Germans Assert Million Allied Troops Have Been Cut off in Belgian Area

By JOSEPH W. GRIGG, Jr. BERLIN, May 21 (U.P.)—Adolf Hitler's blitzkrieg armies were reported officially today to have smashed the main French army in the north, captured its commander and knifed their way 60 miles to the English channel in a drive to cut off perhaps 1,000,000 allied troops in Flanders.

Gen. Henri Giraud, the commander of France's 9th army defending the "bulge" front, and his staff were taken prisoner by the lightning thrusts of Nazi mechanized units which fought their way into Amiens, Arras and Abbeville, according to the high command's communique.

Behind the mechanized spearheads, the German infantry was reported rolling into northern France to consolidate and hold the territory in which tanks, armored cars, motorcycle units and airplane parachute troops had seized strategic centers.

Ace Reporter Sees Strange War at Front

By RALPH HEINZEN. FRENCH ARMY GENERAL HEADQUARTERS, May 21 (U.P.)—Out at the front today the allies and Germans are fighting the strangest war ever fought.

It is a war between thousands of little forts, each of them a couple of 10 or 15 feet high, with steep fields, forests, roads and village streets with fire.

There are no witnesses but the men engaged, but I have seen something before correspondents were called back to headquarters, and heard more of the way this war is being fought.

The allied tanks are now in action, smashing into German positions with their guns blazing, firing their ammunition, and racing back to take on oil and more ammunition.

There are two or three men in most of the tanks on the allied side. They come back blackened and sweating.

Late FLASHES. BERLIN, May 21 (U.P.)—British troops which were sent to Belgium at the start of Germany's blitzkrieg are attempting to reach England and are under attack by the German air force, the official German news agency D. N. B. said today.

Regional Chamber Okehs Buhl's U. S. 30 Proposal

BOISE, May 21 (Special)—Southern Idaho, Inc., today had designated the highway program as recommended by Buhl, after one of the provisions had been removed, as the "number one" project of the organization.

Action in designating the Buhl project as "number one" was taken at a session here last night. The project calls for construction of an underpass at Cedar crossing, secure of several fatal car-train mishaps, and also for improvement of grades and curves on Highway 30 extending west to a point approximately nine miles from here.

Provision Deleted. The project received unanimous support of the regional Chamber of Commerce after deletion of a provision which called for realignment of the highway across the desert from a point nine miles northwest of here to Glennis Ferry, passing up Hagerman valley.

Prior to the time this provision was removed, towns on both the north and south sides of the Snake river appeared to be about evenly divided on the subject. With the provision removed, however, the BOISE, May 21 (U.P.)—An alleged "blitzkrieg" in slaughter house gulch yesterday sent E. Hoke Smith to the Ada county jail to await hearing on charges of malicious destruction of property.

BLITZKRIEG

It all happened, Sheriff Don Hendrick reported, when eight cows owned by Arney Van Den, slaughter house gulch farmer, strayed across the road and into a field owned by Jackson Owenby.

When Smith, a laborer employed by Owenby, saw the cattle enter the field, he picked up a rifle and started firing, Hendrick said. When the smoke cleared six cows were dead and two limped away "crippled."

Smith was held in lieu of $500 bond.

Commander Captured. The French ninth army, operating on the Meuse river front between Sedan and Namur, the main fighting front in northern France, has been beaten and is in disintegration and its commander, Gen. Henri Giraud, and his staff have been taken prisoner.

Special Helms. The crews wear the special leather helmets padded front and back to protect their heads which hang against the steel tank walls as the tanks lumber across ditches.

As the tank goes into battle its apertures are shut and clamped tight, leaving only peep holes for the driver and gunner to look through.

The gunner in the turret has a radio with ear phones through which to receive orders. He guides the driver by nudges of his toes.

UTAH CONFESSION SOLVES ROBBERY

Confession by one of three youthful transients at Ogden, Utah, had solved today the armed holdup of a Hagerman garage owner April 25 near the bottom of the Salmon river grade in Twin Falls county.

Victim of the holdup was Wynn Condit, about 60, Hagerman garage man and a special deputy sheriff of Gooding county. The robber trio took gasoline from Condit's auto and stole his watch and fountain pen.

Youth Admits Holdup. Solution of the crime came today in word to Sheriff L. W. (Doc) Hawkins from John Farr Larson, chief probation officer at Ogden.

One Sentenced. Harold Kay, one of the three prisoners at Ogden, has been sentenced to a 20-year maximum term in the Utah state prison on a felony charge; Harold Rives, the third youth, was turned over to the federal G-men on charge of auto theft.

Check-up of pawn shops here today, however, revealed no trace of the stolen watch.

REYNAUD BLAMES "ARMY FAULTS" FOR GERMAN GAINS

FRENCH SENATE HEARS REASONS FOR NAZI MOVE

PARIS, May 21 (UP)—Premier Paul Reynaud admitted to the French senate today German armies had broken into France because "unbelievable faults were committed" in the French high command and he promised punishment of those responsible.

Admitting German forces today occupied Amiens and Arras, Reynaud said the Germans got into France across a Meuse river bridge which had not been destroyed when apparently orders for its destruction had been given.

"The fatherland is endangered," he said. "It is my duty to tell the senate the truth."

Regarded as an exceptionally frank statement, Reynaud used the term "disaster" in describing the German breakthrough. He admitted French strategy had been based on a misconception—that the river Meuse was an obstacle that could not be crossed.

Smashing Ahead

But it was, he said, and German motorized divisions invaded France on a front 65 miles across. Now, he said, they were smashing in the direction of Paris and the channel ports and were threatening to cut off the armies in northern France from their allies in Belgium.

For the most part the senate listened to Reynaud in cold silence although it did rise and cheer when he paid tribute to the work of the British royal air force.

