

NAZIS DISCRIMINATE AGAINST U. S. CITIZENS, NOTE SAYS

AMERICA AWAITS REPLY REGARDING DEBT PAYMENTS

By HUBERT C. MONTELEONE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 24.—The United States, secured Germany's "well known" discrimination against American citizens today in a note suggesting that settlement of Austria debt would be facilitated by extension of the most favored nation treatment to American creditors.

The note, another in a series exchanged between the two countries, alleged discrimination against the rights and property of American citizens in Germany, was made available to the state department. It was delivered to the German minister of foreign affairs in Berlin Jan. 20 to be changed during the next few days.

Simultaneously it was announced that on Jan. 3, Germany delivered a note to the United States to negotiate the Austrian debt situation with a view to reaching down interest rates.

First Note
The first note regarding the Austrian debt was delivered to the German government by the U. S. ambassador on April 6, a few days after Germany's absorption of Austria.

The latest note said the United States "cannot accept" Germany's real interpretation that no obligation exists for it to assume the Austrian debt. It said the United States government, and declined the offer to enter direct governmental negotiations.

"Indebtedness toward private citizens is a matter for negotiation between debtor and creditor, rather than between the government of the debtor country and the government of the creditor," the note said.

The note also rejected Germany's contention that any payment for the Austrian debt would be linked to an increase of German exports to the United States. It doubted Germany's good faith in the matter of its official declaration of having no intention of discrimination against American citizens, and in the matter with which it has tried to reach a settlement.

U. S. Government Holds Bonds
The controversy involves $25,000,000 worth of Austrian government bonds held by the U. S. government; an undetermined total of the Austrian government international loan of 1930, and an undetermined amount of dollar bonds of Austrian political subdivisions and corporations held by American citizens or residents. Including the relief bonds held by the U. S. government the total is estimated at between $40,000,000 and $45,000,000.

Germany's note of Jan. 3, stated that arrangements for eventual payment on both the bonds held by the U. S. government and by American citizens must be predicated "on the premise that the foreign exchange necessary for the payments can be raised out of the excess of German exports to the United States." It was announced that the United States to a point where that would exceed American exports to Germany.

DEATH TOLL HIGH IN CHILE 'QUAKE

In early reports from Concepcion, 10 miles across the bay from Talcahuano, Unconfirmed reports said one-fourth of the business district was destroyed, and Talcahuano, a naval base, the could be seen burning in the city.

Railroad officials received advice that railroad communication was broken south of Linares, 170 miles south of Santiago, because the quake had spread rails.

In Quake's Path
Sixty provinces, Talca, Maule, Nuble, Concepcion, Biobio and Corral, with a total population of more than 1,000,000 people, lay in the earthquake zone.

As soon as the first shocks were felt here, electric clocks stopped at 11:24 p. m., officials of the ministry of interior took their posts of duty and began the work of estimating the extent of the catastrophe and organizing relief work.

The first government action was preparation of the earthquake zone left Santiago at 5 a. m.

As soon as daylight came the work of organizing large relief expeditions was started.

Hitler Battles THREE CHURCHES

December, 1937. Since then, Kerl has been in a position to dismiss any Protestant minister.

The Nazis met against the Rev. Martin Niemöller, minister in Berlin and the leader of the confession movement in Berlin.

He was outspoken in his defense of the church and his position in a confession camp.

Substitution of Jews is one of the aims of Nazi policy. Jews have been ousted in Nazi propaganda as an "alien race" and as exponents of "world Bolshevism."

Jewish Restrictions
Anti-Jewish measures in the Third Reich include discrimination against Jews and Aryans.

Anti-Semitism reached a climax last November after a young Polish Jew shot and killed a German diplomat, Ernst vom Rath, in Paris.

During the night of Nov. 9, Jewish shops and apartments were wrecked, and Jewish synagogues burned. Subsequently, thousands of Jews were taken to concentration camps. A collective fine of $400,000-500 was imposed on German Jews, and new laws restricted their economic activities in the Reich.

