'Teton Tarzan' Death Ends Great Wyoming Manhunt

17-YEAR-OLD BOY GETS CREDIT FOR SHOOTING BANDIT

CODY, Wyo., March 25 (U.P.)—The undertaker shaved the beard and shingled the unkempt hair today and made Teton Tarzan, a savage who ate raw meat and killed five men, into plain Earl Durand, 26, a simple-minded youth who had a bad dream and never woke up.

The national guard hailed his howlers out of the Bearfoot mountains and 300 men came behind, unbreaching their rifles. The hunt was over. Tarzan, bearded woodman, killer of men and beast, was dead. And even his parents were glad.

To the natives of this ranch country who had known Durand all his life, the hardest part to understand was what had changed him in an instant from an open-handed youth who loved the outdoors and this wild mountain country, who had felt confined even when he was in a house, into a man who had no reputation as an untractable person or as a "bad man."

Gann Focher

Eight days ago he was in jail serving 30 days for shooting an elk out of season, an offense which is not considered to be very serious in this country where game abounds and the natives are known to kill out of season for food rather than to kill their best cattle. He was a peaceful, friendly fellow, with no terms with his jailers, and he was interested only in serving out his term.

That same day, the district attorney charged him with killing a dog belonging to a cattleman. He was arrested and taken to the county jail. He was held there for five days. He was released on his own bond. He was released on his own bond. He was released on his own bond.

Mystery Solved as Husband Confesses To Murder of Wife

OKLAHOMA CITY, March 25 (U.P.)—Roger W. Cunningham, eccentric member of a prominent Oklahoma City family, confessed today that he strangled his beautiful, socially prominent wife to death last March 25. He directed a shrewd party to her body which he had buried in a freshly dug sewage ditch.

The body was found face up by four workmen after they had dug through several feet of soft earth in a sewage ditch which had been filled in on March 7, the day after the woman disappeared from her suburban home.

Cunningham, according to County Prosecutor Lewis Morris, said he had strangled her—"I don't know why"—and had carried her body to the vacant lot through which the sewer ran and "kicked it into the ditch."

"I must have been crazy," he told Morris after more than two hours of questioning. "It was a hell of a thing to do."

Examined for Insanity

Morris revealed that Cunningham twice had been held for examination at a hospital for the insane at Norman, Okla.

Cunningham's confession and discovery of the body ended a search of a week's duration. Morris, convinced that his continued plea of innocence was not true and that he soon must break, had held himself in a room at the hotel where he was Monday, while directing a search for his wife's body which extended into neighboring territory.

Unknown to Cunningham, his confession came only a few hours before his attorneys were to be heard in a plea of "habes corpus writ." The prosecutor went to the county jail late last night for one final try at breaking his story that he had seen with his wife last on the night of March 6 when he drove her to Union station here with the understanding she was going to San Francisco.

Talk Things Over

"We had talked things over in a matter of fact way," Morris said, "and Cunningham stuck to his story. Finally he asked for a drink of water and I walked toward a window and I told him that we were certain that he had killed his wife. I described the anguish of her parents and he started looking over my shoulder toward the wall with a funny expression."

"Then he reached into my pocket, took out my pencil without saying a word and walked toward the desk. He sat down and began drawing a bunch of funny marks on a note book. For a few minutes I couldn't make sense."

"Then I saw the marks emerge into a diagram. He hadn't said a word all this time. He had been pointing to a place he had marked, 'vacant lot,' and said: 'My wife is buried there.'"

Leaders to Confer On Aid to Business

WASHINGTON, March 25 (U.P.)—Chairman Robert L. Doughton, D. N. C., of the house ways and means committee, said today that he would confer with President Roosevelt in a day or two on the administration proposal to ease social security assessments as an aid to business.

Revision of the social security act to waive, for an indeterminate period any increase in the payroll tax was proposed to the committee yesterday by Secretary of Treasury Henry Morgenthau, Jr. President Roosevelt endorsed the plan and it found immediate favor among committee members.

Doughton indicated his wishes to act quickly on this phase of the business assessment program and he expected to discuss the matter with the president before Mr. Roosevelt leaves for Warm Springs, Ga., Wednesday.

"I think that should make changes which would aid business provided no revenue is lost," Doughton said. "The revenues must be maintained."

This is the treasury's position, Doughton said, and the treasury must make the next move.

House Votes on $250,000,000 for Parity Payment

WASHINGTON, March 25 (U.P.)—The house approached a showdown today on a $250,000,000 extra-budgetary farm appropriation which may determine the fate of government economy efforts at this session of congress.

The house votes today on a $250,000,000 parity payment provision attached to the agriculture appropriation bill without budget bureau recommendation and over the bitter protest of economy forces.

