NAZIS SET LIFE STANDARD FOR 265,000 JEWS IN REICH

FEW REMAINING IN BERLIN TOLD HOW TO BEHAVE

By DANA A. SCHMIDT
BERLIN, Aug. 22 (UP)—The Jews remaining in Germany today are living in a state of isolation and confusion, figuratively with their backs to the wall, with pressure on them to leave, yet for the most part unable to do so.

Collectors are still about 285,000 Jews in the Reich. Since 1933 about a quarter of a million have emigrated, leaving only 100,000 in Germany. One hundred and twenty thousand Jews in Berlin are little seen now. Most are spending the last few days quietly in their crowded flats, more or less than not isolated from the rest of the world. In their daily lives they are being told to behave in a certain way, but they are not told what the "certain way" is.

They are being told to behave as if they were still in Germany, but they are not told what the "behave" is. They are being told to behave as if they were still in Germany, but they are not told what the "behave" is.

GERMANY RUSSIA SET NEGOTIATION

used Britain to make terms with Germany.

The threat of a Russian-German pact was a humiliating blow to Great Britain and France because, for one thing, diplomats saw it as exposing the hollowness of their policy to protect Poland.

The diplomats saw it, Poland in the present circumstances probably would be overrun in any attack by Germany, Italy, Britain and France could make any decisive contribution.

Two important points must be kept in mind:

1. Germany and Russia have not yet signed a pact.

2. Every non-aggression pact which Russia has signed with her neighbors contains an escape clause giving Russia the right to join the other party in case of aggression against a third power.

The pact envisaged with Germany undoubtedly would contain an escape clause.

It was regarded here as likely that Great Britain and France still conclude a pact with Russia if they knuckled down and fully met Russia's terms.

Conclusion of a German-Russian pact would make it impossible, as it was seen here, for Japan to join the Rome-Berlin axis in a military alliance because Japan is Japan's greatest potential enemy and Japan could not ally herself with the Nazis if Germany were unable to help her.

Steve Misses Bus-But Girl Rescues Him!

"Boogie" missed the bus-but he'll play with the Twin Falls Cowboys tonight at Ogden anyway.

And Steve Bogdanoff, right fielder for the Twin Falls Cowboys, who had a Twin Falls young lady to thank for catching up with the team.

The Cowboys were all aboard the bus Monday afternoon, eager to be off for Ogden and a chance to play their home game. Steve Bogdanoff, however, was left behind. He had a little hitch.

So the bus pulled out, and Steve wanted to get his chance to play. He wanted to get his chance to play.

And then came Bogie. Very worried at sight of Business Manager Bogdanoff, he called out to him.

"They caught up with the bus on the turn north of Kimberly. They waved and shouted. The Cowboys waved back. Bogie was just somebody passing. Finally, however, they stopped the bus and Bogdanoff sheepishly climbed in.

The young lady returned, chalking up a good deed because the Cowboys would be in a bad way without Steve Bogdanoff.

GERMAN CALLS THOUSANDS OF RESERVES TO COLOR

NON-AGGRESSION PART SEEN WITH SOVIET LEADERS

By FREDERICK OCHSNER
BERLIN, Aug. 22 (AP)—Thousands of army reservists in Berlin, and presumably more thousands elsewhere, were ordered today to report for duty at once.

They telephoned their employers they could not go to work and hurried off to previously designated barracks, many remarking:

"If Germany and Russia sign a non-aggression pact tomorrow something will happen over Thursday."

Jubilant Nazis said they had struck a death blow to British and French hopes of a Russian alliance and a triumphant victory was now certain in Germany's dispute with Poland.

Report at Once

That the diplomatic triumph was not alone occupying minds of Nazi leaders was made plain by the dramatic nature of the call for reservists.

Many received notices to report at once.

Some city and suburban elevated and many subway cars were crowded with reservists, carrying small suitcases containing a few civilian necessities.

Official announcement that Germany and Russia had agreed to conclude a non-aggression treaty and that Joachim von Ribbentrop, foreign minister, would fly to Moscow tomorrow to conduct negotiations spread throughout Berlin and the country with amazing rapidity.