Encouraged to Emigrate
The Reich's Jews and "non-Aryans" are encouraged to emigrate, but they face difficulties because many countries have closed their frontiers to immigrants, and because Nazi regulations prevent emigrants from taking their fortunes with them.

The Catholic church in 1933 strengthened its position by concluding a concordat with Hitler. This concordat guaranteed existence of Catholic religious institutions and other religious organizations, and Catholic religious instruction in the schools.

Subsequently, however, Catholic youth organizations were dissolved, and Catholic confessional schools abolished.

Protests by the pope and by the Catholic clergy in Germany further strained Nazi relations with the church.

SALABLE POTATO STOCKS DECLINE

BOISE, Jan. 25 (Special)—Reports from potato growers, dealers and buyers in the 37 late and intermediate states to the crop reporting board of the bureau of agricultural economics, indicate that merchantable potatoes available for sale on hand Jan. 1, 1939, totaled 102,502,000 bushels. This total is 11 per cent smaller than the 112,185,000 bushels on hand Jan. 1, 1938, and four per cent smaller than the five-year (1933-37) average stocks of 108,369,000 bushels.

Jan. 1 stocks in the 18 surplus late states are estimated to have been 22,845,000 bushels, compared with 105,376,000 bushels a year earlier, in the 12 other late states, 5,911,000 bushels compared with 5,649,000 bushels last year, and in the seven intermediate states, 2,050,000 bushels, compared with 1,998,000 bushels on hand Jan. 1, 1938.

Favorable season. The 1938 growing season in the 37 late and intermediate states, was for the most part, favorable for the production of potatoes. Although yields were above average for these states as a group, the crop in some sections received severe setbacks during the latter part of the growing season. Attacks of late blight in the New England states, New York, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin reduced yields and have caused considerable loss in storage.

In Idaho, many winter potatoes were frozen by low temperatures at harvest. Prolonged damage in Montana, Wyoming and Colorado resulted in a heavy acreage abandonment and sharply lower yields.

With the exception of these areas, the crop in most sections was characterized by better-than-average yields. For the 37 late and intermediate states as a whole, yields in 1938 averaged 129.4 bushels per acre, compared with 130.8 bushels in 1937 and the 1927-36 average of 114.6 bushels per acre.

An analysis of utilization of the 1938 crop indicates that sound and ruff potatoes fed to livestock, and those lost through catabolism, decay and chilling, prior to Jan. 1, 1939, totaled 28,248,000 bushels, or 8.5 per cent of production in the 37 late and intermediate states. Last year, 26,929,000 bushels, or 7.6 per cent of production, were accounted for in this way.

Fewer potatoes were used for livestock feed prior to Jan. 1 this year than last.

Referring to a recent dinner given in New York he said but two items only on the menu were not Idaho products, and that was because they were unavailable. He mentioned that French fried Idaho potatoes and onions were a regular part of the Sun Valley table card.

The attendance at the resort was counted with sufficient snow to afford the skiers plenty of amuse.

Ever Been Fired?

Dear Potito:

Got to wondering about the various types of folks in this world of ours.

The more I investigated the matter, the more I figured you Potito, family could be interested.

So let's take the matter of "Ever Been Fired?"

The blunt businessman would write it: "Your services are no longer required."

The considerate businessman: "Because of circumstances beyond my control, I regret to inform you your services will not be needed after Saturday. Your check will include two weeks advance pay."

The busy employer: "This hurts me very much but I won't be able to keep you after Saturday. Your work has been excellent and I recommend you to anybody. And I hope the wife and kiddies won't starve."

The newspaperman: "This rag can't afford to keep you on your salary. Here's a bottle of Bourbon to speed you on your way."

The politician: "Because of extreme pressure from powerful sources, I am forced to let you go Saturday. However, you can believe me when I say I'll fight your cause to the end and may be able to induce those sources to believe that your very good work overbalances their objections."