Anger over increased tolling activities by farm and city members seeking to form a united front for approval of $250,000,000 for parity payment and $150,000,000 deficiency funds for WFA appeared as the vote neared.

Several well-informed members said they believed that if the $250,000,000 were approved, the President would get the full $400,000,000 relief fund he desires despite opposition of appropriations committee members.

See Retention of Bill

Rep. Clarence Cannon, D. Mo., leader in the fight for parity payments, was confident the appropriation would be retained in the bill. Rep. Robert R. Bacon, D. Va., attacked the appropriation and asserted that "it seems to me that all we think about any more is spend, and spend, and spend."

WASHINGTON, March 25 (U.P.)—Hope for eventual peace between the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations increased today.

GOERING SAYS GERMANY AND ITALY ARE 'INDIVISIBLE'

AIDE TO HITLER SAYS NAZIS WILL GIVE DUCE HELP

By REYNOLDS PACKARD

ROME, March 25 (U.P.)—Field Marshal Hermann Goering, German economic dictator and right hand man of Adolf Hitler, pledged today that Germany would remain at all costs beside Italy.

The pledge was given in Premier Benito Mussolini's own newspaper, Popolo d'Italia, of Milan, as Mussolini perfected the draft of a speech he is to make tomorrow—a speech which may prove one of the most important of his career.

So sensational was Goering's statement that it was held to be possible for Mussolini to obtain by peaceable negotiations the "natural aspirations" he seeks to satisfy, at France's expense, in the Mediterranean and Red sea areas.

Blither at Britain

In bidding German-Italian friendship, Goering spoke bitterly of Great Britain and alluded to her, particularly, as the proverbial dog that barks but never bites.

Goering confirmed that he would confer with Mussolini before he returned to Germany from his "vacation" in Italy.

The Berlin-Rome axis is unbreakable, Goering said in the statement. "Germany will remain beside Italy regardless of what happens. Germany, I repeat, will at all costs remain beside Italy."

One Objective

"We continue our march straight ahead with one objective—peace and justice for all peoples—and on this objective of the 20th anniversary of Fascism we are happy to confirm that the Italian and German peoples are indivisible, and that any attempt to undermine this friendship in hope of separating us is destined to fail. It merely makes us laugh."

A further sign of Italian-German solidarity came last night when Dr. Robert Ley, German Nazi labor front leader, was received ceremoniously at the railroad station here on his arrival to represent Germany at tomorrow's celebration of the 20th anniversary of Fascism, which is to be the occasion for Mussolini's speech.

States' Rights and Privileges

The problem of states' rights is back again. It complicated the relations of the colonies before the revolution. It almost lost the revolutionary war. It caused the failure of the confederation. It split the country once. And it is still with us, in still another guise, in 1939.

Purely political questions of states' rights have been largely solved and put behind us. But in a world whose eyes focus on economic rather than political matters, states' rights is back with a new set of problems.

The Constitution plainly meant the country to be one economic unit. Until recently no one questioned the advantages of "the largest free trade area in the world." On that we built our prosperity, our strong world position.

Today we are tearing it down. The gradually-rising trade barriers which are cropping up between states will be tellingly revealed to the National Conference on Interstate Barriers when it meets in Chicago, April 5-7, keenly alive to the menace.

And at the very time of this breaking-apart comes a proposal that would centralize and unify a different field. Senator Capper has introduced a bill (which would require a prior constitutional amendment) to give to the federal government the right to make uniform marriage, divorce, and child-care laws for the entire country.

At the moment when states are getting around the Constitution by setting up what amount to tariffs and which deeply affect the business of other states, it is proposed that they give up power to regulate personal phases of their citizens' lives which only slightly affect people of other states, and turn this power over to uniform national regulation.

This is a strange approach to states' rights in 1939. National economic unity and uniformity is a source of strength and a benefit to all. It would seem a proper field for national regulation only. Yet the states are busily engaged in tearing it down with oppressive truck regulations, port-of-entry laws, oleomargarine, liquor, and farm products regulations, use taxes, and other laws that could easily Balkanize what had been a mighty nation.

Yet at the same time it is proposed that they surrender their rights to make their highly-personal marriage and divorce laws conform to local usage and culture, and to subject them to national uniform regulation. It is hard to see how one state's laws on this subject greatly affect the people of other states. That seems to make it a natural field for state legislation.

It looks very much as though we were approaching both these states' rights problems wrong-side-to.

Thirty Years Too Late

The "Grand Duke" Vladimir, who not only claims that title despite abolition of the nobility in Russia, but claims the non-existent "throne" of his country as well, has gone to work in the Diesel Motor works in England.

That's dandy. The young "Grand Duke" is 22, and he realizes that it is a good thing for any man to know a trade and to work at it.

