

U. S. RELATIONS WITH SOVIET LOOM AS POLITICAL ISSUE

GOP EXECUTIVES LASH ROOSEVELT FOR TENDERNESS

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (UP)—United States relations with Soviet Russia, long troubled and clouded by invasion of Finland, today became a hot political issue when Republicans intend to carry into the 1940 presidential campaign. The Republican national committee joined the dispute with a dossier of protest against New Deal recognition of Soviet Russia. It included expressions of opposition of three Republican presidents and when the United States recognized Russia in 1933. Notable among others quoted was Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., a candidate for the 1940 Republican presidential nomination.

From Palo Alto, Calif., former president Herbert Hoover, a Republican, expressed his opposition to Roosevelt's policy. He said that the New Deal administration's policy toward Russia was "a dangerous and unwise policy." He said that the New Deal administration was less hostile to the Communist than to the Nazi scheme of things. The Dies committee investigation of un-American activities probably will supply ammunition for that political argument if it continues to develop. It has given wide circulation to charges that within the administration are Communist "fellow travelers" who make campaign material which the Republican party apparently is moving into a position to use.

Demands Recall
Mr. Hoover's suggestion of "tenderness" toward Russia was accompanied by a demand for recall of United States Ambassador Laurence A. Steinhardt. He argued that invasion of Poland was as much a war as the German invasion of Poland which not only were countered by recall of Ambassador Hugh B. Wilson, but with a 25 per cent tariff hike to boot.

Dies and Sen. William H. King, D., Utah—an anti-New Deal Democrat—already are demanding a rupture of U. S.-Soviet relations.

Sen. William E. Borah, R., Ida., chairman of the Senate committee on the house foreign affairs committee and some others question advisability of a complete break.

Court Ruling Blow at "Trust"

government's appeal... does not present that question," the court said. The indictment charged the Pure Milk association, an organization of dairy farmers, conspired with milk delivery companies to set the price to be paid to farmers. The corporations themselves set a price for the consumer, it was alleged. An American Federation of Labor teamsters union cooperated by creating labor trouble for firms cutting prices, it was charged.

The city board of health was involved by its methods of certifying firms eligible to ship into the city, the charge stated.

The court's action today does not decide the guilt or innocence of those accused. No trial has been held on that question.

SITE NAMED FOR DWORSHAK MEET

Public dinner meeting at which Cong. Henry C. Dworshak will speak in Twin Falls was set today for the American Legion hall. The session had previously been arranged for 6:30 p. m. Wednesday, Dec. 13, but location was not chosen until today. Committee members felt that the Legion hall would accommodate the crowd which is expected to hear southern Idaho's congressman give his views on the situation at Washington today.

In charge of arrangements are Chairman Frank Cook, J. J. Winterholer and Ronald Graves.

Patient Dismissed
J. L. Irving, Twin Falls, employee of a shoe company, who was admitted to the Twin Falls county general hospital Saturday to receive treatment for a dislocated shoulder, was dismissed Sunday.

POLICE DISPERSE ANTI-RUSSIAN THROG IN ITAL

STUDENTS CHEER FINLAND; MARCH ON RED EMBASSY

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP)—Fascist students marched on the Russian embassy through the main streets of Rome today shouting "Down with Russia! Down with Communism!" First police reinforcements, then 500 steel helmeted grenadiers and carabinieri in full field equipment and armed with bayoneted rifles were dispatched to guard the embassy as the students converged on it.

The grenadiers and carabinieri blocked off all streets leading to the embassy as the police sought to persuade the students to content themselves with their parade and their denunciations.

Ranks of the students grew as they marched.

Strong details of plain clothed police had been posted at the embassy as the result of a demonstration Saturday.

About 1,000 Fascist students gathered there and shouted:

"May Finland win! Long live Finland!"

All traffic in the area was disrupted.

Eero Järvelin, Finnish minister, appeared three times on a balcony of the embassy, responding to wild cheers by the students.

He thanked the students in a brief speech in Finnish, and thus brought new waves of cheers by the students.

Then the students began their march on the Russian embassy and the police, grenadiers and carabinieri went into action.

Wear Uniforms

The demonstrations, more impressive because some participants wore the uniforms of rigidly disciplined Fascist units, came as authoritative sources said Italy intended to intervene in Russia.

Italy's intervention was determined to keep Russia out of the Balkans.

What form Italy's intervention might take—aiding Balkan countries with military forces as in the Spanish civil war, actually going to war, or some other form—was a matter for speculation. But information made it seem clear that Premier Benito Mussolini was determined to keep Russia out of the Balkans.

Memory, Hope Stressed In Elk Memorial Rites

With S. T. Hamilton, pioneer resident of Twin Falls and dean of local attorneys as speaker, annual memorial services paying tribute to members who have died during the past year were held Sunday afternoon at the Elk temple. Nine members were listed on the roll of the departed.

In his impressive address Mr. Hamilton likened the Elk memorial day to a river in the sea of humanity.

As the Gulf stream is indispensable in nature, so is this memorial day in the life of humanity.

Memory and hope. This memorial day will never cease to be a tender memory of the loyalty of the members who have died during the past year and the achievement attained.

The shadow of death falls everywhere. No home is too high and no lowly for its entrance and no too sacred for it to sever. Again and again the golden bowl is broken, the pitcher at the fountain and the wheel at the cistern. We are here in commemoration of the lives of those who do not answer at roll call.

Noble Examples

"They felt the throbs of the common heart and heard the silent call of the needy. They have bequeathed to us noble examples. We have shared their joys, now we pay our grateful tribute."

