GREAT BRITAIN ENVOY RETURNS TO GERMANY

Bottolfsen-Taylor Feud Breaks into Open in Blaze of Charges

IDAHO ATTORNEY SAYS EXECUTIVE SNUBBED ADVICE

By WILLIAM MEMENAHIN
BOISE, April 24 (UP)—A long-anticipated break between Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen and Atty. Gen. J. W. Taylor smoldered under peace efforts for nearly three months, broke into the open in a blaze of charges today.

Taylor said in an interview the governor snubbed his advice and used a "defensive defense" when the chief executive said his constructive administration program was being sabotaged by court actions over technicalities.

"Yes, the governor snubbed because several of his bills have been questioned," Taylor said. "But I did not know the bills were in existence, much less what their contents were, until they had been submitted to the legislature and printed."

"Claims 'Hair Splitting'." Bottolfsen made the point in a statement Sunday that he believed the fundamental purposes of the administration were sound and that critics were splitting hairs to throw obstacles into the road toward their accomplishment.

Taylor said he tried to get the governor to name a number of prominent Republican attorneys to whom criticism and discussion of attorney general's opinions holding a low unconstitutional could be submitted.

"But I got no response," Taylor said. "Had cooperation looked as large when these men were guiding the governor, the present situation might perhaps have arisen. The attorney general, you know, is the constituted legal adviser of the governor."

"Points to 'Technical'." Taylor pointed to the governor's use of the word "technical" referring to attacks on constitutionality of administration measures and quoted from a supreme court decision.

"Large class of defenses are generally designated by technical terms as technical, but it has been an unfortunate observation that the old-fashioned, frank, bold and direct defense is being used by the governor, and it becomes advisable to think in the course of litigation."

Army trucks and reconnaissance cars from Fort Douglas, Utah, started rolling into the county fair grounds at Filer this morning at 10:30 a. m. and groups continued arriving at the fair grounds until nearly 5 p. m. today as officers and men of the 38th infantry prepared overnight camp on route to Fort Lewis, Wash., and war maneuvers.

PUBLIC WORKS, RELIEF SET-UP CHANGE LOOMS

WASHINGTON, April 24 (UP)—Sen. James P. Byrnes, D., O., anticipating a presidential order revising the relief and public works setup, today withdrew from immediate consideration of the senate his bill to reorganize administration of work-relief.

Byrnes, chairman of the special senate unemployment and relief committee, said President Roosevelt would submit the reorganization plan within the next two days.

In the house, Speaker William B. Bankhead said he understood the President to send congress on Thursday his estimate of relief needs for 1940. Senate Majority Leader Allen W. Barkley said recently that the administration had decided upon $1,500,000,000 for the next fiscal year, compared with $2,250,000,000 appropriated this fiscal year.

Indicates Changes. Without predicting specially what form Mr. Roosevelt's reorganization order would take, Byrnes indicated it would not apply to the national youth administration and civilian conservation corps. Byrnes' bill had proposed consolidating these two agencies with the WPA and PWA, the bureau of public works, and the public bureau, a branch of the treasury department.

From his exclusion of CCC and PWA, it appeared Byrnes expected the President to recommend merger of the relief and public construction agencies in a single unit for economy, personnel costs and efficiency in operation.

New Allocation. Byrnes said that he intends to ask consideration of his measure later, regardless of any reorganization order, because the bill carries a new basis for allocating federal funds to states and specifies provisions regulating spending of such money, provisions which would not be included in an executive order.

The modified reorganization bill, enacted by congress this summer after a two-year struggle, gives Mr. Roosevelt authority to shift government agencies by executive order. Such changes have been made automatically since vetoed specifically by both houses of congress within 60 days.

Before Byrnes withdrew his bill, Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., offered a substitute measure which would remove administration of work relief to the states.

The two-year struggle, which gave Mr. Roosevelt authority to shift government agencies by executive order, has been a long and difficult one.

