LLOYD GEORGE DEMANDS CHAMBERLAIN QUIT

Bitter Attack Is Aimed at Leader For War Failure

By WALLACE CARROLL

LONDON, May 8 (U.P.)—David Lloyd George, fiery little world war premier, told a cheering house of commons today that "nothing would contribute more to victory" in the war against Germany than the resignation of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

Leading a climactic attack on conduct of the war in Norway prior to a vote on the Chamberlain cabinet tonight, Lloyd George clashed with the prime minister and said: "There is nothing that could contribute more to victory in this war than that the prime minister should sacrifice the seals of office."

The opposition benches cheered loudly.

The white-haired little Welsh statesman vigorously attacked the British failure in the war in Norway and warned that Adolf Hitler had Germany in a better strategic position than ever was achieved by Kaiser Wilhelm. "He has put us in greater jeopardy," Lloyd George said. "The German success in Norway, he said, has brought German bombing planes and submarines 200 miles closer to British ports."

The Welsh statesman charged that as a result of the failure in Norway, the influence and prestige of the allies had been affected in other parts of Europe.

"Notes Are Rubbish" — "British promissory notes are now rubbish on the market," he asserted amid cries of "shame" from the government benches.

Lloyd George brought the debate near its climax after: —Chamberlain had accepted a Laborite challenge for a confidence vote at the end of debate tonight with the life of his cabinet at stake. —Lloyd again urged that united action was needed "to face a relentless enemy" who might strike anywhere.

—Cabinet members had revealed that perhaps the greatest loss to Britain during the Norwegian campaign was the U-boat sinking of a supply ship carrying urgently needed anti-aircraft guns and that a British fighting plane was established in Norway was bombed to pieces by 60 German planes in a 15-hour raid.

"Feeble Air Policy" — Laborite, Hugh Dalton, had suggested bitterly that the government was pursuing such a feeble policy in the air that the allied forces might soon give up their last foothold in Norway in the Narvik region.

—Another Laborite, Herbert Morrison, had pressed for the resignations of Chamberlain, Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer, and Sir Samuel Hoare, air minister, on the grounds that otherwise Great Britain was in danger of losing the war.

The force sent to Norway, Lloyd George said, made British prestige (Continued on Page 2, Column 4)

House Rejects 4th Reorganizing Plan

WASHINGTON, May 8 (U.P.)—The house today voted disapproval of President Roosevelt's fourth reorganization plan, which would transfer the civil aeronautics authority to the commerce department. "The vote to disapprove the President's order was announced as 322 to 153. Senate action still is required to kill the reorganization order, since the law requires affirmative action by both houses.

URGES ORGANIZATION

SALMON, Ida., May 8 (U.P.)—The Lemhi cattle and horse growers today were urged to organize and demand a vote in enactment of state laws. Max Cohn, state president of the association, declared 90 per cent of Idaho land is utilized for grazing purposes, but that livestock men are the least organized of any group.

Gossett Upholds Demos, Flays at G. O. P. Record

Vigorously praising the national Roosevelt administration and lambasting the Idaho state Republican regime, Charles C. Gossett, former lieutenant-governor, sounded a call here last night for Democrats to march aggressively to victory at the polls. Victory, he assured 75 to 100 persons at the Idaho Power auditorium for the meeting of the Young Democratic club and other Democrats, can be achieved by upholding the Democratic record of the national administration and the "fine achievements" of the Bourbon administration in Idaho before Gov. C. A. Bottolfsen took over.

His G. O. P. Finance — Firing at the financial status into which he said Republicans have plunged Idaho in the last year and a half, Gossett said: "Compare the financial condition of the state in 1929, when the Democrats took over, with the status under Republicans before and after that time. When the Democrats entered office in 1929, the G. O. P. bequeathed them a state debt of $7,743,000. In 1929 this had been reduced to $1,000,000—a reduction of almost $6,700,000 a year.

"At the end of the 1927-30 biennium, the Democratic party turned over to the Republican administration a surplus of almost a million dollars in the state general fund."

Cuts More — "Yet on May 1, 1940, the state debt had soared to $2,822,000." As an example of what the so-called a nefarious Republican up-

NAZIS REPORTED WITH 1,000,000 MEN AT BORDER

By CLIFFORD L. DAY

AMSTERDAM, May 8 (U.P.)—The Dutch government maintained precautions against invasion from any quarter today, despite new assurances from European belligerents that The Netherlands was in no immediate danger.

A check of the provinces showed all was quiet and both Berlin and Paris spokesmen took the position that there seemed to be no threat at present to the low countries. The country was still tense and somewhat nervous, however, as a result of sudden military precautions.

Leaves of all men of the fighting forces had been canceled. Members of the anti-aircraft units and searchlight batteries who had been released to work in war production factories were recalled to military duty. Key rivers and canals had been closed to foreign traffic and ships in them immobilized. Train and boat services had been restricted because of troop movements.

Report of 1,000,000 Men — (There had been reports outside Holland German troops were marching toward the Dutch frontier. It had been supposed for months Germany had maintained about 1,000,000 men on the frontier.)

Telephone calls to and from foreign countries had been sharply restricted during the night and some calls had even been cut off.

Dawn today disclosed all public buildings in main towns throughout the country were being guarded by strong detachments of soldiers.

Police forces had been fully mobilized during the night. Amsterdam's "storm brigade" of defenders was ready to rush to any part of the country.

Government authorities and military quarters refused any comment on preparedness measures, more stringent than any since the World war.

Part of Plan — It was intimated, however, all preparations were part of a precautionary plan previously perfected in connection with the present war and the nation's determination to be on the alert for any development.

Reports from Belgium said everything was quiet in that country, Holland's neighbor on the German frontier.

This fact caused the Dutch public, aware of foreign rumors that an attack on Holland might come at any hour, to accept the statement that their government's extraordinary military preparations were precautionary. But what had caused the sudden precautionary moves remained a mystery.

Reserves Phones — It was understood that the government had reserved all telephone lines to foreign countries all night for its own use.

As the army, navy and air force canceled leaves, the governmental inspector general of navigation in home waters announced that entry of vessels into strategic waters would be halted between Saturday and Monday. Ships which enter these waters during the closed period will be held up until release is given Monday.

MEXICO SETTLES SINCLAIR DEBTS

MEXICO CITY, May 8 (U.P.)—Finance Minister Eduardo Suarez announced President Lazaro Cardenas had signed an agreement to pay the Sinclair oil firm $8,500,000 cash to settle the dispute over the expropriation of that company's properties.

He said Sinclair would be paid in cash and no additional payments in oil were provided.

(In Washington, officials commenting on reports that an agreement between Sinclair and the Mexican government was imminent, had feared Mexico planned to pay Sinclair at least partly in oil taken from Dutch, British or expropriated American properties other than Sinclair's.)

Suarez announced, however, a commercial deal was pending whereby Mexico would sell Sinclair an unspecified amount of oil.

He said Sinclair would be given a check for $1,000,000 as a down payment before the end of this week, and that the agreement provided for the payment of $2,000,000 the first year; $3,000,000 the second year and $2,500,000 the third year, completing the settlement before 1943.

Suarez said the agreement represented a complete settlement with the four consolidated oil (Sinclair) corporation subsidiaries whose Mexican properties were expropriated.

Webb Miller, Famed War Correspondent, Found Dead at Rail Tracks in England

LONDON, May 8 (U.P.)—Webb Miller, the famous United Press war correspondent, was found dead today beside a railroad track near Clapham junction in southwest London. It was believed he had fallen from a train sometime during the night while en route to the country after covering last night's debate on Norway in the house of commons. Miller was 48 years old. It was presumed the accident happened sometime after 9 p. m., although the body was not found until after dawn today. A hard blow on the right side of the head apparently caused instant death.

The engineer of the first daylight train through Clapham junction this morning saw a body beside the tracks and telephoned back from the next station. Railroad police took the body to a hospital and then to Battersea mortuary.

Under the black-out restrictions the lights in a train are extinguished when it approaches a station and are not turned on until the train is under way again. Police said they believed Miller intended to change trains at Clapham junction, and did not realize the train had reached the station until after it had restarted. Thinking the train was still jumping along the platform he flung out the door of his compartment, police thought. The body was lying about 10 yards beyond the end of the station platform.