"This hour we unite our hearts with all sorrowing ones. May the mist that is now so thick soon lift and drift away for behind it the sunlight. In this memorial service we are seeking to express our personal loss, and our sincere sympathy for their loved ones who share the family circle whose sorrow we share."

"But I am confident that those departed members would rather have us at this time turn to the consideration of the great problems of the world upon which their lives were built and which the occasion clothes for us who remain. It has always been the duty of the lodge of this order to fill the lives and minds of its members, and as well the lives and minds of those who are men along the highways of life, with sweetness. To speak approvingly and cheerfully while their hearts can be thrilled and made happier. To pin a rose on the lapel while the brother is living.

"What then would these friends of ours, so lately translated from the happy companionship of our common labors to the mystery and eternity of the grave have us think?"

Death Is Gateway

"We must decide to accept, as they did, one of two alternatives. We can think of death for them and for ourselves as the end of all being. Or we can face the experience through which they have passed and through which we must pass fortified by an invincible faith that death is merely the gateway to an eternal existence, glorious, satisfying, unshadowed by sin and sorrow and weakness."

"If we follow the faith of the men in whose honor we are met today, we will choose the second of these paths."

The nine members of the lodge who died during the past year were: R. E. Carnahan, John W. Iron, C. O. Jenkins, M. J. Swerdlow, B. L. Price, Craig T. Bracken, Dr. C. A. Ames, A. A. Vombaur and Carl J. Hain.

Opening the ritual was Howard Gerrish, exalted ruler, and Harry Balch, esquire, Chaplain H. H. Holter offered the invocation and the closing benediction. The roll call of departed members was called by Herman E. Deke with officers of the lodge giving the memorial response.

Musical

The program of vocal and instrumental music included "Oh, Dry Those Tears," sung by Mrs. O. P. Duvall; sacred music by an instrumental group consisting of Owen Boone, cello; A. E. Francis, violin; Charles O. Dumas, flute, with Mrs. A. E. Francis, accompanist. Mrs. D. A. Alexander played an organ selection.

Closing the ceremony was the singing of Auld Lang Syne by all members.

Committee in charge of arrangements consisted of John O. Hansen, Esq., Clarence Dean and J. H. Blamford.

Preventing War in 1964

Something that never happened during those long years between 1914 and 1918 is happening in Europe today. People are asking their statesmen what they intend to do to the continent AFTER the conflict is over. The man on the streets of London and Paris is interested not in having his country win the war, but in punctuating the fight with something better than a Versailles treaty.

During the last war, virtually the only objective of any allied nation was to hang the kaiser. That accomplished, everyone believed everything else would take care of itself. Democracy would be rescued, workers could go back to their factories, farmers to their fields; joy and peace would reign. It was as simple as that.

Today, one of the principal war aims advocated is the federalization of western Europe. The chief champion of this idea is Julian Huxley, British novelist, who feels that instead of trying to balance power, the European nations should consolidate it. Huxley would set up a United States of Europe, based upon the successful American system.

Clarence Streit, American author, carries this idea a step further in the book he wrote some time before war was imminent. Streit, in "Union Now," proposes a federation of world democracies. Under the American plan, Germany, Italy, and Russia would be ineligible until they adopted democratic forms of government.

Loudest demand for a concrete declaration of allied war aims comes from H. G. Wells, British writer, who doesn't care particularly what the British and French have in mind—as long as it's something a little more solid than merely clipping Herr Hitler's ears.

There is some hope, if the people are sufficiently aroused by the spread of these ideas, that Europe's troubles can be disposed of for periods longer than 25 years at a time. Whether the next peace conference will meet after a long, harrowing war or before too much blood has been spilt, the results should be much better than they were after the Wilson-Lloyd George-Bismarck huddle in 1919.

No matter who wins the war—if anyone wins it—the loser can't be expected to remain permanently on his knees. Economic expansion is important, and international trade is doubly essential to nations that have just gone through long years of military prostration.

Patriots or 'Squealers'

A feud that should be of interest to nearly everyone is currently being carried on in New York between the Municipal Civil Service commission and Park Commissioner Robert Moses over what may be termed either departmental espionage or civic-mindedness, depending on the way you look at it.

Paul J. Kern, president of the Civil Service commission, circulated a letter promising higher ratings for employees who exposed corrupt conditions in their departments. Mr. Moses shouted "Agh!" and "un-Americanism." Mayor La Guardia crisply told both gentlemen to lower their voices, please.

The difference between a stool pigeon and a public-spirited citizen doing his duty is sometimes pretty thin. It depends a lot on the motive behind the exposure—and real motives are sometimes pretty well hidden. Dishonesty should be reported, but the man who tells tales about a co-worker spending too much time at the pretty stenographer's desk may not have the interest of the department entirely at heart.

A Lost Chord

What we'd least expect at this juncture in world affairs is having someone from the British Empire tell us gently to steer clear of the European war. Therefore the advice of Rodrigue Cardinal Villeneuve, Canada's leading prelate, sounds a little like a long lost but thoroughly welcome chord in a chorus of sirens' songs.

Cardinal Villeneuve, who is archbishop of Quebec and honorary president of his provincial Red Cross organization, predicts that the United States will be an important factor in establishing an equitable peace, "especially if not drawn into the conflict." And he expresses the hope that the United States will be in a position to aid in establishing such durable peace after the war.

