Bott Not Yet Sure If Constitutional Convention Is Cure for State Crisis

Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen, in an exclusive interview with the Evening Times, today had declared he was "not in a position to say definitely that a constitutional convention is the solution of our difficulties."

The governor had reference to a recent decision of the Idaho supreme court in the "compromiser case" in which the cabinet form of government, under which Idaho has operated since 1910, was shaken.

Finding out that he was not in a position to say whether or not a constitutional convention was needed, he said:

...I will do everything I can to follow the interpretation of the court's decision. I appreciate the importance of the supreme court and it is the foundation of our governmental structure.

Urged by Grand Jury He recalled that the only reason the compromiser case was proposed was the recommendation of the grand jury.

"It was suggested that the governor, in his next message to the legislature, advise and recommend a plan to overcome the former chaotic conditions. I asked the legislature for it and was passed. Now the supreme court has decided that it is unconstitutional and we will abide by that ruling."

Two points are now before the court for clarification. Gov. Bottolfsen pointed out during the interview the two points are: (1) the public accounts, as to whether it goes to the state auditor or remains with the governor's office; (2) the second point is whether the authority the governor has as budget officer of the state.

Solon Loses Try to Close Red Embassy

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Mass., today failed for the second time in an effort to close the Soviet embassy for the salary of the United States ambassador to the Soviet Union.

Lodge first made his proposal yesterday in the Senate and today he submitted the bill to the Senate.

Lodge also failed again in an attempt to eliminate an appropriation of $100,000 to pay salaries of a group of trade specialists in Soviet territory of Commerce Harry L. Hopkins.

The experts' principal function is to formulate policies which will enable the United States to secure an increased amount of Latin-American trade.

The bill also would have authorized the bill without finally changing the recommendations of the committee, which added $1,240 to the house-approved total. It carries funds for the commerce and industry department and the courts, as well as the state department.

Balkan Report Asserts Turks Have Mobilized

ROME, Feb. 24 (AP)—Balkan capital, Bucharest, today reported that Turkey had mobilized troops along its Russian frontier as its first big scale move after invasion of a drastic national defense law.

Excitement was heightened by a telephonic communication between Turkey and European capitals was interrupted all night. Operators insisted the interruption was due to technical reasons due to damaged lines at the Turkish end.

The newspaper Messagero here, in a Bucharest dispatch, quoted a report Turkey had ordered full mobilization. There were counter-reports denying mobilization.

Chamberlain said the allies did not want domination themselves and did not covet anybody's territory.

3,000 Reds Claimed Dead In Single Day's Fighting As New Troops Move in

By RALPH FORTE HELSINKI, Feb. 24 (AP)—Many Russian dead were reported today in an official Finnish war communique which said that Russian attacks near Kolvieta, at the head of the Gulf of Finland, and in the islands of the Viipurin (Viborg) archipelago had been repulsed.

The communique said in fighting yesterday more than 3,000 Russians had been killed on all fronts.

Russian attacks were repulsed at Yla, Somme, near Kolvieta, and at Akemaerae. Two Russian detachments, the communique said, were trapped east of Lake Nevala inside Finnish lines and were annihilated. More than 1,000 Russians were killed.

In the Talpala region, at the opposite end of the Mannerheim line from Kolvieta, repulsed Red army attacks were driven off by Finnish counter-attacks.

Northeast of Lake Ladoga, enemy attacks were repulsed and the Russians forced to leave a large area leaving 1,000 dead and 15 tanks on the field of battle, the communique said.

150 Killed on Front In the Kuhnmo sector of the central front, there was sharp tactical fighting in which the Red army lost 350 dead.

For the first time in many weeks the Russians renewed attacks in the Salla sector, also on the central front, but they were driven off, according to the Finns.

Two Russian planes were shot down, the communique said. It charged also that the Russian air force had bombed a Finnish hospital.

The Finnish Red Army on all fronts from the Kolvieta sector of the Mannerheim line on the Gulf of Finland through Talpala and up to the Kuhnmo and Salla sectors of the central front.

Using tanks a snow plow, Russian armor struck in heavy snow and fog at the second line of the Mannerheim defenses, and met a stern wall defense.

The Russian attack had its spearheads at Yla-Somme, six miles south of Viipuri, and in the Karna-Akemaerae sector near the Yla-Somme, of the Viipuri-Lentua-grad railroad.

All Attacks Repulsed Tens of thousands of Russian troops have been daily for three weeks, came like gray ghosts through the snow or fog, their faces muffled in hooded helmets, behind their massed tanks.

Every attack was repulsed, according to Finnish reports, and there was a growing sense of hope in responsible circles here as new reports came that attack after attack was being repulsed.

Shells from Russian big guns, far from the front, crashed down furiously into the empty streets and squares of Viipuri. All civilians had left and what had once been Finland's second city, a prosperous peaceful port, was a military area.

The question was whether the Russian attack was a success for Viipuri or the objective.

Not Yet Submitted Although the memorandum was requested in December, it has not been submitted as yet.

In Twin Falls yesterday, Governor Bottolfsen said that Commissioner Hofford had just recently returned from Washington and that he would not a hearing in those terms in March to consider the proposed bill.

Principal objection to the development of the springs in question is one of the largest of recreational areas no longer afford to sacrifice its remaining scenic attractions for power consumption within the state.