Poland Marches as to War

Odds Favor European War, World-wide Survey Shows

Editor's note: Around the world went a message from the New York headquarters of the United Press asking its correspondents in major capitals for the latest authoritative opinion on the chances for war at present in Europe. Their replies were based on off-the-record talks with government leaders and foreign news makers in every world power at the beginning of what may be a fateful week in Europe's history.

The government is not adhering to the extreme right or left but is following a middle course.

AXIS MOVES TO COMPLETION OF BALKAN TIE-UPS

(By United Press)

Great Britain sent her ambassador to Berlin in an eleventh hour peace gesture today and re-doubled efforts to convince the totalitarian bloc that it cannot win a general war as Europe tensely awaited Adolf Hitler's reply, due Friday, on President Roosevelt's peace message.

Conscription in Great Britain appeared to be the weapon that the government of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain was using as a necessary against Germany and Italy. It was for Hitler to take a constructive attitude towards the President's proposals.

In Paris, a high source said that Sir Neville Henderson, the British ambassador to Berlin, would warn Hitler that Britain contemplates breaking with tradition and introducing conscription.

In London, Winston Churchill, dissenting conservative, said compulsory service was increasingly possible. Thus, Henderson's sudden return to his post was expected to be both an offer to Germany to negotiate for peace and a warning that Britain would go to the limit if necessary to end aggression in Europe.

Whether these moves lead nearer to war or back along the road towards peace will probably depend on the outcome of the present tug of war between the British-French bloc and the German-Italian bloc for dominance in the Balkans.

Italy Makes Progress. With Hungary already securely tied to the Rome-Berlin axis, the Italian government made important progress in negotiations with Jugoslavia, leading to a statement that the Belgrade government would cooperate with Rome both militarily and politically.

Bulgaria remained the principal Balkan nation still undecided, with the prospect of entering offers from both sides.

With hope of Spain swinging around from the non-belligerent to the belligerent, Great Britain and France concentrated on bringing Romania to join their anti-aggression front and in completing negotiations with Turkey and Soviet Russia.

HOUSE APPROVES WAR BILL REPORT

WASHINGTON, April 24 (UP)—The house today approved the conference report on the 1940 war department appropriation bill for 1940 which will give the army 300 new planes and vastly increase its armor.

As soon as the senate acts on the bill, the appropriation measure will be sent to the White House for signature.

The appropriation bill carries the first actual cash for the vast defense program authorized in a previous bill which was passed by the house and which would permit the army to build up its air corps to 8,000 planes and begin an intensive program to reduce its inventory in producing materiel.

The house (under committee, measure) approved a measure to increase the number of military camps and to give light-of-day to a defense bill authorizing the United States to acquire a $100,000,000 fund of strategic war materiel.

AUTO OVERTURNS IN ROAD MISHAP

Forced into the borrow pit when they attempted to pass a car and trailer on the right, G. E. Harkins and Ray Turner, Hansen youth, sustained minor injuries about 5 p. m. Sunday.

The youth were in a 1939 motor car which turned completely over into the ditch, sheriff's officers said today. Turner was brushed about the head and shoulders.

The pair, according to officers, sought to pass Tim Brown, Twin Falls, on the left side but found they could not get around his car and trailer, hauling an empty water tank. They swung around the right side and sounded their horns, hearing the bell, pulled over to the right, investigating officers reported.

The accident occurred half a mile south and half a mile east of Berer. Officers said both youths are about 21. Their car was considerably smashed at the front end.

AUTOIST TO FACE DRIVING CHARGE

Charge of failing to halt at a stop sign had been placed today against E. J. Murphy, Kansas, who is visiting in Murrah as a result of an accident which occurred at the intersection of the highway and highway 93 west of Twin Falls Sunday.

Murphy, according to a report made by a state policeman who filed the driving violation complaint, failed to make a stop as he entered highway 20. He is alleged to have swung over to the wrong side of the road, striking the left rear wheel of a car going toward Piler, which was driven by a Mr. Younger, Kansas. No personal injury resulted.

Appearing before Probate Judge C. A. Bailey Sunday afternoon, Murphy pleaded not guilty to the charge and had hearing set for 10 a. m. Monday April 25.