Miller is survived by his widow and son, Kenneth, 18, both of whom are in the United States. In his pockets, railroad police found a letter from his son in New York and a letter from a Hollywood fan telling him how much he had enjoyed Miller's book "I Found No Peace."

The famous reporter died at the height of his career. His last story describing the house of commons debate was written yesterday and he was in good spirits when he left the United Press office at 7 p. m. He had telephoned the office around 9 p. m. saying he was going to the country to get a good night's sleep before returning to commons for the continuation of debate today.

For the last week he had been assembling equipment for a trip to Norway, having been notified by the government he would be in the first group of reporters to be taken north with the British forces.

His last war front assignment was in Finland where he covered the Russo-Finnish fighting around Lake Ladoga. Before the war broke out in Finland he was with the British expeditionary forces in France.

Although he was best known for his personal reportorial exploits, which began with his assignment to the Mexican border in 1916 and included practically every major international conflict from then until the present war, Miller was also a top ranking news executive. He was the general European manager of the United Press with headquarters here, but was always prepared to leave his desk for a front-line assignment.

New Deal Wins Tests In California, Florida

By United Press

Roosevelt third-term forces overwhelmingly won California's 44 delegates to the national Democratic convention in a preferential primary yesterday which overshadowed similar balloting in four other states.

The California victory came in a four-cornered primary race. A slate pledged to the candidacy of Vice-President John Nance Garner ran second, but got only one vote to every Primary also were held in Alabama, Indiana, South Dakota and Florida. Texas conducted county Democratic conventions to elect delegates to a state convention, where a slate delegates for Garner is expected to be selected.

Other results: —Andrews Leading — Florida—New Deal Sen. Charles C. Andrews piled up a big lead in a six-man race for renomination, but it appeared that he would not accumulate the majority necessary to avoid a run-off against Bernard MacFadden, publisher and physical-culturist opposed to the Roosevelt administration.

South Dakota—Gov. Harlan Bushfield won renomination on the Republican ticket. Democrats selected Lewis Hicknell, attorney, Uninstructed delegates were selected for the Democratic and Republican conventions. Backers of Postmaster General James A. Farley claimed the Democratic delegation would cast its eight votes for him.

Starnes Trailing — Alabama—Primary featured the Democratic renomination race of Rep. Joe Starnes, an assistant to Chairman Martin Dies of the house committee investigating un-American activities. Starnes was trailing his opponent, Judge Alf Hawkins, with 109 of 191 ballot boxes counted.

Indiana—Rep. Charles Halleck appeared to have defeated his Townsendite opponent, Frederic Landis, in the Republican primary. Voters also selected delegates to state nominating convention which, in turn will name the delegations to the national conventions.

Father Sues Actress for Monthly Pay

HOLLYWOOD, May 8 (U.P.)—Paulette Goddard, wife of Film Comedian Charlie Chaplin, today was sued for $600 a month support by her elderly father, Joseph R. Levee, on the ground the $300 he now is receiving monthly is inadequate support.

Levee said he had lost a $150 a week film salesman job last Oct. 27 as a result of an article in Collier's magazine charging he was not Miss Goddard's father, and he was too old, at 60, to retain himself for another occupation.

Until three weeks ago, he said, the actress had refused him any aid at all. Although she promised him a weekly support of $75 at that time, he said he felt he should "not be required to lower his previous standard of living merely because Miss Goddard was unwilling to provide him with the means."

She earns approximately $5,000 a week, none of which he needs for anything but her personal whims, her father said.

Gossett, former Democratic lieutenant-governor and regarded as a probable aspirant for the governorship nomination this year, doesn't seem worried about Republicans using his dunking tactics against him. Idaho Boy, 16, Gets Sentence to Gallows

GRANGEVILLE, Ida., May 8 (U.P.)—Death on the gallows today faced Clifford Zipse, 16-year-old Rocky Point schoolboy, who settled a grudge against a school companion by pumping five rifle bullets into his body.

A jury of 12 men deliberated four and one-half hours last night before it found young Zipse guilty of first degree murder in the slaying of 15-year-old Wesley Curtis last Feb. 28, and in the accompanying recommendation made the death sentence mandatory.

Judge Miles S. Johnston said he would sentence Zipse at 10 a. m. Friday. If the youth ascends the gallows, he will be the youngest convicted murderer ever to be executed in Idaho. It will be the first hanging in the state in more than a decade.

"Takes It Good" — Officials at the county jail said the fatherless youth, who impassively heard the jury foreman pronounce "murder in the first degree," was just beginning to understand the magnitude of the verdict today. "He's just beginning to realize what's happened," his jailer said. "However, he's taking it good." The lad, an eighth grade pupil in the Rocky Point school and described as a "dull student," pleaded not guilty to the charge of murder, but sheriffs deputies testified he had told them he shot young Curtis because "I was mad at him."

Zipse was charged with waylaying and firing five bullets into his school friend as he was on his way home from the little school, which housed only eight pupils. Miss Norma Urlick, Zipse's teacher, described him as a sullen and moody pupil whose studies were not good.

Mentality Below Normal — Defense Attorney Bert Auger, who called no witnesses on the youth's behalf, rested his case on contention Zipse's mentality was under average for his age and he, therefore, was less responsible for his actions.

CENSUS REQUEST CALLS PILING UP

Because telephone calls and personal requests from Twin Falls residents literally "snowed under" the branch census headquarters here today, preliminary counting of Twin Falls population was ordered held up at Pocatello.

Chamber of Commerce officials advised Elmer P. Terry, assistant supervisor at Pocatello, that last-minute calls from persons who have not been enumerated piled up in increasing numbers last night and this morning.

Deadline was to have been 8 p. m. today. But Mr. Terry, assuring the chamber that "we want to give Twin Falls the most accurate census possible," said counting of the returns will be delayed until enumerators can check back over all persons missed.

It was indicated that the check-up task must be cleared in the next two days because the preliminary compilation at Pocatello district headquarters cannot be put off too long. As result of the action today, Chamber of Commerce leaders requested all the nine enumerators in Twin Falls city to report at 6 o' clock immediately. The calls from non-enumerated persons will then be turned over to the census takers by order of Mr. Terry, who said that he is sending instructions today to the enumerators to press the clean-up drive.

ASSASSIN SHOTS FAMED CHEMIST

WESTFIELD, Mass., May 8 (U.P.)—An assassin called last night at the home of Lewis B. Allen, 65-year-old food chemist, shot him to death on his doorstep and slipped away in the darkness, leaving no clue to his identity or the reason for his act, preliminary counting of his living room when he heard the assassin's knock at the door. He staggered back into that room dead.

His wife was in bed upstairs. She said she heard several shots and exclamations and went down to the living room but arrived too late to get any information from him in his dying gasp. Beside him lay a novel entitled "The Gun," which Allen had laid face down to mark his place when he was disturbed.

The murder appalled this town, which Allen had made famous as the "pure food city."

U. S. TO KEEP NAVY AT HAWAII FOR "INDEFINITE PERIOD"

JAPAN EXPECTED TO PROTEST ON EAST MANEUVER

WASHINGTON, May 8 (AP)—The navy department and the White House indicated today that the order which will keep the United States fleet in Hawaii, America's mid-Pacific naval base "indefinitely" was entirely the idea of Admiral James O. Richardson, its commander-in-chief.

The navy department and the White House both indicated their "approval" while congressional and diplomatic circles, anticipated the order would be taken in Japan as a move to discourage any change in the status quo in the far east.

Having completed its season maneuvers—they had been staged in mid-Pacific this year, a move which had drawn some critical comment from Japan—the fleet was to have sailed today and tomorrow for its west coast bases. Last night, Admiral Richardson announced in Honolulu he had asked permission to keep the fleet "indefinitely" in Hawaiian waters and Admiral Harold R. Stark, chief of naval operations, had granted his request.

Western Stronghold
While the United States has a naval establishment in the Philippines, Hawaii's Pearl Harbor base, for all practical purposes, is the western-most of its strongholds and, therefore, the nearest to Japan, the Dutch East Indies, and the rest of the far east. Admiral Richardson said the fleet would engage in extra spring exercises and maneuvers.