"Poland is in the bag—it will be another Czechoslovakia," said Nazis. Officials would not say how long negotiations for a non-aggression pact had been proceeding, or where. When the announcement was made Ribbentrop was still at Puchel castle, in Salzburg, where he has been vacationing and talking to such European leaders as Count Galeazzo Ciano, Italian foreign minister, and Count Stephen Casky, Hungarian foreign minister.

LAND PURCHASE REVOKING ASKED

Asking abrogation of a contract by which the late Frank Novak, Buhl Bohemian rancher, was purchasing land, Jacob Prudek, Buhl, had filed suit in district court today against Harry W. Barry, Buhl, administrator of Mr. Novak's estate.

Agreement by Novak, who died here of apoplexy after being found in Nevada following disappearance from his ranch, was for purchase of 60 of the 100 acres in a farm which Mr. Prudek had contracted to buy from Union Central Life Insurance company. Mr. Novak had farmed the 60 acres from early 1935 until he died in April of 1936. Purchase price, the petition to the court said, was $2,000 of which $7,074 balance remained.

J. M. Barnes is attorney for Mr. Prudek.

HEARING SET ON ATTACK CHARGES

Preliminary hearing in the case of Jim Heck, 30, charged with the rape of a 16-year-old Twin Falls girl, will be held at 10 a. m. Thursday before Probable Judge C. A. Bailey.

Heck, father of eight children and a former milk truck driver, asked a preliminary hearing was arranged before Judge Bailey yesterday. His bond was set at $1,000, and because he was unable to furnish it, he was returned to jail.

The man was arrested by local police and sheriff's officers last Friday afternoon. He denied any connection in the case but Chief of Police Howard Gillette said "he's the man." He was identified both through voice and features by a girl in a man who attacked her on a bed outside her cabin home in the Golden Rule addition. She said she was sleeping outside because of the warm nights. The rape charges were filed by Everett M. Sweely, county prosecutor.

COUNCIL DECREE AD VALOREM TAX

Passage of the ordinance levying ad valorem taxes for the fiscal year of May 1, 1940 to April 30, 1940 had been voted today by the Twin Falls city council.

Total mill levy reaches 31 1/4, four mills higher than for the previous year. Levy then was 27 1/4 mills. The increase comes entirely in the fact that one mill was added for retirement of library bonds approved by the voters, and three mills was added to the general fund because the city works department is now a separate division and its receipts no longer go into the general coffers. Those receipts, however, will go toward waterworks improvement.

The ordinance adopted last night becomes effective immediately. It provides for taxations as follows: Fifteen mills on each $1 of taxable property to defray general current expenses; nine mills on each $1 for principal and interest on waterworks bonds and also library bonds; two mills on each $1 for the purpose of providing school lights; two mills on each $1 to operate the public library; one-quarter mill on each $1 for the municipal bond; three mills for fire protection and other various streets. Total, 31 1/4 mills.

Ann Sheridan Frowns on Oomph Ballyhoo and Asks Better Parts

By PAUL HARRISON
(NEA Service)

HOLLYWOOD—So far as Ann Sheridan is concerned, her studio can wrap up all this Oomph girl ballyhoo and send it to Shirley Temple.

Miss Sheridan is thoroughly tired of being considered the embodiment of an abstract commodity which constantly is being overbooked but which she is given no opportunity to deliver. And she has almost made up her mind to do something about it.

"Oomph!" she complained, something fetchingly at her correspondent. "I don't know whether I've got it. Why, I don't even know what it is. But I do know one thing: I certainly haven't had much chance to show it, or use it, or what you do with oomph."

Annie Oomphley lit a cigarette, puffed a minute, and went on to disclaim any false modesty about her attention she has been receiving. It's flattering, of course, to be the most popular actress in America and to have one's picture on the cover of three national magazines at the same time. But why all this extravagant ballyhoo, she wonders, when she's still doing brief roles as a gangster's gal in routine cops-and-robbers pictures?

If Miss Sheridan didn't have a conscience and a sharp perspective, her ego might swell up and bust. Or maybe her bust would swell up with ego. But nobody's fooling Annie about this. She's still doing brief roles as a gangster's gal in routine cops-and-robbers pictures.

She has been around Hollywood six years now, part of it Paramount where she amiably posed in scanties for publicity stunts, and then at Warner Brothers where she long became a utility actress who could be rushed into a role on 10 minutes' notice. She never complained, never gave a bad performance.