Murphy is at Bluff under $250 bond.

It is expected that a new law for infractions monthly will be established this year.

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON, April 24 (AP)—Reports that President Roosevelt contemplates another major cabinet change continued today to the point that this week may be a vital one in domestic and foreign policy.
Both the war and navy departments figure in discussion of cabinet shifts. It is understood an active search is on for a successor to Secretary of Navy Claude A. Swenson, who long has been ill.
Mr. Roosevelt probably would find another past for Swenson who is a military strategist of long experience. There appears to be less basis for expecting an early vacancy in the war department which is headed by Secretary Henry H. Woodring. Both service departments have grown tremendously in importance during the Roosevelt administration as arms limitation policies were succeeded by an efficiency program which is costing the taxpayers $100,000,000 or more a year.

Awake Hitler Reply
Importance of war and navy administration and of the rearmament program may be further emphasized this week when Chancellor Hitler utters Germany's reply to Mr. Roosevelt's April 15 plea. Hitler will speak on April 28.
The conflict between Mr. Roosevelt and Herr Hitler's ideas now has become so pronounced and evident that what the German says in Berlin must be expected to have a marked impact in Washington. The tempo and tone of his reply are particularly important on this occasion because congress is in the process of revising neutrality legislation.

Two Opposing Groups
There are two opposing groups here with a numerous body of opinion. One group would give the President freedom to forbid potential enemies access to our radio airwaves while offering every facility for potential friends to arm themselves from our stores of foodstuffs and munitions. The other group, so-called isolationists, would treat all alike and, preferably, prevent either friend or foe from dipping into our resources in time of emergency. What Hitler says and how he says it may weigh heavily in the scales of that dispute.
Domestic problems are almost equally as urgent this week. Mr. Roosevelt expects within a few days to send to congress the first of a series of orders for government reorganization. The unemployment relief dispute also will be revived this week and tax revision conferences will be resumed this week at the White House.

CASHIER HELD ON FORGERY CHARGE

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Joseph Catbone, 37, $50-a-week cashier for Doubleday, Doran and Company, who bought a $38,000 house, three cars, a 36-foot cabin cruiser and joined three swank clubs, has been indicted on 18 counts of larceny and forgery.
He disappeared March 8 when auditors began checking the books of the literary giant, a branch of the publishing house. The auditors were called in by Col. Theodore Roosevelt, vice-president of Doubleday and Doran, who had learned from his wealthy friend that his $50-a-week employee had become the felon member in the first bank and swindle club.
Police estimate Catbone's productions at $158,000.

SKID IN TAXES COSTS SUE
REDDING, Calif. (AP)—The reason why taxes are high here appears to be that it costs too much to collect them. A report to the city council for one month showed that it had cost $10.20 to collect $8.40 in back assessments.

EARLY RESERVOIR DRAIN FORECAST

Considerable melting of snows on the Jackson lake watershed has been noted during the past month and in only one other year during the last 20 has the snow survey showed less water in April than in March. Lynn Crandall, Snake river watermaster, said today in report sent to the office of the Twin Falls Canal company.
Indications at the present time are that Jackson lake will fill about June 1 and that high water will be past by June 10, with draft on reservoir storage beginning at an earlier date than the past several seasons.

The April snow survey of the watershed was made by B. B. Hill, Jackson lake reservoir superintendent at Moran, Wyo. The results of this survey follow.
Moran, 14 inches of snow with water content of 6.3 inches; Moran Bay, 46 inches snow with water content, 28.7 inches; Aster creek, 50 inches snow with water content of 22.2 inches; Lewis lake divide, 81 inches of snow with water content of 36.7 inches; Colter creek, 37 inches of snow with 15.8 inches water; Glade creek, 44 inches of snow with water content of 20 inches.

Parents Register Pupils for Clinic

BURLEY, April 24 (Special)—All parents of children who will be in the third grade at the Overland, Miller or Southard schools next school year, are urged to bring these children for a free medical examination May 4 and May 5, at the Miller school.