Formal Protest Among the organizations making formal protest was the Fourth District Associated Sportsmen club, a body composed of representatives from nearly every sports club in the 31 counties of the state: Lemhi, Blaine, Blaine, Coeur, Gooding, Lincoln, Jerome, Minidoka, Owyhee and Twin Falls. The Southern Idaho Park and Game Association, one of the largest organizations of its kind in the state, likewise filed a written protest.

DEADLINE IS SET FOR BRIEF FILING

BOISE, Feb. 24 (AP)—The Idaho supreme court today set Feb. 29 as the deadline for filing briefs by attorneys of former State Comptroller Donald Callahan, regarding a hearing on a court decision declaring the 1939 comptroller law unconstitutional.

The court was expected to decide whether it will permit rehearing after the briefs are filed.

Dean Driscoll, attorney for Callahan, based his petition on an allegation that the court erred in its interpretation of the extent to which the state constitution adopted in 1890 modified territorial government offices.

Under the court's decision of Feb. 3, duties assigned to Callahan under the 1939 law were returned to State Auditor Calvin E. Wright, who filed the original test suit.

Two points are now before the court for clarification. Gov. Bottolfsen pointed out during the interview the two points are: (1) the public accounts, as to whether it goes to the state auditor or remains with the governor's office; (2) the second point is whether the authority the governor has as budget officer of the state.

AIMS OF BATTLE TOLD TO BRITISH

BIRMINGHAM, England, Feb. 24 (AP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, in the most explicit statement of war aims since the war started, said today the allies were fighting against Nazi world domination, to secure the right to live for small European states, to abolish the spirit of militarism and to gain independence for the Poles and Czechoslovakia.

Chamberlain indicated Britain would welcome United States participation in the reconstruction of Europe after the war.

France and Britain would not wish alone to settle the new Europe," Chamberlain said. "Others must come in to help us, above all to bring about disarmament, which is the essential feature of lasting peace."

Chamberlain said the allies did not want domination themselves and did not covet anybody's territory.

Showdown Looms on Power Site Skirmish

Indications that a showdown fight will develop over the Idaho Power company's proposed plans for constructing hydro-electric plants at Box canyon and Niagara and Crystal springs were apparent today as opposing forces girded themselves for final action.

The three springs, located north of Filer and Buhl, have been the subject of considerable controversy since the power company made application with the state reclamation department three months ago for permits to develop these sites.

Opposition developed immediately after the power company's plans became known, and many protests were filed with the department of reclamation during the time legally allotted for making such objections.

In view of this opposition, Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen and Commissioner of Reclamation James Hofford made it known that none of the permits would be granted until they had received from the power company a written memorandum showing the company's reasons for wanting those springs, the amount of power now being developed in Idaho, and what percentage of this output is being sold outside the state.

Not Yet Submitted Although the memorandum was requested in December, it has not been submitted as yet.

Britain Ready to Settle Differences With U. S. on Mail Seizure

ENVOY BELIEVES INSPECTIONS ARE OF 'GOOD POLICY'

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Great Britain appeared more ready today to keep in good terms with the United States by adjusting differences arising from censorship at Bermuda of European-bound mail.

A broad hint of willingness to compromise on the issue came from Ambassador Lottian here, who said after a conference with Secretary of State Cordell Hull that the matter was one of "good policy" rather than of "legality."

Lottian talked to Hull after the latter had sought to query the ambassador and senators by denying published reports that the British censorship at Bermuda was imposed by a display of arms.

"Complete Eye-Wash"

Lottian described the reports as "complete eye-wash," and said that the captain was forced to surrender the cargo at Bermuda. He said that the situation is being explored further.

Sen. Rush Holt and new Dean of the Senate, West Virginia, said that the plane captain and Pan-American officials are summoned to testify before the senate postoffice committee.

Rep. Melvin J. Maser, R., Minn., disclaiming any desire to inject the Bermuda incident into the proposed resolution calling on Hull for a complete report of the seizure and search of American ships and planes by belligerents. His motive is "simply to let the American public have all the facts," he said.

Rep. William B. Barry, D., N. Y., wrote Hull that if the rifle-point seizure story were correct, "it is an intolerable violation of international law on the part of the British and should be dealt with accordingly by us."

In discussing the situation with reporters, Lottian said he was serious question of legality had not arisen during the Bermuda censorship. Whether the British action is "good policy" is a different question altogether, he said.

The Bermuda incident and other outstanding Anglo-American difficulties entered into his talk with Hull—one of several held here last week—Lottian said. He said that he was confident an amicable agreement would be reached soon on all such problems.

OFFICIAL PRAISES ACEQUIA PROJECT

The Acequia recreational and library project, being carried on in conjunction with the consolidation of high school at that point, today was termed by L. W. Pulson, NYA field office in this district, as an outstanding project in this area.

Pulson made this statement as he returned from an inspection tour of the project, which was recently completed.

The Acequia project, he said, is under the supervision of James C. Powell, superintendent of schools.

Aid in Schools
Under the recreation project, NYA boys supervise and aid in activities carried on in the high school and also in grade schools, particularly in gym classes. They also aid in community recreation projects.

