SOVIET URGES AT PEACE DID ACCEPTANCE

Beery Flies Here Saturday For Pheasant Hunting Trip

Wallace Beery, screen star and favorite of millions of theatergoers throughout the world, will arrive in Twin Falls next Saturday noon by private plane for opening of pheasant hunting season in this section. It was learned here this afternoon.

Beery, who has made public today by Ted Welker, division salesman for the Utah Oil Refining company, whose brother, Herman, is the actor's attorney.

Welker received a personal letter from Beery to the effect that the trip would definitely be made next Saturday and that the jaunt from Hollywood to Twin Falls, via Salt Lake City, would be made in the screen star's private plane, with Beery himself at the controls.

The famous visitor will spend several days in Twin Falls and will stop at a local hotel, Welker said. With Beery will be his copilot, Clara Hartnett, and also William Morris, public relations man for M.G.M. pictures. Also in the plane will be the star's favorite hunting dog, Welker will accompany and guide the visitors.

Imperial Valley yesterday dove shooting. Herman (Welker's brother) was along. Had a good time and we all got limits of doves there and the weather was swell. He on the lookout for us on the 14th, and get the pheasants all geared up for us.

In another letter Beery said he would arrive at the local airport between noon and 1 p.m. He will fly his fast Howard monoplane.

Beery has hunted and fished in nearly every part of Idaho but the Twin Falls section and this will be his first trip here.

He owns a large ranch in the Chamberlain basin area of Idaho where he has hunted big game many times. Last year, he was sponsor of the University of Idaho football team, "opposing" Bling Bling who sponsored Gonzaga. A forest service landing field is located on his Idaho ranch, permitting him to go there by air.

His copilot is a former Idaho resident, having formerly resided in McCall.

A crowd is expected to visit the airport here next Saturday to welcome Beery to the city.

French Troops on German Soil

That trenches still play an important part in war technique of 1939 is emphasized by this radiophone of French troops "somewhere on the western front" moving through a communication trench. Allied censors emphasized that the war memorial and steeple in background identify this scene as being in former German territory now occupied by French troops.

England, France Still Refuse to Discuss Program

By JOE ALEX MORRIS
United Press Foreign News Editor

Soviet Russia called upon the allies today to put a "businesslike" Russia to the European war by accepting the Nazi and Red army conquests.

As the big winner in a conflict in which Soviet troops hardly have struck a blow so far, the Moscow government made known its viewpoint through the official newspaper Izvestia without giving any definite indication that Russia would seek to act as mediator.

The chief purpose of the Soviets, coincidentally with new arrangements to provide Germany speedily with raw materials for a long war, appeared to be support for Adolf Hitler's "peace offensive" as a means of consolidating the Nazi as well as the Soviet gains in eastern Europe.

There was no reason to believe that the Soviet declaration would have any effect on the coldness of Great Britain and France toward peace on Hitler's terms.

No Formal Offer

At London, Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain told the house of commons that any German peace proposals should be formally addressed to the allies through the U. S. embassy at Berlin, and that Hitler's "peace offensive" was not viewed by Britain as a formal offer.

Chamberlain reiterated that Britain and France are in complete accord regarding their objective in the war against Hitlerism.

It was obvious on the fighting fronts that the war was in a period of suspended animation, and the outcome of the diplomatic battle which—without firing a shot—is changing the political face of Europe, must be radically altered and Red armies changed the status of Poland.

No Acceptance Plan

Just what this all in fighting during the diplomatic maneuvers meant in regard to the paramount question of collective bargaining, Chamberlain said, was not clear. He said that the British government was not prepared to accept any settlement, even a "peace offensive" as a means of consolidating the Nazi as well as the Soviet gains in eastern Europe.

In Berlin, Nazis continued confident that Hitler's speech to the Reichstag would be a turning point in the war. They said that the Führer's terms were vague in order to give the impression of a peace offensive in the course of negotiations which they believe to be forthcoming.

Return Nationals

Meanwhile, Hitler began to put some of the plans disclosed in his speech into effect. German ships arrived in the Baltic states to begin returning around 120,000 German soldiers to the relief of part of the Vilnius area to Lithuania and Estonia, and to begin negotiations with Moscow, involving return of part of the Vilnius area to Lithuania and Estonia, and to begin negotiations with Moscow, involving return of part of the Vilnius area to Lithuania and Estonia, and to begin negotiations with Moscow, involving return of part of the Vilnius area to Lithuania and Estonia.