This bit of allied heresy is very likely the sincere expression of a clergyman who can see no advantage in further complicating the international instrument by getting the United States mixed up in it. His words don't sound a bit like those of Alfred Duff Cooper, Winston Churchill, and Lord Marley—but they sound rather good.

Insomnia, says a psychologist, may be an imprudent idea trying to break into your consciousness. Or it may be pickled herring just before bedtime.

Shlick Shock for Walt Musgrave

Pot Shots take (hah!) to do this, what with Walt Musgrave such a good friend of ours. But since you folks talk, we'll reluctantly part with the following information.

A former-born resident, in search of some naturalization facts, walked into the auditor-recorder office. When stepped gruffly up to the counter and asked if he could do anything for the fellow.

The auditor scrutinized Walt carefully.

Then he shook his head in the negative.

"No, Mr. ...," quoth he, "that one man here knew a lot and the other man don't know so much."

Walt took it standing up, because Paul Gordon handles such a great deal of the not-too-diplomatic visitor was referring to that.

IN WHICH TOM ROBERTSON RATES TWICE

Dear Shots:

I submit a gem that seems to illustrate the idea that it's not bad to stop and look before you leap. On the night of the Santa Claus ceremony downtown, Tom Robertson barged around the corner and saw the crowd, with somebody speaking out on the platform.

"It is, it is, it is out there blowing off," he said. F. C. Graves. Come to find out, it was John Robertson telling about the Christmas decorations.

Dear Pot Shots:

Tom Robertson has a comeback for those smart "I wish you well on your birthday anniversary, you old son-of-a-bitch" individuals.

Says Tom, "I'm not an old man yet, but I've been a young man a mighty long time."

GOSH, WE FEEL KINDLY TOWARD BULL

Kind Lady:

I am coming to you for very important information. You know that we of the next generation are half what's going on in the Twin Falls and surrounding country. So please help us out, this what's all. We hear much talk and some whispering that Pot Shots is going to run for congress next fall. Now, is that so or what platform, if any, is he going to run on? When can we vote for him and where?

We sure think the Hon. P. Shots would make a good filibuster. He could do more for the farmers than all the brain-trusters in Washington put together. So it has more than one lot, tell him to throw one in the ring.

Yours faithfully,

—A Voter

WHAT A MAN!

Mr. What is this strange power Chuck McConnell has over the ladies?

He was eating dinner the other night and was called out to the front door. And there, believe it or not, a bunch of girls serenaded him. Among the songs were "Love You True" and "Good Night, My Love." What's more, the girls asked Chuck if he married.

The small crowd of girls inside, ruddy looking the young ladies still clinging to him. And he would reveal who or how did the girls wear.

SERIAL STORY

5 WOULD KILL

BY TOM HORNER

COPYRIGHT, 1939, NEA SERVICE, INC.

Yesterday's John reveals that the old prospector, known as "Big Tom," was robbed of a rich mine claim by a gambler, who he believed to be Benathorne. Dawson is puzzled by Arlo's return to the house after her last interview with her father, and by her belief that Benathorne might have been the gambler. Dawson is puzzled by Arlo's return to the house after her last interview with her father, and by her belief that Benathorne might have been the gambler.

CHAPTER XV

DAWSON waited as his question struck home. Douglas was on his feet at once, to deny the detective's charge, but it was evident that his faith in Arlo had been shaken.

"That's crazy," he shouted. "Tell him, Arlo. I know you could never even think that, much less that I wanted to come here."

"I want all my ideas," said John. "Miss Johnson has just told us that the detective you when she just met me, but she pretended to fall in love with you." Dawson argued. "She came here tonight with the intention of killing her father, but Mrs. Benathorne's untimely intrusion prevented her. It's logical to believe that she might have changed her plans, led you to believe you suggested coming here, sent you to Benathorne's study and then returned through the secret entrance."

"No! No! Arlo almost screamed the words. She turned to Douglas. "You couldn't—you wouldn't believe I could do that to you?"

IN the first place the steps were uncomfortable. Secondly, John wanted a cigar. Bad enough to have to stand for half a day, without a shave, without a drink, but to have Dawson take his cigars was just going too far. Perhaps the copper had some new ideas on third degree, new psychological technique, John decided. Hell, even if Dawson did break down that alibi there was nothing to worry about, ballistics tests would show his gun had not killed Krone, one the other above him, trying to keep awake.

"Got a smoke, Krone?" John asked. "Dawson took mine."

Krone shook his head. "I could use one too, Joey," he said. "This waiting around is getting on my nerves. With Flynn would get back."

He ran down the steps, pounded on the closed door of the study. "Dawson! Dawson!" he called through the panel. "Come here. There's something I want to tell you."

"I know now why you wanted my cigars," Joey began, when Dawson came from the study. "Before you start dreaming up any ideas to send me to the river, I want to put you straight on a few things. I was here last night, before Benathorne was killed."

Dawson grinned and said that Joey. At least I knew you were here."

"The cigars?" di Torio asked. Dawson found it in the past. "Your special brand, I believe, Joey."

Joey stared at the wall. He tried changing his position so as to be able to sleep, but the step was too narrow. "Match your dimes against your pennies, Krone," he suggested, slipping a "Alston!" Joey spat out the name. "Why that old..." He got a bit of sleep. "Stuffy in here and I might get sleepy."

Dawson nodded. "You were saying, Joey?"

"I'm sorry, before I'm through, Dawson," Joey answered. "I got a little—alright—but I'll forget it. I left the Chateau at 11:15, like I told you. I did want to see Benathorne, and you know why. It was easy, with this doorway opening right on the study. That was the way I always came in. Benathorne ought to have told you about that."

