GERMAN MINISTER MAY REFUSE TO SEE BRITISH ENVOY

VON RIBBENTROP REPORTED 'BUSY' AND OUT OF CITY

By FREDERICK KUH
LONDON, April 25 (UP)—German minister Ribbentrop today said that Joseph von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and Adolf Hitler might refuse to see Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador, before Hitler speaks to the German Reichstag Friday.

Henderson was sent unexpectedly back to Berlin after a long absence with urgent instructions from the government. He sought an audience with Hitler and was expected to see Ribbentrop this morning to urge that Hitler tone down his Reichstag speech answering President Roosevelt's peace appeal. It was understood that Henderson was instructed to say that unless European tension lessened at once, Britain might resort to compulsory military service.

Out of Town
Word came from Berlin today that, at Ribbentrop's office, it was said the foreign minister was out of town, and might not be back tomorrow—and anyway he was very busy. Usually well informed, German quarters here indicated Henderson might be snubbed. It was said that in view of his five weeks' absence from Berlin—he was recalled to "report" after the seizure of Czechoslovakia—leaders of the German government, who at present were extremely busy, might find it difficult to see him before the Reichstag speech.

Not Available
It was further suggested that, unless some change occurred, no German foreign office official higher than the chief of British section might be available.

Announcement that the government had decided in principle that conscription was necessary made in the house of commons before Hitler makes his speech.

A high official source confirmed that the outstanding feature of the special message Henderson was taking to Germany was a warning that conscription was imminent.

SITE PICKED FOR GROWER SESSION

Local details for the Twin Falls growers' session of the Idaho Potato and Onion Growers Association to be held at the Idaho advertising commission headquarters today by County Agent Bert Hollingshead. The session will be held at 8 p. m. Friday, May 5, in the district court room.

Arranged by Agents
Selection of meeting places for the sessions at Jerome May 6, Burley May 7 and Pocatello May 8 will be made by county agents at those communities. The parties there probably also will be at 8 p. m.

Speakers at the Twin Falls gathering, and at the others in the series, will include field experts of the Idaho fruit and vegetable advertising commission, Mr. Hollingshead said. The field men have ranged over a considerable part of the United States in the promotion drive for Idaho spuds, onions, prunes and apples. They will tell growers what they have found to be results of the ad drive.

Pettygrove Talks
E. N. Pettygrove, state commissioner of agriculture and member of the commission, will also speak here. He will talk on results of the commission's survey.

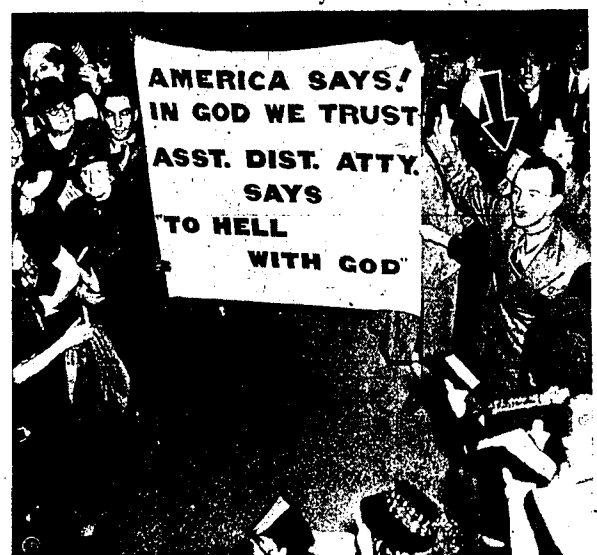

Since the existing commission becomes dead June 30, and a new group must be selected under the simpler title of "Idaho advertising commission," the south Idaho growers will make recommendations for growers-dealer appointments.