Solon Seeks End Of Debate Until Peace Plan Fails

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., today blocked temporarily a motion by Sen. Edwin C. Johnson, D., Colo., that the senate recess for three days pending the outcome of European peace moves.

Barkley, directing administration forces in the contest over revision of the neutrality act, assured Johnson he would "throw no stone in the way" of a later vote on the proposal.

Johnson is author of a pending resolution under which the senate would request President Roosevelt to seek an armistice in the European war.

He interrupted a speech against the neutrality bill by Sen. Sheridan Downey, D., Calif., to enter his new motion. Barkley then asked Johnson to delay his proposal until Downey had completed his speech, Johnson agreed.

Yanks Leave After Routing Redlegs, 7-4

(See series statistics on page 8)

CINCINNATI, Oct. 9 (U.P.)—The New York Yankees—first team in history to win the World Series—left today for a four consecutive years—disbanded today, their 1939 job of annihilating all opposition done.

This job was completed yesterday with amazing simplicity when the Yanks routed a feisty lineup again and won the series, 7-4.

The win gave way to Yankee baseball, the first of the series, a 7-4 victory over the Red Sox, the best team the National league could field.

The Yankees, who won the series, are looking to the most powerful neutral in all the world to make a move toward peace and that people throughout the country desire that Roosevelt to act.

He felt that the senate could make the most important contribution to peace by receding during the critical considerations abroad of Adolf Hitler's offer. He proposed that the senate continue receding for three days pending the outcome of European peace moves.

Johnson Pending

A motion by Sen. Charles W. McNary, R., N. H., to split the neutrality bill to permit immediate consideration of the neutrality bill, leaving the arms embargo repeal for later discussion, also is pending.

The house had its first neutrality debate today.

Rep. Hamilton Fish, R., N. Y., opposing embargo repeal, led off with the assertion that foreign propaganda are spending millions of dollars to draw the United States in the war.

Rep. John Rankin, D., Miss., interrupted Fish to suggest that "debate is useless since it is now apparent that the war is over, or will be in a few days."

Unemployment Can Be Solved

"We are convinced that the unemployment problem can be solved by democratic means. We have come away with a new hope and confidence in America." These are hopeful words, beautiful words, words that sing like music. They are one of the conclusions reached by the fourth "Fortune Magazine" round table. These round table discussions have been interesting from the start, the procedure being to assemble a group of leaders (in this case 17 of them) in many fields, discuss fully a problem, and then find the points on which substantially all are agreed. The presumption is that when you find points on which all men of a varying group agree, you've got something.

These men were as diversified as to include Clarence Francis, president of General Foods; Sidney Hillman, president of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney; Edward A. O'Neil, president of the Farm Bureau federation; Boris Shishkin, A. F. of L. economist; Nelson A. Rockefeller and others equally assorted.

Yet they agreed on hope of a solution of our one great economic problem—unemployment, under a democratic regime and by democratic methods.

Further, they agreed that the social gains of the past few years must be kept. There was no talk of "back to 1929" among either business, labor, or farm leaders. "The area of agreement" among these leaders accepted what people generally have accepted—it is no longer possible to get "back to 1929," and not desirable even if we could. We must do better than that.

The group agreed, however, that neither social legislation nor government spending is the complete answer—that all economic groups and government itself must concentrate on encouraging production and private investment. Business, labor, the farmer, and government must unite on wage and price policies which will increase consumption and make work.

That, as we see it, means that business, when it secures profits, should not raise prices, but concentrate on more sales at lower prices—that is, wider distribution. That makes work. Labor, too, and the farmer, should not seek prices for their work or produce which boost prices unnecessarily, thus restricting distribution and cutting jobs. And the government, while it must prevent abuses, ought to encourage private investment. Shishkin, for instance, believes that such planned policies could bring unemployment below the 3,000,000 mark, about the best that can be expected.

This is America's great task.

Such relief as war business gives to the unemployment problem is at best temporary. It is welcome, almost too welcome, because that tends to create a reliance on it.