"I was there, all right, and I remember tossing away a cigar in the act, and on it as I came in out of the rain. And then—" He stopped as Helen Benathorne reappeared. "I found you a cigar, Mr. di Torio," she said pleasantly, offering the box. "Care for one, Captain?"

"Thanks," Dawson searched his pockets for a match. "Got a light, Joey?"

"Match fared, flickered out seconds later as Joey lit his cigar, inhaled deeply.

"That's three on a match," Mrs. Benathorne said lightly. "I'm not superstitious. I hope neither of you are."

Joey laughed hollowly. He should have noticed that. "Captain Dawson," Mrs. Benathorne went on, "I'm sending Helen home. She's a good girl, poor girl. You've probably worn her out with questions, and I know she'll appreciate a little rest. It will be all right for her to go to my room, will it not?"

"That's thoughtful of you, Mrs. Benathorne," Dawson answered. "I'll be glad to see her. I'll be glad to see her."

"By all means, go right ahead," the telephone wires were tapped. He heard the door open and the door swung shut behind her. "Come on down here, Dawson."

He nodded toward the passageway to the street. "I'll be right with you."

"Salmon falls" is Idaho's oldest geographic name continuously in use in the state. It was first recorded by Robert Stuart in 1812 but was probably devised by Ramon Crooks in 1811.

As a name for an Idaho river, "Clearwater" in its definitive sense, is older but in this case the Nez Percé form, "Kookanah," says the story for many years before the English equivalent came into use.

THREE GRID TEAMS KEEP PERFECT RECORDS

Tennessee, Texas A. & M., Cornell Top Nation's Clubs

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—All the returns on the 1939 football season are in, except from what the politicians call a few scattered precincts, and the results show only three major teams stand undefeated and untied.

There they are—Tennessee, Texas A. and M. and Cornell—three of the most powerful teams in the nation. Cornell and Texas A. and M. have closed out their seasons, but Tennessee still has a tough but erratic Auburn team in its path.

Five strong teams came under another classification—undefeated but tied. They are Southern California, Tulane, UCLA, Georgetown and Duquesne.

Hero of Week
The five are likely to dwindle to four at dusk Saturday when Southern California and UCLA, teams at Los Angeles. The chips will really be down for that one, because the winner is almost certain to carry the hopes of the west into the Rose bowl.

The air already is full of bowl talk, but so far nobody has been able to do more than guess. Neither USC nor UCLA will state its preference publicly on an eastern representative until they settle their back yard argument. The best guess is that the eastern representative for the Rose bowl will be chosen from among Tennessee, Texas A. and M. and Tulane. The west coast probably would like to have Cornell, but so far there have been no signs out of Ithaca, N. Y., that the Big Red will consider any bowl bid.

Besides the UCLA-Southern California and Tennessee-Auburn games, the following major contests remain on the 1939 schedule:
Miami vs. Georgia at Miami, Dec. 9.
Southern Methodist vs. Rice at Dallas, Dec. 9.

Highlights of the week-end:
Upset of the day—the way Boston college, a 2 to 1 underdog, came roaring along to score two touchdowns in the final period and defeat Holy Cross, 14 to 0.

Player of the day—Greenville Lansdell of Southern California. With less than two minutes to go, his team was trailing Washington and seemed about to be cooked out of its Rose bowl competition. Cool and calm, Lansdell shot a 10-yard pass to John Stonebraker for the winning touchdown.

Cowboy Chief, Secretary at Baseball Meet

In Cincinnati today representing the Twin Falls Cowboys at the annual major-minor league baseball meeting were A. J. (Monty) Montgomery and Bill Ulrich, Spokane, secretary-treasurer and president, respectively, of the local club and the Spokane Indians.

At the meeting they will attempt to line up material for the Cowboys and Indians for the coming campaign. Hugh B. Pace, business manager of the Cowboys, remained in Spokane to handle the home office during their absence.

While nothing definite was stated on the plans of Ulrich and Montgomery at Cincinnati, the pair is expected to go into some deep thinking on fixing up the Spokane team, which finished in fourth place in the Western International league last year. The Spokane Indians, who turn out for record-breaking attendance year in and year out, are demanding a winner and Mr. Ulrich has promised he will give them one this year—as he did Twin Falls fans last year.

Others in attendance from the Pioneer league are Macken Walker of the Boise Pilots, and Eddie Mulligan of the Salt Lake City Bees. Ogden and Pocatello clubs will be represented by their respective parent teams—Cincinnati and St. Louis. It is not known if Sam Collins, owner of the Idaho Falls franchise, will make the trip.

Business Manager Pace announced that already work is going forward on the lining up of material for the Twin Falls camp next spring, and that the Seattle Rainiers, champions of the Pacific Coast league, will probably send six players to our camp—all with good prospects.

Giants Capture East Division Pro Grid Title

NEW YORK, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—The New York Giants can thank Referee Hallogan today for their National Professional football eastern division championship. The records show they won it from the Washington Redskins, trailing by two points in the fourth quarter, championship fight at Manilla Dec. 15 is only part of the pocket money he intends to bring back to the home town.

The Manassa Mauler paused here overnight on the second leg of a 10,000-mile flight to the Philippines. He stepped to visit his mother—the first time since August—and tell her the return half of his expedition trip will not be used until he has thoroughly worked the islands—maybe not until March.

