Finch said he was not a man qualified for the position because he had not been in the field long enough to know the bureau's policies.

3. That the business expense tax be reduced to $200,000,000 emergency national defense taxes.

The work between the actual debt and the borrowing limit. If all those conditions are met, Mr. Roosevelt will avoid exceeding the borrowing limit in this fashion. He will use $1,300,000,000 of excess funds now available in the treasury's working balance to pay some of this year's emergency deficit from lifting the national debt to $4,370,000,000 at the end of this fiscal year. The figure will be $4,322,000,000 on June 30, 1940. That will leave him a margin of approximately $1,718,000,000 with which to work between the actual debt and the borrowing limit. If all goes well with business and agricultural and congressional support, the 1941 fiscal year will end with approximately $500,000,000 of the treasury's borrowing power.

While these developments were under way, others interested in preserving the natural grandeur of Snake river's tributary streams and springs are circulating protests in Twin Falls, Boise, Hagerman and other Magic Valley vicinities.

Opposition to the proposed power projects crystallized when it was learned that the time allowed for filing protests had nearly elapsed before it became a matter of public knowledge. The protest period would have ended on Dec. 6 for all three projects had it not been for a defective filing on the Box canyon site which automatically extended the date to Jan. 17 on that location.

GOP HEADS 'AMAZED' AT PROPOSED FDR NAVY POWER

NO EXPLANATION GIVEN BY EDISON FOR BIG REQUEST

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (UP)—A Navy proposal that congress give President Roosevelt broad power to commandeer ships and resources in peacetime emergencies aroused suspicion and criticism among Republican congressmen today.

Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison, in a letter to Speaker William B. Bankhead, asked for renewal of authority which was granted President Wilson in 1917, but which expired in 1918. He gave no explanation of the request and naval officials merely said it was a "precautionary" move.

Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg, R., Mich., said the request was "very abrupt."

Referred to Committee

The request was referred to the House Naval Affairs committee, whose chairman, Carl Vinson, D., Ga., refused to comment.

Meanwhile, Rep. John McDowell, R., Pa., introduced a resolution in the house that would create a seven-man committee to determine the extent of the President's emergency powers. The United States is now under a proclamation of "limited" national emergency issued by President Roosevelt in September.

Vandenberg said:

"We would have to have a specific definition from Secretary Edison as to what constitutes a national emergency. Remembering that the President declared a state of emergency last September, we have had a recent reminder of what can be done under such a procedure. I seriously doubt that the American people or congress would be satisfied with that sort of an armegement."

Careful Consideration

House Minority Leader Joseph W. Pendergast, D., Mo., said he would "carefully consider" the sweeping nature of the powers asked, the proposal merits most careful consideration.

Rep. James W. Wadsworth, R., N. Y., said he would "certainly go very slowly before extending any such power to the President."

He would want to know what's back of it," added Rep. Ralph E. Church, R., Ill. "I'm not inclined to favor it, but I'd want to have more information than I have now."

Divorces Outnumber Marriages As Filmland Love Takes Beating

By PAUL HARRISON (NEA Service)

HOLLYWOOD divorces outnumber marriages in the movie colony didn't fare very happily in 1939. It seems that the flicker queens and glamor boys, accustomed to the dictation of directors when they glorify the carnal virtues in pictures, are less inclined in their private lives to practice what the preachers tell 'em.

At first thought, you'd probably say that 1939 was a fine year for orange blossoms, the jewelry trade and that part of the aviation industry engaged in terring fopping couples to Yuma. But the hunch would be based on the recollection of a lot of star marriages—the Gables, Taylors, Powers and Ronald Colman. These, along with the weddings of Nelson Eddy, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Brian Aherin, Richard Carlson and Wayne Morris, made a tremendous dent in Hollywood's cherished list of eligible bachelors.

Actually, though, there were more divorces than marriages during the year just passed. The total numbers, according to conscientious gleanings of all newspaper files, are 70 and 58. Those figures are not quite accurate because they involve some events which may not properly be identified with the movie colony. They do, however, include some Hollywood's out-of-state marriages and divorces.

However, the ratio of 7-6 prevails pretty closely when you get down to the names of film players of prominence. For example, 34 well-known individuals have had divorce actions in 1939, and 31 individuals whose names are known to all fans were participants in weddings.

Death of Romance

There were only seven ceremonies in which bride and groom both were active picture players. Brian Aherin and Joan Fontaine, Robert Wilson and Florence Rice, and Louise Campbell and Leonard MacMacdonald were the other couples, besides the aforementioned Bob Taylor and Barbara Stanwyck, Clark Gable and Carole Lombard, Tyrone Power and Annabella, and Ronald Colman and Benita Hume. These few names represent the greatest dearth of actor-actress romance in a decade, and probably in all movie history.