Ordinarily, such unusual changes in plans and schedules are ordered and announced in Washington. The navy department and the White House last night merely confirmed Admiral Richardson's announcement, both insisting it had no significance.

General congressional reaction was that the placing of the fleet was this country's business so long as it remains within the "strategic defense area of the United States."

FDR Informed
White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said President Roosevelt had been informed by Secretary of the Navy Charles Edison. He pointed out that the President, as commander-in-chief of the navy, kept in close touch with naval movements and has been following closely the fleet maneuvers.

There was no indication how long the fleet would remain at Hawaii.

The announcement brought predictions from diplomatic observers that the order would cause Japan to show displeasure at what probably would be interpreted in Tokyo as a significant move relating to the far eastern situation.

$1,000 SET FOR CANCER POSTER

An Idaho artist may win $1,000 for a poster design to be used in the 1941 educational campaign on cancer control. It was announced today by Mrs. R. S. Stringfellow, Boise, state commander of the Women's Field Army for Cancer Control.

A total of $1,875 has been offered by the American Society for the Control of Cancer, the first to be $1,000; second prize, $500; third, $250; fourth, $50; fifth, $25, and five prizes of $10 each, and posters that do not win a prize may be purchased by the society.

"We seek through this competition to secure a dramatic enlistment poster not for a war of destruction, but for a war to save lives," said Dr. C. C. Little, of the American Society for Cancer Control. "We want a direct pictorial appeal to men and women to unite for their own protection. The poster should express a hopeful and optimistic attitude."

The designs will be judged on beauty, originality and the message conveyed. The competition is open to all art students and artists, and the posters must be sent to the National Alliance of Art and Industry, Inc., 110 East 19th street, New York, between Oct. 1 and 12, 1940, where they will be judged by a national committee.

These posters must be designed "to stimulate public interest in the control of cancer, to further the support of the educational movement; to deliver a hopeful message to a public to which the very word cancer spells fear," says the official announcement. Entry blanks and further details may be secured from the national alliance.

PRIME MINISTER ASKED TO QUIT

dependent "on a half-baked, half-prepared expeditionary force."

Parliamentary veterans described Lloyd George's speech as the most devastating he had delivered in the last 15 years.

The former premier spoke with fierce intensity and made sweeping gestures.

"Half-Hearted Drive"
"For three or four years everything that has been done has been half-hearted and ineffective without drive or impulse," he said.

"The prime minister met this formidable foe (Hitler) in peace and in war. He has always been worsted."

"The commons roared with laughter when Lloyd George warned he would not let his old friend, Winston Churchill, become "an air raid shelter for the rest of the government" members.

"No Cause for Panic"
"It is all the more a shame that we should make fools of them. There is no cause for panic, but there is grave cause for pulling ourselves together."

He charged neutral countries no longer would put faith in British promises unless bold action were taken.

"Tell me one neutral country that would be prepared to stand up to the Nazis on a mere promise from us," he said.

"They must realize the magnitude of our jeopardy. We need real action, not sham action which we have had."

"Petty cash balance sheet losses on either side is no use. Strategically we are in a much worse position than before."

Lloyd George's remarks were given at Chamberlain who last week said the balance sheet in Norway favored the allies.

THROGS ATTEND RUPERT FESTIVAL

RUPERT, May 8 (Special)—The annual spring music festival, held outdoors for the first time, attracted throngs of people to the city park at 1:30 p. m. Saturday.

This gay, colorful event was under the general supervision of Miss Bertha Nutting, superintendent of public instruction for Minidoka county.

She was assisted by a committee composed of Mrs. L. W. Dospalin, Rupert; Frank Watson, head of the music department of Pioneer school; Miss Jean Jordan, head of the music department of the Paul school; Lund Christensen, head of the music department of the Heyburn schools; and Miss Esther Hughes, head of the music department of the Acequia schools.

The program began with a parade, headed by the Rupert junior high school band and the Pioneer grade school band, around the square into the park. There selections were played by the bands. The flag was brought to the grandstand by a group of Boy Scouts and the salute given by the entire group.

With Miss Jordan at the piano and Mr. Christensen as conductor, all the grade school children of the county sang "God Bless America." H. H. Judd, president of the Rupert Chamber of Commerce, gave the address of welcome and Miss Nutting gave the response. The following songs were then sung by the children:

"The Captain's Ship," "Sailing," "Old Folks at Home," "Oh, Susanna," "Dixie Land," "Row, Row, Row Your Boat," "Are You Sleeping?" "South of the Border," "Over the Rainbow," "Hap, Hap, Happy Day."

The entire group joined in the singing of the last song, "God Bless America" and the program concluded with the winding of May poles, one for each of the 11 schools, to the "Minuet in G" played by the Pioneer school band.

EMBEZZLE CLAIM DISMISSED HERE

Payment of $135.26 plus a considerable amount as court and sheriff's costs had brought dismissal today of embezzlement charges against an American Falls man.

The defendant is Gordon Bryant, who had been accused of embezzling a $135.26 sales sheet after bidding successfully on four head of cattle at the Twin Falls Commission company auction last Feb. 14. Since the sales sheet contained the release for the cattle, the company had charged that Bryant secured the animals without paying for them.

Bryant was arrested by Twin Falls sheriff's officers after two trips to American Falls on the same day. He had been at liberty under $1,000 bond pending preliminary hearing. Dismissal was ordered by Probate Judge C. A. Bailey after agreement of state and defense counsel.

Miller Had Title as Top War Reporter for World

NEW YORK, May 8 (AP)—Webb Miller, who was found dead alongside a railroad track in England today, was a newspaper reporter for 30 years and during that time he covered nearly every major battle that was fought on the world's battlegrounds and earned a reputation as the ace of war correspondents. His by-line stood for accuracy and brilliant reporting and many of the great news beats of our time came from Miller's portable typewriter under date lines of the Ethiopian frontier, in India, Morocco, the Soviet Union, Italy, Spain, Germany and the British Isles.

He saw kings and dictators rise and fall; he saw the start and finish of wars and revolutions; he saw peace made and scrapped. His career was summarized in 1936 in his book, "I Found No Peace."

Michigan Student
Miller was born and attended school in Dowagiac, Mich. After graduating from high school he got a job working on a passenger steamboat on Diamond Lake, Mich. Then he became a rural school teacher and later, determined to fulfill his ambition to be a writer, went to Chicago and became a police reporter in 1912. In his first year he covered 33 murders and six executions by hanging.

In 1918 Miller went to Mexico to cover the Pershing expedition against the bandit, Pancho Villa. It was while on the border Miller started to work for the United Press.

After a year there, he was sent to Mexico City, thence to Chicago, New York and Washington, where he was assigned to report the senate and state department.

In 1917, the United Press sent Miller to London and it was there, during the last World War years, that he had his first taste of reporting from a city under the constant threat of air raids. He went to Ireland often during the Sinn Fein uprising and visited the British front.

Joins Paris Bureau
A year later he joined the Paris bureau of the United Press, and was a war correspondent on the American front during the battles of the summer and fall of 1918. He was

THREE TO FACE ROBBERY CHARGE

MOUNTAIN HOME, Ida., May 8 (AP)—Two men and a woman, who have baffled police by changing their names twice in the last three days, were held for trial today on charges of armed robbery.

Finally disclosing their names as John G. McNeil, Francis W. Davis and Gertrude Hudson, the trio were bound over to Elmore county district court for allegedly robbing a local tourist camp operator. They were lodged in the county jail in lieu of $300 bond each.

At first Davis claimed he was the brother of McNeil, and Miss Hudson said she was the wife of Davis. Later, in Salt Lake City, police said they were holding a Lester Heitsman, who claimed the woman captured here was his wife.

Enough Eating Time
Three hours are allowed employees for lunch by the Mexican government. Four hours were allowed for the mid-day meal and siesta formerly, but a new ruling has cut the time to three hours.