WCTU Resolutions Rap At Idaho's Liquor Evils

BURLEY, April 25 (Special)—Adoption of resolutions presented by Mrs. Anna Leighton, Buhl, and carried by Mrs. G. L. Thompson, Buhl; Mrs. J. L. Garver, Weiser; and Mrs. May F. Blake, Twin Falls, was an important feature of the business session of the Women's Christian Temperance Union, at the fifth district spring institute in Burley last week.

Next institute will be held in September, and Kimberly will be the locale. It was determined at the session.

Resolutions adopted included these salient points:

Approve Child Welfare
Approving a child welfare program that would "provide a gradual expanding of maternal and child health service and effective administration of the child labor provisions of the fair labor standards act of 1938."

Assertion that all manner of vice is "encouraged and enhanced" by places at which beer and liquor are sold, and declaration that the W. C. T. U. will endeavor to "provide or provide for the removal of such places from residential districts, rural areas and highways."

Declaration that the W. C. T. U. will work "to end the glorification of drinking in the movies."

Approving efforts to "take liquor out of dance halls, filling stations, restaurants and hotels."

Renewal and enlargement of efforts to teach youth "all known scientific facts concerning effects of alcohol on the human body."

Alcohol Education
Appeal to educators, teachers and all Idaho citizens to see that this teaching is carried forward.

Necessity for adult alcohol education "on a far larger scale" because a survey by a leading woman's magazine shows 60 per cent of the 30,000,000 women of America "are drinking drinking by women now."

When the youngsters get "nice and dirty" these Spring days, they'll clean up much more willingly if there's plenty of hot water on tap. An automatic electric water heater provides enough hot water for all the grimy hands and necks and ears—and makes it fun to get clean. And don't forget—there'll be an ample supply of hot water for dishes and shaving and laundry, too. Idaho Power's very low electric water heating rates make the cost very reasonable—down payments and monthly terms to suit any family budget. Who'll Propose Peace?

Europe poises trembling on the brink of the abyss. Every thinking leader in every country knows that a long-drawn-out general war, sweeping from Asia and North Africa across all Europe to Gibraltar and Land's End, would be a death blow to civilization as we have known it.

Yet not one responsible European leader will get up on his hind legs and attempt to organize peace instead of war. By peace, we mean organized peace, not a mere stalemate and truce between wars while feverishly preparing for the next.

The continual state of crisis, the crushing burden of arms, the suspicion, the hatred that mark the present state of not-war, is only less destructive than war itself. This is not peace.

Let us suppose that war comes. After brilliant initial victories, the struggle will bog back into another long, slogging endurance contest of blood-letting, with victory going to that country or alliance of countries which is last to give way to internal revolution and chaos.

Then will come the peace conference. And how else can such a conference end than the last one ended? Into the next "peace" will be distilled the hatreds, the fears, the jealousies, the desperation of the next war. It can not be otherwise.

Is there no way to speak to the peoples themselves? They do not want war. They never want war. They know all too well that they are the ones, not the leaders, who must die on the barbed wire.

Is there not one responsible statesman in Europe willing to "make a fool of himself" by demanding that a peace conference be held now, instead of amid the ruins of Europe five years later?

It would be hard for his appeal to reach people in those countries where press and radio are so rigidly censored, but it could to some extent be done. The rashest dictator will hesitate if even a part of his people can be told what looms ahead. The people of every country are in a mood to sacrifice much for peace. Whatever consideration is given in Europe to President Roosevelt's peace proposal will be given because some of the plain people have heard it.

The peoples of the world—all of them—want peace! Are there not in the world other leaders beside our own President who will make even a gesture to try to give it to them?

10 Million Homely Women

The time was, and not so long ago, when movie actresses were a pretty dull lot. An occasional juicy scandal, yes, but snappy quips and quips, no.

Happily all that is past. With the new sophistication that has come to the movies during the past 10 years, there has come also a new type of movie actress, witty and sometimes learned, to say nothing of socially conscious. This is dandy.

But for light-minded whimsy, Loretta Young has now taken the cake and a couple of blueberry pies to boot. She proposes that now that the government is doing everything for everybody, it ought to make beauty treatments available to all women.