Break Six Years Ago
Dempsy, who blasted everything in the ring from 1911 until 1927 when he lost his heavyweight crown to Gene Tunney, is recouping the $3,000,000 to $5,000,000 he earned with his explosive fists. Six years ago he was broke.

Dempsy said he would stop back in the home town where he was born from the Philippines and tell us he has added any safety to the prediction that he will be a millionaire again. He said he wasn't sure he has many fights or wrestling matches he could line up on the trip.

His Broadway restaurant partner will lend the business from which Dempsy makes $100,000 a year as half owner. His partner in the liquor business will carry on Billy Taub will lend Dempsy's part in a clock and suit business.

Nears Million Mark
Dempsy was worth more than $750,000 Dec. 10, Jacob Aronson said then the fighter would be a millionaire again in 18 months.

The "ex-champion" was scheduled to catch the 1 p. m. United Airlines plane to Los Angeles, then proceed to San Francisco where he will board the Honolulu Clipper tomorrow. He will arrive in Manilla Dec. 11, five days before the fight and time enough to look around for a few odd jobs.

His record officiating fight began at New York Saturday. He stopped overnight at Chicago and flew to Salt Lake City last night.

Parker Hall Wins Pro Passing Title

COLOMADO SPRINGS, Colo., Dec. 4 (U.P.)—Big Parker Hall, 1938 All-American back from Mississippi, won the professional passing championship of the nation today by leading the Cleveland Rams to a smashing 35 to 13 victory over the Philadelphia Eagles in a national professional league game played before 4,000 fans in the Will Rogers stadium.

Hall filled the air with footballs to end the season with a record of 100 yards completed for a 14.7 average and of 1,227. The mark far exceeded the former league record of 111 completions set by Sammy Baugh.

Handle Trojans Same Way

Here are 446 pounds of Southern California guards, 215-pound All-American Harry Smith upstaying his 234-pound first-string running mate, Ben Sohn. They are two good reasons why Trojans are headed for Pasadena Rose bowl, Jan. 1.

Washingon Proves USC Not Invincible

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—The sporting element of California owes a rising vote of thanks today to a gallant University of Washington team which proved all is not gold that glitters by slowing, for 58 minutes and 40 seconds, that Southern California team which has been called the "big game" of the year on the coast. The winner will go to the Rose bowl.

The fact that the Huskies forced the Trojans to come from behind with a pass and a prayer to eke out a 9 to 7 win, gave next Saturday's encounter between U. S. C. and University of California at Los Angeles all the earmarks of the "big game" of the year on the coast. The winner will go to the Rose bowl.

Colorado Mine Player Tops Grid Scoring
GOLDEN, Colo., Dec. 4 (U.P.)—"Goat" That's all Lloyd Madden, Colorado School of Mines fullback, had to say today about his feat of out-scoring all other collegiate players this season.

It's what opposing players had been saying all fall as the 185-pound back charged over Rocky mountain gridirons to hit pay dirt time and time again and establish a scoring record with 141 points.

Madden, 21, who came to the Colorado School of Mines to study petroleum engineering, surpassed the Rocky mountain record of 122 points set by Byron "Whizzer" White, Colorado university ace who was tops in 1937.

Statistically, here's his record: He carried the ball 92 times including charging, punt interceptions and run-back of kickoffs—and he made a total of 1,316 yards. His average 14.3 yards for every time he got hold of the pigskin.

These facts tell clearly why Colorado Mines, winner of the Rocky mountain "Little Five" conference race, went through the season undefeated, scoring 268 points to its opponents' 44.

In Paris, rare species of butterflies were made from pieces of common ones, and sold to unsuspecting collectors.

Major and Minor League Leaders Gather in Ohio

CINCINNATI, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—The big winter baseball show opened today on a negative note. Commissioner K. M. Landis wasn't here and that was an ominous note to many major leaguers. The trading mart was so quiet there wasn't even a good Joe Medwick or Hank Greenberg rumor to run down.

With about 1,400 baseball magnates and officials here for the week-long convocation, activity was expected to pick up considerably especially when Landis arrives in mid-week.

The first session of the 39th annual national association convention of minor leagues opened today with Judge W. G. Bramham presiding. On advice from Landis, the association club, it's possible Landis may declare anywhere from 20 to 50 ball players free agents in a decision as broad as the one he made against the St. Louis Cardinals in March, 1938.

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

CLEVELAND—Ken Keltner's application for $15 a week social security compensation on the grounds that he was injured during the winter will cause no alteration in the form of player contracts.

In the first place, the Ohio unemployment compensation bureau rejected the claims of Keltner, Cleveland's first baseman, and two members of the Columbus American Legion baseball club because their baseball contracts that they signed over from year to year give them, in effect, year-round employment.

The great majority of the players in the Keltner class... drawing from $7,500 to $20,000 a season... manage to distribute their salaries in such a way that they manage to struggle through the winter.

These players prefer to have their contracts concentrated in the six-month playing season instead of having it distributed over 12 months.

Major league owners disclosed paying the noble athletes from the start of the training season, but even that suggestion was tossed out because any ball player with a lick of sense realizes that he is being paid on a seasonal basis and that it doesn't make a great deal of difference when he gets the money.

So the application of Keltner, who gets $7,500 from the Indians and who would bring something like $75,000 in the open market, will be forgotten until next spring.

Then, Ball Player Keltner will hear plenty about his asking for the maximum of $40 or $2.15 a day or so while others were in need and he was enjoying a vacation.

Like many another ball player, Ken Keltner didn't know when he was well off.