Pulson said that the Acequia project probably carries the largest basketball schedule in this district, being aided by various community and church teams in addition to school organizations. The NYA boys act as officials in games, also coaching and supervising play. One youth, Fred Falls, junior supervisor of the project, installed and maintains an electric timer which was recently acquired.

The NYA girls receive training in library methods and conduct the school and community library in the high school building.

Start Listed
Two girls and four boys are on the project rolls. They are, in addition to Falls, Margaret Catmull, Kathryn Tracy, Granddum, Orville R. Hetherington and David Roberts.

Pulson today also reported that during the past month six girls, who had received clerical experience through the project, had found private employment.

In response to several inquiries, Pulson said that the activities of the youth congress and the NYA have no connection whatever. The congress, he pointed out, is an organization of representatives of various youth groups while the NYA is sponsored by the federal government and is a training program.

ROOSEVELT-GARNER VOTE TEST ASSURED IN ILLINOIS

PRESIDENT FAILS TO WITHDRAW IN APRIL 9 PRIMARY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—A test draft-Roosevelt and anti-third term sentiment in a vital political state seemed assured today in Illinois where President Roosevelt has made no move to withdraw his name from the April 9 presidential primary.

Mr. Roosevelt and Vice-President John N. Garner are opposed there although the President's name was put up without a signed statement of candidacy which had been considered necessary for a valid contest.

Midnight was the deadline for withdrawal from the primary. Neither Mr. Roosevelt nor the candidates for other offices, but Illinois dispatches report a possibility of different interpretation of the law with respect to the test of presidential sentiment.

Meanwhile, from the Republican primary in the same state, Mayor La Guardia of New York withdrew his name with the announcement that he did not wish to divide the "progressive" vote in Illinois. He said his name had been entered without his knowledge.

La Guardia, ardent supporter of Mr. Roosevelt, left no doubt that he was withdrawing in order to avoid any possibility of diverting votes from Roosevelt to the President. Although La Guardia's name was entered as a Republican, his candidacy might have drawn many progressive votes.

"To divide the Progressives in Illinois in both primaries would continue the issue and give comfort to the forces of reaction," La Guardia said.

Broadcasting Weather Data to Assist Fishes

To the layman it's just a mass of dials and flashing lights, but to E. V. Whitlock (above) operator in charge, it all means something. The picture was taken in the U. S. Army communication control station at the Burley airport. Whitlock is broadcasting, by voice, a special weather report for the information of any pilot flying within a radius of 100 miles of the field. The Burley station is as powerful as any in the United States, including those of Salt Lake City, Portland, Seattle and Boise. It is the only one in the West. A transmitter station, located four and a half miles north of the field, is remotely controlled from the airport. The station operates 24 hours a day. (Times Photo and Engraving)

DEAD MAN TWIN COURT REVERSAL

BOISE, Feb. 24 (AP)—A former Twin Falls man who is no longer living, had won an Idaho supreme court victory today in a reversal of a lower court decision.

He is the late Charles F. Johnson. The court reversed judgment of Jerome and Twin Falls district judges in favor of E. Russell, also formerly of Twin Falls. Russell had won judgments in suits for dissection, partnership and for transmitting a full accounting.

Johnson, the Security Products company (an Arizona corporation), and George W. Johnson, its president, after Johnson's death, Harry W. Barry, Twin Falls, was made special administrator of his estate, by the Twin Falls district judge, and took over as defendant in place of the deceased man.

Scanning Airways Temperature

Leo S. Payne, assistant communications operator at the Burley airport station, is shown as he prepares to take a temperature reading. Inside the "box" into which he is looking are found four thermometers—the wet and dry bulb and the maximum and minimum. Also at this vantage point is the control switch for the ceiling lights, which, at night, shoots up a beam of light which strikes the lowest clouds. By computing the angle, Payne is able to tell exactly how high those clouds are above the airport. The light is powerful enough to reach two miles up. (Times Photo and Engraving)

Airways Control Station Is Vital Link at Burley

BURLEY AIRPORT, Feb. 24 (Special)—Located at this flying field in the United States always communications control station, one of the most important links in the chain of protection for those who travel by air.

Actually, an Evening Times reporter found, two stations are located in, or through, one. The control station is on the airport while the transmitter station is located about four and one-half miles north. The transmitter station, however, is remotely controlled from the field by a simple instrument which looks much like the dial on a modern telephone used in the larger cities.

Technical Name

To the layman, all this doesn't mean much, but in simple words it means just this:

"The range course can't be made by electrical impulses comes from this transmitter. The pilot, when he follows this impulse, hears a steady hum in his earphones. If his ship drifts to one side he hears an 'A' in code. If it drifts to the other side he hears an 'A.' He simply turns his ship until he hears the steady hum again, and he knows he is on the course.

When the plane passes directly over the transmitter a light flashes on the instrument board and, although it might be "blink as pea soup" outside, the pilot knows exactly where he is.

Weather Reports

In the field station, local special weather reports and also special reports from Burley and King Hill are broadcast at regular periods. Communication is maintained at all times, by means of a teletype system, with stations from Seattle, Wash., to Billings, Mont., and from Butte, Mont., to Salt Lake City, and from Salt Lake City to Portland, Ore. When a weather report goes out from the Burley

Funds to Battle Forest Fires in Idaho Exhausted

BOISE, Feb. 24 (AP)—In a memorandum to the state land board, State Forester Franklin Glendon today disclosed funds for state fire prevention and control were almost entirely exhausted. The deficiency may lead to issuance of additional warrants, Glendon said his department had only about $400 left for fire control work from 1939 biennial appropriations, totaling $22,000. He pointed out that the legislature granted about half the sum asked by the department.