Flew 400,000 Miles
Flying was Miller's favorite method of getting to the scene of a big story. In all, he covered about 400,000 flying miles in the course of his reportorial duties. He flew the Atlantic twice, by dirigible and airplane. He was on the maiden voyage of dirigible Hindenburg from Germany to Lakehurst.

Miller scored one of his greatest journalistic feats at the start of Italy's invasion of Ethiopia in 1935. He straddled the sand-bagged parapet atop a mountain in northern Ethiopia the morning of Oct. 3, 1935, and watched the Italian advance into the country. He then forged ahead with the Italian forces and was the first correspondent of any nationality to reach Addis, the Ethiopian "holy city," as it fell to the invaders.

In 1937, Miller made an extended visit to Russia and wrote a series of six uncensored dispatches on the results of the Soviet purges. Then came the Spanish civil war with Miller again on the front, covering the siege and relief of Alcazar. After that came the series of faithful conferences and events that led up to the present war. Miller covered the historic Munich conference. He watched German troops in Czechoslovakia.

Back on Battlefield
Last fall he again was back on the battle front. First he went to the western front with the British forces at outbreak of the war. When war broke out in Finland he hastened to Helsinki, arriving in time to cover air raids on that capital. And this week he was preparing to go to Norway with the British.
One of the big peace-time assignments of his career was the abdication of former King Edward VIII. In the months following the abdication he witnessed the coronation of the new king—George VI—and later covered the marriage in France of the exiled monarch and Mrs. Simpson.
Last year Miller accompanied King George and Queen Elizabeth on their tour of the United States and Canada.

LAST RITES HELD FOR RUPERT MAN

RUPERT, May 8 (Special)—Funeral services were held at 3 p. m. Sunday afternoon at the third ward L.D.S. church for Walter A. Hartman, 35, who died at 1:50 p. m. Thursday in the L.D.S. hospital in Salt Lake City of complications from multiple sclerosis.

Fred Tolman, first counsellor to Bishop Clyde Orndall, was in charge of the ceremony.

The invocation was given by Leon Davis and the benediction by Farley Bassett. Speakers were LaVern Whiting and Lewis R. Humphries.

Music was provided by a mixed quartet composed of George Oatnull, head of the high school music department, Mrs. Zella Humphries, Miss Florita Humphries and Roy Humphries, who, accompanied by Mrs. Maude Champion, sang "Prayer Is the Soul's Sincere Desire," "In the Garden" and "Beautiful Isle of Somewhere."

Palbearers were Gilbert Robbins, Jimmie Hensen, William Demo, Pete Chugg, Ed Hills and Virgil Norwood. Flowers were in charge of a group of little girls from the third ward primary.

Interment, under the direction of the Goodman mortuary, was in Rupert cemetery in a grave dedicated by L. Wagner.

Walter A. Hartman, son of Alexander and Florence Hull Hartman, was born March 14, 1905 in Afton, Wyo. On Oct. 10, 1925, he married Miss Beatrice E. Evans in Salt Lake City. They soon moved to Rupert where they have made their home for the past 15 years. He is survived by his wife, one daughter, Maureen, two sons, Gayle E. and Kim W.; one sister, Mrs. Florence Schorzman, Fort Peck, Mont.; one half-brother, LeRoy McLane, Rupert, and a half-sister, Mrs. Catherine Finn, Ogden, all of whom were here for the funeral.

Demos Chosen for Twin Falls Meet

COEUR D'ALENE, Ida., May 8 (AP)—Twenty-two delegates to the state Democratic convention at Twin Falls May 16 were elected yesterday by the Kootenai county Democratic central committee. The delegates, each of whom will have half a vote, were instructed to vote for the reelection of Ramsay M. Walker, Coeur d'Alene, as national committeeman. The committee also went on record favoring the nomination of Franklin D. Roosevelt for a third term.

Police Whistle Trill
A policeman's whistle has no vibrating object. The trill in it is due to the fact that the whistle is a double pipe affair, with one pipe producing a note of 10 to 15 vibrations more per second than the other, causing them to get out of step and back in step again in rapid succession.

GERMAN ADVANCE TO NORTH SLOWS

STOCKHOLM, May 8 (AP)—The advance of German troops up the Norwegian coast from Trondheim appeared to have been stalled today, but there were conflicting reports of the position of the opposing forces. Germans claimed to have thrust northward almost to the town of Mo, midway between Trondheim and Narvik, but the semi-official Swedish news agency reported from the front that Norwegian officers said the Nazis had failed to pass the boundary of north Trondelag province.

The roar of the crowd... the thundering hoofs foretold the fall of mighty Rome—all because an empire went pleasure-mad and forgot what made it great. Rome went soft. Budweiser

A Beverage of Moderation

WE MAKE THIS AIR TEST: Every drop of Budweiser comes to you with all its original goodness protected in every way. Air, for example, has been taken out of each bottle through a process which we developed at great expense, because our exhaustive tests proved that air inside a sealed bottle is an enemy of fine beer.

Any oil-change helps 'youthify' your engine... but not like this change to OIL-PLATING.

You change to an OIL-PLATED engine by changing to Conoco Germ Processed oil—patented. It goes in like any oil and is priced as low as many. But a costly extra ingredient—created in the laboratory—technically described in the Patent Office—energizes this oil to couple up direct to inner engine surfaces. The connection is as close as that of any plating on your car. A plating is not in the habit of getting wiped away at speed, or of draining down at a standstill, and so that all goes for OIL-PLATING.

Then no matter how long the car stands or runs with Germ Processed oil in the crankcase, the OIL-PLATING STAYS PLATED UP to its top-most point in each cylinder—fastened up to its job when fluid oil-film couldn't be. You get a great fluid oil-film, mind you, with Germ Processed oil, but in addition you get OIL-PLATING... drain-proof... fixed defense against the strong assaults of Summer wear. Helping to keep up your engine, OIL-PLATING helps to keep up the level of your Germ Processed oil. Even in an older engine its economy may remind you of "the first year." "MOTHER" THEME AT GRANGE MEET

RUPERT, May 8 (Special)—A special program, honoring Mother's day, was presented to the members of the Rupert Grange who met in regular session at the Christian church annex Friday evening.

The master, L. F. Candaux, presided at the business session, which, in addition to routine business and reports, included a talk by Maurice E. Willis, president of the Mindoka County Best Growers' association, and vice-president of the state organization, who recently made an airplane trip to Washington, D. C., in the interest of Idaho best growers.

See Pictures—

The lecture hour was presided over by Mrs. W. E. Jackson, Grange lecturer. The program consisted of several reels of pictures and a lecture by Tom Speedy, field representative of the Jerome Cooperative Creamery; a reading, "Our Mother's Love," Mrs. Maurice E. Willis; a paper on "The Origin of Mother's Day," Ross Woolford; and a series of tableaux, entitled "Memories of Motherhood," in charge of Mrs. N. K. Jensen.

Mrs. George Donaldson enacted the part of the aged mother, who, in retrospect, relived the great events of her life. The first, "Young Motherhood," was represented by Mrs. Ward Volkers with an infant. Next was the child's first day at school. This was impersonated by Mrs. Paul Rogers and her young nephew, Glenn Rogers.

The son leaving home for college was portrayed by Mrs. Clay Rogers and Bill Carpenter. The next scene was the son's marriage, with Miss Verlyn Britt and Bill Carpenter taking the part of the bride and groom with L. A. French the minister. Lynn Carpenter took the part of the son in later life showing the influence his mother and her Bible had had in molding his habits and character. Mrs. Angela French acted as reader for the tableaux.

Appropriate music for the various scenes was provided by Mrs. Fred Schuepbach who sang "Our Yesterdays," "Sweet and Low," "Oh, Promise Me," and "My Mother's Bible," and by a mixed quartet composed of Mr. and Mrs. Angela French, Mrs. Fred Schuepbach and Ross Woolford, who sang "God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and "When They Ring Those Golden Bells." Mrs. Fred Rucker, Grange pianist, accompanied the special numbers.

The evening concluded with a special hour and refreshments served by L. F. Candaux, John W. Murphy, Albert H. Lee, John Norby and Basil Tramm.

Day of the refreshments was ice cream provided by the Jerome Co-operative Creamery.