Annie Plays in B Pictures

Utterly frank, always friendly and amusing, the level-headed redhead became the darling of the correspondents (male and female) just long before she ever got an executive nod. "Oomph"—not "oomph"—was a word in general studio usage as long ago as 1935. It is used to describe the sultry, sexy, uninhibited, animal-attractive quality which Jean Harlow had. "Oomph" was unlike "glamour." In that there was nothing languid, aloof or mysterious about it. Everybody agreed that Ann Sheridan had "oomph."

But for a long time after she had become a romantic fixture in B pictures there remained a good deal of doubt about whether Miss Sheridan ever would amount to much. Some said she was lazy, or that she lacked ambition.

The casting director sometimes criticized her, and Miss Sheridan would say, "I am ambitious! I want good parts. I don't want anybody, but I'm not going to get them by storming into producers' offices and putting on an act and become known as a nutcase."

The same man suggested that maybe she didn't take her work seriously enough because she "didn't maintain her mood." After playing a heavy emotional scene, he had noticed, she often walked off the set smiling and talking. The sultry, quick creation or abandonment of a mood is admitted in a prayer such as Betty Davis or Jimmy Cagney, but evidently Miss Sheridan was expected to spend her time between scenes sobbing in a corner.

Her first loan-out, to Universal for "Letter of Introduction," brought her best role and a lot of comment. Her own studio soon issued a general order for a Sheridan build-up. It began gradually with still pictures which were vainglorious, voluptuous and revealing enough to bring a good many reactions by the plays office. Miss Sheridan even posed on a tiger-skin rug in the manner of the arena of silent days.

Oomph Girl Contest

Six months ago came a award of the Oomph girl title by a jury of slick Hollywood men and Broadway bluffs. Under concealing auspices, the event was publicized in advance as a contest. Actually it was merely a stunt prearranged by a smart real-estate hotel, where the winner was held, and Warner Brothers.

Since then there have been Oomph girl contests for amateurs. Oomph girl articles from every conceivable angle in the fan magazines, and lots of Oomph girl pictures in the slick-paper publications.

But during all this fanfare, Miss Sheridan went right on playing relatively small roles, mostly in crime films. For purposes of the "build-up," she sometimes was billed above players whose parts were vastly more important than her own.

When Walter Weinger, who had introduced Hedy Lamarr successfully in "Algiers," wanted to borrow Miss Sheridan for the lead in "Winter Carnival," the studio assented. But "Winter Carnival" is a slow and disappointing picture which will do her no benefit to the Oomph girl career.

She now is playing a gangster's gal in "20,000 Years in Sing Sing." Johnny (Charles) goes to the chair and I get left out on a limb, as usual, she commented.

"Now I hear the studio is preparing a picture for me to be called 'Oomph Girl'! I just won't stand for it."

"Maybe the time has come for me to get up and do some fighting. I could stand a suspension or two, but I could never stand a picture like that."

Beautiful Ann Sheridan looks far from oomph in this picture. It shows her better as she really is: Friendly, frank, amusing. Anxious to make good in Hollywood as an actress. Ann doesn't give two whoops for oomph. She says she would rather be given good roles than have an abstract glamour title.

Dispelling the Fog

By CHARLES MICHELSON
Director of Publicity,
Democratic National Committee

"If we nominate conservative candidates or lip service candidates, on a straddle platform," said President Roosevelt in his recent letter to the 'Young Democrats' convention, "I personally, for my own self-respect and because of my long service to and belief in liberal democracy, will find it impossible to have any active part in such an unfortunate suicide of the old Democratic party."

That sounds like what we need to describe in grammar school as a "simple declarative sentence." But the Republicans are reading into it all sorts of hidden meanings and implications.

There is nothing startling about it. The President announced three months ago that the party committed itself to a conservative administration—a Republican administration under a Democratic label. In season and out of season he has proclaimed the same principles. How then could he actively support candidates and a platform that took precisely the opposite course from that to which he is committed?

What sort of speeches could he make? What manner of appeal could he address to his old associates or to the vast majority of the people who do so exactly what he had always warned them against doing?

I wonder if any of the Republicans expected Franklin Roosevelt to proclaim that he would positively support a reactionary candidate on a party-platform platform?