He admitted that the army along the river Meuse had been composed of "lesser trained divisions." The river front, he said, was difficult to defend and it lacked machine-gun flanking fire.

"There is too much intellectual disorder," Reynaud said.

"We must think of new methods of war. Despite the surprises of the last war we succeeded in winning. It will be the same this time if everyone does his work."

Reynaud said that Gen. Maxime Weygand, allied generalissimo, Marshal Henri Philippe Pétain and himself were in entire agreement on a war plan.

Work With Britain

"In starting our effort for public salvation we will not stand for any weakening," he said. "The death penalty is too meager for traitors. Let us rise to the same height as the misfortune of the country."

Reynaud said that France and Britain were working together closely.

"The two great peoples of two great empires are closely united," he said. "They cannot be beaten. They will conquer."

"Yet, if tomorrow, someone came to me saying a miracle is needed to save France, I would believe that a miracle would come because I believe in France."

"The truth may save us. Let us trust in our army leaders and soldiers. I want to express gratitude to the admirable royal air force for its splendid work."

The special administrator was empowered to handle all details of the business on behalf of the executor or permanent administrator to be named later.

NAZIS MARCH TO ENGLISH CHANNEL

Belgium in pursuit of the retreating and British army engaged in battle with the enemy east of Ghent and farther southwards on the Scheldt river.

All French counter-attacks were repulsed, the high command said, and many French tanks were destroyed, especially in the area of Rethel.

The battle in which the German mechanized forces—striking with great swiftness and at widely separated points—broke through the channel was described by the high command as "the greatest attack operation of all times."

The communique said "the first operative results" had been the defeat of the French ninth army and the arrival of German motorized armies on the channel coast.

"Fully Established"

The Germans said that sufficient German infantry already had been brought up to ensure in full the rear communications of the Germans who had reached the coast "and who now were fully established."

Authorized quarters said the drive through the channel coast means the entire allied army in Belgium, estimated at 1,000,000 men, now has been cut off from communication with the main allied armies in northern France.

It was stated authoritatively the column, composed of 60,000 troops, had crashed through the allied defenses at Peronne, just below the French-Belgium border about 60 miles north of Paris, and had pushed westward beyond Amiens.

The allies were said to have fallen back to position near Abbeville, on the coast at the mouth of the Somme river. The allied retreat was claimed by the Germans to have been "at full speed."

Acc Reporter Sees Strange War at Front

cause talk is impossible in this dim. After a few hours in the dim and heat of a tank the men are worn out. Yet the men in this battle, some of them, have been fighting for days from sunrise to sundown.

Not infrequently they faint away inside the steel walls.

Crews Stunned

Frequently the crews are stunned when a direct hit from some close range gun rings their tank like a bell. Their danger is that a machine gun or anti-tank shell will pierce the sides. In that case, they usually die, because gas fumes are ignited.

With the last troops in Cambrai when the Germans were headed in its direction from the Sambre river, before we were recalled, I saw an average sized city evacuated of all civilians within six hours despite the destruction of its one railroad by dive bombers.

Cambrai is typical of hundreds of towns and villages in the fighting zone, after a 20 year respite from the World war, and of painful rebuilding.

Planes Fly Above

I went as far as I could toward the approaching German tank columns. I was not permitted to go to the front. But I could tell where operations were ahead by the missing of allied and German planes. They clustered above the battle and above the approaching columns.

Returned allied aviators reported that German tank and armored car columns were filling every road through the Ardennes forest and down the Meuse and Sambre river valleys.

The German columns made 30 miles an hour when there was no opposition, the aviators said.

Allied bombing planes dived one after another, like hawks after their prey, bombing roads and bridges to halt the tanks. But each time a bomb tore a great funnel shaped hole in a road, wiping out four or five tanks, the others would simply detour around the obstacle.

LANDON TO LUNCH WITH FDR AS COALITION TALK REVIVES

REPORT ASSERTS KNOX IS OFFERED NAVY CHIEF POST

By LYLE C. WILSON
WASHINGTON, May 21 (AP)—President Roosevelt today personally renewed his invitation to his 1936 opponent, Alf M. Landon, to confer with him tomorrow at the White House and announced that Landon had accepted.

White House Secretary Stephen T. Early said earlier cancellation of the engagement was the result of a mixup due to negotiations through intermediaries. He said Mr. Roosevelt cut through the confusion this morning with a long distance telephone call to Landon at Chicago.

It was decided then that the 1936 Republican standard bearer would lunch tomorrow at the White House, as had been planned last week.

The announcement of the new engagement came a few hours after Brig. Gen. Edwin M. Watson, another White House secretary, had said the luncheon had been called off.

Early said, however, that Mr. Roosevelt merely had wanted to postpone the luncheon engagement for one day rather than to cancel it entirely.

Coalition Cabinet?
The confusion followed reports Mr. Roosevelt is considering the possibility of forming a coalition cabinet, perhaps by naming Col. Frank Knox as secretary of navy, replacing Secretary Charles Edison who is resigning to run for governor of New Jersey.

Responsible Republican leaders—Landon among them—and some Democrats oppose a coalition cabinet, behind Mr. Roosevelt.

But the mere discussion of such a move aroused political comment based largely on statements of persons associated with Mr. Roosevelt that an emergency might—or must—bring about his renomination.

With the Democratic national convention fixed for two months from tomorrow, Mr. Roosevelt has said nothing publicly of his political intentions. Some of his associates are disappointed by his silence. Others are jubilant in belief renomination now cannot be avoided.

The third term boom sounds louder daily as the European crisis develops. Close to 600 delegates in the Democratic national convention already are more or less pledged to Mr. Roosevelt. Only 548 delegate votes is necessary to nominate.