But it is not permanent, not solid, nor right. It will collapse when the war collapses.

Steady, relentless, unceasing effort must be devoted to putting the American economic plant on a sound basis. Nothing must permit us to lose sight of this, our American job.

Sound Approach

It would be hard to find any fault with the approach of President W. Gibson Carey, jr., of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce, to the problem of federal economy. He asks that state and local communities stop seeking federal funds for local projects whenever possible, thus easing the continued drain on the federal treasury.

Federal aid to local communities in carrying through work projects which would take up the slack of unemployment with useful labor has been a necessity of the times. Local communities simply did not have, and could not raise, the money for work on such a scale. Any which now feel able to do this ought to carry their own burden.

In many communities the unemployment strain has for the moment been lessened; in others the financial state of their treasuries has improved. The task of seeing that local people have work certainly falls first on the local community. The more of them that can reassume that burden the better for the federal government and in general for everybody. But the burden, as long as it exists, must be carried by someone. We assume that Mr. Carey does not recommend simply that it be dropped.

With reports coming through that French soldiers are spending their time fishing in the Rhine and German soldiers are playing football, we can expect to have the war news moved back to the sports page any day now.

Goebbels continues to affirm the right of neutral nations. Then, too, U. S. pedestrians are always guaranteed the right of way.

Lady with the plastered hair—

Parade if I can't say "Fair!"

Waiting from the beauty shop

Head surrounded by a mop

Of very wet looking stuff...

Don't you know this stuff is rough

On male illusions as to beauty

Amid the other sex to snooty?

Don't you know the sad fact that

You're like unto a drowning rat?

Don't you know you look like

It ought to be an act unlaful

To walk around with hair so

But even if it's not illegal

EUROPEAN CRISIS TOPIC FOR TALK

JEROME, Oct. 9 (Special).— Almost 175 Jerome people gathered Thursday at the Presbyterian church to listen to a forceful address given by Dr. James Miller, of the College of Idaho, Caldwell, on the subject, "Europe and America in the Present Situation."

The address followed a dinner served by the Presbyterian senior Guild society, which sponsored Dr. Miller's appearance. He discussed the present crisis, pointing out that the roots of the problem go back much farther than the Versailles treaty to which they are usually traced. The three dominant desires of the European races today are, in general, for territory, prosperity and security.

Border states or districts which constantly are changing hands have the greatest need for a settlement to insure their permanency, which will permit peace of mind, the speaker pointed out. Until that is secured, he said, there will be no world peace.

Elia Weaknesses
The speaker indicated weaknesses of the present American attitude, pointing out that we are apt to ask first and always, "How will the action affect me?" Without considering the world as a whole. He said, "Democracy is not a perfect government, but it is a system broad enough to permit experiments which can be abandoned if they fail. The method of democracy is political, the means is economic but the spirit is at its foundation is ethical."

There is our failure, we blame parties for political failures. We blame big business for economic failures, but we forget that in a true democracy, we are the government, and the greatest failure of all is our ethical downfall, our willingness to surrender such vital values as common honesty and morality."

Unethical Economy
Dr. Miller said that the present peace scare on the stock market is an indictment on our unethical economy.

"It is horrible to think that our prosperity depends on other nations' willingness to slaughter each other," he said.

On the subject of neutrality, the speaker urged that America give full moral support to the democracies, supplying them with whatever they need to win the present conflict with dictatorship.

Transient Fined On Theft Charge

JEROME, Oct. 9 (Special).— Appearing before Probate Judge Heber N. Polkman Wednesday and pleading guilty to two charges of assorted petty theft which he allegedly committed Sept. 30, Lewis Dalton Russell, was assessed a fine of $25 on each charge and costs of $7.50.

In lieu of payment of the fines, Russell will serve the amount out in the county jail at the rate of $3 a day.

Russell admitted stealing a suitcase, two woolen shirts, a pair of shoes and a pair of trousers which belonged to Lola Worley, Jerome. Amount of the property stolen, was estimated at $15. On Sept. 30, 1939, Russell allegedly stole a leather jacket from Harry Glass, in Russell's possession when arrested by police here were two blankets which were believed stolen from a car.

