

CONTEST ENTERS METHVEN ESTATE

Opposing their sister's application for administrative authority in the estate of their father, five of eight surviving children of the late John F. Methven, pioneer Buhl rancher who died two weeks ago, had filed application in probate court today for selection of a brother, Fred R. Methven, to handle the estate.

Mrs. Mary Kambrich, Buhl, had previously requested the authority, Judge C. A. Bailey set Sept. 5 for hearing on the new petition filed by Ray D. Agre, attorney, on behalf of Mrs. Gertrude Parlinger, Buhl; Perry E. Methven, Wendell; Fred R. Methven, Buhl; Mrs. Edith Webb, Buhl; Mrs. J. F. Methven, Buhl; Judge Bailey earlier had set Aug. 30 for the hearing on Mrs. Kambrich's petition.

The contesting brothers and sisters set value of the Buhl pioneer's estate at $500 in personal property plus considerable real estate of value not officially determined. Mrs. Kambrich last Friday had informed the court that the estate is estimated at $12,500 and includes a 40-acre farm, another of 44 acres, and personal property.

Mrs. Bertha Methven, Seattle, and Mrs. Nellie Bond, Nampa, and Mrs. Mary E. Bond, Nampa, did not take part in the contest.

Mrs. Kambrich is represented by Bothwell and Poy.

LEAD POISONING

Although acute lead poisoning is now uncommon, the chronic form is the single most important industrial disease in the United States. It occurs in people employed in pottery works, the rubber industry, the manufacture of storage batteries and red and white lead, in painters, printers and many others.

For instance, it is prevalent among the miners in northern Idaho. In dusty occupations the lead is inhaled along with the dust and rapidly absorbed. Elsewhere it may be swallowed with food and drink and be absorbed from the digestive tract.

Signs and Symptoms

In chronic lead poisoning the patient is weak, pale-skinned, and nervous. He is also usually obstinately constipated.

1. If you look at his blood under the microscope you find him moderately anemic and see in his red blood cells a peculiar purple spot called "stippling."

2. If you look in his mouth you often see along the edge of the gums a streak of lead sulfide deposited there.

3. After a period of intractable constipation the patient is likely to develop severe cramps in his abdomen. They are very painful but not accompanied by fever or other signs of infection.

4. In earlier times paralysis was common; now it is rather unusual. It is caused by inflammation of the nerve trunks and causes dangling, palsied wrists and ankles ("wrist and ankle drop").

Diagnosis

Diagnosis is made on the basis of two or more of these signs: (1) spotting or "stippling" of the red blood cells, (2) lead line on the gums, (3) anemia, (4) colic, (5) muscle weakness.

Lead poisoning in susceptible people may follow slight exposure. In others it may appear after the patient has left his dangerous occupation.

Prevention

Dusty industries are the most hazardous—e. g. pottery, lead and silver mining, rubber and battery manufacturing. Ventilation, free use of water in mines and factories to control the dust, and the use of respirators by workmen would reduce lead poisoning to a fraction of its present incidence.

Facilities for washing hands before eating and uncontaminated water to drink are also necessary.

Treatment

Lead colic demands prompt and skillful medical care. Drugs for the control of pain and calcium preparations injected into the blood are usually required.

Anemia may be combated by large doses of iron reinforced by many cases with liver extract or stomach tissue such as are used in pernicious anemia.

Lead, after being absorbed, is carried to the bones where it is stored; it is liberated slowly later on and excreted in the sweat, urine and

WOODS SHUT TO RECREATIONISTS

BOISE, Aug. 28 (U.S.).—Recreationists were ordered out of three south-central Idaho national forests today as repeated forest fires threw a smoke haze over the area and made it impossible for lookouts to locate new fires.

A blaze in the Pen basin area of the Payette national forest near Landmark was placed under control. A second fire, on Dry creek, north-west of Boise, broke out but was quickly beaten out by civilian conservation corps enrollees.

The Idaho national forest also was closed. A smoke haze drifted over it from a fire in Nez Perce forest placed under control today by CCC crews after it burned over 100 acres. Grouse hunters found their season cut short by three days when the closing order went into effect since most hunting is done in the national forests.

MELODRAMATIC YOUTH SOUGHT FOR MURDER

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 28 (U.S.).—The highways north of Los Angeles were watched by state police and sheriffs deputies today for Richard Jensen, a curly-haired juvenile delinquent who melodramatically calls himself "The Hare." He was wanted as the murderer of his 13-year-old sister.

Late yesterday Richard, who at 14 has a long record in juvenile courts, shouted to his mother from underneath his house: "Don't come under here. Ma I've just killed Billy Williams."

Then he crawled out and peddled fraudulently away on his bicycle.

His mother rushed to the neighboring home of her son's chum, Billy Williams, and called, "Come quick! Our boys have done something terrible."

Billy's mother crawled under the house and found him. His head had been crushed with a hammer, his chest stabbed with a butcher knife and a pair of sheep shears, and copper wire was twisted around his neck. He was alive, but he was unconscious. Practically blind, he tried to bind his wounds, but Billy died in a doctor's office a few minutes later.