But Vladimir is coming along with his idea a little late. If Russian Grand Dukes in 1909 had had the wisdom that was to come to their descendant by bitter experience, the history of Russia might have been different. But they learned nothing, forgot nothing, did nothing, and the world swept them into the trash can.

Now one of their descendants, carrying on a pathetic charade of past power and glory, tries to re-establish contact with the understanding of the lives of ordinary men, realizing that lack of this caused the whole structure to topple. But Vladimir, alas, is 30 years too late.

That Gorilla Again

A famous editorial writer used to trot out at regular intervals a little homily which was always good for a mild sensation.

Between pictures of contestants in a heavyweight fight, he used to run a picture of a gorilla. Then he moralized temperately on the respective merits of Brain and Brawn, and came inevitably to the conclusion that "a gorilla could lick both of them!"

The moral becomes a little hazy with the passage of time, but it seems to have been that while the gorilla might lick the fighters, he could never appreciate Schopenhauer and Da Vinci, while the fighters could not.

Now it seems that the gorilla may have been libeled. For in the London zoo, a young gorilla named Meng has been observed to trace on a wall the outline of his own shadow. Dipping Meng's finger in lamphole, the keepers let him do it again, producing quite a creditable drawing something like an early Picasso.

It would be awful if we found that a gorilla could talk us at everything else, too!

GARDENS

My name is Maggie the Mouse. I live in one of the best houses in town. The other day I heard the Missus and the Mister saying that Spring is here now. And everyone will feel lots happier. The Missus said "I'll be better than about our garden." And the Mister said "Yes, sir, I can get Outer corners." That way. Now what vegetables shall we have? And the Missus shrieked at the word vegetables. And said firmly "We're not going to plant any vegetables. We'll put the back yard into flowers." The Mister nearly hit the ceiling. And said it's just like a woman. To think of frivolities and not try to help. The budget. You don't save money. Trying to grow things like meat. Vegetables. They argued an hour. And both got mad. But they finally decided To split up the yard into flowers. And vegetables. The Mister jammed his hat on his head. And went downtown. Until almost midnight. I'm glad we don't have gardens. SERIAL STORY

"MRS. DOC"

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

The characters and situations in this story are wholly fictional.

Yesterday, at a party at Alan's home, he met a fellow named Doc. Later, to himself, he said: "I wonder what Doc is like with Emily?"

CHAPTER IX

WORK came like little pieces to Eric Kane. Even at the dam, where a hundred men toiled like galley slaves to carry out his orders, he could not forget Emily. "Looka like well make a Chief," Baker was at his elbow. They stood beside the engineers' office, high above the river, looking down along the gravel trucks, edging out along the high trestle, pushing their load of stone, then tumbling into the gravel dumps, piled high along the railroad track. Unmindful of danger, men worked at the edge of the trestle, pushing the gravel into chutes, to spill it over the dam.

"Pay those men out there double!" Eric ordered curtly. "And keep them there. Any reports on the weather?"

"Temperature rising steadily," Baker answered. "But we can stand that, if we don't get rain."

"I'm begging, Doc, for a pleasant week—and it may—all that snow will be melted and past the dam. If it rains, and rains hard, it's going to be just too bad."

"Eric—telephone!" an assistant shouted from the office door.

"To the office," Eric called. "Emily's voice came to him over the phone. She was crying. "You're coming down for the Country Club dinner—don't you?"

"I can't leave the job, Emily," Eric fought the desire to shout that he would be there, with her, whatever the weather. "I can't get away tonight." He had no right to the happiness being with her, dancing with her would bring.

The man who had saved Eric's life. Why did it have to be Alan's wife? Why did Emily have to marry a fellow named Doc? But Eric had loved Emily first. Ever since that first night, in St. Louis, he had known that all his life would love that Emily Kane. And that knowledge had kept him from marrying anyone else. For years he had secretly loved her, and he had loved her when all trace of her was lost, he had felt that he would have cheated any other girl he might have married.

"Cheated a girl? What was he doing, Alan, now? Posing as a friend, loving his wife. "This is the last time I'll ever see her," he told himself. "I'll have tonight, and then I'll never come back. That's the only fair thing to do." And he meant it.

"Soft lights. Music. Holding Emily in his arms again, hearing her gay conversation, listening to her tinkling laugh. She was beautiful. Men surrounded her, constantly, begging for dances. Whenever Eric danced with her someone was bound to cut in. And he let them, gladly.

"It was dangerous for him to be so near Emily, tonight. He was afraid that he might say just a part of the thoughts that were keeping him in a turmoil. Alan's drinks had been too strong. Why must a man insist on your having those drinks? He was so sure he had known you were in love with his wife!"