There is no doubt that the day this is written, Ben Hayburn, Democratic leader in the house of representatives, announces his withdrawal for the nomination of Vice-President Garner, and that is hailed as a watershed deep rift in Democratic ranks.

As if anybody expected Ben Hayburn to desert his fellow Texan, who has served for 15 years in the house? As if anything was possible for the Texan who served loyally during Mr. Garner's term as minority leader and as speaker, and who managed the Garner presidential campaign in 1928? Who could that fault with his standing by his old associates or attach any deep political significance to the incident?

It is about as exciting as the coming out of the Indiana congressman for Paul McNutt, or of the likelihood of the Tennessee delegation to the 1940 convention for Goddell Hill.

Naturally the Republicans are hailing every development as further evidence of irradicable differences in the majority party—they are speaking today in terms of as great confidence as they did when Governor Land was their standard-bearer. Then, it will be remembered, Chairman John Hamilton gravely announced that the Republicans were reading into it all sorts of hidden meanings and implications.

Interferer From D Defects

The chief of the G. O. P. propaganda bureau came seriously close to saying something in an issue the other day, for, after a tribute to the Republican congressmen for what they had accomplished in the direction of jettisoning the President's program, he added: "It is a good indication of what the country can expect in the way of conservative reform, when the House assumes control of the federal government in January, 1941." That is the nearest thing to a declaration of Republican policy that anybody has been able to extract so far.

The basis for the Republican hopes, nurtured by one of their columnists, is that 37,000 votes within 40,000 votes of being elected governor in New York, and that the Republican majority candidate in Chicago in the last election did not do quite as well. The logic of the contention is that New York would not take the prosecuting attorney as governor; it would be more likely to take him for President; may not be apparent, and the circumstance that a Democratic mayor prevailed in Chicago would hardly be deemed as conclusive evidence that the G. O. P. will win Illinois in the next election. But that is what they have to go on.

After all, it may be as feasible a hypothesis as that the circumstance that a fraction of the Democratic strength in the house voted with the Republicans on a particular bill, and thereby defeated the will of the Democrats who voted two to one in favor of the bill, means that congress is going to be Republican by and by.

MAGAZINE HIT BY U. S. COMPLAINT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 22 (AP)—The federal trade commission today issued a complaint against Hearst Magazines, Inc., charging that one of its publications, Good Housekeeping, made false claims and misleading guarantees concerning products advertised in its pages.

The commission gave the corporation 20 days to file a written answer, and directed it to show cause at a hearing Sept. 22 why an order should not be entered requiring it "to cease and desist from violations of the law charged in the complaint."

Focal point of the complaint was Good Housekeeping's statement throughout its advertising pages in each issue, "every product guaranteed, as advertised—see page 6."

The complaint said the statement on page 6 was printed "in much smaller type" as follows:

Smaller Type

"This is your guaranty. If you purchase any product advertised in this issue of Good Housekeeping within one year from the date and find the product unsatisfactory, we will carefully investigate your complaint and if the product is defective it will be replaced or your money refunded."

The guarantees throughout the magazine the complaint said, were so printed as to "imply and imply" that Good Housekeeping "guarantees" all products advertised in its pages to be as advertised, and in fact, the so-called "guaranty" is actually limited by its terms to a mere warranty of the sound construction or chemical composition of the product itself, with an agreement to replace or refund it, after complaint.

The Good Housekeeping Institute, the Good Housekeeping bureau, and their elliptical "seals of approval" also were criticized by the commission.

Variety Marks B.P.W. Program for 1939-40

Social highlights of the national convention of B. P. W. clubs at Kansas City in July, recounted with sparkling wit by Miss M. Izetta McCoy, president of the Idaho Federation of Business and Professional Women's club, and presentation of the tentative year's program by Mrs. Frankie Alworth, Twin Falls B. P. W. program chairman, occupied the attention of members and guests of the club last evening at the home of Mrs. Helen Dietz, Hansen, following a baked ham and roasted carciole supper, served on the lawn.

Miss Doris Parsons, member of the club who will be married to William Beale Johnson next month at Pocatello, was presented with an attractive linen luncheon set by the group, Miss Jessie Fraser making the presentation.

Bethany League Presents Gift To McCallisters

Bethany Epworth league of the Methodist church had a novel way of financing the four departments, devotional, missionary, social service and recreation, this year, and as a finale to the successfully carried-out project, observed an "awards night" Sunday evening, giving special recognition during the social hour from 7:30 to 8:30 o'clock in the Methodist church parlors.