This clinic is being sponsored by the Parent-Teacher associations of the three schools with the cooperation of Mrs. Lois Bachman, county nurse. However, to carry on the clinic efficiently, it is imperative that the Parent-Teacher organizations have by April 25 the name of every child who is to be examined. It is requested that the parents of every child eligible for this examination notify the following persons:
Parents desiring free medical examination for children who will attend the Overland first grade next September, call Mrs. William Powell or Ray Peterson.
Parents desiring free medical examination for children who will attend the Miller first grade next September, call Mrs. John U. Rencher or John Holvick.
Parents desiring free medical examination for children who will attend the Southard school first grade next September, call Mrs. J. L. Salmon or Ernest Blauer.

The purpose of this clinic is to give every parent an opportunity to have his child examined for physical defects in ample time to have those defects corrected before school begins in the fall. All those desiring smallpox vaccination or diphtheria immunizations for these children may have the work done free of charge at this time.

Hints Given for Better Pasture

Because south Idaho is a heavy livestock region, and because pasture is exercised much by her in importance to a stock raising program, a list of 14 pasture hints to ranchers was issued today by Bert Holmberg, county agent.
The data, submitted to the agent by (Lynn H. Longhough), extension dairyman, include:
1. Pasture supplies the cheapest form of roughage during the growing season.
2. The pasture season in Idaho extends over a six months period.
3. Idaho soils, and climate are well adapted to pasture production.
4. Pasture grasses adapted to Idaho are high in nutritive value and yield heavily.
5. Legumes will increase protein content of pasture.
6. White or Ladino clover and orchard grass are the best sources of nitrogen calcium, and phosphorus of the pasture plants adapted to Idaho.
7. Proper irrigation greatly increases yields of Idaho pasture.
8. Scattering of manure clumps will increase carrying capacity about eight per cent.
9. Fertilization of pasture increases yield. Barnyard manure gives excellent results. Phosphate may increase yield, nutritive value, and maintain legume stand.
10. Both over-grazing and under-grazing are harmful to pastures.
11. Yields of forage are less when continuous grazing is practiced than when a system of alternate grazing is used.
12. Pasture should be grazed when four to six inches high and growing rapidly. Such growth is most palatable, highest in total digestible nutrients on the dry basis, and contains the most vitamin A.
13. Well-managed pasture will carry two to 3.75 per cent cows per acre.
14. Suck to six inches high and sweet-clover or sudan grass is helpful in supplying early pasturage and relief to the permanent pasture during the late part of the summer.

"Masher" Routed

ALAMEDA, Calif. (AP)—The latest streamlined masher technique for picking up girls is—or, rather, was—a loud speaker installed by a 20-year-old youth in their automobile and which greeted all passing girls with a blaring of "Hey, look! Want a ride?" The police changed the tune of the verb from "to" to "was."

Larry Splashes!

Dear Pot Shots:

It's all in this morning game but we have to admit that Larry Lawrence stole the show down at Thousand Springs yesterday.

Larry and two others, riding in a boat which was built for only one, were heading toward the shore. The operator shut off the motor and Larry stood up to paddle the rest of the way.

The fellow in the back turned to attend to the motor and the boat gave a lurch. Larry lost his footing, and the river received him—and how.

But not to be embarrassed, the said Mr. Lawrence very nonchalantly walked in water up to his neck and led the boat to the dock.

Under questioning he admitted it was a little cool for swimming.

WE DON'T SEE eye-to-eye with our board of advisers on the winners of the second half of the flax contest, but the board outvoted us.

But the board says an even more marvelous performance was that of Rupert N. Marine, who based various and sundry fish and came with one bullet and a couple of buttons. So Rupert N. Marine gets the 50 cents.

THE BOARD COULDN'T decide on runner-up honors (which carry 25 cents, anyway), so the second prize was split between two.

One of the winners was a fellow who lives either in Kimberly or Twin Falls and who told of the last-catch clouds. Highline Sherry, of Buell, was another.

