IDAHO HOUSE OPENS WAY FOR FEDERAL AID TRIUMPHANT MARCH OF REBELS SHAKES ALL EUROPE

Fall of Barcelona Opens Struggle of 2 Sets of Nations

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
United Press Foreign News Editor

The triumph march of Spanish insurgents through the hills of Catalonia shook all Europe today as the great powers faced an inevitable showdown on power in the Mediterranean.

Fall of Barcelona to the armies of Gen. Francisco Franco was only the starting signal for which the big nations had been waiting.

It thus opened a vast horizon of diplomatic struggle between the opposing blocs of democracy and totalitarianism.

Intensely and imperatively that contest for dominance in the new Europe may be indicated swiftly by two events:

1. Great Britain's campaign to forestall a new "crisis" as a result of the demands of Italy for greater influence at expense of France in the Mediterranean.

2. The support Germany will give her totalitarian partner in the seeking the "natural" aspirations in the Mediterranean and the extent of the Nazi demands in eastern Europe.

Spain's answer to these questions is expected in Focher Adolf Hitler's speech to the Reichstag Monday.

Thus again in the contest for dominance the final answer shifts back to Berlin where Hitler has maintained official silence in regard to Italian Premier Benito Mussolini's bid to reap his share of the totalitarian profits at the expense of France and Britain in the Mediterranean.

Another Factor

But this time there is another factor. The U.S. must decide whether it has given every indication of having reached or at least neared the end of its isolationist policy.

Britain's appeasement program, at its recent Rome conference with Mussolini, the British prime minister, declared that the British empire was inviolable—that the British "will resist" could not be overruled.

President's View

The Paris and Rome governments have made no secret of the position. Italian Premier Benito Mussolini traded toward confirmation of reports that he would make France and the Spanish insurgents were assured of ultimate victory when he declared yesterday that Barcelona was merely another chapter in the story of a "new Europe which we are creating."

Mussolini has put it on the record that Italy will get what it has been given about when and how.

Last night in Paris, French President Paul Doumer and the French Minister Georges Bonnet made it clear that Britain and France were agreed to an almost any limit. The French government would fight if necessary—in order to force foreign forces out of Spain after the war.

NATIONAL WOOL GROUP RENAMES RICH AS LEADER

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (UP)—Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace, who insisted early in the New Deal upon vigorous plans for eventual budget balance, was on record today in behalf of a new system of federal accounting to shrink the national debt.

Wallace's proposals, published in book form under the title "Paths to Plenty" by the national home library foundation, are likely to attract considerable attention.

He is the first cabinet officer formally to endorse the new accounting system suggested by President Roosevelt in his budget message this month.

Writing in 1934 in his first New Deal volume, "Frontiers," Wallace frankly described—but did not condemn—Mr. Roosevelt's dollar devaluation policy as "temporary money magic." It was "temporary" because the dollar had to be balanced.

The national debt was $28,480,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1934 but continued deficits have increased it today to more than $35,000,000 and Mr. Roosevelt and his aides have stopped talking "budget balancing."

The President, instead, suggested in his message to congress three weeks ago that the federal accounting system probably did not accurately reflect the state of federal finances and should be changed to take account of government "investment" in the creation of recoverable assets.

Changing the accounting system would materially reduce deficit figures during the remainder of the New Deal.

Wallace endorsed the plan today.

Endorsement of the plan today.

In a capitalist society of private property, such as ours, said Wallace, government borrowing, just as private borrowing, should rest as much as possible on the prospect of spending for the creation of recoverable assets, and these recoverable assets should be recognized in federal accounting.

NATIONALS TAKE OVER RULING OF BARCELONA CITY

By EDWARD G. DEFURY

BARCELONA, Jan. 27 (UP)—Gen. Jose Davila, commanding the nationalist army in Catalonia, annulled all loyalist appointments and decrees in the area today, demanded the immediate surrender of arms, munitions and public documents and intimated that court martial would be set up at once to try captured loyalist leaders.