3 Draw Fines on Drinking Charge

JEROME, Oct. 9 (Special).—Police Judge Clark T. Stanton assessed fines to several persons who appeared to plead guilty to assorted drunkenness charges in his court last week.

On Oct. 5, George Williams, transient, pleaded guilty to drunkenness charges and was assessed a fine of $10. Having no funds, Williams was ordered to leave town.

On the same day Sam Hansen pleaded guilty to drunkenness charges, also before Judge Stanton, who assessed a fine of $10. Upon payment, Hansen was released.

Patrick McCarthy, pleading guilty also to drunkenness charges, was assessed a fine of $10. In lieu of payment, McCarthy will serve the fine out at the rate of $1.50 a day, being committed to the county jail here.

Mopping Up in Poland

In the wake of aerial bombs and artillery shells, a Nazi motorized unit rides through a shattered Polish town and gets a convincing close-up of war's handiwork.

WATER AND NOW OFFERED BLAINE

BOISE, Oct. 9 (Special).—Financial and technical assistance is now available to Blaine county farmers needing water developments. F. A. Mark, USDA, said here today. The assistance will come through the water facilities act.

The Little Wood river watershed has been approved by the water facilities board in Washington, D. C., as a water facilities development area. Plans are now underway by the soil conservation service to construct a new diversion for the Little Wood River Canal company to replace the one which was destroyed in the 1938 high water.

May Act in Groups
Individual farmers or groups of farmers may apply for technical assistance and loans. In addition to the Little Wood river watershed, farmers in the remaining part of the county can apply for the same service, stated Mr. Mark. Blaine county has been approved as a water facilities operations county and four individual plans or two group plans can be approved in addition to the operations in the Little Wood river watershed.

Loans and technical services can be made available for new water developments such as wells, stock ponds, spring developments, storage dams, windmills, stock water tanks, water spreaders and other types of developments, in addition to rehabilitation of existing facilities.

No Technical Cost
Technical services are rendered without cost by the soil conservation service and the farm security administration, while necessary loans for construction can be secured at three per cent interest for periods as long as twenty years.

Applications for assistance should be sent to L. D. Crawford, county supervisor for the farm security administration at Jerome, or to F. A. Mark, soil conservation service, Boise.

Deanna Durbin Uncertain on Any Plans for Her Marriage

By BILL PORTER
(NEA Service)

HOLLYWOOD. Kid quotes—Deanna Durbin: "People keep asking me, 'What kind of a man do you think you'll marry?' I tell them that their question reminds me of the city girl who swore she'd never marry a farmer—and now she's milking a cow."

Carolyn Lee (4-year-old who makes her debut in "Honeydew in Bali"): "I like it every time I see my picture in the paper. It means the studio is getting back some of the money it paid me for working, and it gave me a kick a week."

Jackie Cooper (life makes $4,000 a week): "Money is sure tight in this town. How can a guy have a girl on $10 a week? I said the same thing to my dad, and he explained that I'm going steady. So he's increasing my allowance to $15 a week."

Linda Stender: "I was scared to death before I went to work in 'The Star Maker' and I was scared silly the first time I went before the camera. But now that the picture is all over, I don't know what to do with myself. I wish it were still going on."

Virginia Welder: "I want to go on the stage when I grow up, and play the lead in 'Taming of the Shrew.' I think I'll be ready in about 12 years—I'll be 24 then, and by that time if I keep working I ought to know something about acting."

Mickey Rooney: "The way I write a song is to hit on a tune first and work it out in detail. Then the tune usually suggests the song, and the words can be fitted to it easily enough. But then I go down and keep thinking up a good title. That's the hardest part of song writing."

Whitely Temple: "When I was 10 I thought I'd like to have a little shop when I grew up. Then I thought I wanted to be a C-man. But now I think I'll be ready in about what I ought to become."

"I don't like pies any more, and I found out I couldn't be a C-man. So I guess maybe I'll become a housewife."