The figures show clearly that Hollywood is heading the long-espoused notion that love and identical occupations don't mix. Too much "boredom" and professional jealousy.

Wayne Morris, Nelson Eddy, Fairbanks, Madge Evans, Sigrid Gurie, Joy Hodge, Andrea Leeds and Nan Grey were some of those who married completely outside the industry. Others, including such top names as Hedy Lamarr, Marie Oberon and Janet Gaynor, chose writers, designers and studio executives. Jean Rogers, Lynn Bari, Eleanor Hansen, Constance Pierce and Florence George married talent agents.

There were more divorces than marriages between well-known Hollywood couples whose writers, designers and present-day celebrities begin to stumble when it reaches the names of Norma Thalmage and George Jessel, Carole Lombard and Jack Roberts (living Wheeler), Stanley Laurel and Illiana, and Miriam Hopkins and Antoine Litvak. The latter is a direct descendant, in talk-showing the creative directors are regarded as co-actors.

Anyway, the severance parade of "How to be friends though divorced, is demonstrated by screen star Miriam Hopkins and director Antoine Litvak, her ex-husband. Divorced last September, they have been going places together here. Above, they sat in the recent Hollywood premiere of "Of Mice and Men."

1939 includes the unhappy combinations of Joan Crawford and Franchot Tone, Betty Grable and Jackie Coogan, Astrid Allen and Robert Kent, Ruby Keeler and Al Jolson, Lupe Velez and Johnny Weissmuller, Raymond Massey and Adrienne Allen, Ann Sheridan and Eddie Norris.

Never Hit Courts

For sentimentalists and proponents of the idea that Hollywood is just one big, happy family, the most disillusioning aspect of the 1939 picture is the previous record of the new grooms and brides. Six of them—Gable, Massey, Weissmuller, Sigrid Gurie, Constance Talmadge and Jean Chantburn—received final decrees and remarried within the same year. And of the 31 well-known players who married in 1939, 22 had been involved in the failures of one or more previous marriages.

Privately, Hollywood can dub a lot more in on the matrimonial panorama. The town knows of bitter and permanent estrangements which for one reason or another never will reach the divorce courts. It knows, of other relationships which are less remarkable for their irregularity than for the tranquility with which they are accepted here and by the fan public—a public which grants concessions to acknowledged artists.

The history of "Gone With the Wind" provides no example. Winona Paullette Goddard was the leading candidate for the role of Scarlett O'Hara. Producer David Selznick insisted that she must change to a formal statement of the status of her publicized association with Charlie Chaplin. Her own declaration was made. Selznick then selected Vivien Leigh, wife of Herbert Leigh Holman.

Her affection for Laurence Olivier, husband of Jill Esmond Moore,

FIREMEN PRAISED FOR INSPECTIONS

Mayor Joe Koehler today has lauded members of the local fire department for the "efficient manner" in which they complete inspections of local buildings, a part of their regular work of fire prevention.

The compliment was handed fire department members by the mayor at the council session last night.

"We can thank the firemen for the small fire loss in the city during 1939," the mayor said. "The inspections they make in a businesslike manner aid materially in keeping the fire loss down."

Records show that for 1939 the per capita loss amounted to slightly over 14 cents, based on an estimated population of 13,000 persons.

EXCUSE

DENVER, Jan. 4 (UP)—New Year's eve celebrant Max Romero, 28, told Police Justice Philip B. Gilliam that he was driving on the sidewalk because the street was too crowded.

Bennie Duran, 16, also arrested New Year's eve for sidewalk driving, told the judge that he was driving there but not especially because the street was crowded.

"Shilly dilly," said Judge Gilliam. "You haven't even a good excuse."

CONGRESS THREATENS TO BALK AT NEW TAX REQUEST

FIGHT LOOMS ON CONTINUATION OF TREATY PROGRAM

By RONALD G. VAN TINE
WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (Special)—Congress is threatening to balk today at President Roosevelt's request for new taxes and is directing sharp fire at his plan to extend the reciprocal trade agreement program beyond its June expiration date.

Influential legislators doubted Congress would be willing to vote new taxes in an election year.

Dissent on these two issues alone head the third session of the 76th congress into politically vital conflict. But Democratic leaders found comfort in the fact that the administration program as revealed so far—in Mr. Roosevelt's inaugural message on the state of the union—does not promise party "turnoff" compared with some previous sessions.

Added Taxes

In his message yesterday, Mr. Roosevelt requested "sufficient additional taxes" to meet emergency spending for national defense, and appealed for "national unity" as the "fundamental safeguard of all democracy."

Today Republicans and Democrats reviewed the message along party lines. There was general rejoicing, however, that the President had not proposed any new controversial legislation.