"I honestly believe," says the elfish Miss Young, who is as beautiful as anything, and ought to know, "that the turning of 10,000,000 homely women into beauties is a lot more important to the well-being of this country than the building of one medium-sized battleship. And it wouldn't cost as much."

Mebbe so, Loretta, but what congressman is going to take his political future in his hands by first admitting that the country has 10,000,000 homely women?

The Builders March

Gestures and ceremonies that go with the opening of new projects are usually pretty meaningless.

There is the cut ribbon, the smashed bottle, the phony golden key, and the knot of languid stuffed shirts who have had little or nothing to do with the project and care less.

The New York World's fair is going to have one feature at its opening that means something. Fifteen thousand members of labor unions, who have helped build the fair, will march in the opening parade.

Why not? They have built well, and they are proud of what they have done. Workmen always are.

Among the curious requests received by the wreckers of the Sixth Avenue Elevated in New York was one from a man who wanted a bolt from it—he had worked on its construction many years before, and wanted something to remember it by.

It is all too seldom that the ordinary rank-and-file workman gets a chance to show his justified and normal pride in what his hands, his skill, and his brains have produced.

Pot Shots: This world is full of rank injustice and the rankness of the rank is being exposed in almost every place. Why is it that skinny folks always get jumped on, when fat folks don't? People who wouldn't think of letting a plump lady horse fat she, think nothing at all of pointing out in the baldest manner imaginable just where a skinny lady protrudes at angles and doesn't protrude in curves. This folks don't enjoy being that way any more than the fat enjoy being portly. Our collar bones are just as embarrassing to us as that stomach "self" is to the fat man.

We don't enjoy having people edge away when they see our elbows stick out, for fear they'd be stabbed.

In fact, we don't like the whole set-up. Let that be a lesson to somebody.

IN CASE YOU'RE INTERESTED by the current name-calling between railroads and truck lines throughout these United States, you may be intrigued by the following parable. It was brought in by a local agent who thought maybe you'd like to hear it. If not, skip the item. After all, it's spring and the weather is warm.

PARABLE
A certain mother had two sons. The younger was healthy and vigorous and was ever alert for ways to improve himself. The older son had been laid up for many years, and was very fat and self-indulgent. He became very ill, but he feared he would die. Having been the only child for so long, with a monopoly on every affection, the older son disliked the younger. He was afraid the younger son was taking his place in the family and would be the cause of all his misfortunes.

The older son then set about to undermine his brother, at first on the sly, but as his ailment became more acute, his self-pity grew, causing him to become indignant and angry. He decided to murder his brother, and he did so by poisoning him with a deadly drug.

The younger son, who had been very ill, recovered and became very healthy and vigorous. He then went to the city where his brother had been killed, and he found that his brother's body had been buried in a grave.

Yesterday, the officers and men of the Border Patrol were watching from the top of the hill behind the rock, Betty and Sheri, who were waiting for the shooting to begin. Betty was the girl who had been shot by the patrolmen. Sheri was the man who had been shot by the patrolmen.

CHAPTER VIII

learned to shoot when she was a teen-age girl. At the same time when she was learning to ride a horse, she had thought it grand relief from piano lessons then, but she had never foreseen any practical application of the principle whereby a person can shoot accurately without taking aim. But in the emergency now, she knew involuntarily what to do.

Betty Mary saw the alien about to kill Hope Kidlare from behind. She did not scream nor faint nor even try to find the sights of her pistol. She simply unholstered it, lifted it and fired, all in one precise motion. She was close enough, and cool enough, that the bullet quite definitely broke the alien's leg.

"For God's sake lie down, Betty Mary!"

It was Hope himself who shouted that. He had known the boulder behind which she was concealed and so knew it must be she when her gun flashed in the darkness. He knelt out the man with whom he was fighting—first, wrestling an empty gun from his hand—and then the other alien fell. Then he plunged recklessly down the hill to her, bounding over stones.