He annulled all loyalist orders since July 18, 1936, the day after the start of the civil war. All who disobeyed his orders, Davila said, would be considered rebels and traitors.

Military law will be applied by competent national tribunals, he proclaimed.

He ordered that all authorities and organizations in newly occupied territory maintain contact with military and judicial authorities regarding the administration of justice, and added:

"The classification of prisoners in the task of military justice."

Street cars and subway trains resumed service today. Youths and girls milit in the streets carrying nationalist flags and shouting "long live Spain!" Street cleaning squads started sweeping up tons of waste paper and rubbish.

Troops Orderly

The nationalist troops were orderly. Authorities announced a mass food.

HOPKINS PLEASES
BUSINESS HEADS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (UP)—The business advisory council, a group of industrialists organized by the commerce department—decided today to continue its work with enthusiasm under the leadership of the secretary of commerce, Harry L. Hopkins.

Hopkins met 50 members of the council created by his predecessor, Daniel C. Roper, yesterday and discussed business with them for four hours.

When the conference was over, Council Chairman W. A. Harriman, chairman of the board of the Union Pacific railroad, said he was "much impressed with Hopkins' approach to the task he has undertaken."

That statement expressed the "enthusiasm" opinion of the council, he added, and the council has agreed to continue its work with enthusiasm.

Hopkins presented no formula or program for stimulating business and reemploying the millions of unemployed, but discussed only general problems.

The council selected Harriman chairman for the coming year.

INSURANCE HOLD

NEW YORK, Jan. 27 (UP)—The insurance brokerage firm of Roosevelt and Associates, Inc., of which Mr. Franklin D. Roosevelt is a director, has arranged the insurance of the Pan-American Airways planes being built for trans-Atlantic routes.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 27 (UP)—The senate today overrode President Roosevelt's requests and approved a $150,000,000 reduction in funds to operate WPA to June 30.

The issue was decided by a single vote, 46 to 47.

The senate voted down an administration amendment to the deficiency relief bill which would have provided $875,000,000 for WPA instead of the $725,000,000 recommended by the economy-minded senate appropriations committee.

The house made the original slash in WPA funds despite White House objection, and the senate thus joined it in reducing the President on the first issue of the session.

Senate action on the appropriation expected to be completed tomorrow. Vote on the amount had been delayed several days by administration forces and the economy bloc waged hard campaign to win wavering senatorial votes.

The senate defeated, 34 to 48, a house bill that would exempt an automobile owner from liability for damages to the car in an accident to a non-paying guest passenger unless the accident was intentional on the part of the owner.

Senator William H. Borah, R., Idaho, attacked the bill after it was introduced by the judiciary committee. Sen. George Donahoe, R., Washington, and Sen. Tom Harkin, D., Franklin, spoke against the bill.

The "entire program outlined" by the action included: B. T. Yarnall, chairman, Idaho Falls; E. P. Horstall, Boise, and Tom Colby, Lewiston.

New Bill Let State Match U.S. Relief Fund

BOISE, Jan. 27 (UP)—A bill to free federal social security funds from legal encumbrances that prevented their release to Idaho public assistance clients passed its first test today when the house of representatives approved the measure under suspension of rules.

The vote was 54 yes, 2 no with 3 absent or not voting. The bill will appropriate $3,750,000 of state funds to match the federal money anticipated.

The house can move swiftly when the house recovered after a recess for a caucus during most of the morning to discuss the bill. Ben Oppenheim, Boise attorney who drafted the bill, explained its contents to legislators at the caucus.

On Governor's Desk

A bill to reduce license fees for pleasure automobiles to $4 went to the governor's desk for signature. It must be signed within five days and the chief executive said he would not sign it without the companion measure appropriating $1,000,000 of highway funds to counties to reimburse them for license revenue.

The governor signed a bill outlining the state liquor commission and substituting a single administrator under a part-time board of three members.

The governor said he would make no official announcement of the appointment of new liquor board members until late today but that one of them would be Nick Ifft, Pocatello publisher. Another Tom Madden of Lewiston, and the third, Democrat from southeastern Idaho outside of Boise.