Needs Support
Substantial coalition would depend primarily on the support of such men as former President Herbert C. Hoover, Alf M. Landon, the 1936 presidential nominee, and Col. Frank Knox, publisher of the Chicago Daily News who was on the ticket with Landon. The United Press was informed Knox was offered the navy secretaryship last week during a conference with Mr. Roosevelt. Knox would not comment on that report. The navy post shortly is to be vacant when Secretary Charles Edison resigns to run for governor of New Jersey.

Landon has announced his opposition to a coalition cabinet.

Republicans contend a coalition move would jeopardize the two-party system, that national emergency requiring a coalition does not exist and, finally, that for Republican leaders to join Mr. Roosevelt's cabinet would in practice tend to establish his political hold on the country and, possibly, increase third term chances, large as those chances now are.

Most of the Republican presidential candidates, likewise, object to coalition with the New Deal.

Cremation of Old Hats Opens Straw Week

Old chapeaux went up in smoke—by way of an incinerator mounted on a truck—as Twin Falls city officials and merchants formally inaugurated 1940 straw hat week Monday afternoon. Here's the scene, as Howard Wilson, committee chairman for the merchants' bureau, stuffed the old felts and straws into the incinerator. Other features are theater tickets for children under 12 straw hats at the Idaho and Orpheum theaters, and award of brand new straws to Cowboy baseball players and spectators at tonight's game against Idaho Falls. MILITARY RATING ASKED ON U. S. 93

By resolution, members of the city council today had asked the war department to designate that portion of U. S. highway 93 between Twin Falls and Missoula, Mont., as a part of military highway No. 1, north and south.

At the present time, it was pointed out in the resolution, the highway from Las Vegas, Nev., to Twin Falls and from Missoula, Mont., to the Canadian border is thus designated, but the portion between here and the Montana city has never been designated.

Permits Improvement
Assigning the road as a military route will enable government funds to be spent for its improvement, at no cost to the state.

Mayor Joe Koehler, who introduced the resolution, also urged all service clubs as well as the Junior and Senior Chambers of Commerce to take like action. Copies of the resolution, as adopted by the city, will be forwarded to Idaho's representatives in congress and also to other officials in Washington as well as heads of the war department.

Fire Apparatus
Councilman Carl E. Ritchey, head of the fire department, issued an invitation for local dealers in fire apparatus to be present at next Monday's session of the council at which time purchase of such equipment will be further discussed.

City Attorney Harry Benoit was instructed to prepare a notice of hearing for a move which would transfer to the business district that portion of the second residential district from Third street west to Five Points west on the truck line and Washington and from Five Points west up Washington to the city limits on the west side of the street.

DANGER

YESTERDAY Larry's car is found abandoned but undamaged. He talks to Colonel Barnes, gets the details of the smuggling operations. Larry, driving around town, is almost run down by a speeding car, when he cracks a stop sign. Only the expert driving of the other motorist averts an accident. Larry discovers the driver is a girl, Monnie Little, daughter of Col. Taylor Miles. And was on the Miles ranch that Hugh was killed!

CHAPTER III

IT took Larry half an hour to buy a pair of cowboy work boots, two pairs of "levis," a few blue shirts and a $25 sombrero. When he checked out of his hotel, he had lost all resemblance to the Larry Collins, who worked for Steve Clark, the Larry Collins whose by-line was familiar to a hundred thousand readers. He was a cowhand—His clothes looked too new, but a few minutes scuffling along the highway, and crawling under the car would take care of that.

He remembered to buy Texas license plates for his car. Not many cowhands come from New York.

Larry pointed his car northward, picked up his highway marker and drove steadily. The picture of the girl, furiously angry, would not be dispelled. What a temper! Monnie! Monnie! Maria Christina. Must be part Spanish. That accounted for some of the temper. And the black hair and flashing eyes.

BRUCE CATTON IN WASHINGTON

By BRUCE CATTON
 Evening Times Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON, May 21—Approximately 35,000 refugees from Hitler's Germany will be sent to the United States, according to the National Refugee Service, Inc. There are about 150,000 German refugees in Holland and nearly 20,000 in Belgium.

About half of the entire number are penniless. A large number of these are in refugee centers or camps. A few have jobs, the rest are either living on their own savings or are being supported by relief funds.

BELIEVES INVASION AUGURS PEACE

Frederick Libby, veteran head of the National Council for the Prevention of War, must come close to being the only undiscouraged pacifist in the country.

He believes the invasion of Holland and Belgium may actually give new impetus to the move to restore world peace.

"The invasion of Holland and Belgium momentarily makes our job more difficult, of course," he says. "But in the long run it is really harder on our militarists.

"You see, it proves that there is absolutely nothing we can do in a military way to save Great Britain."

Mr. Libby figures that out like this:

America can't give Britain immediate help with airplanes—because, as recent testimony before congressional committees by high army officers indicates, U. S. plane production far behind schedule and the vast numbers of airplanes the British need just aren't available.

America can't extend naval help, because Britain doesn't need it. It can't help with its army because (a) it hasn't got the men available, and (b) the British aren't short of manpower. So, says Mr. Libby:

"While we in the peace movement certainly aren't in a position to crow

250,000,000 Germans

For the third time in 70 years, the German legions tramp through Sedan.

The first time, Bismarck came in person to dictate terms of surrender to Napoleon III.

The second time, the German wave swept across it in 1914, and retreated from it in 1918 just before armistice halted the war and advancing Americans graciously stepped aside and gave French troops the honor of reoccupying the torn town.

Now comes the third wave, and again the German columns surge onward through Sedan and into France.

During the preliminaries to the present war, Hitler managed to give the impression that he wanted no more trouble with France.

True, he had written in "Mein Kampf" of "a decisive, active settlement with France," and "our eternal struggle with France." But he seemed to imply that he would forego that if France would stand idly by and see all Europe west of the Rhine subjugated to the German yoke. Otherwise, settlement with France by the method of 1870 and 1914.