"What in the world are you doing?" he demanded, pushing her to a crouching position with him. "Didn't we tell you to lay low? But you shot that alien? You got him—by gosh you did, Betty Mary!"

"He was about to club you with his rifle," she stated quite simply. "From the rear?"

"Yes, that's that—why say?"

He gripped both of her shoulders, almost hurting her with his strength.

"And you were fighting with the other man," she added. "You would have been killed. There wasn't time to warn you."

"My story, Betty Mary," Hope almost whispered, "I'll tell you have to—your saved my life! You—!" He was breathing fast from exertion and was touched now by emotion, too.

"The shooting has ceased," she said. "Where is Mr. Starr?"

His hands left her shoulders and he stood looking down at the ground. "I don't know," he said. "I got lost in the dark."

"Extra bueno!" Sheridan yelled back, still speaking Spanish. "I've got four coming."

THE young officers never quite knew whether any of the aliens escaped or not, but they didn't care. Darkness and rocks impeded them so that they had a long work of work there, even after the first surrender.

Of 12 prisoners taken, three were badly wounded and had been given first aid in the dim glow of flashlights. Betty Mary took a sliver of peacock into strips for bandage. One of the men reached for a gun, and she pleaded with Betty Mary, in Spanish, to send him a word of love back to his family near the border.

"I wanted," said he, brokenly, "to come here, where is free, where is happiness for everyone—this America, it is good to die here, if I must die."

Sheridan Starr was trying to stop a flow of blood from the man's side. He paused to look at Betty Mary, their faces very near, strained. And in the darkness, too, she heard not the dying man but the strong-muscled American officer sobbing, the big man who could fight furiously for order and law.

"This is—always—the payoff," Betty Mary said. Sheridan sobbed it, dashed. "My God, we have to do it. But—I can't—blame the poor devils. They have so little at home. The United States is heaven—to them!"

She was holding the Mexican's hand now, and stroking his brow ever so tenderly, trying desperately to control her own crying. It was a man of perhaps 30 years. The cut of his features and the cleanliness of him despite his poor clothes, suggested gentility.

"He doesn't look criminal," Betty Mary whispered. "He looks like a man who would be a good citizen."

"About half of them are not," Sheridan declared. "They are just slaves—wanting freedom and happiness, and a chance in life, that they can't get where they were born."

There were no more words and Sheridan went to help another, wounded man. Perhaps 10 minutes later the first wounded man was dead.

"BETTY MARY," Hope Kidlare said, "I'm glad you're here. I can try to say my thanks now, I suppose. For saving my life."

The two were on horseback now, riding guard behind the string of prisoners who had been tied together with a lariar rope. They had progressed slowly out from the dark lands, and dawn was casting its first illumination.

"You owe me no thanks, Mr. Kidlare," Hope said. "The fact that somehow she felt that for the sake of place he owed them after the night's experience."

"Well, we do, too," he went on, eyes constantly on his men. "Sherry and I both do. You helped a lot, after the fight. He'll say his piece when he gets a chance. I'll say mine now. I—I owe you the most."

He turned to look at her. The top of her head was almost level with his chin as the horses rocked them along. He realized again that she was beautiful. Beautiful to see as well as to know. They had been together under fire—litter fire—and he knew she was more than physically lovely. She was the kind of girl to stir in a man deeply. And Hope Kidlare was still young enough to be very impulsive.

"Betty Mary," he suddenly recalled to touch her. "I've got to tell you that I—that you're grand. Why—?" But the right word wouldn't come.

"It's all right, Hope," she smiled up at him, dimpling. "You don't need to feel that way. We—well, you've had a terrific experience, and I—well, we've had a terrific experience. Help him to get up. He'll say his piece when he gets a chance. I'll say mine now. I—I owe you the most."

"We sure will celebrate," he agreed. "We can send Sherry help from the Marcial rancho, and wait for him there. We'll eat and rest and clean up, and then stop out together. The three musketeers, or something."