"Ark" and Part of Family That Raised Storm of Controversy

Stern view of the "Ark of Juneau," homestead craft in which Paul Satko hopes to brave the most dangerous part of the Pacific ocean, with his wife and seven children. Its construction methods defy all rules of sea-carpentry.

Father Satko, with his wife and three of their seven children, talk to a visitor in port at Seattle. Mr. Satko is in the rear, framed in the wooden stanchions. Seattle authorities refused to allow the hazardous voyage to proceed; brought Satko into court and put his children under jurisdiction of juvenile officers. At the father's hearing the judge ruled that safety changes must be made in the Ark before it can resume its journey.

It's Strange Tale—This Homemade Ark That Defies All Rules and Family Hoping to Ride It to Alaska

(Editor's note: Most unusual "heart interest" story to come out of the Northwest in years is that of Paul Satko and the homemade "Ark" on which he hopes to take his family to Alaska. Halted by authorities because the ship is unsafe, Satko was ordered to have changes made in the craft before he can proceed. H. D. Fadden, who visits Twin Falls each year on behalf of the port of Seattle, wrote the following informative article exclusively for the Evening Times.)

By H. D. FADDEN
Traffic Analyst, Port of Seattle

SEATTLE, May 8 (Special)—The Satko family is going to Alaska to start life over again. They are venturing forth in this quest for happiness in a home-built vessel they christened "Ark," which in design and construction scuttles all theories of naval architecture.

And they expect to traverse the most dangerous waters of the Pacific ocean without mishap.

Among the wise mariners along Seattle's waterfront there are those who say the craft can make it and those who maintain that it can't be done. Paul Satko, the father; Molly, his wife, and Betty, Edward, David, Grace, Hazel, William and James, the children, for more than three years have worked and dreamed and set their hearts on their objective without a single doubt as to their ability to overcome all obstacles.

Freck Vessel
According to all standards of ship construction the vessel is a freak. It is 40 feet long, eight feet wide, stands 11 feet above water line and draws 42 inches of water on its round bottom. The hull is made of 1 1/2-inch lumber bolted on ribs of angle iron which were, laboriously shaped and turned by heat from an acetylene torch. The bows are shaped as no other bows have been shaped since long before the time of Columbus, and Papa Satko, who said he didn't know what a steam table was, turned and bent those planks to fit the unusual curves of the bow.

The combing above deck around the bows, which takes a terrific beating in heavy seas, is constructed of 1/2-inch lumber—spaced like lattice work. The guard rail on the after-deck is a fence constructed of two-inch by four-inch lumber to which is stapled light mesh chicken wire and this is to protect them from being washed overboard in a seaway.

Papa Satko weighs around 225 pounds. One can imagine what he would do to that raftering if the vessel took a sudden lurch and knocked him off balance against it.

He's a Welder
Mr. Satko is a welder. He told me he knew nothing about carpentry when he began building his boat. Said he had a brother in Pennsylvania who was a carpenter but he had not seen him for a number of years—and ship's carpentry is something entirely different from house construction. He and his oldest son drilled 6,004 holes through the steel ribs with a breast hand drill for bolting the side planking to the hull. The power plant is an old Buick engine.

There is no heat provided on board except that which comes from vision of happiness. He is not a fool though his methods, to our complacent and rut-bound lives, may seem foolhardy.

And when, in the past, has there ever been anything out of the ordinary undertaken, that people of the garden variety, in their conceit, have not derided and ridiculed?

No More Aboard
His ship is no more absurd than the Chinese junks that have crossed the Pacific, and is probably more seaworthy than the open rowboats the Norsemen used to cross the Atlantic long before Columbus. They put Mr. Satko in jail, halted his children before the juvenile court where some other man will decide whether or not this father shall take his children on this voyage, and the majesty of our laws will support the decision.

I looked at his family—his wife and seven children—huddled there on the foredeck of the vessel, drawn and haggard after two nights and three days on the unstable craft. Grace, next to the youngest of the girls, hunched her shoulders and rolled her arms in her thin sweater for the day was wet and chilly, and I thought of the sharp, cold, ocean winds, straight from the glaciers and snow fields along the Alaskan coast—cold that penetrates the bones of those who are clothed in furs.

And I wondered how the children would stand it in their thin clothes and with no heat aboard. There was Hazel, about 16 years old, with the soft brown eyes of a doe, and they had youth and romance lurking in their depths—what was there for her in that northern country, if they reached it? Little Betty, five or six years old pecked shyly at me from behind her mother's skirts and showed a dimple in each cheek when she smiled at me.

One of the smaller boys was in the chart house bent over beneath the window wolfing a chocolate some visitor had given him. Mother Satko seemed to be constantly counting her brood, watching and worrying lest they get into trouble.

The other boys, like grasshoppers, were bumping into each other as they jumped about in answer to the notions that flitted in and out of their minds.

And Papa Satko summed it all up in a few words. He was tired of the irregular employment, tired of the eternal rut and the struggle on the edge of the abyss. He didn't want relief, he wanted to work his way out to a measure of security and happiness and had found a certain joy and contentment in doing it this way.

His creed was: "Any man with determination can do anything he puts his mind to."

I wonder which of us are the fools?

FIGURES show that about one out of every five able-to-purchase new-car buyers really wants a Buick more than any other car.

Not all will buy one.

Too many of them will shake their heads and sigh, "Nope! A car that big and handsome must be out of my reach!"

You'll be smarter than that, we know.

You'll realize it doesn't cost a cent to find out how a Buick feels—and what its delivered prices are.

So you'll walk in to the nearest Buick dealer and say: "Let me have a good look at that car that's showing the rest what modern style is.

"Let me try out that big straight-eight engine that's electrically balanced after assembly to v4atchworks' smoothness.

CHAMBERLAIN CABINET TO FACE TEST ON CONFIDENCE

LABORITES WANT BALLOT CAST TO OUST WAR HEADS

By WALLACE CARROLL
LONDON, May 8 (U.P.)—The leadership of the labor party decided today to force a vote in the house of commons tonight testing the confidence of parliament in the cabinet of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain.

The action of the laborites was equivalent to demanding that commons vote "no confidence" in the cabinet after a two-day debate on the unsuccessful allied expeditionary campaign in Norway.

Laborites reversed their previous position in deciding to force a vote at the end of debate tonight. They had taken a tentative decision yesterday not to seek a vote.

The new decision sent the Conservative party whips into action to rally government supporters.

Hope for Vseet

It was generally believed that Chamberlain's government, despite bitter attacks on its conduct of the war, would be able to secure a majority, but some of the laborites were hopeful of an upset. A vote of non-confidence would almost certainly force Chamberlain's resignation.

The Conservative party has 374 out of a total of 615 members in the house of commons, but the cabinet also has Liberal National, National Labor and National supporters to make a total of 418 supporters.

On Way Out

The feeling strengthened that Chamberlain's cabinet, as now constituted, was on the way out. A general shake-up, possibly involving the retirement of older key men in the cabinet, was expected not today or this week but as soon as a deliberate decision could be made.

The fate not only of Chamberlain's ministry but that of Premier Paul Reynaud of France, the attitude of European neutrals and the future of British war policy hinged on the debate, which ends tonight.

Chamberlain fared badly in yesterday's debate. From the time that opposition members greeted him with cries of "you missed the bus," and "reign," when he started to speak, the view seemed to be that speeches defending the government had been weak and those attacking it strong.

American Tells of "Road Back" From Norway Trek

By ARTHUR MENKEN
 (Copyright by United Press)

A NORTHERN PORT, ENGLAND, May 8 (U.P.)—Passed by British censor—I took "the road back" from Norway with the allied expeditionary force.

It was a route that led to the Norwegian port of Narvik and thence through five battering German aerial bombardments at sea. The British destroyer Afridi and the French destroyer Bison were sunk but not a single member of the allied-Norwegian expeditionary force was wounded.

I was evacuated from Narvik in a British-French convoy. We were attacked by 50 German bombing planes. Five times the planes came over.

200 Bombs Dropped

At least 200 bombs rained into the water around us and the Afridi and Bison were destroyed.