A physician said Billy had been stabbed three times near the heart and his skull fractured. An eight-

GERMAN ENVOY VISITS MOLOTOV

MOSCOW, Aug. 28 (U.S.).—Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, arrived today and conferred with Premier and Foreign Affairs Commissar V. M. Molotov on concluding a non-aggression pact between Germany and Russia.

Next flags fluttered in a light breeze over the airport as Ribbentrop landed from Koenigsberg, East Prussia, on one of the most important missions entrusted to a diplomat since the World War—one on which Europe's future might depend.

Ribbentrop was driven to the Kremlin through a special line of traffic police over cleared streets, in a bullet-proof Soviet government sedan.

Ribbentrop held a preliminary conversation of half an hour with Molotov and then was driven to his quarters here, a magnificent 10-room apartment in the mansion of the old Austrian embassy, furnished with pieces from the stable museum.

The mansion adjoins the residence occupied by the heads of the British and French military missions who have been negotiating a military alliance with Russia against Germany.

That's Where the Money Goes

Even the most cursory study of the spending authorized by the past "economy" congress shows certain salient truths:

1. Despite the "economy" name, and despite the fact that the congress definitely checked the President on his "spending" program, the $13,000,000,000 appropriated, is a greater sum than ever before appropriated in a year of peace time.
2. Many of the big increases are in fields where it will be extremely hard to reduce them without eliminating whole services and activities which are today a part of government, but which were not 10 years ago.
3. Interest on the public debt is now far higher than it was in 1930 — $1,000,000,000 as against $660,000,000. It can no longer be said that carrying a larger debt is no more costly than carrying the former smaller one because interest rates are so much lower.
4. Without a definite and large increase in the national income, so that more taxes can be collected without taking a larger percentage of that national income, it is very hard to see any path out of the woods.

Let's have a look at some of the expenditures for 1939-40 which did not occur at all in 1930. First, there is $1,755,000,000 for relief. There is nearly a billion for social security. There is nearly $300,000,000 for the CCC. Many will argue that the expenditures for these things ought to be reduced, but voices demanding that they be abolished are simply not heard at all in 1939. This means that while the amounts may be reduced somewhat, they will remain as substantial items on the annual budget which did not appear at all in 1930, no matter who is running the government.

Defense carried appropriations of $1,523,000,000, as compared with $698,000,000 in 1930. Nobody objects. But until something is done about world conditions, it is hard to see how this cost will ever be reduced any — it is much more likely to double again in the next 10 years, as it has in the past 10.

The farmers dragged down $1,272,000,000 — incidentally the "economy" congress granted them $338,000,000 more than President Roosevelt asked — as compared to $453,000,000 in 1930. In 10 years the expenditures of the Agriculture department are up a billion dollars.

So it goes. Everything hinges today, just as it always has, on business recovery. Only business recovery will provide the jobs that will lower that relief cost, increase consumption of those farm products, provide the added taxes that will enable the government to start whittling away the billion-dollar debt charge.

On that everyone, Republican and Democrat, Communist and Townsdenite, can agree. It is only when you ask "How shall we do it?" that disagreement begins.

Surplus Solution

The United States is not the only country in the world that has its problem of agricultural surpluses. Brazil, for instance, has destroyed $600,000 worth of coffee by burning it, and has millions more that seem destined for the same end.

Naturally when Herbert S. Polin of New York arrived in Rio de Janeiro with news that he has discovered a means of converting green coffee beans into a plastic material suited for floorings, walls, cups, plates and buttons, hopeful Brazilians greeted him with enthusiasm. For if a tangible use for this surplus coffee can be found, Brazil will be on the way toward solving one of its toughest economic problems.

Question: Why has not more progress been made in the United States toward developing other uses for our great grain surpluses, since we do not seem able to find a way to get it into the hands of people who want to eat it? That is our problem, and one on which we do not seem to be making the progress we might.

Peace and Harmony

What the world needs, perhaps, is Hitler, Mussolini, Chamberlain, Roosevelt and Stalin bunched together in a compact little group and singing "Sweet Adeline".

At least that's the suggestion of Walter Blaufuss, Chicago song-writer and musical director. Universal adoption of "Sweet Adeline" as a new Internationale or Theme Song of the world, would get all nations in the same key, and provide a swelling chorus of conviviality in which the only swipes would be tony.

It sounds like a great idea, all right, but we're afraid it won't work, after all. About the time the chorus got going, somebody would pipe up, "Say, who's that blankety-blank-blank singing tone? He's lousy!"

And off we'd go again.

SERIAL STORY Murder on the Boardwalk

BY ELINEOR COWAN STONE
Copyright, 1939, NEA Service, Inc.

Yesterday, Police, investigating the murder in Christine's hotel, found the body of the victim had been dragged, killed, and thrown overboard. The murdered woman was Mrs. Emma Talbert, Christine's cousin.

CHAPTER VII
FOR a moment Christine hardly heard what was being said. For that moment she stood, isolated by shock, torn by a pang of affection she had never before known she felt for the formally kind, but painfully repressed woman she remembered as Cousin Emma, but had never really known.