With another fire season in prospect and no funds available until the end of the fiscal year, the two 1941 members of the land board said that if a big fire hits Idaho forest land next summer, an emergency would have to be declared and warrants issued against the fire fighting fund.

A total of $54,028 was paid out by the department for fire control in cooperation with the U. S. forest service and fire protection districts during the last fiscal year, totaling $18,007.

William Powell and Diana Lewis weren't even known to be acquainted until they were invited to Las Vegas a few weeks ago. And Movietone didn't hear of Justin Dart, the good company executive, when the news banded in that he and Jane Bryan had taken out a license.

"Now that you mention it," said Miss Turner, "I am too!"

Film Colony's Gossip Mergers Flunk Out on New Marriages

HOLLYWOOD—Recovering from the shock of the collapse of the marriage of Lana Turner and Artie Shaw, the gossip-mongers of the film colony were busy with the news of other marriages.

William Powell and Diana Lewis weren't even known to be acquainted until they were invited to Las Vegas a few weeks ago. And Movietone didn't hear of Justin Dart, the good company executive, when the news banded in that he and Jane Bryan had taken out a license.

POLICE "SCHOOL" FOR TWIN FALLS

Tentatively set to start March 11, a law enforcement school will be held in Twin Falls, one of the Idaho cities designated, it had been announced here today by Harry Rayner, state commissioner of law enforcement.

The school here will, figuratively speaking, replace the yearly gathering which heretofore has been held at Boise. Instead of the "once a year" session there, Rayner said, four three-day sessions will be held here, one coming every three months.

Other cities where similar schools will be held include Boise, Pocatello, Lewiston and Coeur d'Alene. Peace officers from over the Magic Valley will attend the school here. This plan, which was adopted by the one school at Boise made the traveling distance "too much" for some officers and also took them "all away from their work at the same time and for too long a period."

The original session next month will be devoted to a study of traffic rules, regulations and investigations. Other topics will be discussed at later sessions during the year.

Material prepared by FBI agents at Butte, Mont., will include ballistics, firearms technique and similar work, in addition to the traffic problems.

Full particulars for the school here, and the actual dates, will be announced from Boise, Rayner said.

RELIEF COST IN INFLATION DECLINES

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Unless the employment situation changes for the worse, the federal government is expected to require more than enough relief funds to take care of its needs until the end of the fiscal year, June 30, 1941, the first time since 1933 that it will not need to ask congress for a deficiency appropriation.

Treasury statistics showed that in the first seven months of the fiscal year the government spent $1,024,258 for all relief activities and $1,000,000 for the same period last year. The $24,258 represented unexpended balances from the year before.

Relief expenditures were $1,000,000 more in the first seven months of the fiscal year, the treasury figures showed, leaving an average of $24,258 more per month for the remainder of the fiscal year.

All relief expenditures by state in the June-January period included Idaho, $4,022,432; Montana, $4,442,846; and Utah, $2,203,132.

PROVING CITY HUSBANDS WANTS!

Dear Pot Shot:

You'd better square yourself with the City Husbands or we will quit reading your paper. Power to "A City Hubby." I'm a hundred per cent back of him. City Hubby didn't tell of it.

Getting back to your brain-atom slugging, No. 10,000,000, in the kitchen. "Did you ever know of a Farm Husband who got up in the morning and got his own breakfast, then sat down for lunch because his better-half was too busy getting ready to go to a bridge-lunch?" No, brother, you didn't. And after a hard day's work, did you ever know a Farm Husband who started preparing the dinner, set the table, made the coffee and got things going in general, so his wife could make a quick get-away right after dinner to one of her evening bird parties, leaving her home to take care of the kids? No, you didn't.

And then arriving home from the hen party, just to tell you what a wonderful time she had during the day, and incidentally make a touch for a ten-spot, wake you out of a dream just before you collected on the jack-pot with three aces in your hand and one in-the-hole. The City Hubby would be a pleasant smile and a cheery greeting to his wife. Did you ever hear of a Farm Husband who would do all that? No, Pot Shot, you've headed up the wrong ally.

HE WANTS A LOCK OF HER HAIR—AND GETS IT!

Dear Pottle:

On second thought have decided that a lock from a brunette is a fake.

I certainly will have to have more concrete evidence before I can understand a scene like the one you report. Evidence would indicate a blond involved if that letter is genuine. I said brunettes were off, didn't I?

I'll settle all claims for a lock of the lady's hair. Now see if you can pull it.

Note by Pot Shots: Our Salmon contributor underlines the Pot Shot ingenuity. We connived with their work. The dealer in the front office, and she snipped a lock from the first brunette's hair. We promptly mailed the lock, nicely tied up in a package, with a note to know is whether he will reciprocate by mailing back a similar lock from his own noggin for the brunette.

BLOWING OFF STEAM—HOPE SOMEBODY GETS MAD!

Bliss off to Dean, Duval and Face.

The time has come when these three men should be praised for their work. The question was, how it is: "Shall we have rec-rection center and play ground supervised for children and youth of Twin Falls or golf course for the children's papa and grandpa?"