Another Daingerfield

Keene Daingerfield is in New Orleans with five horses. Five generations of Daingerfields have linked their names with the turf.

Major Foxhall Keene, grandfather of young Keene Daingerfield, bred, owned and raced thoroughbreds. His forefathers did the same. Elizabeth Daingerfield, young Keene's aunt, an authority on blood lines, was in charge of Man o' War for Samuel D. Riddle for 10 years. Uncle Alger Daingerfield has been president of the New York Jockey club for 35 years.

Keene Daingerfield graduated from the University of Virginia. His father wanted him to specialize in international law. He passed the bar examinations... at the time there was to be one Daingerfield with a vocation not identified with horses.

But Keene Daingerfield used his legal oratory well in talking his father into buying him the nucleus of a racing stable.

The Daingerfields of Kentucky and Virginia simply can't be kicked out of the running horse business.

First Touchdown Wins

Tradition decrees that the team which first crosses the opposing goal line in a Harvard-Yale game invariably emerges triumphant.

So it has been since 1875 and so it was on Soldiers field, Cambridge, this year.

Tack Hardwick, Percy Haughton's greatest blocker, paced up and down between halves in the Harvard press, telling reporters he feared the worst.

"I believe Harvard has the stronger team," repeated Hardwick, but precedent holds an uncanopy grip on this affair. It's hard to beat that first-touchdown bonus.

So it was that when Freddie Burd fired an over-center pass to Bartholomew after faking to Whittemore and Wood out on the line, the hearts of the Harvard who knew the sloppy dropped like a shut parachute.

The Harvard-Yale first touchdown tradition remains immovable.

Hot Battle for Pin Leadership In City League

The race for the leadership in the city league in individual bowling averages continued to be hot today with Paul Callis and Roy Weller tied for the lead with a 174 mark.

However, they did not have things all to themselves, as Addy Adams was hot on their trail with a 172, followed by Walt Dix, who had a 171.

In the Commercial league, it was the same old story—Rolly Jones still had his 191 average, which he has retained for the past month and which is good enough to lead the league by 10 pins. In second place is Walt Riggert with 181.

Ten leading bowlers in each loop follow:

City league — Callis 174, Weller 174, Adams 172, Dix 172, Phillips 167, Room 166, Mullins 166, Williams 166, Timmons 166, Hartfelder 165.

GOODING, Dec. 4 (Special)—Coach Frank Johns' Gooding state school basketball outfit opened the cage season here Saturday night by turning back the invading King Hill club by a count of 37-10.

Clarence Campbell of State school and Higgins of King Hill were tied for high point honors with 12 counters each.

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4 (UP)—John Frederick, veteran outfielder, has been named manager of the Portland club of the Pacific Coast league. Frederick succeeds Bill Shotton, who will manage Hollywood this year.

BOY THINN IN FALSE ALARM

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Little 13-year-old Bubble Sullivan is believed to be the youngest person in the world ever to realize the truth, secretly nourished in almost every boy's heart, of turning in a false alarm of fire and seeing the fire department come complaining. Some one gave Bobbie a small ladder. He promptly braced it against the fire alarm box and turned in the alarm. He was still occupying the vantage point when the fire engines arrived.

BULLDOGG WIN

PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 4 (UP)—Four field goals, one of which came in the closing minutes of the game, gave the Los Angeles Bulldogs a 19 to 17 victory over the Columbus, O., Bullies yesterday before 8,000 persons.

swinging with a rhythm that kept the rabbit running.

Boys in blue and boys in gray, soon to be seasoned men, and this country's first line of defense in a muddled world.

The gunn's and defense Navy, winner and eager to celebrate. To tear down the goal post, to play tape in front of the Army stands. To throw bats. To snake dance. But before any of this took place, almost simultaneously with the final gun—there was a moment of silence and then both bands struck up the Star Spangled Banner.

The 104,000 men and women came to their feet and to attention.

The 4,000 midship and cadets, including the muddy, tired players on the field, came to the front salute that belongs only to those who have dedicated their lives to their country's service.

At that moment, there in the dreary rain, I think that every one knew, even a thoughtless sportsfitter, that he had been something that was a little more than just a football game. A little of America's spirit had been revealed, and only few could have left the stadium with only the cheer in their minds.

Just as a game, however, it was which better than all of the Army and Navy. To be thanks to a Navy team that finally found itself after five straight defeats. One sight of the Army's line, however, and the Navy's middle drive and cohesion that they had not had all year. The first time they got their hands on the ball the men from Annapolis with Cliff Lenz doing the spearheading, slashed the Army line to bits and pieces. A big Bob Leonard of Texas could drive field goal through the posts for three points. This was enough for the Navy, but Navy made sure on the first play of the first quarter by shaking loose little known Dick Maher on a 22-yard touchdown hit.

Sen. Norris Appeals to President to Withhold Third Term Plans

BLAMES ENEMIES FOR DEMANDS ON EARLY DECISION

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—Sen. George W. Norris, Ind. Rep., appealed to President Roosevelt today to withhold for several months his decision on a third term so "if the patriotic spirit of the country demands it" he still can be a candidate.

"I am asking the President not to reveal his plans for 1940 now, Norris said most of the demands for such an announcement came from enemies of the chief executive and his progressive policies.

"He owes it to his countrymen not to decide at this time whether he will be a candidate," Norris stated. "No man can tell what may happen in the next several months but until the clouds of doubt and obscurity are cleared away, he should remain in a position where, if the patriotic spirit of the country demands it, he can still be the leader of the liberal, progressive thought of the nation."