Oh, Cousin Emma! she thought. I don't believe you were ever very much nice to me.

When she came back to her surroundings, the inspector was asking the doorman, "Have you noticed anything unusual around here lately?"

"Well," the doorman hesitated — "about half after 11 I did see this young lady — regularly, I indicated Christine — come along and stop right here; then her boy friend came running up those stairs from the beach, and then she takes him under the Twenty-Second Century lights and — kind of looks him over."

Christine, who she thought of that moment while she and Bill stood there, laughing and talking — with Cousin Emma perhaps already lying there like that — few feet away.

"Looks him over?" the inspector snapped. "What do you mean?"

"I know what he means," the waitress stopped snapping her gun long enough to put in. "I seen them, too; and he was dripping sweat, too."

Yes, Christine remembered with an unpleasant start, Bill had been wet. — He had said — "Say — look at this fellow. He's been staring at Bill. He pointed a grimy forefinger. 'I see him before all right. I sold all my tomorrow morning's papers by 10:30 and I was out along the Boardwalk. And I seen him in a parked car. He was leamin' out as if he was waitin' for some one to come."

The inspector turned to Bill. "What's your name?" he demanded. "John Yardley."

"Oh, yes — run the riding school, don't you? — And you say you know Mrs. Talbert?"

"The inspector took a small dark object from his pocket. "Recognize this?" he asked. "I ought to," Bill said with a brief inspection. "It's my key."

THE INSPECTOR took a small dark object from his pocket. "Recognize this?" he asked. "I ought to," Bill said with a brief inspection. "It's my key."

her fingers. — At least, she took it for a fragment of the wall until she realized that it was smooth and cold. — She saw a silver that had just been polished.

Afterwards, she remembered thinking that — nearly as it was faded into the crevice between the boards at the foot of the bed.

Then, at the sight of the stain on the weapon clattering to the floor. — She looked up in a clear, handkerchief as tenderly as if it had been a new-born babe.

"I'll look this over, Chief," he said. "I don't know if there are any finger-prints left."

"There'll be mine," Christine said faintly.

The inspector treated her to a brief, acidic grin.

"Why, so there will," he agreed. "So it was just as easy as that. I mean, you, Christine, I don't have another look around before this young lady finds the murderer under a piece of seaweed, with a gun held up in pink ribbon."

He swung from his subordinates to the others.

"I think," he shot at them, "that we'll run over to my office to finish this session — you and you and you, I mean."

He looked at Christine, Bill, Wilmet, and the disheveled object who couldn't be Cousin Emma's immaculate Jasper, and said, "The rest of you leave this place to business men."

"Do you mean," Bill asked, as the dismissed witnesses straggled disappointedly away, "that we're unimportant?"

"Not yet. When I arrest people for murder," the inspector said dryly, "they stay arrested."

the long process of migration was stopped, and since then New England's story has been winning back the lost ground.

By BRUCE CATTON
(Evening Times Washington Correspondent)

BOSTON, Aug. 23.—Native Yankee caution here deserts the New Englander. Conditions that would make a mid-westerner glow expansively and boast a year of profit and business will lead the New Englander to admit only that right now things aren't too bad. Then he'll add that he isn't at all sure about next month.

So you can't say businessmen here are optimistic. They are freely admitting, however, that right now things aren't too bad — and some of them forget to add the gap line about next month.

Which means more than a mere ripple from the low of the current depression; for New England had a severe depression of its own long before the big 1929 crash took place, and the fact that that depression is pretty well licked now is good news any way you look at it.

TEXTILE PLANTS
New England industrialized itself ahead of the rest of the country, and as the rest of the country came to the New Englander's aid, the New Englander's aid came to the New Englander's aid.

In the middle twenties New England started a counter attack. The governors of her six states got together and caused the formation of the New England council, an advisory and coordinating body which was to be, and is, supported by subscription to business men. Its first president was John S. Lawrence, a former textile manufacturer.

It tried, first to get all the data it could on what the problem really was, and next to figure out some solution. The symptoms of the problems were all too visible — empty factories in cities and towns all over the area. A part of the solution seemed to be to persuade industrialists that these factories were still pretty usable and that New England's supply of skilled labor and her transportation facilities were valuable assets.

Somewhere between 1925 and 1930, Charles F. Weed, vice-president of Boston's First National Bank, and president of the New England council, says that the present business outlook would be quite satisfactory if two uncertainties could be removed — uncertainty about the European situation, and uncertainty about what the gentlemen in the White House is going to do.

It is the latter uncertainty which he considers the more damaging; and he believes that business's objection to the New Deal is more a matter of the administration's general attitude than of any specific New Deal act. He does not, for instance, think that the New Deal's New England feeling that the reciprocal trade treaties are damaging to this section.

"They may hurt some particular lines and help others," he remarks. "If they result in greater prosperity for the country as a whole, New England will share in it and be better off."