We realize Dean and Duval get these people doing things for the youth of the city and Face see his giving us a winning ball team besides encouraging the young boys in base ball. So I suppose to the other members of the council who must exercise the city must maintain a high standard of course so they can keep their boyish figure. Boy wait until we get our golf course fixed up.

Anyhow it sums up to this: Face came to the rescue of the city who needs it and the majority of the citizens came to their own rescue. So grandpa and pa will have the playground under the supervision of Face. Face with Uncle Joe-K-C as chairman and Face as president of children and youth with everyone as assistant.

Housewives Want Privacy

Housewives know what a nuisance it is when you've got your hands in a batter of dough or your hair full of foamy soap and the doorbell rings. You wash off your hands or do something about your hair, take a few quick swipes with a powder puff and mutter as you go to the door. And when you get there, it turns out to be someone selling shoestrings.

On the other hand, you may be in the middle of baking when you discover you're a little short of paprika. And just as you're wondering what to do about it, there's a knock on the door and it's the man who sells vanilla and spices and things.

So there you are. Door-to-door vendors may be an annoyance or a godsend, depending a lot on the mood you're in.

The residents of Montrose, Colo., decided, a couple of years ago, that they would much rather go out and do their shopping, and an ordinance, banning door-to-door soliciting was passed. The Colorado State Supreme court recently upheld the ordinance on the ground that citizens may act collectively to guarantee the privacy of their homes just as they may individually obtain such privacy.

Large companies, that depend on house-to-house sales, have asked the Colorado court to reverse itself. The only other state supreme court that sustained a similar ordinance was that of Wyoming. The high courts of Florida, South Carolina, and, recently, Oklahoma, have ruled that ordinances prohibiting this type of salesmanship are invalid.

Despite the opinion of the Colorado court, no legislation to make the ban state-wide has yet been offered. There is considerable doubt whether such a measure would meet with the wholehearted approval of Colorado's citizens. Even though bell-ringing salesmen may, at times, be a nuisance, the voters might be hesitant to destroy the jobs of thousands of persons. Farm products are widely sold by the door-to-door method, and both urban and rural residents might strenuously object to an ordinance aimed at peddlers.

Depression years brought a notable increase in the number of peddlers. When all other jobs were closed, a man, or a woman, might at least try his hand at selling. It was always possible to pick up a kit and work on a commission basis.

The result was an invasion on housewives, whose daily routines became punctuated with frequent knocks on the door. The same depression that sent the vendors out on the road had curtailed the buying power of the housekeeper.

The vendors themselves, in most cases, will be responsible for any actions taken against them. If their soliciting is courteous and not too frequent, if they can take "no" for an answer, householders will not be likely to rise against them. When peddlers' activities become a downright nuisance to the community, the residents can hardly be blamed for passing ordinances.

Protecting Ford's Rights

Employers, too, have the right of free speech. The National Labor Relations board is no more justified in gagging a man like Henry Ford than it is in denying freedom of speech to his workers, and the American Civil Liberties union intends to go into court to uphold Mr. Ford's rights.

Announcement of the unprecedented action by the militant civil liberties body followed a NLRB decree to silence Ford in a recent case involving the Ford Motor company plant at Somerville, Mass. The civil liberties group has announced it will appeal from a ruling against the company in that case.

"Let the employer talk all he wants to against the union," said Roger N. Baldwin, director of the civil liberties union. "But the moment he says, 'If you join the union, I'll fire you,' that is coercion and therefore a violation of the (Wagner Labor Relations) act."

The efforts of the civil liberties union in behalf of Ford should meet with wide approval. The impartial attitude of this body in defense of American rights should win for it increased respect among all classes of people.

Protecting Pedestrians

Pedestrians have been the objects of some pretty consistent campaigns all over the country recently. And it's probably true that pedestrians haven't become entirely accustomed to the automobile yet—seven after 40 years. Nevertheless, this condition is mutual. Automobile drivers haven't got used to pedestrians either.

Take the case of the San Diego man who was given a ticket for jay-walking and warned by the officer that the only safe place to walk is in pedestrian lanes. A few minutes later he was struck and injured while walking in a pedestrian lane.

Responsibility for safety seems to be pretty evenly divided. Pedestrians must certainly need to be careful; but motorists, who have the advantage of weight and power, must take even greater safeguards.

CHAPTER II

ANN awoke the following morning with a swift revulsion of spirit. Had she during the night answered a newspaper person? Yes, she had. There stood the envelope on the bureau. She dressed, opening the envelope thoughtfully. She had written, "My Dear Lonely: I am interested in your personal because I find it very hard to maintain standards in this age. I will be glad to hear from you again. Ann Smith, General Delivery."

Before leaving the room, she placed the letter under a pile in the bureau drawer. "I won't mail it," she said. "I'll think about it today." She went out into the kitchen and walked quickly to the kitchen.

On Dearborn street, or on Michigan boulevard, Ann's appearance would have attracted the attention of well-groomed, well-tailored smartness, almost richness. As she explained that the soft wool of Ann's budget with yesterday's remnant table in a basement bargain sale, that the findings had come from the 10-cent store, that her own hand had had fashioned garment—in short that the entire ensemble had cost less than $20—she would scarcely credit the story.