Welfare More Important

"The welfare of our common country is more important than the wishes or ambitions of any man or group of men."

Norris said it would be a "sad mistake" if Mr. Roosevelt acceded to the demands of his enemies and revealed his plans now.

"There is no doubt," he said, "that the President does not want to be a candidate for reelection, and every honest citizen must sympathize with him in his desire to make himself out of the contest. He has earned a rest."

Ideal Leader

"But Mr. Roosevelt remains the ideal leader of the common man and no other figure exists on the political horizon under whose banner there can be such unanimity of honest, progressive, patriotic citizens. If he were eliminated from the race at the present time, there is no other leader who can unite the progressive people of America in a fight against a united, reactionary enemy."

HEALTH PROGRAM NECESSITY TOLD

Importance of a cooperative health program was brought out at the annual luncheon meeting of district health and welfare councils at the parish hall Saturday afternoon.

Among addresses by state and district health officials and representatives of community groups was featured the late Dr. W. H. H. Jones, who followed by Emory Afton, state commissioner of public welfare.

Public Health Set Up

Afton explained that the department of public welfare is divided into a division of public assistance, which not only assists the aged and others in need but acts as a selecting agency for the WPA, CCC and NYA and distributes surplus commodities and a division of public health, which directs such institutions as the bureau of vital statistics, the bureau of industrial hygiene, the sanitary engineers, and the various health units.

Increase of the average life expectancy of the individual from 35 years in 1850 to 61 years in 1939, Afton said, is largely traceable to the work of public health programs.

Mrs. Orr Chapman, vice-president of the Idaho Public Health association, introduced two other speakers, Dean Frazier, Afton's president of the association, and Dr. H. L. McMartin, director of the state department of public health, Boise.

A number of reports outlining the progress of the welfare groups of various south central Idaho communities were given.

Local Organizations

Describing the work of local organizations in assisting in health and welfare, Mrs. Mary Ann Hoyer of the local health unit said that a complete loan closet is made available by the Red Cross; the Lions club assists in providing glasses; the Kiwanis club makes milk available to those who need it; the Business and Professional Women's club provides cod liver oil; and the various church aids render assistance.

Others making reports were Frank Atkins, Buhl; Mrs. Lucy Blough, Elletts; Mrs. John Peterson, Jerome; Mrs. A. W. Ritchie, Tattle; Mrs. Debra, Bliss; Mrs. James, Hagerman; Mr. Maloney, Driggs; Mrs. F. L. Dornan, Wendell; Mrs. Pay Perkins, Mullanburg; Mrs. A. E. Pike, Buhl; and Mrs. Harry Edholm, Gooding.

As Body of Instructor Began Last Journey

As members of the 116th engineers stand at attention, pallbearers carry the body of R. V. Jones from the high school gymnasium following impressive services there. An estimated 2,000 friends, including many students of surrounding schools as well as the local schools and also American Legion members and athletic coaches from over this entire section of Idaho, were present. In the picture above, five of the six pallbearers are shown. They are (right, front to back), J. Edward Warner, commander of the Twin Falls Legion post; C. H. Bond, Pocastello, former principal of the local high school; E. E. Hays, Twin Falls, left side, front to back, are Kyle M. Walte, Twin Falls, and Capt. Homer M. Davis of the local school system. G. O. Taylor, the other active pallbearer, was behind Mr. Davis as the casket was lowered.

Immediately preceding the casket was the escort, composed in World War service, W. W. Noble, Carl E. Richey, Freeman Post, Vernon Lawson, Chester W. Wise, G. Thorp, A. V. Williams and A. E. Peters. They took their places four on either side of the casket. Members of the American Legion of this district and Veterans of Foreign Wars followed, being seated in a reserved section.

Pallbearers were Homer M. Davis, superintendent of Twin Falls schools; C. H. Bond, Pocastello, former principal of the high school; J. Edward Warner, E. E. Hays, G. O. Taylor and Kyle M. Walte, friends of long standing. They were stationed to the right.

Rev. E. L. White pronounced the invocation and W. W. Thomas sang "Rock of Ages," accompanied at the organ by Jay Spracher. Judge J. W. Porter, commander of the artillery battery in which Mr. Jones served overseas, offered a brief eulogy concerning his war record. He said:

Brave and Faithful

"We knew him first and learned to love him on the battlefield. In the battle of the Marne we found him brave; at St. Mihiel we were impressed by his faithfulness, and in the battle of the Argonne we found him uncomplaining. It was an honor to be his immediate commander. Since watching him carrying out his patriotic tasks had made us proud. But now, at last, he has taken service with his Most High Commander."

Rev. J. A. Howard, Buhl Idaho American Legion department chaplain, in extending the sympathy of the American Legion to the family, said, "Our country could have no greater tribute than this community has so spontaneously afforded him."

Snyder Pays Honor

The lower floor of the gymnasium and the balconies were filled with thousands of southern Idaho residents who assembled to honor the memory of Coach Jones. Twin Falls faculty members were seated in a reserved section.

Dr. H. H. Snyder, president of the Albion State Normal school, pronouncing R. V. Jones a great teacher, said: "That is the highest tribute that can be paid a man. A teacher's influence must extend not only in the classroom, but to the playground and the community."

A great teacher reaches into the depth of the human soul and there ignites the flame which illuminates character. R. V. Jones was kind, fair-minded and just. He had a keen sense of the knowledge of boyhood, and he never lost faith in boys. He was a valued citizen, homemaker, teacher and man, and in these realms he lived and worked."