The ambassador: "While you may regret this as a personal matter, your connections with my office, I can assure you it is only a temporary cessation of official duty on your part. The exigencies of the situation may conceivably become somewhat ameliorated in the near future, in which case I am sure you will find this hiatus in your relationship immediately alleviated."

The farmer: "Spud prices are lousy. You ain't working here any more."

NO TIME TO MARRY

BY ELINORE COWAN STONE

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

CHAPTER IX

MARGY opened the door, and came back into the dining room, closely followed by Barney

McKnight.

"I hope I'm the first of my tribe," he began grimly. "Mrs. McKnight, I'd like to help you and Janet handle this if you'll let me."

"You mean about Cynthia?"

"Then you've heard?" Janet asked.

"Every newspaper in town has the essentials—that they were married by the parson of that little all-night church off the square, with a special license

of Benton's wangled for them."

"That Janet thought, was one thing that had not occurred to Cynthia to tell her.

"What the papers are all going to want," Janet was going on,

"is the heart-throb of you know,

the kobs of the heart-throb grand grandmother and the homicidal friend of the little love of the

"Oh, Barney, I hope you're not going to be dragged into this,"

Janet cried.

"Forget it! The important thing is that you and your aunt must be bounded by reporters all day

Now, I'm not asking anything exclusive for the News. My idea was that we might cook up a simple announcement of the wedding, signed by Mrs. McKnight, to be passed out to all comers."

"But that's not even as much as she did for Barney McKnight."

"Lance," Janet said, nettled as

she always was by Cynthia's

sniping, "I don't like you to go to a funeral you speak that way about my cousin. Any-

how, how do you know?"

"For a moment he stood staring at her as if she had said something that he had never heard before. Then his brows undered, and he was his usual engaging self.

"Don't let's quarrel, Jan," he cried. "Of course what worries me about the whole thing is the annoyance it's bound to subject you to. And you must admit it's a little embarrassing just before our wedding."

After they had selected the pages, Janet turned off on her dizzy round for the day—a fitting visit to Mr. Bryant's office, the luncheon at Sylvia Grant's house, a call on Mrs. McKnight somehow—and then supper with Lance downtown.

When she put down her bag at her dressing room, she realized that she was still carrying the copy of the Bulletin which Lance had put into her hand. She folded it and put it with the rest of her things.

Barney made copies for all the

of his papers.

"Have Margy deal them out at the door," he advised, "just to show there's no hitch in the hard-worked press. Aside from that, Mrs. McKnight has nothing more to say."

"She definitely has not," confirmed Aunt Mary grimly.

"Janet had said off at once.

There were a myriad errands she had to attend to before her visit to Mr. Bryant's office. For one thing, she was to meet Lance at Stauter's to select the twin rings

they were going to use in the ceremony.

Lance did not see her when she first went into Stauter's. His brows were bent over the morning paper. When she spoke to him and he looked up, she was shocked

by the pale anger of the face he turned toward her.

"So this was what she ditched

McKnight," Lance said, thrusting

the paper into Janet's hands. "Of course I knew all along that never could you expect her to do that could Cynthia do anything so cheap and common as this?"

"I've never heard that there was anything like this," Janet said, a little about getting married," Janet said, trying to laugh.

SHE glanced at the paper—a copy of the Bulletin, the most tentativeness of the morning sheet.

It was all there in glaring headlines, with the name of Cynthia and Timothy Benton.

"You know what I mean,"

Lance said, thrusting the paper into Janet's hands. "She doesn't know what she's doing. She's been misled. She's been misled

as she did for Barney McKnight."

"Lance," Janet said, nettled as

she always was by Cynthia's

sniping, "I don't like you to go to a funeral you speak that

way about my cousin. Any-

how, how do you know?"

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25 (NEA) —

The prospect of a new cabinet is looking for a new economist. This may seem a matter of no moment to anyone, but it does have some public significance.