I slept in a corridor on the deck of the ship alongside weary unshaven troops. There were both British troops and French Chasseurs Alpins aboard.

My head was banged to the deck when the first bomb was dropped by nine German planes which flew overhead. Then three planes singled us out for individual attack.

The planes dived like plummeting from the sky. I rushed to the deck to find the water boiling from the first explosion and the anti-aircraft guns creating an infernal din and filling the sky with gray puffs of their exploding shells.

Curtain of Bombs

Then six planes dropped a curtain of bombs alongside the ship without causing any damage. Large bombs exploded not more than 300 yards from my ship.

Two German planes roared down out of the sun, dropping another salvo of bombs. One of them hit the destroyer Bison which was part of our escort.

Despite the hit, the French gunners stuck by their anti-aircraft guns, firing shells and machine gun bullets at the planes. They downed one of the attacking planes.

ALLIES MAY QUIT BASE AT NARVIK

LONDON, May 8 (U.P.)—The possibility of allied evacuation of the Narvik area of Norway was mentioned in the house of commons today after Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain said the British forces there were exposed to grave risks due to lack of aerial power.

The Narvik area, where allied troops were understood to have surrounded about 3,500 Germans in Narvik town and on nearby hills, is the only part of the coast on which British forces are still operating.

Chamberlain said the government was keeping in mind the fact British forces at Narvik are exposed to grave risks until allied aerial supremacy is established.

"We also have to bear in mind possibility of Narvik being evacuated in the next week or two," Hugh Dalton, Laborite, said.

Chamberlain did not reply, but there were cries of "shame" from other members.

STALIN CHANGES HEADS OF ARMY

MOSCOW, May 8 (U.P.)—Communique, disclosed today that Marshal Klement Voroshilov, Russian war lord and close friend of Josef Stalin, had been replaced as war commissar and made one of six vice premiers of the Soviet union.

In Voroshilov's place, Semyon Timoshenko, commander of the Kiev special military area in southwest Russia, was given the key post in Russia's defense organization.

It was forecast that, with Voroshilov, who had been popularly regarded as heir to Stalin's power, out of active service, A. A. Zhdanov, leader in the key Leningrad district bordering Finland, and M. M. Kaganovich, commissar for the aviation industry, would become the runners-up.

Given similar promotions were Gregory Kulik, assistant war commissar, and Boris Shaposhnikov, chief of staff of the defense forces.

Possibly linked with previous communique was one issued by Tass today announcing a change of titles for all defense officers, a change which brings Russia's Red army into lines with those of "capitalist" countries.

"Capitalist" Titles

Marshal, army general, colonel general, lieutenant general and major general, for general commanders in the various army units, will now be used.

For higher admiral the titles will go down from admiral of the fleet, admiral, vice admiral and rear admiral.

Carrol Cuties Sulk At Strict Censoring

By PAUL HARRISON
NEA Service.

HOLLYWOOD—All over the lot. The Paramount people are sulking because the mean old Hays office has nixed a couple of funny sequences intended for "A Night at Earl Carroll's." The deletion of two laughs would be bad enough, since Carroll shows seldom have any to spare, but these situations also happened to be part of the picture plot.

Most important was the act in which a gang of cuties clad only in corsets went down into the audience and asked male patrons to lace 'em up. This is still a nightly feature of the Earl's cabaret program here and is a source of great fun, hilarious embarrassment and ribaldry among the tourists.

In the movie, the situation was to have served as a means for the capture of a couple of men by Brenda and Cobina, two homely oil heiresses.

The other censored act begins with a man billed as Professor Lambert playing a xylophone. His music always is half drowned by thunderous applause, and the delighted little man takes great bows and is stimulated to tremendous flourishes. What he doesn't know is that Miss Helene Leslie, a stripteaseer, has wandered on the stage and, standing behind him, is rhythmically taking off her clothes.

Dust Bowl Movie

Republic is completing a Dust Bowl picture, with tons of Fuller's earth and fine sand being whipped around by wind machines to the discomfort of everyone on the lot.

When members of a North Dakota community decide to leave their ruined farms, one faction wants to go to California. John Wayne tells 'em they're farmers, not migrant pickers, and that they should pioneer some reclaimed land in Oregon. Eventually, most of them do.

The studio fears this picture will be considered a quickie variant of "The Grapes of Wrath." Actually the story was owned before the Steinbeck book was published, but at that time nobody had the nerve to film it.

The Bing Crosby-Gloria Jean flicker, "If I Had My Way," was supposed to have been finished a month ago, so it was surprising to find the company working the other day on an expensive retake.

During the first filming, Miss Jean had one sole "Russian Nightingale" later while assembling the picture, Producer Joe Pasternak decided the number was a little precious, a shade out of character for the youngster whom he's cautiously grooming as the kid successor of Deanna Durbin. So the whole company was brought back to sit around attentively while Gloria sang "Little Gray Home in the West."

That was dandy except that Miss Jean's first make-up man wasn't available, and when the sequence was screened her makeup didn't match the rest of the picture. And now they're doing it again.

SHOSHONE

Miss Dolores Simmonds was brought home from Albion State Normal school last Thursday suffering from a slight attack of appendicitis. She returned to her studies Sunday.

Judge D. H. Sulphen granted a divorce to Carrie Goul at a brief court session last Saturday. Paul Haddock was attorney for the plaintiff. The defendant, Beryle Goul, was not present.

Fan Letters Ink Censors: You wouldn't guess that European fan letters to Hollywood stars would offend the military censors, but they do. Studio fan mail departments noticed it at once, and Deanna Durbin says she has about a hundred letters from which the entire message have been blacked out.

The reason, it's believed, is that such communications ask for money or transportation, disclosing more poverty and desperation, and lack of food and clothing, than the war-makers want Americans to know about.

Mother of Two Wants Divorce

SHOSHONE, May 8 (Special)—A divorce action was filed Saturday with the clerk of the district court by Lillian Crothers naming Orville Crothers as defendant. The complaint states that the couple was married at Shoshone Aug. 10, 1918, and two children, sons, 10 and 14, have been born to the union.

In her allegation Mrs. Crothers states that the defendant has treated her in a cruel and inhuman manner and that for two years and longer he has absented himself from Shoshone for two-thirds of the time.

The defendant is charged with only partly supporting his family and the plaintiff asks that the bonds of matrimony be dissolved; custody of two sons be awarded her and

Holdhusen Hurls as Cowboys Seek Win Over Ogden Reds

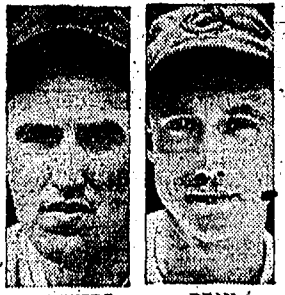

The PAYOFF

By HARRY GRAYSON
(NEA Sports Editor)

NEW YORK—It might have been true that pitchers were ahead of the hitters, but there was nothing strange about Alfred Lovell Dean beating the Yankees twice within eight days—giving the world champions only one run and 10 hits in 19 innings.

Chubby Dean is not a left-handed first baseman who became a pitcher. He is a left-handed pitcher who became a first baseman.

When Dean reported fresh from the Duke campus in 1939, Connie Mack used him at first base to take advantage of his hitting.

WALTERS DEAN

Young Dean—he is not yet 24—obviously was miscast, and it has taken him this long to find himself as a major league pitcher, which is not unusual.

And it is fortunate for both Dean and the Athletics that the collegian wasn't a capable enough first sacker to hang on there longer than he did. Buckley Walters of the Reds, greatest pitcher in baseball in 1939, wasted seven years as a mediocre third baseman.

It ordinarily takes a pitcher five years to find himself.

Jim Turner of the Reds spent 12 years in the minors before coming up to win 20 games for a Boston National league club the attack of which was almost totally ineffective.

Lou Fetz, who joined the Bees with Turner, and matched the Tennesseean's performance, had spent nine campaigns in the minors.

Six Years in Minors

Luke Hamlin, who copped 20 games for Brooklyn last season, worked nine years with the little fellows, before and after Detroit looked at him in '33 and '34.