His policies, Hitler wrote, would be acknowledged correct if, within a century, today's 80,000,000 Germans have become 250,000,000 Germans on the continent of Europe.

COLONEL TAYLOR MILES was mad. He stomped up and down the porch of the ranchhouse, punctuated every step with a few choice words that are found neither in dictionary nor Bible. As a "custer" the Colonel was without equal. With the Colonel, swearing was an art.

Right now the Colonel was displaying his ability, with undiminished fervor, for the benefit of two sheepish-looking cowhands, who stood a few paces away from the porch.

"And you call yourselves cowhands!" the Colonel was shouting. "Rodeo cowboys! You may know how to rope, but by the seven-foot horns of old Alamo, that's no excuse for breaking the necks of half my calves and rope-burning most of my cows."

"You've got your money—Get your stuff and get out! One of the boys will take you to town. Get out of my sight, you—you—" He stormed off down to the corral to see how his foreman, Pete Barnes, was going to get along with two less hands.

It was there that Larry found the Colonel an hour later. Larry had read the sign when he met the Hayhook truck, heading for town, a few miles from the ranch. Three cowhands, warbans and a saddle. There'd be at least one job open on the Miles' place, Larry was sure.

The Colonel was cussing. Larry heard him a hundred yards away, telling Pete Barnes in no uncertain terms how the cowpunchin' business had gone to the devil, along with the profits. The Colonel warned to his subject, and was branching off into politics, when Larry interrupted.

"Colonel Miles? . . . I'm looking for a job. Top cowhand."

"Can you rope?" the Colonel roared back at him.

"Nope. At least, not very well." Larry knew he had to tell the truth. It had been years since he'd ever been on a horse.

"You're hired. Thirty and keep. Pete, here, will tell you anything you need to know. . . . That your car?"

Larry nodded.

"Paid for?"

"Yes."

"You must be all right. Where you from?"

"El Paso, and points west."

A cloud of dust swirled along

Monnie's laugh tinkled beyond a haze of dust and moving landscape. . . . Larry's hand was jerked loose, he was up in the air . . .

He highway, in the wake of a speeding car.

"Monnie's home early," the Colonel grunted at Pete. Then to Larry: "Here comes my daughter. Keep away from her if you want to keep your job." He walked up to meet her.

FROM the porch, Monnie Miles watched Larry drive his car into the old carriage shed.

"So you hired that for a cowhand, Dad?" Scorn filled her voice. "He's no more cowhand than the houseboy."

"You met this fellow already?" the Colonel demanded. "Guess I will fire him, if he's come chasing out here after you."

"Met him—" Monnie's anger flared—"Met him?—He almost wrecked me this morning. Drove through a stop sign, right in front of me—Almost crashed a filling station trying to keep from killing him—Met him? I'd like to get my hands on him—"

"You didn't wreck anything, did you?"

"Luckyly, no. Dad. Can't afford to have any accidents. After that wreck on Dead Man's curve—if I had a smash-up now, people might get to wondering— But Dad, you're not going to keep that fellow around, are you?"

"Have to, for a while, Honey. I already told him he's no good. I'll run him off. Go along, now. Change your clothes and we'll drive out to the upper camp."

She followed him out here. Monnie thought to herself, as she pulled on her boots. "I'll fix that guy—I'll fix him."

MONNIE was sitting on the top rail of the corral fence when Pete Barnes and Larry came from the saddle house.

"Some of the boys have their own stuff," Pete was saying, "but we keep a few saddles around for fellows like you. You can use mine. It's over on that black in the corner"—he nodded toward a black horse tied to a corner

LIBBY BELIEVES BRITISH EMPIRE WON'T BE SCUTTLED

The common objection to that of course—from the allied standpoint—is that any peace which Germany would consent to now could only be a crushing defeat for Great Britain, probably involving the loss of the empire itself. Mr. Libby begs to differ.

"I don't see that it's to Germany's interest to break up the British empire," he says. "What Germany really wants is living room in eastern Europe. And it isn't the British empire which stands in her way there."

U. S. MERCHANT MARINE STANDING DISLOCATIONS

So far the U. S. merchant marine has withstood the war-created dislocation of trade routes pretty well. Barred from northern European waters by the neutrality law, some 60 U. S. flag vessels have had to find new routes. They have been diverted to South American, far eastern and around-the-world runs, for the most part, and in general are making money.

Extension of the war to the Mediterranean world, of course, cause further dislocations.

WAR 2,000 YEARS BEFORE BLITZKRIEG WITH ALEXANDER

This is a good time to read the life of a conqueror who had delusions of power even as conquerors have today. That life is "Alexander the Great," by Lewis V. Cummings (Houghton, Mifflin; $3.75). You have not read your ancient history until you've marched and attacked and captured and starved with Alexander and his incredible army in the pages of this remarkable book. There was a time when the world practically bowed at Alexander's feet but in the end this military zealot was forced to give up. How is told in the following excerpt describing his tragic retreat from the ill-fated campaign in India.

He moved out of Patala in the scorching heat of August, in the year 325 B. C. . . . Alexander himself, distressed by thirst and heat was marching on foot at the head of the army that the soldiers might, as they usually do in a case of this kind, hear up more cheerfully under hardship when they saw their misery shared.

At last even the guides were lost, the track they knew had become obliterated in the wind-blown sand. The army was now nearly frantic with fear of death and disaster. Nearly half the men were dead, more were dying at the rate of hundreds each day, most of pack and riding animals were worn out or dead and eaten, the women and children nearly demoralized.

For two hundred miles the wake of what was now little better than a mob of hungry and thirst-stricken scarecrows was littered by the bodies of thousands of once stalwart warriors, the wreckage of wagons and chariots loaded with sick and wounded, now dead, and the fabulous loot of half a conquered world.