By sending in a flax, Sherry made a huge clamor for him. Eduardo, of Twin Falls, who found John's flax, placed him in the third prize.

Honorable mention is bestowed on E. V. Van, Twin Falls, who were out of a flax pointing at him. Smartly, Twin Falls, who sent in a flax, but his flax, Grandpappy Appley, Buell.

SERIAL STORY BORDER ADVENTURE

BY OREN ARNOLD

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Wednesday, Hope and Sheridan are startled by a noise in the half hour later, the rifle hear a noise as the rifle hear a noise. The noise was Betty's gun.

CHAPTER VII

"WHAT you suggest is foolish, and if you insist, I'll shoot you down as you there!"

"No! No! Betty! My gun! My gun!"

"There's a thing of mine. They're moving on at a fast walk. The night may—please, on the top of—"

"No! Absolutely not! I'll both go with me, all right. I think you should, rather than face such a number of them. But to leave just one of you—no!"

"But one Border Patrol man can arrest a hundred others! Why Hope of it, either can stay and—"

"No!"

"Then suddenly there was a dimming confusion of noise. Riders dismounting, light frightened horses fall and tumble down steep rocky slopes. Shots and stampings, a shouting, a shouting, a shouting.

"Then you'll lie right down here flat and not make a sound till the men have gone. Then you'll get up. He wrapped his woolen field blanket around her as she prepared to crouch in safety behind the great rock.

"Don't you make a single noise, no matter what happens!" they repeated, and then all at once she was alone.

"It was unnecessary for the two officers to discuss their own plans, even though a woman had come to disturb them. Twenty-four hours earlier they had agreed on points of attack and it was now their turn to execute them.

As usual, Hope going first and Sheridan last. They would suffer the enemy to pass by Sheridan unharmed, and then they would attack.

There was resistance, but it would be in position to make a flank attack. Rapid firing from the quarters invariably impressed the enemy, the officers had learned. It sounded like a strong force even though the officers numbered just two men.

By now the officers had sighted Sheridan knew that there must be at least a dozen men coming, and of course as many men. He heard the sound of hooves on rocks, and the sound of hooves on rocks added noise. Soon the caravan was close enough for Sherry to see its bulky, moving forms, but any people in it were entirely silent. They must realize, Sherry knew, that this was the precarious part of their journey. Here, or there, they were being intercepted by officers if ever they were going to be. Sherry waited for Hope's challenge.

"HAT!"

The challenge came ringing clear.

"Manos arriba!" Hope continued, shouting in Spanish. "The men in move will be shot. This is the Border Patrol!"

"CRACK!"

A SHOT came instantly from the caravan. Then half a dozen more. Evidently the men had been riding with weapons in hand, perhaps even cocked, here in the dangerous American zone. The fire was directed mostly at the sound of Hope Kildare's voice.

A SHOT came instantly from the caravan. Then half a dozen more. Evidently the men had been riding with weapons in hand, perhaps even cocked, here in the dangerous American zone. The fire was directed mostly at the sound of Hope Kildare's voice.

Then suddenly there was a dimming confusion of noise. Riders dismounting, light frightened horses fall and tumble down steep rocky slopes. Shots and stampings, a shouting, a shouting, a shouting.

Speaking of Accents

In perfect fashion, the trio had the nicest things to say about American women—how alert they were to self-improvement; what good cooks and how hospitable. Their voices had an appealing, "stage language" sound, and it was like having a conversation with Ruth Chatterton, Ruth Chatterton and Ruth Chatterton.

Just as I gathered up my gloves and purse, preparations to an exit following lunch, one of the girls remarked, "You have no idea how we are enjoying our stay in America. And we just love your American accent!"

Dr. Steelman Made Special Government Mediator in Coal Crisis

STRIKE PENALTY REMAINS AS TOP TROUBLE POINT

NEW YORK, April 24 (AP)—Dr. John R. Steelman, designated special government mediator, pointed out today that the strike penalty remains as the top trouble point in the coal industry today.

He was given the official designation last night by Secretary of Labor Frances Perkins in Washington as the prospect of a soft coal famine increased, because of the outbreak that has kept 34,000 miners of the Appalachian area idle since April 1.

