TRIAL OPENS ON WPA JOB TRAFFIC

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., Jan. 30 (AP)—Senator Dennis Chavez's trial on charges of obstructing justice in connection with the federal court today charged with trafficking with works progress administration jobs for political purposes.

Twenty-four other persons will be tried later on the same general charges.

Chavez was here and may testify as a defense witness. Carl Hatch, New Mexico's other member of the United States senate, and John J. Dempsey, one of its members in the national house of representatives, indicated they too would testify for the defense if they could get away from Washington. To testify, they would have to waive their congressional immunity.

Started by Hopkins

The prosecution was instituted by former WPA Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, who last fall summarily discharged the New Mexico administrator, Fred Healey. Later a federal grand jury indicted Mrs. Anita Talaya, Chavez's sister, Stanley W. P. Miller, his son-in-law, who was an assistant federal attorney, Chavez's secretary, Joe Martinez, and 68 others.

Forty-seven persons, including Mrs. Talaya and Miller, were charged with overt acts under conspiracy counts. The others were charged with diverting WPA jobs for political purposes and with assisting the wages of WPA workers for political purposes.

The irregularities were alleged to have taken place in three campaigns: The one which preceded an election on a constitutional amendment on Sept. 21, 1937, to remove limitation on the governor's tenure to two consecutive, two year terms; an Albuquerque city election; and a fight in the New Mexico legislature to oblige state nominating conventions.

Line Up in Battle

In each contest, former Gov. Clyde Tingley was on one side and Chavez, Dempsey, and John E. Miles, former Democratic state chairman, who became governor Jan. 10, were on the other. In each case, Tingley and his supporters were defeated. Tingley appointed Chavez to the state to serve out the term of the late Sen. Bronson Cutting. He subsequently was elected and he and Tingley fell out.

Federal Attorney Everett Grandham, Miller's superior until Miller resigned, charged the defendants had conspired to build a political machine through their control of the employment and the assignment of WPA workers; that they had required political contributions of the workers; that they had used "force, threats, and intimidation" to compel them to join in political action.

Road District Had No Worry At 1938 Snow

It was an easy year for the Twin Falls highway district as far as the burden of snow removal was concerned.

That's one of the feature highlights of the district's report for 1938, showing only $37 spent for removing snow. The cost in 1937 was $4,900. Thus far in 1939 the big blows haven't had to work, although two snowstorms within three days may or may not offer an indication of what's still to come.

Construction Work

The annual report, prepared by J. D. Shores, engineer, and approved by the highway district board, shows that general construction and maintenance work featured the year's activities.

The report was presented and approved Saturday afternoon at a session held at the highway office, approving the report were J. E. Winans and V. E. Moran, commissioners. W. T. Combs, third member of the commission, was out of the city on personal business.

Major construction work, completed during the year, included the building of a 72-foot timber trestle bridge at a cost of $1,565. Installation of 67 galvanized iron culverts at a cost of $2,750.18; gravel-surfacing of 10.1 miles of highway district road at a cost of $14,554.46, of which $6,014.15 was in WPA labor grants.

The report further shows that at the end of last year 580 miles of the district's roads were listed as follows: bituminous concrete, 14.5 miles; bituminous, treated, 25 miles; gravel-surfaced, 200 miles; graded and drained, 55 miles; unpaved, 62 miles; primitive, 46 miles. In addition, 22 miles of the roads in the district are listed as state highways and include 13.5 miles of bituminous concrete, 13 miles of bituminous, treated, and 61.4 miles of bituminous, mixed.

Value $38,946

The report shows that property of the road district is valued at $24,800. The old quarry site, including a railroad siding, storage shed, and a house, is valued at $1,200. Equipment is listed at $15,223.00. Material on hand to start the year 1939 was valued at $12,106.31.

Guest Artist

Miss Mary Hoover, guest artist, will then play as a piano number, "Grasshopper's Dance." She will also offer other piano numbers.

Concluding band selections in the classical portion of the musical evening will include "Maurice Ravel" and "March of the Street Men," Charles S. Belcher.

With a "theme of blue" Bert Sweet will preside as master of ceremonies and introduce the first numbers in the popular section of the program.

Melodies in Blue

"Melodies in Blue," vocals by Ethel McGeary; "Lambeth Walk," from Me and My Gal, Noel Gay by the band; "Tango Blue Rhythms," Mary Lou Gibb and Ruth Cutler; "Sophisticated Swing," sophisticated.

Support Given For Boy Scout Activity

BUHL, Jan. 30 (Special)—According to W. C. Swanson, a member of the finance committee of the Buhl and Coeur d'Alene Boy Scouts, the business men of the two towns have pledged their support of Boy Scout activities and made it possible for the finance committee to meet its quota for the coming year.

The other members of the committee are C. D. Boying and Lee Peterson.

The funds received were sufficient to cover all expenses of scouting activities, including transportation in and out from the summer camp.

The four Boy Scout troops of Buhl now have a total of over 100 boys, and the Coeur d'Alene, from headed by H. E. Cullen has a total of 14 Boy Scouts. Their troops are supervised by the Coeur d'Alene club.

The scoutmasters for the Buhl troops are Major Benfien, Rev. J. H. Harden, M. B. Skreen and Rev. E. H. Egan.