He was standing in a doorway, watching her dance to him as if for Emily. Suddenly he felt a hand on his arm, heard someone saying:

"Dance with me quickly. There's a fellow following me. He's drunk."

It was Emily. Laughing, eyes shining, she was calling to him as they glided across the floor.

"You said," she said, "I'm come back, Sir Knight. Just so you know, Eric, I'm not from around here. Eric loved her for that. This was the way it should end. In the same gay mood. She would disappear in the crowd and go out his life forever. She would go back to Alan.

"There's no drunk this time, either," Eric said, smiling. "Just a husband who leaves his wife stranded at a dance. Grandma Frank left and broke her hip. Alan had to take her to the hospital. He said to tell you to take home. You will, won't you?"

"Probably. But I don't want to." "Then I'll get someone else. There are at least five eligible bachelors who'll take me home." Eric was smiling. "You will not," he answered.

half angrily. "Alan said for you to go home with me, and you'll do just that, and like it."

"Alan said for you to go home with me, and you'll do just that, and like it."

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON

Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, March 25.—The Navy representatives may have refused to authorize development of an advanced naval base at Guam, but it puts its ink on Puerto Rico and so the Navy is happy.

While it was Guam that caused all the shouting, Puerto Rico was a matter of grave concern to the Navy.

The Navy wants to spend something like $24,000,000 on Isla Grande, a half-mile-long bit of marsh-land in the mouth of San Juan harbor. It would develop this tiny island into a first-class air base, filling in the swampy ground and greatly extending and solidifying it.

It would put up docks, breakwaters, wharves, fuel dumps, and machine shops. And when it finished, it would breathe a sigh of relief and figure that the east coast of the United States—including the all-important Panama canal—was about as safe as anybody could make it.

Somehow has figured out that those planes could take off from a point within 2,000 miles of such widely-separated American cities as Philadelphia and Port Worth. And, of course, they would practically be in the back yard of the Panama canal.

But if there is anything in all of this, why any Americans, the Puerto Rico base is a pretty complete answer to it. For even if you assume that the Germans did want to attack on America, that they could get a sizeable fleet of bombers down to South America without being intercepted, and that they would bomb from there, there would be a smaller base for a number of airplanes, and the great Coco Solo base at Panama would be enlarged and strengthened.

When this done, American airplanes and surface vessels will have the whole Caribbean sea under constant surveillance. Nobody will be able to come in or go out without being spotted instantly—and, of course, violently pounced upon if necessary. No European force will be able to get within many hundreds of miles of Panama. Any attack on the Atlantic seaboard of the United States will be thwarted. So will any thrust at South America.

All of which takes on added importance in view of the latest scare-story that is going around Washington. This story—which, incidentally is based on solid fact—deals with the amazing expansion of German commercial air lines in South America, airlines which will soon encircle the continent. The Germans are planning for the most part, big 24-passenger transport planes, and are accumulating supplies of spare parts, engines, motors and fuel at different South American airports.

There isn't anything scary about that, of course, except for the fact that the engines and parts for these planes are interchangeable with the engines and parts for Germany's army bombers.

JUST IN CASE—Theoretically, Germany could, on a few days notice, put a good-sized fleet of bombing planes in the northern part of South America, and have available extra engines, spare parts and plenty of fuel for them.

Somehow has figured out that those planes could take off from a point within 2,000 miles of such widely-separated American cities as Philadelphia and Port Worth. And, of course, they would practically be in the back yard of the Panama canal.

Club Members Bid Bon Voyage To Mrs. Jones

Mrs. Carl Jones was the inspiration for a delightful bon voyage party yesterday at the home of Mrs. William King. Mrs. Jones and children will leave Sunday for Fort Morgan, Colo., to join Mr. Jones, who has been promoted to the management of the F. W. Woolworth company store there.

Mrs. King entertained at a smartly appointed 10:30 o'clock breakfast, followed by a luncheon. As a time to the affair, Mrs. Jones was presented with a "happy handkerchief" shower.

GARDENS CALLED HELP TO BUDGET

Cash income of farm families is expanded from $200 to $250 by farm family gardens which reduce cash expenditures for food. According to Virginia Patch, home management supervisor for the farm family administration in Twin Falls county.

The supervisor made her announcement after a study of records of families who are doing well with the FSA in this county.

"Homemakers and the older children of the farm family should take the responsibility for the garden," she said, "make an important contribution to family income. Many families are doing well with vegetables during both summer and winter. The home garden is considered one of the biggest assets in the live-at-home program of families working with the farm security administration. An ample supply of fresh and canned vegetables is one of the important considerations in keeping food expenditures at a minimum, in providing an adequate diet and insuring the good health of the family."

