsolved.

The attempt to prove, by digging into the tomb of poet Edmund Spenser, that Francis Bacon was the real author of William Shakespeare's dramas ended suddenly when the experts of the Baconian society decided that they had dug into the wrong tomb.

As a result, they abandoned their search for an original Shakespeare manuscript that might have solved the 160-year-old dispute. The dean of Westminster Abbey opposed further excavations.

Search for Casket

For three days the clang of spades had sounded in the famous abbey as workmen under direction of officials of the Baconian society, protected from public view by a huge canvas screen, searched for Spenser's casket.

The society had received permission for the excavations on the assurance that they might find the answer to the old mystery. They contended that famous literary figures of the day, including Shakespeare but not including Bacon, had dropped written tributes on Spenser's casket. If they could find the Shakespeare manuscript, they said, it would enable them to identify Shakespeare's handwriting and thus they might be able to end the dispute over the drama manuscripts.

No Skeleton

The dean's agreement with the society specified that no coffin should be opened, presumably in order to avoid unfavorable public comment. The entire project was carried out in great secrecy, with the workmen and their directors sworn not to talk.

A casket that experts first believed was Spenser's was found and, equipped with miner's lamps, the society experts made a detailed examination of it. After many hours of debate they decided that it was the wrong casket.

The experts found no skeleton in the coffin, which appeared to have been opened previously.