Ann's shoes were purchased in a little alley shop off Randolph. They were rebuilt shoes of good make. Her hats were made from odds and ends, some new, some discarded by Mrs. Fringle. Gloves and hose, especially hose, cut into Ann's budget with yesterday's remnant. She was agnostic to learn, through her budget, that she spent $80 a year for hose.

SEWING a feather to a moose green hat, she asked, "Will it go on like this forever, Mrs. Fringle? Will I ever meet people and make friends?"

"It's hard to get acquainted, Ann, her employer answered. "I'm not more than a stranger here. You're stuck in a shop like this. Now if you worked in the dime store—those girls have good time."

"Yes, I know, but I like this work. I was delighted when you gave me the job. I had hoped to work up here."

"I'd pay you more if I could, you know that. Fifteen dollars isn't much, but it's better than a 'fifteen-week.' Ann repeated absently. "There are thousands of girls, and men, too, who never make a living, and I'm sure you can't. First I thought it was a stepping stone to better things, but I've learned differently. The $15 John French and his themselves—they are futures."

"The best thing to do is to be satisfied, Ann."

She had changed her position recently. "But that's the trouble. You must be satisfied. If you are you'll stay in the $15 class."

"What are you going to do about it?"

Ann put the finished hat on her bureau and went over to the window. She turned this way and that. "I don't know," she said.

"Get married?" the older woman asked.

"No, that's not the answer. In the first place, I never met any young men. In the second place, I want to do things for money."

"What sort of things?"

Ann said again, "I don't know. It's queer the way I feel. I don't particularly want money, but I like it. I don't have the slightest wish to marry for support."

She was silent, remembering her strange childhood. Her father had taught her how to pick a winning horse—not how to work.

Some day she would fall beneath the hurrying feet and no one would care.

At a 10-cent store on State street, she went to the notion counter. Ann did much of her shopping at this particular counter because of a girl, because the girl was friendly. She always remembered Ann and envied her sales with gay chatter.

"Hello," Ann said, stopping near the window, smiling at the girl.

"Hi, there—be with you in a minute." She deftly tied a package, saying over her shoulder, "Making another dress."

Ann nodded. "Starting it tonight." The girl's casual interest warmed her. The 10-cent store girl was not all Ann's type. She was cheaply dressed, the meagerness of her clothes accentuating her plump figure. She carried herself, perhaps, her bargain-day permanent was frizzy and ridiculously styled, her nails were long and blood red.

"Hi-huh—come see it," she called that afternoon to Ann, perhaps it was her friendly interest, perhaps it was merely that she was anxious to be seen, she came to lean on the counter near Ann.

"What you making?"

"Shall I show you the picture?"

"Uh-huh—come see it," she called. Ann handed the picture to her.

"Nice!"

"Um—keep it." The girl kept looking from the picture to Ann and back again. "Irene Temple," she read, "one of Chicago's most popular debutantes." That's what she was carrying $15 a week.

She said musingly, "We $15 people are like the filling in a sandwich. We're squeezed in between the upper slice which has ease and luxury and the lower slice which asks the government for help. We can't get out. We're necessary to the darned old world." Her eyes filled with tears.

At noon Ann ate two Graham crackers and half an apple. Afterward, she left the building and threaded her way through the busy streets to the apartment where she was pushed and ignored and memory of the dream chilled her.

By a vote of 441 to 171, the election of Twin Falls yesterday granted power to the trustees of Independent district No. 1 to increase the levy from eight to 18 mills, should the board of trustees so desire. The levy will not be made until about Aug. 1, when the budget will be completed. It is expected that the general session and manual training will be introduced along purely practical lines.

Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygiene, the Health Magazine, or the parent of a child who suffers from inability to hear well. In the past, children who could not hear were usually placed in special schools, where they learned to talk with their hands.

Speech defects are more common than hearing defects. Almost everyone has an occasional difficulty with speech. The repetition of difficult sentences like "Peter Piper picked a peck of pickled peppers" or "Sally Ann is sewing shirts for soldiers" indicates the varying degree of inflexibility with which most of us are able to think and speak at the same time.

The person who is hard of hearing usually has trouble in speaking, because he does not know whether or not he is speaking loudly or softly, distinctly or indistinctly. Some people have trouble with speech because they are not physically equipped to speak well. Those who are born with a split lip, a hare lip, or a cleft palate, are not able to speak well.

Children who have severe colds and inflamed throats during childhood frequently lose the ability of their hearing to interfere with the proper development of speech. Persistent colds of the throat also create difficulties, and there are instances when swelling in the nose and

WASHINGTON, Feb. 24.—Although the fact hasn't drawn any public attention yet, ex-President Hoover is an active and powerful candidate for the Republican nomination this year.

Mr. Hoover probably will have only a few votes when the convention opens. (He himself is perfectly confident he will.) There is also a chance that he will go to the convention with several other western delegations.

In addition, he stands a fair chance of gaining votes as a number of southern delegations, the 150-bed of solid south Republican presidentialists to recognize Mr. Hoover as the last man who headed out any.

A good-sized staff is actively working to bring about his nomination. It is a reliable source. Lawrence Welch is back on the job, exercising all the Hoover talents in Mr. Hoover's favor.