Roadside stands where good garden products were available several homemakers supplemented the cash income of the farm through establishing roadside stands to market their surplus or finding markets in nearby towns, the supervisor said.

Families wishing assistance with their garden plans and programs may secure available information through the county farm security administration office. Quick service building, Twin Falls.

Buhl Indians Fight Way to Finals of Consolation Round

POCATELLO, March 25 (Special)—Blackfoot and Boise, the pick of Class A basketball teams in the state of Idaho, will battle for championship honors here tonight at 9 p. m. in the Reed hall gymnasium of the University of Idaho, southern branch.

As a preliminary contest, Buhl Indians, south central Idaho champions, meet Moscow of the far north in the finals of the consolation play. This game is scheduled to start at 8 p. m.

Battling for last and seventh place this afternoon at 2 p. m. were the Sugar City and Idaho Falls. The Sugar City Indians took on Pocatello for third and fourth. The consolation title is for fifth and sixth spots in the meet.

Friday Results
Yesterday's results:
Championship round:
Blackfoot 37, Bonners Ferry 23.
Boise 46, Pocatello 27.

Consolation round:
Buhl 41, Sugar City 31.
Moscow 26, Idaho Falls 24.

Paced by Duncan and Parente, who scored 15 and 14 points respectively, the Buhl Indians easily defeated the Pocatello club in the championship round. Duncan had 13 points more than Parente, the all-state man from last year's championship Boise club.

Boise held a 10-10 advantage at the half and pulled steadily away in the final two frames.

Bonners Ferry didn't offer the favored Blackfoot Broncos too much trouble as it did a sharp-shooting Buhl team yesterday afternoon.

However, Coach Martindale's quintet had trouble finding the hoop in the first part of the initial quarter and the leads from the Blackfoot 7-4 lead before Blackfoot came back to gain a 10-9 edge at the quarter.

Gain Big Lead
Second period saw the eastern champions roll the ball through the hoop from all angles to gain a 20-17 advantage as the intermission started.

Feeding the ball to Twilchell and Hodson, the Broncos continued their scoring in the second half to easily out-distance their foes. Hodson had 14 points and Twilchell 11 for the winners.

Buhl's rangy club sank the ball from all angles and positions to finish ahead of the Sugar City quintet.

The victory moved Coach Lloyd Lauff's cagers into the finals of the consolation play.

With Von Hopkins and Ray Hoobling showing the way, the Indians held a lead all the way through the game. The Buhl club held a 5-4 advantage at the quarter and a 10-7 lead at the half. The third stanza saw the score 22-17. Third stanza saw the score 33-23.

Moscow Advances
In the other game of the day, Moscow gained a slight edge over Buhl in the consolation finals by trimming the Idaho Falls Tigers.

The game was close all the way, with the lead changing hands often.

The Tigers connected for nine field goals to seven for Moscow, but the northern club chalked up 18 free throws to 12 for Idaho Falls—the margin of victory.

The Bears held a 5-0 advantage at the start of the first quarter.

Tigers came back to go into the lead at the end of the first quarter.

Moscow moved up to hold a 15-4 advantage at the half and the third period count was 21-15.

100 Years of Baseball

In 1839, Abner Doubleday, young West Point cadet who later was to rise to rank of major-general, interested the boys of Cooperstown, N. Y., in a game he invented called baseball. "He hoped it would displace the haphazard game of jawn ball, which in turn was a crude form of 'one o' cat'."

Birth of the Game

Rules of Doubleday's game provided for bases 90 feet apart, and 11 players, including extra shortstop and short fielder who roamed.

The boys of the neighborhood took to the game eagerly and soon started choosing up sides for spirited competition, although equipment was crude.

Doubleday's rules still allowed an out to be made merely by catching a batted ball on first bounce, as permitted in town ball, but eliminated the practice of "soaking," or putting out a base runner by hitting him with the ball. Under the new ruling the runner was retired by throwing to the base or tagging him.

PORT QUIBS

By HAL WOOD

The Shoshone-Murtough battle continues to wax hot over the possession of the coveted Gooding college trophy.

Earlier in the week we published a letter from Manager F. L. Stewart of the Shoshone Redskins.

Today we give you an answer from Manager John Savage of the Murtough Savages.

As stated before, we take no part in this little squabble that appears to be reaching major proportions. We're just giving the affair a little publicity, hoping that some sort of agreement will be reached on who really should possess the trophy—some time before the football season opens.

It's too late in the season now, however, we'd suggest that if both managers agree that the opposing team has a right to the trophy, a good way to settle for it would be to clip a coin.

We think both managers will agree that either team will put out stiff battle to win possession of the trophy—and the playing of a three-game series would cost the respective teams money—rather than make cash.