"One for all and all for all," he laughed again, and didn't talk much more after that. He had to keep his prisoners moving. He had to keep his prisoners moving. He had to keep his prisoners moving.

• BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON
Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, April 25.—The conditions under which the rank and file of government employees do their jobs are at last being brought out for public consideration.

The immediate result is a sensation which hasn't had half the attention it deserves. The ultimate result may be a far-reaching change in the whole system of government employment.

It came about because Senator Allen J. Ellender of Louisiana put through a resolution to investigate the civil service system, and became the head of a five-man senate committee to make the investigation.

Working with only a $2,500 appropriation and with no staff except a stenographer, the committee to date, has been given an unenviable task of testimony about favoritism in government employment. Much more is to come.

No fewer than 10,000 government employees have sent Senator Ellender a letter, and all indications are that his committee has barely scratched the surface.

The general tenor of these complaints is that petty bureaucrats in certain government departments and agencies ruin their staffs with dictatorial methods and that the merit system is repeatedly nullified by the charge. It is a charge that a lump sum is voted for the staff as a whole, and that the man who gets the job is chosen by the boss.

The answer to that, according to the charges, is that a lump sum is voted for the staff as a whole, and that the man who gets the job is chosen by the boss.

The top man appoints a fat rate to himself and his favorites and leaves the men at the bottom holding the bag.

All of the complaints—or practically all—come from groups outside the government. It is a charge that a lump sum is voted for the staff as a whole, and that the man who gets the job is chosen by the boss.

Ellender's committee has created a minor sensation in government offices here. The senator hopes to get the committee's report out so that it may be a continuing organization, on the theory that its existence will be a sort of court of appeals for government workers may mitigate many abuses.

BOOST FOR EFFICIENCY?
But he sees the ultimate effects of his committee's work as being valuable in that it will show who have been discriminated against, but to the caliber of government work itself.

ENGLISH BUDGET HITS HIGH PEAK

LONDON, April 25 (AP)—The government presented to the house of commons today a 1939 budget providing for defense expenditures of £200,000,000 ($2,940,000,000), the largest in peace-time history.

The new taxes announced included increased taxes on automobiles, sugar, tobacco and movie films.

Country Arose. Regarding the increased defense expenditure, which exceeds the amount previously announced, Simon said:

"It means we will be more. The country is thoroughly aroused to further sacrifice. While not increasing the basic income tax rate, Simon said there will be a further surcharge of five per cent on incomes up to £8,000 ($12,000) a year and ten per cent above that. Death duties will be increased with a surcharge of ten per cent on estates exceeding £50,000 ($750,000)."

Income Taxes Boosted. The previous surcharge on incomes of £8,000 was 12½ per cent, graduated upwards. The estate tax on £50,000 was 15 per cent, graduated upwards.

Simon's estimated £142,000,000 ($2,130,000,000) would be spent on air raid precautions this year. Simon said the national debt was increased during the year by £81,000,000 ($1,215,000,000) to £1,813,000,000 ($27,225,000,000). ("The United States debt as of today was $10,640,859,293.")

OLD VIOLET FASHIONED. EVERETT, Wash. (AP)—Joseph Lambert, who has been making violins in his spare time the last 35 years, fashioned one of the instruments out of a slab of Norway spruce with a jackline and a few pieces of broken window glass last summer while he was working in the woods near Everett. The violin was completed in five months.

STEELMAN JOINS DEADLOCKED MINERS IN CONFERENCE

GREEN SUGGESTS LABORERS VOTE TO HALT STRIKE

NEW YORK, April 25 (AP)—Dr. John R. Steelman, government mediator, arrived today from Washington with latest information on the threatened soft coal famine to join the deadlock conference among Appalachian mine operators and the United Mine Workers union over a new working contract.