Following Mr. Snyder's tribute, Mr. Thomas sang "In the Garden." Both selections were requested by members of the Jones family.

Rev. E. L. White, pastor of the Community church of Mullanburg and Hansen, in speaking of Coach Jones' ability to make and to keep friends, said:

"In no field of human endeavor is this rare gift of friendship more needed than in dealing with youth." He quoted a father as saying of Mr. Jones, "He had a greater influence over my boy than I did." He concluded: "Mr. Jones spoke the gospel of unselfishness, to play the game and be a good sport."

Rev. Howard pronounced the benediction. Jay Spracher played the postlude as the throngs filed past the casket. He also played the prelude. Twin Falls high school boys' club members and Legionnaires, in charge of Mr. Hagemer, were ushers.

Legion Ritual

At the graveside in Twin Falls cemetery, John C. Harvey, Twin Falls American Legion post chaplain and past commander, read the Legion's burial service, and the department chaplain offered a brief prayer.

As the casket was lowered into the grave, the chaplain removed the American flag and presented it to Mrs. Harriet Jones, the widow, in behalf of the government of the United States. Seated with her at the casket were her two daughters, Miss Jean Jones, student at the University of Idaho, southern branch, Pocastello, and Miss Judy Jones, her twin sister, and William Jones, and other relatives, including her sister, Mrs. Ben Hill, Twin Falls.

The national guard detachment fired a three-volley salute above the lower-banked mound and the cemetery was left just as the sun was beginning to lower in the late afternoon of Sunday.

Tribe Visits

Miss Grace Hoyer, Miss Carolyn Overstreet and Miss Maurine Ballard spent the Thanksgiving holidays at the George H. Ballard home, returning Sunday to Blackfoot.

LAST CALL COMES TO MRS. HARBERT

Mrs. Tina Belle Harbert, 58, for 13 years a resident of Twin Falls, died Sunday at 1:35 a. m. at the Twin Falls county general hospital, and her never lost faith in boys. He was a valued citizen, homemaker, teacher and man, and in these realms he lived and worked."

Following Mr. Snyder's tribute, Mr. Thomas sang "In the Garden." Both selections were requested by members of the Jones family.

Rev. E. L. White, pastor of the Community church of Mullanburg and Hansen, in speaking of Coach Jones' ability to make and to keep friends, said:

GUARDSMEN END BUSY MANEUVERS

Completion of an extra training period by national guardsmen of the 116th engineers was marked with a four-day encampment that began Nov. 30 and ended Sunday at McCluskey health camp, Buhl, according to Capt. Joseph H. Stearns, Jr., Twin Falls, in command of company E.

Joint maneuvers were conducted with company D of Buhl under the command of Capt. Elmer W. Jones. Accompanying the Twin Falls group was the medical detachment that is connected with company E and commanded by Major George C. Halley.

Varied Phases

Training in combat principles, riot duty, close order drill, engineering drill, field fortification, scouting and patrolling was featured on the four-day program.

Major Lyle M. Rowell, commander, Second Battalion, 116th engineers, and his adjutant, Lieut. Jerry Cues, inspected the men. Major Rowell's stop in Buhl was one in a series in an inspection tour of southern Idaho national guard units. Also aiding in the inspection and general supervision were Col. E. C. Hummel, Major Howard C. Clark, engineering instructor from the regular army, and Lieut.-Col. H. G. Lauterbach, Hansen.

Saturday night the men engaged in a night attack problem at a point near the rifle range west of Buhl. The ordnance company came from Jerome to act as the enemy in this sham battle. At 9 p. m. two airplanes of the Washington national guard appeared overhead, guided by flares set up by the engineers.

Drop Flares

The planes circled and then dropped parachute flares of 1,000,000 candlelight power. In this illumination the maneuvering troops were enabled to form and march back to camp.

Two companies broke camp yesterday in the morning and company E was in Twin Falls by noon.

Yesterday afternoon the company participated in the funeral of R. V. Jones, World War veteran, acting as military police and providing a Capt. Seaver stated that the national guard wishes to thank owners of the McCluskey health camp for the donation of the site for the recent maneuvers.

The regular drill for company E takes place tonight in the armory, he announced. He made a further statement to the effect that, there are vacancies for six men in the ranks of the local company of 116th engineers. Eligible single young men may report to the armory any Monday night and make application for entrance into the company.

YOUTH CONTRAST TOLD TO SCOUTS

That the American Boy Scout idea is to "do for your country" as contrasted to the "die for your country" theme of the German youth movement was illustrated Saturday night by Fred Babel, Jr., Eagle Scout and a missionary for three years in Germany, when he spoke before 20 Scouts at the banquet in the Baptist hospital which closed the two-day Grten Bar conference of Scouts of the Snake River area council.

German youths are compelled to join the Nazi junior organization, Babel said, while participation in the Boy Scouts is of course voluntary on the part of American boys.

The speaker continued with a discussion of what advantage he had gained by his participation in the Scout movement.

Colored films picturing Scouting activities were shown by Dr. J. N. Davis, council commissioner.

Although the recent conference was the first of its type held in this council in over 10 years, it was decided to make the meeting an annual event.

National Guards Finish Training

BOISE, Dec. 4 (U.P.)—The Idaho national guard completed Sunday seven days of field training ordered by the war department, Brig. Gen. M. G. McConnell, adjutant general of the state, said today.

Officers and enlisted men drilled under adverse field conditions, executing maneuvers resembling actual warfare.