The conference among the United Mine Workers and the Appalachian operators was resolved into a formal mediation proceeding with Steelman's arrival. As director of the labor department's conciliation service, he had spent two days here meeting with operators and union leaders last week on Mrs. Perkins' instructions, but had returned to Washington with negotiations still deadlocked.

The chief point of dispute is the union's demand for removal of penalty clauses, imposing fines of $1 to $2 daily on miners for unauthorized strikes, from the new working contract. Operators have rejected the demand, stating that the union's position is unreasonable.

Charles O'Neill, spokesman for the operators, said "we haven't agreed on anything."

Meanwhile, there were complaints from railroad and public utility managers and municipal leaders of a coal shortage that threatened to grow more serious.

CLAUDE PRATT

Claude Pratt is aware of the fact that he has to keep up a large volume of work on a low margin basis in order to conform to the times in which we live. A carload of merchandise will cost you no longer than a shirt in the past. Now it costs you something, gentlemen, to take notice of—especially, you people who live a long way from Twin Falls like Gary, Hildreth, Halley, Three Creeks and every other kind of a creek. We perhaps have about fifty tons or more of stock salt on hand in blocks, in the sack and in old-fashioned mined rock salt in the lumps. Now we are going to make a special inducement to you folks who buy this salt in 500-lb. lots or more. We will sell it $11 a ton—that means that you can actually buy 500 lbs. of salt for $27.50 or a half a ton for $55.00. So just bring out your truck or trailer and take it. It will cost you $12 a ton. So you will save by buying a little larger volume and save the trouble of giving it to your wife for Christmas morning.

Well, and here you can save. If you just finished unloading our fourth carload of Arkansas Motor Oil—you had a membership card in the Pratt Sales Company which would give you five per cent reduction on this oil. Well, now this oil will cost you in thirty gallon lots or more forty-seven cents a gallon. The regular price in five gallon lots up to thirty gallons is fifty-seven cents a gallon. And in thirty gallon lots the regular price is fifty-seven cents a gallon. It would even give you five per cent reduction on the stock salt. In other words a ton of stock salt to a member would only cost ten dollars and forty-five cents.

The membership would also entitle you to five per cent reduction on almost all paint and varnishes, tires and tubes, pliers and shovels, sparkplugs and canvas for dums, shotgun shells, rope, gun and trap grease and all sorts of odds and ends. We are already selling the axle grease for a nickel a pound—that would mean four and three-quarters cents a pound. It would also mean a reduction of five per cent in wall paper and kalsomine—and even coal oil which we are just offering for sale at half price per gallon and it used to cost eighteen cents a gallon wholesale. We're just getting started. And it would also mean a reduction of the highest grade kerosene in the cleanest possible way. We have hauled a three thousand gallon tank and it would also mean a reduction of five per cent in triple treated—your know it takes a little time to work some of these things but it's efficient and just something that takes an Arkansas member a little longer to work things out than it would white people. But an Arkansas member can't get a better price. I don't forget that our prices on building materials the very lowest—even lower than non-industry lumber.

Well, and here you can save. If you just finished unloading our fourth carload of Arkansas Motor Oil—you had a membership card in the Pratt Sales Company which would give you five per cent reduction on this oil. Well, now this oil will cost you in thirty gallon lots or more forty-seven cents a gallon. The regular price in five gallon lots up to thirty gallons is fifty-seven cents a gallon. And in thirty gallon lots the regular price is fifty-seven cents a gallon. It would even give you five per cent reduction on the stock salt. In other words a ton of stock salt to a member would only cost ten dollars and forty-five cents.

PUBLIC TIRES OF BIZARRE IN ART

NEW YORK (AP)—Surrealist and abstract painting may be king but only for the moment, Dr. Gregory Razran, of Columbia university believes.

The public's taste of swing and surrealism, he said, and in the long run prefers classical music of the 17th and 18th centuries as a standard. Abstract art which has "form but no meaning."