Nothing is more ambiguous or even dubious now than the role of the economist in business. Large manufacturing concerns employ engineers, accountants, lawyers. They hire them to advise them on engineering problems, accounting problems, legal problems. When they hire them they want the truth from them.

But economists have seemed to play a different role in business.

There are some economic factors which business concerns ought to be advised about, but the average large scale business man regards himself as quite an economist.

Famed Operatic Numbers Heard By Department

Opera was born when a group of Florentine entertainers sought to revive Greek drama, which they sang as monotonous recitations. Mrs. D. L. Alexander, vice-chairman of the Fine Arts department of the Twentieth Century club, told an interested audience of 90 women who assembled at American Legion Memorial hall yesterday afternoon to hear an excellently presented operatic program.

Interpreting Mrs. Alexander's commentary on operatic and comic opera, a group of local musicians presented illustrative selections. Mrs. O. P. Duvall was accompanist for all of the numbers.

LUNCHEON FAVORITED AT VALENTINE MOTIF

Red carnations, red nut cups and other Valentine appointments made the luncheon at which Mrs. G. W. Gerrish entertained yesterday afternoon, an attractive event for members of the Sun-Bet club.

Mrs. Clara Parks and Mrs. G. W. Thompson won honors at cards. Mrs. Jennie Rinehart was a guest.

Southern Branch Inaugurates New Fashion College

It takes more than one straw to make a new dress to make a spring, and it takes more than a knowledge of that one stitch in time that's supposed to save nine, to make a dressmaker or fashion designer.

Fully aware of this fact is the Southern Branch of the Fashion College, which is now in session at the new fashion shop, College of Fashion, located in the basement of Swanson hall.

These are offered:

Shop management, fashion sketching, pattern drafting and cutting and fitting, and the most important of all, the cause, which is offered to either boys or unmarried girls over 16 years of age who want to enter one of the most fascinating of careers.

The second term starts Feb. 30 and registration days are Jan. 30 and 31.

This course is not merely dressmaking or sketching pretty frocks. It is a combination of the two skills plus certain theoretical knowledge and practical training, which will enable the student to produce any garment from the original idea of the finished creator.

That is the statement of Mrs. Crescentia Crandall, a native of Pocatello, who is instructor of the course.

Mrs. Crandall was graduated from Woodbury college, Hollywood. During her course in costume design at Woodbury's she was closely associated with the work of the famous Hollywood studio designers, Klack and Gray.

On Shop Basis

The school is run on a shop basis, in which atmosphere students learn how to operate their own shop, to manage it and to enter to the public, according to Mrs. Crandall.

The women of Pocatello and many of the university girls bring all their alterations and new garments to be made at this shop. The customer pays a small fee for the work done, to make it and to enter to the public, according to Mrs. Crandall.

SEASONAL THEME DISTINGUISHES LUNCHEON

The Valentine motif was featured in the cleverly appointed luncheon at which Mrs. Florence Eberick presided as hostess this afternoon at the Park hotel.

Sold in the form of Valentines on paper lace doilies repeated the decorative note in the menu, and a real floral arrangement was the attractive centerpiece.

Guests were members of the Hill bridge club. Contract was played by Mrs. Clara Parks and Mrs. G. W. Thompson won honors at cards. Mrs. Jennie Rinehart was a guest.

Queens of Ages At Rupert Ball

RUPERT, Jan. 25 (Special).—The local Green ball, sponsored annually by the Minidoka State Mutual Improvement Association of the L. D. S. church, was held Wednesday in the Y-Bel ball room.

A pleasant, interesting feature of the floor show given in connection with the ball, over 100 young people from the Minidoka State wards took part in it.

Throne of Splendor

An elaborate gold and green throne arranged under a vast canopy of gold and green provided a setting of splendor and magnificence for the procession of the queens and their attendants.

Show White, Queen of the Daisies, was represented by Miss Della Hoagland of the Rupert second ward. Ferrell Catmull was the prince escort.