FRANCE CLEARS WAY FOR VAST MILITARY EXPANSION

DALADIER GIVEN CONFIDENCE VOTE ON ARMS PLANS

By RALPH HEINZEN
PARIS, Jan. 27 (UP)—An overwhelming vote of confidence by the chamber of deputies cleared the way today for Premier Edouard Daladier's vast military expansion program, designed to defend France's colonial empire and keep Spain free of domination by Italy.

Opposed only by Socialists and Communists, who were voting not against the government's foreign policy of "defense of the empire," but in protest against its failure to throw open the border and rush arms to beleaguered Loyalist Spain, Daladier won a 366 to 224 majority on the vital phases of his program.

He plans to strengthen the land, sea and air forces hurriedly until they are equal to any neighboring country's.

Reaches Vote
The chamber reached a vote on the foreign policy late last night after seven days debate, and after Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet had made a rousing defense of it in the light of latest developments including the fall of Barcelona to the Spanish nationalists and agitation in Italy for the conquest of French colonies bordering the Mediterranean.

Bonnet said he had received assurances from Generalissimo Francisco Franco that the Spanish nationalists had no intention of permitting foreigners to influence Spain in its reorganization after the war. In view of this assurance, he reported, there were no plans for fortifying the French border.

In his final plea for his program, Daladier said: "There is intense diplomatic activity everywhere and the situation is the gravest. France must face the world as strongly as possible. I must have the fullest authority to act in the name of the nation to reaffirm France's desire for peace."

Parties Buried
Party politics were buried in the chamber's overwhelmingly favorable response.

The policy, as outlined by Daladier and Bonnet, was: (1) Defense of all colonies against any aggression; (2) non-interference in the Spanish war but based on a firm determination by France and Great Britain to free Spain and the western Mediterranean of all "Spanish" influences as soon as the Spanish war ends.

The almost unprecedented vote of approval by the chamber is interpreted as expressive of the feeling that France should resist all aspirations by Italian Premier Benito Mussolini in the Mediterranean, Red Sea and North Africa, by arms if necessary, but with the hope of being able to keep the peace.

FLAMES DAMAGE FAIRFIELD HOME

FAIRFIELD, Jan. 27 (Special)—Fire, which broke out in the second story of the Clarence Barkley home shortly after noon Wednesday while the owner was in Boise, was brought under control by a volunteer bucket brigade.

The blaze was discovered by a small school boy who was on his way home to lunch. The house was considerably damaged, but was insured. Total damage has not been estimated.

Barkley, owner of the home, indicated it would be rebuilt. The property is situated in the northeast corner of Fairfield.

All the household goods and furniture were moved into the street.

Barkley, Fairfield druggist, had gone to Boise with his sister, Mrs. George Abbott, who was having spinal treatment. Mr. and Mrs. Abbott have been staying at the Barkley home during the winter months.

Roast Beef Can Be a Real Delicacy

Here's a rolled rib roast of beef that will satisfy your family's taste for something delicious and substantial.

This Roast of Beef Makes You Look At the World in Rose-Colored Vein

There's nothing that makes you look at the world through rose-colored glasses so effectively as does good, healthy, satisfying food.

And if you want a typical example of just that, try the roast beef pictured above.

It's a rolled rib. A roast of the desired size is cut, and then the bones removed and the meat rolled at the market. The rolled rib is roasted in exactly the same way as any other beef roast, except that it requires slightly longer cooking time, usually 10 to 15 minutes longer per pound, due to the fact that the bone has been removed and, therefore, the heat penetration is a little slower.

Low Temperature
Roast beef, in order to be at its best, should be cooked at a low temperature. Here is the way:

Place the beef roll on a rack in an open roasting pan. Season it with salt and pepper. Make an incision and insert a roast meat thermometer so that the bulb reaches the center of the roll. Do not cover the pan and do not add water. Put the roast in a low oven (300 F.) and roast until the desired degree of doneness is reached.