CONVENTION CITY SHOWS CONSERVATISM

Decision of the Republicans to meet in Philadelphia is at least partly a reflection of the influence which the conservative wing headed by Jay Cook, Joseph E. Paw, Jr., and their associates exert in the party. This group has a candidate—Governor James of Pennsylvania. It may not be able to nominate him, but it will have a good deal to say about who is nominated.

And by that token it appears that the New Dealers here have a fair chance of getting votes as a number of southern delegations, the 150-bed of solid south Republican presidentialists to recognize Mr. Hoover as the last man who headed out any.

A good-sized staff is actively working to bring about his nomination. It is a reliable source. Lawrence Welch is back on the job, exercising all the Hoover talents in Mr. Hoover's favor.

Program consisted of a short talk by Mr. Dahl on what the university forestry department is trying to do to help in the effort to get up planted.

Other numbers were group singing, with Mrs. Floyd Britz at the piano solo, "Grasshopper Parade," Margaret Burson, and a piano solo, "Caprice," by Phyllis Mabel. At the business session reports were given on the membership campaign, showing Bob Snaps' side ahead. Plans were made for next year's baseball game, sponsored by the club.

Some children are able to hear certain sounds, but not others. If they do not hear sounds of low pitch, they may be able to speak, but not to imitate sounds which they do not hear. Such children are said to be "pitch deaf."

Anyone who gives a little special attention to speech will realize that not two persons talk exactly alike. Nevertheless, we find by practice that we can change our voices so that even our friends do not recognize it. It is as if Hoover or Lawrence Welch, each of us develops certain ranges and tones which come to be recognized as our standard of speech.

Fortunately, modern techniques involve teaching of voice placement and inflection, and these are made possible because of the high pitch or shrill character of their voices. Learn to speak with a low pitch and you will be recognized as our standard of speech.

Two people pay enough attention to their voices. Margaret Spurr, Miss and of Leslie Howard and Ramona of the Broadway show business people became entranced upon hearing it. Yet all of us can improve our speech by giving our voices the attention that these great actors give to theirs.

Congressman Brickner stands a candidate, but would make a tolerable long shot, but just the same. There is enough pro-Bricker strength in half a dozen western states to start a formidable convention swing in his direction, if the situation develops properly.

And the point is that the big talking-point in his favor—the thing that has drawn the attention of men who are earnestly looking for a winner—is the very thing which the New Dealers suppose was going to lead him to the Cleveland relief situation.

Bricker stands out as the man who represents cutting down sharply on relief—justly certainly is the opposite of the heart of the New Deal program. That fact is the source of a real and growing political strength.

From it you can decide for yourself how much support will be accorded Democratic belief that the essentials of the New Deal will remain no matter who is elected.

IDAHO GRADUATES IN '40 OVER 600

MOSCOW (Special)—A graduating class of over the 600-mark for the first time in the history of Idaho has history by virtually all degree applications on file for the 45th annual commencement June 15.

Five hundred thirty-four seniors, more by 53 than the previous high of 481 a year ago, have filed for bachelor degrees. Results in degree applications have until March 15 to file. Indications are that the advanced degree total will be approximately the same as last year's 90. If so, Idaho's class of 1940 will pass the 600-mark with 29 degrees to spare in and in any case, the previous all-time record of 613 degrees granted in 1939.

Program of the University of Idaho reflects the university's steady growth in enrollment. Last year's graduating class of 573 received 453 bachelors, 27 masters, two honorary and one professional degree. The class of 1938 was the first above 500, with 640 in 1937 degrees granted totaled 454, and in 1939, 420.

After the class of 1940 has been granted degrees, prospective students will all the privileges and honors thereof appertaining," the grand total conferred by the University of Idaho will be approximately 7,600.

First District Federation to Reforest Land Near Pocatello

Advocating the conservation of natural resources, the First District Federation of Women's clubs has taken steps preliminary to replanting an acre of forest land south of Pocatello, Mrs. W. D. Astor, Pocatello, first district president, announced yesterday at a charmingly appointed tea, arranged by the Rural Federation of Women's clubs.

The district has rented 20 acres of ground on Mink creek, which will be planted with trees, the work to be done through the National Youth administration, and planting to start in the early summer.

The event took place at the Elmer bungalow, and was largely attended by club women of this section. Guests were received from 2 to 5 o'clock.

Distinguished Guests Distinguished guests in addition to Mrs. Astor were Mrs. J. W. Newman, president of the Twentieth Century club; Mrs. William Baker, first district vice-president; Mrs. A. C. Gray, Good Will club president; and Mrs. Stuart Stevens, Kimberly, past district president.

They were presented with courtesies by the Rural Federation. Mrs. Lee Smith, vice-president of the sponsor organization, gave the words of welcome, and introduced the honorees.

Also speaking during the afternoon was Mrs. R. B. Stringfellow, state chairwoman of the Women's Field Army for the Control of Cancer, who is spending the week-end with her son-in-law and daughter, Mrs. Walter Stringleff. ILLUSSION OF SPACE To make a small room appear larger than it really is, hang the walls and ceiling down in light colors, avoid any suggestion of clutter by keeping accessories down to a minimum. Use light-colored, or white, carpet, or if a rug, be sure the floor margin around the edges is proportionate, and only a few well-chosen, light-colored pictures. Simplicity should be the keynote.