Hanan, research associate in the department of psychology at Columbia, recently completed tests on more than 400 people uninitiated in music and art.

"When the tests were started," he said, "the subjects liked swing very much more than they liked it more quickly than any other type of music. The romantic music of Chopin, Tchaikovsky and Beethoven was the next most popular at the beginning."

Proves Difficult
Classical music of the 17th and 18th centuries and serious modern music, such as that composed by Havel, Copland, Shostakovich and Stravinsky proved the most difficult for the subjects to appreciate but were learned to enjoy. The modern music they did not tire of as they did of the other types.

The tests also were conducted to evaluate various schools of painting, such as the abstract, surrealist and classical. The results, Razran said, showed that abstract art, surrealist art, which distorts reality and has a hidden meaning, did not have the "stable appeal" of art with a more prominent thought behind it.

"Women tended to be interested in surrealist art, while men preferred abstract art," he said. "There was also a definite correlation between musical instability and surrealist art. Subjects who were emotionally unstable liked surrealist art more than those who were emotionally stable liked abstract paintings higher."

May Robson, Grand Lady of Films, Still Going Strong

By PAUL HARRISON

(NEA Service)

HOLLYWOOD—At 75, the grand old lady of the movie is not much inclined toward reminiscence. Thumbing backward through the album of her 55 seasons of acting would be a wheel-chair pastime, and Miss Robson would rather look ahead.

There's a lot of work to be done and fun to be had, and she feels kind of silly about all the fuss that Hollywood has been making over this anniversary which doesn't seem especially significant to her.

Maybe in another quarter of a century the final curtain will fall but whenever it does, "Ma" Robson smiles on long among the people and the actors she loves. She is convinced that her life work is a life giving work and that retirement would be but out of the world.

"Drives Motor"

I've noticed she said, whenever some wealthy old man closes his desk and announces he is through with work, he's dead with in a year. Something slows up the motor inside when you don't keep it busy with work. It must be driven by the emotion of accomplishment.

"Some people seem to think I just want to keep on earning money, or that I want to stay in the limelight. Nonsense. I can do anything else. Nobody thinks I'm funny if a woman likes to look all her life, or keep her hair in good order. Well, I take the same pride in what I do."

Variety Spies of Life
She does a great many things, this alert, lively-eyed little woman of 62 inches and 203 pounds. She belongs to clubs, delivers lectures, travels, looks after investments, writes three letters a week to her son, grandson or great-granddaughter in New York, gives dinners and attends to her own affairs. She is a Christmas presents, cares for an aviary containing 44 canaries and Oriental finches and a parrot named Percy, and is constantly in demand for pictures.

In the past several years she has built 11 model cottages for millions of modest means, and she has bought and improved 10 other properties, mostly apartments and bungalows, which are rented out to people with children.

Every working day, Miss Robson rises shortly after 8, reads the papers, breakfasts, confers with her secretary-companion of 22 years, Lillian Harmer, and reaches the studio about 8.

During the long waits between scenes, she never goes to her dressing room to rest, preferring to sit in the set, chatting and knitting. Untold scores of young players owe a lot to Ma's May; she always keeps an eye on panicky newcomers and bolsters their confidence with her gay and easy talk.

She's Modern
Everything about her is in tune with modern ways except, perhaps, her concern about the attitude of the modern generation.

"People these days are always talking about making a lot of money so they won't have to work any more," she complained. "I think the desire to loaf is responsible for most of the dissatisfaction with the world today."

"I feel as young as ever though I walk slower. I don't wear glasses. Last year I met my first two teachers, a couple of slim Irish and they weren't but except that they were wearing air of shyness."

"Mrs. I'm not all that much of a fit and neat, and a touch of promiscuity, and I tripped on my dog in the dark and fell and broke an arm. Didn't even know I was broken until we got to the hospital."

"I never smoked in my life. I never smoked in my life. I never smoked in my life."

Not Tired Yet

MAY ROBSON

If God had intended me to be fat I'd have been fat anyway. Never had time for beauty treatments and never used anything but soap and water.