Mule, Badger, Dog, Dream Discovered Mines in Idaho

By GLENN BAICH

Lady Luck played a big part in many of the most famous metal strikes in the west. Of course the prospectors were out there in the desert or back in the mountains looking, usually for gold, but still when they finally made the discovery they could point to something that had the element of luck.

Classic among the strikes of the Idaho country is the story of Kellogg's jack. Kellogg's jack is credited with the discovery of the big Bunker Hill and Sullivan mine. The story goes that the mule strayed from the camp one night and when the prospectors found him, after several hours of angry searching, he was standing on the side of a hill grazing in mulish rapture at a sun-bright splash of rich metal outcropping. Needless to say the jack was immediately forgiven for his truancy.

A badger

Coming across a sagebrush side-hill in northern Nevada, a badger stopped, sniffed at a squirrel trail and then started digging, carving the earth with sweeping strokes of claw-armed paws. The hole was old and the trail was cold when a prospector came along. The prospector always inspected badger holes. He took a look at this one, a casual look first and then a long careful look. A few years later the town of Mountain City was growing above the Rio Tinto copper mine.

A couple of prospectors, named Redmond and Herick, took their dog one day for a hunt. They had along with them a bird dog they called Skookum. After an hour or so, one of the men shot a grouse. The bird dropped into the water. Skookum was sent in for the retrieve. Coming back with the grouse in his mouth, the dog scratched at the steep bank. The men noticed that the stone was white under the moss. It was gold-bearing quartz. They followed the lead and located a couple of claims which afterwards became the Red Jacket.

A dream

The story of another kind of luck is told by Jim Wardner of a man who came to him one morning and said that he had dreamed of discovering a very rich mine. Furthermore, he asserted that he had recognized the place in which he had discovered the dream mine as a location that actually existed in the mountainous region. Any successful mine operator of those days had to be a good judge of character and ready to take chances. Wardner presently peered a handful of bills off his "roll" and told the man to go find the mine if he could.

"I received a letter telling me that a rich mine had been discovered, and the funny part of it was that the Alpha was on a ledge where neither gold nor silver had ever been found before. It was just as Austin had dreamed it."

Cobb Plans New Speed Mark Run In A Few Days

BONNEVILLE, BALZ PLATS, Utah, Aug. 23 (UP)—After traveling 388.8 miles an hour and becoming the first man to hold the land speed record at more than six miles a minute, John Cobb said today he has two immediate objectives:

1. An attempt, within the next few days, at the world's record for the flying start five and 10-mile runs.
2. Return to England and his brother in London.

Red Reillon, designer of Cobb's Red Lion, said the machine is in perfect condition and will not be repaired for the longer speed hops.

The present five-mile record of 231.40 m.p.h. was set at Daytona Beach, Fla., March 7, 1937, by Sir Malcolm Campbell. The 10-mile mark of 233.9 m.p.h. was made June 16, 1937, at Reichenbach, Germany's super speed track, by a German driver named Rosenberg, who drove a year ago after winning the Vanderbilt cup race in New York.

ENGLAND DETERMINED TO BATTLE TO SAVE POLAND

CABINET ORDERS SPECIAL SESSION FOR PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Aug. 23 (Special).—The British government in a supreme and unprecedented attempt to save the peace of Europe has sent a message to Adolf Hitler advising him that Britain is determined to aid Poland and meet force with force, it was announced officially today.

The message was sent in the name of His Majesty's government and it carried its full authority as a collective whole.

The cabinet made the decision at its emergency meeting yesterday. Sir Neville Henderson, British ambassador to Germany, was instructed to proceed from Salzburg to Berchtesgaden, and then to Hitler's mountain villa, with the message.

As the message was sent, one of the most powerful of the revelation of the house of commons, convoked the house for a meeting tomorrow to pass in record time a bill giving the government extraordinary emergency powers to rule by decree.

Primes were similarly summoned. Lord Minister Chamberlain decided that as soon as the commons tomorrow he would make a statement, to be followed by statements from leaders of the Labor and Liberal parties, the official opposition.

It was proposed to pass the emergency powers bill at once, and send it to the lords who will be waiting to act upon it.

King George, at his castle at Balmoral, Scotland, was kept advised of all developments by telephone. He was expected to come to London, probably tonight, to give his royal assent to the emergency powers bill.

The government, as soon as it reached its decision to communicate directly with Hitler, informed the governments of France and Poland to indicate its close collaboration with them in every development.

It was believed Sir Neville Henderson, in his message would emphasize to Hitler the official government statement issued last night expressing the belief Europe's problems could be settled without resort to war. He was expected to tell Hitler the British nation was ready to cooperate in every effort to preserve peace and to remove the jealousies which threatened it.

But, he was expected to say, Britain would resist force "to the utmost."