Some dissenting until June was predicted as Democratic and Republican leaders agreed the major fight would be fought over the trade agreement program. Mr. Roosevelt told congress it "should be kept alive to serve our trade interests—regional and national—in many valuable ways during the existing war."

"Unity" Hope Vanishes

Senate Minority Leader Charles McNary, R. Ore., said any hope of "unity" in congress on domestic issues vanished when the President requested renewal of the trade program and disclosed that expenditures for normal government activities would be reduced to the benefit of an expanded national defense program.

Senate and house Democratic leaders who declined to be quoted, predicted increased defense costs would be taken care of through savings in the war program administration and other federal expenditures, and no tax bill would be approved. They said special taxes probably would fall upon those least able to pay, and such a move might prove disastrous to their party's 1940 election chances. Lacking specific recommendations from the majority, they said, congress would not be inclined to take the initiative.

WOOL GROWERS MEET AT BOISE

BOISE, Jan. 4 (Special)—Sheepmen are about where they were, a year ago economically despite a rise in the price of wool because that factor is offset by a drop in lamb prices.

Merle L. Drake, Idaho state president of the Idaho Wool Growers association, said today.

More than 300 members of the Idaho association registered for a three day annual convention to discuss marketing, grazing, taxation, and control of predatory animals.

Speakers will include Roscoe C. Rieh, Burley, president of the National association of wool growers; S. T. Peaty, Deer Lodge, Mont., national vice-president; J. A. Hill, dean of the University of Wyoming college of agriculture; F. R. Marshall, Salt Lake City, secretary of the national association.

Woman, 67, Takes Toughest Idaho Census Position

COEUR D'ALENE, Jan. 4 (Special)—Jesse Vetter, north Idaho census supervisor, has promised a 67-year-old, 125-pound woman a job he said was so hard no man has been found willing to accept it.

Mrs. Eva L. Cantfield, an ex-schoolteacher who does not agree this is supposed to be a man's world, was the applicant. The job is to take the census in part of Idaho's wild primitive area.

"The region is one of the most inaccessible in the nation and covers about 500 square miles," Vetter said. "But I've promised Mrs. Cantfield she can have it if she is still in good health in March."

The task won't be new to Mrs. Cantfield. She accomplished it five years ago when all men turned it down. She rode horses and used the trail to count the noses of isolated families in six weeks then.

Mrs. Thomas asks custody of the child. Her attorneys in the action are Larson and Larson.

Neither had collars nor tags, but for weeks they'd been dodging pedestrians' kicks and rifling garbage cans in the nation's capital.

She was a loused odd-lod of many breeds; he, a Big Lennie, who could have snapped her neck with a twist of his head. Even so, the queer-looking pair chose to make it a partnership.

When she scamped across a busy Washington street and was instantly killed by a passing car, Big Lennie straddled her battered body in the manner above above, until arrival of an attendant from the Animal Rescue League, who used the proper tone of voice, but then had to drop a net over Lennie before the big fellow would give up his vigil.

Twin Falls Woman Improves at Georgia Paralysis Haven

"I have a lot to be thankful for."

Thus Mrs. Rose Lundy, who last May was sent from Twin Falls to the Warm Springs, Ga., foundation for the cure and treatment of infantile paralysis, wrote in a letter received by Miss Martha Hansen, superintendent of nurses at the hospital here.

Another going to Warm Springs was made possible by public donations and, probably by the end of this month, another woman, Mrs. LaDelle James, 22, will go to the same institution. At the present time Mrs. James is at the county general hospital here.

During the eight months which Mrs. Lundy has received treatment at the Warm Springs foundation she has shown marked improvement.

In her letter to "Mr. Hansen she wrote:

"I've improved a great deal and I'm still improving. I hope to walk someday without the aid of crutches and braces. I don't feel so bad about having to use them. I find I have a lot to be thankful for after seeing some that are a lot worse than I am."

"I also had a nice Christmas and Thanksgiving down here. I hope you and all the nurses had a nice Christmas."

Countess Feed Sell

Mrs. Hansen pointed out today that when Mrs. Lundy left Twin Falls she was unable even to feed herself. She could only move her right arm slightly.

Mrs. Hansen this afternoon also made public a letter received from C. E. Irwin, chief surgeon at the foundation. In it he wrote that he was "happy to report that the timely making of this surgery factory progress considering the intense involvement she had on admission. We have treated her and she is now able to feed herself. She could only move her usual polio-paralyzed arm."

"As you know, however, her involvement is quaternary which has added to her difficulty. It is true that Mrs. Lundy is now able to walk quite a few steps with the aid of braces and crutches and I

What's This? Mayor, Listening To Funsters, Forgets Council

"Tick-tock—tick-tock—tick-tock—went the clock at the city hall last night.

"Where's the mayor—where's the mayor—where's the mayor?"—were the thoughts of the councilmen.