Hardened though Alexander was, he could no longer bear to witness the plight into which his blind egotism and colossal vanity had led this once proud and picked division of the army, he rode away in a company with several friends. At last the horses of the escort gave out, and the king went on with only five boon companions. At last these reached the seacoast.

So far the record has been one of complete success. Thirty millions of conquered people have passed beneath the German yoke. They have become helots, condemned to a perpetually inferior place by a racial order that considers itself superior.

Conquered Poles have been uprooted and sent to Germany for virtual forced labor, while their fruitful farms are awarded to Wurtembergers plucked with equal ruthlessness from their ancestral homes and sent to consolidate the Polish conquest.

Thus the picture of a Germanized Europe becomes clearer day by day. A central-European German Reich, inhabited by 250,000,000 Germans of a self-designated "superior" race. A cluster of conquered provinces around its edge, inhabited by "inferior" races, who would be ruled politically and economically from Berlin, allowed some fragments of their own culture, perhaps, but never admitted as equals of Germans, economically, politically, or socially.

Such a Europe, once established, could not fail to influence the rest of the world at every point of contact. It would be as though a vast new planet should suddenly be tossed into the midst of the solar system. Its new gravitational pull would affect the course of every body in the system, setting up new influences, paths and orbits. That is why the United States cannot be indifferent to the fate of Europe.

WAR NEWS — HOT OFF THE GRIDDLE!

Pot Shots soft-footed over to the telegraph editor's desk and fished an interesting item from United Press.

The telegraph editor is probably hunting around for this item right now but Pot Shots, as ever, is looking out for the interests of his own constituents. We figured you folks have a right to scan such matters first.

Here's what the United Press notation said:

Censors in Europe are getting more careful about revealing secrets that might aid the other side. A United Press dispatch received from Paris Sunday said:

PARIS, May 19 (U.P.—End Item.)

WELL, MODERN SCIENCE IS EVER PROGRESSING!

Estimable Fellow:

By jove, you're so keen at pointing out the foibles of the world that I'm enclosing a clipping from the proud morning newspaper up at Boise.

It's pretty good, eh what old chap? The title of Mrs. Unemployed American Mother was bestowed on Mrs. Hugh Easley of St. Louis, mother of eight children by the National Women's Conference on Unemployment in Washington.

I ask you, Old Bean, how could Mrs. Easley have eight children by the National Women's Conference on etc.?

Ivory Towers as Watch Towers

The accusation has frequently been made that universities are too much devoted to a purely academic scholarship, and that professors and students withdraw into an ivory tower remote from the world of blood and toil, there to contemplate abstractions and split scholastic hairs.

The average college campus is fairly roomy, and there seems no good reason why it does not offer space for both an ivory tower and a watch tower as well. To build the latter, President Dykstra of the University of Wisconsin is calling a conference in mid-May at Indiana university to see whether colleges may not cooperate more actively with citizens' organizations in their own vicinities.

It seems a good idea. There is no reason why the scholarly achievements of colleges should not be placed at the disposal of any who want to use them, including practical politicians and all who work for social betterment. If ivory towers are not themselves suitable for watch towers of democracy, there is no reason why the watch towers can't be built right along side.

 Talking of spring fever, as a number of your contribs seem to be doing, my spring fever wish is like this: Wish I had nerve enough to be a hobo instead of a respectable luminary of our local civilization. HISTORY Of Twin Falls City & County

As Gleaned from Files of The Times

15 YEARS AGO

MAY 21, 1925

Mrs. Fred W. Meach entertained with an enjoyable neighborhood party Wednesday afternoon complimentary to Mrs. Wise Evans, who is leaving soon for a visit in Los Angeles; Mrs. H. C. McGuire, who goes to Massachusetts to spend the summer, and Mrs. Carl Brown, who is going to Missouri for a month's visit.

Joseph H. Seaver, Jr. returned today from the Colorado school of mines at Golden.

J. R. Diebolt and family left Twin Falls today for the Hollister ranch.

MAY 21, 1913

Over 300 trees have been planted along the streets of Amsterdam during the past few weeks. Amsterdam has taken up the work of beautifying its streets at about one year of age. Two rows have been set out from the railroad east about one half and on the cross and side streets, all of which will be irrigated from the Salmon river canal system. D. D. Kunkel of the Kunkel Realty company secured the contract for the work, which he did himself, assisted by Ed Harmsen.

School trustees of the Amsterdam district are making preparations to build a $4,000 school house this summer. Work will begin as soon as the present school term ends.

Approximately 2,750,000 acres of land in South Dakota are still termed "public domain."

LOVE, COURTSHIP AND MARRIAGE

By ERNEST R. AND GLADYS H. GROVES

Noted Authorities on Marriage Relations

The bride or groom who wants to get on as well with John (Jane) after the wedding ceremony as before may wish to check on some of her (his) ideas. Here are a few to head the list:

1. Am I more interested in what I can do for John (Jane) than in what I expect him (her) to do for me?

2. Can I still let him (her) live his own life, as freely as I want to live mine?

3. Do I believe that our marriage happiness will pile up as the years go on, if we keep on working for it?

4. Will I have the backbone to take whatever goes wrong as my chance to prove my love?

5. Shall I allow my husband (wife) and our children first—even before my parents?

6. Am I ready for an endless number of surprises?

7. Can I stand monotonous routine and come out smiling?

8. When I find that John (Jane) is not the angel I thought I was marrying, but a real human being like myself with more faults than I can count, can I take it?

9. If my ideas on married love-making are not just the same as John's (Jane's), will I set myself to learn better?

10. Do I know that no part of our marriage can ever stand still, but must go on getting better or worse, according to what John (Jane) and I do about it?