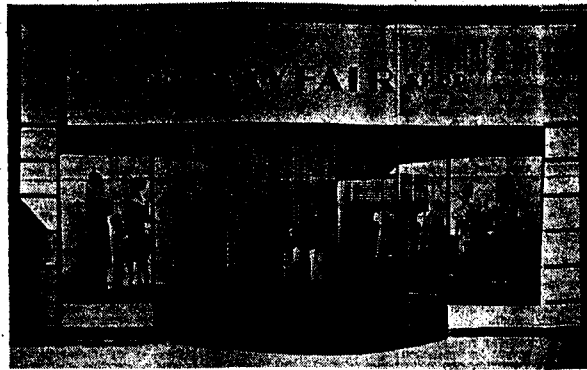

Henderson had officially advised Baron Ernst von Weizsacker, secretary of state of the German foreign office, last Friday that Great Britain would fulfill its guarantees to Poland.

The cabinet yesterday decided to notify Hitler personally.

The message it was said, was intended to make sure that Hitler personally—the one man in all Europe on whose decision rested the issue of peace or war—realized that Britain would fight.

British leaders have sometimes felt that Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, and others in Hitler's confidence had sought to convince him that the "decadent" British would not fight for Poland.

Devenay, driving a car belonging to George Ruma, an occupant in the car, was allegedly traveling too fast to negotiate a curve on the highway one mile south of Wendell. The machine is reported to have overturned twice. Estimated damage was $150. Neither of the occupants was injured, according to police.

JUNIOR ENTRIES IN 3-DAY RODEO

EL PASO, Tex., Aug. 23.—Those "teen-age cowboys"—whether fresh from the grassy lawns of the city or the sun-dried ranges of the southwest—are hauling out their chaps and spurs and practicing up for the seventh annual World's Championship Kids rodeo.

Limited to contestants under 18, the three-day event is thought to be the only one of its kind in the world. It will be held here Aug. 31 and Sept. 1-2, followed by the Range Hands rodeo for amateur adult performers on Sept. 3-4.

Last year 300 boys and girls from 5-year-olds up to the 18-year age limit took part in the kids rodeo. This year 350 entries are expected, Johnny Mullins, veteran arena dictator who stages both shows each year, said.

Directed on the same basis as an adult rodeo but with less dangerous events, the contests draw range-hardened youngsters from ranches in the southwest and would-be "wild westers" whose nearest approach to cattle punching comes from watching movie cowboys perform on big city theater screens.

Toughest events in the four-performance-a-day schedule are the wild yelling catching contest, limited to boys only; calf riding, in which 14 and 15-year-olds alone can compete; and calf roping, for which entry blanks carry a warning: "please do not enter this contest unless you can rope."

Two other events—pony stake race, burro stake race, Shetland pony race, novelty race, and best cowboy and cowgirl outfit—are open to all comers. Separate contests for boys and girls are held in each event.

Performance prizes, daily prizes and championship prizes go to the winners, with the most coveted trophy that which goes to the grand champion of the kids rodeo.

During the period a total of 148 applications were made by transient labor. An average of 243 persons per day called at the office.

RAIL EMPLOYEES STRESS SAFETY

Emphasis on safety was theme of the Union Pacific employees' gathering at the passenger depot here last night, with E. A. McDaniel, Pocatello, assistant superintendent of the Idaho division, presiding.

Called at request of Fred G. Farmer, freight agent here, the session will be duplicated every three months hereafter. There were 51 workers from Buhl, Jerome and Twin Falls present to hear D. E. Rawlings, safety first agent for the Union Pacific, Salt Lake City, discuss rules and safety practices of the railroad.

Union Pacific won national honors for many years because of its safety record. Mr. Rawlings stressed the fact that the U-P is in the lead for this year's safety mark, among the largest railroads. It said the Twin Falls district thus far has no accidents for 1939.

MAN or WOMAN —who knows more about bread?

By technical tests—baking to chemical formulas—men have developed the standard type of "baker's bread." This bread is not bad. It is simply uninteresting, rather insipid—not exciting to taste.

Women can tell the difference immediately between the usual commercial breads and this new woman's recipe loaf. Women judge bread the natural way—on taste. And women's taste approved this new loaf.

Here is Women's own creation—
A bread that "EATS" better!

by Julia Lee Wright

Head of one of the world's largest Home Economics Bureau

Have you tasted a woman's idea of good bread?

Already hundreds of families here eat no other kind of loaf. (When you buy bread today, get some and try it!)

Housewives from many states helped us develop Julia Lee Wright's Bread.

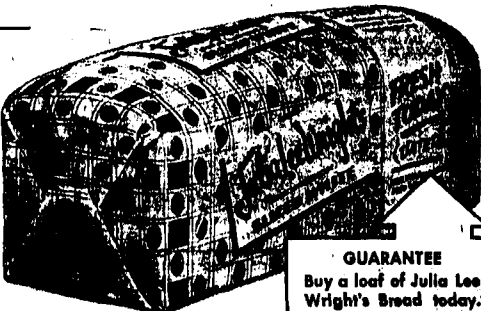

They tested hundreds of loaves, including the standard "baker's breads." Then they suggested a new kind of bread recipe.

And because women helped create it, this new bread naturally turned out quite different from the man-made formula loaves. Men, you see, have professional tests for bread. But women judge bread chiefly by taste—as they judge all foods.

And women agree—overwhelmingly—this new Julia Lee Wright's Bread is more interesting to taste! They say it's more delicate, more tender. And that it makes especially good toast.