Anyway, here's the Murtough answer to a Shoshone challenge:

M. P. L. Stewart, Manager Shoshone Redskins, Shoshone, Idaho.

In reply to your letter of March 18, I can say that I have seen no officials of the Gooding college regarding the play-off for this trophy. I will not agree to play until I have seen said officials regarding this matter. But, in case there should be a play-off I can readily say that I would not consent to play in the Shoshone gym under any circumstances.

As I am not asking you to play in the Murtough gym, if there should be a play-off I would only agree to playing all games on neutral ground.

As I am not asking you to play in the Murtough gym, if there should be a play-off I would only agree to playing all games on neutral ground.

New Catcher is Only Addition to Team That Folded in '38

Editor's Note: Following is the seventh of a series on the major league baseball teams. Next: The Cincinnati Reds.

By JACK GUENTHER

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif., March 25 (AP)—With just one notable exception the Pittsburgh Pirates will gamble their 1939 pennant chances on the same line-up which fell apart before the challenge of the Chicago Cubs in 1938. This time Pie Traynor believes they'll make the gamble good.

The mild-mannered manager thinks the single substitution, Ray Mueller for Al Todd at the catching post, will transform the bridesmaid into a contender.

Series bridesmaid after 11 years of waiting. But he frankly insists it will be mostly a matter of luck.

"The lucky team will be the winning team in 1939," he explained. "The race always is close. Last year we were beaten by one home run in a crucial game. We may not have been good but we couldn't have come that close and been bad."

Key Man
The key man, Mueller, came from Boston in exchange for Todd, John Dickshot, and cash. Many fans believe the Pirates were in trading, Todd, but Traynor doesn't agree. He says Mueller is magic with pitchers.

Three of the mound men—Russ Bauers, Joe Bowman and Bob Kling—need a soothing voice and a strong leonate to steady them in the pinches.

Last season there was no stand-out pitcher. Mac Brown led the staff with 15 victories but he was solely a relief artist. Jim Tobin and Cy Blanton were the bullwarks, winning 25 games between them, and will carry the burden again, along with Bill Swift, Bauers, Bowman and Kling contributed 28 victories.

Rookie pitcher, Ken Heintzelman and Bill Clemenson, along with regular Truett Sewell, are question marks. George Sisco of Tulsa is a possible corner.

Infield intact
The infield will carry over intact. Gus Suhr will be on first, Pop Young on second, Andy Vanhook at third, and Lee Handley at short. Bill Baker and John Juelich, who hit .262 and .275 for Rochester, will be the utility men, and Frank Sisti, up from Hutchinson, may be retained.

Unless Paul Waner comes to terms, the outfield will be composed of Johnny Rizzo at left, Lloyd Waner at center, and Veteran Heintzelman, who came from Brooklyn via Montreal, at right. "Porraz" Jones will carry over.

Gus Suhr will be on first, Pop Young on second, Andy Vanhook at third, and Lee Handley at short. Bill Baker and John Juelich, who hit .262 and .275 for Rochester, will be the utility men, and Frank Sisti, up from Hutchinson, may be retained.

JAPAN LEADERS CONSIDER GERMAN-ITALIAN ALLIANCE

NIPPON EXPERTS ASK ANTI-SOVIET WAR AGREEMENT

By H. O. THOMPSON
TOKYO, March 25 (Special)—Japanese leaders are engaged in urgent consultations over a German-Italian-Japanese military alliance against any opposition to their policies by the democracies.

Informants said discussions were so bitter that a cabinet crisis might possibly be precipitated.

It was said that at present a majority of leaders were in favor of involving Japan in European matters but were not willing to abandon the Germans' idea unless a better proposition were forthcoming elsewhere.

Baron Kichiro Hirayama, the premier; Hachiro Arima, foreign minister; Lieut. Gen. Seishiro Itagaki, war minister; Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, navy minister; and Soeigo Ishiwata, finance minister, were said to be in frequent conference in an effort to decide Japan's policy.

Visits Emperor
In connection with the alliance talk, it was disclosed that Baron Hirayama had reported to Emperor Hirohito today on the closing of parliament and "pending diplomatic matters."

As Hirayama visited the emperor, 106 of the 466 members of the diet, representing minor parties, sent him a message of congratulatory and a military alliance with Germany and Italy "against Great Britain and France, which are obstructing Japan's present sacred aims."

The petition was presented after the government had refused to permit introduction in parliament of a resolution to the same effect.

Covering Soviet Alone
In favor of the alliance, according to informants, were the Russian, Italian and German sections of the Japanese general staff.

War Minister Itagaki was represented as favoring an alliance to cover the possibility of war against Soviet Russia alone.

Foreign Minister Arima was held to be supporting War Minister Itagaki and to be urging that Japan make a counter-proposal for a military alliance applicable to Russia alone.