Bob Klingler had been in the minors nine seasons when he escaped from the Cardinal chain in time to come within a game's eyelash of helping Pittsburgh to a pennant in '33.

Fritz Costume of the Red Sox and Bill Foss of the Bees served eight-year apprenticeships. Walter Hight of the Phillies and Jack Knott of the White Sox required seven years to make the big-league grade.

Until John McGraw and the Giants paged him, a brief inspection by Detroit was the brilliant Carl Hubbell had to show for six seasons in the smaller circuits. Tyrus Raymond Cobb told Hub to forget the screwball which made him the greatest pitcher in the business... said it would get him nowhere in a hurry and ruin his arm. But at 37 the Meeker Master is still very much among those present.

Curtis Davis and Morton Cooper of the Cardinals, Cliff Melton of the Giants and Thornton Lee of the White Sox each pitched a half dozen years down below.

Davis had to win 22 games for San Francisco one season and 20 another before he was drafted by the Phillies.

Pitcher Long Time

Harry Gumbert and Bill Lohman of the Giants, Mace Brown of the Pirates, Vernon Kennedy of the Browns, Steve Sundra of the Yankees, Jim Tobin of the Bees and Vito Tamulis of the Dodgers toiled in the minors for five years.

So Chubby Dean, who was so eager to play professional ball that he didn't complete his sophomore year at Duke, where his older brother, Dayton, is business manager of athletics, certainly is not overdue as a big-time pitcher.

This is especially so in view of the fact that his progress was retarded while he fooled around at first base, for a pitcher Chubby Dean has been since he was a kid in rompers.

He pitched for Mt. Airy, N. C., high, and North Carolina's Oak Ridge military academy. He pitched for the town team of Mt. Airy, N. C., his home town.

He pitched a no-hit, no-run game for the Duke frolic. He pitched semi-professional ball in the North Carolina Coastal Plain league.

Jack Coombs coached him as a pitcher.

Ira Thomas signed him as a pitcher.

Dean has the size, speed, curve, intelligence, ambition and disposition.

Had Connie Mack pitched him from the start, or saw that he pitched in the minors for a couple of years, he undoubtedly would have had one less pitching headache long before this.

Diamond Dust FROM THE Cowboy Campus

Big Ernie Endress, the gangling first baseman (he was on third last night) whom the Seattle Rainiers think is a fine prospect, will get his name engraved on the batting trophy that is up for competition among the Cowboy players.

Ernie topped all regulars on the home club during the first week of play with five hits in 19 trips to the plate for an average of .263.

He and Verne Reynolds are running a close race for the second week of play.

The Cowboys may be in the ruck right now—but at least we've got company.

New York Yankees, who also captured a championship of some sort last season, are tied for last spot in the American league—with their prospects getting no better fast.

However, there's one place where the Twin Falls team has it over the Yankees—we've got a chance to improve our present club. An American league ruling prohibits trading with the defending champions.

There is no such ruling in the Pioneer league—so all the local owners have to do is get down to business and find a little added talent. If the Cowboys are going to get in the race, it would appear that at least two new infielders, one or two outfielders and a pitcher or two would be needed to bolster things up.

Local fans may be feeling sad over the start of the 1940 Cowboy team—with six losses and two victories—but we'd like to recall that the 1939 club which won the championship won only one game out of the first seven—and took such sound beatings as 17-1, 20-2, 14-1, etc.

There's one thing about this year's outfit—it hasn't been beaten badly—yet.

Business Manager Hugh Pace is conducting a little campaign of his own out at the ball park—possibly with the hope of aiding the faltering attendance.

He's passing out a little ballot asking, "Do you favor Sunday baseball in the afternoon or evening during the cold weather?"

We haven't seen any of the signed ballots, but as long as this weather keeps up we can see no reason for anyone voting for night baseball when you can see your breath—while the afternoons are warm and sunny.

That "bolstering" attendance statement above may be a lot of hooey on our part because we haven't checked with Mr. Pace. If we recall correctly, outside of the opening day, when the attendance was about 800 less than last year, the turnstiles have clicked just a little better than they did in 1939 at this time of the year—although the 1939 weather was worse than the current edition of Mr. Weatherman.

However, compared with the attendance at the close of the season when the Cowboys were very much in the race for the crown, the stands look deserted these days.

Pete Hughes, the slugging Ogden outfielder, was just about as welcome as ever to Twin Falls fans.

Hurls Hitless Ball

The Twin Falls club was in the game for six innings—but after that the fans could clearly see that the home team wouldn't be a threat. Clayton Lambert, ace Ogden right-hander, allowed six bingles in the first four innings. From there on he pitched no-run, no-hit baseball and not a player reached first base.

Meanwhile, Pete Hughes, John Hodgson and Co. lashed out some of the hardest hitting ever seen in the local park. The extra-base clouting was not extraordinary, but the zip with which the Red batters hit the ball left the local infield flat-footed.

Leading Hitters

Leading hitters for the fray were Hodgson and McConnell of the Reds, each with three bingles. Vern Reynolds topped the local attack with a single and a double. Sandstrom and Marchi also got doubles for the home club, but the local team had too many men left stranded on the sacks to threaten the Reds.

Hodgson socked out a home-run with a runner on base for the only circuit clout of the contest.

The Reptile Age

Scientists say reptiles appeared on earth about 500,000,000 years ago, and that the last of their giant races became extinct about 100,000,000 years ago. A few warm-blooded animals appeared on earth during that time, but they were unimportant and were dominated by the reptilian giants.

ROOSEVELT WINS SMASHING VICTORY IN CALIFORNIA

GARNER BACKERS TRAIL 6-1 AFTER COASTAL BALLOT

SAN FRANCISCO, May 8 (UP)—President Roosevelt won a smashing victory and 44 delegates over three others in California's presidential primary election yesterday, virtually complete returns showed today.

Zach Lamart Cobb, co-manager of Vice-President John Nance Garner's campaign, conceded defeat. The Garner ticket, endorsed by the vice-president, ran second to Mr. Roosevelt's, but it was trailing 1 to 6 and his adherents felt their cause was hopeless.

In third place was a ticket pledged to Willis Allen, promoter of the "ham and eggs" pension plan, and a faction of left wing groups, headed by Lieut.-Gov. Ellis Patterson was fourth.

Republicans had only one, untruncated ticket on the ballot, and interest in their phase of the election was slight. The third term issue was predominant.

Wide Edge
Returns from 11,723 of the state's 13,510 precincts gave:

Roosevelt, 51,559.
Garner, 83,337.
Allen (ham and eggs), 39,010.
Patterson, 34,831.

In the same precincts the unopposed Republican slate polled 400,050 votes.

Gov. Culbert Olson, who heads the Roosevelt ticket, jubilantly telegraphed the President, "The progressive democracy of California by a vote of at least three or four to one demands your nomination for a third term."

He said the President's victory meant "certain nomination at Chicago and his reelection in November." As in other state primaries, President Roosevelt has not endorsed his candidacy in California.

It was the first primary test of New Deal strength in the far west. Pension Plan Denounced

The primary also was a denunciation of the "ham and eggs" pension proposal that Californians had defeated. That ticket was unpledged to a presidential candidate; Allen had hoped to bargain with the highest bidder when Patterson bolted the ticket led by Olson and supported by former Sen. William C. Cade and formed his own delegation, which was friendly toward Mr. Roosevelt.

Garner was the only candidate who had allowed the use of his name.

The Republican ticket, also worth 44 delegates, is nominally pledged to State Sen. Jerrold Seawell, who will release the delegates after election.

Has Unusual Job

First official assignment of his kind on record has been given Technical Sgt. T. R. Petterson, above, district chief clerk of army recruiting headquarters in Salt Lake City. As public relations agent, he will tour air corps, infantry and coast artillery garrisons in California, to "follow up" all men enlisted for army service through the Salt Lake office during the past year and now stationed at those posts. Recruits whose progress he will survey include dozens from Magic Valley.

ASSEMBLY WILL SEE TWO PLAYS

Two one-act plays will form the main part of the assembly program for Twin Falls junior high school students tomorrow afternoon, presented by students of speech classes under direction of Miss Winifred Fryer.