One reason Julia Lee Wright's Bread is preferred is this. It is a matter of record that we use ingredients of the same quality we demand for your own pantry-shelves. Actually we put more money

GUARANTEE
Buy a loaf of Julia Lee Wright's Bread today. Unless you agree this "woman's recipe" loaf tastes better than the bread you have been getting, your money will be refunded.

into each loaf, I believe, than bakers usually do. (So even chemists will rate this "woman's recipe" bread exceptionally high!)

Then, too, we make an extra effort to get this "woman's recipe" bread into your hands at its peak of goodness. The Freshness Date Band on each loaf tells you when it is ideally fresh.

U.S. GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENTS STUDY WAR SITUATION

LEADERS POWDER EVACUATIONS OF CITIZENS ABROAD

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Experts of the five government departments prepared a complete outline of the European situation and its probable effect on this country today for submission to President Roosevelt when he returns to the capital Friday.

The minuteness with which officials of the state, war, navy, treasury and justice departments delved into all phases of the European picture for some persons to believe that the President may be planning another spectacular move in an attempt to save peace.

It was recalled Mr. Roosevelt addressed a personal message to Adolf Hitler last September during the Munich crisis requesting him to consider the responsibility of any leader who involves his country in war. In April the President dispatched an appeal to Hitler and Premier Benito Mussolini of Italy asking them to pledge they would not commit acts of aggression against specific European countries.

Ignored by Duce

Mussolini ignored the appeals except for inspired attacks in the Italian press, but Hitler answered in length in a speech to the Reichstag in which he attacked the democratic nations and denounced the German non-aggression treaty with Poland, thus laying the basis for the present crisis.

Since officials here hoped for continuance of peace, but prepared for the possibility of war.

Meet With Welles

The five departments which would be most concerned were represented in a conference late yesterday and again today in the office of acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles, the acting secretaries of war, navy, treasury and the assistant attorney general. In addition to the army chief of staff, chief of naval operations, and office of the general command of the marine corps were represented.

Although officials were secretive concerning the subjects discussed, it was learned that the safeguarding of American nationals in European war zones and the preservation of American neutrality were the principal topics.

POLAND LEADER SEES NO CHANGE

WARSAW, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Col. Josef Beck, foreign minister, has told envoys of friendly nations that Poland considers the European situation fundamentally unchanged by Russian-German non-aggression negotiations.

Since announcement of the negotiations, Beck had talked with the British, French and Rumanian ambassadors.

Political circles received with satisfaction a statement issued at London that Britain would fulfill its engagements with Poland and would resist any aggression to the uttermost.

Newspapers emphasized Poland never expected any military aid from Russia and did not want any.

"STAR CHAMBER" METHODS IN TRADE TREATIES

Editor, Evening Times:

In your editorial column you published a financial chart of 22 different business enterprises, showing a wide variation of business distribution that was inflated and deflated for the first six months of 1939 over the same period of time in 1938, and submitted the question to the public: Why this variation?

Ninety per cent of these business enterprises listed "up" represent term sales, or sales made to government sponsored projects or sales to individuals or corporations that are financed through government lending agencies, while those business enterprises listed as "down" represent cash sales to the general public, reflecting the public's cash buying power.

One of the outstanding factors today that could be sighted as a possible cause for this unbalanced distribution of business is that this nation has entered into reciprocal trade treaties with 20 countries.

These treaties are negotiated in secret, star chamber proceedings, in which agents of this government who are in no way responsible to the people sit around the table with foreign agents, to decide what the American people shall be allowed to produce in this country, and what they must buy from abroad.

Through their manipulation of our tariff rates in which they have made about 1,000 reductions in duties ranging up to 99 per cent they exercise a power of life and death not only over agriculture, but also over all industry.

May I suggest that we are all responsible for this situation; we have lost our desire to make good, we have lost our initiative in place of our own initiative, we look for help from the outside in place of among ourselves.

If we continue this course, we too must share the responsibility of a final collapse.

PLANE CRASHES FIGHTING BLAZE

HAMILTON, Mont., Aug. 23 (U.P.)—By horseback and stretcher a veteran pilot and his passenger were brought out of a Bitterroot national forest early today where their plane crashed while on firefighting duty.

Dirk Johnson, Missoula, Mont., the pilot, was most seriously injured. He suffered a laceration above one eye, severe bruises and shock.

His passenger, Clarence B. Suttiff, assistant supervisor of the Bitterroot national forest, escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

Rides Here

Suttiff was able to ride a horse from the scene of the crash in rugged Roaring Lion creek canyon, 15 miles southwest of here. But a crew of 12 stretchers, working in two shifts was required to bring Johnson out. They were taken to a hospital here.

The plane had been missing more than four hours when Suttiff crawled to fire lines along Roaring Lion creek shortly before midnight and reported the crash. Johnson was pinned in the six-place cabin plane until workers from the fire line extricated him.

Lost Control

The pilot explained that he had control of the ship in bumpy air over the fire line, dropping equipment, crashed into two trees and plunged into a mountain slide.