It was admitted by those who favored this course, informants said, that Germany and Italy were unlikely to accept any such counter-proposal.

Oppose Broad Alliance
The Japanese navy was said to oppose any broad alliance with the "axis" powers on the ground that the project would call for the dispatch of a Japanese fleet to Europe in event of hostilities and, it was argued, Japan could obtain no balancing compensation.

There were indications here in well-informed quarters that despite the signature yesterday of a Japanese-Italian pact, and other gestures to Germany and Italy, many influential Japanese were lukewarm toward the "axis" and that Germany, particularly, wanted more than she was prepared to give.

Idaho Boxers Gain Edge in Fight Meet

SACRAMENTO, Calif., March 25 (U.S.)—University of Idaho's defending champion held a slight lead in points today as scores from eight fights entered the final of the Pacific coast intercollegiate boxing championships here.

In his preliminary rounds Idaho garnered eight points to seven for California, seven for UCLA and six for Washington State. Ben Jose State of Oregon State each had five and California Aggies and the University of San Francisco each had two. Finals will be run off tonight.

Last night's results included: 127-pound class—T. K. O. (Idaho), defeated Jim T. O. (Trident, U.S.A.); Doug Blassinger, Washington State, defeated Gene Phillips, Idaho.

135-pound class—Les Cuffman, Washington State, took a surprise decision over Frank Kora, Idaho, former coast champion and member of the 1936 Olympic team.

145-pound class—Sam Zingare, Idaho, T. K. O. over Carl Muique, Oregon State, who was floored three times in the second round.

175-pound class—Carl Killian, Idaho, defending champion, defeated Delmar Cline, Washington State, using his left hand effectively to win while bleeding from an eye injury.

A 175-pound, semi-final fight between Larson took advantage of Killian's injury eye to win a decision.

Joe Palmer, Idaho, outpointed Jess Smith, California, 10-8. Ham Meade, California, knocked out Ross Now, Idaho, 10-0.

This evening's semi-final, although a "war-wounded" anti-fist, resulted in body damage to 18 degrees Fahrenheit.

He'd Swap for German Business

With his 12-year ice business steadily melting away, Karl Schurs, 55-year-old German of Dunsmuir, is shown at top with his wife, in trying to arrange a swap with a Jew in Germany whose business has been "Aryanized" by the Nazis. The unnamed Jew would take over the Dunsmuir ice business and Schurs would take over the Jew's business in Stuttgart, Germany. Photo below shows Schurs' house and ice depot which figure in the swap. If the plan succeeds, the Schurs' daughter will accompany her parents to Germany, but their son, Oscar, 22, will remain to teach the refugee the ice business.

WENDELL FARCE PLEASES CROWD

WENDELL, March 25 (Special)—The three-act farce, "Welcome Home Jimmie," presented by the Junior class, proved a success Friday evening before approximately 200 people at the "axis" and the Dunsmuir ice business. Photo below shows Schurs' house and ice depot which figure in the swap. If the plan succeeds, the Schurs' daughter will accompany her parents to Germany, but their son, Oscar, 22, will remain to teach the refugee the ice business.

The musical selections were given between acts, a piano trio "In the Arena," by Rudy Orth, Dorothy Dean and Twilla Orchard; Paul Hoskins sang a baritone solo, "Dum," accompanied by Bob Haysinger.

Characters and students in the cast were: Mrs. Brooks, Maxine Kaseas; Lucille Brocka, Cleta Freeman; Peggy Somers, Virginia Breck; Danny Brooks, Francis Barrett; Val Gardner and also "Jimmie" was played by Gordon Dunsmuir. Other characters: George McCrae; Allen Thuma, Florence Eaton; George Pierce, Art Johnson; and Melinda Pison, Josephine O'Brien. Other students in the cast were Nicka McChure, prompter; Leslie Storkland, stage manager; Charmaine Eaton, properties; and Ave Leina, Petersen, sales manager.

TRANSIENTS GET NO MORE RELIEF

Transients applying for relief in Twin Falls county will bump into stone wall hereafter.

The board of county commissioners ruled Friday that county funds will no longer be given relief applicants whose status is that of transient. The order went to the probate judge, since bulk of the applicants have been appearing before him to sign documents attesting their needy condition.

When approximately a dozen transients entered relief claims Friday, the commissioners decided enough is enough, especially since some had already gotten aid.

Each of the transients was given 20 cents and put to work taking leaves and cleaning walks on the courthouse grounds.

"We told them not to come back," said the commissioners.

Because assistance is "fully needed" in some of the transient cases, the board left relief to necessity for its all-embracing order but expressed belief that some of the transients "are working a racket."