The girls of group made a luncheon set in yellow and white, the decorative motif being the names of 100 members of the congregation, embroidered in silk thread. Each member whose name appeared on the cloth and napkins contributed 10 cents to the organization fund, both boys and girls of the group selling names.

The "name cloth," which was displayed throughout the social hour on a table centered with Golden Glow nasturtiums, was presented by the Bethany group as a gift to Rev. and Mrs. H. G. McCallister at the close of the evening.

Oldest member's name to appear was that of Mrs. Marie Street, 88, and the youngest, Marilyn Lucile Pickett, 11 1/2 months.

Miss Ann Ellsworth made the presentation and Miss Oile Fern Secord was in charge of the music fest. A musical program was presented the first half-hour, and lunch and orate convention banquet at which Judge Florence Allen was the principal speaker, and numerous addresses of the convention were given.

Hostesses of the evening were Mrs. Dietz, chairman; Mrs. Doris Parsons, Mrs. Helen Dietz, Mrs. Stevens, Mrs. Parsons and Miss Lucile Hall.

Club guests were Mrs. and Mrs. David Koenig, Mrs. Jean Secord, Mrs. J. R. Hall, Mrs. G. Martin Warren, Mrs. Louise Holden, Mrs. Marshall Jeffrey, Mrs. Edna Bruns, Miss Carol Warren and Miss Helen Dietz, daughter of the hostess chairman.

RECALL OF PARLIAMENT LOOMS FOR BRITAIN THURSDAY

NAZI-USSR PACT REPORT SHOCKS ALL OF EUROPE

LONDON, Aug. 22 (AP)—The British cabinet, in view of the startling change in the European situation by German-Russian pact, is likely to recall parliament at once, probably on Thursday, reliable sources said today.

Pending a cabinet decision on Britain's immediate course, no fresh instructions were being sent to the British military mission at Moscow which, with a French mission, was negotiating for a three-power military agreement with Russia.

The summoning of parliament was demanded by the opposition parties. Labor and Liberal.

The shock and bewilderment with which the German-Russian announcement was received here were reflected through Europe and through the world.

It was up to Great Britain, the key nation in an anti-aggression bloc formed to oppose German-Italian expansionism, to give a lead to its allies—France, Poland, Rumania and others—and to face the possibility that it would have to reorient its entire foreign policy.

The proposed non-aggression agreement was announced late last night in Berlin and Moscow while British and French military missions at Moscow were actually negotiating with Russia for her entrance into a military alliance against Germany.

The fate of the French-British-Russian negotiations for an anti-aggression treaty, the future of the Berlin-Rome axis, the status of the existing French-Russian military alliance and the Polish-Russian non-aggression treaty, the position of France and Italy's demands against her, of Rumania and Hungary in view of Germany's bid for domination in eastern Europe, were among problems which the cabinet had to consider.

German-Russian announcement came too late for editorial comment in the more conservative London newspapers. Late editions of the mass-circulation sheet which provides a feature of the Idaho state fair here.

A. E. Holmquist and sons, Twin Falls; J. W. Matthews, Burley, and I. T. Osborn, Halley, won the lion's share of awards from top growers. The Holmquist entries took first in 64s, 70s and 80s. They also won second and third in 40s. Matthews' first award in 50s and 40s, and took second in 40s.

Osborn's exhibit of raise fleece was judged as No. 1 in that division. Ladislav and Brockie, Udonok, took first in 40s. University of Idaho was tops in 30s.

HATH OFF TO FLAG

Editor, Evening Times:

Hath off, here comes the FLAG—for me

God grant that I may ever feel the thrill

They felt, who thrived some lonely hill

And now are ageless, priceless things

This gift of tolerance and liberty. They kept the faith, and gave more than was due.

Hath off, my friend, to the Red, White and Blue.

Perhaps it was thoughtlessness that the covered heads were so much in evidence during our recent Legion parade, when the colors were passing. Doubtless you desired that we strive eternally to keep this the fairest land on earth.

The flag is a symbol of our national greatness. It is only a small job to uncover, or salute. Let us do this and mean what this action signifies.