It may be easy enough to give oneself a good rating on all these questions ahead of time. One can succeed in anything, in one's imagination. The test comes when the going is rough. And living with another human being is bound to have its rough spots, just as living with oneself does.

Road to Alaska

This very summer is not too soon to begin pushing through the highway to Alaska. This 1,200-mile road would cost $14,000,000; engineers say it is perfectly practicable.

There should be no trouble in getting Canada's full cooperation. The road is a defense measure against attack on North America through Alaska. Canada is surely no less interested in this than the United States, perhaps more so.

But money spent on such a highway has more than military value. The United States has called too long over development of Alaska. Plans are now under way to send new settlers there. This would provide new homes, a new market for U. S. exports, new sources of supply for raw materials produced under the American flag. As this plan gathers momentum, the road would become every year a more valuable asset.

Why delay? The cost is less than a fifth the cost of a single battleship.

Etta Riley One Of 10 Women to Get Recognition

Miss Etta Riley, Twin Falls business woman and community builder, was one of 10 women named last night by the Idaho Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs as those who have contributed most to Idaho towns.

A pageant, "Makers of the Great Seal," written by Mrs. Ross R. Addison, convention chairman, and presented at the "Golden Jubilee" banquet at the Owyhee hotel in Boise, where the state convention was concluded this afternoon, was the medium by which the selections were announced to the audience.

Three newspaper women, a doctor, an author-educator, a missionary, a librarian, a business woman, a pioneer "angel of mercy" and a poetess were named for the honor.

The newspaper women were the late Eva Hunt Dockery, for nearly 40 years a member of the Idaho Daily Statesman staff; Bertha Baird, Meridian, co-publisher with her husband of the Weekly Meridian Times, and Inez Coloway Robb, formerly of Caldwell and now of New York City, columnist for King Features syndicate.

Others named in addition to Miss Riley were Dr. Minnie F. Howard, Pocatello, wife of a physician, a doctor of medicine herself, and mother of four doctors, as well as a Woman's Christian Temperance union leader; Annie Laurie Bird, Nampa, author and educator; Mary Crawford, Lapwai, for 45 years a missionary among the Lapwai Indians; Edna Gillespie, Blackfoot librarian, cited for building up the library there; Esther Sewell, Orofino, pioneer "good neighbor and angel of mercy" in her community; and Bess Foster Smith, Weiser, writer of verse and prose.

Finding the 10 women was part of a special research project directed by Rose Addison, Boise, assisted by Marion Orr, Idaho Falls; Mrs. Minnie Davenport, Caldwell; Beatrice M. Olsen, dean of women at the University of Idaho, and Bernice Lee, Boise.

Judges were state tax commissioner Byron Defenbach; state historian Mrs. M. B. Nash and state librarian, Walter E. Lockwood, Jr.

The biography of Miss Riley, submitted by the Twin Falls club, was compiled by Mrs. Flora Bower Anderson.

On the Right—Midget Bates!

"Home" for Bruce Lyman Bates, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grant Bates, Murtaugh, since his premature birth about six weeks ago, has been in the "iron lung" incubator at Twin Falls county general hospital auditorium. Bruce has the distinction of being the lightest child ever born at the institution, weighing in at two pounds 14 ounces, about a month before he was scheduled to appear. He now weighs four pounds, 4 1/2 ounces. Here he is shown with Miss Annabelle Gee, nurse assisting in the delivery room when he was born. His attending physician, Dr. Valdi Fuendeling, has promised his mother that Bruce can leave the hospital next Sunday. He will be taken to the home of Mrs. G. Tetz, 245 Alexander street, until his mother returns to her residence in Murtaugh. (Times Photo and Engraving)

A "convention in miniature" for members of the local B.P.W. club who were unable to attend the "super-colossal" convention in Boise this week—largest attended in the history of the organization—will be held Wednesday noon at the Rogerson hotel.

Miss Margaret Hickey, St. Louis, Mo., national education chairman of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women's clubs, who has highlighted the convention with dynamic addresses, will arrive in Twin Falls tomorrow, in company with Miss M. Izetta McCoy, who presided at the convention as state president.

Incidentally, it was revealed during the convention, Miss Hickey has a "private life." She is Mrs. Joseph P. Strubinger, wife of a St. Louis lawyer, whom she married five years ago.

Western Texas once had a prairie dog town 100 miles wide and 250 miles long.

THE SPIRIT OF 76

by JOHN CLINTON

Sometime I suppose I'll learn to keep my great big mouth shut because I'm always getting a lecture by my betters. This time it was on Traffic Nerves.

As you know, my company's opened a Clinic to study Traffic Nerves, even published a 32-page book about how to get rid of 'em.

I was at lunch with some of the men who operate the Clinic the other day and I said: "What's this Traffic Nerves, a gag? Boy did I get my ears pinned back!"

They dragged me up to the lab and showed me graphs of what Traffic does to your nervous system—of how your pulse jumps when a guy suddenly starts out in front of you, or when you stall in the middle of the main street!

Then they showed me another stack of reports from the refinery—showing how they had blended this NEW 76 gasoline to overcome some of the causes of Traffic Nerves!

Well, you never saw more convincing proof. Union Oil engineers have really contributed something to our happiness in driving. For 76 really makes cars handle properly in modern traffic.

Look, next time you see the big orange and blue 76 sign, pop in and get a copy of "How To Reduce Traffic Nerves." It's got 32 pages and a flock of pictures. It'll help you get more fun out of driving.

Mac Thinks Judge Landis Should Allow Player Agents--For Laughs

BY HENRY McEMORE
NEW YORK, May 20 (AP)—This country could use a laugh or two right now, but apparently Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis doesn't feel that way about it.