In Washington, Steelman had conferred with the national labor press commission, 44th interstate commerce commission and other federal agencies concerned over the situation, since April 1, of 200,000 miners of the eight state Appalachian area and the coal shortage growing daily.

A few hours before Steelman left, Washington, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, suggested that the 150,000 soft coal miners be polled to determine whether they wanted closed shop representation. John L. Lewis, U.M.W. Green's suggestion was in the form of an open letter to Steelman.

Appalachian conference has reached an impasse over Lewis' demand for a closed shop or the elimination of the right to work. Lewis said that miners are tired $1 or $2 daily for unauthorized strikes. Lewis said the weekly changes, from 10 to 12 members of the U.M.W. Green's federation has a union—the progressive mine workers of America—that is trying to recruit members.

Green said "the thinking people are reasonably ask who Lewis was trying to remove penalty clause that had been in the contracts for 30 years."

Why not allow the miners to determine for themselves the character and nature of their own collective bargaining agency? he asked.

CLEAN-UP SOUGHT AT SCENIC SPOT

County commissioners, in the immediate future will be petitioned by individual citizens of Twin Falls to do something concerning the unsightly condition of a small parking area at the end of Washington street north, a vantage point for viewing the Snake river canyon.

At the present time it is pointed out the area is littered with rubbish and presence of nails and like material makes it hazardous to drive automobiles into the section.

Rubbish at that point spoils one of this section's finest vantage points. Fred Stumpf said this afternoon. "When we have friends coming to visit us we like to drive them out there to see the canyon from that point but every time we do then we have to apologize. I am sure there are many other people who feel the same way."

Stumpf said he would visit with the county commissioners and "see if something couldn't be done about it."

Also taking an active interest in cleaning up the area in question is W. H. Edridge, secretary of the Rotary club. Both men point out that cost of covering the debris would be slight and, once covered, the area could be posted to prevent further rubbish disposal there.

Utahns Pay Homage to "Wedding of the Rails"

By MURRAY MOLTER
SALT LAKE CITY, April 25 (AP)—This city today pays homage to an event that 70 years ago joined the east and west coasts of the United States with bands of steel.

The formal proclamation of Governor H. H. Blood, today is Golden Spike day in memory of the "wedding of the rails" at Promontory Point, Utah, on May 10, 1869, when the Union and Central Pacific railroads were joined and transcontinental railroad transportation became a reality.

High light of the day was not scheduled until 4:30 p. m. when a parade of special trains will roll into the Union Pacific station from Redwood.

Carries Movie Stars
The train, bearing a galaxy of movie players, is headed by a wood-burning locomotive of Civil war vintage—the type used by the pioneer railroads when their trucks were joined at Promontory Point.

Behind the old engine will be the latest contribution to the rejuvenated railroad industry—a 5,000-horsepower, steam-electric, two-unit, streamlined locomotive. The chromium plated giant is fastened to the train behind the old wood-burner because the old locomotive has to be pushed—and at that the entire unit can only go at a top speed of 34 miles an hour.

12 Modern Coaches
In back of these two engines will be 12 modern coaches, carrying the film notables and Utah civic leaders who were scheduled to join the party late today at Stockton, Utah, 68 miles west of Tooele, to ride into Salt Lake City.

Completing the traveling spectacle will be five wooden coaches, built in the 1860's.

The old locomotive and coaches are now property of Paramount Pictures. For many years they saw service on the historic Virginia and

STORES JOIN TO PUSH EGG SALE

Grocerymen throughout south central Idaho will join hands May 1 for a full week of intensive egg sale promotion to assist Idaho's farmers, local dealers said today after receipt of word from Boise headquarters of the Idaho Association of Retail Food Distributors.

W. E. Studebaker, Boise, is president of the central district in the association.

The egg promotion drive, it was pointed out, was decided on because there are 35,000 Idaho farms selling eggs to grocery stores in Idaho, and these are faced with a surplus problem. It was explained that 80 per cent of farm customers of south central grocerymen are directly interested in egg production.