Johnson had made seven or eight trips to the fire line, dropping equipment and supplies by parachute. He was on his final flight of the night when the crash occurred.

The Roaring Lion fire had spread over 800 acres today. Three hundred and fifty men were on the lines.

ALARM

WASHINGTON, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Inventor Oscar P. Eggleston, Theresa, N. H., has solved the problem of fish which go away because the fishermen went to sleep.

His boon to fishermen is a device which, when a fish bites, waves a red flag, discharges 22 cartridge, rings an electric bell, flashes an electric lamp, and sends out short wave radio signals.

Eggleston says the device is particularly practical for ice fishing because a fisherman using it may operate 15 or 20 lines at the same time, getting different noises on the radio signal to tell which line has the bite. Thus, the arm-chair "hook Walton" can stay in a warm shack and listen on the radio for a bite.

The patent office gave him patent No. 2,170,000.

UTILITIES SEEK TAX REDUCTIONS

BOISE, Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Renewed demands for lower property evaluations for taxation purposes from public utility attorneys and rate experts bombarded the Idaho board of equalization as members continued their efforts to bolster up a shrinking tax base.

O. G. Edwards of Chicago and Floyd Williams of Seattle told the board of diminishing revenues of the Chicago, Milwaukee, St. Paul and Pacific railroad and demanded tax valuation reductions on its Idaho property.

Williams told the board the railroad had suffered heavy loss of revenue from sleeping and truck competition with which interstate commerce commission rulings prevented them from competing.

W. T. Piper, Salt Lake City, secretary of the Utah-Idaho Sugar company, protested assessments on sugar companies. Kinney Robinson of Spokane, president of the Washington Water Power company, serving north Idaho, made a plea for lower property assessments.

Other appeals for lower tax valuations were made by Utah Power, Idaho Power, Spokane International railroad and the Washington-Idaho and Montana railroad.

County attorneys appeared briefly late yesterday to explain shrinkage in county assessments which they said were due to cutting of timber, lower mine values, inability to get accurate assessments on household furniture, federal reforestation programs, stagnant real estate markets and general business retrenchment.

SHORTS

IONIA, Mich., Aug. 23 (U.P.)—Eighty-year-old Gov. Luren D. Dickinson is scandalized when he sees boys in shorts, it was revealed today.

Because he is, Roy Scout officials ordered that his bathroom be guarded when a guard of honor is provided the governor, no member of it is to be allowed in shorts. No matter how hot the weather is, the boys will have to wear their winter uniforms which entails wrapping the legs with woolen leggings.

On Aug. 16, Dickinson visited the Ionia fair. It was a big occasion, designated "Governor's day" and a Boy Scout guard of honor awaited him at the gates. In the guard were two Eagle Scouts, William and Donald Bady, brothers, and they wore the Scouts' regulation shorts.

"I don't like to see young men in shorts," Dickinson said to William.

"I'm sorry, sir," William replied. "I wear them because they're cool."

Dickinson was said to have referred them to the Boy Scouts' code of morality.

PROGRAM CLOSES McCLUSKY CAMP

BUHL, Aug. 23 (Special).—Ninth annual summer camp for younger children at Buhl McClusky memorial health camp closed with a program of songs, skits, dances and plays and a complete display of summer handicraft work at the camp Friday.

Eighty-nine children enrolled at the camp participated in the program, before a large gathering of parents and friends in the shade of the trees back of the girls' dormitory. Camp opened to children from the 12 counties represented July 9, with 75 enrolled. Others enrolled during the next two weeks.

From the standpoint of weight gained, this year's camp has proved most satisfactory since the establishment nine years ago. The 84 enrolled made an average gain of 4.7 pounds, one pound more than the average gained last year. Some children gained as much as three pounds a week during the first half of the camp, and gains were more or less steady. Prizes of candy were given to those gaining most on the weighing days, Mondays and Fridays.

Total gain for the entire six weeks was 4163 pounds, for girls 2155 and for boys 141 pounds. Biggest gain for the boys, eight pounds, was made by a 12-year-old child from Blackfoot. A seven-year-old Buhl girl made the greatest gain for the girls, 11 pounds in four weeks.

Dormitories this year were under three matrons, Mrs. Mona Wilkerson, Mrs. Alberta Moore and Mrs. Jessie D. Gordon. There were five teachers and a substitute and six ladies in the kitchen and dining room. Recreational and craft work was outlined by Miss Blanche Punt, Buhl recreation director.

Many improvements made the camp larger and better equipped. Under WPA grant the dining room was enlarged to seat 100. A large stove and a refrigerator unit were installed in the kitchen. Three showers were added to the shower room, and four toilets to the girls' rest rooms. A large wading pool with center spray was completed at the end of the second week. New isolation ward consists of a shower, kitchenette and room large enough for six or eight patients.

Camp committee personnel extend thanks and appreciation to the many individuals, clubs and organizations that are generously donating fruit, vegetables, cash and linens. Mr. Voelker, manager of Ramona theater entertained camp children and personnel at a special matinee July 31. R. K. Dillingham, filer, entertained with his magic tricks Aug. 16. Rev. G. L. Clark, Twin Falls, entertained with animated stories Aug. 13. Buhl Pioneer day parade was witnessed.