The meeting started at 7:30 p. m. and it was now 7:47 p. m. Still no mayor.

Councilman Lionel A. Dean went to the telephone and called the mayor's home.

"That you, Joe?" Dean asked, receiving an affirmative answer he continued: "Are you coming down to council session?"

"Tick-tock, tick-tock—went the clock some more, then the front door of the city hall swung open.

"I forgot all about it," Mayor Joe Koehler chuckled. "I was listening to George Burns and Gracie Allen. I sure hate to miss that program."

"Don't feel bad about forgetting to come," said one councilman. "I'd forget it, too, if my wife didn't inform me about it."

The meeting proceeded without delay. Regular meeting night is Monday.

COUNTY OFFICIAL IN AUTO MISHAP

JEROME, Jan. 4 (Special)—James Ross Seeley, Jerome county commissioner, damaged his new Buick approximately $500 when the car left the highway because of the excessively heavy fog near the Tippecanoe river.

Seeley was proceeding west on the new gravelled road and according to a report from the sheriff's office here, he was unable to see the roadway clearly. In the mist were Mrs. Seeley and the couple's daughter, Miss Dorothy Seeley, teacher at Shoshone. None of the occupants was injured.

On Dec. 31 at about 5 p. m. P. G. "Brock" Thompson's car left the highway and crossed several times near the Jerome airport. Cause of the accident was reported to be lack of pavement. Mr. Thompson's Buick was badly damaged. It was uninjured.

Proceeding south last Friday morning near Jerome, a cow crossed the road and caused several times the car to skid. The driver attempted to turn out and go around the hayrack. Because of an oncoming car, the motorist's machine was abruptly turned in and the brakes applied.

The Buick car skidded sideways, crashed into the back of the hayrack. Damage was estimated at about $185.

Operator of Club Fined $100, Costs

JEROME, Jan. 4 (Special)—F. C. Clyde Jenkins, operator of the Tillamook club, was assessed a fine of $100 and court costs for operating a bingo game before Probate Judge Heber N. Folken.

Jenkins was given time to consider, according to Judge Folken. Jenkins was found guilty last week by a six-man jury in the case of some business men who deliberated only one hour in the case.

The state's establishment was among the state officers in the county recently raided by police on charges of asserted liquor law violation. The operator also pleaded guilty to charges in preliminary arraignment and were each assessed a fine of $100 and court costs.

JOB CLUB HELPS THOSE PAST 40

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Pittsburgh's new "40-plus" club—a mutual-aid organization for unemployed business executives past 40—is achieving results after only five months of operation.

The organization started last June by a group of prominent local citizens, began with seven unemployed executives on its roster. There are now 175 members and 41 alumni who have since found positions in industry.

"To be eligible to join the organization, a candidate must be past 40, unemployed and must have been an executive—a person who had the power of hiring and firing. Furthermore, he must have earned at least $4,000 a year.

Job Situation Canvased

The group maintains an office in downtown Pittsburgh, staffed by members of the club. Other club members act as "salesmen," making a canvass of the business houses and industries of the city in the attempt to find positions for other "40-plusers."

Reason for this indirect approach is that club members feel someone else has a better chance of finding another member a job, because of the natural nervousness and reticence of an applicant to talk about himself.

Of the 175 members now on the rolls, 70 are in their 40s and 35 in their 50s. The club has never had a resignation, although it has lost 13 members through dismissal or death. Grounds for dismissal include failure to do the tasks assigned or absence at three of the weekly meetings.

On Second Survey

Members serving as "salesmen" called on 6,000 firms during the period from the first of July to Nov. 1. They are now busy making second calls.

Some of the salesmen have been so prominent in the business world prior to their unemployment that they are on speaking terms with many of the executives they interview concerning positions. They carry "talent sheets" which state the qualifications and experience of the men they are trying to sell.

With the recent comeback of business and industry, the "40-plus" club has found a demand for executives, particularly for technicians. All the engineers and draftsmen in the club have been hired.

SOVIET EMBASSY CLOSING SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 4 (AP)—A group of house members introduced today to attach a proviso to next year's state department appropriation forbidding the use of any funds for maintenance of an Embassy Moscow. The plan was confirmed by Rep. John McCormack, R. Mass., and would be supported by congressmen who believe this country should sever relations with Soviet Russia because of its invasion of Finland. The House plan was proposed as a resolution introduced in the house yesterday by Rep. Stephen Bolles, R. Wis. Those who admitted the plan said they feared a resolution calling for outright severance of relations would be voted after the adjournment. This indirect plan was regarded as a resolution, sponsored by Chairman Martin Dies, D. Tex., of the house committee on foreign affairs, which was scheduled to be introduced in the house. Chairman Sol Bloom, D. N. Y., of the house foreign affairs committee has promised the Dies resolution would be "loaded into the wastebasket."