Beef roasts are served rare, medium, or well-done, as you prefer. If you use a meat thermometer, you always can be sure the roast will be done to the right degree. When the meat thermometer registers 140 F., the roast will be rare; at 160 F., the roast will be medium; and at 170 F., the roast will be well done. Lacking a meat thermometer, the time-temperature relationship is the best guide for telling when a roast is done. It must be remembered that this is only an approximation, however.

Here's Time Needed
A rolled rib roast cooked to the rare stage will require about 28 to 30 minutes per pound in an oven at a temperature of 300 F.; for medium it will require about 32 to 35 minutes per pound, and for well-done it will require about 38 to 40 minutes per pound.

The roast shown here is served with browned potatoes and brown gravy for the main part of the dinner. A cooked vegetable and a crisp salad may complete the main course, and practically any kind of vegetable or salad may be chosen with roast beef, because this meat has a flavor which blends with them all.

To serve the rolled beef roast, place it on the platter with the cut side up, and shown in the photograph. Cut slices across the top in carving.

German Press Used to Mold Opinions by Nazi's Leaders

By RICHARD C. HOTIETEL
BERLIN, Jan. 27 (AP)—Six years of national socialism have welded the German press into an instrument for furthering the aims of the Nazi state.

Newspaper opinion on government questions in Germany is unanimous. Much of the news published is subject to governmental supervision. Editors and reporters, publishers and distributors are selected according to Nazi party principles.

There is no official censorship, however, on news going out of Germany.

Mold Public Opinion
German newspapers exercise the function of molding public opinion as defined by Adolf Hitler in "Mein Kampf." Hitler said the press should with ruthless determination be made the means of educating the people, and be placed in the service of the state and nation. It is but the means to an end, and the end is the political struggle of a nation.

An example of the German press attitude was given during the Czechoslovak crisis. In a rising crescendo, newspapers in every corner of the Reich thundered against Prague. The news on the situation consisted of information from Nazi-approved sources interlarded with editorial comment.

Many developments that made headlines in America never saw print in Germany. The French partial mobilization, the mobilization of the British fleet and the precautionary measures taken throughout England were disposed of with a few lines or did not appear in a German paper until after the Munich conference.

No Mention
When a newspaper's activity flared up in Berlin last June, newspapers did not mention the fact.

When national socialism triumphed in Germany in January, 1933, one of the first legal measures was the creation of a Reich culture chamber headed by Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels. The press was included in this as a sub-chamber.

With this move, according to the head of the press chamber, the journalistic profession ceased to be a business and became a cultural activity. "The head of the culture chamber was also propaganda minister and all newspapermen, publishers and distributors of newspapers and magazines must be members of the chamber.

Immediately after this ordinance came the requirements for all those in the field of journalism. Whether news gathering, writing or photography. Thereafter any German wanting to be a journalist had to be at least 21 years old. He had to be, among other things, aryan, and could not be married or engaged to be married to a non-aryan.

Press Transformation
The press was transformed into a public institution. All journalists had to become members of a "Reich union of the German press." All had to satisfy the requirements of this organization and be listed in its professional register.

All phases of newspaper practice were regulated. Goebbels prohibited art criticism and substituted for it "art contemplation." Journalists were given uniforms to wear on special occasions. The imprimatur of the propaganda ministry was required for all material of political consequence. Although there is no censor wielding a blue pencil in Germany today, daily propaganda ministry press conferences clearly outline policy to be followed.

The number of German newspapers has been almost cut in half since 1933.

SHOSHONE

R. E. Titus, well-known assistant superintendent for this division of the Union Pacific, was taken to Salt Lake the first part of the week for an operation.

John Meyer, assistant superintendent out of Pocatello, was here Wednesday on his way to Salt Valley, on matters connected with his duties. Flood crews are distributing seeds over the Union Pacific system east and west of Shoshone, in preparation for the spring of work in the spring. The replacement will cover a wide stretch.

A pilot, flying in high altitudes, recently figured that a diving helmet would provide satisfactory at low altitudes. It would work in the same manner in higher altitudes. After building a telephone in it, he tried and found successful.