Friday night programs were given by different groups in the camp, and they were given a number of "reward" parties in the form of watermelon and picnic at the fireplace in the city park, marshmallow roasts and watermelon buns.

A Jacks tournament was held among girls last week. Winners were Margaret Ann Ditty, Wendell; Vera McCann, Caldwell, and Colleen O'Brien, Pocatello.

HAWAII EX-CHIEF WILL TALK HERE

Lawrence M. Judd, former governor of the Hawaiian Islands, will speak in Twin Falls on Thursday, Oct. 5, at a combined meeting of Twin Falls service clubs. It was announced this afternoon by J. A. Cederquist.

Cederquist said that the noted speaker would appear at the noon luncheon of the Kiwanis club that day and that members of the Rotary and Lions club would be invited to attend.

Judd at the present time is making a nationwide tour as a Town Hall speaker but will not appear on the local Town Hall program because of inability to arrange for proper dates.

His visit at the October address here will be the "Hawaiian Islands in relation to the Orient."

We are fortunate in being able to secure Mr. Judd to speak in Twin Falls. Cederquist said, "and we are sure his message will be one of importance."

ARMSTRONG AIDE BLASTS AMBERS

NEW YORK, Aug. 23 (UP)—Eddie Mead, manager of Henry Armstrong, announced today that Armstrong positively would not defend his welterweight title in New York against Lou Ambers, the New England champion, on Nov. 1.

Mead, who charged that the lightweight title was "stolen" from Armstrong, last night when Ambers was given the 15-round decision, said he would demand that Promoter Mike Jacobs hold the fight outside of New York—perhaps in Los Angeles.

Simultaneously, Mead announced that Armstrong never again would fight a lightweight.

"Henry had too much trouble making the weight for last night's fight," Mead said, "and it weakened him."

Mead, who charged Ambers fouled Armstrong in every round by sticking his thumbs in Henry's eyes, told Armstrong to Dr. Alexander Schiff for an examination.

Dr. Schiff said that the eyes were so badly battered it was impossible to make a thorough examination to determine if Ambers' thumbs did the damage.

Earlier, Mead announced he would appear before the New York state athletics commission on Tuesday and ask that last night's decision be reversed.

AUTO ACCIDENTS SHOW DECREASE

Twin Falls motorists are showing improvement in the matter of keeping local automobile mishaps at a minimum, a report at the police station showed this afternoon.

So far this month, records show, there have been 14 reportable automobile accidents and one person has been injured. During July there were 21 wrecks investigated by the officers and six persons were injured.

Despite the fact August is showing a decrease in mishaps, it is expected that this year's total will exceed that of 1938. During 1938, the records show, 138 mishaps were noted while during 1939 to date 112 have been investigated.

LEGION TO MAKE CONTEST ANNUAL

So enthusiastic was the reception of the drum and bugle corps, and band contest at Jaycees park, sponsored by the American Legion and auxiliary in connection with the annual department convention here last week, that the local post, American Legion and members of the auxiliary have determined to make it an annual event.

The contest will be statewide, according to preliminary plans, and will be staged in Twin Falls. Junior male organizations throughout the Great State will be eligible to participate.

Joint committees of the Legion and auxiliary will meet Friday at 8 p. m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Noble to make additional plans for the annual contest.

"Salesmen" for Resort Inspect Lures of Idaho

SUN VALLEY, Aug. 23 (Special)—Ten men who solicit business for Sun Valley in every section of the United States left here Tuesday morning on a four-day motor tour of the "backcountry" of south central Idaho, a trip sponsored by the United States forest service and conducted by F. C. Kozol of the Ogden regional forest office for the purpose of giving these representatives a chance to study first hand the sites significant to the history, economics and sports of the section of the state surrounding Sun Valley resort.

The route, which covers approximately 1,000 miles, will take the group across Warm Springs summit, through the Snake region, down the south fork of the Boise river through Rocky Bar, Feather, Pine and Atlanta, into the middle and north forks of the Boise river, across Lowman summit, through Bear valley, Stanley basin, down the main Salmon to Challis, down the Lost river valley, through the Craters of the Moon national monument, and return to Sun Valley by way of Carey and Silver creek valley.

Kozol will deliver short talks at frequent stops during the pilgrimage, covering forest operations, livestock business, mining both in past and present, and the colorful back-country stories which surround practically every spot on this itinerary.

The group of solicitors is headed by Charles T. Carey of Omaha. Other members are Joe P. Gallagher of Kansas City, W. Darroch Crookes of Portland, Ore., P. Paul Stone of Chicago, Alex P. Grant of New York, Ernest Hill of San Francisco, Brad Adams of Detroit, Samuel Chase of Philadelphia, Don Fraser of Omaha and Ralph L. Clark of Salt Lake City.

The men, members of the Union Pacific sales staff, are busy the year around in their respective communities delivering lectures and exhibiting motion pictures exclusively on Sun Valley and south central Idaho.