A no-holiday luncheon of "Northwest Passage," commenting that she and the governor spent most of one day with the stars. She is causing Iona Mason's beauty, pronounced her "utterly charming."

Dewey B. Starn, interviewer.

"Second the motion," said Mrs. Horn.

"Well, you did, didn't you?" the interviewer asked. "I heard that Dewey dubbed you the Oracle of Idaho, before he left Boise."

Mrs. Horn didn't say "yes" and she didn't say "no." She just branched off into what a success that affair was the Lincoln day dance given by the Young Republican club of Ada county.

"Plenty of activity and hard work; something for every member of the club to do—that's the way to get up enthusiasm in Young Republican groups. And then keep them at it," she said, the joint opinion of both Mrs. Bottofsen transferred her rosy cheeks to her own.

Soup's Favorite Dish At Home of Governor

By JEAN DINKELACKER

When the governor comes to dine, serve him soup!

Gather round, ladies. If you want the non-political low-down on the bottofsens, that happy newspaper family who are now the governor and his wife's family.

A month ago Mrs. "Bott" started cooking in her apartment in the Ood Power hotel, just the time her husband "had only about six meals at home," she admits.

But that's no reflection on her cooking ability, she defends her "cook-book tactics. It's just that "Bott" has so many appointments

Soup's the governor's favorite dish; and it doesn't make much difference whether it comes out of a can or is home made, though he does admit a preference for vegetable soup of the homemade variety.

This information was revealed by Mrs. Bottofsen following yesterday's luncheon, arranged by women members of the Young Republican club of Twin Falls, who had her "out" for not liking "to talk politics."

Printer's Ink Preferred The aroma of bubbling broth and vegetables may suit the governor, but for favorite smells, Mrs. "Bott" will take printer's ink. And so will her husband, she says.

Mr. Bottofsen, following yesterday's luncheon, arranged by women members of the Young Republican club of Twin Falls, who had her "out" for not liking "to talk politics."

The best thing about being a governor's wife, according to Mrs. "Bott," is the opportunity it affords her to constantly meeting new people. But she'll be glad when she can go back to Arco and help run the Arco Advertiser, the newspaper she has owned and her husband owns, and which she helped "put press" while he was campaigning.

"Nothing to her, you get the idea of this turning a newspaper, which in some places is the next thing to running the town itself—is more fun than being the 'first lady'." She recalls the times that she has fielded briefs; done odd jobs; solicited advertising and written copy.

"I've worked in the newspaper newsrooms of the Bureau of Education and the Oceanic News, in California," and of course, the Arco Advertiser," she adds proudly.

Mrs. "Bott" shared the enthusiasm of most Boiseans for the movie actress and actress who were there in 1937, when she was in the "Northwest Passage," commenting that she and the governor spent most of one day with the stars. She is causing Iona Mason's beauty, pronounced her "utterly charming."

EARLY SENATE PASSAGE LOOMS ON TRADE TREATIES

HOUSE APPROVES PROGRAM BY BIG MARGIN

By RONALD G. VANTINE WASHINGTON, Feb. 24 (AP)—Administration leaders today halted house passage of the bill extending the reciprocal trade program for 1941 as an indication of early approval by the senate.

Democratic and Republican senators predicted the senate would vote on the measure within two weeks. Democrats said it would be approved; Republicans still hoped to delay it.

The house gave the administration an overwhelming victory last night by voting 245 to 167 to continue the program. Immediately afterwards, expressions of gratification came from President Roosevelt and Secretary of State Cordell Hull.

Send Congratulations From the cruiser Tuacalcoo, aboard which he is fishing near the coast of Alaska, the president's spokesman William B. Bankhead congratulated on passage of the bill by the house and asserted Senate action would be a matter of time.

Hull stated briefly: "I am, and I am sure, supporters of the program everywhere are immensely gratified at the vote."

The vote in the house to extend the program three years beyond the June 12 expiration date was along party lines. Only five Republicans voted with the administration to continue the program; 19 Democrats deserted to vote against extension.

The administration victory followed a day in which Democratic forces beat down successive attempts to subject future trade agreements to senate ratification or approval by both the house and senate.

To Start Hearings Prospects of early consideration of the bill were enhanced by an announcement that the senate finance committee would begin hearings Monday with Hull and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace as witnesses.

Democratic Senate Leader Alben W. Barkley said he saw no reason why the senate could not dispose of the bill inside of a week, and predicted that the extension would be granted in the form desired by the administration.

Republican Leader Charles McNary also predicted debate would last only a week, and expressed hope the senate could even if it did not have sufficient votes to kill the program, require ratification of all agreements.

48 Against Amendment An administration-conducted poll showed that the present line-up in the senate is 49 against a ratification amendment, 41 for it, and 10 doubtful. Of the six Democratic leaders said, four could be persuaded to vote against ratification, if necessary.

The administration listed all Republicans in favor of ratification: Sen. Robert A. Taft, R., Ohio; reporters he would not support such an amendment "because that would destroy the whole principle of the program."

Mrs. W. Irving entertained Merry-Go-Round club with luncheon Wednesday.

Mrs. Van Every and Mrs. Van Every and Mrs. Lehigh Hoque left Wednesday for Salt Lake City where they will attend the annual conference of the western lumbermen's convention. Mrs. Hoque will visit relatives.