Beer License Revocation Will Bring Court Battle

Refusal by members of the city council to grant R. A. Armstrong, owner of the Idaho Cigar store, a license to sell beer will result in the case being taken to the district court, O. W. Witham, attorney for the man, had announced today.

The council members voted unanimously to revoke Armstrong's license last night during the regular council session after they had heard both sides of the question.

Chief of Police Howard Gillette and from Armstrong and his attorney. The store is located in the 100 block on Second avenue south.

Same as It Was

Gillette, in pointing out to the council "reasons why the license should not remain in force but should be revoked, declared the "place is being run just as it was a year ago."

By this Gillette said he meant a group of Basque people were in charge.

Armstrong came to me and said he wanted to take the place over, Gillette said, "and he promised it would be divorced from the old management, which resulted in a liquor law violation. For about two weeks it was running fine and then Armstrong faded out of the picture and the place was run about by himself. It turned up just as it was before, with the Basques running it. The license under Armstrong's name is just a waste."

"At first I handled two white fellows to handle the Idaho but found that they were short all the time," Armstrong said.

Basques on Hand

Under questioning of Carl Ritchey, police commissioner, Armstrong admitted that he had failed in his promise to keep the Basques out of the place.

Attorney Witham said that Armstrong had told him he rented the entire building at the start of the year. He said Armstrong also related that no liquor has been sold with his consent or knowledge and that he had never been convicted of a violation of the liquor law.

"To save my life I was unable to find out where he (Armstrong) had made any violation of city ordinance," Witham declared.

License Evaded

The argument slimmered down to the point of whether or not Armstrong had violated any city ordinance. Harry Benoit, city attorney, declared that "these people" who are now running it for Armstrong "knew they couldn't get a license under their own name."

Gillette said that one of the stipulations when Armstrong was granted a license was that any connection with the store and rooms upstairs would be severed.

"The door upstairs is awfully freely again," Gillette said.

Witham asked the council to take

FIRE FIGHTERS USE LIPSTICK

MT. SHASTA CITY, Ore. (AP)—Sooty-faced forest fighters, with bright red lips required some explanation here. Supervisor M. H. Davis furnished it by explaining that several of the men and boys on the fire line reported painfully chapped and dried lips and the only thing found satisfactory for relief was lipstick.

It was indicated that the city planning commission would probably discuss the meter proposition at an early session and would report back to the council.

Barber Problem

Councilmen also heard a discussion by various "city limit" barbers who declared their business was mainly with the working class and that because of this they found it difficult to close at 6 p. m. as required by a recently enacted city ordinance.

"Most of our customers don't have time to come into the shop during the day and get their hair cut and shave," one barber said. "Most of the downtown men can do that but out here we have the laboring class for customers and they can't leave their jobs whenever they want to."

The council took the matter under advisement with a promise that it would be investigated thoroughly and a report as to what could be done would be made at the regular session next Monday night.

The barbers protesting the closing hours owned shops in outlying sections of the city and declared they "didn't care in at all" on the downtown business even though they did before the ordinance, remain open later.

JAPAN PONDER'S NEW U. S. POLICY

TOKYO, Aug. 22 (AP)—Newspapers asserted today that the foreign office was formulating a tentative new policy toward the United States, involving retaliation against American interests in China, for application if the United States embargoed munitions to Japan.

Embargo action would be interpreted as an unfair application of the American neutrality law, it was asserted, and hence Japan would assume belligerent rights in connection with American interests in China.

Japan is at present in a position where it can not help abandoning its traditional policy of friendship to "Latin America," said Asahi.

Assertions were made also that the government was considering denunciation of the nine power treaty by which the United States, Japan, Great Britain and other nations guaranteed China's political and territorial sovereignty and integrity.

The nine power treaty report was published as the foreign office issued a long and vigorously worded statement announcing that Japan would not permit the intervention of other powers in its negotiations with Great Britain regarding its demand that Britain cooperate in floating a Japanese-sponsored currency in northern China and surrender millions of dollars of Chinese government silver bullion held in Chinese banks in the British concession at Tientsin.

ANTI-RELIGIOUS BATTLE

MOSCOW, Aug. 22 (AP)—Pravda, official newspaper organ of the Communist party, demanded a strengthening of anti-religious propaganda today. Pravda asserted that government organizations, including the commissariat of education, were not fully carrying out their religious work in behalf of the government.