Jane Withers: "Being 13 isn't nearly as much fun as I thought it was going to be. I mean to be too old for swings and too young for swing, not old enough for

From Beet in the Field to White Gold in the Sack, Picture Story of a Major South Idaho Industry

Beets Arrive by Railroad

Sliced Beets Pour Down

1. From the field to the table, such is the story of the sugar beet industry in the Magic Valley. The beets, dug from the earth by hundreds of workers, first go to the receiving stations of the Amalgamated Sugar company and from there, via railroad cars, they go to the factory. Above a car has just arrived at the Twin Falls into a deep, cement trench and a steel belt carries them to the near-

3. Running through the building's machinery the beets are then product at this point "noodles." Shown above are three of the more than 200 employees at the local factory dumping the "noodle" into great diffusion tanks. The sliced beets come along a continuous way, tank shown at the top of the picture. The hot water in the diffusion tanks soaks sugar out of the beets and forms a juice at this stage.

... Then They Are Given a Bath

2. When the beets first enter the factory they are thoroughly washed. Above is pictured a conveyor belt and a large tank which washes the beets around in the water and remove all foreign materials. Every beet which enters the factory goes through this washer and is then ready for the next stage. At all hours at least one man is stationed at this machine, making sure that everything is moving along on schedule. In the factories of the Amalgamated Sugar company everything moves on schedule.

"White Gold" Enters the Bag

4. There are many steps from the "noodle" stage to the finished product, shown above, but most of the picture series, means thousands of dollars to farmers of the Magic Valley and money in the pockets of the merchants. The "white gold" as it pours from the machines shown above, is packed and ready for shipment to the far corners of the country. Thus one of the biggest industries in this section of Idaho is underway once more... from the field to the table of America.

PLEAS FOR PEACE RING IN EARS OF L.D.S. DELEGATES

GRANT, APOSTLES SPEAK AS FINAL SESSION IS HELD

By MURRAY M. NOLAN
SALT LAKE CITY, Oct. 9 (AP)—Faithful members of the far-flung church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints returned to ordinary pursuits today, their ears ringing with pleas for peace that formed the main theme of the church's 110th semi-annual conference.

The conference concluded yesterday when 82-year-old President Heber J. Grant adjourned the sixth session of the meeting that began Friday morning.

Veteran church members who have attended many conferences said the 110th will go down in L. D. S. annals as one of the most important ever held.

Special Message
It opened with a special message from the first presidency, urging peace and the "unholy" war now raging in Europe.

First Counselor J. Reuben Clark supported this plea with a comprehensive analysis of events leading up to the war, its objectives and a belief that America—if she keeps her moral influence—can keep out of hostilities but at the same time play a "destined" role as peacemaker of the world.

Yesterday Second Counselor David O. McKay echoed the plea for peace and added to it his contention that the United States can best have peace by living up to the constitution.

McKay warned Mormons to beware of subversive foreign propaganda agents now at work in America, trying to "undermine the government." The counselor said the dangers to the country from these behind the scenes workers was far greater than any danger the United States faces from actual military invasion.

Reason For Love
Albert E. Bowen of the council of 12 apostles told the closing sessions that the "greatest force in the world, leading to either peace or war, is public opinion" and declared that civilization has "been able to conquer nature and the elements but not man himself."

Record
Rulon G. Wells, senior member of the council of 12, declared that members of the Mormon church have a special reason for "loving America" because of the church's belief in the divine origin of the U. S. constitution.

CHANDLER TAKES SEAT IN SENATE

WASHINGTON, Oct. 9 (AP)—Gov. A. B. Chandler of Kentucky, whose senatorial aspirations were blocked last year by President Roosevelt, was expected to arrive here tomorrow to become a new United States senator.

When Chandler takes the senatorial oath one of the Democratic party's bitterest state feuds will end for the time being at least.

By MILTON BRONNER (NEA Service)

LONDON — If Germany has counted upon war-time trouble for Britain in the great empire of India, it has been badly mistaken so far.

Even more significant is the feeling in India itself. Practically every important Indian prince, reigning over native states and suzerains of the Maharajah of Kapurthala, has in addition, offered the services of two of his soldier sons, a both of whom are in England.

What is going on in immense India is matched by what is happening in "Little India" made up of some 200 Indian students scattered in universities throughout Great Britain. About half of these live for the time being in London.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Oct. 9 (AP)—German ships were in Estonian and Latvian harbors today to begin the repatriation of 120,000 Germans in a move regarded as a tacit admission that Russia was to dominate the inner Baltic.