Between plays Marian Tolbert will play a piano solo and Virginia L. McBride and June McBride will give a tap dance number. Announcers will be June Newcomb and Oliver Balmer.

In the first play characters are Donald Barrington as a popular playwright, Bill Henderson as his friend, Virgil Bell as his wife, Bobbie Gene Douglas as Mrs. Simpkins, James Harris as a boy.

Second play tells of a friend who visits a college girl. Taking part are Dorothy Kregel, Lucille Jackson, Celestine Salmon, Marina Barnes, Kenneth White, Gilbert Field, Bill Iron and Clark Robertson.

Property manager for the plays will be James Harris.

NAMES in the NEWS

By United Press

Pope Plus, addressing 5,000 pilgrims at Vatican City, expressed fear today the European war might spread soon.

Sen. William H. King, D., Utah, said the United States has every right to keep its fleet in Pacific waters, and it's none of Japan's business where the fleet's stationed as long as it is not in Japanese waters.

Walter Johnson, the Washington Senators' ace pitcher for 21 years, won the Republican nomination to congress from the sixth congressional district in Maryland's primary Monday, complete returns showed today. In November, he will be pitted against a strong opponent, Rep. William D. Byron, the incumbent.

Walter H. Rhodes, termed a "jar eye product" by the judge who sentenced him to death for the dynamite murder of his wife, was hanged today at Iowa state prison.

Chancellor of Exchequer Sir John Simon said in London his government would not hesitate to adopt a compulsory lending plan to finance prosecution of the war if the present voluntary system of loans to the government is in danger of falling.

Paris reported that Pope Plus is in perfect agreement with President Roosevelt to "share supreme peace intervention" if such becomes necessary to keep Italy out of the war and the conflict from spreading.

William Saroyan, author-playwright, said he considered his refusal of a $1,000 Pulitzer prize for his play, "The Time of Your Life," a closed incident, saying he turned down the award because he was opposed in principle to awards in the arts.

Justice department officials declined today to be drawn into further controversy with Sen. George W. Norris over his criticism of the activities of the federal bureau of investigation and its director, J. Edgar Hoover.

Three Escape Hurt As Car Hits Truck
BURLEY, May 8 (Special)—Floyd Osterhout and his two companions narrowly escaped serious injury Saturday evening when the car driven by Osterhout sideswiped an Orange truck line truck one mile east of Unity. The truck was not damaged, but the car, an old model, was completely wrecked. According to Deputy Sheriff George Bray, a reckless or drunken driving charge will be filed against Osterhout.

It has been estimated that approximately one-half of the fishermen of the world are Japanese.

STUDENTS OFFER ORIGINAL DRAMA

An original play by Gloria Wilson, "Tasers Taught," was presented yesterday by speech students of Twin Falls junior high school for a social living class of Miss Anne Williams. Speech instructor is Miss Winifred Fryer.

Announcing the play was Flora Campbell, and Carl Harrison and Dick Waite acted as curtains. Taking part in the play were Gloria Wilson, Gladys Hyde, Mary Ann Duerig, Norma Thompson, Beverly Olson, Alice Gee, Shirley Hayes, Jewelle Johansen and Velda Schamp. Between acts Bob Jones and Shiril Knight told stories.

Another original play will be given Thursday for another class.

Debates are being staged in another speech class. Taking part yesterday were Mary Ellen Dopita and Vivian Black, affirmative, and Betty Lu Bailey and Colleen Pennock, negative. Chairman was Don Baisch, Leonard Norris, timekeeper, George Glick, and judges, Helen Tinker, Don Freeman and Joan LeClair.

Chairman Explains Blue Card System to Curb Solicitation

Members of the Chamber of Commerce "blue card" committee, headed by Voy Hudson as chairman, this afternoon called on local merchants "not to give to solicitors who do not carry the blue card."

The plea was made in a letter mailed to each of the scores of merchants in Twin Falls. Assisting in the task were other members of the committee, Arthur Bockwitz and W. A. Van Engelen.

Many Solicitations
In the letter it was pointed out that each merchant is "probably solicited 200 times a year, which with an average take of $2, amounts to considerable money." It continued: "The Twin Falls Chamber of Commerce would like to stop most of this, and can, if you will be governed by just one rule: Do not give to solicitors who do not carry the blue card."

Idea of the "blue card" system is to protect the merchants from the flood of solicitations and also to protect other local residents from transient "hawkers" whose goods are often inferior and never carry the guarantee of an established place of business.

Special Committees
Here is how the plan operates, as explained in the letters sent out today:
1—All solicitations must first be passed on by special committees selected from members of the Chamber of Commerce. Care will be exercised in selecting secret committees which will be in a position to judge each type of solicitation entirely on its merit.

2—If the committee approves the solicitation, they will be given a "blue card" which will be an indication to members that they may contribute to it if they so wish. The issuing of a blue card does not carry the recommendation that the individual should subscribe—only that the purpose is legitimate.
3—If the committee does not approve the solicitation no blue card will be given.
Refer to C. of C.
4—When you are asked for donations or contributions, and the solicitor has no blue card, show him your pledge and refer him to the Chamber of Commerce.
5—Remember that your fullest cooperation is necessary. Display your card in a prominent place where it can be easily seen.
Let's all help ourselves and each other to eliminate the unworthy, unreasonable, and unfair solicitations which we are called upon to make," Mr. Hudson said as the letters were mailed.

The plesiousaur, a reptile of prehistoric days, swam by means of four great paddle-like limbs, which it used as oars in rowing itself along.

TOWNSEND UNITS PLAN OPEN MEET

A Townsend mass meeting will be held in Twin Falls Sunday, May 19 at 2:30 p. m. at the I.O.O.F. hall, it was announced here today by club officials.

Plans for the public session, which will feature a well known speaker, were made last night as members of Townsend club No. 1 and 4 met.

Members of club No. 1 gathered at the city hall and heard Thomas D. McDougall, Pocatello, discuss the federal and state low-cost housing set-ups. Members of club No. 4 met at the probate court rooms and 30 new members were accepted into the organization.

Members of club No. 1 were informed that a benefit card party will be held at the Idaho Power company auditorium next Tuesday night.

A total of $808,370,000 in state gasoline tax receipts was collected during 1939.

Firemen Rush to Rupert Shop for 2nd Run in Week

RUPERT, May 8 (Special)—For the second time in a week the Rupert fire department was called to the Central meat market, owned and operated by Arthur Cox.

At 1:30 p. m. Saturday the fire alarm summoned the city firemen to extinguish a blaze in a pile of building material at the rear of the building. This had become ignited by sparks from a trash fire in the alley at the rear of the building. The blaze was put out before any damage was done to the building which, with its contents, was damaged by fire the previous Saturday.

Sizzle!

BURLEY, May 8 (Special)—The time has come when even the little birds can't build nests undisturbed—at least they can't in the neon sign at the Covey Gas station here.

Burley fire department was called out at 8:20 Sunday evening when birds' nests roosting in the neon sign began to roast. The only damage reported by the firemen was to the birds' nests.

GROUP APPROVES 1937 SUGAR ACT

WASHINGTON, May 8 (UP)—The house agriculture committee late yesterday approved the Cummings resolution continuing the 1937 sugar act another year.

Chairman Marvin Jones said the vote was "overwhelming." The resolution does not provide for a limitation on importations of refined sugar from domestic offshore areas. A motion to include such a limitation failed by a 13 to 10 vote, Jones said.

7 Couples Obtain Licenses to Wed

BURLEY, May 8 (Special)—It was a busy week-end for members of the Cassia county recorder's force as far as the issuing of marriage licenses is concerned, because seven couples sought licenses to marry.

On May 1, Victor Owen Maggart, 21, Soda Springs, and Mary M. Erwin, 18, Pocatello, secured a license, and on May 2 D. Dixon Anderson, 21, Rupert, and Joyce Allen, 19, Burley, secured their license.

Five marriage licenses were issued on Saturday, May 4, to Charles W. Eberington, 21, Hoyburn, and Verda Alice Okelberry, 20, Burley; Nolan Dee Jeffs, 23, Burley; and Eula Ruth Davis, 19, Oswego, Ore.; Darrell E.