Miss George Seamus of the Rupert third ward acted the part of the "Queen of Liberty" with Melvin Minor as escort. "The Grapes of Queens," entered by the Heyburn ward was represented by Miss Louise Hellewell with George Hellewell as escort. "The Spanish Queen" was impersonated by Miss Zola Boxer of the Paul ward. Vera Thomas was her escort.

Snow White Queen

Miss Della Hoagland, as "Snow White" was chosen queen of the ball and was crowned by L. D. Bates, First Counselor of Minidoka State.

Another attractive feature of the floor show was a special dance number, "The Gold and Green Caprice," presented by four couples, Harold Anderson and Zella Johnson; Earl and Arlene Noble; Lamar and Anna Dixon; and Earl and Bertha Craythorn with Mrs. Floyd Brighthill playing the piano accompaniment.

Music for the program, the introductory numbers, and the regular dance was furnished by the Glen Bates orchestra.

Spencer N. Broadhead and Miss Rhoda Hyde, state presidents of the Y. M. and Y. W. M. I. A. had general supervision of the ball and the program. They were assisted by Frank Watson, Mrs. Ede McIntire, Mrs. Arabelle Catmull and Mr. and Mrs. Earl Craythorn and actively committees from each ward taking part.

In addition to the royal escort each queen was accompanied by a group of attendants and a special escort from the ward she represented.

V. F. W. Here Joins Drive To Reply To Dictators by Singing of Anthem

Mass singing of the Star Spangled Banner in a Twin Falls theater yet to be selected may take place in the near future if efforts of the local post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars to secure a sound trailer now being distributed by national headquarters are successful. It was announced here this afternoon by A. N. Peters, past commander and chairman of the publicity committee.

Action for an attempt to secure the trailer was taken as members of the local post met last night. The countrywide campaign sponsored by the veterans is described as a "direct reply to the challenges of dictatorship." Before the program is completed it is believed the national anthem will have been heard in 10,000 theaters throughout the nation.

Audiences Will Sing
According to Peters, when the words of the first verse of the Star Spangled Banner are thrown on the screen against a background of waving flags, the voices of a mixed chorus will lead the audience in the singing of the national anthem. The primary purpose of the campaign is contained in the trailer introduction which reads:

"With hearts full of gratitude that America is still the land of the free and the home of the brave, the Veterans of Foreign Wars of the United States, respectfully request that everyone stand up and sing our beloved national anthem."

Helped in Designation
Peters points out that the national organization of veterans is a militant factor in the drive to secure congressional enactment of a law on March 3, 1931, designating the Star Spangled Banner as the official national anthem. Contrary to popular belief, the United States had no official national anthem prior to 1931.

"We want every loyal American citizen in Twin Falls, if we are able to secure the film, to reinforce his belief in our institutions of individual liberty by singing the national anthem in a manner that will hurt a defiant challenge to those who sympathize with dictatorship creeds," Peters said.

DWORSHAK VOTE HIT BY ALLIANCE

Rep. Henry Dworshak, representative from the second Idaho district in the United States Congress, today had been charged by Perry Morris, chairman of the Workers Alliance, as "betraying" Idaho by voting a check to the WPA budget from $875,000,000 to $725,000,000.

Morris based his charge on material contained in a recent Workers Alliance bulletin received from Washington, D. C. Morris charged that if the Senate, now considering the measure, approves it, it will be more than 600,000 WPA workers cut from the rolls on Feb. 1 with a graduated increase until 1,200,000 will have lost their jobs by June 1 against the totals at the present time.

Morris made his charge last night following a meeting here at which 30 Alliance members, and unrepresented from Twin Falls, Rupert and Boise, signed their intention of being in Boise on Saturday, Jan. 28, for the purpose of pinning in a mass protest against WPA cuts, both as to jobs and revenue. The demonstration in Boise will be one of seven scheduled throughout the United States for the same date.