Garden Exchange for Needlecraft Planned
Members of the Needlecraft Club, meeting yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Jane Jensen, announced plans for a garden exchange to be held at the next meeting at the home of Mrs. Angie Iron, 544 second avenue west.

Transients requested to call with current orders and poetry. The hostess offered refreshments during the social hour.

ROD, GUN GROUP SELECTS GEHRIG

SHOSHONE, March 25 (Special)—Fred Gehrig was the new president of the Shoshone Rod and Gun club today following the annual meeting and election last night.

Ed Crissman was named vice-president, and Earl Vredenhof, secretary.

Extensive conservation work of the sportsmen's organization was shown in a report by Dr. J. C. Potter, retiring president, who said that 55,000 large trout had been planted last season in Wood river; and 600 bluegills near Richfield and a smaller number near Richfield.

Private Source
The trout were bought from a private hatchery and were planted by club members.

F. W. Delex suggested that all production of the Hay-Don state hatchery be retained in the Lincoln county territory, and Tom Gooding supported the suggestion with the statement that the state has 19 hatcheries and the output of the Hay-Don one ought to be retained in this territory.

The organization endorsed a resolution to that effect. The recommendation will be submitted to the state game department.

Fish Screens
Alfa Kinsey, inventor of a fish screen, discussed the value of the screens on streams and canals. He said that the screens would be installed in the Lincoln area, near Pocatello and in Soda Springs.

Due to the Rod and Gun club it was decided, will remain the same as last year.

At a meeting set for March 30 the club's standing committee will be named. A session to follow that one is also being arranged, with plans calling for presence of George E. Booth, chairman of the state fish and game commission; Dr. A. B. Hatch, director of the department; and other officials.

Here's Farm Aid Idea—Let's Have 'Chain' Bean Lunches!

A. L. (Al) Norton has an idea. He admits that it's borrowed—at least the basic point of it—but he's convinced it would work if it were tried.

Norton captured his idea from Santa Rosa, Calif., where a "ham and egg chain luncheon" was launched a few days ago. One woman had six others for luncheon, serving them ham and eggs. In turn, the six women partaking of the initial luncheon were to have a luncheon of their own, each inviting six more guests. With eggs selling for 25 cents a dozen, the backers pointed out, a total of $3,785.40 would be spent for eggs alone on the tenth luncheon. The number of eggs consumed at the tenth luncheon would number 180,000.000.

"But then we shouldn't be too ambitious and so we'll start out with four persons at the first luncheon. Under this setup one pound of beans would be served to these four people, each one consuming a quarter of a pound."

"By the time the sixth luncheon series rolled around the total pounds of beans consumed would have gone over the 1,000 mark and a continuation of the 10th meal, a total of 262,144 pounds would have been consumed."

"If tried out on a nationwide scale the result would be something to talk about. The day wouldn't be far off when we would be almost out of beans," Norton said.

Whether or not Norton would actually promote his idea by having four of his friends to luncheon or dinner wasn't learned.

Double Rites For Sisters

RUPERT, March 25 (Special)—Last rites were conducted for Mrs. Margaret Hengstler and Mrs. Elizabeth Hengstler, sisters, at 8 a. m. Wednesday at the Heyburn road L. D. S. church, with Rev. Charles G. Arras, pastor of the Burley Presbyterian church, in charge of the ceremony.

Music was furnished by the choir of the Heyburn L. D. S. church of sang two numbers; by a double quartet from the Heyburn high school who rendered a selection, and by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Payne of Burley who sang a duet.

Palibearers
Palibearers were H. D. Smith, W. J. McKnight, Emory Mosby, Elmer Bowman, George Smith, N. C. Lowry, J. J. Conner, J. M. Still, John Redford, E. E. Kiersey, Levi McDavitt and Lester Taylor. Flower bearers were Dorothy Fruit Handy, Zula Leonard, Pearl Holsten, Gerlie King, Grace Bicker, Hazel MacRae, Etta Mosby, Pearl Handy, Edna Goff, Myrtle Bowman, Cora Sillis, Edna Bigger and Minnie Beatty.

Mrs. Mers was born in Berne, Switzerland, March 27, 1861 and came to the United States in 1879. In Denver, on Oct. 24, 1901, she became the wife of Carl Emil Mers, who died there in 1907. Mrs. Yagie was born in Berne, Switzerland Oct. 18, 1858 and came to the United States in 1881 and was married to Louis William Yagie in Denver in 1884.

Mindoko Pioneers
After his death, with her young son, Louis, and her sister, Mrs. Mers and her young son, Carl, came to the Mindoko project in 1905. Both women homesteaded joining claims near Heyburn where both lived and took active parts in the development of the project. For the past several years both women lived with Mrs. Mers' son Carl Mers and his family.