From his throne room in Chicago he has put the damper on a movement, which, if allowed to flourish, might furnish even more merriment than the judge's own haught.

I refer to the judge's sternness when he suspected Joe DiMaggio of having an agent whose duty it was to handle the financial affairs of the New York outfielder.

The judge was as tough as if he had been tipped off that DiMaggio spent his spare time riding poppies for opium purposes or removing "wet paint" signs from freshly painted park benches.

I won't waste any time speculating as to the judge's right to pry into a ball player's private affairs.

Apparently the 'old gent' has powers of an absolute monarch and can do anything to a ball player, including telling him how many minutes he can have his eggs boiled and what he can buy his kids for Christmas. No official paper has ever been published outlining the scope of the Landis' powers, but judging from his past performances they include such things as the control of the moon and tides, the appearance of Halley's comet, the butter-fat content of Holstein cows, and the price of nylon stockings.

But the judge shouldn't have turned thumbs down on ball players having agents. They have as much right to them as Hollywood actors, and what fun they'd bring into the game.

There'd be the matter of billing, for example. No agent worth his accent would let his baseball client take anything except top-billing in the lineup. Can't you just hear the agents of Gabby Harnett and Ernie Lombardi and Bill Dickey insisting that their men be made lead-off hitters and not hidden away down in the lineup? They wouldn't listen to the argument that Gabby and Ernie and Bill were too slow to lead-off.

Agent would bring standing to the game, too. Just as Gable has a relief man when cameras are being focused and scenes rehearsed, the agents of the baseball stars would demand that their charges be spelled during unimportant games. With the Browns or Phillies or Bees or Athletics were the opposition, the stars would lounge on the bench and allow their under-studies (minor league players or rookies) to play in their stead.

As the baseball players undoubtedly would draw their agents from the theatrical field, the agents would raise a howl against double-headers, or two-a-day shows. Stars don't play the two-a-day circuit.

Agents would make scenes, too, when their charges were taken out for pinch-hitters.

All of this would bring a lighter touch into a game that is growing entirely too serious. The average baseball game these days is like a page out of Eugene O'Neill or Hendrik Ibsen. Stern young men, governed by stern statutes, playing a stern game in a stern manner.

It's such a stern past time, in fact, that I doubt if Judge Landis himself has seen more than 15 innings all season.

The PAYOFF By HARRY GRAYSON (NEA Sports Editor)

NEW YORK, May 21—Frank Frisch told Ace Parker the Pittsburgh Pirates would bring him back from Syracuse if he'd quit playing football. . . . The Duke product said he couldn't because he had signed with the Brooklyn Dodgers. . . . The other day he broke a leg sliding. . . . Now he can't play baseball or football.

The Red Sox' chief concern is Joe Cronin himself. . . . If the boss' legs hold up, they figure they can stagger in with pitching quantity, if not quality.

Larry MacPhail continues to dish out Brooklyn bonuses. . . . Tex Carleton got $500 for the no-hitter against the Reds. . . . The purchase of Lee Grissom by Montreal probably means the left-hander will be a Dodger next spring, maybe sooner. If Leo Durocher decides another southpaw is needed to help Vito Tamulis. . . . Durocher aggravated his damaged arm to such an extent against the Reds he had to retire. . . . Babe Ruth and Rogers Hornsby will give batting exhibitions as instructors in Ray Doan's traveling baseball school.

Track on Famous Farm Harry Sinclair, the retired oil producer, has applied for the right to build and operate a race track on his famous Ranocas stock farm at Jobstown, N. J. . . . Remember hooded Zev?

George Pace, the little Negro who gained recognition as N. B. A. basketball champion, has broken with his Cleveland manager, Tom Stanley. . . . His title match with Lou Salica in Toronto, May 27, has been canceled.

Bob Feller is a smash hit on the Cleveland luncion and banquet circuit, too. . . . The Iowa farm boy, polished now, attended two in a day and made a brief speech from a prize ring that night. . . . Boxing has come back in Cleveland, by the way, business men having taken over and kicked out all the old-timers who killed it.

The new air-conditioned Cub uniforms shrunk in the laundry and now fit quick.

Baseball Stars, Too Bill de Cotteville is largely responsible for Northwestern's best baseball season in years. . . . And Pitchin' Paul Christmas is Punchin' Paul at Missouri, where he is battling 500. . . . He's a first baseman, and intends to take a whirl in professional ball.

Sid Luckman, the Columbia star quarterbacking for the Chicago Bears, is president of two Brooklyn Shakespeare clubs.

Bob Loane, now center fielding for the Boston Bees, is preparing to attempt a Bucky Walters. . . . He pitched in the minors. . . . As though things weren't tough enough for Casey Stengel, infection set in when Tony Cucinello skinned his shin. . . . Sibby Stet is hitting in at third base.

40 Sites Set For Public Links Try-out

NEW YORK, May 21 (AP)—Forty sites—an increase of seven over 1939—will be used this year to qualify entries for the national public links golf championship, largest major golf event in the world, the U.S.G.A. announced today.

The championship proper will be played over the Rackham course at Detroit, July 22-27 and sectional rounds will determine the field of 192 players.

Ten new qualifying sections were added, three were abandoned and numerous ones shifted. The new ones include Pocatello, Idaho, and Salt Lake City.

Trout Starting to Bite in Stanley Basin Streams

The trout are starting to bite in Stanley basin—that's the big news for fishermen in this sector today. Ray Ott, who operates a cafe in Stanley, came to town with the word that the finny tribe has finally become hungry and as the rivers go down the fishing is getting better every day.

"Dry files are catching good sized bull trout at the inlets to various lakes every day now," Ott stated, "and by June 1 the fishing should be at its best for spring."

Water in the basin area is reported slightly higher than it was last year, but running off exceptionally fast. There has been no sign of salmon yet on the Salmon river.

Hoyt's Compound Ends Ten Years of Stomach Suffering for Mr. Frank Furney

Any individual who suffers from sour gassy stomach, bloating, belching, constipation, irregular kidney action, muscular pains, general run down weakened condition which may leave the body susceptible to common colds should investigate the new and different Hoyt's Compound. Mr. Furney states: "I am a man 77 years old and have suffered with stomach trouble for the past ten years. I could not eat anything but the most delicate of vegetables and then after eating them, my stomach would feel like I had eaten a brick. I would bloat and belch hot liquids that would cause me great pain. I finally got so weak that I could hardly walk. I would get dizzy spells and become so nervous that I could not sleep. I also suffered severe stabbing pains in my back and my joints and limbs got stiff and I would get up from 6 to 8 times at night. Finally I was confined to bed. I had practically given up hope of ever getting any better until my son told me about Hoyt's Compound. "I have taken almost three bottles of this wonderful medicine and I am

They bought wall board and shingles, flooring and siding, white paint and linseed oil, doors and windows and frames, nails, and a host of other things; and said they were going to spread the good news to their neighbors.

Two Burley Fires

BURLEY, May 21 (Special)—Burley fire department answered two calls over the week-end. At 10:05 a. m. Friday, the department was called to extinguish a fire in a Dodge pickup truck caused by an exploded carburetor. The car was driven by Mrs. Floyd Wolfe and damage amounted to $25.

HOBBY FUN NEXT ON PROJECT LIST

Second major event in the public inspection week now being offered by federal service projects will be the "hobby lobby" program at 8 p. m. Wednesday at the Twin Falls recreation center. It was announced today as final plans were completed.

Opening event was last night's banquet at the federal farm labor camp, at which O. P. Duval pointed out that justification for expenditure of public funds under a democracy is "to foster individual freedom of action, the right to engage in private enterprise and the hope for happiness."

All invited. All residents with hobbies were invited today to take part in the hobby lobby event Wednesday night.

The affair will be an open house with the general public invited to inspect the hobbies and the recreational center. Miss Richards said. Each person attending will be given a souvenir made at the center.

At last night's banquet, Judge Duval termed funds "well spent" in the program to provide employment, leisure time opportunity and instructional help for those requiring these things.

Defense Needs. Turning to the war picture, Judge Duval said:

"A great majority of the people are loyal and will go with the President in his request for a super navy, colossal air defense and mighty mechanized army. Taxes will soar and there will be great unrest, but we must face it. We are the most fortunate people in the world, so let's keep our heads, keep out of war, stay at home and fight only at home if necessary."

Other speakers included Supt. Homer M. Davis, projects sponsored by the school board; Mrs. Doris Stradley, county superintendent of public instruction, W. F. Perkins, hot lunch project; James L. Barnes, canning project; Hugh N. Padcock, sewing project; Mrs. LeLonde Erbland, adult education and NYA; Miss Richards, recreation.

Musical Program. Toastmaster was L. W. Folsom, NYA district supervisor. Musical offering included numbers by Mr. and Mrs. Mel Carter; vocal presentations by Phoebe Jane Franz, accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. W. Franz; Junior Farmer, trumpet solo accompanied by Patricia Smith, and piano solo by Miss Smith.

Broadcast transcriptions were heard from Washington, including one by Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt.

Arrangements for the dinner were handled by Mrs. Jennie Harrah, canning project supervisor, and Carl Yanik, supervisor of adult education and of recreation.

Nurses View Eight-Hour Day as Step To Better Service by Cutting Fatigue

By JEAN DINKELACKER "Industry recognizes the dangers that arise through fatigue, why shouldn't the nursing profession?" the First District Nurses' association is asking its members and its patients in advocating the eight-hour rather than 12-hour duty.

Those in favor of the schedule advance the information that the shorter day provides better nursing care because of the lack of fatigue on the part of the nurse, and thus invites the cooperation of the entire profession in the plan which will bring about the application of a shorter day for the nurse at the bedside.

Her through the ages of those who have nurtured the young, the weak and the sick, the mother, the kindly neighbor, the knight on the battlefield, the nun and the deaconess within or without enclosing walls—nursing is emerging as a profession from its historic setting in an attempt to meet the present demands of society.

See More Efficiency. Many members of the First District association of nurses join the American Nurses' association in the opinion that the eight-hour day is one of the best ways of insuring more efficient nursing of the sick.

At a recent meeting of the group, the eight-hour duty was discussed extensively, and a committee appointed to make recommendations as to its advisability.

The committee submitted recommendations to the board of directors, and it was decided to put the matter to a vote of the membership. Results of the poll will be announced at the Wednesday evening meeting of the association.

Recommendations if passed, would become effective July 1, 1940, and provide

Laws for Traffic At Alarm Times Will Be Enforced

Because of several near-accidents which have been reported to the police department by Fire Chief Zeke Bartlett, Chief of Police Howard Gillette today served notice that laws governing motor traffic during alarm periods would be rigidly enforced.

Gillette pointed out that city law (article 10, section 17, City of Twin Falls Code of 1933) provides that all automobile traffic must stop as soon as the general fire siren is heard. Motorists near a parking place must pull into it while motorists who find no parking place available are to pull as closely as possible to the right hand side of the road and park parallel to the curb. They are to remain clear of any intersections.

The law also prohibits parking within one block of where a fire truck is operating and also requires that motorists do not follow the fire truck any closer than a distance of 500 feet.

"Chief Bartlett has informed me that several times near-accidents have resulted from motorists failing to obey the law," Gillette said this afternoon. "In the future violators will be arrested. The police department has informed the firemen to turn over to us the license number of any car making such violations. We will see that the motorist is taken into court."

"We have a good safety record in Twin Falls and we intend to keep it that way."
